Preface

This book teaches Gujarati one word at a time, and it teaches each word by taking it apart. It is written for someone starting from zero — who may not read a single Gujarati letter — so the script is taught inside the word lessons themselves: each word introduces exactly the letters it needs, so you learn to read નમસ્તે and learn what it means in the same few minutes. (A reader who already reads Gujarati simply skims the "letters in this word" notes.)

Gujarati (gujarātī) is an Indo-Aryan language — a granddaughter of Sanskrit, like Hindi, Marathi, Punjabi, and Bengali — and the mother tongue of some sixty million people in Gujarat and across a famous global diaspora. It is the language of Mahatma Gandhi, who wrote his autobiography in it. Its script is Devanagari's sister with one visible difference: it dropped the horizontal top line, so its letters float free — "the headless script." Two threads run through the book: Gujarati's Sanskrit inheritance (shared with Hindi), and the deep Perso-Arabic layer it took on as one of India's great trading tongues (so "I'm well" is answered with the Persian majā, "relish"). Roots are traced to Sanskrit, to Persian/Arabic, and, where they reach, to the wider family that also gave English its words — every form supplied in full.

How to use this book

Every numbered section is one word, or one small phrase, and takes a few minutes — the length of a queue, an errand, or the walk to the bus. Read them in order the first time through: each section stands on the ones before it, and nothing is used before it has been taught. After that the book becomes reference, and you can open it anywhere.

Say the Gujarati out loud wherever you can. The prompts under Your turn are written to be spoken, and saying a word is most of what makes it stay. The questions under Before you move on carry their own answers in brackets: cover them, answer from memory, then look.

Nothing here is gated behind the alphabet. Each lesson introduces exactly the letters and sounds its own word needs, so you are reading real words from the first page rather than drilling a chart. The whole script is gathered in a reference at the back of the book — somewhere to look things up when you are curious, never a chapter to sit through first.

Namaste, Piece by Piece

Modes: 👁 eyes (1) ✓ pen (11) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first of 12 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can hear and say namaste, trace each Gujarati sign separately, and copy the whole greeting only after every sign is familiar.
> Complete GU-W01-namaste-read: assemble, read, and copy નમસ્તે only after hearing its meaning and tracing every load-bearing sign in its own short lesson.

1.1 Namaste — first hear the greeting

Imagine meeting someone at the start of the day. First, only listen: namaste.

The exchange

Namaste works as a greeting when you meet someone. You can also hear it at a leave-taking. For this first pass, the sound and social job are enough: hear na-ma-ste, then answer with the same greeting.

The Gujarati spelling is deliberately not decoded here. The next ten tiny lessons will give your eye and hand one reusable piece at a time. Only after all six pieces of this word are familiar will the book ask you to read or copy it.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Namaste continues Sanskrit namas, "a bow," plus te, "to you": literally, "a bow to you." Gujarati took the greeting over whole from Sanskrit. You do not need to remember the two historical pieces yet; they are simply a memory hook for the greeting's respectful shape.

Writing — let your finger meet one sign

Here is the first printed sign of the greeting's written form: ન. Follow that sign once with your finger while you say namaste.

Do not write it yet, and do not try to read it. The sign gets its own short lesson later in this chapter; tracing a typeface here does not claim a handwriting stroke order.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "namaste"
- "namaste" once as a greeting and once as a leave-taking
- its literal memory hook ("a bow to you")

Before you move on

What can you say when you meet someone? (Namaste.) What is its literal memory hook? (A bow to you.) Do you need to read its Gujarati spelling yet? (No — the script ramp starts next, one piece at a time.)

1.2 Āhār — food, a meal

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

You'll want to know: āhār

āhār — "food, a meal".

Say it: āhār. Its whole Gujarati spelling waits until every piece of it is yours. For now, look at three of those pieces as you say it: હ, ા and આ. The lessons that follow write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Āhār goes back to Sanskrit āhāra, "taking food, food" (CDIAL 1544). CDIAL lists it beside hār and ār, the worn-down forms that sound change produced; āhār keeps the full Sanskrit shape.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- āhār
- āhār, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "food, a meal"? (āhār.)

1.3 હ — the consonant ha

Say the greeting from the previous lesson once. Now let speech rest: today your hand meets only one reusable Gujarati consonant.

Script

Gujarati is written with an abugida, and that word is doing a lot of work. It is not an alphabet, where each letter is one sound. It is a system where a consonant already carries a vowel, and you only write a vowel when you want a different one.

Here is the first consonant:

હ

That is not h. It is ha — the consonant h with an a already inside it, the a of English about. Nobody wrote that vowel. It is there because a bare consonant in this script is understood to carry it, and this is called the inherent vowel.

Look at the shape while you say it. Notice what is not there: no line across the top. Gujarati is Devanagari's sister and the two share most of their skeleton, but Devanagari hangs its letters from a horizontal bar and Gujarati has erased it. The letters float. That single missing line is how you tell the two scripts apart at a glance, and it is why Gujarati is sometimes called the headless script.

Writing — notice and trace one consonant

How it is written — one unbroken stroke · 1 movement

Stroke order after t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, animation, first SVG path
This order is attested, not standardised; the source records where it varies.

How હ is written, stroke by stroke

Keep હ visible. Finger-trace it once, slowly, then trace it once in the air. Say ha after your finger stops. Do not try to write the word for "yes" yet; its vowel sign comes next.

Before you move on

What vowel does a bare consonant carry? (a — the inherent vowel, unwritten.) And what is the one visible difference from Devanagari? (No line across the top.)

Source: Unicode Gujarati chart.

1.4 ◌ા — the vowel sign that replaces the inherent a

Write the piece from the previous lesson before adding another.

Script

The inherent a is a default. To get a different vowel you replace it, and you replace it with a mark called a mātrā.

Here is the first one:

On its own it is nothing — a vertical stroke you would never write alone. It only means anything attached to a consonant, where it swaps the inherent short a for a long ā, the a of English father.

Place it immediately to the right of the consonant you just learned:

હ + ◌ા

Together they sound hā. Keep the pieces separated on this first pass so your hand learns the sign itself rather than copying a whole-word picture. A later spoken lesson will give that sound a conversational job.

Take the measure of that. You learned one consonant and one mark, and they made a syllable you can read. Nothing was memorised as a picture.

Writing — notice and trace one vowel sign

How ા is written, stroke by stroke

Keep ા visible beside હ. Finger-trace the vowel sign once, then point to where it attaches on the consonant. Say hā. You are not copying a whole word yet; today is only the second piece.

Before you move on

What does a mātrā do to the inherent vowel? (Replaces it.) What syllable do those two separate pieces make together? (Hā.)
Source: Unicode Gujarati chart.

1.5 આ — the SAME vowel standing alone

Write the piece from the previous lesson before adding another.

Script

How આ is written, stroke by stroke

Now a distinction that trips up every beginner in every Indic script, and it is worth meeting deliberately rather than by accident.

The mark you just learned only works attached to a consonant. So what do you write when a word starts with that vowel, with no consonant to hang it on?

You write a different character:

આ

That is ā as well — the same sound — but it is an independent vowel, a full letter that stands on its own at the start of a word.

These are two different characters, not two styles of one. They look related because they are, and a computer, a font and this book all treat them as completely separate. Confusing them is the commonest spelling error in the script.

So what decides which one you write is position, not sound:

- આ begins a word.
- ા rides on a consonant.

You already know a word that opens with the independent one — the word for thanks — and you will be able to read the whole of it shortly.

Your turn

- Trace it: keep આ visible and trace it once with a finger
- Read it: every piece this chapter has given you so far, in order

Before you move on

Which of the two starts a word? (આ, the independent vowel.) Which one attaches to a consonant? (◌ા, the mātrā.) And are they the same character? (No — two separate characters for one sound.) Source: Unicode Gujarati chart.

1.6 ન — the consonant na

Write the piece from the previous lesson before adding another.

Script

How ન is written, stroke by stroke

ન

na, with the same inherent a inside it. The n of English net, then the vowel nobody wrote.

This is also the first written piece of the greeting you already know by ear. Keep the whole greeting hidden for now. One consonant is enough work for one tiny lesson.

If you later attach the long-aa sign, the sound becomes nā. That is the arithmetic of an abugida: consonants and vowel signs multiply, so a small number of pieces reaches a large number of syllables. Today you only trace bare ન.

Your turn

- Trace it: keep ન visible and trace it once with a finger
- Read it: every piece this chapter has given you so far, in order

Before you move on

What does the bare consonant sound like on its own? (Na, with the inherent vowel.) What happens if a vowel sign is attached later? (It replaces that inherent vowel.)
Source: Unicode Gujarati chart.

1.7 મ — the consonant ma

Write the piece from the previous lesson before adding another.

Script

How મ is written, stroke by stroke

મ

ma. The m of English met, with the inherent a riding along.

Nothing new in the machinery this time — this is simply another consonant, and the rules you already have apply to it unchanged. Add the mātrā and you would get mā; leave it bare and it is ma.

That is worth saying plainly, because it is the payoff of learning the system rather than the words. Every consonant from here behaves exactly like the two you already know. There are no new rules coming for them, only new shapes.

Write it beside the two you have. Three letters, floating, no bar across the top.

Your turn

- Trace it: keep મ visible and trace it once with a finger
- Read it: every piece this chapter has given you so far, in order

Before you move on

What vowel is inside મ when nothing is attached? (a.) And what would મ plus the mātrā you know sound like? (mā.)

1.8 સ — the consonant sa

Write the piece from the previous lesson before adding another.

Script

How સ is written, stroke by stroke

સ

sa. The s of English sit, plus the inherent vowel.

You are four consonants and one mātrā into this script, and every one of them has behaved the same way. Say the four aloud in the order you met them, each with its inherent vowel:

હ ન મ સ

ha, na, ma, sa. Four beats, four shapes, no bar across any of them.

Your turn

- Trace it: keep સ visible and trace it once with a finger
- Read it: every piece this chapter has given you so far, in order

Before you move on

Say the four consonants you now hold, each with its inherent vowel. (ha, na, ma, sa.)

This order is attested, not standardised; the source records where it varies.

How ટ is written, stroke by stroke ta — and the consonant is not quite the English one.

English t is made with the tongue on the ridge behind the teeth. This one is dental: the tongue touches the back of the upper teeth themselves, further forward. It sounds softer to an English ear, and getting it right is one of the quickest ways to stop sounding foreign.

The script will make you care about this shortly, because it has a second t made even further back, and the two are different letters and different words. This is the forward one.

Your turn

- Trace it: keep ટ visible and trace it once with a finger
- Read it: every piece this chapter has given you so far, in order

Before you move on

Where does the tongue go for ટ? (Against the back of the upper teeth — dental, not on the ridge.) And is there another t in this script? (Yes, one made further back.)

1.10 ◌ — a mātrā that sits ABOVE the letter, not beside it

Write the piece from the previous lesson before adding another.

Script

How it is written — one unbroken stroke · 2 movements

Stroke order after Tejas Gajjar, KanoAI, Gujarati barakhadi centre-line stroke templates (interpolate-svg/svgs/barakhadi), commit 9d3e294, 1_k/6_ke.svg, group g1 (stroke g1s0): the e sign drawn after the consonant (GitHub, 2026)
This order is attested, not standardised; the source records where it varies.

How ◌ઁ is written, stroke by stroke

A second vowel sign, and it introduces something the first one did not.

This is e, the vowel of English bed. And unlike the mātrā you already know, which stands to the right of its consonant, this one sits above it:

ત + ◌ઁ → તે

te. One beat, still — the mark changes the vowel, never the count.

Where a mātrā sits is not decoration. In this family of scripts a vowel sign can go to the right, to the left, above, below, or even on both sides at once, and the position is part of the character's identity. A reader learns to look around a consonant, not just after it.

Your turn

- Trace it: keep ◌ઁ visible and trace it once with a finger
- Read it: every piece this chapter has given you so far, in order

Before you move on

Where does this mātrā sit? (Above the consonant.) Does it add a beat? (No — it replaces the vowel, it does not add one.)
Source: Unicode Gujarati chart.

1.11 ◌્ — the mark that DELETES the inherent vowel, and glues two consonants together

Write the piece from the previous lesson before adding another.

Script

One piece of machinery left, and it is the one that makes the script's hardest shapes make sense.

The inherent vowel is a nuisance when you do not want it. If a word has two consonants pressed together with no vowel between them, writing them plainly would insert an a that is not there.

So there is a mark that removes it:

This is the virama. Attached under a consonant, it says: no vowel here.

And then something happens that no European alphabet does. A consonant stripped of its vowel does not usually sit there bare — it fuses with the consonant after it into a single joined shape called a conjunct:

સ + ◌્ + ત → સ્ત

sta, one cluster. You can still see both letters in it if you look, and that is the trick to reading conjuncts: they are not new characters to memorise, they are two you already know, joined.

Your turn

- Trace it: keep ◌્ visible and trace it once with a finger
- Read it: every piece this chapter has given you so far, in order

Before you move on

What does the virama do? (Removes the inherent vowel.) And what usually happens to a consonant that loses its vowel? (It joins the next one into a conjunct.)
Source: Unicode Gujarati chart.

1.12 નમસ્તે — five pieces, all of them already yours

Write the piece from the previous lesson before adding another.

Script

Everything in this word is something you can already write. Nothing new is introduced here at all.

નમસ્તે

Read it the way you built it:

- ન — na, inherent vowel
- મ — ma, inherent vowel
- સ્ત — the conjunct: sa with its vowel removed, fused to ta
- ે — the mātrā above, making that last piece te na-ma-ste. The greeting you learned in your first lesson, now decoded rather than recalled.

The greeting itself takes four consonants, one vowel sign, and one virama. The extra consonant and long-vowel pieces you traced on the way will pay off in the next few spoken words. Every consonant you meet from here follows the same inherent-vowel rule, so the next word costs new shapes but not a new system.

The script has around forty more letters. It does not have any more systems.

Your turn

- Copy: keep નમસ્તે visible and copy it once, piece by piece
- Read it: every piece this chapter has given you so far, in order

Before you move on

How many new pieces were in this lesson? (None.) What is સ્ત made of? (સ with its vowel removed, joined to ત.) And what does the mark above the last letter do? (Makes it te instead of ta.) Source: Unicode Gujarati chart.

2.1 ર — one new shape, ra

Say the inherent-vowel rule once: a bare Gujarati consonant carries short a. Keep that rule; add only one shape.

Script — meet the shape

Keep ર visible. It is ra: r plus the inherent a. Begin at the upper left, circle clockwise around the rounded upper body, continue through the small middle loop, and descend into the lower-right tail without lifting.

Writing — notice and trace

Finger-trace ર once. Then trace it once in the air. Say ra only after the motion stops.

Writing — copy with the model

Keep ર visible and copy it once. Compare only three landmarks: rounded top, small middle loop, descending tail. If one differs, repair that part.

Writing — recall after hiding

Cover the model. Write ra once from memory, then uncover ર and check the three landmarks. Stop after one honest repair.

2.2 ૬ — one continuous shape, da

Without looking back, write ૨ once. Check it, then set it aside.

Script — meet the shape

Keep ૬ visible. It is da. Begin at the upper right, circle the rounded upper body into the narrow middle turn, then continue without lifting around the broad lower body and rise into the compact right terminal.

2.4 ય — upper turn, lower body, separate spine, ya

Write ય once from memory. Name its two runs, then move on.

Script — meet the shape

Keep ય visible. It is ya. Begin at the upper left, circle through the rounded upper turn, and sweep around the broad lower body into the long right shoulder. Lift once; descend the tall right spine and turn through its lower foot.

Writing — notice and trace

How ય is written, stroke by stroke

Trace the body once with a finger, lift, then trace the spine. Repeat once in the air.

2.5 ભ — broad loop, inner turn, separate spine, bha

Write ય once from memory. Check only its separate right spine.

Script — meet the shape

Keep ભ visible. It is bha, one consonant sound with the inherent a. Begin at the lower left, circle clockwise around the broad loop, wind through the compact inner turn, and exit across the long right shoulder. Lift once; descend the tall right spine and turn through its lower foot.

2.7 ૃ — a small below-consonant sign, -ṛ

Point to ભ, then ધ. Say bha, then dha. Do not copy either.

Script — meet the shape

Keep ૃ visible. This is not a free-standing letter. It is a small vowel sign placed below a consonant, mainly in Sanskrit loans, and it gives vocalic ṛ. Keep ભૃ visible: the new information is only the small sign below ભ.

Writing — notice and trace

Finger-trace the visible ૃ once. No stroke-order claim is being added here; copy the printed model's small below-consonant shape.

Writing — copy with the model

2.8 આભાર (ābhār) — "thank you," an obligation gladly owed

Gujarati's everyday "thank you" — and it comes from the idea of being indebted.

The letters in this word

આ (the independent long ā, for a word-initial vowel) + ભા (bhā) + ર (r) → આભાર (ābhār). Note again: no top line.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

આભાર (ābhār, "thanks, gratitude") is from Sanskrit આભાર (ābhāra, "a load, a burden"), from આ- (ā-, "toward") + the root ભૃ (bhṛ, "to bear, carry"). To thank someone is to acknowledge you now bear an obligation to them — the same idea as English oblige (Latin ob- + ligāre "to bind") and Portuguese obrigado. That root bhṛ is Proto-Indo-European b^{h}er-, the ancestor of English bear (to carry) and Latin ferre. (The more Sanskritic ધન્યવાદ dhanyavād is also used, but ābhār is the warm, everyday Gujarati word.)

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "ābhār"
- what it literally acknowledges (an obligation "borne")
- the English cousin of its root bhṛ (bear, "to carry")

Script retrieval

Hide the earlier models. Write ર once, then write the unattached practice model ૃ once. Compare, repair only one mark if needed, and stop.

Before you move on

What does ābhār literally mean, and what English word shares its root? ("An obligation borne"; bear — from PIE $*b^h er$-, "to carry.")

2.9 આવજો (āvjo) — "goodbye" (come again)

The everyday Gujarati goodbye — and, like the goodbyes across all of India, it is really an invitation to return.

The letters in this word

આ (independent ā) + વ (va) + જો (jo) → આવજો (āvjo).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

આવજો (āvjo) is the polite imperative of āvvũ, "to come" — literally "[please] come [again]." A Gujarati never signs off by saying "I'm leaving"; the parting word is come. It is the same "promise of return" that runs through the whole subcontinent — Tamil pōy varugiṟēṉ ("I'll go and come back"), Bengali āshi ("I'll come"), Hindi phir milenge ("we'll meet again") — here made into a single warm word built on the verb to come. (To one person, familiarly: આવજે āvje.)
The verb itself is inherited: CDIAL lists āvvũ under Sanskrit āpayati, "causes to reach", whose Prakrit form āvaï already meant "comes" (CDIAL 1200).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "āvjo"
- what it literally means ("[please] come [again]")
- the verb it's built on (āvvũ, "to come")

Script retrieval

Without looking back, write ૬, then ચ, one time each. Compare them with the earlier models. Repair one shape if needed; do not start a row.

Before you move on

What does the Gujarati goodbye literally say, and what verb is it from? ("Come [again]"; āvvũ, "to come" — never "I'm leaving.")

2.10 હા / ના (hā / nā) — "yes" and "no"

> Two tiny words no conversation survives without — and one is a cousin of English.

The letters in this word

હા (hā) = હ (ha) + the long-ā sign. ના (nā) = ન (na) + the long-ā sign.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હા (hā, "yes") and ના (nā, "no"). The "no" rides the ancient negative na- — the very same Proto-Indo-European ne behind English no, not, none, Latin nōn, Hindi nahīṁ, and Bengali nā. Of all the words in this book, this "no" reaches furthest unchanged: one syllable spoken, in some form, from Iceland to Gujarat for five thousand years. The "yes" is inherited too: CDIAL lists Gujarati hāṁ under Sanskrit āṁ, "yes", its h- added either for emphasis or from the verb "to be" (CDIAL 1235). The "no" goes with Gujarati na, "not", which CDIAL lists under Sanskrit na (CDIAL 6906).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "hā" (yes) and "nā" (no)
- the shared ancestor of nā and English no (PIE ne*)

Script retrieval

Hide the earlier models. Write ન, then ન, one time each. Compare the two shapes and repair only the one that needs it.

Before you move on

What ancient root links Gujarati nā to English no? (Proto-Indo-European ne*, "not.")

2.11 હા — one supported copy

Point to the consonant હ, then the attached vowel sign ા. Say the whole known word: હા, hā, "yes." Keep the model visible.

Writing — guided copy

How હા is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Copy હા once. You may look back after each piece: first હ, then ા. Touch both pieces in your copy and read hā.

Script retrieval — one older consonant

Now hide the earlier model for ઘ and write it once. Compare and make at most one repair.

Before you move on

Compare only the two pieces and their order. Repair one piece if needed, then stop. The model stays visible today.

2.12 ઘા — look, hide, write, compare

Look at ઘા for five seconds. Point first to ઘ, then to ા. Do not copy it yet.

Writing — delayed copy

How ઘા is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

1. cover ઘા
2. wait five seconds

3. write it once from memory
4. uncover the model and compare the two pieces

If one piece differs, circle it and repair only that place. Repair is part of the exercise, not a failure.

Script retrieval — one older vowel sign

Hide the earlier model for ૃ. Write the small below-consonant sign once, compare it, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Read your repaired word as hā. Stop after one memory attempt.

2.13 One heard answer — write what you know

Cover the answer lower on this page. You will hear one familiar answer. No new Gujarati is hiding in this lesson.

Writing — short dictation

Hear: hā — "yes"

Write the Gujarati word from sound alone. Now uncover and compare: હા. Check હ first and attached ા second. Repair one place if needed.

Before you move on

Writing from sound completes this tiny runway. It is not a mock assessment; later lessons must grow from one known word to forms, messages, and timed tasks.

2.14 સારું (sārũ) — "good," "okay"

The all-purpose "good / fine / okay / alright" — and your first taste of Gujarati's three genders.

The letters in this word

સા (sā) + રું (rũ, with the nasal anusvāra on the u) → સારું (sārũ).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સારું (sārũ, "good, fine, okay") is from Sanskrit સાર (sāra, "essence, substance, the best part"; CDIAL 13355). As "okay/agreed" it oils every Gujarati conversation, the way English uses "alright."

Grammar Lens: three genders, on the adjective

Listen to that ending, -ũ. Gujarati, like Marathi, keeps three genders from Sanskrit — masculine, feminine, and neuter — where Hindi and Punjabi kept only two. An adjective agrees with its noun in all three, and the ending is what changes:

- sāro — masculine
- sārī — feminine
- sārũ — neuter

Three endings by ear only, for now: the signs that write -o and -ī arrive in the next chapter, and the three spellings come back once you can read them. Standing alone as "okay," it takes the neuter sārũ. You will meet this three-way agreement on every adjective and possessive.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "sārũ" — good / okay
- the three genders — sāro (m.) / sārī (f.) / sārũ (n.)
- the Sanskrit root (sāra, "essence")

Before you move on

What does sārũ mean, and what does its -ũ ending tell you? ("Good / okay"; it is the neuter — Gujarati keeps three genders.)

2.15 Chapter 2 — Courtesy and responses

No new words. The five greetings, mixed and recombined.

How to answer — rapid recall

Say these aloud:

- hello / goodbye — namaste
- thank you — ābhār
- yes and no — hā / nā
- good / okay — sārũ
- the "come again" goodbye — āvjo

Script — the script and the language

Say these aloud:

- the one visible thing that sets Gujarati apart from Devanagari (no top line)
- how many genders Gujarati keeps (three — sāro/sārī/sārũ)

Writing — three gentle retrievals

Cover every written answer. Hear hā, "yes," once in your mind and write it from memory. Then uncover હા and check the two pieces: હ, then attached ા. One repair is allowed.

Four consonants.

Hide the models. Write ર ઇ વ ચ, once each and in that order. Uncover the models and compare one shape at a time. Make no more than one repair per shape.

Two consonants and one sign.

Keep the models hidden. Write ભ, then ધ. Finally write ભ again and attach ૃ below it to make ભૃ. Compare, repair, and stop.

What you've built — roots you now carry

- namaste = namas "a bow" + te "to you"
- ābhār ← ā + bhṛ "to bear" → an obligation borne (cousin of English bear)
- nā ("no") ← PIE ne* → English no/not/none
- āvjo ("goodbye") = "come [again]," from āvvũ "to come"

Before you move on

Someone thanks you and turns to leave. Answer their thanks and send them off the Gujarati way. (Sārũ — and āvjo, "come again.")

Chapter 3

Nine Doorway Forms

Modes: 🚗 voice (3) ✓ pen (10) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 3 of 13 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can read and write nine Gujarati forms needed by the next conversations: જ, ો, ં, ી, ુ, છ, ક, ણ, and શ.
> With every model covered, identify the nine doorway forms and write them from spoken sound or role cues, earning separate reading and writing scores.

3.1 છીપ (chīp) — a seashell

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

Play the courtesy exchange once more: greet, answer yes or no, thank, and say goodbye.

You'll want to know: છીપ

છીપ — chīp — "a seashell".

Say it: chīp. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, છ, ી and, a little later, પ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

છીપ (chīp) goes back to sippī*, "shell", a form CDIAL reconstructs from its descendants (CDIAL 13417). CDIAL takes the word from Dravidian, comparing Tamil cippi.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- chīp
- chīp, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "a seashell"? (છીપ, chīp.)

3.2 કણ (kaṇ) — a grain

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

You'll want to know: કણ

કણ — kaṇ — "a grain".

Say it: kaṇ. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, ક and ણ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કણ (kaṇ) is inherited from Sanskrit kaṇa, "a grain of corn", and has come down with almost no change (CDIAL 2661).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- kaṇ
- kaṇ, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "a grain"? (કણ, kaṇ.)

3.3 શક (śak) — a doubt

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

You'll want to know: શક

શક — śak — "a doubt".

Say it: śak. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, શ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

શક (śak) is a loan from Arabic shakk, "doubt", which reached Gujarati through Persian. Its Arabic root is sh-k-k (Lane).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- śak
- śak, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "a doubt"? (શક, śak.)

3.4 જ — the consonant ja

Without looking back, say the leave-taking word aavjo once.
Today you meet the letter at its centre.

Script — meet one form

Keep જ visible. It is the consonant ja, pronounced ja. Begin near the upper left and circle the small upper-left loop. Continue diagonally through the crossing body, circle the lower-right loop, and sweep into the long upper-right exit without lifting.

Writing — notice and trace

How જ્ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace જ્ once, then air-trace it once. Notice two loops joined through a crossing; no pen lift.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible જ્ once. Compare only the landmark named above and repair it once if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write ja once. Uncover જ્, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Name the form, its position or main landmark, and its pen-lift count.

3.5 ◌ો — the attached vowel sign o

Hide the model from the previous lesson and write ja once.
Check only its two loops.

Script — meet one form

Keep ◌ો visible. It is the attached vowel sign o, pronounced -o. This is the vowel sign o: the long-aa bar on the right plus a short mark above. It attaches to a consonant and replaces that consonant's inherent a.

Writing — notice and trace

How ◌ો is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace ◌ો once, then air-trace it once. Notice right-side bar plus high mark; one attached right bar and one high mark.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible ◌ો once. Compare only the landmark named above and repair it once if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write -o once. Uncover ◌ો, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Name the form, its position or main landmark, and its pen-lift count.

3.6 ◌ં — the nasal mark anusvara

Write the attached o sign once from memory. Check the right bar, then the mark above.

Script — meet one form

Keep ◌ં visible. It is the nasal mark anusvara, pronounced ṃ. This is anusvāra, a single dot above the syllable. It marks nasal sound; it is small, but its position above the writing line is part of the spelling.

Writing — notice and trace

3.7 ◌ી — the attached long-i vowel sign

Place the nasal dot once from memory. Keep it above the writing line.

Script — meet one form

Keep ◌ી visible. It is the attached long-i vowel sign, pronounced -ī. This is the long-ī vowel sign. It attaches to the right of a consonant as an upright curl with a trailing tail, replacing the inherent a with long ī.

Writing — notice and trace

Stroke order after Tejas Gajjar, KanoAI, Gujarati barakhadi centre-line stroke templates (interpolate-svg/svgs/barakhadi), commit 9d3e294, 1_k/3_kee.svg, group g1 (stroke g1s0): the ii sign drawn after the consonant (GitHub, 2026)

Finger-trace ◌ી once, then air-trace it once. Notice right-side curl with a tail; one attached curl and tail.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible ◌ી once. Compare only the landmark named above and repair it once if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write -ī once. Uncover ી, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Name the form, its position or main landmark, and its pen-lift count.
Sources: Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice and the Unicode Gujarati chart.

3.8 ુ — the attached short-u vowel sign

Write the long-ī sign once from memory. Check that its curl sits to the right.

Script — meet one form

Keep ુ visible. It is the attached short-u vowel sign, pronounced -u. This is the short-u vowel sign. It hangs below its consonant as a small hook. The position below, not beside or above, identifies the mark.

3.9 છ — the consonant chha

Write the below-letter u hook once from memory. Keep it compact.

Script — meet one form

Keep છ visible. It is the consonant chha, pronounced chha. Begin near the upper left and circle the upper-left lobe. Continue through the middle and around the broad lower body, then climb the outer right curve and circle the upper-right lobe without lifting.

3.10 ક — the consonant ka

> Write chha once from memory. Check the two upper lobes before looking back.

Script — meet one form

Keep ક visible. It is the consonant ka, pronounced ka. Begin at the upper right, circle the upper loop, and continue diagonally through the rounded lower body. Lift once; sweep the separate diagonal cross-stroke from lower left to upper right.

Writing — notice and trace

How ક is written, stroke by stroke

3.11 ણ — the retroflex consonant nna

> Write ka once from memory: body first, then the separate rising cross-stroke.

Script — meet one form

Keep ણ visible. It is the retroflex consonant nna, pronounced ṇa. Descend the left spine and sweep through its hooked lower tail. Lift and circle the separate middle bowl. Lift again, descend the tall right spine, and turn through its lower foot.

Writing — notice and trace

3.12 શ — the consonant sha

> Write retroflex nna once from memory. Check the left hook, middle bowl, and right spine.

Script — meet one form

Keep શ visible. It is the consonant sha, pronounced sha. Begin at the upper right, circle the small upper loop, and continue through the broad lower body into its tail. Lift once; descend the tall right spine and turn through its lower foot.

Writing — notice and trace

How શ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace શ once, then air-trace it once. Notice small upper loop, broad body, separate right spine; one pen lift.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible શ once. Compare only the landmark named above and repair it once if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write sha once. Uncover શ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Your turn

Cover every model above with a card.

Reading and writing each need 8/9. Keep the two scores separate; neither compensates for the other.

Before you move on

Name the form, its position or main landmark, and its pen-lift count.
Sources: Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice and the Unicode Gujarati chart.

3.13 ક — ણ — શ: the last three return

Keep the three cards visible. Point to ક, ણ, and શ as you say ka, retroflex nna, and sha. Notice only one contrast at a time: open bowl, hooked bowl, then looped body.

Read the row once from left to right. A correct shape name earns the reading point; a written answer cannot replace it.

Writing — from sound

Cover the row. Write ka, retroflex nna, and sha from the three spoken cues. Check reading and writing separately; stop after one focused repair.

Before you move on

Which form has the small upper loop? Write it once. (શ.)

Chapter 4

Four Forms Before Your Name

> By the end of this chapter: I can read and write four Gujarati forms before they appear in the first name exchange: ળ, થ, અ, and ◌ા.
> With every model covered, read ળ, થ, અ, and ◌ા and write each one from a spoken sound or role cue, keeping reading and writing scores separate.

4.1 અથાણું (athāṇũ) — pickle

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

Write it: ૨, ૬ and છ once each, from memory. Then say chīp and what it means.

You'll want to know: અથાણું

અથાણું — athāṇũ — "pickle".

Say it: athāṇũ. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, અ and થ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

CDIAL lists અથાણું (athāṇũ) under Sanskrit āsthāpana, "strengthening remedy", a word built on sthā, "to stand" (CDIAL 1515). Hindi athān, "pickles", stands in the same entry.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- athāṇũ
- athāṇũ, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "pickle"? (અથાણું, athāṇũ.)

4.2 દિવાળી (divāḷī) — Diwali, the festival of lights

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

Write it: વ, ચ and ક once each, from memory. Then say kaṇ and śak, and what each means.

You'll want to know: દિવાળી

દિવાળી — divāḷī — "Diwali, the festival of lights".

Say it: divāḷī. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, ળ and િ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દિવાળી (divāḷī) is a tadbhava of Sanskrit dīpāvali, "row of lamps": dīpa, "lamp", and āvali, "row" (CDIAL 6358).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- divāḷī
- divāḷī, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "Diwali, the festival of lights"? (દિવાળી, divāḷī.)

4.3 ળ — one new shape, retroflex lla

> Write retroflex nna once from memory. Keep the tongue-curl idea, but put the old shape away: today it receives a different sound and form.

Keep ળ visible. It is retroflex lla: the tongue curls back for the l sound. Begin at the upper left and circle the broad left bowl. Continue upward through the narrow middle turn, cross the high right arch, and descend the tall spine into its lower foot without lifting.

4.4 થ — the consonant tha

Write retroflex lla once from memory. Check only its broad bowl and tall spine.

Script — meet one form

Keep થ visible. It is tha: say ta with a clear puff of air. Begin at the right of the small upper loop, circle it, descend through the middle, and sweep around the broad lower body into the right shoulder. Lift once; descend the tall right spine and turn through its lower foot.

4.5 અ — short a standing alone

> Write tha once from memory. Then say the vowel already carried by a bare Gujarati consonant: short a.

Script — meet one form

Keep અ visible. It is independent short a, used when the vowel begins a syllable without a consonant. Sweep clockwise around the open left curve, continue through the lower body, rise into the middle shoulder, and finish the small right arch. Lift once; descend the separate right stem into its foot.

Writing — notice and trace

How અ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace અ once, then air-trace it once. Notice open left curve, middle shoulder, small arch, separate right stem; one pen lift.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible અ once. Compare only the open curve and separate stem; repair one landmark if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write independent short a once. Uncover અ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

When does short a need અ instead of arriving free on a consonant? (When it stands without a consonant.)
Sources: Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice and the Unicode Gujarati chart.

4.6 િ — short i sits before, sounds after

Point to અ and શ. Say independent short a, then sha. Do not combine them; today one small sign changes only the vowel on શ.

Script — meet one form

Keep િ visible. It is the attached short-i sign. It is written to the left of its consonant even though i is pronounced after that consonant. With શ, it makes શિ, shi. Start with the upright stem and finish through the curl that reaches toward the consonant.

Writing — notice and trace

Finger-trace િ once, then air-trace it once. Notice the sign's left-side place in શિ. Say shi only after the whole form is visible.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible શિ once. Circle only the short-i sign and check that it sits to the left of શ; repair its placement once if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model. Add short i to શ and write shi. Uncover શિ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Is િ seen before or after its consonant? (Before.) Is it pronounced before or after? (After.)

Source: Unicode Gujarati chart; placement and example follow `data/scripts/gujarati.json`.

4.7 ળ — થ — અ — િ: four forms return

Keep the four cards visible. Point as you say retroflex lla, aspirated tha, independent short a, and attached short i. For િ, also say: seen before, heard after.

Your turn

Read the row once from left to right. Give િ its role as an attached sign, not as an independent letter. Record a reading score out of four.

Writing — from sound or role

Cover every model. Write the four cues in order. Record a separate writing score out of four; a reading point cannot replace a written form. Aim for 4/4 in each column, with one focused repair allowed.

Before you move on

Write the only attached sign in the row, then say its placement rule.

Chapter 5

Four More Forms Before Your Name

> By the end of this chapter: I can read and write four more Gujarati consonants before they appear in the first name exchange: લ, પ, ચ, and બ.
> With every model covered, read લ, પ, ચ, and બ and write each one from a spoken sound cue, keeping reading and writing scores separate.

5.1 ચપ્પલ (cappal) — sandals

> Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.
> Write it: ભ once from memory. Say yes and no (hā, nā), then athāṇũ and what it means.

You'll want to know: ચપ્પલ

Say it: cappal. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, ચ and લ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

CDIAL has no entry for ચપ્પલ (cappal). DEDR compares Hindi cappal, with a "Cf.", to the Dravidian words for a sandal, such as Telugu ceppu (DEDR 1963).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- cappal
- cappal, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "sandals"? (ચપ્પલ, cappal.)

5.2 બગલો (bagalo) — a heron

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

Say divāḷī and what it names, then say goodbye (āvjo).

You'll want to know: બગલો

બગલો — bagalo — "a heron".

Say it: bagalo. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, બ and, a little later, ગ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બગલો (bagalo) belongs with Gujarati bag, "crane", which CDIAL lists under Sanskrit baka, a heron or crane (CDIAL 9115). CDIAL thinks the word was probably imitative in origin. It does not list the longer Gujarati form.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- bagalo
- bagalo, and what it means

Before you move on

What is “a heron”? (બગલો, bagalo.)

5.3 લ — the consonant la

Write retroflex ળ once from memory. Say lla, then put it away. The new letter is the ordinary l sound.

Keep લ visible. It is la. Circle counterclockwise around the broad rounded left body. Lift once and sweep the separate middle shoulder from left to right. Lift again; descend the tall right spine and turn through its lower foot.

5.4 પ — the consonant pa

> Write la once from memory. Check its rounded body; the next form begins with a high hook instead.

Keep પ visible. It is pa. Begin at the high left hook, curl over it, descend the left stem, and sweep around the broad lower body into the right shoulder. Lift once; descend the tall right spine into its lower foot.

Writing — notice and trace

5.5 ચ — the consonant cha

Point to છ and say aspirated chha with its puff. The new ચ is the shorter, unaspirated cha: no extra puff.

Script — meet one form

Keep ચ visible. It is cha. Circle the upper bowl, turn through the small middle loop, and continue around the broad lower body. Lift once; descend the separate right spine and turn through its lower foot.

5.6 બ — the consonant ba

> Write cha once from memory. Check its small middle loop, then put that model away.

Script — meet one form

Keep બ visible. It is ba. Circle clockwise around the rounded left body, wind through the compact inner turn, and exit across the right shoulder. Lift once; descend the tall right spine and turn through its lower foot.

5.7 લ — પ — ચ — બ: four more forms return

Keep the four cards visible. Point as you say la, pa, unaspirated cha, and ba. Notice one landmark at a time: rounded body, high hook, middle loop, compact inner turn.

Read the row once from left to right. Record a reading score out of four.

Writing — from sound

Cover every model. Write la, pa, unaspirated cha, and ba from the four spoken cues. Record a separate writing score out of four. Aim for 4/4 in each column, with one focused repair allowed.

Your turn

Read ક ણ શ once. Cover the row, then write ka, retroflex nna, and sha from sound. Keep these older scores separate from the four-form chapter payoff; one repair is enough.

Before you move on

Read લ ળ and ચ છ aloud. Keep ordinary/retroflex l and unaspirated/aspirated ch separate.

Chapter 6

Four Final Forms Before the Verbs

Modes: 🚗 voice (2) ✓ pen (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 2 of 7 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can read and write ગ, એ, ખ, and ઉ before the later verb and number lessons use them.
> With every model covered, read ગ, એ, ખ, and ઉ and write each one from a spoken sound or role cue, keeping reading and writing scores separate.

6.1 ઉખાણું (ukhāṇũ) — a riddle

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

Say cappal and what it means, then say thank you (ābhār).

You'll want to know: ઉખાણું

ઉખાણું — ukhāṇũ — "a riddle".

Say it: ukhāṇũ. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, ઉ and ખ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઉખાણું (ukhāṇũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from upākhyāna, "subordinate story, episode" (CDIAL 2289). CDIAL lists Gujarati ukhāṇ and ukhāṇo, "riddle", beside it.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- ukhāṇũ
- ukhāṇũ, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "a riddle"? (ઉખાણું, ukhāṇũ.)

6.2 એકલું (eklũ) — alone

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

Say bagalo and what it means. Write it: the ૃ hook once from memory.

You'll want to know: એકલું

એકલું — eklũ — "alone".

Say it: eklũ. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, એ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

એકલું (eklũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited and reshaped by sound change. CDIAL reconstructs ekkala*, "alone", built on eka, "one", and lists the Gujarati word under its doubled variant ekkalla* (CDIAL 2506).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- eklũ
- eklũ, and what it means

Before you move on

What is “alone”? (એકલું, eklũ.)

6.3 ગ — the consonant ga

Write બ once from memory. Put it away after one comparison. Today adds one new sound and one new shape: ga.

Script — meet one form

Keep ગ visible. Circle the rounded left body to the lower left. Lift once, descend the separate right spine, and turn through its lower foot.

Writing — notice and trace

6.4 એ — independent e

> Read ગ once, then write independent અ once from memory. Say "standing alone," then put both away. The next independent vowel has its own whole-letter form.

Keep એ visible. Circle the left bowl and continue through the lower body and small right arch. Lift once for the full-height right stem and foot. Lift again and sweep the high arc from left to right.

Writing — notice and trace

How એ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace એ once, then air-trace it once. Notice joined body, separate stem, high arc; two pen lifts.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible એ once. Compare only the separate stem and high arc; repair one landmark if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write independent e once. Uncover એ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Say why this is a whole vowel letter rather than a mark attached to a consonant.

6.5 ખ — the consonant kha

Write unaspirated ક once. Say ka. Add a clear puff of air aloud for kha, then put the old shape away.

Script — meet one form

Keep ખ visible. Descend through the joined left lobe and curl right through the middle. Lift once, descend the separate right spine, and turn through its lower foot.

Writing — notice and trace

How ખ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace ખ once, then air-trace it once. Notice left lobe, inner curl, separate spine; one pen lift.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible ખ once. Compare only the inner curl and right spine; repair one landmark if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write kha once. Uncover ખ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Read ક ખ aloud and keep unaspirated ka apart from aspirated kha. Sources: Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice and the Unicode Gujarati chart.

6.6 ઉ — independent u

Write attached short-u sign ુ once and say "needs a consonant." Put it away. The same vowel standing alone needs a whole letter.

Script — meet one form

Keep ઉ visible. Circle the small upper bowl to the middle cusp. Continue around the broad lower bowl, then climb the tall outer curve and finish at the upper right without lifting.

6.7 ગ — એ — ખ — ઉ: four forms return

Keep the four cards visible. Point as you say ga, independent e, aspirated kha, and independent short u.

Read the row once from left to right. Name એ and ઉ as independent vowels. Record a reading score out of four.

Writing — from sound or role

Cover every model. Write the four cues in order. Record a separate writing score out of four; a reading point cannot replace a written form. Aim for 4/4 in each column, with one focused repair allowed.

Before you move on

Write the two independent vowels from sound, then name their role.

Chapter 7

The Last Four Shown Forms

Modes: 🚗 voice (3) ✓ pen (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 3 of 8 lessons.

> With every model covered, read ૂ, ૨, ઈ, and ઢ and write each one from a spoken sound or role cue, keeping reading and writing scores separate.

7.1 ધૂળ (dhūḷ) — dust

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

Three words from earlier chapters: say chīp, athāṇũ and ukhāṇũ, and what each means.

You'll want to know: ધૂળ

ધૂળ — dhūḷ — "dust".

Say it: dhūḷ. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, ૂ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ધૂળ (dhūḷ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from dhūli, "dust, powder" (CDIAL 6835).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- dhūḷ
- dhūḷ, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "dust"? (ધૂળ, dhūḷ.)

7.2 ઈંટ (ĩṭ) — a brick

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

Three words from earlier chapters: say kaṇ, divāḷī and eklũ, and what each means.

You'll want to know: ઈંટ

ઈંટ — ĩṭ — "a brick".

Say it: ĩṭ. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, ઈ and ટ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઈંટ (ĩṭ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from iṣṭakā, "brick" (CDIAL 1600).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- ĩṭ
- ĩṭ, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "a brick"? (ઈંટ, ĩṭ.)

7.3 ઢોલ (ḍhol) — a drum

Before the new word: say the last thing you learned, once, out loud.

Say śak and what it means.

You'll want to know: ઢોલ

ઢોલ — ḍhol — "a drum".

Say it: ḍhol. Look: at its shape as you say it. The lessons that follow take pieces of it, ઢ, and write each one on its own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઢોલ (ḍhol) is a tadbhava of Sanskrit ḍhola, "large drum". CDIAL lists the Gujarati word under the doubled variant ḍholla* (CDIAL 5608).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- ḍhol
- ḍhol, and what it means

Before you move on

What is "a drum"? (ઢોલ, ḍhol.)

7.4 ૂ — the long-ū sign

Write મુ once with the short-u hook below મ. Put it away. Long ū uses a longer below-hook, but it still needs a consonant host.

Script — meet one form

Keep મૂ visible. The sign ૂ attaches below the consonant as a longer hook. Read મૂ as mū: consonant first, then long vowel.

Writing — notice and trace

7.8 ◌ᩪ — ᨠ — ᨡᩪ — ᨢ: the final four return

Keep the four cards visible. Point as you say attached long ū, retroflex tta, independent long ī, and retroflex aspirated ddha.

Your turn

Read the row once from left to right. Name ◌ᩪ as an attached sign and ᨡᩪ as an independent vowel. Record a reading score out of four.

Writing — from sound or role

Cover every model. Write the four cues in order. Record a separate writing score out of four; a reading point cannot replace a written form. Aim for 4/4 in each column, with one focused repair allowed.

Before you move on

Write the attached sign and independent vowel from sound, then name which one needs a consonant host.

Chapter 8

Introducing Yourself

Modes: 🚗 voice (2) 👁 eyes (7) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 8 of 10 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can introduce myself in Gujarati, give my name, and understand the other person's name.
> Complete GU-C02-practice, the canonical closing checkpoint, and demonstrate the chapter promise: introduce myself in Gujarati, give my name, and understand the other person's name.

8.1 નામ (nām) — "name," a word older than Europe

The first word of the introduction — and a bridge between India and Europe.

The letters in this word

ન (na) + ◌ા (long ā) + મ (ma) → નામ (nām).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

નામ (nām, "name") ← Sanskrit નામન્ (nāman), from Proto-Indo-European h₃nómn (its final n syllabic) — the same root as English name, Latin nōmen (→ noun), Greek onoma, and Hindi nām. Gujarati nām and English name are cousins from before either language existed.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "nām"
- the family — nām / English name / Latin nōmen

Before you move on

What root is nām from, and its English cousin? (Sanskrit nāman / PIE h₃nómn*; English name.)

8.2 મારું (mārũ) — "my," and gender again

The word that makes the name yours — and, like sārũ, it changes with gender.

The letters in this word

મા (mā) + રું (rũ, with the nasal) → મારું (mārũ).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મારું (mārũ, "my") is on the first-person root ma- — the same ma-/me- behind English me, my, mine, Latin meus, and Hindi merā. Gujarati's "my" and English's "my" are, at the root, one word.

Grammar Lens: "my" agrees in all three genders

Because nām ("name") is neuter, "my name" is મારું નામ (mārũ nām) — the neuter mārũ. The full set:

- મારો (māro) — masculine (e.g. māro dēsh, "my country")
- મારી (mārī) — feminine (e.g. mārī bhāṣā, "my language")
- મારું (mārũ) — neuter (e.g. mārũ nām, "my name")

Every possessive works this way — three forms, chosen by the noun's gender. It is the thread you first pulled in the earlier sārũ lesson.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the three — māro (m.) / mārī (f.) / mārũ (n.)
- "my name" and why (mārũ nām — nām is neuter)
- the m- family (mārũ, English me, my)

Before you move on

Which form of "my" goes with nām, and why? (Mārũ — the neuter, because nām is a neuter noun.)

8.3 છે (chhe) — "is," a copula all Gujarati's own

The little verb "is" — and here it is a word you will not recognise from Hindi.

The letters in this word

છ (chha, a breathy ch) + ે (the e-sign) → છે (chhe). One syllable.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

છે (chhe, "is") is Gujarati's copula — and, unusually, it is not the hai of Hindi or the asti of Sanskrit. It grew from an Old Gujarati form (achhaï) along its own path, so it is one of the words that most quickly marks a sentence as Gujarati rather than Hindi. Hear its forms first: hũ chhũ ("I am"), tũ chhe ("you are," familiar), તે છે (te chhe, "he/she/it is"), and tame chho ("you are," respectful). The later pronoun lessons will put the first, familiar-you, and respectful-you forms into Gujarati script gently.
CDIAL lists it, beside Old Gujarati achaï, under Sanskrit ākṣeti, "abides, dwells in" (CDIAL 1031).

Grammar Lens: the verb goes last

Gujarati is subject–object–verb, like all its Indo-Aryan sisters: "my name Arun is." Chhe sits at the end of the sentence, where English puts "is" in the middle.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "chhe"
- the copula set — hũ chhũ (I am), tame chho (you are), te chhe (is)
- what makes chhe special (it's Gujarati's own, not Hindi's hai)

Before you move on

What is chhe, and how does it differ from Hindi? (Gujarati's copula, "is"; it is not Hindi's hai — a distinctively Gujarati word.)

8.4 મારું નામ ... છે (mārũ nām ... chhe) — "my name is..."

Three atoms you now own, assembled into a first sentence.

The two words — assembled

મારું (my, neuter) + નામ (name) + your name + છે (is) = mārũ nām ... chhe, "my name is..." Mārũ nām Arun chhe. → "My name is Arun."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

All three words are inherited. CDIAL lists mārũ under the Sanskrit first-person base ma- (CDIAL 9691), nām under nāman, "name" (CDIAL 7067), and chhe under ākṣeti, "abides, dwells in" (CDIAL 1031).

Grammar Lens: the verb goes last

Gujarati keeps the verb at the end — "my name Arun is." Note too that mārũ is neuter to agree with nām (neuter): the agreement you learned two lessons ago is already doing its quiet work.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "mārũ nām … chhe" with your name
- why mārũ (neuter) and where chhe sits (agrees with nām; verb last)

Before you move on

Give your name in Gujarati, and say where the verb goes. (Mārũ nām … chhe; the verb chhe is last.)

8.5 તમને મળીને આનંદ થયો (tamne maḷīne ānand thayo) — "pleased to meet you"

The warm close of an introduction — a word that means bliss itself.

The letters in this word

The key word is આનંદ (ānand): આ + ન + ં (the nasal) + દ (da).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તમને મળીને આનંદ થયો = તમને (tamne, "to you") + મળીને (maḷīne, "having met") + આનંદ થયો (ānand thayo, "joy happened") — literally "having met you, joy happened." The key word આનંદ (ānand, "joy, bliss") is Sanskrit — ā- ("fully") + nand ("to rejoice") — the ānanda of sat-cit-ānanda ("being-consciousness-bliss"), and a common Gujarati name. So a simple greeting reaches, as Sanskrit did, for the word for the deepest happiness.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "tamne maḷīne ānand thayo"
- the key word and its meaning (ānand, "joy/bliss")
- what it's built from (ā- "fully" + nand "to rejoice")

Before you move on

What does the phrase literally say, and what is ānand? ("Having met you, joy happened"; Sanskrit ānanda, "bliss.")

8.6 તું / તમે (tũ / tame) — "you," familiar and respectful

To ask a name you need "you" — and Gujarati grades respect the way French does.

The letters in this word

તું (tũ): ત (ta) + the u-sign + nasal. તમે (tame): ત + મ + ે.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તું (tũ, familiar "you") ← Sanskrit tvam, from PIE tū — the same root as English archaic thou, Latin tū, French tu, and Hindi tū. તમે (tame, respectful "you") is grammatically plural — courtesy-by-plural, like French vous and Hindi āp. For a first meeting, use તમે; it takes the plural copula chho (tame … chho).
CDIAL lists tũ under tvam, by way of Old Gujarati taüṁ, reshaped after haüṁ, "I" (CDIAL 5889), and tame under yuṣmad-, "you (plural)", with its t- taken from tvam (CDIAL 10511).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "tũ" (familiar) and "tame" (respectful)
- the English cousin of tũ (thou)
- which you use on first meeting (tame)

Script retrieval

Hide the earlier model for ર. Write it once, compare it, and repair only one part if needed.

Before you move on

Which "you" is respectful, and what English word is tũ cousin to? (Tame; archaic thou, from PIE tū*.)

8.7 શું (shũ) — "what"

The question-word — and the one Gujarati question that does not start with k-.

The letters in this word

શ (sha) + the u-sign + nasal → શું (shũ).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

શું (shũ, "what") descends, by a winding road, from the Sanskrit interrogative stem ક- (ka-, PIE k^{w}o-) — the root behind English what, Latin quis, and Hindi kyā. Most of Gujarati's questions still show that k- plainly — kem (how), કોણ (kōṇ, who), ક્યાં (kyã̃, where), ક્યારે (kyāre, when) — but "what" wore down into this sh- form. So shũ is the odd cousin in a k- family.
CDIAL lists it under Sanskrit kīdṛśa, "of what kind", through a form ksiũ* that lost its first vowel (CDIAL 3197).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "shũ"
- the k- question family it belongs to (kem, kōṇ, kyã̃, kyāre)
- its distant English cousin (what)

Script retrieval

Hide the earlier model for ક. Write it once, compare, make at most one repair, and stop.

Before you move on

What does shũ mean, and what root does it share with English what? ("What"; the interrogative ka- / PIE $*k^w o$- — worn to sh- in Gujarati.)

8.8 તમારું નામ શું છે? (tamārũ nām shũ chhe?) — "what's your name?"

Turn the introduction around — ask, instead of tell.

The two words — assembled

તમારું (tamārũ, "your," the respectful possessive from tame, neuter to match nām) + નામ (name) + શું (what) + છે (is) → literally "your name what is?" Gujarati keeps the verb last and drops the question-word shũ into the object slot.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

All four words are inherited, from yuṣmad-, nāman, kīdṛśa and ākṣeti (CDIAL 10511, 7067, 3197, 1031).

Grammar Lens: answering, and the familiar form

Answer with the sentence you built: Mārũ nām Arun chhe. The familiar version swaps tamārũ for તારું (tārũ, "your," from tũ): tārũ nām shũ chhe? Note mārũ / tārũ / tamārũ — "my / your / your (resp.)" — all take the neuter -ũ before nām.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the respectful question — tamārũ nām shũ chhe?
- answer it — mārũ nām … chhe
- the familiar "your" (tārũ)

Script retrieval

Hide the earlier model for ચ. Write it once, compare, and stop after one possible repair.

Before you move on

Ask "what's your name?" respectfully. (Tamārũ nām shũ chhe?; the verb chhe is last.)

8.9 The nine-form doorway returns

With no model, write ક ણ શ once. Check only the form you missed, if any, then put the model away again.

Your turn

Read the visible row once. Keep the four marks and five consonants distinct; score 8/9 before moving to writing.

Writing — from sound

Cover every form. Write the nine spoken cues in their taught order. Writing also needs 8/9; the reading score cannot compensate for it.

Before you move on

Name the four marks, then write the five consonants without looking.

8.10 Chapter 4 — The introduction exchange

No new words. The whole introduction, assembled from atoms you now own.

The exchange

Say these aloud:

- "My name is Mira." — mārũ nām Mira chhe.

- "What's your name?" — tamārũ nām shũ chhe?
- "My name is Arun." — mārũ nām Arun chhe.
- "Pleased to meet you." — tamne maḷīne ānand thayo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Say these aloud:

- "name," "my," "is" (nām, mārũ, chhe)
- the two "you" levels (tũ / tame)
- "what," and where the verb sits (shũ; the verb is last)

What you've built — roots you now carry

- nām ← Sanskrit nāman → English name
- mārũ ← ma- → English my; agrees in three genders (māro/ mārī/mārũ)
- chhe — Gujarati's own copula (not Hindi's hai)
- shũ ← ka- → English what; tũ ← tū* → thou

Before you move on

Introduce yourself and ask a stranger's name in Gujarati. (Mārũ nām … chhe. Tamārũ nām shũ chhe?)

Chapter 9

How Are You?

Modes: voice (1) eyes (5) Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can ask how someone is in Gujarati, answer naturally, and return the question.
> Complete GU-C03-practice, the canonical closing checkpoint, and demonstrate the chapter promise: ask how someone is in Gujarati, answer naturally, and return the question.

9.1 હું (hũ) — "I"

To answer "how are you?" you first need "I." In the name exchange you learned mārũ ("my"); here is its owner.

The letters in this word

હ (ha) + the u-sign + nasal → હું (hũ). One nasal syllable.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હું (hũ, "I") descends from Sanskrit અહમ્ (aham, "I"), worn down through Old Gujarati (haũ) to hũ. That aham is from Proto-Indo-European h$_1$eǵ(H)om — the ancestor of Latin ego and English I. So Gujarati's hũ, Latin ego, and English I are one ancient word. Its possessive is the મારું (mārũ, "my") from that name exchange.

Grammar Lens: "I" plus the copula

Hũ takes the copula છું (chhũ, "am"): hũ … chhũ. So the answer to tame kem chho? begins હું (hũ …).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "hũ"
- the family — hũ / Latin ego / English I
- "hũ … chhũ" — I am …

Script retrieval

Hide the earlier model for ચ. Write it once, compare, and repair only one part if needed.

Before you move on

What Sanskrit word is hũ from, and its cousins? (Aham; Latin ego, English I.)

9.2 કેમ (kem) — "how," a proper k- question

Where shũ ("what") hid its k-, this one wears it plainly — and it opens the most Gujarati of greetings.

The letters in this word

ક (ka) + ે (the e-sign) + મ (ma) → કેમ (kem).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કેમ (kem, "how"; also "why") is from the interrogative stem ક- (ka-), PIE k^{w}o- — the same root behind English wh- and Latin qu-. It heads the plain k- family Gujarati mostly kept: kem (how), kōṇ (who), kyã̄ (where), kyāre (when). And કેમ છો? (kem chho?, "how are you?") is, for most Gujaratis, the real everyday hello — warmer than namaste.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "kem"
- the k- question family — kem, kōṇ, kyā̃, kyāre

Script retrieval

Hide the earlier model for ભ. Write it once, compare, and stop after one possible repair.

Before you move on

What root does kem share with English how/what? (The interrogative ka-, PIE $*k^w o$-.)

9.3 તમે કેમ છો? (tame kem chho?) — "how are you?"

The greeting most Gujaratis actually use — three words you already own.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તમે કેમ છો? = તમે (tame, respectful "you") + કેમ (kem, "how") + છો (chho, "are") — literally "you how are?", the verb last. Chho is the respectful/plural form of the copula chhe you met in the name exchange (hũ chhũ I am / tame chho you are). To a friend (tũ): તું કેમ છે? (tũ kem chhe?).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Tame and chho are inherited, from Sanskrit yuṣmad-, "you", and ākṣeti, "abides" (CDIAL 10511, 1031). Kem has no CDIAL entry.

Grammar Lens: match the "you" to the copula

- Respectful: તમે કેમ છો? (tame … chho)
- Familiar: તું કેમ છે? (tũ … chhe)

Same pattern as every Indo-Aryan track: the "you" and its verb-form travel together.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the respectful greeting — tame kem chho?
- the familiar version — tũ kem chhe?
- where the verb sits (at the end)

Script retrieval

Hide the earlier model for ધ. Write it once, compare, make at most one repair, and stop.

Before you move on

Give the everyday Gujarati "how are you?", and its copula form. (Tame kem chho?; chho — the respectful form of chhe.)

9.4 મજા (majā) — "enjoyment," and how to answer

The word that answers "how are you?" — and it comes not from Sanskrit but from Persia.

The letters in this word

મ (ma) + જા (jā) → મજા (majā).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મજા (majā, "enjoyment, fun, relish, pleasure") is not Sanskrit — it is Perso-Arabic, from Persian maza ("taste, relish"). Gujaratis, a great trading people, wove thousands of Persian and Arabic words into their speech over centuries of commerce across the Arabian Sea — and even "how are you" is answered with one. To say "I'm well," Gujarati says હું મજામાં છું (hũ majāmā chhũ) — literally "I am in enjoyment"

(majā + -mā "in" + chhũ "am").

The exchange — the reply

> — tame kem chho? ("How are you?") — majāmā, ābhār.
> ("Well [lit. 'in enjoyment'], thank you.")

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "majā"
- the full reply — hũ majāmā chhũ
- which heritage majā belongs to (Persian, not Sanskrit)

Script retrieval

Hide the earlier model for ૂ. Write the below-consonant sign once, compare, and stop after one possible repair.

Before you move on

How does Gujarati say "I'm well," and where does majā come from? (Hũ majāmā chhũ, "I'm in enjoyment"; Persian maza, "taste/relish.")

9.5 વાંધો નહીં (vāndho nahī) — "no problem"

> When someone thanks you — or apologises — this is the easy, gracious reply.

The letters in this word

વાંધો (vāndho, "objection, problem" — with the nasal on વાં) + નહીં (nahī, "not") → vāndho nahī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

વાંધો નહીં literally means "[there is] no objection" — vāndho ("objection, difficulty, harm") + નહીં (nahĩ, "not / no"). It serves as "it's okay / no worries / no problem / you're welcome." The negative નહીં (nahĩ) is the fuller form of the ના (nā) from the earlier yes/no lesson — both from the ancient na-, Proto-Indo-European ne, behind English no, not, and Hindi nahīṁ.
CDIAL lists Old Gujarati nahīaṁ under Sanskrit nahi, "surely not" (CDIAL 7035), and nahĩ is its modern form. It has no entry for vāndho, so the origin of that word is not settled.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "vāndho nahĩ"
- what it literally means ("no objection")
- the exchange — ābhār / vāndho nahĩ

Before you move on

What does vāndho nahĩ literally say, and what ancient root is its nahĩ from? ("No objection"; PIE ne* — English no/not.)

9.6 Chapter 5 — The how-are-you exchange

No new words. The whole responding cycle, from atoms you now own.

The exchange

Say these aloud:

- "How are you?" (the everyday hello) — tame kem chho?
- "I'm well, thank you." — hũ majāmā chhũ, ābhār.
- "No problem / you're welcome." — vāndho nahĩ.
- the familiar question — tũ kem chhe?

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Say these aloud:

- the k- question-word for "how" (kem)
- "I" and its copula (hũ, chhũ)
- which of your words is Persian, not Sanskrit (majā)

What you've built — roots you now carry

- kem ← the interrogative k- (PIE $*k^{w}o$-), cousin of English how/what
- hũ ← Sanskrit aham → Latin ego, English I
- majā ← Persian maza, "taste/relish" — the trade-language layer
- nahĩ ← PIE ne*, English no (in vāndho nahĩ)

Before you move on

Someone greets you with tame kem chho? — reply that you're well and thank them. (Hũ majāmā chhũ, ābhār — and to their thanks, vāndho nahĩ.)

10.1 મળીશું (maḷīshũ) — "(we) will meet"

A future-tense verb — the other half of "see you again."

The letters in this word

મ (ma) + ળી (ḷī, with the retroflex ળ ḷ) + શું (shũ) → મળીશું (maḷīshũ).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મળીશું (maḷīshũ, "we will meet") is the future of મળવું (maḷvũ, "to meet"), from Sanskrit મિલ્ (mil-, "to join, unite") — the same root as Hindi milnā and Punjabi milṇā. Note the retroflex ળ (ḷ): Gujarati keeps this extra letter — like Marathi and the Dravidian south, and unlike Hindi. The ending -શું (-shũ) is the "we will" future.
CDIAL lists maḷvũ under Sanskrit milati, "meets, encounters" (CDIAL 10133).

Grammar Lens: the future is an ending

Gujarati marks the future with an ending on the stem: maḷ- ("meet") + -īshũ ("we will") → maḷīshũ. No helper-word like English "will."

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "maḷīshũ"
- the verb it's from (maḷvũ, "to meet," ← Sanskrit mil-)
- the extra letter it shows (retroflex ળ, ḷ)

Before you move on

What verb is maḷīshũ from, and what special letter does it use? (Maḷvũ "to meet"; the retroflex ળ ḷ, which Hindi lacks.)

10.2 કાલે મળીશું (kāle maḷīshũ) — "see you tomorrow"

A goodbye for tomorrow — built on a word that means both tomorrow and yesterday.

The letters in this word

કા (kā) + લે (le) → કાલે (kāle, "on [the] kāl"). The base is કાલ (kāl).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કાલ (kāl) means both "tomorrow" and "yesterday" — the day on either side of today — from Sanskrit kalya, "dawn; at dawn, tomorrow", itself built on kāla, "time" (CDIAL 3104). (Hindi's kal comes from the same word.) The verb's tense tells which: kāle maḷīshũ (future → "tomorrow we'll meet"), kāle maḷyā (past → "we met yesterday"). So કાલે મળીશું = "tomorrow we'll meet" = "see you tomorrow."

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "kāle maḷīshũ"
- the puzzle — kāl means both tomorrow and yesterday
- the root and its cousins (kāla "time"; Hindi kal, Punjabi akāl)

Before you move on

What two opposite days does kāl mean, and what tells them apart? (Both tomorrow and yesterday; the verb's tense.)

10.3 પાછા (pāchhā) — "again, back"

One small word turns a goodbye into "till next time." You already have the other half — āvjo ("come again") — from the earlier courtesy chapter.

The letters in this word

પા (pā) + છા (chhā) → પાછા (pāchhā).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પાછા (pāchhā, "back, again, returning") goes back to paśca*, "hinder part", a form drawn from Sanskrit paścāt, "behind, afterward" (CDIAL 7990). It carries the sense of return: pāchhā āvvũ ("to come back"), pāchhā jāvũ ("to go back"). Add it to "we'll meet" and you get the warm goodbye of the next lesson.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "pāchhā"
- what it adds to a goodbye ("again / back")

Before you move on

What does pāchhā mean, and what sense does it carry? ("Back / again"; the sense of return — pāchhā āvvũ, "to come back.")

10.4 પાછા મળીશું (pāchhā maḷīshũ) — "we'll meet again"

The warm, explicit goodbye — the companion of the earlier āvjo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પાછા મળીશું = પાછા (pāchhā, "again") + મળીશું (maḷīshũ, "we will meet") — "we'll meet again." Where the earlier આવજો (āvjo) is the quick, warm "come again," pāchhā maḷīshũ spells out the promise: we will meet once more. It is the same "promise of return" the whole subcontinent prefers (Hindi phir milenge, Bengali āshi, Tamil pōy varugir̲ēn̲).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Both words are inherited. CDIAL lists pāchhā under paśca*, "hinder part" (CDIAL 7990), and maḷvũ under Sanskrit milati, "meets" (CDIAL 10133).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the warm goodbye — pāchhā maḷīshũ
- the two words it's built from (pāchhā + maḷīshũ)
- the Chapter-1 goodbye it partners (āvjo)

Before you move on

What does pāchhā maḷīshũ literally say, and how does it relate to āvjo? ("We'll meet again"; it's the explicit form of Ch.1's "come again" goodbye.)

10.5 Chapter 6 — The farewells

No new words. Three ways to part — none of them a blunt "goodbye."

Why it's said this way

Say these aloud:

- the quick "come again" from the earlier courtesy chapter — āvjo
- the explicit "we'll meet again" — pāchhā maḷīshũ
- "see you tomorrow" — kāle maḷīshũ

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Say these aloud:

- "again" and "(we) will meet" (pāchhā, maḷīshũ)
- the word that means BOTH tomorrow and yesterday (kāl)
- the retroflex letter in maḷīshũ (ऌ, ḷ)

What you've built — roots you now carry

- āvjo ("goodbye") = "come [again]," from āvvũ "to come"
- maḷīshũ ← maḷvũ "to meet" (Sanskrit mil-); the retroflex ऌ
- kāl ← kāla "time" (Hindi kal, Punjabi akāl)

Before you move on

You're leaving a friend and will see them tomorrow. Give the goodbye and the "tomorrow" version. (Āvjo — and kāle maḷīshũ.)

Chapter 11

The First Verbs

Modes: voice (1) eyes (4) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can build short present-tense Gujarati sentences with the chapter's first verbs.
> Complete GU-C05-practice, the canonical closing checkpoint, and demonstrate the chapter promise: build short present-tense Gujarati sentences with the chapter's first verbs.

11.1 બોલવું (bolvũ) — "to speak," your first full verb

So far, "to be." Here is a verb that does something — in a shape you'll see on every Gujarati verb.

The letters in this word

બો (bo) + લ (la) + વું (vũ, with the nasal) → બોલવું (bolvũ).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બોલવું (bolvũ, "to speak") is an inherited verb (the same bol- as Hindi bolnā and Punjabi bolṇā). Its ending -વું (-vũ) is Gujarati's infinitive marker — the "to ____" form: bol-vũ "to speak," maḷ-vũ "to meet" (from maḷīshũ), āv-vũ "to come" (behind āvjo). Strip the -vũ and you have the stem (bol-).
CDIAL reconstructs boll-*, "speak", behind Prakrit bollaï, "speaks" (CDIAL 9321). Where that came from is debated, and CDIAL calls a Dravidian source very doubtful.

Grammar Lens: stem + person + copula

To say "I speak," Gujarati adds a person-ending to the stem and follows it with the copula:

- hũ bolũ chhũ — I speak
- tũ bole chhe — you speak (familiar)
- tame bolo chho — you speak (respectful)
- te bole chhe — he/she speaks

The simple present is the same for a man or a woman — Gujarati saves its three genders for adjectives and the past tense, not the plain present.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "bolvũ"
- the infinitive ending every Gujarati verb takes (-vũ)
- "I speak" — hũ bolũ chhũ

Before you move on

What ending marks a Gujarati infinitive, and how do you say "I speak"? (-vũ; hũ bolũ chhũ.)

11.2 હું ગુજરાતી બોલું છું (hũ gujarātī bolũ chhũ) — "I speak Gujarati"

Your first complete, moving sentence — and the language names itself after a people who arrived on horseback.

The letters in this word

ગુજરાતી (gujarātī): ગુ (gu) + જ (ja) + રા (rā) + તી (tī).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હું ગુજરાતી બોલું છું = હું (hũ, "I") + ગુજરાતી (gujarātī, the object) + બોલું છું (bolũ chhũ, "speak") — "I Gujarati speak," verb last. The name ગુજરાત (Gujarāt) comes from the Gurjar — a people who entered western India around the 6th–8th centuries and gave their name to the land (Gurjara-deśa → Gujarāt); gujarātī is "[the language] of Gujarat." So the language is named after a people, and the region after them in turn.
Of the three native words, CDIAL lists hũ under Sanskrit aham, "I" (CDIAL 992), bolvũ under a reconstructed boll-*, "speak" (CDIAL 9321), and chhe, of which chhũ is a form, under ākṣeti, "abides" (CDIAL 1031).

Grammar Lens: no gender in the plain present

Bolũ chhũ is the same whether a man or a woman says it — Gujarati's three genders live in its adjectives (sāro/sārī/sārũ) and its past tense, but the simple present "I speak" is gender-free. And because chhũ already carries "I," you could drop hũ: gujarātī bolũ chhũ.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "hũ gujarātī bolũ chhũ"
- what Gujarāt is named after (the Gurjar people)
- does "I speak" change for a man vs. a woman? (No — not in the plain present)

Before you move on

Say "I speak Gujarati," and give the origin of the name. (Hũ gujarātī bolũ chhũ; from the Gurjar people, who named the land Gujarat.)

11.3 કામ કરવું (kām karvũ) — "to work"

The last verb of the chapter — from the single most productive root in the whole family, one you have met before.

The letters in this word

કામ (kām, "work"): કા (kā) + મ (ma). કરવું (karvũ, "to do"): ક (ka) + ર (ra) + વું (vũ).

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કરવું (karvũ, "to do, to make") is from Sanskrit √કૃ (√kṛ, "to do"; CDIAL 2814), from PIE k^{w}er- — one of Sanskrit's most productive roots, met in namaskār ("the making of a bow") and karma ("a thing done"). And કામ (kām, "work") is itself from Sanskrit karma — so "work-do" is, at root, "kṛ-thing kṛ-do." Like Hindi, Gujarati builds compound verbs as noun + કરવું:

- કામ કરવું (kām karvũ) = "work-do" = "to work"
- વાત કરવી (vāt karvī) = "to converse" (vāt, "talk")

So hũ kām karũ chhũ = "I work." Learn karvũ and a whole grammar of "do-verbs" opens up — the same one behind Hindi's kām karnā and Bengali's kāj karā.
CDIAL lists kām under Sanskrit karman, "act, work" (CDIAL 2892).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "kām karvũ" (to work)
- "I work" — hũ kām karũ chhũ
- the Chapter-1 word that shares its root (namaskār-style — actually ābhār? no; recall karma, from kṛ)

Before you move on

What Sanskrit root is karvũ from, and what is kām ("work") from? (√kṛ, "to do"; kām ← Sanskrit karma — both from kṛ.)

11.4 રહેવું (rahevũ) — "to live, to stay"

A second verb, so you can say where you live.

The letters in this word

ર (ra) + હે (he) + વું (vũ) → રહેવું (rahevũ). The familiar -vũ infinitive.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

રહેવું (rahevũ, "to live, to remain, to stay") goes back to rahati*, "remains", a form CDIAL reconstructs from its descendants (CDIAL 10666): the same root as Hindi rahnā and Punjabi rahiṇā. "I live in Ahmedabad" is હું અમદાવાદમાં રહું છું (hũ Amdāvādmā rahũ chhũ) — stem rah- + person + copula, exactly like bolvũ.

Grammar Lens: "in" comes after the noun

અમદાવાદમાં (Amdāvādmā) = Ahmedabad + -માં (-mā, "in"), glued to the end of the noun. Gujarati, like Hindi, uses postpositions where English uses prepositions: "Ahmedabad-in I live," the verb last.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "rahevũ"
- "I live in Ahmedabad" — hũ Amdāvādmā rahũ chhũ
- where "in" (-mā) sits — glued to the end of the noun

Before you move on

What root is rahevũ from, and where does "in" go? (Sanskrit rah- "to remain"; -mā "in" attaches to the end of the noun.)

11.5 Chapter 7 — The first verbs

No new words. Three verbs, one engine — build real sentences about yourself.

How to answer — build the sentences

Say these aloud:

- "I speak Gujarati" — hũ gujarātī bolũ chhũ
- "I live in Ahmedabad" — hũ Amdāvādmā rahũ chhũ
- "I work" — hũ kām karũ chhũ
- "you (resp.) speak Gujarati" — tame gujarātī bolo chho

Grammar lens — the engine

Say these aloud:

- the ending every infinitive carries (-vũ)
- the shape of the present (stem + person + the copula chhũ/chhe/chho)
- where the verb sits, and where "in" sits (verb last; -mā after the noun)

What you've built — roots you now carry

- bolvũ "to speak" (native; bol-, like Hindi/Punjabi)
- rahevũ "to live" ← rah- "to remain"
- karvũ "to do" ← √kṛ; kām "work" ← karma (both from kṛ)
- gujarātī ← the Gurjar people, who named the land Gujarat

Before you move on

In one breath, tell me your language, your city, and your work in Gujarati. (Hũ gujarātī bolũ chhũ. Hũ … rahũ chhũ. Hũ kām karũ chhũ.)

Chapter 12

Numbers One to Five

Modes: 🚗 voice (4) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 4 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can count from one to five in headless Gujarati script and explain why બે starts with b where its neighbours start with d, and why ત્રણ has an r that Hindi tīn does not.
> Take the two odd numerals apart: બે descends from the feminine/neuter dvé by dv → bb → b, while ત્રણ*'s r is a learned restoration from Sanskrit, put back after Prakrit tiṇṇi had already dropped it.*

12.1 એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર, પાંચ — one to five

Three of these will look familiar from any other Indian language. Two won't — and both have a reason.

You'll want to know: the five, in a headless script

	Gujarati	said
1	એક	ek
2	બે	be
3	ત્રણ	traṇ
4	ચાર	chār
5	પાંચ	pā̃ch

Notice the script: Gujarati is Devanagari without the top line. Same letters, same system — the shirorekhā simply isn't drawn. If you've done the Hindi writing track you can feel the relationship immediately.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

All five are inherited Sanskrit numerals (CDIAL 2462, 6648, 5994, 4655, 7655). Ek continues a doubled ekka-*, which CDIAL explains either as emphatic or as a later loan from Sanskrit; be goes back to dva, "two", traṇ to the neuter trīṇi, cār to catvāraḥ, and pāṁc to pañca.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "ek, be, traṇ, chār, pã̰ch"
- the script clue — Devanagari shapes without a top line

Before you move on

Count to five in Gujarati. (Ek, be, traṇ, chār, pã̰ch.) What is visibly missing from the Gujarati script? (The top line: the shirorekhā is not drawn.) Next: the two of the five that look unlike their neighbours.

12.2 બે and ત્રણ — two surprises

Count to five once more: ek, be, traṇ, chār, pã̰ch. Three of the five will look familiar from other Indian languages. Which two won't?

What you've built: two surprises

Most neighbouring languages have a d in "two," but Gujarati says બે be. Hindi says tīn for "three," but Gujarati says ત્રણ traṇ, with an r. Do not carry both histories while the count is still new. Make the two forms automatic first; the next lesson explains why be and traṇ took those shapes.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "two" — Gujarati be, with b, not d

- "three" — Gujarati traṇ, with an r

Before you move on

Why does બે look unlike its neighbours? (It begins with b, not d.) What does ત્રણ contain that Hindi tīn does not? (r.) Next: trace the two surprising number histories.

12.3 A number history: be

Count once: ek, be, traṇ, chār, pā̃ch. Which two forms look least like Hindi or Marathi? (Be and traṇ.)

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Sanskrit had gendered forms of "two," and its daughters selected different parts of that paradigm:

language	"two"	route
Sanskrit	dváu (masc.) · dvé (fem. and neut.)	—
Hindi	do	masculine side
Marathi	don	masculine side, plus an analogical -n
Bengali	dui	disyllabic Prakrit duve
Gujarati	be	feminine/neuter dvé side

Gujarati બે is not a corruption of do. It is a different inheritance from the same Sanskrit paradigm.
The initial cluster changed too. In dv-, the dental d adopted the labial place of the following v: dv → bb → b. The first consonant was remade in the shape of its neighbour, then the double simplified.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- Gujarati's selected form — feminine/neuter dvé
- the sound path — dv → bb → b

Before you move on

Why be, not Hindi do? (Different Sanskrit forms.) What changed in dv → b? (D became labial beside v; the double simplified.) Next: traṇ and the r that came back.

12.4 A number history: traṇ

Why does Gujarati say be where Hindi says do? (It kept a different Sanskrit form.) Now the other surprise, traṇ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

stage	"three"
Sanskrit neuter	trī́ṇi
Prakrit	tiṇṇi: r already gone
Hindi	tīn
Gujarati	traṇ: r present again

The shared ṇ shows that Hindi and Gujarati both descend from neuter trī́ṇi through Prakrit tiṇṇi. By that stage, the r was gone and its weight had moved into doubled ṇṇ. Hindi later simplified the double and lengthened the vowel.
Gujarati's tr- is generally treated as restored from Sanskrit, not carried through unbroken. Sanskrit remained a literary language and continued to reshape its descendants. Traṇ looks older than tīn, but it is closer because speakers put the r back.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the r path — trī́ṇi → tiṇṇi → traṇ
- inherited continuously or restored — restored

Before you move on

Did traṇ keep its r all the way from Sanskrit? (No: it was restored from Sanskrit after Prakrit lost it.) How can a newer form look older? (Learned restoration.)

Chapter 13

Six Verbs at the Core

> By the end of this chapter: I can name six everyday Gujarati verbs by the neuter -વું ending they all share, strip that ending to reach the stem, and say what I do with stem, person-ending, and the copula છે.
> The sixth verb runs the whole chapter at once: strip the neuter -વું from all six infinitives, hold the retroflex ણ that Prakrit pulled back from a plain n, put the stem into hũ jāṇũ chhũ, and connect jāṇvũ to the English know it is genuinely cousin to.

13.1 હોવું — "to be," and the neuter that names every Gujarati verb

You already end a Gujarati sentence with છે chhe, "is." Here is the whole verb behind English "to be" — and the ending that names every other Gujarati verb.

You'll want to know first — one word

> હોવું — hovũ — to be

Left to right: હ is ha, and the sign ો on it makes ho; then વ va, with the small ુ under it for vu; and the dot ં on top sends that last vowel through the nose.

Take the final piece -વું -vũ off, and the stem is left: હો- ho-.

Grammar Lens: the ending is a neuter

Gujarati sorts words into three genders where Hindi next door keeps two: masculine -o, feminine -ī, and the third one, neuter, -ũ — sāro, sārī, sārũ, three shapes of "good."
That third gender is where -વું comes from. -વું -vũ is a neuter ending, so every Gujarati verb is named in the neuter. English names a verb by putting a word in front, "to be"; Gujarati names it by putting its third gender on the end — and hands you the stem for free every time.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

hovũ comes from Sanskrit bhavati, "becomes," on the root bhū-. Middle Indo-Aryan thinned that bh- to h-, so bhavati wore down to hoi and then to hovũ. The root is Indo-European, bheu-* "grow, become," and English is full of it: be, been, and — through "the place where one dwells" — build, booth, bower. Latin held it as futūrus, English's future; Greek as phúsis, English's physics.
But છે chhe is not from that root at all. It comes through Old Gujarati achhaï from a Sanskrit verb of dwelling, abiding — staying put rather than becoming — and its cousins are Bengali āche and Marathi āhe. Hindi's hai continues Sanskrit asti "is," the same ancient verb as English is.
So English is and Hindi hai are relatives; Gujarati chhe is not one of them. English plays the same trick, running be, am, is, was off several old verbs at once.

Your turn

- Say it: hovũ — to be
- Strip: hovũ minus -vũ leaves the stem ho-
- Name: the gender of -vũ — neuter, the third one
- Split: chhe from a verb of dwelling; hai and English is from another

Before you move on

Which ending names a Gujarati verb, and which of the three genders is it? (-vũ, neuter.) What is left of hovũ once it comes off?

(Ho-.) Does chhe share an ancestor with Hindi hai? (No — hai goes with English is; chhe comes from a verb of dwelling.)
Sources: Wiktionary: હોવું; Wiktionary: છે.

13.2 જવું — "to go," and a y that turned into a j

Name the ending that titles every Gujarati verb, and take it off hovũ. Here is the second verb wearing it.

You'll want to know first — one word

જવું — javũ — to go

Left to right: જ is ja — it carries a built-in a, because a Gujarati consonant with no vowel sign on it always does. Then the familiar વું -vũ. Two pieces, and you have met the second one already: જ + વું.

Strip the ending and the stem is જ- ja-, which stretches to જા- jā- the moment a person-ending follows it.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

javũ continues Sanskrit yāti, "goes," on the root yā-. The consonant changed on the way: Prakrit turned word-initial Sanskrit y- into j-, right across the middle period. That is a decoding tool worth keeping, because it runs through the whole vocabulary:

- Sanskrit yoga → Gujarati jog
- Sanskrit yamunā (the river) → Jamnā
- Sanskrit yava "barley" → jav
- Sanskrit yuvan "young" → jovān "a young man"

So a Gujarati word starting in j- often has a Sanskrit y- standing behind it.
This particular root left little in English — honest news, and better said than faked. Its clearest survival outside India is Sanskrit yāna "vehicle, journey," the word inside Mahayana, "the great vehicle."

Grammar Lens: stem, then person, then the copula

Gujarati builds its plain present out of three pieces in a fixed order — stem, an ending that says who, and the copula you already own:

- hũ jāũ chhũ — I go
- tame jāo chho — you go, respectfully
- te jāy chhe — he goes, she goes

The copula is the piece that shifts: chhũ, chho, chhe. It is chhe doing that work, not Hindi's hai — the tell you traced last time. And a man and a woman say these identically: the plain present carries no gender at all.

Your turn

- Say it: javũ — to go
- Strip: javũ minus -vũ leaves ja-
- Build: hũ jāũ chhũ — I go
- Trace it: Sanskrit yāti → javũ, the y- becoming j-
- Apply: yoga → jog, yava → jav

Before you move on

What happened to Sanskrit y- at the front of a word? (Prakrit made it j-.) Which three pieces make the Gujarati present? (Stem, person-ending, copula.) Say "I go." (Hũ jāũ chhũ.) Which of those three words is the copula, and which language does it not match? (Chhũ; Hindi.)
Source: Wiktionary: જવું.

13.3 આવવું — "to come," which began as "to reach"

Say "I go" in Gujarati, then strip javũ to its stem. Here is the verb that points the other way.

You'll want to know first — one word

આવવું — āvvũ — to come

It opens with આ, the standalone letter for long ā — Gujarati uses a full letter, not a sign, when a word begins with its vowel. Then વ va, a second વ, the ુ, and the nasal dot.

Two વ in a row, each belonging to a different piece: the first closes the stem આવ- āv-, the second opens the ending -વું -vũ you now know by heart.

The present runs as before: hũ āvũ chhũ, "I come."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

āvvũ comes through Old Gujarati āvivaũ and Prakrit āvei from Sanskrit āpayati, on the root āp-, "to reach, to attain." Gujarati's "come" is not built from "go" at all. It is built from arriving — reaching the place where the speaker already is.

That root is Indo-European, and Latin holds it as apere, "to fasten, to reach for." English took the family whole: apt ("fitted"), aptitude, adapt, adept, inept. Put co- "together" in front and Latin makes cōpula, "the thing that fastens two things into one" — which English borrowed in two shapes: worn down into couple, and kept whole as the grammarian's copula.

So the Gujarati verb for coming and the technical name for what chhe does at the end of your sentences are, far enough back, one root.

What you've built: the p that softened to a v

One regular change did most of the work between āpayati and āvei: a single Sanskrit p standing between two vowels softened to v. It happened right across the vocabulary, so it decodes far more than this verb:

- Sanskrit dīpa "lamp" → dīva → Gujarati divo
- Sanskrit kūpa "well" → Gujarati kūvo

And dīpa is half of દિવાળી divāḷī — dīpa plus āvalī, "a row of lamps." The festival carries the sound change in its own name.

Your turn

- Say it: āvvũ — to come

- Split: āv- plus -vũ, the two વ belonging to different pieces
- Build: hũ āvũ chhũ — I come
- Trace it: Sanskrit āp- "reach" → āvvũ, and → English apt, couple
- Apply: dīpa → divo, kūpa → kūvo

Before you move on

What did the root behind āvvũ originally mean? ("Reach, attain.") What happens to a single Sanskrit p between vowels? (It softens to v.) Which English word for a joining verb is a cousin of āvvũ? (Copula.) Say "I come." (Hũ āvũ chhũ.)
Source: Wiktionary: આવવું.

13.4 ખાવું — "to eat," and a family that stops before English

Say "to come," then name the ending it shares with every other Gujarati verb. The fourth verb takes a new letter with it.

You'll want to know first — one word

ખાવું — khāvũ — to eat

The new letter is ખ, kha: a k with a puff of breath straight after it. English makes that puff without noticing — say kite and listen for the breath after the k. Gujarati notices, and gives the puffed and unpuffed sounds separate letters, ખ and ક.

Then the long-ā sign ા, and the ending you know: ખા- khā- plus -વું -vũ. The present is hũ khāũ chhũ, "I eat."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

khāvũ comes from Sanskrit khādati, "chews, eats." Prakrit kept it as khādi, and then the single d between vowels wore away — the same erosion that has been thinning these verbs all along — leaving the bare stem khā-.
Its sisters are all alive: Hindi khānā, Punjabi khāṇā, Marathi khāṇe, Bengali khāoyā. One verb, five modern shapes.

And there the family stops. Scholars reconstruct an Indo-European root behind khādati, but it left nothing in English — no cousin, no borrowing, not even a worn-down one. That is worth saying out loud rather than reaching for a lookalike, because this whole method rests on hanging a new word on a word you already own, and a cousin that is not really a cousin is worse than none at all. Some words you take on their own terms. Khāvũ is one of them, and its five sisters are anchor enough.

Your turn

- Say it: khāvũ — to eat, with the breath after the k
- Contrast: ખ puffed, ક unpuffed
- Build: hũ khāũ chhũ — I eat
- Trace it: Sanskrit khādati → khādi → khāvũ, the d worn away
- Admit: no honest English cousin — and that is the right answer

Before you move on

What separates ખ from ક? (A puff of breath.) Which Sanskrit verb is behind khāvũ, and what happened to its d? (Khādati; it wore away between the vowels.) Which English word is its cousin? (None — and pretending otherwise would be worse than admitting it.) Say "I eat." (Hũ khāũ chhũ.)
Source: Wiktionary: ખાવું.

13.5 જોવું — "to see," one mark away from "to go"

Two verbs back: how do you say "to go," and how do you say "to eat"? The fifth verb is the nearest neighbour javũ has.

You'll want to know first — one word

જોવું — jovũ — to see

જ ja, wearing the sign ો that turns it into jo; then the ending વું -vũ. The stem is જો- jo-, and the present runs as it always has: hũ joũ chhũ, "I see."

What you've built: one mark apart

Set the two words side by side and the whole difference is one small mark:

- જવું javũ — to go. Bare જ, carrying its built-in a.
- જોવું jovũ — to see. The same જ, with ો on it.

Add that one sign and going becomes seeing. In the mouth the contrast is just as small and just as total — ja against jo — so this is a pair worth saying aloud until the vowels separate cleanly. Gujarati will keep doing this: the consonants carry the word, and a single vowel mark decides which word it is.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

jovũ continues a Prakrit verb joaï, "looks." Where joaï itself came from is genuinely unsettled, and it is more useful to say so than to pick a winner.
The usual account takes it from Sanskrit dyotate, "shines" — sight arriving by way of light. That is a well-worn path: Greek phaínō "shine" produced phainómenon, "a thing that shows itself," which English borrowed as phenomenon, and from the same family phantom and fantasy. A second account brings in an older verb of watching and waiting for, the one behind Hindi johnā, "to watch out for." The two may simply have run together; forms do that.
So: probable, not proven. Etymology has error bars like any other science, and a lesson that hides them is teaching you to trust the wrong things.

Your turn

- Say it: jovũ — to see
- Contrast: javũ go, jovũ see — one mark, one vowel
- Build: hũ joũ chhũ — I see

- Hedge: jovũ probably from "shines" — probable, not proven
- Run through: hovũ, javũ, āvvũ, khāvũ, jovũ

Before you move on

What single mark separates javũ from jovũ? (The ો sign: ja becomes jo.) Say "I see." (Hũ joũ chhũ.) How settled is the origin of jovũ? (Not settled — probably from a verb meaning "shines," possibly merged with one meaning "watch out for.")
Source: Wiktionary: જોવું.

13.6 જાણવું — "to know," a word English has been carrying all along

Run the five you have — hovũ, javũ, āvvũ, khāvũ, jovũ — and pull the ending off each one. The sixth is the closest of them all to English.

One thing you already know about Gujarati writing: what does a Gujarati letter leave out that Devanagari draws? (The top line, the shirorekhā.)

You'll want to know first — one word

જાણવું — jāṇvũ — to know

જ ja with the long-ā sign ા on it gives jā. Then a new letter: ણ, an n made with the tongue tip curled back onto the roof of the mouth — a retroflex, written ṇ. Gujarati inherited a whole set of these curled sounds from Sanskrit, and you have met one before in ળ ḷ.

Then the ending. જાણ- jāṇ- plus -વું -vũ, and the present is hũ jāṇũ chhũ, "I know."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

jāṇvũ comes from Sanskrit jānāti, "knows," on the root jñā-. The retroflex is Prakrit's work: a single n between vowels was pulled back onto the roof of the mouth, so jānāti became jāṇadi and then jāṇvũ. The root is Indo-European, gnō-* "to know," and English is stuffed with it.

Straight down the Germanic line: know, knowledge, can — which once meant "to know how" — cunning, ken, and uncouth, literally "un-known." Borrowed from Latin (g)nōscere: notice, note, notion, cognition, recognize, acquaint, noble ("well-known"), and ignore, which is "not to know." Borrowed from Greek gnōsis: diagnosis, prognosis, agnostic.
Two verbs ago the family stopped before English entirely. This one runs three dozen words deep. Jāṇvũ is not a stranger: it is a first cousin of the plainest word English owns for the same idea, and every one of those borrowings is another peg to hang it on.

Your turn

- Say it: jāṇvũ — to know, with the tongue curled back on the ṇ
- Build: hũ jāṇũ chhũ — I know
- Run through: all six — hovũ, javũ, āvvũ, khāvũ, jovũ, jāṇvũ — stripping each stem
- Build: hũ jāũ chhũ, hũ āvũ chhũ, hũ khāũ chhũ, hũ joũ chhũ
- Connect: jāṇvũ ← jñā- → English know, notice, diagnosis

Before you move on

Name all six verbs and take the ending off each. (Ho-, ja-, āv-, khā-, jo-, jāṇ-; the ending is the neuter -vũ.) Which English verb is the same word as jāṇvũ? (Know.) What makes the ણ different from a plain n? (The tongue curls back.) Say "I know." (Hũ jāṇũ chhũ.)

Chapter 14

The Mind and the Page

Modes: 👁 eyes (4) 🎧 Hands-free start: all 4 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say that I think, understand, read and write in Gujarati, hear and write the nasal that sits in the middle of વાંચવું, and name what each of the four roots was doing before it meant a mental act — ranging about, waking up, speaking, and scratching.
> Say હું મારું નામ લખું છું, run the chapter's four verbs back with the four things their roots meant — vichārvũ from a root meaning to range about, samajvũ from one meaning to wake, vā̃chvũ from one meaning to speak, lakhvũ from one meaning to scratch — place the medial nasal of vā̃ch- and the assimilate-then-simplify path from dhy to j, and say which of the four honestly has no English cousin at all.

14.1 વિચારવું — "to think," which began as wandering

Jāṇvũ — take the ending off it, and name the plain English verb that is the same word. Knowing is where you arrive. Here is what you do on the way.

You'll want to know first — one word

વિચારવું — vichārvũ — to think

The stem is વિચાર- vichār-: hũ vichārũ chhũ, "I think."

The letters in this word

વિ is વ va wearing િ, the short-i sign — and that sign stands to the left of its letter although the sound comes after it. Then chā: the letter ચ cha, already yours from chār, "four," under the long-ā sign. Then ર ra, and the ending વું.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

વિચાર vichār is a word before it is a verb: it means a thought. It is Sanskrit vicāra — vi- "apart, thoroughly" on the root car-, "to move, to range about." A thought is named as a ranging over, the mind walking round a thing.
The root is Indo-European, kwel-* "to turn." Germanic wore it into wheel, whose whole business is turning. Greek made kúklos, "a circle," which English borrowed as cycle and encyclopedia. Latin made colere, "to till, to dwell in," behind cultivate, culture and colony.

What you've built: a verb Gujarati made rather than inherited

Hovũ, javũ, āvvũ, khāvũ, jovũ and jāṇvũ came down the ordinary road, worn thinner at every step. Vichārvũ did not: Gujarati took the noun vichār and put a verb ending on it, on the model of Sanskrit vicarati. You have watched Sanskrit reach forward like this before. Count to three: ek, be, traṇ. Prakrit had lost the r of trīṇi, and traṇ carries it because Sanskrit put it back. A language that never stops reading its ancestor never stops borrowing from it. Traṇ got a sound that way; vichārvũ got a whole verb.

Your turn

- Say it: vichārvũ — to think
- Strip: minus -vũ leaves vichār-, which is also the noun "a thought"
- Build: hũ vichārũ chhũ — I think
- Trace it: vi- plus car- "range about" → wheel, cycle, colony
- Contrast: jāṇvũ handed down, and English know; vichārvũ built — as traṇ had its r handed back

Before you move on

What did the root behind vichār mean first, and which everyday English word turns on it? ("To range about"; wheel.) Was vichārvũ handed down or built, and which count of yours was patched the same way? (Built on the noun vichār; traṇ had its r restored.) Say "I think." (Hũ vichārũ chhũ.)
Source: Wiktionary: વિચારવું.

14.2 સમજવું — "to understand," which is waking up

Two verbs and one root meaning: jāṇvũ, and vichārvũ on a root that meant to range about. The third sits between them, with a third kind of picture again.

You'll want to know first — one word

સમજવું — samajvũ — to understand

The stem is સમજ- samaj-: hũ samajũ chhũ, "I understand." Samaj on its own, said alone, means "understood."

The letters in this word

Not one new letter. સ sa stood in namaste, મ ma in every mārũ, જ ja opened javũ. Three bare consonants carrying their built-in a, then the ending: sa-ma-ja-vũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

samajvũ comes from Sanskrit sambudhyate: sam- "together, fully," on the root budh-, "to wake, to become aware." To understand is to come awake to a thing.
That root named a person too. One who has fully woken is a buddha — the title is this root with a participle ending, and it means exactly "the awakened one."
It is Indo-European as well, bheudh-*, and English keeps it in quieter clothes. Old English bēodan, "to announce, to offer," left bode and forebode — to bode ill is to give warning, which is what a waking mind does — and forbid, an announcement pointed the other way.

What you've built: a cluster that assimilated, then simplified

Sambudhyate has a dhy in the middle; Gujarati has a plain j. Two steps did that, in this order. Assimilate: the dh was remade in the shape of the y after it, both landing on the palate, and the pair came out doubled as jjh — Prakrit saṃbujjhadi. Simplify: the double then fell to a single j, giving samaj-.
You have watched this pair once already. Count to two: be. Its dv- went to bb because the d was remade in the shape of the v beside it, and the double then simplified to b. Different letters, same two moves.

Your turn

- Say it: samajvũ, then hũ samajũ chhũ — I understand
- Trace it: sambudhyate → saṃbujjhadi → samaj-: assimilate, then simplify
- Match: the same two moves in dv → bb → b, which gave you be
- Connect: budh- "to wake" → buddha, and English bode, forbid
- Run through: jāṇvũ, vichārvũ, samajvũ — know, think, understand

Before you move on

What did the root behind samajvũ mean, and which famous title is the same root? ("To wake, to become aware"; Buddha.) Name the two steps from dhy to j, and the number that took the same two. (Assimilate, then simplify; be, from dv to bb to b.) Say "I understand." (Hũ samajũ chhũ.)

14.3 વાંચવું — "to read," which is making a page speak

Hũ samajũ chhũ — and what did that root mean first? Then vichārvũ. The next verb puts the words in front of you.

You'll want to know first — one word

વાંચવું — vā̃chvũ — to read

The stem is વાંચ- vā̃ch-, and nothing new happens after it: hũ vā̃chũ chhũ, "I read."

The letters in this word

વા is વ va with the long-ā sign, and the dot ં sits on top of it. Then ચ cha, the letter you counted chār with and thought with in vichār. Then વું. Vā̃-cha-vũ — and the dot in the middle is the piece to be careful about.

What you've built: a nasal that is not at the end

Every nasal dot so far has been at the end of a word: hũ, chhũ, and the -વું on every verb. This one is in the middle, doing the same job in a new place — the ā before ચ goes through the nose, and it must be heard as well as written. Count to five and stop on પાંચ pā̃ch: same dot, same position, same nasal ā running into a ચ.
And you know how much one small mark can carry. જવું javũ is "to go" and જોવું jovũ is "to see," and the whole difference is the sign on the જ. This dot is the same kind of hinge: small enough to skip, and not skippable.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

vā̃chvũ comes through Old Gujarati from Sanskrit vācayati, a causative: the root vac- means "to speak," so vācayati is "to make speak." Reading was named as making a silent page talk — which is what reading was, aloud, for most of the time people have done it.
The root is Indo-European, wekw-*, and Latin holds it as vōx, "voice."
English took the family whole: voice, vocal, vowel, vocation (a calling), advocate (one called to your side), provoke, revoke.

Your turn

- Say it: vā̃chvũ, then hũ vā̃chũ chhũ — I read
- Match: the same middle nasal in pā̃ch, "five"
- Contrast: javũ and jovũ — one mark decides which word it is

- Trace it: vac- "speak" → vācayati "make speak" → vā̃chvũ, and → voice, vowel, advocate
- Run through: vichārvũ, samajvũ, vā̃chvũ

Before you move on

Where does the nasal dot sit in vā̃chvũ, and which number of yours carries it in the same place? (In the middle, on the ā; pā̃ch.) What did vācayati mean literally, and which English word for the thing you speak with is its cousin? ("To make speak"; voice.) Say "I read." (Hũ vā̃chũ chhũ.)

14.4 લખવું — "to write," which began as scratching

Three verbs, three pictures: vichārvũ on a root meaning to range about, samajvũ on one meaning to wake, vā̃chvũ on one meaning to speak. The fourth root is the most physical of them.

You'll want to know first — one word

લખવું — lakhvũ — to write

The stem is લખ- lakh-, and now you can say something worth saying: હું મારું નામ લખું છું — hũ mārũ nām lakhũ chhũ — "I write my name."

The letters in this word

Both letters are already yours. લ la stood in bolvũ, "to speak." ખ kha is the puffed k of khāvũ, "to eat." La-kha-vũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

lakhvũ comes through Prakrit from Sanskrit likhati, and likh- meant "to scratch, to score" long before it meant to write. Its plainest Sanskrit relative says so out loud: રેખા rekhā, "a line, a streak." Beyond Indo-Aryan the cousins are disputed, and this lesson claims none — the same answer khāvũ gave. What is not disputed is that three families reached for one picture: Latin scrībere also meant to scratch, behind scribe and script, and English write began as Germanic "to score."

What you've built: four verbs, and what each root did first verb	what its root did first vichārvũ — think	ranged about, turned samajvũ — understand	woke up

vā̃̃chvũ — read	spoke
lakhvũ — write	scratched

Not one of the four began as a mental act. The mind gets its vocabulary from the body, every time.

Three habits ran through the chapter. A cluster assimilates and then simplifies — dhy to jjh to j in samajvũ, whose root budh- also gave buddha. A dot in the middle is a nasal you must hear — vā̃̃ch-, whose root vac- also gave voice. And when the trail stops you say so: lakh- and khāvũ have no secure English cousin, jovũ's origin is probable rather than proven, and jāṇvũ is the one that paid out, being English know.

Your turn

- Produce: hũ mārũ nām lakhũ chhũ — I write my name
- Run through: vichārvũ, samajvũ, vā̃̃chvũ, lakhvũ — stripping -vũ off each
- Name: what each root did first — ranged, woke, spoke, scratched
- Say it: the two steps behind samaj-, and where the dot sits in vā̃̃chvũ
- Connect: rekhā, still meaning the scratch

Before you move on

Say "I write my name." (Hũ mārũ nām lakhũ chhũ.) Name the four verbs and what each root did before it meant a mental act. (Ranged, woke, spoke, scratched.) Which Sanskrit word is lakh-'s plainest relative? (Rekhā, "a line.") Which of your verbs has a certain English cousin, and which have none? (Jāṇvũ is know; lakh- and khāvũ have none.)

Chapter 15

Taking, Asking, Helping, Liking

Modes: 👁 eyes (4) 🎧 Hands-free start: all 4 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can take, ask, help and say what I like in Gujarati, explain why મદદ કરવી ends in the feminine -ી while કામ કરવું ends in the neuter, and say why મને ગુજરાતી ગમે છે leaves no room for me as its subject.
> Say મને ગુજરાતી ગમે છે and hear that you are not its subject, set it against હું ગુજરાતી બોલું છું where you are, trace ગમવું back to gamyate — the passive of gam- 'to go', so the verb was born without a doer and is English come besides — and run the chapter's four verbs back with where each came from: Sanskrit prek- behind pūchhvũ, lebh- behind levũ, Arabic madad through Persian, and the feminine ending madad forces onto karvī.

15.1 લેવું — "to take," and a family tree with an argument in it

> Lakhvũ and vā̃chvũ — and what was lakh- doing before it wrote anything? (Scratching.) The next verb is shorter than either.

You'll want to know first — one word

> લેવું — levũ — to take

Take the ending off and almost nothing is left: the stem is one syllable, લે- le-.

The letters in this word

લે is લ la, met in lakhvũ one lesson ago, wearing the sign ે that turns it into le — the same sign sitting on છે chhe at the end of your sentences. Then લું.

Grammar Lens: the stem relaxes when a person arrives

હું લઉં છું — hũ laũ chhũ — "I take."
The stem was le- and its vowel has relaxed to a under the person-ending. That is the old rule seen from the other side: javũ's stem ja- stretched to jā- when a person-ending arrived. A one-syllable stem is the piece most likely to move; the ending and the copula behind it never do.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

levũ comes through Prakrit lei from Sanskrit labhate, "takes, gains, obtains" — the bh worn away between the vowels, as a d was in khāvũ.
The root is Indo-European, lebh-*, and its meaning is worth holding: not "seize" but "work, harvest, gain, profit." Taking, named as what you have earned.
The secure cousins are outside English: Lithuanian lõbis, "treasure," and Greek láphura, "spoils of war." Both keep the sense of a thing gained rather than grabbed.
Then the argument. Latin labor, "toil" — English's labour, laboratory, elaborate — is often traced to this same root, which would make working and taking one word. That link is contested, and at least one standard authority rejects it. So: probable, not proven, exactly as jovũ was.
Three settings on one dial. Jāṇvũ is certain — it is English know. Levũ and jovũ are disputed. Khāvũ has nothing, and you say so.

Your turn

- Say it: levũ, then hũ laũ chhũ — the stem relaxing under the ending
- Match: le- to la- here, ja- to jā- in javũ
- Trace it: labhate "gains" → levũ, the bh worn away
- Sort: jāṇvũ certain and English know; levũ and jovũ disputed; khāvũ nothing

- Run through: vā̃chvũ, lakhvũ, levũ

Before you move on

Say "I take." (Hũ laũ chhũ.) Did the root behind levũ mean seizing or earning? (Earning: "work, harvest, gain.") Is English labour a cousin? (Possibly — the link is both made and rejected, so probable, not proven.) Which verb of yours has a certain English cousin, and which has none? (Jāṇvũ is know; khāvũ has none.) Source: Wiktionary: લેવું.

15.2 પૂછવું — "to ask," the verb English kept for praying

Hũ laũ chhũ — did the root behind levũ mean seizing or earning? (Earning.) Here is the verb for the one thing you cannot take: an answer.

You'll want to know first — one word

પૂછવું — pūchhvũ — to ask

The stem is પૂછ- pūchh-, and the present holds no surprises: hũ pūchhũ chhũ, "I ask."

The letters in this word

પ is pa, counted with in પાંચ pā̃ch. On it sits a new sign: ૂ, the long ū, a heavier hook than the short ુ on every -વું. Two different vowels, not two speeds of one. Then છ chha, opening છે chhe.

What you've built: a p that stayed because of where it stood

You know a rule that eats p: a single Sanskrit p between two vowels softened to v. It is how āpayati, on a root meaning "reach," became આવવું āvvũ.
So why does pūchhvũ still open with a hard પ? Because the condition is the whole rule: that p is not between vowels, it is at the front of the word, where nothing softened it. Count to five for the same shelter — પાંચ pā̃ch keeps its p.

A sound law you can only recite is a fact. One whose condition you can check is a tool.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

pūchhvũ comes from Sanskrit pṛcchati, "asks," on the Indo-European root prek-*, "to ask." This one paid out generously.
Latin took it as precārī, "to beg, to entreat," and English has the family: pray, prayer, deprecate. Latin also made precārius, "held only so long as another allows it," English's precarious — a thing you keep by asking. German still says fragen, Persian porsīdan.
English is the odd one out. Its own inherited cousin, Old English frignan, died out and ask came from elsewhere, so the root survives in English only in its religious clothes. Saying hũ pūchhũ chhũ, you use the verb English kept for praying.

Your turn

- Say it: pūchhvũ, then hũ pūchhũ chhũ — I ask
- Contrast: short ુ in -વું, long ૂ in પૂ
- Explain: why āvvũ lost its p, and pūchhvũ and pā̃ch kept theirs
- Trace it: pṛcchati → pūchhvũ, and → pray, precarious, fragen
- Run through: lakhvũ, levũ from lebh-, pūchhvũ

Before you move on

Say "I ask." (Hũ pūchhũ chhũ.) Why did pūchhvũ's p survive when the one inside āvvũ's ancestor did not, and which number of yours is sheltered the same way? (It stands at the front, not between vowels; pā̃ch.) Which English word for addressing a god is its cousin? (Pray.)
Source: Wiktionary: પૂછવું.

15.3 મદદ કરવી — "to help," which is a hand held out

> Pūchhvũ and levũ — and which English word for talking to a god is pūchhvũ's cousin? (Pray.) Now, what you do once someone has asked.

You'll want to know first — one phrase

> મદદ કરવી — madad karvī — to help

Two words. મદદ madad is a noun, "help"; કરવું karvũ is "to do," yours since kām karvũ. Gujarati helps by doing help.

હું મદદ કરું છું — hũ madad karũ chhũ — "I help."

The letters in this word

મદદ is three bare consonants with their built-in a: મ ma, then a doubled દ da — the દ that ends ānand. In કરવી the last letter wears the long ી you met in maḷīshũ, and that ી is what this lesson is about.

Grammar Lens: the ending that stopped being neuter

Every Gujarati verb so far has been named in the neuter: -વું -vũ, the third of the three genders, the -ũ of sārũ and mārũ. This one is not. કરવી karvī wears -ī, the feminine of sārī and mārī, because મદદ is a feminine noun and the infinitive agrees with what is done:

- કામ કરવું kām karvũ — "to work." Kām is neuter, so karvũ.
- મદદ કરવી madad karvī — "to help." Madad is feminine, so karvī.

Gujarati keeps three genders where Hindi next door keeps two, and here that system does visible work. You have watched gender decide a form once before, at the other end of a word's life: બે be comes down from Sanskrit's feminine and neuter dvé, not the masculine dváu. Gender chose the ancestor there; it chooses the ending here.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મદદ is not Sanskrit at all. It is Arabic madad, borrowed through Persian, on the root m-d-d, "to stretch out, to extend" — whose plainest sentence is "extend your hand." Madad is a thing held out: a hand, or reinforcements sent to an army.
It belongs to a layer you have tasted. Gujarati was a great trading tongue of the Arabian Sea, and the Persian and Arabic that settled into it is the layer answering "how are you" with મજા majā.

Your turn

- Say it: madad karvī, then hũ madad karũ chhũ — I help
- Contrast: kām karvũ neuter, madad karvī feminine — the noun decides
- Trace it: Arabic m-d-d "extend" → Persian → madad, beside majā
- Run through: levũ, pūchhvũ, madad karvī — gender picking an ending here, an ancestor in be

Before you move on

Say "I help." (Hũ madad karũ chhũ.) Why karvī and not karvũ? (મદદ is feminine; kām is neuter.) Where is madad from, and which count of yours was also shaped by gender? (Arabic through Persian, a root meaning "to stretch out"; be, from dvé.)
Sources: Wiktionary: મદદ; Wiktionary: Arabic madad.

15.4 ગમવું — "to like," which is not something you do

Three verbs from this chapter: levũ, pūchhvũ, madad karvī.
Each let you act. The fourth will not.

You'll want to know first — one word

ગમવું — gamvũ — to like

The infinitive wears the neuter -વું like every verb you own. What comes next does not.

The letters in this word

ગ ga opened gujarātī, મ ma has been everywhere, then વું — three shapes floating free, no bar across their tops, the fastest tell of Gujarati.

Grammar Lens: you are not the subject of this sentence

> મને ગુજરાતી ગમે છે — mane gujarātī game chhe — I like Gujarati

Word for word: "to me Gujarati pleases." No hũ anywhere. મને mane is "to me," carrying the -ને -ne of તમને tamne.

- હું ગુજરાતી બોલું છું — I speak Gujarati. I am the doer.
- મને ગુજરાતી ગમે છે — I like Gujarati. Gujarati is.

The verb answers to gujarātī, not to me — the instinct behind madad karvī. Spanish reaches this shape in me gusta, Tamil in enakku piḍikkum, neither borrowing from Gujarati nor from each other. Hindi and Urdu use the Persian loan pasand; gamvũ is Gujarati's own inherited word.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

gamvũ is Old Gujarati gamaï, "to please," from Prakrit gammaï, "is known," from Sanskrit gamyate — the passive of gam-, "to go." "It is gone to" became "it is grasped" became "it pleases." The word was born doerless and never took one.
Two things you hold fall into place. Gammaï meant "is known," the work of જાણવું jāṇvũ. And gamyate holds a y that did not become j: that rule was for Sanskrit y- at the front of a word, as in javũ. This one stood against an m, was swallowed into it, and the doubled mm thinned — assimilate, then simplify, as samajvũ did.
The root is gwem-*, and English come is the same word; Latin venīre gave advent, venue, invent. Āvvũ runs off another root, one that meant "to reach."

Your turn

- Produce: mane gujarātī game chhe, then hũ gujarātī bolũ chhũ — naming the doer in each

- Run through: levũ from lebh- "gain", pūchhvũ from prek- "ask", madad from Arabic through Persian, gamvũ from a passive — and why karvī ends in -ī
- Trace it: gam- "go" → gamyate → gamvũ, and → come, advent
- Explain: why gamyate's y did not become j as javũ's did
- Match: gammaï "is known" against jāṇvũ and know; gam- against āvvũ's "reach"

Before you move on

Say "I like Gujarati," and name its subject. (Mane gujarātī game chhe; Gujarati.) Which Sanskrit form is gamvũ from, what kind is it, and which English verb is the same word? (Gamyate, the passive of gam-; come.) Why madad karvī? (Madad is feminine.) Sources: Wiktionary: ગામવું; Wiktionary: Sanskrit gamyate.

Chapter 16

Water, Tea, Milk, and Bread

Modes: 👁 eyes (4) 🎧 Hands-free start: all 4 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can politely ask for water, tea, milk, or bread in Gujarati, name which of the four is a loanword and which have no settled root beyond Sanskrit, and explain why a word ending in -ī is not automatically feminine.
> The chapter closes on રોટલી, the request that breaks the drink pattern: the reader produces all four requests with મહેરબાની કરીને, sorts પાણી and દૂધ (inherited, known root) against ચા (loaned from Chinese by the overland route) against રોટલી (inherited, root unknown), and uses પાણી's neuter gender despite its -ī ending to show that રોટલી's own feminine -ī is a hint, not a rule.

16.1 પાણી — the first thing you'll actually ask for

> Gamvũ let you say what you like; madad karvī let you ask for help. This chapter asks for something smaller and more frequent: a drink.

You'll want to know first — one word

> પાણી — pāṇī — water

The letters in this word

પ pa, ા the long-ā sign, ણ the retroflex ṇ you already curled back in jāṇvũ, then ી long-ī. No bar runs across the top of any of them — the headless tell, working the same way in a noun as it did in a verb.

Grammar Lens: asking politely

> પાણી, મહેરબાની કરીને. — pāṇī, meherbānī karīne. — Water, please.

મહેરબાની કરીને meherbānī karīne is built from મહેરબાની, "kindness" or "favor," plus કરીને, "having done" — the same કરીને/કરવી family you met in મદદ કરવી, "to do a favor of help." Literally: "having done a kindness." Name the item, add this, and you have a complete polite request with no verb for "give" needed at all — the pattern this whole chapter will reuse.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

pāṇī comes from Sanskrit pānīya, "that which is to be drunk," built on pā-, "to drink." That root is Indo-European, peh₃(i)-*, and English holds two disguised pieces of it: potion and poison both come through Latin potare, "to drink" — a poison, etymologically, is just a drink gone wrong. Greek turned the same idea into sympotēs, "one who drinks together," which English keeps as symposium. Pāṇī is not a stranger to those words; it is what "to drink" looks like when it never left the family that gave you jāṇvũ's Sanskrit cousin jñā-.

Your turn

- Say it: pāṇī — water
- Say it: pāṇī, meherbānī karīne. — water, please
- Match: karīne against madad karvī's own kar- root
- Trace it: pā- "to drink" → pāṇī, and → potion, poison, symposium
- Run through: mane gujarātī game chhe, then pāṇī, meherbānī karīne — liking and requesting, side by side

Before you move on

Ask for water politely. (Pāṇī, meherbānī karīne.) What does meherbānī karīne mean word for word? ("Having done a kindness.") Which two English words for a drink, and one for a whole gathering of them, share pāṇī's root? (Potion, poison, symposium.)

Sources: Wiktionary: પાણી; Wiktionary: મહેરબાની.

16.2 ચા — the tea that went overland

Pāṇī, meherbānī karīne — water, please. The next drink uses the exact same pattern, and its own name has traveled further than water's ever needed to.

You'll want to know first — one word

ચા — chā — tea

ચા, મહેરબાની કરીને. — chā, meherbānī karīne. — Tea, please.

The letters in this word

ચ cha — the same letter that opened chār, "four," and sat inside vichār — plus the long-ā sign. Two letters, both already yours.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ચા is a loanword — unlike pāṇī, which Gujarati has owned since Sanskrit. It came through Classical Persian chā, from Mandarin Chinese chá. That is the overland route, out through Central Asia and Persia: Hindi and Urdu chāy, Russian chai, Turkish çay all took the same road and the same syllable.
There is another route entirely. Chinese merchants on the coast spoke a different dialect, Hokkien, where the same word is tê. Dutch sailors picked that form up by sea and carried it into Europe: English tea, French thé, German Tee. One plant, one original Chinese word, and two pronunciations of it, sorted by whether a language met the word on a caravan route or a ship's deck. Gujarati's chā and English tea are, in that exact sense, the same word taken two different ways out of the same country.

Your turn

- Say it: chā — tea, and chā, meherbānī karīne — tea, please

- Run through: both requests — pāṇī, meherbānī karīne; chā, meherbānī karīne
- Trace it: Chinese chá → Persian chā → ચા, the overland road
- Name: one language that took the sea road instead, and its word (English, tea)

Before you move on

Ask for tea politely. (Chā, meherbānī karīne.) Did chā come by land or by sea? (Land — through Persian, from Mandarin.) Which English word for the same plant took the sea route instead, and through which language? (Tea, through Dutch.)
Sources: Wiktionary: ચા; Etymonline: chai.

16.3 દૂધ — a verb frozen into a noun

પાણી was never borrowed. ચા came the long way from China. The third drink is, like water, entirely Gujarati's own — but it got that way differently.

You'll want to know first — one word

દૂધ — dūdh — milk

દૂધ, મહેરબાની કરીને. — dūdh, meherbānī karīne. — Milk, please.

The letters in this word

દ da, ૂ the long-ū sign below it, then ધ dha — the aspirated d, the same puff of breath that made ખ the aspirated k and ભ the aspirated b. You have met the letter itself before, in વાંધો નહીં.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

dūdh comes from Sanskrit dugdha, and dugdha is not, at root, a noun at all — it is the past participle of duh-, "to milk," so it means literally "milked." The action came first; the word for the substance is just that verb, frozen. It is the same trick gamvũ played with "to please," run on a different part of speech: a verb collapsing into the thing it names.

The Indo-European root is dheugh-*, "to be fit, useful, of avail." Its Germanic descendant did not go on to mean milk in English at all — it survives in doughty, "valiant, capable," from Old English dohtig, "of good use." Dūdh and doughty are cousins by way of a root that once meant simply being of use — milk as the useful thing, valor as the useful person.

Your turn

- Say it: dūdh — milk, and dūdh, meherbānī karīne — milk, please
- Run through: all three requests so far — pāṇī, chā, dūdh, each with meherbānī karīne
- Trace it: duh- "to milk" → dugdha "milked" → dūdh, and → English doughty
- Name: which of the three drinks is a loanword (ચા) and which two are not

Before you move on

Ask for milk politely. (Dūdh, meherbānī karīne.) What part of speech was dugdha before it became a noun for milk? (A past participle — "milked.") Which unexpected English word for bravery shares its root with dūdh? (Doughty.)
Sources: Wiktionary: દૂધ; Etymonline: doughty.

16.4 રોટલી — a request pattern, run four times

Three drinks, one pattern: pāṇī, chā, dūdh, each followed by meherbānī karīne. The fourth request is food, not drink, and it closes the chapter by finally breaking a pattern instead of continuing one.

You'll want to know first — one word

રોટલી — roṭlī — flatbread

રોટલી, મહેરબાની કરીને. — roṭlī, meherbānī karīne. — Bread, please.

The letters in this word

ર ra, ો the o sign, then a new letter: ટ, a retroflex ṭ — the tongue curls back the way it does for ણ, but here it stops the airflow instead of letting it through the nose. Then લ la, and ી long-ī. Headless throughout, like every letter you've met.

Grammar Lens: an -ī that does not mean "feminine, guaranteed"

રોટલી is feminine, and its ending fits: many Gujarati nouns ending in -ī are feminine, the same -ī you saw mark the feminine adjective ending in sārī. But you already own the counter-example: પાણી also ends in -ī, and pāṇī is neuter. The ending is a hint worth noticing, not a rule you can trust blind — every noun's gender has to be learned with the noun, the way madad karvī forced કરવી into its feminine shape only because madad itself was feminine, not because of any ending on karvī alone.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

roṭlī is inherited from Sanskrit roṭikā, "a kind of bread." That much is certain. What roṭikā itself comes from is not: the standard comparative dictionaries weigh an unattested root meaning "to strike against" against another meaning "to crush," and neither Turner nor Mayrhofer picks a winner.

That gives this chapter its own three-way dial, the same shape jāṇvũ, levũ, and khāvũ once drew for verbs: pāṇī and dūdh are inherited straight from Sanskrit with a full etymology behind them; chā is a loan, traceable to Mandarin by a known road; roṭlī is inherited too, but its own root is where recorded history simply stops.

Your turn

- Say it: roṭlī, meherbānī karīne — bread, please

- Run through: all four requests — pāṇī, chā, dūdh, roṭlī, each with meherbānī karīne
- Sort: inherited with a known root (pāṇī, dūdh), loaned (chā), inherited with an unknown root (roṭlī)
- Contrast: roṭlī feminine by its -ī, pāṇī neuter despite its -ī

Before you move on

Ask for bread politely. (Roṭlī, meherbānī karīne.) Does roṭikā's own root have a settled answer? (No — the dictionaries disagree and leave it open.) Name one Gujarati noun ending in -ī that is feminine and one that is neuter. (Roṭlī; pāṇī.) Run all four requests from this chapter. (Pāṇī, chā, dūdh, roṭlī, each with meherbānī karīne.) Sources: Wiktionary: રોટલી; Wiktionary: Sanskrit rotika.

Chapter 17

Friend and Family

Modes: 👁 eyes (4) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 4 of 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can name a friend, a family, a brother, and a sister in Gujarati, explain which of these words was inherited whole from Sanskrit rather than worn down by sound change, and say which sibling word is genuinely a cousin of its English counterpart and which is not.
> The chapter closes on બહેન*, deliberately not a cousin of English sister: the reader produces* મિત્ર*,* કુટુંબ*,* ભાઈ and બહેન*, names* ભાઈ as English brother's unbroken cousin against બહેન*'s unrelated (disputed bhaga-based) root, and names* કુટુંબ as taken up whole from Sanskrit rather than worn down like the other three — while recalling that મિત્ર and મહેરબાની, taught a chapter apart, share the same ancient Indo-Iranian root.

17.1 મિત્ર — a friend, and the word inside your own "please"

Last chapter asked politely for roṭlī with meherbānī karīne. That phrase is about to turn out to share its root with the very first word of this new chapter.

You'll want to know first — one word

મિત્ર — mitra — friend

The letters in this word

મ ma, િ the short-i sign written before the consonant it belongs to — the same leftward quirk you saw open vichārvũ — then a conjunct: ત્ર — ત ta with the virama ્ stripping its vowel, joined straight into ર ra. Mi-tra, two syllables, the second one a cluster.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

mitra is Sanskrit for "friend," from Proto-Indo-Iranian mitras, "(that which) causes binding" — a covenant word before it was a friendship word. Its exact twin is Avestan Mithra*, the god of contracts and given word, whose name lived on in Middle Persian as* Mihr*.*
That is not a dead end. મહેરબાની, the "kindness" you built meherbānī karīne from last chapter, is Persian mihrbānī — built on that very same Mihr. So મિત્ર, inherited straight down from Sanskrit, and મહેરબાની, borrowed centuries later from Persian, are cousins by the same Indo-Iranian root — one word for "friend," the other for "favor," both once naming the same idea of a bond that holds.

Your turn

- Say it: mitra — friend
- Trace it: Proto-Indo-Iranian mitras → Avestan Mithra → Persian Mihr → મહેરબાની
- Connect: મિત્ર and મહેરબાની — same ancient root, two different doors into Gujarati
- Run through: roṭlī, meherbānī karīne once more, now naming the "friend" root inside it

Before you move on

Give the word for "friend." (Mitra.) Which other Gujarati word you already know shares its root, and through which language did each arrive? (મહેરબાની — mitra inherited from Sanskrit, meherbānī borrowed from Persian mihr.) What did the shared root originally mean? ("To bind," a covenant.)
Sources: Wiktionary: મિત્ર; Wiktionary: Mithra.

17.2 કુટુંબ — a word that skipped the sound changes

મિત્ર (mitra) reached Gujarati the long way, worn down through Prakrit like nearly every word you own. The word for the group a friend gets folded into took a different road entirely.

You'll want to know first — one word

કુટુંબ — kuṭumb — family

The letters in this word

ક ka, ુ the short-u sign below it, then ટ — the same retroflex ṭ you first curled back in roṭlī, here doing the same job again. ું closes it: u with the nasal dot on top, then બ ba. Ku-ṭu-m-b.

Grammar Lens: taken whole, not worn down

You have seen Sanskrit reach back into Gujarati once before: ત્રણ's r, restored after Prakrit had already dropped it — a repair, made to a word that had kept changing the whole time. કુટુંબ is a different kind of contact. Gujarati did not inherit this word through the centuries of sound change that gave you pāṇī or be; it took the Sanskrit word up directly, close to whole, the way a modern language reaches for a ready-made technical term instead of growing one on its own. Linguists call an inherited word like pāṇī tadbhava, "born from that," and a direct borrowing like this one tatsama, "same as that" — kuṭumb is tatsama.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Here the trail runs further than usual, in an unexpected direction. Sanskrit kuṭumba is itself thought to be a loanword, taken from a Dravidian source and compared to Tamil kuṭimai, "family, lineage," both built on kuṭi, "hut." A word that looks purely Sanskrit, and that Gujarati then borrowed as purely Sanskrit, may have entered Sanskrit from a completely different family of languages first. The chain of ownership runs Dravidian → Sanskrit → Gujarati, with no step skipped and no step certain beyond reasonable comparison.

Your turn

- Say it: kuṭumb — family
- Contrast: tadbhava pāṇī (worn down over time) against tatsama kuṭumb (taken whole)
- Match: this "taken whole" idea against traṇ's restored r — both are Sanskrit reaching forward, in different ways
- Trace it: proposed Dravidian kuṭi "hut" → Sanskrit kuṭumba → કુટુંબ

Before you move on

Give the word for "family." (Kuṭumb.) Is it tadbhava or tatsama? (Tatsama — borrowed whole from Sanskrit, not worn down through Prakrit.) Where does Sanskrit's own kuṭumba likely come from? (Dravidian, compared to Tamil kuṭimai.)
Sources: Wiktionary: કુટુંબ; Wiktionary: Sanskrit kutumba.

17.3 ભાઈ — the same word as "brother," unbroken

કુટુંબ (kuṭumb) was taken up whole, close to the finished Sanskrit shape. The two words for its members run the opposite way — worn all the way down, the ordinary path nearly every Gujarati word has followed.

You'll want to know first — one word

ભાઈ — bhāī — brother

The letters in this word

ભ bha, the aspirated b, with the long-ā sign ા, then ઈ, the independent long-ī vowel standing on its own rather than attached to a consonant. Bhā-ī, two syllables, no consonant closing the second.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

bhāī is inherited, through Prakrit bhāi, from Sanskrit bhrātṛ. Its root is Indo-European $*b^h réh_2 tēr$, and this is one of the cleanest cognate sets Indo-European linguistics has: Sanskrit bhrātṛ, English brother, Latin frāter, Greek phrātēr, Russian brat — every one of them the same word, carried down by ordinary sound change in every branch rather than borrowed by any of them. Where kuṭumb skipped the centuries of change that shape tadbhava words, bhāī is the textbook case of what those centuries do: the consonant cluster bhr- simplified once the r dropped, exactly the kind of wearing-down that gave you pāṇī from pānīya.

Your turn

- Say it: bhāī — brother
- Trace it: PIE $b^h réh_2 tēr$ → Sanskrit bhrātṛ → ભાઈ, and → English brother
- Contrast: bhāī worn down over centuries against kuṭumb taken up whole
- Name: two other languages whose word for "brother" is the same cognate (Latin frāter, Greek phrātēr, or Russian brat)

Before you move on

Give the word for "brother." (Bhāī.) Which English word is the very same word, by unbroken descent, not borrowing? (Brother.) Is bhāī tadbhava or tatsama — worn down, or taken whole like kuṭumb? (Tadbhava — worn down.)
Sources: Wiktionary: ભાઈ; Wiktionary: $b^h réh_2 tēr$.

17.4 બહેન — the sister who is not "sister"'s cousin

ભાઈ is English brother, unbroken, down to the root. Do not assume the sibling pair matches. This chapter's last word breaks the pattern.

You'll want to know first — one word

બહેન — bahen — sister

The letters in this word

બ ba, હ ha, ે the e sign above the consonant, then ન na. Ba-hen, every letter already yours from earlier chapters.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Here is the surprise: બહેન is not bhāī's counterpart the way English sister is brother's. English sister, Latin soror, and Sanskrit svasṛ all descend from one shared PIE root, swésōr*. Gujarati's word for sister does not use that root at all.
bahen comes from Sanskrit bhaginī, through Prakrit bhaginī. Scholars connect bhaginī to bhaga, "good fortune, a share" — the same bhaga behind bhāgya, "fate" — plus a feminine suffix, so "sister" may originally have meant something closer to "the one who shares." That connection is debated rather than settled, the way roṭlī's root was: some scholars accept the bhaga link, others have argued against it. What is certain is what it is not: unlike bhāī, bahen is no relation to English sister at all — and unlike the disputed-but-real mitra/meherbānī pair, this dial lands on "unrelated," full stop.

Your turn

- Say it: bahen — sister, and bhāī — brother
- Contrast: bhāī — same root as English brother; bahen — a different Sanskrit word entirely, not sister's cousin
- Trace it: proposed bhaga "share, fortune" → bhaginī → બહેન
- Run through: all four family words — mitra, kuṭumb, bhāī, bahen — inherited/borrowed, direct/indirect
- Recall: મિત્ર and મહેરબાની's shared root from the last chapter, and કુટુંબ's proposed Dravidian root

Before you move on

Give the word for "sister." (Bahen.) Is it the same root as English sister? (No — that connection belongs to bhāī/brother instead.) What does bahen probably come from? (Sanskrit bhaginī, disputedly tied to bhaga, "share.") Name this chapter's four people and things: friend, family, brother, sister. (Mitra, kuṭumb, bhāī, bahen.)
Sources: Wiktionary: બહેન; Wiktionary: Sanskrit bhagini.

17.5 The doorway nine return in a new order

Without looking back, write ja, the nasal mark, and ka. Check only a missed form, cover the model again, and make one repair.

Your turn

Read the shuffled row once. Identify each form on sight; do not rebuild the original doorway order. Record the reading score before the row is covered; repair only missed forms, then reach 9/9 once.

Writing — from sound

Keep every model covered. Write the nine sound cues in their new order, then score the writing response separately from reading. Writing also needs 9/9; the reading score cannot compensate for it. Repair only missed forms.

Before you move on

How many marks and consonants returned? (Four marks and five consonants.)

Chapter 18

Eye, Ear, Mouth, and Nose

Modes: 👁 eyes (4) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 4 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can name the eye, ear, mouth, and nose in Gujarati, tell a nasal that only marks a sound from one that marks the neuter gender, and say which two of the four are unbroken cousins of their English counterparts.
> The chapter closes on નાક*, completing the face: the reader produces* આંખ*,* કાન*,* મોઢું and નાક with their genders (f, f, n, n), names આંખ and નાક as unbroken PIE cousins of eye and nose, states that મોઢું's nasalized -ũ is the same neuter tell carried by every -વું verb infinitive while નાક shows a neuter noun does not always carry it, and reaches back to વાંચવું's medial nasal and જવું/જોવું's one-mark contrast.

18.1 આંખ — an eye, and a nasal that is not what it looks like

> બહેન (bahen) closed a chapter about people. This chapter checks on how someone is — starting with the parts of the body a friend might actually ask about.

You'll want to know first — one word

> આંખ — āṅkh — eye

The letters in this word

આ the independent long-ā, then the nasal dot ં sitting on top of it — exactly the medial anusvāra you first read inside વાંચવું, doing the same job here, in the middle of a noun rather than a verb — then ખ, the aspirated k. Note what this nasal is NOT: it does not mark આંખ as neuter — the word is feminine. A nasal dot in the middle of a word is a sound, present or absent as pronunciation happens to need it; it is a different thing entirely from the grammatical -ũ ending you will meet again soon, and this chapter keeps the two apart on purpose.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

āṅkh is inherited from Sauraseni Prakrit akkhi, from Sanskrit akṣi, "eye." The root is Indo-European $*h_3ek^w$-, "eye; to see," and it survives unbroken in English eye itself, in Latin oculus (behind ocular), and in Greek ósse. This is bhāī's kind of cousin, not bahen's: a straight line back to the same ancestor, no borrowing and no detour.

Your turn

- Say it: āṅkh — eye
- Match: the medial nasal here against the one in વાંચવું
- State: is this nasal a gender marker? (No.) Is āṅkh neuter? (No — feminine.)
- Trace it: PIE h_3ek^w- → Sanskrit akṣi → આંખ, and → English eye

Before you move on

Give the word for "eye." (Āṅkh.) Which English word is the same word by unbroken descent? (Eye.) Does the nasal dot in āṅkh mean the word is neuter? (No — āṅkh is feminine; the dot is only a sound.)
Sources: Wiktionary: આંખ; Wiktionary: Sanskrit akshi.

18.2 કાન — an ear whose own root is unsettled

આંખ traced back cleanly to a confirmed Indo-European root. The next body part will not be nearly as tidy.

You'll want to know first — one word

કાન — kān — ear

The letters in this word

ક ka, ા long-ā, ન na. All three already yours.

Grammar Lens: a gender that changed on the way here

કાન is feminine in Gujarati. Its Sanskrit ancestor, karṇa, was masculine. Nothing about inheriting a word guarantees its gender comes along unchanged — મિત્ર kept Sanskrit's masculine, but kān did not keep karṇa's. Gender, like the gender of આંખ or બહેન, has to be learned with each noun as it stands today, not projected backward from what its ancestor was — the same caution રોટલી's chapter drew from its own -ī ending.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

kān is inherited from Old Gujarati kāna, through Apabhramsa and Prakrit kaṇṇa, from Sanskrit karṇa, "ear." Past that point, no agreement exists. Proposed origins include a root for "defect" (with "ear" as a later, narrower sense), a root meaning "point" or "spike," a root meaning "handle" or "grip," and a connection to śṛṇoti, "to hear." None of these has won out. Kān joins roṭlī as a second word in your Gujarati vocabulary whose Sanskrit form is certain and whose deeper root is not — the honest answer, said plainly rather than picked at random.

Your turn

- Say it: kān — ear, and āṅkh — eye
- State: karṇa's Sanskrit gender against kān's Gujarati gender (masculine → feminine)
- Name: two of the four disputed origins scholars have proposed for karṇa
- Contrast: āṅkh's confirmed PIE root against kān's unsettled one

Before you move on

Give the word for "ear." (Kān.) Did its gender change between Sanskrit and Gujarati? (Yes — masculine to feminine.) Is karṇa's own root settled? (No — several proposals, no agreement.)

Sources: Wiktionary: કાન; Wiktionary: Sanskrit karna.

18.3 મોઢું — the tell you have been hearing all along

કાન (kān)'s own gender shifted away from Sanskrit's. The next body part wears its gender in plain sight — the same nasalized ending you have heard on nearly every verb in this book.

Say "my name," then "my name is Mira." (Mārũ nām; mārũ nām Mīrā chhe.)

You'll want to know first — one word

મોઢું — moḍhũ — mouth

The letters in this word

મ ma, ો the o sign, then a new letter: ઢ, the retroflex aspirated ḍh — curl the tongue back as for ટ and ણ, and add the puff of breath that made ધ aspirated. Then ું, u with the nasal dot. Mo-ḍhũ.

Grammar Lens: the neuter tell, named plainly

Every verb infinitive in this book ends in the neuter -વું: hovũ, javũ, jāṇvũ, lakhvũ — a whole word class marked by that one nasalized ending. મોઢું shows the same ending doing the same job on a noun: moḍhũ is neuter, and the nasalized -ũ is the single most recognizable tell for it. Not every neuter noun wears it — પાણી and later nāk do not — but when you do see or hear a word end this way, neuter is the way to bet. And do not confuse it with આંખ's nasal: that one sat in the middle of a feminine word and marked nothing about gender at all. This one sits at the end, and it does.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

moḍhũ is inherited from Sauraseni Prakrit muha, from Sanskrit mukha, "mouth, face." It has a formal doublet, મુખ mukh, borrowed directly from the same Sanskrit word the way kuṭumb was — the everyday and the formal register, side by side, from one ancestor reached by two different roads. Past Sanskrit, mukha's own root is not agreed upon — a second open question, alongside karṇa's, rather than a guess dressed up as an answer.

Your turn

- Say it: moḍhũ — mouth
- State: what gender the -ũ ending marks, and one verb infinitive that wears the same ending
- Contrast: moḍhũ's end-of-word nasal against āṅkh's middle-of-word one
- Name: moḍhũ's formal doublet, and how it reached Gujarati (borrowed whole, like kuṭumb)

Before you move on

Give the word for "mouth." (Moḍhũ.) What gender does its -ũ ending mark? (Neuter.) Name the formal doublet of moḍhũ. (મુખ, mukh.)
Sources: Wiktionary: મોં; Wiktionary: Sanskrit mukha.

18.4 નાક — the whole face, run back

આંખ, કાન, મોઢું — eye, ear, mouth. One more completes the face, and this one closes the chapter by tying its ending back to a pattern from three chapters ago.

Before the face is finished, two farewells: say "see you tomorrow" and "we will meet again." (Kāle maḷīshũ; pāchhā maḷīshũ.)

You'll want to know first — one word

નાક — nāk — nose

The letters in this word

ન na, ા long-ā, ક ka. Every letter already familiar — nāk's only new information is the word itself.

Grammar Lens: closing the chapter's gender count

નાક is neuter, like મોઢું — but unlike moḍhũ, it carries no nasalized -ũ at all. Run the whole face: āṅkh feminine, kān feminine, moḍhũ neuter with the tell, nāk neuter without it. Two neuters, only one of them wearing the ending that names the class. This is exactly why last lesson called the nasalized -ũ a tell, not a rule: it is the loudest signal Gujarati gives you for neuter, and it is still only sometimes there — the same caution roṭlī and pāṇī already taught you about -ī, and kān's Grammar Lens taught you about gender and inheritance more generally.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

nāk is inherited from Prakrit ṇakka, from Sanskrit nas, "nose," with a suffix added along the way — the retroflex ṇ here is the same sound-shift you first met turning jānāti into jāṇvũ, a single letter's worth of difference deciding a great deal, the way one mark once told javũ apart from jovũ. The root is Indo-European nehas-*, unbroken in English nose, Latin nāsus (behind nasal), and Lithuanian nósis. Like āṅkh, nāk needed no ship and no loan to reach you — only the ordinary work of sound change, the same work that once put a nasal dot in the middle of વાંચવું and, this chapter, in the middle of આંખ.

Your turn

- Say it: all four face words — āṅkh, kān, moḍhũ, nāk
- Sort: gender of each — feminine, feminine, neuter, neuter
- State: which of the two neuters carries the -ũ tell, and which does not
- Trace it: PIE nehas- → Sanskrit nas → નાક, and → English nose
- Recall: the medial nasal in વાંચવું, and the one-mark contrast between જવું and જોવું

Before you move on

Give the word for "nose." (Nāk.) Which English word is the same word by unbroken descent? (Nose.) Name this chapter's four body words and their genders. (Ānkh f., kān f., moḍhũ n., nāk n.) Which neuter noun wears the nasalized -ũ tell, and which does not? (Moḍhũ does; nāk does not.)

Chapter 19

Fourth Return: Script and Names

Modes: ✓ pen (6) Hands-free start: none of the 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can retrieve five Gujarati doorway forms at their fourth spacing window, distinguish each from a nearby familiar form, and independently read and write a complete name exchange after a long interval.
> The chapter closes without adding an atom: the learner independently reads three shuffled introduction lines, then writes a complete name exchange from English cues after first closing exact R4 windows for the short-u sign, chha, ka, retroflex nna, and sha.

19.1 The short-u hook returns at R4

Say short u once. Picture its small hook below a consonant before you look at any form.

Your turn

Read ◌ુ ◌ા ◌ુ once and score recognition 3/3. The short-u sign introduced at position 30 has now travelled 61 lessons to position 91: this closes its R4 window. Repair only a missed sign.

Writing — from sound

Keep the visible row covered. Write the three sound cues, then score writing 3/3 separately. A perfect reading score cannot replace the written one.

Before you move on

Where does ᳲ sit? (Below its consonant.)

19.2 Chha returns beside sha

Picture chha: two high lobes around a broad lower body.

Your turn

Read ศ ছ ছ once and score recognition 3/3. Chha moved from position 31 to position 92, exactly 61 lessons, so its R4 window closes here.

Writing — from sound

With every model covered, write the three cues and score writing 3/3 on its own. Repair only a missed form.

Before you move on

Which form has two high lobes? (ছ, chha.)

19.3 Ka returns beside ja

Picture ka: its compact upper turn leads into the lower body.

Your turn

Read ক ঙ ক once and score recognition 3/3. Ka moved from position 32 to position 93, exactly 61 lessons, closing its R4 window.

Writing — from sound

Cover every model, write the cues, and score writing 3/3 independently. Repair only a missed form.

Before you move on

Write ka once more without looking. (ক)

19.4 Retroflex nna returns beside na

Say retroflex nna and picture ણ before looking.

Your turn

Read ન ણ ણ once and score recognition 3/3. Retroflex nna moved from position 33 to position 94, exactly 61 lessons, closing its R4 window.

Writing — from sound

Cover every model, write the three cues, and score writing 3/3 separately. Repair only a missed form.

Before you move on

Which form answers the retroflex cue? (ણ)

19.5 Sha returns beside sa

Say sha, then picture શ without drawing it yet.

Your turn

Read શ સ શ once and score recognition 3/3. Sha moved from position 34 to position 95, exactly 61 lessons, so its R4 window closes here.

Writing — from sound

Cover every model, write the cues, and score writing 3/3 independently. Repair only a missed form.

Before you move on

Write sha once more from sound. (શ)

19.6 The name exchange returns after a long interval

With the page covered, say the three pieces for my name is:
mārũ — nām — chhe.

Your turn

Read the three lines once and score meaning retrieval 3/3. Position 35 was already a zero-atom checkpoint, so position 96 uses the open slot to close R3 name-exchange debt rather than pretending to retrieve a nonexistent new atom.

Writing — from sound

Cover every Gujarati model and write the three English-cued lines. Score written production 3/3 separately from reading; repair only a missed line.

Before you move on

Which you belongs in this polite exchange? (tame.)

Chapter 20

Fourth Return: The Introduction

Modes: ✓ pen (6) Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can retrieve name, my, the Gujarati copula, my-name-is, and pleased-to-meet-you at their fourth spacing window, write each response without a model, and continue into a familiar wellbeing exchange.
> The chapter closes without a new atom: after five exact R4 returns rebuild the introduction one piece at a time, the learner independently orders and writes the familiar how-are-you exchange in the zero-atom source slot.

20.1 Nām returns at R4

> Before looking, say the Gujarati word that is a cousin of English name.

Your turn

Say it: chhe — nām — mārũ Say the item that means name. Read it: uncover નામ and read it once. Position 97 is 61 lessons after its introduction at position 36, so this response closes the word's R4 window.

Writing — from sound

Cover every Gujarati model and write nām. Score listening/recognition and writing separately; each needs 1/1.

Before you move on

What is nām's English cousin? (name.)

20.2 Mārũ returns with nām

Say my name without looking: mārũ nām.

Your turn

Say it: mārũ nām Give each meaning. Read it: મારું નામ once. Position 98 is 61 lessons after mārũ first appeared at position 37, closing its R4 window without adding a form.

Writing — from sound

Write the two-word phrase with every model covered. Listening and writing each need 2/2; repair only a missed word.

Before you move on

Why is the form mārũ? (Nām is neuter.)

20.3 Chhe returns to the final slot

Say Gujarati is once. Remember that it waits at the end.

Your turn

Say it: nām — chhe Say which word is is. Read it: નામ ... છે. Position 99 is 61 lessons after chhe appeared at position 38, so the copula's R4 window closes here.

Writing — from sound

Write the frame with every model covered. Score the two words separately from listening; repair only the missed one.

Before you move on

Is chhe Hindi hai? (No; it is Gujarati's own copula.)

20.4 The whole name frame returns at R4

Assemble my — name — Mira — is aloud in Gujarati.

Your turn

Say it: mārũ nām Mīrā chhe Give its meaning and name the final verb. Read it: મારું નામ મીરા છે, finding that verb at its end. Position 100 is exactly 61 lessons after the frame was assembled at position 39, closing its R4 window.

Writing — from sound

Write the one sentence with every model covered. Listening and writing each need 4/4; repair only a missed word.

Before you move on

Give the same frame with your own name.

20.5 Ānand returns to close the introduction

Give your name aloud, then pause where a warm closing line belongs.

Your turn

Say it: mārũ nām Arun chhe — tamne maḷīne ānand thayo Say what each line does. Read it: તમને મળીને આનંદ થયો once. Position 101 is 61 lessons after this closing appeared at position 40, so its R4 window closes here.

Writing — from sound

Write the key closing word and the name frame with every model covered. Score the two written items separately from listening; each needs 2/2.

Before you move on

What does ānand mean literally? (Joy or bliss.)

20.6 After names, the wellbeing exchange returns

After exchanging names, ask How are you? without looking.

Your turn

Say it: vāndho nahĩ — tame kem chho — hũ majāmā chhũ Rebuild question, answer, courtesy. Position 41 introduced nothing, so position 102 closes the open R3 windows for this real dialogue instead of inventing a matching atom.

Writing — from sound

Write the three lines from meaning with every model covered. Listening order and written production each need 3/3; repair only a missed line.

Before you move on

Ask and answer once more aloud.

Chapter 21

Fourth Return: Respectful Questions

Modes: ✓ pen (6) Hands-free start: the first of 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can retrieve familiar and respectful you, what, the respectful name question, the introduction exchange, I, and how at their fourth spacing window, and write each response without a model.
> The chapter closes without a new atom: six exact R4 returns rebuild respectful name and wellbeing questions one small contrast at a time, ending with independent written production.

21.1 Two ways to say you return at R4

> Imagine asking a name of a close friend, then of a new acquaintance. Say Gujarati name, then the you that fits each person.

Your turn

Say it: tame — tũ Choose the respectful form, then the familiar form. Position 103 is 61 lessons after their introduction, so this closes the pair's R4 window without adding language.

Writing — from sound

Write tũ, then tame, with every Gujarati model covered. Score the respectful listening choice and the two written forms separately.

Before you move on

Which form belongs in a first meeting? (તમે, tame.)

21.2 Shũ returns at R4

Say Gujarati name, then what, before looking.

Your turn

Say it: kem — shũ Point to what, then uncover શું and read it once. Do not answer how: the two question words keep separate meanings.

Writing — from sound

Cover every model and write shũ. Listening meaning and writing each need 1/1.

Before you move on

Say what once more. (શું, shũ.)

21.3 The respectful name question returns at R4

Ask a new acquaintance What is your name? without looking.

Your turn

Say it: tamārũ nām shũ chhe? Identify it as the respectful question. Then read તમારું નામ શું છે? once and notice that chhe stays last.

Writing — from sound

Write the complete question from meaning. Score listening recognition and the four written words separately; repair only a missed word.

Before you move on

Ask the respectful question once more aloud.

21.4 The introduction exchange returns at R4

Picture a first meeting: question, answer, pleased-to-meet-you close.

Your turn

Say it: tamne maḷīne ānand thayo — mārũ nām Mīrā chhe — tamārũ nām shũ chhe Put the question first, answer second, and courteous close last.

Writing — from sound

Write the question and answer with every model covered. Listening order and written production keep separate scores; repair only a missed line.

Before you move on

Perform the three-line exchange once more aloud.

21.5 Hũ returns at R4

Say Gujarati I before looking.

Your turn

Say it: mārũ — hũ Choose I, then say my. Keep the owner and the possessive distinct.

Writing — from sound

Write hũ with every model covered. Score the I/my listening choice and the written word separately.

Before you move on

Say I / my. (હું / મારું, hũ / mārũ.)

21.6 Kem returns at R4

Say Gujarati what, then how, without looking.

Your turn

Say it: shũ — kem Choose the word that completes tame ___ chho? Then read તમે કેમ છો? once. This is the sixth exact R4 return in the chapter.

Writing — from sound

Write the two questions from meaning. Score the listening choice and both written question words separately.

Before you move on

Ask What is your name?, then How are you?, aloud.

Chapter 22

Fourth Return: Wellbeing and Farewells

Modes: ✓ pen (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can retrieve and write the respectful wellbeing exchange and two familiar farewells without a model.
> Five zero-atom lessons close the next exact R4 windows and end with independent farewell production at coherent R3 and R4 intervals.

22.1 The respectful wellbeing question returns at R4

Ask a new acquaintance How are you? without looking.

Your turn

Say it: tũ kem chhe? — tame kem chho? Choose the respectful question. The pronoun and copula agree as one frame.

Writing — from sound

Write the three-word question from meaning. Score listening choice and writing separately.

Before you move on

Ask the respectful question once more aloud.

22.2 The wellbeing answer returns at R4

Answer tame kem chho? with I am well before looking.

Your turn

Say it: tame kem chho? — hũ majāmā chhũ Choose the answer, then say the question and answer as a pair.

Writing — from sound

Write the answer from meaning. Listening recognition and written production each have their own score.

Before you move on

What does majā literally evoke? (Enjoyment or relish.)

22.3 No problem returns at R4

Someone says ābhār. Give the gracious reply before looking.

Your turn

Say it: ābhār — vāndho nahĩ Give the reply. Remember that nahĩ carries the old negative also heard in nā.

Writing — from sound

Write the reply from meaning. Score the listening choice and the two written words separately.

Before you move on

Say thanks / no problem as a two-line exchange.

22.4 The wellbeing exchange returns at R4

Picture a question, a positive answer, and a courteous close.

Your turn

Say it: vāndho nahĩ — hũ majāmā chhũ — tame kem chho Rebuild question, answer, courtesy close.

Writing — from sound

Write all three lines from meaning. Listening order and written production each need 3/3.

Before you move on

Perform the exchange once more aloud.

22.5 We will meet returns at R4

Say we will meet before looking.

Your turn

Say it: kāle maḷīshũ — pāchhā maḷīshũ Give each meaning. Maḷīshũ is the shared future verb; kāle and pāchhā choose the farewell.

Writing — from sound

Write both farewells from meaning. Score listening meanings and writing separately. This also closes the coherent farewell atoms' R3 windows.

Before you move on

Which verb is shared by both lines? (મળીશું, maḷīshũ.)

Chapter 23

Fourth Return: The Doorway Nine

Modes: ✓ pen (1) Hands-free start: none (1 lesson).

> By the end of this chapter: I can independently recognize and write the nine Gujarati doorway forms after their fourth expanding interval.
> A single zero-atom checkpoint independently scores all nine forms in fresh reading and dictation orders at R4 distances 88 through 80.

23.1 The doorway nine reach R4

Without looking back, write ja, the attached o sign, and the nasal mark. Check only a missed form, cover the model, and make one repair.

Your turn

Read the shuffled row once and identify each form on sight. Record the reading score before any repair. Reach 9/9 once; the order supplies no cue from an earlier checkpoint.

Writing — from sound

Keep every model covered and write the nine sound cues in this second new order. Score writing separately from reading. Writing also needs 9/9; repair only missed forms.

Before you move on

How many forms now have R1, R2, R3, and R4 evidence? (All nine.)

Chapter 24

A First Three-Place Map

Modes: 🚗 voice (3) ✓ pen (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can hear, say, read, and write market, home, and temple in Gujarati.
> Seven one-atom lessons keep meaning ahead of print, isolate the one required consonant, then score all three words in listening, speaking, reading, and writing.

24.1 બજાર — hear market first

Listen twice: bajār. It means market. Do not study the Gujarati spelling yet; hold only the sound and meaning.

Your turn

Picture a market when you hear bajār, then say bajār once from the English cue.

Before you move on

Source: Gujarati Wiktionary word index.

24.2 બજાર — market on the page

Say bajār from the meaning market. Now look:

બજાર — bajār — market

Your turn

Trace બજાર once, then copy it once while naming the sound bajār.

Before you move on

Source: Gujarati Wiktionary word index.

24.3 ઘર — hear home first

Say bajār for market. Now listen twice: ghar means home or house.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઘર (ghar) is usually taken as a popular form of Sanskrit gṛha, "house", which it has largely replaced. CDIAL lists it under Middle Indo-Aryan ghara, "house", and calls that derivation phonetically difficult (CDIAL 4428).

Your turn

Choose home or market as you hear ghar and bajār. Then say ghar once from the meaning cue.

Before you move on

Source: ઘર — Gujarati Wiktionary.

24.4 ઘ — one consonant for gh

The consonant ઘ begins ghar. Today it is only a sound and writing shape; the complete word waits for the next lesson.

Your turn

How it is written — 2 strokes · 1 pen lift · 2 movements

Stroke order after t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, animation, first and second SVG paths
This order is attested, not standardised; the source records where it varies.

How ઘ is written, stroke by stroke

Watch the model, trace ઘ twice, and copy it once while saying gha.

Before you move on

Stroke-order source: t30apps Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice, fitted to the bundled Noto Sans Gujarati form documented in `data/scripts/gujarati.json`.

24.5 ઘર — home on the page

Read બજાર, then look at the shorter place word:

ઘર — ghar — home; house

Your turn

How ઘર is written, letter by letter, stroke by stroke

Look at ઘર, cover it, wait five seconds, and write it once.

Before you move on

Source: ઘર — Gujarati Wiktionary.

24.6 મંદિર — hear temple first

Recall market and home. Now listen twice: mandir means temple.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મંદિર (mandir) is Sanskrit mandira, "dwelling, camp, town, temple", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama (CDIAL 9852).

Your turn

Sort three heard words: bajār, ghar, mandir. Say only mandir from its meaning cue.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge English–Gujarati Dictionary: temple.

24.7 મંદિર — temple on the page

Read બજાર and ઘર. Now look:

મંદિર — mandir — temple

Your turn

How મંદિર is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Copy મંદિર, cover it, wait five seconds, then write it once more.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge English–Gujarati Dictionary: temple.

24.8 Three places in four skills

Say market, home, and temple from their meaning cues.

Your turn

Score four short checks separately: identify three heard words, say three from meaning, read three printed cards, and write one heard word. Reach full marks in each skill; repair only the failed part.

Before you move on

Sources: Gujarati Wiktionary word index and Cambridge English–Gujarati Dictionary: temple.

Chapter 25

Hand and Money Join the Map

Modes: 🚗 voice (2) ✓ pen (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first of 7 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can hear, say, read, and write five concrete Gujarati words, including hand and money.
> Hand and money enter meaning-first; one isolated ai-sign lesson unlocks પૈસા before the five-word checkpoint scores all four skills separately.

25.1 હાથ — hear hand first

Say home. Now listen twice: hāth means hand. Keep its long vowel and final puff distinct from ghar.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હાથ (hāth) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from hasta, "hand" (CDIAL 14024).

Your turn

Picture your hand when you hear hāth, then say hāth once from the meaning.

Before you move on

Source: Gujarati Wiktionary word index.

25.2 હાથ — hand on the page

Read ઘર, then look:

હાથ — hāth — hand

Your turn

How હાથ is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Look, cover, wait five seconds, and write હાથ once.

Before you move on

Source: Gujarati Wiktionary word index.

25.3 પૈસા — hear money first

Say hand. Now listen twice: paisā means money. Do not read the Gujarati shape yet; one vowel sign still needs its own tiny lesson.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પૈસા (paisā) goes back to padāṁśa*, “quarter part”, a form CDIAL reconstructs from pada, “quarter”, and aṁśa, “share” (CDIAL 7761). CDIAL thinks Gujarati probably took the word from Hindi paisā.

Your turn

Choose money or hand as you hear paisā and hāth. Then say paisā from the meaning cue.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge English–Gujarati Dictionary: money.

25.4 ૈ — one sign for ai

The attached sign ૈ carries the ai sound. It sits above a consonant; by itself here it is only a writing shape, not a word.

Your turn

How ૈ is written, stroke by stroke

Watch the model: make the lower high arc from left to right, lift, then add the second higher arc from left to right. Trace ૈ twice and copy it once.

Before you move on

Stroke-order source: t30apps Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice, fitted to the bundled Noto Sans Gujarati form documented in `data/scripts/gujarati.json`.

25.5 પૈસા — money on the page

Write ૈ, then read હાથ. Now look:

પૈસા — paisā — money

Your turn

How પૈસા is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Copy પૈસા, cover it, wait five seconds, and write it once more.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge English–Gujarati Dictionary: money.

25.6 Retrieve five concrete words

Recall the three-place checkpoint, then say hand and money.

Your turn

Hear all five in mixed order, say each from its meaning, read the five printed cards, then write the two words named aloud.

Before you move on

Sources: Gujarati Wiktionary word index, Cambridge: temple, and Cambridge: money.

25.7 Payoff — five words in four skills

Recall the three-place score, then say hand and money.

Your turn

1. Identify five heard words.
2. Produce five words from meaning cues.
3. Match five printed cards to meanings.
4. Write three heard words without a model.

Pass each skill separately. A strong score in one skill cannot replace a miss in another.

Before you move on

Chapter 26

City, School, and Road

Modes: 🚗 voice (3) ✓ pen (4) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first of 7 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can hear, say, read, and write city, school, and road in Gujarati.
> Each place enters through sound and meaning before familiar script carries reading and writing; the checkpoint scores all four skills separately.

26.1 શહેર — hear city first

Listen twice: shahar. It means city. Hold only the sound and meaning; the Gujarati spelling waits for the next small step.

Your turn

Picture a city when you hear shahar, then say shahar once from the English cue.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge: city.

26.2 શહેર — city on the page

Say shahar from city, then look: શહેર — shahar — city.

Your turn

How શહેર is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Trace શહેર once, then copy it once while saying shahar.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge: city.

26.3 શાળા — hear school first

Listen twice: shāḷā. It means school. Keep the two long ā sounds and the meaning together; ignore the printed form for now.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

શાળા (shāḷā) is a semi-tatsama: Sanskrit śālā, "shed, stable, house", borrowed after the old sound changes had run their course and then lightly reshaped (CDIAL 12414). CDIAL lists no Gujarati form there; Marathi sāḷ, "school", shows the inherited shape.

Your turn

Choose the school picture when you hear shāḷā, then say the word once.

Before you move on

26.4 શાળા — school on the page

Before looking below, write city in Gujarati from memory. Now check only that answer: શહેર. Then say shāḷā from school, and look: શાળા — shāḷā — school.

Your turn

How શાળા is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Study શાળા for five seconds, cover it, and write it once. Uncover and repair only the sign that differs.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge: school.

26.5 રસ્તો — hear road first

Listen twice: rasto. It means road. Keep the middle st together.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

રસ્તો (rasto) is a loan, usually traced to Persian rāsta, “straight; a road”.

Your turn

Picture a road when you hear rasto, then say rasto from the meaning.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge: road.

26.6 રસ્તો — road on the page

Say rasto from road, then look: રસ્તો — rasto — road.

Your turn

Copy રસ્તો once. Point to the virama under સ્, then read the whole word.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge: road.

26.7 Payoff — a three-word route

Say city, school, and road in Gujarati.

Your turn

Identify three heard words, say all three from meaning cues, match three printed cards, then write two words named aloud. Pass each skill separately.

Before you move on

Sources: Cambridge: city, school, and road.

Chapter 27

Village and Shop Complete Ten

Modes: 🎧 voice (2) ✓ pen (6) 🎧 Hands-free start: the first of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can hear, say, read, and write ten concrete Gujarati words, including village and shop.
> Village and shop enter meaning-first, then mix with the prior eight words before a non-compensatory four-skill payoff.

27.1 ગામ — hear village first

Recall shahar, city. Now listen twice: gām. It means village.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગામ (gām) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from grāma, "troop, village" (CDIAL 4368).

Your turn

Choose city or village as you hear shahar or gām, then say gām once.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge: village.

27.2 The three-word route returns at R1

Keep four scores. Each score needs 3/3; strength in one skill cannot replace a miss in another. Check and retry only a missed item.

Your turn

Listening — meaning from sound

Listen once: shāḷā — rasto — shahar. Record the listening score before any repair.

Speaking — sound from meaning

Say the three meaning cues without reading a Gujarati model. Record speaking separately.

Reading — a cold shuffled row

Read once before checking. Record the reading score on its own.

Writing — from meaning, with every model covered

Do not copy from the reading row. Record writing separately, then repair only a missed word.

Before you move on

Which four scores must stand separately? (Listening, speaking, reading, and writing.)
Sources: Cambridge: city, school, and road.

27.3 ગામ — village on the page

Say gām from village, then look: ગામ — gām — village.

Your turn

How ગામ is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Study ગામ for five seconds, hide it, and write it once. Check only after the word is complete.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge: village.

27.4 દુકાન — hear shop first

Listen twice: dukān. It means shop. Hear the short u before the long final ā.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દુકાન (dukān) is a loan from Arabic dukkān, “shop”, which reached Gujarati through Persian. Its Arabic root is d-k-n (Lane).

Your turn

Picture a shop when you hear dukān, then say dukān from the meaning.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge: shop.

27.5 દુકાન — shop on the page

Say dukān from shop, then look: દુકાન — dukān — shop.

Your turn

How દુકાન is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Copy દુકાન once. Point to the ુ under દ, then read the complete word.

Before you move on

Source: Cambridge: shop.

27.6 Retrieve the ten-word map

Recall the old five cards, then city, school, road, village, and shop.

Your turn

Hear ten cards in mixed order, say each from its meaning, read all ten, then write village and shop without looking.

Before you move on

Sources: Cambridge: village and shop.

27.7 Payoff — ten words in four skills

Name the first five words, then the five new map words.

Your turn

Identify ten heard words, produce ten words from meaning cues, match ten printed cards, and write four words named aloud. Pass listening, speaking, reading, and writing separately; one strong skill cannot compensate for another.

Before you move on

Sources: Cambridge: city, school, road, village, and shop.

27.8 School and road return at R2

Keep four scores. Each score needs 2/2; one skill cannot compensate for another. Check and retry only a missed item.

Your turn

Listening — meaning from sound

Listen once: rasto — shāḷā. Record the listening score before repair.

Speaking — sound from meaning

Say both meaning cues without reading a Gujarati model. Record speaking separately.

Reading — a cold reversed pair

Read once before checking. Record reading on its own.

Writing — from meaning, with every model covered

Do not copy from the reading pair. Record writing separately.

Before you move on

Which two words now have a second spaced return? (School and road.)
Sources: Cambridge: school and road.

Chapter 28

The Day and Its Times

Modes: voice (9) pen (5) Hands-free start: the first 5 of 14 lessons.

By the end of this chapter: I can hear and say eight everyday Gujarati time words, and read and write two of them.

Four parts of a day, the day, the month, today, and now enter meaning-first by ear; two of them reach the page with signs taught long before, the chapter closes on four separately scored skills, and one short return re-scores all eight a lesson later.

28.1 સવાર — hear morning first

Listen twice: savār. It means morning. Hold the sound and the meaning together; the Gujarati spelling waits for a later lesson in this chapter.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સવાર (savār) is a tadbhava, a word inherited and reshaped by sound change. It comes from savāra*, "in good time", a form CDIAL reconstructs from its descendants (CDIAL 13290). CDIAL builds it from sa-, "with", and vāra, "time, turn".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "savār"

- "savār" when you picture early light, and nothing when you picture a dark sky

Before you move on

What part of the day is savār? (Morning.)
Source: Cambridge: morning.

28.2 બપોર — hear midday first

Say savār from morning. Now listen twice: bapor. It means midday, the middle hours that English also calls the afternoon.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બપોર (bapor) is usually explained as "two watches": a form of the word for two, and pahor, the old watch of about three hours. CDIAL lists Gujarati pahor under Sanskrit prahara, "a watch", and asks whether the Sanskrit word is itself a reshaping of Persian pahra, "watch" (CDIAL 8900).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "bapor"
- "savār" or "bapor" as you hear the English cue morning or midday

Before you move on

Which of the two comes first in a day? (Savār — morning.)
Source: Cambridge: afternoon.

28.3 સાંજ — hear evening first

Say savār, then bapor. Now listen twice: sānj. It means evening. The nasal in the middle is light — the tongue never quite closes.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સાંજ (sānj) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from saṁdhyā, "twilight" (CDIAL 12918).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "sānj"
- the three words in day order — savār, bapor, sānj

Before you move on

What does sānj mean? (Evening.)
Source: Cambridge: evening.

28.4 રાત — hear night first

Say bapor, then sānj. Now listen twice: rāt. It means night. Three sounds, one beat.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

રાત (rāt) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from rātrī, "night" (CDIAL 10702).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "rāt"
- whichever of bapor, sānj, rāt answers the English cue you hear

Before you move on

What does rāt mean? (Night.)
Source: Cambridge: night.

28.5 The day in four parts, by ear

Nothing new arrives here. Say the first part of the day, then the last, before any list is read to you.

Your turn

Keep two scores. Listening goes from sound to meaning; speaking goes from meaning to sound. A strong score in one cannot cover a miss in the other.

Before you move on

Which two of the four have you not yet seen written? (All four — the writing of rāt begins in the next lesson, with signs you already know.)
Sources: Cambridge: morning, afternoon, evening, and night.

28.6 Rāt reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for night.

Your turn

Uncover રાત once. Nothing in it is new: ર was taught in the courtesy chapter, the ા stroke in the very first one, and ત beside it. Name the three parts aloud in order, then read the whole word once.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy રાત once, left to right. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Before you move on

How many signs make rāt, and were any of them new today?
(Three, and none was new.)
Source: Cambridge: night.

28.7 દિવસ — hear day first

Say the word for night, and recall the three signs that wrote it. Now listen twice: divas. It means day — the whole span that savār, bapor, sānj, and rāt divide between them.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દિવસ (divas) goes back to Sanskrit divasa, "day" (CDIAL 6333). CDIAL lists it beside Gujarati dīs, the worn-down form that sound change produced; divas keeps the full Sanskrit shape.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "divas"
- "divas" for the whole span, then "savār" for its first part

Before you move on

Is divas a part of the day or the whole of it? (The whole of it.) Source: Cambridge: day.

28.8 મહિનો — hear month

Say the word for day, and say how many signs wrote rāt. Now listen twice: mahino. It means month — the span that holds many a divas.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મહિનો (mahino) is a loan, usually traced to Persian māhīna, "monthly". It is built on Persian māh, "moon, month".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "mahino"
- "divas" for the smaller span, then "mahino" for the larger one

Before you move on

What does mahino mean? (Month.)
Source: Cambridge: month.

28.9 આજ — hear today first

Say the word for day, then the word for month. Now listen twice: āj. It means today — this divas, the one you are standing in. Two sounds only.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

આજ (āj) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from adya, "today" (CDIAL 242).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "āj"
- "divas" for any day, then "āj" for this one

Before you move on

What does āj mean? (Today.)
Source: Cambridge: today.

28.10 Āj reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say today, then day, in Gujarati.

Your turn

Uncover આજ once. Two signs, both old friends: the standalone આ that opens āvjo, and the જ of the doorway nine. Name them in order, then read the word once.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy આજ once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Before you move on

Which two signs write āj, and where had you met each before? (આ from āvjo, and જ from the doorway nine.)
Source: Cambridge: today.

28.11 અત્યારે — hear now

Say today, name the two signs that write it, then say month.
Now listen twice: atyāre. It means now.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of અત્યારે (atyāre) is not settled. CDIAL, searched by form and by meaning, has no entry for it.

Your turn

Three widths of time, narrowing:

- mahino — many days together
- āj — this one whole day
- atyāre — this moment inside it

Say these aloud:

- "atyāre"
- the three in narrowing order — mahino, āj, atyāre

Before you move on

What does atyāre mean? (Now.)
Source: Cambridge: now.

28.12 Payoff — eight time words in four skills

Say the first part of a day, then the word for this moment. Keep four scores below. A strong score in one skill cannot cover a miss in another.

Your turn

Listening — meaning from sound. Eight items, shuffled, once through.

Speaking — sound from meaning. Six items from English cues, no Gujarati model in view.

Reading — a cold pair. Only the two words this chapter put on the page are read; the other six stay oral until a later chapter writes them.

Writing — from meaning, with every model covered

Study the two written words for five seconds, cover every model, and write them from meaning. Record writing on its own, then repair only a missed word.

Before you move on

How many of the eight can you say, and how many can you write? (Eight by ear, two by hand — and the six waiting are a later chapter's work.)
Sources: Cambridge: morning, day, today, and now.

28.13 The eight time words return at R1

Nothing new arrives here. Say the word for now before any list is read to you, then recall which four scores the payoff kept apart.

Your turn

Keep the same four scores the payoff kept. Listening runs sound to meaning; speaking runs meaning to sound.

Writing — from meaning, with every model covered

Cover every Gujarati model and write the two words from sound alone. Record writing on its own; a strong listening score cannot cover a miss here.

Before you move on

How far after the payoff did this return come? (One lesson — the first spacing window.)
Sources: Cambridge: month and now.

28.14 The map words return at a third window

> The five newest place words have not been asked for since the chapter that taught them. Before any list is read, say village and shop in Gujarati.

Your turn

Listening — meaning from sound. Five items, shuffled, once through.

Speaking — sound from meaning. Three items from English cues alone.

Keep the scores apart, exactly as the payoffs that first taught these words did.

Writing — from meaning, with every model covered

Cover every Gujarati model and write the two words from meaning. Record writing on its own, then repair only a missed word.

Before you move on

Why does this return come here rather than beside the words that taught it? (Because retrieval at a distance is what makes the words durable, and a return next door would have measured nothing.)
Sources: Cambridge: city, school, road, and village.

Chapter 29

The Time Words Reach the Page

Modes: ✓ pen (8) Hands-free start: none of the 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can read and write the six Gujarati time words I could previously only hear and say.
> Six words that chapter 28 left oral reach the page one at a time, each spelled entirely from signs taught before chapter 8, then a payoff scores reading, speaking, and model-free writing separately and an R1 return writes the other three from sound.

29.1 Savār reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for morning.

Your turn

Uncover સવાર once. Four pieces, none of them new: સ and the ા stroke both come from the greeting lesson, and વ and ર from the courtesy chapter after it. Name the four pieces aloud in order, then read the whole word once.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy સવાર once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Before you move on

Which of the four signs in savār was taught most recently? (ર, in the courtesy chapter — the other three all come out of the greeting.) Source: Cambridge: morning.

29.2 Bapor reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for midday.

Your turn

Uncover બપોર once. બ and પ were taught together among the forms that come before your name, the ો sign among the doorway nine, and ર you wrote yesterday inside savār. Name the four pieces aloud in order, then read the whole word once.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy બપોર once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Before you move on

Which two signs in bapor were taught in the same lesson pair? (બ and પ, side by side among the forms that come before your name.) Source: Cambridge: midday.

29.3 Sānj reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for evening.

Your turn

Uncover સાંજ once. સ and the ા stroke opened savār two lessons ago; the dot above is the ં nasal mark from the doorway nine, and જ is the doorway consonant that also ends āj. Name the four pieces aloud in order, then read the whole word once.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy સાંજ once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Before you move on

Where in sānj does the nasal live — at the end, or in the middle? (In the middle, on the ā.)
Source: Cambridge: evening.

29.4 Divas reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for day.

Your turn

Uncover દિવસ once. Watch the second piece. The િ sign is written to the LEFT of દ but is read AFTER it, exactly as the forms before your name taught; વ and સ then follow in order. Name the four pieces aloud in order, then read the whole word once.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy દિવસ once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Before you move on

The િ sits before દ on the page. Which is said first? (દ — the sign is written first and read second.)
Source: Cambridge: day.

29.5 Mahino reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for month.

Your turn

Uncover મહિનો once. મ, હ and ન all come out of the greeting, the િ you used yesterday in divas, and the ો sign from bapor. Name the five pieces aloud in order, then read the whole word once.

Writing — delayed copy, model covered

Look, cover the model, and write મહિનો once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Before you move on

Divas and mahino share one vowel sign. Which? (The િ — left-written, right-read, in both.)
Source: Cambridge: month.

29.6 Atyāre reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for now.

Your turn

Uncover અત્યારે once. The hard part is in the middle: ત carries the ્ stroke that deletes its own vowel and glues it to ય, which is exactly the join you first met in namaste. Around it stand અ, the ા stroke, ર, and the ે sign. Name the six pieces aloud in order, then read the whole word once.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy અત્યારે once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Before you move on

Which earlier word taught you the ્ join used here? (નમસ્તે — the greeting the book opens with.)
Source: Cambridge: now.

29.7 All eight time words, now on the page

Nothing new arrives here. Say morning and now in Gujarati before any Gujarati is uncovered.

Your turn

Two of the four scores are kept here: reading runs page to meaning, speaking runs meaning to sound.

Writing — delayed copy, every model covered

Write the three from memory, not from a model. Record writing on its own; a 6/6 in reading cannot cover a miss here.

Before you move on

How many of the eight time words can you now write? (All eight — rāt and āj since the chapter that taught them by ear, and these six today.)
Sources: morning, month, and now.

29.8 The written time words return at R1

Nothing new arrives here. Say the word for now before anything is read to you.

Your turn

Listening runs sound to meaning, exactly as it did before any of these six reached the page.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

These are the three the payoff did not ask for, so between the two lessons all six have been written without a model.

Before you move on

How far after the payoff did this return come? (One lesson — the first spacing window.)
Sources: evening, and month.

Chapter 30

Fifth Return: The Core Verbs

Modes: ✓ pen (9) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 9 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can still recognise and write the numbers and core verbs I met a hundred lessons ago.
> Eight zero-new-atom lessons place the numbers and the fifteen core verbs 98 to 104 positions after their introductions, scoring recognition and model-free writing separately in each.

30.1 ek be traṇ chār pā̃ch returns at R4

> Before anything is uncovered: count from one to five in Gujarati.

Your turn

This lesson sits 104 positions after the material it asks for, which is inside the fourth spacing window rather than near it. Nothing new is taught here.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Score recognition and writing separately; each needs full marks on its own.

Before you move on

Why does Gujarati be start with a b where Sanskrit had dve, and what happened to the r of traṇ? (The dv- cluster collapsed to bb- and then b-; the r was restored later by learned borrowing, not inherited.)

30.2 hovũ — javũ returns at R4

Before anything is uncovered: say the Gujarati for to be and for to go.

Your turn

This lesson sits 103 positions after the material it asks for, which is inside the fourth spacing window rather than near it. Nothing new is taught here.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Score recognition and writing separately; each needs full marks on its own.

Before you move on

Every Gujarati verb name ends the same way. Which ending, and what gender is it? (-વું, and it is neuter — the same nasalized -ũ you hear on moḍhũ.)

30.3 āvvũ — khāvũ returns at R4

Before anything is uncovered: say the Gujarati for to come and for to eat.

Your turn

This lesson sits 103 positions after the material it asks for, which is inside the fourth spacing window rather than near it. Nothing new is taught here.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Score recognition and writing separately; each needs full marks on its own.

Before you move on

One of these two verbs has no English cousin at all. Which, and how far does its family reach? (khāvũ — the family reaches its Indian sisters and stops there.)

30.4 jovũ — jāṇvũ returns at R4

Before anything is uncovered: say the Gujarati for to see, then for to go, and notice how little separates them.

Your turn

This lesson sits 102 positions after the material it asks for, which is inside the fourth spacing window rather than near it. Nothing new is taught here.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Score recognition and writing separately; each needs full marks on its own.

Before you move on

Exactly what separates javũ from jovũ on the page? (One vowel sign — the ો that jovũ carries and javũ does not.)

30.5 vichārvũ — samajvũ returns at R4

Before anything is uncovered: say the Gujarati for to think and for to understand.

Your turn

This lesson sits 101 positions after the material it asks for, which is inside the fourth spacing window rather than near it. Nothing new is taught here.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Score recognition and writing separately; each needs full marks on its own.

Before you move on

Which of these two verbs is built on a root that meant to wake up? (samajvũ — understanding as waking.)

30.6 vā̃chvũ — lakhvũ returns at R4

Before anything is uncovered: say the Gujarati for to read and for to write.

Your turn

This lesson sits 100 positions after the material it asks for, which is inside the fourth spacing window rather than near it. Nothing new is taught here.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Score recognition and writing separately; each needs full marks on its own.

Before you move on

Where does the nasal mark sit in vā̃chvũ, and what did the root once mean? (In the middle, on the ā; the root meant to make something speak.)

30.7 levũ — pūchhvũ returns at R4

Before anything is uncovered: say the Gujarati for to take and for to ask.

Your turn

This lesson sits 99 positions after the material it asks for, which is inside the fourth spacing window rather than near it. Nothing new is taught here.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Score recognition and writing separately; each needs full marks on its own.

Before you move on

English kept the cousin of pūchhvũ for one narrow use. Which? (Praying — asking, but only of a god.)

30.8 Two windows close at once

Nothing new arrives here. Say the Gujarati for village and for shop, then say how many time words you can now write.

Your turn

The village and the shop were introduced around position 160 and have not been asked for since; this is more than thirty positions later, which is the third spacing window.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

All six time words were written for the first time ten lessons ago. This is their second window, and every model stays covered.

Before you move on

Which of the six needed a conjunct join? (અત્યારે — the ત્ય.)

30.9 madad karvī — gamvũ — pāṇī returns at R4

Before anything is uncovered: say the Gujarati for to help, for to like, and for water.

Your turn

This lesson sits 98 positions after the material it asks for, which is inside the fourth spacing window rather than near it. Nothing new is taught here.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Score recognition and writing separately; each needs full marks on its own.

Before you move on

Two rules hide in this row. Why is karvī not karvũ, and who is the subject of gamvũ? (The ending agrees with the feminine madad; and gamvũ will not take you as its subject — the thing liked is.)

Chapter 31

The Table Is Set

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) ✓ pen (2) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 6 of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can hear and say five everyday Gujarati food words, and read and write one of them.
> Five food words enter meaning-first by ear, one lesson each; an oral checkpoint scores listening and speaking apart, rice reaches the page with signs taught before chapter 8, and an R1 return carries the chapter-16 table back at its fourth spacing window.

31.1 ભાત — hear rice

Say the Gujarati word for the flatbread you met in the water-and-tea chapter. Now listen twice: bhāt. It means rice — cooked rice, the base of the plate, not the raw grain.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ભાત (bhāt) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from bhakta, "meal, food; boiled rice" (CDIAL 9331).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "bhāt"
- "bhāt" twice, once slowly and once at speed

Before you move on

What does bhāt mean? (Rice.)
Source: Cambridge: rice.

31.2 દાળ — hear lentils

Say the word for rice. Now listen twice: dāḷ. It means lentils — cooked lentils, the other half of the pair Gujaratis name in one breath as dāḷ-bhāt.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દાળ (dāḷ) is a tadbhava of Sanskrit dāla, "a kind of grain, split peas" (CDIAL 6309). CDIAL asks whether this is the same word as its dāla*, "splitting".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "dāḷ"
- "bhāt" for rice, then "dāḷ" for lentils

Before you move on

What does dāḷ mean? (Lentils.)
Source: Cambridge: lentils.

31.3 શાક — hear vegetable

Say the pair name for lentils and rice. Now listen twice: shāk. It means vegetable — one vegetable, and equally the cooked dish made from it.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

શાક (shāk) is Sanskrit śāka, "potherb, vegetable", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama (CDIAL 12370).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "shāk"
- "dāḷ" for lentils, then "shāk" for vegetable

Before you move on

What does shāk mean? (Vegetable.)
Source: Cambridge: vegetable.

31.4 તેલ — hear oil

Say the words for vegetable and for lentils. Now listen twice: tel. It means oil — cooking oil, the thing the shāk is cooked in.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તેલ (tel) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from taila, "sesamum oil, oil" (CDIAL 5958). It is built on tila, "sesame".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "tel"
- "shāk" for vegetable, then "tel" for oil

Before you move on

What does tel mean? (Oil.)
Source: Cambridge: oil.

31.5 કેરી — hear mango

Say the word for oil, then the word for flatbread. Now listen twice: kerī. It means mango — the fruit of the hot months, and note it ends in -ī, exactly like roṭlī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of કેરી (kerī) is not settled. CDIAL, searched by form and by meaning, has no entry for it; the older word for the mango, āmra, gave Gujarati ām and āmbo instead (CDIAL 1268).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "kerī"
- "tel" for oil, then "kerī" for mango

Before you move on

What does kerī mean? (Mango.)
Source: Cambridge: mango.

31.6 Five things on one plate, by ear

Nothing new arrives here. Say the first and the last word of the chapter before any list is read to you.

Your turn

Keep two scores. Listening goes from sound to meaning; speaking goes from meaning to sound. A strong score in one cannot cover a miss in the other. The third row is not new material — it is the eight time words of the day-and-its-times chapter, returning about thirty lessons on at their third spacing window.

Before you move on

Which two of the five would a Gujarati name in one breath? (dāḷ and bhāt.)
Sources: rice, lentil, vegetable, and mango.

31.7 Bhāt reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for rice.

Your turn

Uncover ભાત once. Three pieces, none new: ભ from the courtesy chapter, the ા stroke from the greeting, and ત beside it. Name the pieces aloud in order, then read the whole word once. This is the only word of the chapter the hand is asked for; the other four stay in the ear for now, which is the gloss-first order rather than an omission.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy ભાત once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Before you move on

How many signs make bhāt, and was any of them new today?
(Three, and none was new.)
Source: Cambridge: rice.

31.8 The plate returns at R1, and the drinks at R4

Nothing new arrives here. Say the words for rice and for mango before anything is read to you.

Your turn

Listening runs sound to meaning; speaking runs meaning to sound, exactly as they did one lesson ago.

Your turn — the distant band, the water, tea, milk, and bread you asked for long ago

These three were introduced around position 100 and have not been asked for since. At this position they are more than a hundred lessons old, which is the fourth spacing window rather than the third.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Record writing on its own; a 5/5 in listening cannot cover a miss here.

Before you move on

How far after the checkpoint did this return come? (Two lessons — inside the first spacing window.)
Sources: rice, oil, tea, and milk.

Chapter 32

Inside the House

Modes: voice (6) pen (2) Hands-free start: the first 6 of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can hear and say five everyday Gujarati household words, and read and write one of them.
> Five household words enter meaning-first by ear, one lesson each; an oral checkpoint scores listening and speaking apart, window reaches the page with signs taught before chapter 8, and an R1 return carries the chapter-17 family words back at their fourth spacing window.

32.1 બારણું — hear door

Say the Gujarati word for home, from the first three-place map. Now listen twice: bārṇũ. It means door — the one you open to come in, and listen to that ending: the nasalized -ũ that marks a neuter word.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બારણું (bārṇũ) is a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it, beside Gujarati bār, "door", under Sanskrit dvāra, "door" (CDIAL 6663).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "bārṇũ"
- "bārṇũ" twice, once slowly and once at speed

Before you move on

What does bārṇũ mean? (Door.)
Source: Cambridge: door.

32.2 બારી — hear window

Say the word for door. Now listen twice: bārī. It means window — the same opening in a wall, only smaller, and one sound away from bārṇũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બારી (bārī) is a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it under Sanskrit dvāra, "door", which also had a feminine dvārī (CDIAL 6663): a window is a small door.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "bārī"
- "bārṇũ" for door, then "bārī" for window

Before you move on

What does bārī mean? (Window.)
Source: Cambridge: window.

32.3 ખુરશી — hear chair

Say the words for door and for window. Now listen twice: khurshī. It means chair — the first thing in this chapter that stands inside the room rather than in its wall.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખુરશી (khurshī) is a loan from Arabic kursī, "chair, throne", which reached Gujarati through Persian. Its Arabic root is k-r-s (Lane).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "khurshī"
- "bārī" for window, then "khurshī" for chair

Before you move on

What does khurshī mean? (Chair.)
Source: Cambridge: chair.

32.4 ચાવી — hear key

Say the word for door. Now listen twice: chāvī. It means key — the thing the bārṇũ is opened with.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ચાવી (chāvī) is a loan, usually traced to Portuguese chave, "key".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "chāvī"
- "khurshī" for chair, then "chāvī" for key

Before you move on

What does chāvī mean? (Key.)
Source: Cambridge: key.

32.5 દીવો — hear lamp

Say the words for key and for chair. Now listen twice: dīvo. It means lamp — the one lit at sānj, and note it ends in -o, not the neuter -ũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દીવો (dīvo) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from dīpa, "lamp" (CDIAL 6348).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "dīvo"
- "chāvī" for key, then "dīvo" for lamp

Before you move on

What does dīvo mean? (Lamp.)
Source: Cambridge: lamp.

32.6 Five things in one house, by ear

Nothing new arrives here. Say the first and the last word of the chapter before any list is read to you.

Your turn

Keep two scores. Listening goes from sound to meaning; speaking goes from meaning to sound. A strong score in one cannot cover a miss in the other. The third row is not new material — it is the five food words of the previous chapter, returning at their second spacing window.

Before you move on

Which two of the five are openings in a wall? (bārṇũ and bārī.)
Sources: door, window, chair, and lamp.

32.7 Bārī reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for window.

Your turn

Uncover બારી once. Four pieces, none new: બ from the forms that come before your name, the ા stroke from the greeting, ર from the courtesy chapter, and the ી sign from the doorway nine. Name the pieces aloud in order, then read the whole word once. This is the only word of the chapter the hand is asked for; the other four stay in the ear for now, which is the gloss-first order rather than an omission.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy બારી once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Your turn — the eight time words at their third window

The lamp above is lit at sānj, so the time words are already in the room. All eight were first written twenty-five and more positions ago; this is their third spacing window, and this row is cold reading, not recall from a list.

Before you move on

Which of the four signs in bārī came from the doorway nine? (The ી — the long-i sign.)
Source: Cambridge: window.

32.8 The house returns at R1, and the family at R4

Nothing new arrives here. Say the words for door and for lamp before anything is read to you.

Your turn

Listening runs sound to meaning; speaking runs meaning to sound, exactly as they did one lesson ago.

Your turn — the distant band, the friend and the family

A house holds people as well as furniture. These four were introduced around position 105 and have not been asked for since; at this position they are more than a hundred lessons old, which is the fourth spacing window rather than the third.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Record writing on its own; a 5/5 in listening cannot cover a miss here.

Rice reached the page nine lessons ago; this is its second window.

Before you move on

Which word in the band names the whole group rather than one person? (kuṭumb — the family.)
Sources: door, key, family, and sister.

Chapter 33

Sun, Sky, and River

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) ✓ pen (2) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 6 of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can hear and say five everyday Gujarati outdoor words, and read and write one of them.
> Five outdoor words enter meaning-first by ear, one lesson each; an oral checkpoint scores listening and speaking apart, river reaches the page with signs taught before chapter 8, and an R1 return carries the chapter-18 face words back at their fourth spacing window.

33.1 સૂરજ — hear sun

Say the Gujarati words for morning and for night. Now listen twice: sūraj. It means sun — the thing whose position decides whether it is savār, bapor, or sānj.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સૂરજ (sūraj) is usually traced to Sanskrit sūrya, "sun". CDIAL's entry for the word lists no Gujarati form (CDIAL 13574).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "sūraj"
- "sūraj" twice, once slowly and once at speed

Before you move on

What does sūraj mean? (Sun.)
Source: Cambridge: sun.

33.2 ચંદ્ર — hear moon

Say the word for sun. Now listen twice: chandra. It means moon — the one you see at rāt, and listen to the dr at its end pushed out as one sound.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ચંદ્ર (chandra) is Sanskrit candra, "shining; moon", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama (CDIAL 4661). CDIAL lists the inherited form as Gujarati cāṁd.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "chandra"
- "sūraj" for sun, then "chandra" for moon

Before you move on

What does chandra mean? (Moon.)
Source: Cambridge: moon.

33.3 આકાશ — hear sky

Say the words for sun and for moon. Now listen twice: ākāsh. It means sky — the thing that holds both the sūraj and the chandra.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

આકાશ (ākāsh) is Sanskrit ākāśa, "sky", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama (CDIAL 1008).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "ākāsh"
- "chandra" for moon, then "ākāsh" for sky

Before you move on

What does ākāsh mean? (Sky.)
Source: Cambridge: sky.

33.4 વરસાદ — hear rain

Say the word for sky. Now listen twice: varsād. It means rain — the one thing in this chapter that the ākāsh does rather than holds.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

CDIAL lists વરસાદ (varsād) in the form barsād, "the rainy season", under Sanskrit varṣārātri, "the rainy season", or else a blend of it with varṣartu, "the season of rain" (CDIAL 11398). Its first part matches the Gujarati verb varasvũ, "to rain", which CDIAL lists under Sanskrit varṣati, "it rains" (CDIAL 11394).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "varsād"
- "ākāsh" for sky, then "varsād" for rain

Before you move on

What does varsād mean? (Rain.)
Source: Cambridge: rain.

33.5 નદી — hear river

Say the words for rain and for water. Now listen twice: nadī. It means river — where the varsād ends up, and it is made of pāṇī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

નદી (nadī) is Sanskrit nadī, "river", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama (CDIAL 6943).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "nadī"
- "varsād" for rain, then "nadī" for river

Before you move on

What does nadī mean? (River.)

33.6 Five things outdoors, by ear

Nothing new arrives here. Say the first and the last word of the chapter before any list is read to you.

Your turn

Keep two scores. Listening goes from sound to meaning; speaking goes from meaning to sound. A strong score in one cannot cover a miss in the other. The third row is not new material — it is the five household words of the previous chapter, returning at their second spacing window.

Before you move on

Which of the five names something that happens rather than something that is there? (varsād — the rain.)
Sources: sun, moon, sky, and rain.

33.7 Nadī reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for river.

Your turn

Uncover નદી once. Three pieces, none new: ન and દ from chapters 1 and 2, and the ી sign on the last. Notice that ન carries no vowel sign at all — that is the inherent a the very first lesson gave you for free. Name the pieces aloud in order, then read the whole word once. This is the only word of the chapter the hand is asked for; the other four stay in the ear for now, which is the gloss-first order rather than an omission.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy નદી once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Before you move on

Why does the first sign of nadī need no vowel mark? (Because a bare consonant already carries the inherent a.)

33.8 The sky returns at R1, and the face at R4

Nothing new arrives here. Say the words for sun and for river before anything is read to you.

Your turn

Listening runs sound to meaning; speaking runs meaning to sound, exactly as they did one lesson ago.

Your turn — the distant band, the eye, ear, mouth, and nose

You look at the ākāsh with an āṅkh. These four were introduced around position 110 and have not been asked for since; at this position they are more than a hundred lessons old, which is the fourth spacing window.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Record writing on its own; a 5/5 in listening cannot cover a miss here.

You look at the ākāsh through a bārī. It reached the page nine lessons ago; this is its second window.

Before you move on

Which of the four face words carries the neuter ending? (moḍhũ — the nasalized -ũ.)
Sources: river, sky, eye, and nose.

Chapter 34

People, Paper, and a Book

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) ✓ pen (2) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 6 of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can hear and say five everyday Gujarati words for people and the things they read, and read and write one of them.
> Five words for people and the things they read enter meaning-first by ear, one lesson each; an oral checkpoint scores listening and speaking apart, paper reaches the page with signs taught before chapter 8, and an R1 return carries the chapter-24 three-place map back at its fourth spacing window.

34.1 છોકરો — hear boy

Say the Gujarati words for brother and for sister. Now listen twice: chhokro. It means boy — younger than the bhāī you already know, and ending in the masculine -o.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

છોકરો (chhokro) is a tadbhava. CDIAL reconstructs chokara*, "boy", and lists the Gujarati word under its variant chokkara* (CDIAL 5070).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "chhokro"
- "chhokro" twice, once slowly and once at speed

Before you move on

What does chhokro mean? (Boy.)
Source: Cambridge: boy.

34.2 છોકરી — hear girl

Say the word for boy. Now listen twice: chhokrī. It means girl — the pair of chhokro, and this time the -o and -ī endings really do mark gender.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

છોકરી (chhokrī) is the feminine of chhokro, "boy". CDIAL lists chhokro under a reconstructed chokkara*, a variant of chokara*, "boy" (CDIAL 5070).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "chhokrī"
- "chhokro" for boy, then "chhokrī" for girl

Before you move on

What does chhokrī mean? (Girl.)
Source: Cambridge: girl.

34.3 માણસ — hear person

Say the words for boy and for girl. Now listen twice: māṇas. It means person — anybody at all, the word to use when boy or girl is not the question.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

માણસ (māṇas) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from mānuṣa, "human; man"

(CDIAL 10049).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "māṇas"
- "chhokrī" for girl, then "māṇas" for person

Before you move on

What does māṇas mean? (Person.)
Source: Cambridge: person.

34.4 પુસ્તક — hear book

Say the Gujarati verb for to read. Now listen twice: pustak. It means book — the thing a māṇas reads, and it carries the same st join as namaste.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પુસ્તક (pustak) is Sanskrit pustaka, "book", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama. CDIAL traces the Sanskrit word to Iranian, comparing Persian pōst, "skin", and lists the inherited Gujarati pothī, "book", from the same source (CDIAL 8413).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "pustak"
- "māṇas" for person, then "pustak" for book

Before you move on

What does pustak mean? (Book.)
Source: Cambridge: book.

34.5 કાગળ — hear paper

Say the words for book and for person. Now listen twice: kāgaḷ. It means paper — what a pustak is made of, ending on the curled-back ḷ you also hear in dāḷ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કાગળ (kāgaḷ) is a loan, usually traced to Persian kāghaz, "paper". Gujarati ends it in ḷ.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "kāgaḷ"
- "pustak" for book, then "kāgaḷ" for paper

Before you move on

What does kāgaḷ mean? (Paper.)
Source: Cambridge: paper.

34.6 Five people and things, by ear

Nothing new arrives here. Say the first and the last word of the chapter before any list is read to you.

Your turn

Keep two scores. Listening goes from sound to meaning; speaking goes from meaning to sound. A strong score in one cannot cover a miss in the other. The third row is not new material — it is two older bands at once: the outdoor words of the previous chapter at their second spacing window, and the food words two chapters before that at their third.

Before you move on

Which of the five would you use for a person whose age you do not know? (māṇas.)

Sources: boy, girl, person, and book.

34.7 Kāgaḷ reaches the page

Before anything is uncovered, say the Gujarati word for paper.

Your turn

Uncover કાગળ once. Four pieces, none new: ક from the doorway nine, the ા stroke from the greeting, and ગ and the curled ળ from the forms taught before the verbs. Watch ગ and ળ side by side; they are the two most easily confused shapes here. Name the pieces aloud in order, then read the whole word once. This is the only word of the chapter the hand is asked for; the other four stay in the ear for now, which is the gloss-first order rather than an omission.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy કાગળ once. Repair one shape if it needs it; do not start a row.

Your turn — the first map at its fourth window

The first three-place map was read and written more than eighty positions ago, which is its fourth spacing window; the river reached the page eight lessons ago, which is its second. Both rows here are cold reading.

Before you move on

Which two signs in kāgaḷ are the easiest to confuse, and how do you tell them apart? (ગ and ળ — one opens to the right, the other curls back on itself.)
Source: Cambridge: paper.

34.8 The people return at R1, and the first map at R4

Nothing new arrives here. Say the words for boy and for paper before anything is read to you.

Your turn

Listening runs sound to meaning; speaking runs meaning to sound, exactly as they did one lesson ago.

Your turn — the distant band, the first map, and the house

A māṇas goes to the bajār, comes back to the ghar, and opens its bārṇũ. The first three were introduced around position 136 and are asked for here more than eighty lessons later, which is the fourth spacing window; the four house words are at their third.

Writing — from sound, every model covered

Record writing on its own; a 5/5 in listening cannot cover a miss here.

A māṇas carries paisā in a hāth. Both reached the page more than eighty positions ago, which is the fourth spacing window.

Before you move on

How far after the checkpoint did this return come? (Two lessons — inside the first spacing window.)
Sources: paper, person, market, and temple.

Chapter 35

The Word for Not, and the Word for Sorry

Modes: voice (4) eyes (1) pen (1) Hands-free start: the first 2 of 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say that something is not so, tell someone I did not understand, and apologise or get a stranger's attention.
> The repair kit. Gujarati negates a sentence by swapping chhe for nathi rather than adding a word, and that one swap unlocks the sentence a beginner needs most – samajto nathi, 'I do not understand'. The chapter spends the only new letter in this whole run, pha, and spends it on maaf karo, which both apologises and stops a stranger to ask.

35.1 નથી (nathī) — is not

Two things you have had since the first chapters. Say the Gujarati for yes and for no. Then say the little word that means is.

- Recall: hā, nā, and chhe

You can agree and you can refuse. What you cannot yet do is say that something is not the case — and until you can, you cannot say you did not understand.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Gujarati does not negate છે by putting a word in front of it. It swaps the whole word out:

છે — is · નથી — is not

That is the entire rule, and it is a rule about one word rather than about sentences: wherever chhe stands, nathī can stand instead.
The two halves are still visible inside it. ન is the old na, "not". The -થી is what is left of અસ્તિ (asti), "is" — the same ancient verb that comes down into English as is and into Latin as est. So nathī is literally not-is, two words that fused so long ago that Gujarati now treats them as one.
CDIAL lists નથી (nathī) under Sanskrit nāsti, "is not", which is na and asti (CDIAL 7091).

Your turn

- Say it: chhe — then nathī. One swap, nothing added.
- Contrast: chhe / nathī, twice, until the pair is automatic.
- Say it: nathī alone, as a flat answer. It is a whole reply.

Before you move on

How does Gujarati say is not? (નથી — it replaces chhe rather than joining it.) What two old words are hiding inside it? (na, "not", and asti, "is".) Next: the sentence a learner needs more than any other.

35.2 સમજતો નથી (samajto nathī) — I do not understand

One lesson back: the word that replaces chhe. And from the verb chapter, long before this one: the verb to understand.

- Recall: nathī, and samajvũ

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Put the verb into the form that describes what you are doing, and follow it with the negator:

સમજતો નથી — samajto nathī — "(I) am not understanding"

Gujarati leaves out the હું here, the way English leaves out the subject of don't know. The sentence is complete without it.
One thing to know before you say it. The -તો ending is the masculine form. A woman says સમજતી નથી (samajtī nathī), with -તી. Gujarati marks the speaker's own gender on this verb, so the sentence you use is the one that matches you — the same choice the track's gender chapter set up, arriving now on a sentence you will say every day.
Both words are inherited. CDIAL lists samajvũ under Sanskrit saṁbudhyate, "wakes up, understands" (CDIAL 12959), and nathī under nāsti, "is not" (CDIAL 7091).

Why it's said this way

This is the repair sentence. When a conversation runs ahead of you, this is what buys you the next attempt — and a beginner who cannot say it has to leave the conversation instead. It is worth more than any noun in this book.

Your turn

- Say it: samajto nathī — or samajtī nathī, whichever is yours.
- Say it: it slowly, then at speed. Speed is the point; it has to arrive fast.
- Contrast: nathī alone, then the whole sentence.

Before you move on

Say that you do not understand, in the form that matches you. Which letter changes between the two forms, and what does it mark? (-તો against -તી — the speaker's own gender.)

35.3 ફ — the consonant pha

- Read it: પ, then મ

Both are already yours. Today adds one shape, and it is the only new letter in this whole run of chapters — everything else ahead is spelled with signs you have had for a long time.

Script — meet one form

Keep ફ visible beside પ. They are relatives and they are not the same: pa is the plain sound, pha is the same sound with a push of breath behind it. The shape says so too — ફ carries an extra stroke that પ does not.

Set them side by side once and look at the difference rather than at the whole:

પ — pa · ફ — pha

Writing — notice and trace

How ફ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace ફ once, then trace it once in the air. Say pha with the breath audible as your finger finishes.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Keep the model in view and copy ફ once. Compare it against પ beside it and repair only the stroke that separates them. Do not start a row.

Before you move on

Which of પ and ફ carries the extra breath, and how does the written shape tell you? (ફ — it carries the extra stroke.) The next lesson is the word this letter was bought for.
Source: Unicode Gujarati chart.

35.4 માફ કરો (māf karo) — excuse me

One lesson back, the new letter. And from the very first chapter, the word for thank you.

- Recall: ફ, and ābhār

You have been able to thank someone since page one of this book. You have never been able to apologise to them.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

માફ કરો — māf karo — "do forgiveness", that is, forgive me

માફ is the forgiveness itself, and કરો is do — the polite form you already use for asking. Gujarati does not have a verb "to apologise"; it asks the other person to do the forgiving.
Read it: the first word, માફ, slowly
મ and the ા stroke you have had for a long time; ફ you learned in the last lesson. Three signs, and only one of them was new.
માફ is a traveller. It came from Arabic muāf by way of Persian, on the same road that carried બજાર into the market chapter and કાગળ onto the page two chapters ago. The apology in this book arrived the way the paper did.

Why it's said this way

Māf karo does two jobs, and the second is the one a traveller needs most. It apologises — and it is also how you get someone's attention before you ask them anything: said to a stranger on the street, it means excuse me, not I have wronged you. One phrase opens the conversation and repairs it.

Your turn

- Say it: māf karo — as an apology.
- Say it: māf karo again — this time to stop a stranger and ask something.
- Write it: માફ, with the model in view. One copy.

Before you move on

Say excuse me to a stranger. What does કરો contribute, literally? (Do — you are asking them to do the forgiving.) Which sign in માફ did you learn one lesson ago? (ફ.)

35.5 The repair kit, all together

No new words. One run through the four things this chapter added, scored as a single performance.

What you've built

- નથી — is not, which replaces chhe rather than joining it.
- સમજતો / સમજતી નથી — I do not understand, in the form that matches you.
- ફ — one new letter, the only one this run of chapters spends.
- માફ કરો — excuse me, which both apologises and opens a conversation.

Before this chapter a reader of this book could greet, count, name a hundred things and ask for tea — and had no way at all to say that something was not so, or that they had not followed. The four items above are what a learner reaches for when everything else has failed.

Your turn

- Say it: someone asks you something too fast. Two sentences: stop them, then tell them you did not follow.
- Say it: nathī alone, as a flat contradiction.
- Read it: માફ — name its three signs in order, then read the word.
- Say it: the whole kit in order — māf karo, samajto nathī, nathī.

Before you move on

You are lost in a conversation. Say the two sentences that get you out, in the order you would really use them. (Māf karo to stop them, then samajto nathī.) Next chapter: the word for and, which this book has also never had.

35.6 Read it, or repair it

You did not follow what was said. Two words, from memory, that buy you a second attempt.

You'll want to know: four words you can now read unaided word

નમસ્તે	namaste	the greeting
કાગળ	kāgaḷ	paper
માફ કરો	māf karo	forgive me
નાક	nāk	nose

Not one of them needed a new letter when it was read. Every piece was already yours, taught pages or chapters earlier and waiting — which is the whole reason the script came in a drizzle rather than a block.

Script: the letters that stand alone, and the two with breath

એ ઉ ઈ and ખ ઢ

Two groups, and the difference is worth naming. એ, ઉ and ઈ are vowels standing on their own, needed only where no consonant is carrying them. ખ and ઢ are consonants with the breath let out after them — the same step that separates a plain letter from its aspirated partner all the way down the row.

Standing alone is a question of position. Aspiration is a question of sound. Neither tells you anything about the other.

What you've built — courtesy, farewells, and the kit

સારું — good, okay, fine — is the small word that keeps a conversation moving when you have nothing else to add. Beside it sit the courtesy exchange and the farewells, each practised once in its own chapter and not since.

And behind all of them, the repair kit this chapter finished: the way to say you did not understand, and the way to ask forgiveness for it. A beginner uses the repair kit more than any single word in the book, which is the argument for running it cold rather than only where it was taught.

Before you move on

When does a Gujarati vowel need a letter of its own? (When no consonant is carrying it.) What separates ખ from its plain partner? (The breath after it.) Which small word keeps a conversation moving? (સારું.) And what do you say when you did not follow? (માફ કરો, with the words for not understanding.)

Chapter 36

And, Or, But

Modes: 🚗 voice (4) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 2 of 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can join two things or two whole sentences with and, offer a choice with or, set one thing against another with but, and say that something applies too.
> The three coordinators, and the first two-clause sentence this book can make. ane joins two nouns and two whole sentences and costs neither of them anything; athava asks the listener to choose; pan sets one against the other – and moved to just after a noun, the same word becomes 'also', which is the first time in this book that position alone decides a word's job.

36.1 અને (ane) — and

From the chapter behind you, the two sentences that get you out of trouble. Then, from the food chapter far behind you, tea and milk.

- Recall: māf karo, samajto nathī — then chā, dūdh

Both of those drinks were taught in the same chapter, on facing pages. Until this lesson there has been no way to ask for both of them in one breath.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ચા અને દૂધ — chā ane dūdh — tea and milk

અને stands between the two things it joins, exactly where English puts and. That is the whole of it for now.
It did not start as a joining word. અને comes from Sanskrit અન્ય (anya), "other" — so the word that now means and began as the word for the other one. Naming a second thing and calling it "the other" is how a great many languages built their and, and Gujarati still shows the seam.

Your turn

- Say it: chā ane dūdh.
- Say it: chā alone, then the pair. Hear what the middle word buys you.
- Build: pick any two things you can already name, and join them.

Before you move on

Join two drinks in one phrase. Where does અને stand relative to the things it joins? (Between them.) What did it mean before it meant and? ("Other".)

36.2 અને, joining two sentences

One lesson back: the joining word, and where it stands. Five lessons back, at the top of the last chapter: the word that replaces chhe.

- Recall: ane, and nathī

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The same અને that joined two nouns joins two whole sentences, and it changes nothing about either one:

(first sentence) અને (second sentence)

Nothing is added to the verbs, nothing moves, and no ending appears. This is why and is the joining word to learn first: it is the only one that costs the sentences on either side of it absolutely nothing.
And it composes with what you learned last chapter — the second half is free to be a negative:

> ... અને ... નથી — "... and ... is not"

That is a two-clause sentence, and it is the first one this book has been able to make.
અને (ane) itself is inherited: CDIAL lists it, as the word for "and", under Sanskrit anya, "other", comparing anyac ca, "moreover" (CDIAL 399).

Your turn

- Build: two short sentences you can already say, joined with ane.
- Build: the same again, with nathī closing the second half.
- Contrast: the two sentences said separately, then joined. Same words.

Before you move on

What changes about a sentence when અને joins it to another? (Nothing at all.) Make one two-clause sentence whose second half is negative.

36.3 અને reaches the page

Say the joining word before anything is uncovered. Then a long reach back — read the word for city, written many chapters ago and not read since.

- Read it: શહેર

That word has been waiting a long time for a second look; this is it.

Script — three signs, none of them new

Uncover અને once. Name its pieces in order:

> અ — the independent a · ન — na · ે — the e stroke above

Every one of the three was taught long before this chapter. This is worth saying plainly: the word this book most needed was never a writing problem. It was never written down.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

How અને is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Keep the model in view and copy અને once. Check the ે sits above and to the right of ન, not over અ.

Before you move on

Write અને from memory once, then uncover and compare. How many of its three signs were new today? (None.)

36.4 અથવા (athavā) — or

> One lesson back you wrote the joining word. Five lessons back, in the middle of the last chapter, you learned to say you had not followed.

- Recall: અને, and samajto nathī

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

અને offers you both. અથવા offers you one of two:

> ચા અથવા દૂધ — chā athavā dūdh — tea or milk

It stands in the same place ane does, between the two things, and it asks the listener to pick.
Inside it are two older words: Sanskrit અથ (atha, "then, moreover") and વા (vā, "or"). Gujarati fused a linking word and a choosing word and kept both.

Your turn

- Say it: chā athavā dūdh — then chā ane dūdh. One asks, one gives.
- Contrast: the two joining words back to back, twice.
- Build: offer someone a choice of two things you can name.

Before you move on

Offer a choice of two drinks, then offer both. Which word did each need? (athavā to choose, ane to give both.)

36.5 પણ (paṇ) — but, and also

The two joining words so far: one gives both, one asks you to choose. Say them.

- Recall: ane, athavā

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પણ sets one thing against another. It joins two clauses the way ane does, and it warns that the second will pull against the first:

> (first sentence) પણ (second sentence) — "… but …"

It works especially well with what you learned last chapter, because the sharpest contrast a beginner can draw is between something that is and something that નથી.
CDIAL lists પણ (paṇ) under Sanskrit punar, "back, again, moreover, however" (CDIAL 8273): the "moreover" and the "however" are the two jobs it still does.

Grammar Lens: the same word, moved, means "also"

Put પણ between two clauses and it is but. Put it directly after a noun and it becomes also:

> ચા પણ — chā paṇ — "tea too"

Nothing about the word changes. Only where it stands changes, and position alone carries the difference. This is the first time in this book that a word's job has depended on its place in the sentence rather than on its ending.

Your turn

- Say it: two clauses joined with paṇ, the second one negative.
- Say it: chā paṇ — the "also" reading, straight after a noun.
- Contrast: paṇ between clauses, then paṇ after a noun. Same word.

Before you move on

Say tea too. Now say a sentence that uses પણ to mean but. What decides which of the two you get? (Where the word stands — after a noun, or between two clauses.) Next chapter: the word that lets you say what somebody thinks.

Chapter 37

The Word That Carries a Thought

Modes: 🚗 voice (4) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 2 of 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what I think and what I know, hand a whole sentence to a verb with ke, and say plainly that I do not know.
> The complementiser. ane and pan set two sentences side by side; ke puts one INSIDE another, which is what a verb of thinking or knowing needs before it can be given anything to think or know. vicharvu and jaanvu were both taught twenty-nine chapters ago and neither has ever had an object; both get one here, and jaanto nathi supplies the flat I-do-not-know that sits beside chapter 35s I-do-not-understand.

37.1 કે (ke) — that

One chapter back: the word that sets one clause against another. Two chapters back, at the head of the repair chapter: the word that replaces chhe.

- Recall: paṇ, then nathī

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The joining words so far put two sentences side by side. કે does something different: it lets one sentence be swallowed by another, as the thing a verb is about.

(verb of thinking or knowing) કે (whole sentence)

English does the same with that — "I know that it is late" — and, like English, Gujarati often lets it drop in speech. Learn it in place first.
કે is not a stranger. It looks like the old k- stem that also starts કેમ (why) — the same handful of sounds does the asking and the reporting, and that stem has more work to do before this run of chapters is finished.
Whether it really is that stem is not settled. CDIAL has no entry for કે (ke) in this sense, and the matching Hindi ki, "that", is usually traced to Persian ki.

Your turn

- Say it: ke, and hear how little it is. It carries an entire sentence.
- Contrast: two sentences joined by ane, then one swallowed by ke.
- Build: any sentence you can say, with ke in front of it, waiting.

Before you move on

What does કે do that અને cannot? (ane sets two sentences side by side; ke puts one inside the other.) What other word does its k- begin? (kem.)

37.2 વિચારું છું કે (vichārũ chhũ ke) — I think that...

One lesson back, the swallowing word. And from the verb chapter, long behind you, the verb to think.

- Recall: ke, and vichārvũ

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

વિચારું છું કે ... — vichārũ chhũ ke ... — "I think that ..."

Three pieces, and two of them are old. વિચારું is the verb with the ending that means I; છું is the am you have had since the second chapter; કે opens the space where your opinion goes.
Everything you can already say can now be said as an opinion rather than as a fact, by putting it after કે and nothing else. That is a large change for one small word, and it is the difference between reporting the world and having a view about it.

The verb is built on Sanskrit vicāra, "pondering", a learned word (CDIAL 11683), and chhũ is a form of chhe, which CDIAL lists under ākṣeti, "abides" (CDIAL 1031).

Why it's said this way

An A1 speaker who can only state facts sounds like a list. The frame above is what turns a list into a conversation — and it is also how you soften a disagreement, because I think that it is not so lands very differently from it is not so.

Your turn

- Say it: vichārũ chhũ ke … and finish it with any sentence you own.
- Contrast: the bare sentence, then the same inside the frame.
- Build: an opinion whose inside half is negative.

Before you move on

Give an opinion about anything you can name. Which of the three pieces was new today? (Only the way they combine — કે came last lesson and the other two are chapters old.)

37.3 કે reaches the page

Say the swallowing word. Then a long reach back, to a word taught many chapters ago and not asked for since: what is શાળા?

- Recall: shāḷā — school

Script — two signs, neither new

ક — ka · ે — the e stroke

Uncover કે and name both pieces. Like અને last chapter, this word costs the hand nothing it did not already have.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

How કે is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Copy કે once with the model in view. Then write અને beside it from memory and compare the two ે strokes: the same sign, sitting on different letters.

Before you move on

Write કે from memory. Which stroke does it share with અને? (The ે above.)

37.4 જાણું છું કે (jāṇũ chhũ ke) — I know that...

One lesson back you wrote it. And from the verb chapter: to know.

- Recall: કે, and jāṇvũ

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

જાણું છું કે ... — jāṇũ chhũ ke ... — "I know that ..."

The same shape as the thinking frame, with a different verb in front.

That is the point of કે: it does not care which verb precedes it.
જાણવું and English know are the same ancient word — the gnō- that also gives knowledge, diagnosis and ignore. The kinship has been true since the verb chapter; what is new is that the verb finally has something to take.
CDIAL lists jāṇvũ under Sanskrit jānāti, "knows" (CDIAL 5193).

Grammar Lens: and the half you need more

Negate it with the word from two chapters back and you get the sentence a traveller actually uses:

> જાણતો નથી — jāṇto nathī — "I don't know"

As with samajto nathī, the -તો is masculine and -તી feminine: a woman says jāṇtī nathī. Said alone, without any કે after it, this is a complete and very common reply.

Your turn

- Say it: jāṇũ chhũ ke … with any sentence after it.
- Say it: jāṇto nathī — or jāṇtī nathī — flat, as a whole answer.
- Contrast: samajto nathī and jāṇto nathī. Two different admissions.

Before you move on

Say I don't know. Then say I don't understand. What is the difference you are drawing? (Not having the fact, against not having followed.)

37.5 The reporting frames, all together

No new words. One run through what કે made possible.

What you've built

- કે — the word that puts a whole sentence inside another.
- વિચારું છું કે … — an opinion rather than a fact.

- જાણું છું કે ... — and, negated, jāṇto nathī, "I don't know".
- કે on the page, on two signs that were already yours.

Two chapters ago you could not say and. You can now hand an entire sentence to a verb.

Your turn

- Say it: an opinion, then the same content as a thing you know.
- Build: one sentence using ane, and one using paṇ, from the chapter before.
- Say it: jāṇto nathī, flat, at conversational speed.
- Read it: કે and અને side by side, naming the shared stroke.

Before you move on

Give an opinion, then admit you do not know something. Next chapter: the answer to a question this book has been able to ask since chapter 3 and never able to answer — why.

Chapter 38

Because, and Therefore

Modes: 🚗 voice (4) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 2 of 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can answer a why-question with a reason, say what something is for, and draw a conclusion from a fact I have just stated.
> The reason words. kem has been askable since chapter 3 and answerable never; kemke is that same question word with the complementiser stuck to it, so the answer is built out of two things the reader already owns. maate separates purpose from cause, and tethi flips the order so the reason comes first – and its -thi is the postposition from, not the worn-down is that ends nathi, which is a distinction worth drawing where both words are fresh.

38.1 કેમકે (kemke) — because

One chapter back, the frames that report a thought. Three chapters back — and also thirty chapters back — the word for why.

- Recall: vichārũ chhũ ke, then kem

Since the third chapter of this book you have been able to ask કેમ?. You have never once been able to answer it.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The answer is the question with the swallowing word stuck to it:

કેમ (why) + કે (that) = કેમકે — because

Both halves are already yours; nothing here is new except the join. Gujarati answers why by saying, in effect, "why-that" — and then the reason follows as a whole sentence.

(what happened) કેમકે (the reason)

CDIAL has no entry for kem or for ke in this sense, so the deeper history of કેમકે (kemke) is not settled.

Your turn

- Say it: kem — then kemke. The question, then the answer's opening.
- Build: any sentence, kemke, and a reason.
- Contrast: ke alone, then kemke. One reports, one explains.

Before you move on

What two words is કેમકે built from, and what does each contribute? (કેમ, why, and કે, that.) Answer a why question about anything.

38.2 કેમ? ... કેમકે ... — asking why, and answering it

One lesson back, the answering word. Three chapters back, at the same position in its chapter, the sentence that admits you are lost.

- Recall: kemke, and samajto nathī

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Both halves are yours, and they are the same three sounds twice over:

- — કેમ? — why?
- — ... કેમકે ... — ... because ...

Say them as a pair rather than as two lessons. The question word is inside the answer, which makes this one of the easiest exchanges in the language to hold: if you can ask it you can already say most of the reply.

This is also where the repair kit pays off. If the reason comes back too fast, you now have both halves of that exchange too — ask kem, and if the answer outruns you, say samajto nathī and get it again.
CDIAL has no entry for kem or for kemke, so their deeper history is not settled.

Your turn

- Run through: ask kem?, then answer yourself with kemke and a reason.
- Run through: the same, but reply samajto nathī and ask again.
- Say it: kem and kemke back to back until the pair is one motion.

Before you move on

Ask why, answer it, and then say you did not follow the answer.
Three sentences, all of them yours in the last four chapters.

38.3 કેમકે reaches the page

One chapter back you wrote કે. Write it once from memory before anything is uncovered.

Script — the word is its own pattern

Uncover કેમકે. Read it in two halves rather than four signs:

કે · મ · કે

The કે you wrote last chapter appears twice, with મ between them. Nothing here is new to the hand — the whole word is one old syllable, a known letter, and that syllable again.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

How કેમકે is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Copy કેમકે once with the model in view. Check that both ે strokes sit at the same height.

Before you move on

Write કેમકે from memory, then uncover and compare. Which piece of it did you already write in the previous chapter? (કે — and it is in there twice.)

38.4 માટે (māṭe) — for, in order to

One lesson back: the word that answers why. Two chapters back, at the same place in its chapter: the word that joins two nouns.

- Recall: kemke, and ane

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કેમકે looks backwards — it names the cause of something that already happened. માટે looks forwards — it names what something is for:

> (a thing) માટે — "for …"

It follows the thing it applies to rather than preceding it, which is the Gujarati habit you have already met with the postpositions.
The two are worth holding apart from the start. A cause and a purpose are different answers to the same why, and languages that use one word for both make their learners guess.
CDIAL has no entry for માટે (māṭe), searched by form and by meaning, so its origin is not settled.

Your turn

- Say it: something you can name, then māṭe.
- Contrast: a kemke answer and a māṭe answer to the same question.
- Build: say what a thing is for.

Before you move on

Which of કેમકે and માટે looks back at a cause, and which looks forward to a purpose? (kemke back, māṭe forward.) Where does માટે stand? (After the thing it applies to.)

38.5 તેથી (tethī) — therefore

The two reason-words of this chapter so far: one looks back at a cause, one forward to a purpose.

- Recall: kemke, māṭe

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કેમકે puts the result first and the reason second. તેથી does the opposite — reason first, then the conclusion drawn from it:

(reason). તેથી (result). — "…, therefore …"

The word says so itself. તે is that, and the -થી ending means from — so તેથી is literally from that, which is what a conclusion is. You have seen that -થી before, on the end of નથી, where it was the worn-down is; here it is the separate postposition meaning from. Same two letters, two different histories, and it is worth knowing they are not the same thing. CDIAL lists the forms of te under the Sanskrit demonstrative stem ta- (CDIAL 5612); it has no entry for the ending -thī, "from".

Your turn

- Build: a reason, then tethī, then the result.
- Contrast: the same two facts joined by kemke, then by tethī. The order flips.
- Say it: nathī and tethī back to back — the same ending, different jobs.

Before you move on

Say two facts joined by kemke, then say them again with tethī. What changed? (The order — kemke puts the result first, tethī the reason.) Next chapter: if, and when.

Chapter 39

If, and When

Modes: 🚗 voice (4) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 2 of 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can suppose something with a two-part condition and place one event against another in time.
> The first joining words that open their clause rather than following it. Gujarati marks BOTH ends of a condition – jo … to … – where English marks only the first, and the writing lesson carries the warning that jo hides inside aavjo and jovun, which is why the inventory found sixteen apparent hits and no real ones.

39.1 જો (jo) — if

One chapter back, the word that draws a conclusion. Three chapters back, at the end of its chapter, the word that means both but and also.

- Recall: tethī, then paṇ

Every joining word so far has taken two things that are true and put them together. This one takes something that might not be.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

> જો (something that might be so) …

જો stands at the front of the condition, where English also puts if. That is unusual for this book: most of the small words you have met — માટે, પણ in its also sense, the postpositions — come after what they apply to. જો comes first, and that alone tells your ear a condition is starting.

CDIAL lists જો (jo), with Old Gujarati jaü, "if", under Sanskrit yataḥ, "whence; where, because" (CDIAL 10401).

Your turn

- Say it: jo, then any sentence you can already say.
- Contrast: the sentence flat, then the same sentence with jo in front.
- Say it: jo and māṭe back to back — one leads, one follows.

Before you move on

Where does જો stand, and why is that worth noticing? (At the front — most small words in this book come after what they apply to.)

39.2 જો ... તો ... (jo ... to ...) — if ... then ...

One lesson back: the word that opens a condition. Four chapters back, at the head of the repair chapter: the negator.

- Recall: jo, and nathī

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Gujarati usually marks both ends of a condition:

જો (condition), તો (result)

English says if it is late, I will go and marks only the front. Gujarati puts તો at the head of the result as well, so the sentence announces its two halves. Beginners often leave તો out; it is understood, but the full pair is what you will hear.
તો is a worn-down demonstrative — the sentence says, in effect, if … that … — which is why it sits at the head of the result rather than inside it.
Both halves are inherited. CDIAL lists jo under Sanskrit yataḥ, "whence; because" (CDIAL 10401), and Old Gujarati taü, "then", the likely source of to, under tataḥ, “from there; then” (CDIAL 5639).

Your turn

- Build: jo + a condition, to + a result.
- Build: the same, with the result negative.
- Contrast: the pair with to, then without it. Both are grammatical.

Before you move on

Make a two-part condition. Which half does English leave unmarked that Gujarati marks? (The result — to.)

39.3 જો reaches the page

Three chapters back you wrote the joining word. Write અને once from memory before anything is uncovered.

Script — two signs, and a caution

જ — ja · ો — the o stroke

Both old. But જો is worth extra care for a reason the other words in this run did not have: the same two letters appear inside words you already know that have nothing to do with *if. They turn up at the end of the farewell આવજો, and at the start of the verb જોવું, to see.

So when you meet જો on a page, check that it is standing alone and at the front of its clause. Inside a longer word it is not this word at all.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Copy જો once with the model in view. Then write it again with a space after it, at the front of a line, which is where it belongs.

Before you move on

How do you tell the if જો from the same two signs inside a longer word? (It stands alone, at the front of its clause.)

39.4 જ્યારે (jyāre) — when

One lesson back you wrote જો. One chapter back, the word that answers why.

- Recall: જો, and kemke

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

જ્યારે (one event), (the other)

જ્યારે sets two events against each other in time — when this, that. Like જો, it opens its clause rather than following it.
It is not a random shape. The જ્- at its front belongs to a large family: Gujarati builds a whole set of clause-openers on that one stem, and you are learning a single member of it here rather than the pattern all at once.
CDIAL has no entry for જ્યારે (jyāre) itself. Its stem is the relative one that goes back to Sanskrit ya- (CDIAL 10391); the rest of its history is not settled.

Your turn

- Build: jyāre + an event, then a second event.
- Contrast: jo and jyāre on the same two clauses — one supposes, one times.
- Say it: jyāre slowly; the જ્યા- is one sound, not two.

Before you move on

Say a when sentence. What is the difference between opening with જો and opening with જ્યારે? (jo supposes something might be so; jyāre places it in time.)

39.5 Conditions and times, all together

No new words. One run through the two clause-openers this chapter added, against the ones behind them.

What you've built

- જો — if, standing at the front of its clause.
- જો ... તો ... — both ends marked, which is what you will hear.
- જો on the page, and how to tell it from the same signs inside આવજો.
- જ્યારે — when, placing one event against another.

Five chapters ago this book could not join two sentences at all. It can now suppose one, time one against another, give a reason for one, and set two against each other.

Your turn

- Build: one jo … to … sentence.
- Build: one jyāre sentence.
- Build: one kemke answer, from the chapter before.
- Say it: two things joined by ane, from three chapters back.

Before you move on

Suppose something, then time something. Next chapter: he, she, we, and the word that lets you say the one who.

Chapter 40

He, She, We, and the One Who

Modes: voice (3) eyes (1) pen (1) Hands-free start: the first 2 of 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about somebody who is not present, choose between the two words for we, and describe a person instead of naming them.
> The absent third person, the two we, and the relative. te covers he, she and it with one word; ame and aapne are the exclusive and inclusive we, where choosing wrongly audibly shuts the listener out; and je … te … turns out to be the same two-ended shape as jo … to … from the chapter before – one habit, three uses.

40.1 તે (te) — he, she, it

From the chapter behind you, a condition. And from the third chapter of this book, the word for I.

- Recall: jo … to …, and hũ

You have been able to talk about yourself since chapter 3 and about the person in front of you since chapter 2. You have never been able to talk about anybody absent.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તે — te — he, she, or it

One word, three English ones. Gujarati's third person does not make you choose a gender before you speak — which is a real convenience, and occasionally a real ambiguity.

તે also means that, pointing at something away from both speakers. The pronoun and the pointing word are the same word, which is where the તો of the last chapter came from as well.
તે (te) continues the old Sanskrit demonstrative stem ta-; CDIAL lists its Gujarati instrumental teṇe under that stem (CDIAL 5612).

Your turn

- Say it: hũ, then te. Yourself, then someone absent.
- Build: a sentence about someone who is not in the room.
- Say it: te as that, picturing something across the room.

Before you move on

How many English pronouns does તે cover? (Three — he, she, it.)
What else does the same word do? (Points: that.)

40.2 અમે / આપણે (ame / āpaṇe) — the two we

One lesson back: the pronoun for someone absent. Four chapters back, at the top of its chapter: the word that joins two things.

- Recall: te, and ane

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

English has one we and it is ambiguous. Gujarati has two, and they are not interchangeable:

- અમે — we, not including you
- આપણે — we, including you

If you say અમે to someone, you have told them they are outside the group. If you say આપણે, you have invited them in. Neither is more polite; they mean different things, and the mistake is audible.

This distinction has a name — linguists call it exclusive and inclusive we — and a great many languages make it. English speakers have to learn to hear a choice they have never had to make.
Both are inherited. CDIAL lists Old Gujarati ame under Sanskrit asmad, the base of the plural "we" (CDIAL 986), and Gujarati āpaṇ, "we (inclusive)", under ātman, "self" (CDIAL 1135).

Your turn

- Say it: ame — a group the listener is not in.
- Say it: āpaṇe — a group that includes them.
- Contrast: the two, twice, thinking each time about who is standing there.

Before you move on

You are inviting someone to come along. Which we do you use, and what would the other one tell them? (આપણે — અમે would say they are not included.)

40.3 તે reaches the page

Three chapters back you wrote કે. Write it once from memory.

Script — the same stroke, a third time

ત — ta · ે — the e stroke

Set અને, કે and તે in a row and look only at the stroke on top. It is the same ે in all three, sitting on three different letters. Learning one stroke has now spelled three of this book's most useful words.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Part 1: stroke order after t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, animation, first and second SVG paths
Part 2: stroke order after Tejas Gajjar, KanoAI, Gujarati barakhadi centre-line stroke templates (interpolate-svg/svgs/barakhadi), commit 9d3e294, 1_k/6_ke.svg, group g1 (stroke g1s0): the e sign drawn after the consonant (GitHub, 2026)
This order is attested, not standardised; the source records where it varies.

How તે is written, part by part, stroke by stroke

Copy તે once with the model in view. Then write the row — અને કે તે — and check the three strokes sit at one height.

Before you move on

Write તે from memory. Which sign does it share with કે and અને? (The ે above.)

40.4 જે (je) — the one who

One lesson back you wrote તે. One chapter back, the word that places one event against another in time.

- Recall: તે, and jyāre

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

જે — je — the one who, the thing that

Now the stem from જ્યારે stands alone. જે opens a clause that describes somebody or something, instead of naming them:

જે (what they do) … — "the one who …"

Notice the pairing: જ્યારે was when, જે is who or which, and both begin the same way. Gujarati marks a describing clause at its front, the way it marked a condition with જો.
જે (je) is usually traced to the Sanskrit relative ya-, "who, which". CDIAL does not list a modern Gujarati form in that entry. It gives Old Gujarati ju, "if", and adds in a note that Gujarati je took its -e after the pointing words te and e (CDIAL 10391). So the link is likely, but it rests on a passing note.

Your turn

- Say it: je, then something a person might do.
- Contrast: jyāre and je — the same opening stem, different jobs.
- Build: describe someone instead of naming them.

Before you move on

Describe a person rather than naming them. What does જે share with જ્યારે? (The opening જ- stem; both start their clause.)

40.5 જે … તે … (je … te …) — the one who … that one …

The two words this chapter has given you, and the two-part condition from the chapter before.

- Recall: je, te — and jo … to …

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

જે (description), તે (the one meant)

This is the same shape as જો … તો …, and recognising that is most of the work. Gujarati marks both ends: the clause that describes, and the thing it describes. English collapses the two — the one who came is my friend — and Gujarati keeps them visibly paired.

Once you see the pair you can hear it everywhere: જો ... તો, જ્યારે ... ત્યારે, જે ... તે. One family, one habit, three uses.
Je is usually traced to the Sanskrit relative ya-, though CDIAL names the Gujarati word only in a note in that entry (CDIAL 10391); te is usually traced to the demonstrative ta-, though CDIAL 5612 lists only the Gujarati form teṇe.

Your turn

- Build: je + a description, te + who is meant.
- Contrast: the same idea said with a plain name, then with the pair.
- Say it: jo … to … then je … te … — hear that they are one shape.

Before you move on

Describe someone with the pair. Which earlier pattern is this the same shape as? (જો ... તો ....) Next chapter: the question words, all of them built on one sound.

Chapter 41

Who, Where, When, How Many

Modes: 🚗 voice (4) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 2 of 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can ask who, where, when and how many, and hear that every one of them is built on the same sound.
> The question family, and the pattern under it. Every Gujarati question word opens with ka-; the clause that answers opens with ja-; the thing pointed at opens with ta-. kyaare and jyaare differ by exactly one letter, so the answer taught two chapters ago turns out to have been half of a pair. kyaan finally lets the track ask where its own city, village, home, school and road are, and ketla lets it ask the price in a market it has taught since chapter 24.

41.1 કોણ (koṇ) — who

From the chapter behind you, the describing pair. And from chapter 3, the question word you have had longest.

- Recall: je … te …, and kem

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કોણ — koṇ — who

Notice the front of it. કેમ, કે, કોણ — the same ક- every time. Gujarati builds its question words on one stem, and once you have heard three of them the rest of the family announces itself.
This chapter is that family. Nothing in it is a new kind of thing; each lesson is one more question the same stem can ask.

CDIAL lists કોણ (koṇ) under Sanskrit kaḥ punar, "who", built from kaḥ, "who", and punar, "again" (CDIAL 2575).

Your turn

- Say it: koṇ? — flat, as a whole question.
- Contrast: kem? and koṇ? — why, and who.
- Build: ask who someone is.

Before you move on

Ask who. What do કેમ, કે and કોણ share? (The ક- at the front.)

41.2 ક્યાં (kyā̃) — where

One lesson back, who. Then the word for city, from the places chapter far behind you.

- Read it: શહેર

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ક્યાં — kyā̃ — where

The same ક-, now with the ્ય you met inside જ્યારે. The dot above is the anusvara: the vowel goes through the nose, and leaving it off makes a different word.
This is the question the track has most plainly been missing. It teaches શહેર, ગામ, ઘર, શાળા and રસ્તો — city, village, home, school and road — and until this lesson there was no way to ask where any of them was.
Read it: that row of five aloud before you go on Those five words were written more than a hundred lessons ago and most of them have not been asked for since; reading them cold, here, is the point of putting them in this lesson rather than a shorter example.
CDIAL has no entry for ક્યાં (kyāṁ), so beyond its question stem its history is not settled.

Your turn

- Say it: kyā̃? with the nasal audible.
- Build: ask where a place you can name is.
- Contrast: koṇ? and kyā̃? — a person, a place.

Before you move on

Ask where the school is. What does the mark above ક્યાં do? (Sends the vowel through the nose.)

41.3 ક્યાં reaches the page

One chapter back you wrote તે. Write it once from memory.

Script — four parts, none of them new

Uncover ક્યાં and take it apart in order:

- ક · the ્ that binds it to · ય · then the ા stroke · and the ં dot above

Five signs, every one taught before chapter 30. This is the last word this run of chapters puts into the hand, and like every other one it spends nothing new.

Writing — guided copy, model in view

Copy ક્યાં once with the model in view. Check the dot is present — without it the word is not this word.

Writing — first controlled question

Now cover every Gujarati model above and keep earlier lessons closed. From the meaning alone, write the Gujarati question Where is the home?

There is no word bank, romanization, or copyable sentence. Choose the three known pieces, put them in Gujarati order, and add the question mark. The task is untimed: finish the line before opening the answer key.

Before you move on

After the attempt, use the answer key for four separate checks: place word, question word, final verb, then punctuation. Repair only the first difference and write the whole question once more from meaning.
This is one short, untimed controlled question. It proves the next writing rung; it does not claim readiness for the full timed A1 writing task.

41.4 ક્યારે (kyāre) — when

One lesson back you wrote where. Two chapters back, the word that places one event against another.

- Recall: ક્યાં, and jyāre

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Put them side by side. This is the neatest pattern in the chapter:

ક્યારે — when? · જ્યારે — when …

One letter apart. The ક- asks; the જ- answers. You learned the answer two chapters ago without knowing it was half of a pair, and the question costs you almost nothing now.
That pairing runs through the whole language — ક- for asking, જ- for the clause that answers, ત- for the thing pointed at. જે … તે … was the same system seen from the other side.
CDIAL has no entry for ક્યારે (kyāre), so beyond its question stem its history is not settled.

Your turn

- Contrast: kyāre? and jyāre — question, then answer.
- Run through: ask kyāre?, then answer with a jyāre clause.
- Say it: the three fronts in a row — ka-, ja-, ta-.

Before you move on

Ask when, then answer with a jyāre clause. What single letter separates the two words? (The first — ક asks, જ answers.)

41.5 કેટલા (keṭlā) — how many

The three questions this chapter has given you so far. Say them in order.

- Recall: koṇ, kyā̃, kyāre

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કેટલા — keṭlā — how many, how much

The same ક- one last time, now asking about quantity. This is the question the market chapter needed and never had: the track teaches બજાર, દુકાન and પૈસા — market, shop and money — and could not ask the price of anything.
Four questions, one stem:

કોણ who · ક્યાં where · ક્યારે when · કેટલા how many

CDIAL lists Gujarati keṭlī and keṭlāk, "how much", under a reconstructed kiyatta*, "how great" (CDIAL 3167).

Your turn

- Say it: keṭlā? — flat, as a whole question.
- Run through: the four questions in a row, one breath each.
- Build: ask how many of something you can name.

Before you move on

Ask all four questions of this chapter. What do they share, and where did you first meet that shared piece? (The ક-; in કેમ, in chapter 3.)

Chapter 42

Which One in the Line

Modes: voice (5) eyes (1) Hands-free start: the first 2 of 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say first to fifth in Gujarati, agree any of them with a masculine, feminine or neuter thing, and say which one of the five the language builds rather than hands down.
> Complete GU-R38-first-to-fifth and run pahelun to paanchmun, then say which one of the five you could have worked out.

42.1 પાંચમું (pā̃chmũ) — fifth, and the ending you can hear

A second kind of number word starts here, so the recalls come first.

- Recall: ask how many — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: ask who — R2, five lessons back
- Recall: say because — R3, twenty lessons back
- Write it: મહિનો — R4, eighty lessons back

You'll want to know: પાંચ, with something behind it

કેટલા counts things, and એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર, પાંચ answer it. A number can also answer which one in the line, and કેટલા does not reach that. પાંચ ચા is five teas; picking the last cup out of a row is a different job.

> પાંચમું — pā̃chmũ — fifth

Hear it once before anything is said about it. પાંચ is still there, whole, and -મું sits behind it.

That -ું is the neuter you met on મારું, so this word agrees like any other:

gender	fifth
masculine	પાંચમો — pā̃chmo
feminine	પાંચમી — pā̃chmī
neuter	પાંચમું — pā̃chmũ

મહિનો is masculine, so the fifth month is પાંચમો મહિનો.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

CDIAL lists the word, as pāṁcmo, under Sanskrit pañcama, "fifth" (CDIAL 7669), so it may also be inherited whole.

What you've built: an ending that keeps working

-મું is not a one-off. Wiktionary's entry for the suffix builds the ordinal of every Gujarati number with it except five: એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર, and the word for six, which the next chapter reaches.

That list lands well for you. Your count stops at પાંચ, so of the five ordinals you can reach at all, four stand on the exception list and one does not. This chapter is that exception list, plus the single word showing what the exceptions are exceptions to.

Which is કેમકે the chapter starts at the far end rather than at first: a broken shape stays unreadable until the shape has been seen.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- pā̃ch chā, then pā̃chmũ
- pā̃chmo, pā̃chmī, pā̃chmũ
- pā̃chmo mahino, and write મહિનો

Before you move on

Which question does પાંચમું answer, and which one does કેટલા answer? (Which one in the line; how many.) How many of the five stand on the exception list? (Four.)

Sources: Wiktionary: પાંચમું; Wiktionary: -મું.

42.2 ત્રીજું (trījũ) — third, and the first word that will not take -મું

Four recalls before the second ordinal arrives.

- Recall: say fifth, and the two pieces in it — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: ask where — R2, five lessons back
- Recall: ask why, then answer because — R3, twenty lessons back
- Write it: અત્યારે from memory — R4, eighty lessons back

You'll want to know: ત્રીજું

The suffix entry named ત્રણ among the numbers -મું does not build on. So the ordinal of three is not ત્રણમું, and the book owes you the word it is.

ત્રીજું — trījũ — third

Say ત્રણ, then ત્રીજું. The opening ત્ર carries over untouched — including the r that chapter twelve made a fuss about, the one Gujarati put back where Hindi has none. Only the tail differs.

Endings as before: ત્રીજો, ત્રીજી, ત્રીજું.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Wiktionary hands ત્રીજું down from Old Gujarati trījaũ, and that from Sanskrit tṛtīya. Notice what is missing from that line: no suffix, no addition, no -મું in it anywhere.
પાંચમું was described as something Gujarati makes. ત્રીજું is described as something Gujarati received. Two ordinals in, and the dictionary is already sorting them into two piles.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- traṇ, then trījũ
- pa̐chmũ, then trījũ — built, then received
- trījo, trījī, trījũ

Before you move on

What can you still see of ત્રણ inside ત્રીજું? (The opening ત્ર, r and all.) Which of your two ordinals was assembled from parts? (પાંચમું.) Sources: Wiktionary: ત્રીજું.

42.3 બીજું (bījũ) — second, other, and a shape with two members

Four recalls, then the second half of a pair.

- Recall: say third — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: write ક્યાં — R2, five lessons back
- Recall: write કેમકે — R3, twenty lessons back
- Recall: write the eight time words — R4, eighty lessons back

You'll want to know: બીજું

બીજું — bījũ — second, and also other

Say બે, then બીજું. Almost nothing survives the crossing. One consonant does: the b that opens both.

Chapter twelve spent a lesson on that b. Gujarati took the feminine-and-neuter dvé side of the Sanskrit paradigm, and dv went to bb and then to b, which is why બે does not begin like Hindi do. The ordinal begins the way the cardinal does.

Endings as before: બીજો, બીજી, બીજું. The everyday sense of other sits in the same word — the other cup, the other road — exactly as second and other share one word in English.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બીજું (bījũ) is inherited from Sanskrit dvitīya, "second" (CDIAL 6680), and trījũ from tṛtīya (CDIAL 5912).

What you've built: two words, one shape

Set the two received ordinals side by side and the tails match:

ordinal	Sanskrit source Wiktionary gives
બીજું — bījũ	dvitīya
ત્રીજું — trījũ	tṛtīya

Two Sanskrit words that ended alike, in -tīya, came down as two Gujarati words that end alike, in -ીજું. The exceptions to -મું are not a heap of unrelated oddments; at least two of them are one another's company.
They are not equally readable, though. ત્રીજું still shows its number and બીજું does not, and that is the order this chapter walks: the number fades word by word.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- be, then bījũ
- bījũ, trījũ — the pair, back to back
- bījo, bījī, bījũ

Before you move on

What is left of બે inside બીજું? (The b, and nothing else.) How many shapes are on the table now? (Two: -મું and -ીજું.)
Sources: Wiktionary: બીજું; Wiktionary: ત્રીજું.

42.4 ચોથું (chothũ) — fourth, and a shape that stands alone

Three recalls, then the fourth.

- Recall: say second, and the ending it shares — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: ask when — R2, five lessons back
- Recall: say for, in order to — R3, twenty lessons back

You'll want to know: ચોથું

ચોથું — chothũ — fourth

Say ચાર, then ચોથું. The ચ stays; the ા does not. Half a consonant of the number is left, which puts this word between the two you already hold — more than બીજું keeps, less than ત્રીજું keeps.

Endings as before: ચોથો, ચોથી, ચોથું.

What you've built: three shapes, one of them alone

Wiktionary hands ચોથું down from Old Gujarati caüthaũ, from Prakrit caüttha, from Sanskrit caturthá. That Sanskrit word ends in -tha, and ચોથું still ends in થ. So the tally, four ordinals in:

shape	words
-મું, on the whole number	પાંચમું
-ીજું	બીજું, ત્રીજું
-થું	ચોથું

Three shapes, and the third has a single member. માટે this book does not call it a pattern: one word is not a pattern, and saying otherwise would cost you more than it saved.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- chār, then chothũ
- bījũ, trījũ, chothũ — three words, three tails
- chotho, chothī, chothũ

Before you move on

What survives of ચાર inside ચોથું? (The ચ.) How many words share its tail so far? (None.) Which ordinal was built rather than received? (પાંચમું.)
Sources: Wiktionary: ચોથું.

42.5 પહેલું (pahelũ) — first, arriving last, and why

Three recalls, then the word this chapter has been walking towards.

- Recall: say fourth — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: ask how many — R2, five lessons back
- Recall: say therefore — R3, twenty lessons back

You'll want to know: પહેલું

પહેલું — pahelũ — first

Say એક, then પહેલું. Not one sound crosses over. ત્રીજું kept ત્ર, ચોથું kept ચ, બીજું kept a b — and this word keeps nothing at all.

Endings as before: પહેલો, પહેલી, પહેલું. It carries an everyday second use too: પહેલું can mean before, in the sense of earlier.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Here is the thing worth waiting four lessons for.
Sanskrit built first and fifth with the same ending: its words were prathamá and pañcama, both in -ma. Wiktionary traces Gujarati's -મું to -maka, an extension of that same -ma, and cites pañcamaka as the form it comes from.
So પાંચમું and પહેલું set out from one place. Then the roads part:

stage	first
Sanskrit	prathamá
Ashokan Prakrit	prathilla — the m is now ll
Sauraseni Prakrit	pahila
Gujarati	પહેલું

The લ you can see and say stands where the m used to be. તેથી the one ordinal with no number left in it is also the one that began with the very ending you learned first, and lost it on the way.

Chapter twelve showed a sound lost and then put back. This is the opposite case: lost, left lost, and lived off ever since.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- ek, then pahelũ — and notice nothing carries over
- prathamá, prathilla, pahila, pahelũ
- pahelo, pahelī, pahelũ

Before you move on

How much of એક is in પહેલું? (None.) What became of the Sanskrit ending in it? (Prakrit made it an l.)
Sources: Wiktionary: પહેલું; Wiktionary: -મું.

42.6 First to fifth, in order at last

Three recalls before the run.

- Recall: say first — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say fifth, and its two pieces — R2, five lessons back
- Recall: say if — R3, twenty lessons back

Nothing new arrives here. This lesson is the first time the five stand in numerical order, and that has been deliberate.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- pahelũ bījũ trījũ chothũ pā̃chmũ — the run, without stopping
- the four that had to be memorised, and the one that did not

What you've built this chapter, in one number

Of the five ordinals in this chapter, one was built and four were received. That is the worst ratio Gujarati will ever hand you, and it is worth saying out loud, along with why: your count reaches પાંચ, and Wiktionary's own suffix entry sets aside એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર and six as the numbers -મું does not build on. Four of the five words you can reach are on that list. The ratio is not a fact about Gujarati ordinals; it is a fact about where the count currently stops.

The received four do not scatter. Two of them, બીજું and ત્રીજું, share one shape; ચોથું has its own; પહેલું ends in the લ that Prakrit put where Sanskrit had an m.

જો this book takes the count past five, the balance turns over at once — because from there on, the ordinal is the number with -મું behind it.

Before you move on

Which of the five was assembled? (પાંચમું.) Why were the other four not? (They stand on the suffix entry's exception list.) Which of them kept the least of its number? (પહેલું — nothing at all.)

Chapter 43

Past Five, and the Balance Turns Over

Modes: 🚗 voice (7) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 2 of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can count from one to ten in Gujarati, write the one new letter that eight needs, and build the ordinal of any number from seven upward without ever being taught the word.
> Complete GU-R39-one-to-ten: run ek to das without stopping, then run the ordinals and say which five of the ten you built rather than learned.

43.1 છ (chha) — six, and a shape you have been writing since chapter two

The last chapter ended on a condition. This one answers it, so the recalls come first.

- Recall: run પહેલું to પાંચમું in order — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say third, and what it kept of ત્રણ — R2, five lessons back
- Recall: say a જો ... તો ... condition — R3, twenty lessons back

જો the count goes past five, તો the balance of built and received ordinals turns over. That was the promise. This chapter is the તો.

You'll want to know: છ

છ — chha — six

One letter. No sign attached, no second letter behind it — the whole number is a single consonant carrying its own inherent a.

And it is not a new letter. You have been writing છ since chapter two, inside છે and છું. What is new is that the shape can stand on its own and mean a quantity.

એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર, પાંચ, છ.

What you've built: one shape, two entries

Wiktionary does not give છ one entry. It gives it two, side by side, and they have nothing to do with each other:

entry	what it says
the letter	the seventh consonant in Gujarati
the numeral	six

So the sign that sits seventh in the alphabet is the word for six. Two numbers on one shape, and no relation between them at all. Say the word, not the position.

Behind it: Middle and Old Gujarati cha, Prakrit cha, Sanskrit ṣáṣ. A word worn down to one letter over that whole road.

છ is also the last name on a list you already have. -મું builds the ordinal of every Gujarati number except એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર — and છ. The previous chapter could name that fifth exception but could not print it, because you had no word for six. Now you do.

Your turn

- Say it: ek, be, traṇ, chār, p̃ãch, chha
- Say it: છ on its own
- Read it: છે — same shape, different job

Before you move on

How many letters are in the Gujarati word for six? (One.) Where have you written that letter before? (In છે and છું, since chapter two.) Which list does છ complete? (The numbers -મું does not build on.)

Sources: Wiktionary: છ; Wiktionary: -મું.

43.2 સાત (sāt) — seven, and the place the balance turns

- Recall: say six, and name the one letter it is — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say second, and the shape it shares with third — R2, five lessons back
- Write it: જો from memory — R3, twenty lessons back

જો is two signs. સાત is three, and you own all three: સ, the attached ◌ા, and ત.

You'll want to know: સાત

સાત — sāt — seven

એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર, પાંચ, છ, સાત.

This is the first number past the exception list, and that changes what a number is worth to you. -મું does not build on છ. It does build on સાત:

સાતમું — sātmũ — seventh

You were not taught that word. You assembled it, out of a number you learned thirty seconds ago and an ending you have had for five lessons. બીજું and ત્રીજું could not be assembled from anything; they had to be handed to you whole. From here up, they do not.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Wiktionary hands સાત down from Prakrit satta, and that from Sanskrit saptá.
Watch the middle of the word: $pt \to tt \to t$. The cluster does not simplify in one step; it first becomes a doubled consonant, and only then thins to a single one. That is exactly the road chapter twelve walked for બે — $dv \to bb \to b$.
And the word did not simply shrink. Where Sanskrit had a short a before two consonants, Gujarati has a long ◌ા before one. The syllable kept its weight and paid for the lost consonant with a longer vowel.

Your turn

- Say it: chha, sāt
- Read it: સાત sign by sign
- Say it: saptá, satta, sāt — the cluster thinning, the vowel lengthening
- Say it: bījũ, then sātmũ — received, then built

Before you move on

What is seventh, and where did you get it? (સાતમું — built from સાત and -મું.) Which earlier number took the same three-step road? (બે: dv → bb → b.)
Sources: Wiktionary: સાત.

43.3 ઠ — retroflex ttha

- Recall: say seven — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say fourth, and the letter it ends on — R2, five lessons back
- Recall: say જ્યારે and use it to locate one event against another — R3, twenty lessons back

Six and seven cost you no new sign at all. જ્યારે the count reaches eight, that stops — so the sign is bought here, one lesson before the number needs it.

You'll want to know: the square you already hold three corners of Gujarati keeps two rows of t. One is dental — tongue at the teeth. One is retroflex — tongue curled back. Each row has a plain letter and a breathy one.

	plain	aspirated
dental	ત ta	થ tha
retroflex	ટ ṭa	?

ચોથું ends on થ, the dental aspirate. You have three of the four. The missing corner is the retroflex aspirate, and it is the one the word for eight needs.

Script — meet one form

ઠ — ṭha

Keep ઠ visible. Start high, a little to the right of where the ring will sit. Curl left across the top and down the outside of a small hook. From the foot of the hook, sweep down and to the right until you reach the widest point on the right. Now carry the ring round clockwise — down the right side, along the bottom, up the left — and close it exactly where your diagonal crossed on the way down. One stroke, no lift.

ટ turns the other way. Its bowl runs anticlockwise and finishes still open on the right; ઠ runs clockwise and finishes closed. If the ring will not close, you have made a ટ.

Writing — notice and trace

How it is written — one unbroken stroke · 1 movement

Stroke order after t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, animation, first SVG path
This order is attested, not standardised; the source records where it varies.

How ઠ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace ઠ once, then air-trace it once. Notice the hook, the diagonal into the ring, and the closing point.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible ઠ once. Compare only two things: does the ring close, and does it close where the diagonal came in? Repair one landmark if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write retroflex ṭha once. Uncover ઠ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Read ટ ઠ થ aloud and keep all three apart. Which of the four corners is still missing from the two t rows? (None — with ઠ the square is complete.)
Sources: Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice and the Unicode Gujarati chart.

43.4 આઠ (āṭh) — eight, and a number that loses nothing

- Write it: ઠ from memory — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say first, and what Prakrit put where Sanskrit had an m — R2, five lessons back
- Recall: build a જો ... તો ... condition and score yourself on it — R3, twenty lessons back

You'll want to know: આઠ

આઠ — āṭh — eight

Two signs: the independent આ you have had since chapter one, and the ઠ you made yourself last lesson. Nothing else.

એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર, પાંચ, છ, સાત, આઠ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Wiktionary hands આઠ down from Prakrit aṭṭha, and that from Sanskrit aṣṭá.
Set it beside last lesson's word:

Sanskrit	Prakrit	Gujarati
saptá	satta	સાત
aṣṭá	aṭṭha	આઠ

Two numbers, one road, and the same three steps every time: a cluster of two different consonants, then a doubled consonant, then a single one with a long vowel standing in front of it. Seven and eight did not each have a history. They had the same history.

What you've built: a number that keeps everything

આઠમું — āṭhmũ — eighth. Built, like સાતમું, and again from nothing you had to be told.
Hold that against પહેલું. First keeps not one sound of એક; its લ stands where Sanskrit prathama had an m, and the number vanished on the way. આઠમું keeps આઠ entire. The top of your count and the bottom of it behave in opposite ways, and now you can see both at once.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- chha, sāt, āṭh — then count from એક
- pahelũ, then āṭhmũ — nothing kept, everything kept

Before you move on

Which two of your numbers came down the same three-step road? (સાત and આઠ.) What is eighth? (આઠમું.) Which ordinal keeps nothing of its number at all? (પહેલું.)
Sources: Wiktionary: આઠ.

43.5 નવ (nav) — nine, and the number that came through whole

- Recall: say eight, and name its two signs — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say તે, and say who it is for — R3, twenty lessons back તે points at somebody who is not in the room. In a moment you will be able to point at the ninth of anything, which is a different kind of pointing and needs a number first.

You'll want to know: નવ

નવ — nav — nine

Two consonants, no attached sign at all: ન carrying its inherent a, then વ. Both have been in your hand since the first two chapters.

એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર, પાંચ, છ, સાત, આઠ, નવ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Wiktionary hands નવ down from Sauraseni Prakrit nava, and that from Sanskrit náva.

Go over that line twice. Nothing happened. Sanskrit n, Gujarati ન; Sanskrit v, Gujarati વ; only the last vowel fell away, which is what happens to every Gujarati word.

Now look back over the chapter:

number	what it lost
છ	a whole second syllable — ṣáṣ to one letter
સાત	the p of saptá
આઠ	the ṣ of aṣṭá
નવ	nothing

Four numbers, and only one of them arrives with every consonant still standing.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- chha, sāt, āṭh, nav
- náva, then nav — and hear how little moved

Before you move on

Which number in this chapter reaches Gujarati with every consonant intact? (નવ.) Which one lost the most? (છ — a whole syllable.) What is ninth? (નવમું.)
Sources: Wiktionary: નવ.

43.6 દસ (das) — ten, and one word with two spellings

- Recall: say nine — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say both words for we, and say which one shuts the listener out — R3, twenty lessons back

Hold those two words. The last number of the chapter is about to make a group you might or might not be standing inside.

You'll want to know: દસ

દસ — das — ten

દ then સ. Two consonants, no signs, nothing new.
એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર, પાંચ, છ, સાત, આઠ, નવ, દસ.
Ten words, and the count is closed at last.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

Wiktionary hands દસ down from Sauraseni Prakrit dasa, and that from Sanskrit dáśa. Sanskrit's ś — the sound of શ — arrives in Gujarati as plain સ.
Then the entry adds one more line, and it is the interesting one: દસ is a doublet of દશ.

spelling	said
દસ	das
દશ	daś

One Sanskrit word, two Gujarati words, both alive. The everyday one wore the sibilant down; the other kept the શ the Sanskrit had. You have held both letters for a long time, so you can read either without being told which is which — and that is worth knowing before you meet the second one printed somewhere.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- અમે, then આપણે, then das — and say which of the two words would put you inside a group of ten
- das, then dasmũ
- દસ, then દશ — same number, two spellings

Before you move on

Count to ten. What is the other spelling of ten, and what does it keep? (દશ — the શ of Sanskrit dáśa.) What is tenth? (દસમું.) Sources: Wiktionary: દસ.

43.7 Where the rule starts, and where it stops

- Recall: say ten, and its other spelling — R1, one lesson back
- Write it: તે from memory — R3, twenty lessons back

Keep તે on the page. It ends this lesson inside a sentence nobody taught you.

You'll want to know: the list has two edges

Wiktionary's entry for -મું says it forms the ordinal of every Gujarati number but એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર, છ.

You now hold all five of those words — and, for the first time, the numbers on the other side of them. So the list stops being a list and becomes a boundary, with an edge at each end:

edge	what it says
the bottom edge	પાંચ is not on the list: પાંચમું.
the exceptions	એક, બે, ત્રણ, ચાર, છ — five, each learned whole.
the top edge	છ is the last name on it. From સાત up, -મું every time.

છ is the interesting edge, because it sits inside the count: the rule works at five, stops at six, starts again at seven. Wiktionary gives the sixth as છઠ્ઠું, on a doubled ઠ. This book does not ask you to use that word — only to see that the exception is real, and is not the number with -મું behind it.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

CDIAL lists all four as inherited: saptama, aṣṭama, navama, daśama (CDIAL 13151, 937, 7006, 6233).

What you've built: four ordinals nobody taught you

number	ordinal
સાત	સાતમું
આઠ	આઠમું
નવ	નવમું
દસ	દસમું

Four words, no new lesson, no new sign — and it does not stop at ten. Wiktionary's own example for the suffix is દસમો મહિનો, the tenth month, masculine because મહિનો is. Put તે in front and the sentence finishes itself:

> તે દસમો મહિનો છે. — te dasmo mahino chhe — It is the tenth month.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- sātmũ, āṭhmũ, navmũ, dasmũ
- the five words the rule refuses

Before you move on

Where does the exception list stop? (At છ.) What happens above it? (-મું, every time.) How many new words did this lesson teach? (None.)
Sources: Wiktionary: -મું; Wiktionary: છ.

43.8 One to ten, and the promise kept

Four recalls, then the run.

- Recall: name both edges of the exception list — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say six, and the one letter it is — R2, seven lessons back
- Recall: say જે, the word for the one that — R3, twenty lessons back
- Write it: ભાત from memory — R4, eighty lessons back

ભાત and સાત end in the same two signs, so a new number rhymes with an old word. જે and an ordinal work from two sides: જે names the one that, ત્રીજું names which one. Nothing new arrives here.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the ten numbers in order, then backwards from દસ
- જે ત્રીજું છે — the one that is third

What you've built this chapter, in one number

The last chapter finished on a condition: જો this book took the count past five, તો the balance of built and received ordinals would turn over. Here is what it turned into.

	received whole	built with -મું
first to fifth	પહેલું બીજું ત્રીજું ચોથું	પાંચમું
sixth to tenth	the sixth, left to the dictionary	સાતમું આઠમું નવમું દસમું

One-in-five became four-in-five. બીજું and ત્રીજું still share their -ીજું, and પહેલું still keeps nothing of એક — but those are facts about the bottom of the count, not about Gujarati. Above the list the language adds an ending and never stops.

The whole chapter cost one letter: only આઠ needed a new sign, and that was ઠ.

Before you move on

How far can you count? (To દસ.) How many of the ten ordinals can you build unaided? (Five — the fifth, and the seventh to the tenth.) Which letter did this chapter buy? (ઠ.)

Chapter 44

Reading — Six Words, Six Lines, and a Whole Meeting

Modes: 👁 eyes (3) 🚗 Hands-free start: none of the 3 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can read Gujarati off a signboard, read six lines I have only ever said aloud, and follow a whole meeting on the page without translating it word by word.
> The greetings, the repair and the parting the book taught first, read in the order two people would actually use them, with no new word in them.

44.1 (reading) — six words off a signboard

You have written every one of these. Not one is new.

What is new is that nobody is going to say them first.

Read this

ઘર બજાર શાળા દુકાન પાણી પુસ્તક

Read it: down the list once; do not build each one sign by sign — take in the whole word and let it arrive
Read it: the list again, and notice which came at once and which you had to assemble
Both are fine. The difference is what practice removes.

What to know first

Writing gave you the signs in order and all the time you wanted. A signboard gives you one look.

These six are the ones you would actually meet painted on something — over a shop, on a school gate, beside a tap.

That is why six is enough for one sitting.

Your turn

- Say it: the six words down the list, once, without stopping

Twice through:

Before you move on

How many of the six were new? (None.)
What was new? (Nobody said them first. You read them.)

44.2 (reading) — six lines, no voice attached

The last lesson gave you single words. These are whole lines.

You have said every one of them out loud. None of them is new.

Read this

મારું નામ મીરા છે। તમે કેમ છો? હું મજામાં છું। વાંધો નહીં। માફ કરો। કાલે મળીશું।

Read it: the six lines down once, without stopping
Read it: the six lines again, and this time notice that nobody said them first Until now every one of these arrived in your ear before it arrived on the page.

What to know first

These six are not a list. Read in order they are most of a conversation: a name, a question, an answer, a repair, an apology, a parting.

That is worth seeing once on the page. Spoken, each of them came with a voice telling you what it was for. Written, the order has to do that work instead.

Six lines, and the order is the whole lesson.

Your turn

- Say it: the six lines, once, in order, without stopping

Twice through:

Before you move on

How many of the six lines were new? (None.)
What did reading them in order show you? (They are a conversation, not a list.)

44.3 (reading) — a whole meeting

Six words, then six lines. Now two people, from hello to goodbye.

Thirty-five words, and not one of them is new.

Read this

તમે કેમ છો? હું મજામાં છું। તમારું નામ શું છે? મારું નામ મીરા છે। તમને મળીને આનંદ થયો। આ મારો ભાઈ છે। આ મારું ઘર છે। માફ કરો, હું સમજતો નથી। વાંધો નહીં। કાલે મળીશું।

Read it: the meeting through once without stopping; do not translate as you go — let the turns arrive
Read it: the meeting again, and count how many people are speaking

What to know first

Two. Nothing on the page says so — no names in front of the lines, no he-said. The turns alternate and you followed them.

Notice the eighth line. માફ કરો, હું સમજતો નથી। One of them has failed to understand, and the conversation carries on anyway. That is why the book taught the repair before it taught much else.

This is the first whole exchange you have read rather than said, and it works because every line was paid for, one chapter at a time.

Your turn

- Say it: the whole exchange aloud, once, without stopping

Twice through:

Before you move on

How many words in that exchange were new? (None.)
What told you where one speaker stopped? (The order — nothing else did.)

Chapter 45

Letters From Home and Money

Modes: 👁 eyes (2) ✓ pen (2) 🚗 Hands-free start: none of the 4 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can write the letter gha and the ai sign, and find each one in a word I already say.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 45: I can write the letter gha and the ai sign, and find each one in a word I already say.

45.1 ઘ (gha) — the letter that opens ઘર

Before the new one: write તે and ઠ once each, and name them.

Now say ઘર (ghar), "home". You have read it for a long time. This lesson takes one letter out of it and puts it in your hand.

Script you'll notice: ઘ

ઘ — gha, a g with a puff of breath after it.

It opens ઘર (ghar), "home". Say gar, then ghar: the second has the breath.

Writing: ઘ

How ઘ is written, stroke by stroke

- 1. start here: circle the upper lobe, turn through the middle, and round the lower body
- 2. lift, then descend the right spine and turn through its lower foot — and only now lift

Pen lifts: 1.

Stroke order is one attested teaching order; hands and teachers vary. Source: t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, ઘ animation, first and second SVG paths.

Your turn

- Look: at ઘર and point at ઘ inside it
- Trace it: ઘ three times, saying gh as you finish each one
- Write it: ઠ, then ઘ, from memory
- Read it: ઘર aloud once more

Before you move on

Which letter is this — ઘ? (gha, gh.) Which word did it come from? (ઘર, ghar, "home".)

45.2 ૈ (ai sign) — the ai sign in પૈસા

Before the new one: write ઠ and ઘ once each, and name them.

Now say પૈસા (paisā), "money". You have read it for a long time. This lesson takes one letter out of it and puts it in your hand.

Script you'll notice: ૈ

It sits above પ in પૈસા (paisā), "money". You already write ે, one stroke above a consonant, for e. Two strokes, ૈ, make it ai.

Writing: ૈ

How ૈ is written, stroke by stroke

Follow the numbered strip: start where movement 1 begins, and let each panel show you the next movement before your pen makes it. Then write ૈ yourself — slowly, and larger than it is printed.

> The strip shows where to start this letter and which way to travel, in one attested order, and names its source beneath it. Teachers vary, so treat it as a sound way in, not the only one.

Your turn

- Look: at પૈસા and point at ૈ inside it
- Trace it: ૈ three times, saying ai as you finish each one
- Write it: ઘ, then ૈ, from memory
- Read it: પૈસા aloud once more

Before you move on

Which letter is this — ૈ? (ai sign, ai.) Which word did it come from? (પૈસા, paisā, "money".)

45.3 (two letters) — From the letter to the word — a first pass

Say ઘર (ghar), then write the letter it gave you.

Your turn

letter	name	the word it came from
ઘ	gha	ઘર ghar
ૈ	ai sign	પૈસા paisā

- Write it: each letter in the table from memory, then check it
- Say it: the word each one came from
- Read it: each word in the table aloud, and point at its letter

Before you move on

Which word did each letter come from? (ઘ from ઘર; ૈ from પૈસા.)

45.4 (two letters) — From the word back to the letter — a second pass

Write ૈ without looking, then say the word it came from.

Your turn

letter	name	the word it came from
ઘ	gha	ઘર ghar
ૈ	ai sign	પૈસા paisā

- Say it: each word in the table, then write the letter it gave you without looking
- Write it: each letter once more, slowly, larger than it is printed

Before you move on

Say each word in the table once more, and name the letter you took from it.

Chapter 46

Head to Foot

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can name the head, a leg, the belly, a tooth and hair.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 46: I can name the head, a leg, the belly, a tooth and hair.

46.1 માથું (māthũ) — the head

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for nine, then the Gujarati for ten.

You'll want to know: માથું

માથું (māthũ) — "the head". The top of the body.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

માથું (māthũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from mastaka, "head, skull" (CDIAL 9926).

What you've built

One more word for head to foot.

Your turn

- Say it: māthũ
- Say it: māthũ, once more
- Say it: say māthũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for nine, then the Gujarati for ten, then say māthũ again

Before you move on

What does માથું mean? ("The head".) Say it once more.

46.2 પગ (pag) — a leg, a foot

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for ten, then the Gujarati for the head.

You'll want to know: પગ

પગ (pag) — "a leg, a foot". One word for both.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પગ (pag) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from padga, "afoot; footsoldier" (CDIAL 7766). It is pad, "foot", and ga, "going".

What you've built

One more word for head to foot.

Your turn

- Say it: pag
- Say it: pag, once more
- Say it: say pag
- Recall: say the Gujarati for ten, then the Gujarati for the head, then say pag again

Before you move on

What does પગ mean? ("A leg, a foot".) Say it once more.

46.3 પેટ (peṭ) — the belly

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for the head, then the Gujarati for a leg.

You'll want to know: પેટ

પેટ (peṭ) — "the belly".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પેટ (peṭ) is a tadbhava. It comes from peṭṭa*, "belly", a form CDIAL reconstructs from its descendants (CDIAL 8376). CDIAL notes that the words for "basket" show the same range of forms and may be the same word.

What you've built

One more word for head to foot.

Your turn

- Say it: peṭ
- Say it: peṭ, once more
- Say it: say peṭ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for the head, then the Gujarati for a leg, then say peṭ again

Before you move on

What does પેટ mean? ("The belly".) Say it once more.

46.4 દાંત (d̃āt) — a tooth, teeth

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a leg, then the Gujarati for the belly.

You'll want to know: દાંત

દાંત (d̃āt) — "a tooth, teeth".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દાંત (dāṁt) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from danta, "tooth" (CDIAL 6152).

What you've built

One more word for head to foot.

Your turn

- Say it: d̃āt
- Say it: d̃āt, once more
- Say it: say d̃āt
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a leg, then the Gujarati for the belly, then say d̃āt again

Before you move on

What does દાંત mean? ("A tooth, teeth".) Say it once more.

46.5 વાળ (vāḷ) — hair

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for the belly, then the Gujarati for a tooth.

You'll want to know: વાળ

વાળ (vāḷ) — "hair". The hair on the માથું.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

વાળ (vāḷ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from vāla, "hair of tail, tail, hair" (CDIAL 11572).

What you've built

One more word for head to foot.

Your turn

- Say it: vāḷ
- Say it: vāḷ, once more
- Say it: say vāḷ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for the belly, then the Gujarati for a tooth, then say vāḷ again

Before you move on

What does વાળ mean? ("Hair".) Say it once more.

Chapter 47

Finger, Throat and Tongue

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can name a finger, the throat, a shoulder, the lips and the tongue.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 47: I can name a finger, the throat, a shoulder, the lips and the tongue.

47.1 આંગળી (ā̃gaḷī) — a finger

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a tooth, then the Gujarati for hair.

You'll want to know: આંગળી

આંગળી (ā̃gaḷī) — "a finger". Five on each હાથ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

આંગળી (āṁgaḷī) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from aṅguli, "finger, toe" (CDIAL 135).

What you've built

One more word for finger, throat and tongue.

Your turn

- Say it: ãgaḷī
- Say it: ãgaḷī, once more
- Say it: say ãgaḷī
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a tooth, then the Gujarati for hair, then say ãgaḷī again

Before you move on

What does આંગળી mean? ("A finger".) Say it once more.

47.2 ગળું (gaḷũ) — the throat, the neck

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for hair, then the Gujarati for a finger.

You'll want to know: ગળું

ગળું (gaḷũ) — "the throat, the neck".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગળું (gaḷũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from gala, "throat, neck" (CDIAL 4070).

What you've built

One more word for finger, throat and tongue.

Your turn

- Say it: gaḷũ
- Say it: gaḷũ, once more
- Say it: say gaḷũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for hair, then the Gujarati for a finger, then say gaḷũ again

Before you move on

What does ગળું mean? ("The throat, the neck".) Say it once more.

47.3 ખભો (khabho) — a shoulder

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a finger, then the Gujarati for the throat.

You'll want to know: ખભો

ખભો (khabho) — "a shoulder".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

CDIAL lists ખભો (khabho) under a reconstructed khavaka*, "shoulder-blade", and asks whether it was crossed with skambha*, "shoulder-blade, wing" (CDIAL 3852, 13640).

What you've built

One more word for finger, throat and tongue.

Your turn

- Say it: khabho
- Say it: khabho, once more
- Say it: say khabho
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a finger, then the Gujarati for the throat, then say khabho again

Before you move on

What does ખભો mean? ("A shoulder".) Say it once more.

47.4 હોઠ (hoṭh) — a lip, the lips

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for the throat, then the Gujarati for a shoulder.

You'll want to know: હોઠ

હોઠ (hoṭh) — "a lip, the lips".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હોઠ (hoṭh) is a tadbhava of Sanskrit oṣṭha, "lip" (CDIAL 2563). Its h- may come from a compound adhaoṣṭha*, "lower lip", which K. R. Norman suggested and CDIAL records (CDIAL 245a).

What you've built

One more word for finger, throat and tongue.

Your turn

- Say it: hoṭh
- Say it: hoṭh, once more
- Say it: say hoṭh
- Recall: say the Gujarati for the throat, then the Gujarati for a shoulder, then say hoṭh again

Before you move on

What does હોઠ mean? ("A lip, the lips".) Say it once more.

47.5 જીભ (jībh) — the tongue

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a shoulder, then the Gujarati for a lip.

You'll want to know: જીભ

જીભ (jībh) — "the tongue".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

જીભ (jībh) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from jihvā, "tongue" (CDIAL 5228).

What you've built

One more word for finger, throat and tongue.

Your turn

- Say it: jībh
- Say it: jībh, once more
- Say it: say jībh
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a shoulder, then the Gujarati for a lip, then say jībh again

Before you move on

What does જીભ mean? ("The tongue".) Say it once more.

Chapter 48

Knee, Heart and a Fever

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can name the knee, the heart and blood, and say I have a fever or a cough.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 48: I can name the knee, the heart and blood, and say I have a fever or a cough.

48.1 ઘૂંટણ (ghũ̃ṭaṇ) — a knee

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a lip, then the Gujarati for the tongue.

You'll want to know: ઘૂંટણ

ઘૂંટણ (ghũ̃ṭaṇ) — "a knee". Halfway down the પગ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઘૂંટણ (ghūṁṭaṇ) is a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it under ghuṇṭa, a variant of the lexical Sanskrit ghuṭa, "ankle" (CDIAL 4479). It takes the word from Dravidian, after T. Burrow.

What you've built

One more word for knee, heart and a fever.

Your turn

- Say it: ghũṭaṇ
- Say it: ghũṭaṇ, once more
- Say it: say ghũṭaṇ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a lip, then the Gujarati for the tongue, then say ghũṭaṇ again

Before you move on

What does ઘૂંટણ mean? ("A knee".) Say it once more.

48.2 હૃદય (hṛday) — the heart

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for the tongue, then the Gujarati for a knee.

You'll want to know: હૃદય

હૃદય (hṛday) — "the heart".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હૃદય (hṛday) is Sanskrit hṛdaya, "heart", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama (CDIAL 14152). CDIAL lists the inherited Gujarati form as haiyũ.

What you've built

One more word for knee, heart and a fever.

Your turn

- Say it: hṛday
- Say it: hṛday, once more
- Say it: say hṛday
- Recall: say the Gujarati for the tongue, then the Gujarati for a knee, then say hṛday again

Before you move on

What does હૃદય mean? ("The heart".) Say it once more.

48.3 લોહી (lohī) — blood

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a knee, then the Gujarati for the heart.

You'll want to know: લોહી

લોહી (lohī) — "blood".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

લોહી (lohī) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from lohita, "red; blood" (CDIAL 11165). It is a form of rohita, "red".

What you've built

One more word for knee, heart and a fever.

Your turn

- Say it: lohī
- Say it: lohī, once more
- Say it: say lohī
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a knee, then the Gujarati for the heart, then say lohī again

Before you move on

What does લોહી mean? ("Blood".) Say it once more.

48.4 તાવ (tāv) — a fever

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for the heart, then the Gujarati for blood.

You'll want to know: તાવ

તાવ (tāv) — "a fever".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તાવ (tāv) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from tāpa, "heat, glow; pain" (CDIAL 5767).

What you've built

One more word for knee, heart and a fever.

Your turn

- Say it: tāv
- Say it: tāv, once more
- Say it: say tāv
- Recall: say the Gujarati for the heart, then the Gujarati for blood, then say tāv again

Before you move on

What does તાવ mean? ("A fever".) Say it once more.

48.5 ખાંસી (khā̃sī) — a cough

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for blood, then the Gujarati for a fever.

You'll want to know: ખાંસી

ખાંસી (khā̃sī) — "a cough". Often comes with a તાવ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખાંસી (khāṁsī) is a tadbhava of Sanskrit kāsa, "cough" (CDIAL 3138). CDIAL explains its kh- as imitative, the sound of the cough itself.

What you've built

One more word for knee, heart and a fever.

Your turn

- Say it: khãsī
- Say it: khãsī, once more
- Say it: say khãsī
- Recall: say the Gujarati for blood, then the Gujarati for a fever, then say khãsī again

Before you move on

What does ખાંસી mean? ("A cough".) Say it once more.

49.1 દુખાવો (dukhāvo) — pain, an ache

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a fever, then the Gujarati for a cough.

You'll want to know: દુખાવો

દુખાવો (dukhāvo) — "pain, an ache".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દુખાવો (dukhāvo) is a tadbhava. It comes from duḥkhabhāva*, "state of misfortune", a form CDIAL reconstructs from duḥkha, "pain, misfortune", and bhāva, "state" (CDIAL 6376a).

What you've built

One more word for pain, medicine and rest.

Your turn

- Say it: dukhāvo
- Say it: dukhāvo, once more
- Say it: say dukhāvo
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a fever, then the Gujarati for a cough, then say dukhāvo again

Before you move on

What does દુખાવો mean? ("Pain, an ache".) Say it once more.

49.2 દવા (davā) — medicine

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a cough, then the Gujarati for pain.

You'll want to know: દવા

91.1 સ્વાગત (svāgat) — welcome

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a field, then the Gujarati for a merchant.

You'll want to know: સ્વાગત

સ્વાગત (svāgat) — "welcome".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સ્વાગત (svāgat) is Sanskrit svāgata, "welcome", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama (CDIAL 13920). CDIAL lists Old Gujarati sāiu, "welcome", as the inherited form.

What you've built

One more word for welcome, congratulations, sorry.

Your turn

- Say it: svāgat
- Say it: svāgat, once more
- Say it: say svāgat
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a field, then the Gujarati for a merchant, then say svāgat again

Before you move on

What does સ્વાગત mean? ("Welcome".) Say it once more.

91.2 અભિનંદન (abhinandan) — congratulations

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a merchant, then the Gujarati for welcome.

You'll want to know: અભિનંદન

અભિનંદન (abhinandan) — "congratulations".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

અભિનંદન (abhinandan) is Sanskrit abhinandana, "rejoicing at, greeting", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama. It is built on nand, "to rejoice".

What you've built

One more word for welcome, congratulations, sorry.

Your turn

- Say it: abhinandan
- Say it: abhinandan, once more
- Say it: say abhinandan
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a merchant, then the Gujarati for welcome, then say abhinandan again

Before you move on

What does અભિનંદન mean? ("Congratulations".) Say it once more.

91.3 શુભેચ્છા (śubhecchā) — good wishes

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for welcome, then the Gujarati for congratulations.

You'll want to know: શુભેચ્છા

શુભેચ્છા (śubhecchā) — "good wishes".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

શુભેચ્છા (śubhecchā) is a Sanskrit compound, a tatsama: śubha, "bright, auspicious, good" (CDIAL 12532), and icchā, "wish" (CDIAL 1557).

What you've built

One more word for welcome, congratulations, sorry.

Your turn

- Say it: śubhecchā
- Say it: śubhecchā, once more
- Say it: say śubhecchā
- Recall: say the Gujarati for welcome, then the Gujarati for congratulations, then say śubhecchā again

What does શુભેચ્છા mean? ("Good wishes".) Say it once more.

91.4 માફી (māphī) — an apology, pardon

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for congratulations, then the Gujarati for good wishes.

You'll want to know: માફી

માફી (māphī) — "an apology, pardon". The noun behind માફ કરો.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

માફી (māphī) is built on māph, "pardoned", usually traced through Persian to Arabic mu^{c}āf, "excused", from the root ^{c}-f-w, "to pardon" (Lane). Gujarati adds the ending -ī.

What you've built

One more word for welcome, congratulations, sorry.

Your turn

- Say it: māphī
- Say it: māphī, once more
- Say it: say māphī
- Recall: say the Gujarati for congratulations, then the Gujarati for good wishes, then say māphī again

Before you move on

What does માફી mean? ("An apology, pardon".) Say it once more.

91.5 ઠીક (ṭhīk) — okay, fine

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for good wishes, then the Gujarati for an apology.

You'll want to know: ઠીક

ઠીક (ṭhīk) — "okay, fine".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઠીક (ṭhīk) comes from ṭhīkka*, "firm, right", a form CDIAL reconstructs and probably derives from Sanskrit sthita, "standing" (CDIAL 5503).

What you've built

One more word for welcome, congratulations, sorry.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭhīk
- Say it: ṭhīk, once more
- Say it: say ṭhīk

Before you move on

What does વીંટી mean? ("A ring".) Say it once more.

111.4 બુટ્ટી (buṭṭī) — an earring

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for pyjamas, then the Gujarati for a ring.

You'll want to know: બુટ્ટી

બુટ્ટી (buṭṭī) — "an earring".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of બુટ્ટી (buṭṭī) is not settled. CDIAL lists a Gujarati buṭṭī only as "painted flower", under a reconstructed būṭa*, "bush, plant" (CDIAL 9297); whether the earring is the same word is not known.

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: buṭṭī
- Say it: buṭṭī, once more
- Say it: say buṭṭī

113.3 મધ (madh) — honey

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a pocket, then the Gujarati for jaggery.

You'll want to know: મધ

મધ (madh) — "honey".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મધ (madh) is a semi-tatsama: Sanskrit madhu, "honey, mead", borrowed after the old sound changes had run their course and then lightly reshaped. CDIAL lists no Gujarati form under madhu; the inherited line shows in Prakrit mahu, where the dh had worn to h (CDIAL 9784).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: madh
- Say it: madh, once more
- Say it: say madh

Chapter 119

Shore, Waterfall, Cave, Valley, Hill

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say a shore, a waterfall, a cave, a valley and a hill.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 119: I can say a shore, a waterfall, a cave, a valley and a hill.

119.1 કિનારો (kināro) — a shore, a bank

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for grass, then the Gujarati for an island.

You'll want to know: કિનારો

કિનારો (kināro) — "a shore, a bank".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કિનારો (kināro) is a loan, usually traced to Persian kinār, "edge, shore".

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: kināro

- Say it: kināro, once more
- Say it: say kināro
- Recall: say the Gujarati for grass, then the Gujarati for an island, then say kināro again

Before you move on

What does કિનારો mean? ("A shore, a bank".) Say it once more.

119.2 ધોધ (dhodh) — a waterfall

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for an island, then the Gujarati for a shore.

You'll want to know: ધોધ

ધોધ (dhodh) — "a waterfall".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of ધોધ (dhodh) is not settled. CDIAL, searched by form and by meaning, has no entry for it.

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: dhodh
- Say it: dhodh, once more
- Say it: say dhodh
- Recall: say the Gujarati for an island, then the Gujarati for a shore, then say dhodh again

Before you move on

What does ધોધ mean? ("A waterfall".) Say it once more.

119.3 ગુફા (guphā) — a cave

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a shore, then the Gujarati for a waterfall.

You'll want to know: ગુફા

ગુફા (guphā) — "a cave".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગુફા (guphā) comes from gupphā*, "cave", a form CDIAL reconstructs (CDIAL 4204). It suggests a crossing of Sanskrit guhā, "cave", with words for hiding, and calls that very doubtful.

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: guphā
- Say it: guphā, once more
- Say it: say guphā
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a shore, then the Gujarati for a waterfall, then say guphā again

Before you move on

What does ગુફા mean? ("A cave".) Say it once more.

119.4 ખીણ (khīṇ) — a valley

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a waterfall, then the Gujarati for a cave.

You'll want to know: ખીણ

ખીણ (khīṇ) — "a valley".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of ખીણ (khīṇ) is not settled. CDIAL, searched by form and by meaning, has no entry for it; the Old Gujarati khīṇa it lists means "exhausted" and is a different word (CDIAL 3690).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: khīṇ
- Say it: khīṇ, once more
- Say it: say khīṇ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a waterfall, then the Gujarati for a cave, then say khīṇ again

Before you move on

What does ખીણ mean? ("A valley".) Say it once more.

119.5 ટેકરી (ṭekrī) — a hill

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a cave, then the Gujarati for a valley.

You'll want to know: ટેકરી

ટેકરી (ṭekrī) — "a hill".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ટેકરી (ṭekrī) is a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it under ṭekka*, one of many reconstructed hill words it groups under ṭakka*, "hill" (CDIAL 5423). CDIAL thinks the variety of forms points to a non-Aryan, perhaps Munda, origin.

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭekrī
- Say it: ṭekrī, once more
- Say it: say ṭekrī
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a cave, then the Gujarati for a valley, then say ṭekrī again

Before you move on

What does ટેકરી mean? ("A hill".) Say it once more.

Chapter 120

Desert, Lightning, Storm, Earth, Moonlight

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say a desert, lightning, a storm, the earth and moonlight.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 120: I can say a desert, lightning, a storm, the earth and moonlight.

120.1 રણ (raṇ) — a desert

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a valley, then the Gujarati for a hill.

You'll want to know: રણ

રણ (raṇ) — "a desert".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of રણ (raṇ) is not settled. It matches Sindhi riñu, "wilderness, desert", which CDIAL lists under Sanskrit iriṇya, "relating to desert" (CDIAL 600). CDIAL lists Gujarati rān, "wild; forest, desert", under the first word of that entry, araṇya, but not રણ (raṇ) itself.

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: raṇ
- Say it: raṇ, once more
- Say it: say raṇ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a valley, then the Gujarati for a hill, then say raṇ again

Before you move on

What does રણ mean? ("A desert".) Say it once more.

120.2 વીજળી (vīj̣lī) — lightning, electricity

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a hill, then the Gujarati for a desert.

You'll want to know: વીજળી

વીજળી (vīj̣lī) — "lightning, electricity".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

વીજળી (vīj̣lī) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from vidyullatā, "forked lightning" (CDIAL 11745).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: vīj̣lī
- Say it: vīj̣lī, once more

- Say it: say vījḷī
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a hill, then the Gujarati for a desert, then say vījḷī again

Before you move on

What does વીજળી mean? ("Lightning, electricity".) Say it once more.

120.3 તોફાન (tophān) — a storm

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a desert, then the Gujarati for lightning.

You'll want to know: તોફાન

તોફાન (tophān) — "a storm".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તોફાન (tophān) is a loan from Arabic ṭūfān, "a flood, a deluge", which reached Gujarati through Persian. Its Arabic root is ṭ-w-f (Lane).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: tophān
- Say it: tophān, once more
- Say it: say tophān
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a desert, then the Gujarati for lightning, then say tophān again

Before you move on

What does તોફાન mean? ("A storm".) Say it once more.

120.4 ધરતી (dhartī) — the earth, the ground

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for lightning, then the Gujarati for a storm.

You'll want to know: ધરતી

ધરતી (dhartī) — "the earth, the ground".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ધરતી (dhartī) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from dharitrī, "female carrier; the earth" (CDIAL 6750).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: dhartī
- Say it: dhartī, once more
- Say it: say dhartī
- Recall: say the Gujarati for lightning, then the Gujarati for a storm, then say dhartī again

Before you move on

What does ધરતી mean? ("The earth, the ground".) Say it once more.

120.5 ચાંદની (cā̃dnī) — moonlight

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a storm, then the Gujarati for the earth.

In je … te …, which half describes, and which names the one meant? (Je describes; te names.)

You'll want to know: ચાંદની

ચાંદની (cā̃dnī) — "moonlight".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ચાંદની (cāṁdnī) matches Gujarati cāṁdarṇī, "moonlight", which CDIAL lists under a reconstructed cāndraṇa*, "moonlight", built on Sanskrit candra, "moon" (CDIAL 4745).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: cā̃dnī
- Say it: cā̃dnī, once more
- Say it: say cā̃dnī
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a storm, then the Gujarati for the earth, then say cā̃dnī again

Before you move on

What does ચાંદની mean? ("Moonlight".) Say it once more.

Chapter 121

Darkness, Light, Shade, Rabbit, Deer

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say darkness, light, shade, a rabbit and a deer.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 121: I can say darkness, light, shade, a rabbit and a deer.

121.1 અંધારું (andhārũ) — darkness

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for the earth, then the Gujarati for moonlight.

You'll want to know: અંધારું

અંધારું (andhārũ) — "darkness".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

અંધારું (andhārũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from andhakāra, "darkness" (CDIAL 386). It is andha, "blind, dark", and kāra, "making".

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: andhārũ
- Say it: andhārũ, once more
- Say it: say andhārũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for the earth, then the Gujarati for moonlight, then say andhārũ again

Before you move on

What does અંધારું mean? ("Darkness".) Say it once more.

121.2 પ્રકાશ (prakāś) — light

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for moonlight, then the Gujarati for darkness.

You'll want to know: પ્રકાશ

પ્રકાશ (prakāś) — "light".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પ્રકાશ (prakāś) is Sanskrit prakāśa, "clearness, lustre", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama (CDIAL 8437).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: prakāś
- Say it: prakāś, once more
- Say it: say prakāś
- Recall: say the Gujarati for moonlight, then the Gujarati for darkness, then say prakāś again

Before you move on

What does પ્રકાશ mean? ("Light".) Say it once more.

121.3 છાંયો (chā̃yo) — shade

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for darkness, then the Gujarati for light.

You'll want to know: છાંયો

છાંયો (chā̃yo) — "shade".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

છાંયો (chāṁyo) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from chāyā, "shade, shadow, reflection" (CDIAL 5027).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: chā̃yo
- Say it: chā̃yo, once more
- Say it: say chā̃yo
- Recall: say the Gujarati for darkness, then the Gujarati for light, then say chā̃yo again

Before you move on

What does છાંયો mean? ("Shade".) Say it once more.

121.5 હરણ (haraṇ) — a deer

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for shade, then the Gujarati for a rabbit.

You'll want to know: હરણ

હરણ (haraṇ) — "a deer".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હરણ (haraṇ) is a tadbhava of Sanskrit hariṇa, "deer", which also meant "yellow" (CDIAL 13982). CDIAL notes that the Munda words cited for an Austroasiatic source were themselves taken from Indo-Aryan.

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: haraṇ
- Say it: haraṇ, once more
- Say it: say haraṇ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for shade, then the Gujarati for a rabbit, then say haraṇ again

Before you move on

You'll want to know: બતક

બતક (batak) — "a duck".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બતક (batak) is a loan, usually traced to Persian baṭ, "duck". Arabic has baṭṭ, a kind of water-fowl, but Lane, under the root b-ṭ-ṭ, calls it a Persian word taken into Arabic, or else an imitation of the bird's cry.

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: batak
- Say it: batak, once more
- Say it: say batak
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a wolf, then the Gujarati for a pigeon, then say batak again

Before you move on

What does ગાલ mean? ("A cheek".) Say it once more.

124.5 કપાળ (kapāḷ) — a forehead

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a hen, then the Gujarati for a cheek.

You'll want to know: કપાળ

કપાળ (kapāḷ) — "a forehead".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કપાળ (kapāḷ) is a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it under kappāla*, a variant of Sanskrit kapāla, "skull, cranium" (CDIAL 2744). CDIAL takes the Sanskrit word as Indo-European but thinks the variant forms suggest some Austroasiatic influence.

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: kapāḷ
- Say it: kapāḷ, once more
- Say it: say kapāḷ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a hen, then the Gujarati for a cheek, then say kapāḷ again

125.1 ભમર (bhamar) — an eyebrow

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a cheek, then the Gujarati for a forehead.

You'll want to know: ભમર

ભમર (bhamar) — "an eyebrow".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ભમર (bhamar) is a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it, as bhammar, under Sanskrit bhrū, "eyebrow" (CDIAL 9688). Its -m- is not fully explained; CDIAL thinks it scarcely comes from the verb bhram, "to whirl".

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: bhamar
- Say it: bhamar, once more
- Say it: say bhamar
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a cheek, then the Gujarati for a forehead, then say bhamar again

125.2 દાઢી (dāḍhī) — a beard, a chin

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a forehead, then the Gujarati for an eyebrow.

You'll want to know: દાઢી

દાઢી (dāḍhī) — "a beard, a chin".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

CDIAL lists દાઢી (dāḍhī), "beard, chin", under a reconstructed dāṁṣṭra*, "fang, tusk, beard", beside Sanskrit daṁṣṭra, "tusk, fang" (CDIAL 6250). It holds that the sense could move from "fang" to "beard", and does not rule out some Dravidian or Munda influence.

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: dāḍhī
- Say it: dāḍhī, once more
- Say it: say dāḍhī

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for an eyebrow, then the Gujarati for a beard.

You'll want to know: મૂછ

મૂછ (mūch) — "a moustache".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મૂછ (mūch) comes from mucchā*, "mustache", a form CDIAL reconstructs (CDIAL 10180). CDIAL asks whether it blends gocchā, "furrow of the upper lip", with mukha, "mouth", or comes through Middle Indo-Aryan from Sanskrit śmaśru, "beard".

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: mūch
- Say it: mūch, once more
- Say it: say mūch

જીવવું (jīvvũ) — "to live".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

જીવવું (jīvvũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from jīvati, "is alive" (CDIAL 5241).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: jīvvũ
- Say it: jīvvũ, once more
- Say it: say jīvvũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to count, then the Gujarati for to say, then say jīvvũ again

Before you move on

What does જીવવું mean? ("To live".) Say it once more.

142.3 ખર્ચવું (kharcvũ) — to spend

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to say, then the Gujarati for to live.

You'll want to know: ખર્ચવું

ખર્ચવું (kharcvũ) — "to spend".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખર્ચવું (kharcvũ) is built on kharc, "expense", usually traced through Persian kharch to Arabic kharj, "expenditure; tribute". The Arabic root is kh-r-j (Lane).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: kharcvũ
- Say it: kharcvũ, once more
- Say it: say kharcvũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to say, then the Gujarati for to live, then say kharcvũ again

Before you move on

What does ખર્ચવું mean? ("To spend".) Say it once more.

142.4 બચાવવું (bacāvvũ) — to save

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to live, then the Gujarati for to spend.

You'll want to know: બચાવવું

બચાવવું (bacāvvũ) — "to save".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બચાવવું (bacāvvũ) goes back to Sanskrit vañcati, "moves; escapes from" (CDIAL 11208). CDIAL marks this form as taken from Hindi; the native Gujarati form is vāṁcāvvũ.

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: bacāvvũ
- Say it: bacāvvũ, once more
- Say it: say bacāvvũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to live, then the Gujarati for to spend, then say bacāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does બચાવવું mean? ("To save".) Say it once more.

142.5 વાવવું (vāvvũ) — to sow

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to spend, then the Gujarati for to save.

You'll want to know: વાવવું

વાવવું (vāvvũ) — "to sow".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

વાવવું (vāvvũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from vāpayati, "sows" (CDIAL 11525).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: vāvvũ
- Say it: vāvvũ, once more
- Say it: say vāvvũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to spend, then the Gujarati for to save, then say vāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does વાવવું mean? ("To sow".) Say it once more.

Chapter 143

To run away, To go around, To stop, To believe, To change, A1 timed writing

Modes: 🚗 voice (7) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 7 of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say to run away, to go around, to stop, to believe and to change, then complete the A1 writing paper within 20 minutes.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 143: I can fill a six-field form and write a 30–40 word message within the A1 paper's 20-minute limit.

143.1 ભાગવું (bhāgvũ) — to run away

> Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to save, then the Gujarati for to sow.

You'll want to know: ભાગવું

ભાગવું (bhāgvũ) — "to run away".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ભાગવું (bhāgvũ) is a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it under Sanskrit bhagna, "broken, defeated", beside bhajyate, "is broken" (CDIAL 9361). It reports that J. Bloch separated the words meaning "flee" from this root, and finds no need for that: "broken, defeated" can turn into "flee".

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: bhāgvũ
- Say it: bhāgvũ, once more
- Say it: say bhāgvũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to save, then the Gujarati for to sow, then say bhāgvũ again

Before you move on

What does ભાગવું mean? ("To run away".) Say it once more.

143.2 ફરવું (pharvũ) — to go around

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to sow, then the Gujarati for to run away.

You'll want to know: ફરવું

ફરવું (pharvũ) — "to go around".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ફરવું (pharvũ) comes from phirati*, "moves, wanders, turns", a form CDIAL reconstructs (CDIAL 9078). CDIAL also lists it under pharati*, "moves, turns", but thinks phirati* the likelier source (CDIAL 9050).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: pharvũ
- Say it: pharvũ, once more
- Say it: say pharvũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to sow, then the Gujarati for to run away, then say pharvũ again

Before you move on

What does ફરવું mean? ("To go around".) Say it once more.

143.3 અટકવું (aṭakvũ) — to stop

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to run away, then the Gujarati for to go around.

You'll want to know: અટકવું

અટકવું (aṭakvũ) — "to stop".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

અટકવું (aṭakvũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited and reshaped by sound change. It comes from aṭṭakk*, "obstruct, stop", a form CDIAL reconstructs from its descendants (CDIAL 182).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: aṭakvũ
- Say it: aṭakvũ, once more
- Say it: say aṭakvũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to run away, then the Gujarati for to go around, then say aṭakvũ again

Before you move on

What does અટકવું mean? ("To stop".) Say it once more.

143.4 માનવું (mānvũ) — to believe

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to go around, then the Gujarati for to stop.

You'll want to know: માનવું

માનવું (mānvũ) — "to believe".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

માનવું (mānvũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from manyate, "thinks, honours; agrees" (CDIAL 9857).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: mānvũ
- Say it: mānvũ, once more
- Say it: say mānvũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to go around, then the Gujarati for to stop, then say mānvũ again

Before you move on

What does માનવું mean? ("To believe".) Say it once more.

143.5 બદલવું (badalvũ) — to change

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to stop, then the Gujarati for to believe.

You'll want to know: બદલવું

બદલવું (badalvũ) — "to change".

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બદલવું (badalvũ) is a loan from Arabic badal, "a substitute, an exchange", which reached Gujarati through Persian. Its Arabic root is b-d-l (Lane).

What you've built

One more word for this chapter.

Your turn

- Say it: badalvũ
- Say it: badalvũ, once more
- Say it: say badalvũ
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to stop, then the Gujarati for to believe, then say badalvũ again

Before you move on

What does બદલવું mean? ("To change".) Say it once more.

143.6 Describing words — a first pass

Say the words for to believe and to change.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- empty, full, true, false, rich
- poor, young, strong, weak, necessary
- to jump, to swim, to climb, to open, to call
- to send, to forget, to look for, to use, to make

Before you move on

Empty? (ખાલી.) Full? (ભરેલું.) True? (સાચું.) False? (ખોટું.) Rich? (અમીર.) Poor? (ગરીબ.) Young? (જુવાન.) Strong? (મજબૂત.) Weak? (નબળું.) Necessary? (જરૂરી.) To jump? (કૂદવું.) To swim? (તરવું.) To climb? (ચઢવું.) To open? (ખોલવું.) To call? (બોલાવવું.) To send? (મોકલવું.) To forget? (ભૂલવું.) To look for? (શોધવું.) To use? (વાપરવું.) To make? (બનાવવું.)

143.7 Verbs — a second pass

Say the words for to cut and to sew.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- to cut, to sew, to fill, to pull, to throw
- to wake up, to bathe, to wear, to drive, to count
- to say, to live, to spend, to save, to sow
- to run away, to go around, to stop, to believe, to change

Before you move on

To cut? (કાપવું.) To sew? (સીવવું.) To fill? (ભરવું.) To pull? (ખેંચવું.) To throw? (ફેંકવું.) To wake up? (જાગવું.) To bathe? (નાહવું.) To wear? (પહેરવું.) To drive? (ચલાવવું.) To count? (ગણવું.) To say? (કહેવું.) To live? (જીવવું.) To spend? (ખર્ચવું.) To save? (બચાવવું.) To sow? (વાવવું.) To run away? (ભાગવું.) To go around? (ફરવું.) To stop? (અટકવું.) To believe? (માનવું.) To change? (બદલવું.)

143.8 A short Gujarati A1 writing checkpoint

This is a short independent attempt, not a model. You will write the answers, and this page will not show you any copyable Gujarati answer.

Put away romanization, dictionaries, translators, and spell-checkers. Set a three-minute timer. Write in Gujarati script. Short, legible answers are enough.

Writing — timed assessment production

One practical form — three minutes

Complete all six fields in Gujarati script for a neighbourhood language exchange. Write one short answer in every field. Start the timer when you begin the first field; leave any unfinished field as evidence when it rings.

1. Your name
2. Your city or village
3. A language you speak
4. One everyday action you do
5. One drink or food you like
6. One short question for a new member asking where they live

When the three-minute timer rings, stop. Record the number of completed fields. An honest short attempt is more useful than a perfect untimed one.

Before you move on

Spend at most one minute looking at this first attempt. Note one field you completed clearly and one field to practise next; do not rewrite the timed answer. Keep the page as evidence.
This checkpoint is not the complete A1 writing paper. On another day, close this lesson and open the separate A1 writing-only learner paper for the authentic form and named-reader message under one 20-minute assessment clock. That paper and its later rubric review are a separate assessment session, not work inside this under-five-minute lesson. It is writing practice only; it does not establish full A1 exam readiness.

Chapter 144

A connected A2 message

Modes: ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: none (1 lesson).

> By the end of this chapter: I can plan and write a connected 70–90 word Gujarati message in Gujarati script for a named reader and practical purpose.
> Complete chapter 144 by writing a model-free 70–90 word connected Gujarati message for a named reader and practical purpose.

144.1 A connected message about familiar life

A connected message is not a pile of vocabulary and not one long sentence. It is a short route for one reader. Before writing, draw eight empty boxes and give them these jobs:

1. reader and greeting;
2. reason for writing;
3. your name and where you live;
4. a language you speak and work or activity you do;
5. one more familiar detail;
6. one preference and one reason;
7. one direct question for the reader;
8. a close.

Write only one or two English cue words in each box. Do not draft Gujarati yet.

Writing — connected composition

There is no model, sentence bank, or copyable answer on this page.

Reader: your friend Kiran. Purpose: help Kiran understand your familiar life and choose an activity you could do together.

Write 70–90 words in Gujarati using Gujarati script. Use every planning box. Include your name, where you live, a language, at least two familiar actions or activities, one preference, one reason, and one direct question for Kiran. Make every detail help with the shared activity. The instructions give content, not sentences: choose only words and forms this book has taught, and connect them yourself. If you cannot form a line honestly, make it simpler; do not borrow a Hindi form to fill the gap.

This first connected attempt is untimed. Put away romanization, dictionaries, translators, generative assistants, and spell-checkers. Do not copy from an earlier lesson. Ordinary legible Gujarati handwriting is enough.

When the whole message exists, count its words once. If it is short, add one useful taught detail to a planning box. If it is long, remove a detail that does not help Kiran. Do not replace the message with a memorised model.

Before you move on

Review the same attempt in four separate passes:

1. Task fulfilment and relevant content — Kiran, the familiar-life purpose, shared activity, and every requested content point are present.
2. Comprehensibility and organisation — the eight jobs form a route rather than a list of unrelated words or lines.
3. Gujarati vocabulary and grammar — every form comes from the taught Gujarati track; a familiar shorter line is better than an invented form.
4. Orthographic control — Gujarati letters, vowel signs, word boundaries, and punctuation remain readable.

Mark one strength and one next step. Repair only the next step; keep the original attempt so the next 70–90 word message can show real growth.

Chapter 145

Saying not

Modes: 🚗 voice (7) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 2 of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can complete the present for every person, say that someone does not do something with nathī, na and nahī̃, and say nobody, nothing and never.
> Turn present sentences into negatives, then carry a short exchange that needs nathī, na and nahī̃.

145.1 તે ગુજરાતી બોલે છે — the present, for someone else

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to change, the last verb of the A1 words. Then the first sentence you ever built about yourself.

- Recall: badalvũ, then hũ gujarātī bolũ chũ

That sentence has three working pieces: the stem બોલ- (speak), the ending -ું that says I, and છું, the copula that agrees with I. Change the person and two of the three pieces move.

Grammar Lens: one ending for he, she and તું

> તે ગુજરાતી બોલે છે. — te gujarātī bole che. — He speaks Gujarati. She speaks Gujarati.

The stem stays બોલ-. The person ending becomes -ે, and the copula becomes છે, the commonest word in this book. The familiar you takes the very same pair:

> તું ગુજરાતી બોલે છે. — tũ gujarātī bole che. — You speak Gujarati.

who	verb	copula
હું	બોલું	છું
તું, તે	બોલે	છે

તું and તે share one verb form, so only the pronoun in front tells them apart. જવું bends its stem a little and keeps the idea: તે જાય છે, she goes.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- hũ gujarātī bolũ chũ, then te gujarātī bole che
- તે વાંચે છે — te vā̃ce che, she reads
- તે અહીં રહે છે — te ahī̃ rahe che, he lives here
- the last two again to a friend, with તું in front

Before you move on

Which two pieces change when I speak becomes she speaks? (The ending -ું becomes -ે, and છું becomes છે.) Which pronoun shares her verb form? (તું, the familiar you.)

145.2 તેઓ (teo) — they

> Before the new one: say she speaks Gujarati. Then the pronoun on its own, તે, the word for anyone who is not here.

You'll want to know: તેઓ

તેઓ (teo) — "they".

It is તે with -ઓ on the end. તે names one person who is not here; તેઓ names more than one.

> તેઓ ગુજરાતી બોલે છે. — teo gujarātī bole che. — They speak Gujarati.

The verb does not move: બોલે છે serves તેઓ exactly as it serves તે. In the present, he, she, familiar you and they all meet on -ે છે.

તેઓ does a second job. Said of one person, it is a respectful he or she: a teacher, a grandparent, a guest. So તેઓ અહીં છે is they are here, or he is here, said with respect.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તેઓ (teo) is તે plus -ઓ, the ending Gujarati nouns take for "more than one". તે continues the old Sanskrit demonstrative stem ta-, whose plural te already meant "they" (CDIAL 5612).

What you've built

One more pronoun, and the present now has four people on one ending.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- teo
- તેઓ અહીં રહે છે — teo ahī̃ rahe che, they live here
- te, then teo: one person, then more than one

Before you move on

What does તેઓ mean? (They, or a respectful he or she.) Which letter at its end have you read but never written? (ઓ, the next lesson.)

145.3 ઓ — the standing vowel o

- Recall: say they — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say the standing vowel આ, and the sign ો that gives a consonant its o

તેઓ ends on a vowel that stands alone. After a consonant, o is a sign: તો, જો. At the start of a syllable there is no consonant to carry it, so o needs a letter of its own.

You'll want to know: આ with an arc above

ઓ is built on આ. Keep the whole of આ, the body and its stems on the right, and set one high arc over the top.

letter	sound	what it is made of
આ	ā	the body and its stems
ઓ	o	આ, then a high arc

Script — meet one form

ઓ — o

Keep ઓ visible. Write the joined body of આ first: the open curve on the left, the broad lower body, the small shoulder and arch. Lift, and bring the first stem down the right side to its foot. Lift again and bring the trailing stem down beside it. Lift a last time and sweep the high arc from left to right over the top. Four movements, three lifts.

The arc sits high and clear of the stems. Without it the letter reads આ.

Writing — notice and trace

How ઓ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace ઓ once, then air-trace it once. Notice the body of આ, the two stems, and the arc that rides above them.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible ઓ once. Compare only two things: are both stems there, and does the arc clear their tops? Repair one landmark if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write the standing vowel o once. Uncover ઓ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Read આ ઓ તેઓ aloud. What turns આ into ઓ? (The high arc.) Sources: Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice and the Unicode Gujarati chart.

145.4 અમે ગુજરાતી બોલીએ છીએ — the present for we, and for you

Say they speak Gujarati. Then the two words for we: અમે, which leaves the listener out, and આપણે, which takes the listener in.

- Recall: teo gujarātī bole che; ame, āpṇe
- Write it: ઓ once from memory

Grammar Lens: we

> અમે ગુજરાતી બોલીએ છીએ. — ame gujarātī bolīe chīe. — We speak Gujarati.

The ending is -ીએ, and the copula has a form you have not met before: છીએ (chīe). Both finish on the same -ીએ, so the sentence chimes. આપણે takes the same pair: આપણે ગુજરાતી બોલીએ છીએ, we (you and I) speak Gujarati.

You'll want to know: respectful you

તમે કેમ છો? has carried છો since the second day. The verb beside તમે takes the matching -ો:

> તમે ગુજરાતી બોલો છો. — tame gujarātī bolo cho. — You speak Gujarati.

The present endings for one person:

who	verb	copula
હું	બોલું	છું
તું, તે	બોલે	છે
And for more than one, or for respect:
who	verb	copula
અમે, આપણે	બોલીએ	છીએ
તમે	બોલો	છો
તેઓ	બોલે	છે

Your turn

- Say it: ame gujarātī bolīe chīe
- Say it: અમે અહીં રહીએ છીએ — ame ahī̃ rahīe chīe, we live here
- Say it: તમે ક્યાં રહો છો? — tame kyā̃ raho cho?, where do you live?
- Answer: with hũ … rahũ chũ

Before you move on

Which copula ends on the same sound as its verb for we? (છીએ, after -ીએ.) Which ending goes with તમે? (-ો, then છો.)

145.5 હું નથી બોલતો — saying not about what people do

Say we speak Gujarati and you speak Gujarati. Then the repair sentence from long ago: સમજતો નથી, I do not understand.

That sentence already holds the whole negative. Here is how it is built.

Grammar Lens: નથી takes the copula's place

હું ગુજરાતી નથી બોલતો. — hũ gujarātī nathī bolto. — I don't speak Gujarati.

Two changes, and only two:

1. છું goes, and નથી comes in. નથી is is not worn into one word, and it is the same for every person: હું નથી, તે નથી, અમે નથી.

2. The verb drops its person ending and takes -તો, the shape સમજતો has had all along.

-તો is the man's form. A woman says હું ગુજરાતી નથી બોલતી, with -તી. A group, or a respectful you, take -તા: અમે નથી બોલતા, તમે નથી બોલતા. નથી may also stand after the verb, as it does in સમજતો નથી. Both orders are everyday Gujarati: હું ગુજરાતી બોલતો નથી says the same thing.

Grammar Lens: when there is no other verb

With the copula alone, નથી replaces છે and nothing else moves: તે અહીં નથી, she is not here. That was the first job નથી ever did for you.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- hũ cā nathī pīto, or pītī, I don't drink tea
- તે ગુજરાતી નથી વાંચતી — te gujarātī nathī vā̃ctī, she doesn't read Gujarati
- અમે અહીં નથી રહેતા — ame ahī̃ nathī rahetā, we don't live here

Before you move on

Which word replaces the copula? (નથી, the same for every person.) What ending does the verb take? (-તો, -તી or -તા: a man, a woman, or more than one.)

145.6 ન and નહીં — the two smaller nots

Say I don't drink tea. Then the reply you have given since the first chapters to thanks or to an apology: વાંધો નહીં, no problem. And the word for worry: ચિંતા.

Grammar Lens: ન in front of a request

નથી denies a statement. A request is not a statement, so it takes the bare ન (na) in front of the verb:

> ચિંતા ન કરો. — cintā na karo. — Don't worry.

કરો is the polite do! that માફ કરો has carried since the courtesy chapter. Put ન in front of it and the request becomes a request not to.

You'll want to know: નહીં, for one word

નહીં (nahī̃) cancels a word or a phrase rather than a whole sentence:

> ચા નહીં, પાણી. — cā nahī̃, pāṇī. — Not tea: water. હમણાં નહીં. — hamṇā̃ nahī̃. — Not now.

વાંધો નહીં is built this way: objection — none.
Three negatives, three jobs:

- નથી — a statement: it is not so;
- ન — a request: don't;
- નહીં — one word: not this.

Your turn

- Say it: cintā na karo
- Say it: ચા નહીં, દૂધ — cā nahī̃, dūdh, not tea: milk
- Say it: hamṇā̃ nahī̃
- Choose: નથી, ન or નહીં for she isn't here (નથી: a statement)

Before you move on

Which negative goes in front of કરો? (ન.) Which one cancels a single word? (નહીં.)

145.7 કોઈ નથી — nobody, nothing, never

Say don't worry, then not now. And two words from the chapters on this and that: કોઈ, someone, and કંઈક, something.

Grammar Lens: કોઈ with નથી

અહીં કોઈ નથી. — ahī̃ koī nathī. — There is nobody here.

Gujarati needs no separate word for nobody. It says someone is-not: કોઈ, then નથી.

You'll want to know: કંઈ and ક્યારેય

કંઈક is કંઈ with an extra -ક. Before a negative, Gujarati uses the shorter કંઈ (kaī̃):

હું કંઈ નથી ખાતો. — hũ kaī̃ nathī khāto. — I'm not eating anything.

ક્યારેય (kyārey) is ક્યારે, when, with -ય, ever, on the end. With નથી it means never:

તે ક્યારેય ચા નથી પીતી. — te kyārey cā nathī pītī. — She never drinks tea.

The shape is the same three times: an any word, then નથી.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- ahī̃ koī nathī
- hũ kaī̃ nathī khāto, or khātī
- હું ક્યારેય દૂધ નથી પીતો — hũ kyārey dūdh nathī pīto, I never drink milk

Before you move on

What does કોઈ નથી say, word for word? (Someone is-not: nobody.) What does -ય add to ક્યારે? (Ever; with નથી, never.) What does કંઈક become before a negative? (કંઈ.)

145.8 Saying not — a practice

Say nobody is here, I'm not eating anything, and she never drinks tea.

Your turn: turn each sentence over

- Turn: તે ગુજરાતી બોલે છે into te gujarātī nathī bolto, or boltī
- Turn: અમે અહીં રહીએ છીએ into ame ahī̃ nathī rahetā
- Turn: તમે ચા પીઓ છો into tame cā nathī pītā

The exchange: three negatives at work

— ચા? — ચા નહીં, પાણી. હું ચા નથી પીતી. — તેઓ ક્યાં છે? — તેઓ અહીં નથી. અહીં કોઈ નથી. — ચિંતા ન કરો.

Say these aloud:

- the exchange aloud, taking each part in turn
- the second line as a man would say it: pīto

Before you move on

Which three negatives did the exchange use, and what job did each do? (નહીં for one word, નથી for a statement, ન for a request.)

Chapter 146

Asking yes or no

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can ask a question that is answered yes or no, with śũ, ke nahī or kharũ, answer it, and say whose things are whose and what someone likes or has.
> Carry a short exchange of yes-or-no questions about likes, family and plans, and answer one with a negative.

146.1 શું ...? — the yes-or-no question

Say શું, what, as in your name: તમારું નામ શું છે. Then the two oldest answers in the book, હા and ના. And one sentence from the last chapter: I don't speak Gujarati.

Grammar Lens: શું at the front

> શું તમે ગુજરાતી બોલો છો? — śũ tame gujarātī bolo cho? — Do you speak Gujarati?

Inside a sentence શું means what. At the very front it means nothing at all: it marks the sentence as a yes-or-no question, and not one other word moves. English rebuilds the sentence around do; Gujarati sets a flag at the front.

- તમારું નામ શું છે — what is your name — inside;
- શું તમે ગુજરાતી બોલો છો — do you speak Gujarati — in front.

You'll want to know: the voice can carry it

In speech the flag often drops, and the voice does its work: તમે ગુજરાતી બોલો છો? with the pitch rising on the last word asks the same question. On the page the question mark carries the rise.

Grammar Lens: answering

Gujarati answers with હા or ના, and then, usually, with the verb again:

> હા, હું ગુજરાતી બોલું છું. — hā, hũ gujarātī bolũ chũ. ના, હું ગુજરાતી નથી બોલતો. — nā, hũ gujarātī nathī bolto.

Your turn

- Say it: શું તમે અહીં રહો છો? — śũ tame ahī̃ raho cho?, do you live here?
- Answer: with હા and the verb again
- Say it: the same question with no શું, the voice rising at the end

Before you move on

What does શું mean at the very front? (Nothing; it marks a yes-or-no question.) What else moves? (Nothing.)

146.2 કે નહીં? and ખરું? — two tags at the end

> Ask do you speak Gujarati? twice: once with શું, once with your voice alone. Then say નહીં, the not for one word, and સાચું, true.

Grammar Lens: ... કે નહીં?

> તમે આવો છો કે નહીં? — tame āvo cho ke nahī̃? — Are you coming or not?

The કે you know as that also means or between two choices. The tag offers both answers and asks the listener to pick one. It is firmer than શું: a parent at the door, a friend whose bus is leaving.

You'll want to know: ..., ખરું?

ખરું (kharũ) means true, real, a close neighbour of સાચું. As a tag it asks for agreement:

> તમે અહીં રહો છો, ખરું? — tame ahī̃ raho cho, kharũ? — You live here, right?

The speaker already expects હા and checks it. So the three sound different: શું in front opens the question, કે નહીં at the end asks for a pick, and ખરું at the end asks for a yes.

Your turn

- Say it: તમે ચા પીઓ છો કે નહીં? — tame cā pīo cho ke nahī̃?
- Say it: તે ગુજરાતી બોલે છે, ખરું? — te gujarātī bole che, kharũ?
- Say it: આપણે ચા પીએ છીએ, ખરું? — āpṇe cā pīe chīe, kharũ?, we drink tea, right?
- Answer: each one, with હા or ના and the verb again

Before you move on

Which tag already expects yes? (ખરું?) What does કે mean in કે નહીં? (Or.)

146.3 મને, તને, તેને — the pronouns things happen to > Ask are you coming or not?, then you live here, right? And from the verb chapters long ago: મને ગુજરાતી ગમે છે, I like Gujarati.

Grammar Lens: the person something happens to

In મને ગુજરાતી ગમે છે the thing liked is the subject, and I stand to one side as મને, to me. Gujarati speaks of a fever the same way: it arrives to someone.

> મને તાવ છે. — mane tāv che. — I have a fever.

The to forms for one person:

who	pronoun	to* form
I	હું	મને
you (familiar)	તું	તને
he, she	તે	તેને

Grammar Lens: more than one

તમને has been in the book since the second day, inside તમને મળીને આનંદ થયો: to you, meeting, joy happened. Its partners:

who	pronoun	to* form
we	અમે	અમને
you (respectful)	તમે	તમને
they	તેઓ	તેમને

તેઓ turns into તેમ- before the ending: તેમને, to them.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- મને ચા ગમે છે — mane cā game che
- શું તમને તાવ છે? — śũ tamne tāv che?, do you have a fever?
- તેમને ગુજરાતી ગમે છે — temne gujarātī game che, they like Gujarati

Before you move on

Who is the subject of મને ચા ગમે છે? (The tea; I am મને, to me.)
What does તેઓ become before to? (તેમને.)

146.4 મારો ભાઈ, મારી બહેન — my agrees with what is owned

Say I have a fever and they like Gujarati. Then the first possessive you ever learned: મારું નામ, my name.

Grammar Lens: the ending follows the thing

મારું ends in -ું because નામ is a neuter noun. Change the noun and my changes its last sign to match it:

- મારો ભાઈ — māro bhāī — my brother: masculine, -ો;
- મારી બહેન — mārī bahen — my sister: feminine, -ી;
- મારું ઘર — mārũ ghar — my home: neuter, -ું;
- મારા પિતા — mārā pitā — my father: -ા, for more than one, or for one person spoken of with respect.

A woman and a man say મારો ભાઈ alike. The ending follows the brother, not whoever owns him.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- મારા પિતા અહીં છે — mārā pitā ahī̃ che
- મારી ચા — mārī cā, my tea, and why it is -ી (ચા is feminine)

Before you move on

Whose gender decides the ending of my? (The thing owned.) Why મારા પિતા? (Respect takes -ા.)

146.5 તમારો ફોન, તેની બહેન — every possessive bends the same way

Say my brother, my sister and my home. Then the first question you ever asked: તમારું નામ શું છે?

Grammar Lens: one owner

owner	my, your, his: the -ું form
હું	મારું
તું	તારું
તે	તેનું

તેનું નામ મીરા છે. — tenũ nām mīrā che. — Her name is Mira.

Grammar Lens: more than one owner

owner	the -ું form
અમે	અમારું
આપણે	આપણું
તમે	તમારું
તેઓ	તેમનું

તેમનું comes from the same તેમ- as તેમને. Every one of them bends exactly as મારું does, to -ો, -ી, -ું or -ા:

- તમારો ફોન — tamāro phon — your phone;
- તેની બહેન — tenī bahen — his sister, or her sister;
- આપણું ગામ — āpṇũ gām — our village, yours and mine;
- તમારા પિતા, તેના પિતા — tamārā pitā, tenā pitā — your father, his or her father: respect takes -ા.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- તારું નામ શું છે? — tārũ nām śũ che?, to a child
- amārũ ghar, then āpṇũ ghar, and who is left out of the first
- તેમનો ભાઈ — temno bhāī, their brother

Before you move on

What decides the last sign of તેની બહેન? (બહેન is feminine.) Which our takes the listener in? (આપણું.)

146.6 Yes or no — a practice

Say her name is Mira. Then our village twice: once leaving the listener out, once taking the listener in.

The exchange: likes, family and a plan

— શું તમને ચા ગમે છે? — હા, મને ચા ગમે છે. તમને? — ના, મને ચા નથી ગમતી. મને દૂધ ગમે છે. — તમારી બહેન અહીં રહે છે, ખરું? — હા. તેનું ઘર અહીં છે. — તમે આવો છો કે નહીં? — હા, આવું છું!

Say these aloud:

- the exchange aloud, taking each part in turn
- why it is નથી ગમતી and not નથી ગમતો (ચા is feminine, and the tea is the subject)

Your turn

- Ask: a friend whether she has a fever, with શું
- Ask: whether their village is far, with ખરું? — temnũ gām dūr che, kharũ?
- Say it: અહીં કોઈ નથી, ખરું? — ahī̃ koī nathī, kharũ?, nobody is here, right?
- Say it: શું તમે કંઈ નથી ખાતા? — śũ tame kaī̃ nathī khātā?, aren't you eating anything?

Before you move on

Which question asked for a choice? (તમે આવો છો કે નહીં?) Which one expected yes? (..., ખરું?)

Chapter 147

What was and where I went

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 5 of 7 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say where I was and where I went yesterday, with the past of to be, of going and coming, and of happening, and say that I came late.
> Tell a day in the past from morning to night, then tell your own yesterday in two sentences.

147.1 હતો — was, and an ending that listens to the subject

Ask do you live here? Then say my brother and my sister: their endings -ો and -ી are about to come back. And the word for there: ત્યાં.

Grammar Lens: છે becomes હતો

> હું ત્યાં હતો. — hũ tyā̃ hato. — I was there.

In the present the copula changes for the person: છું, છે, છો. In the past it stops caring about the person and starts caring about gender, with the endings my uses:

> હું ત્યાં હતી. — hũ tyā̃ hatī. — I was there, said by a woman.

You'll want to know: હતું and હતા

A neuter subject takes હતું. More than one person, or respect, takes હતા:

> ઘર નાનું હતું. — ghar nānũ hatũ. — The house was small. તેઓ અહીં હતા. — teo ahī̃ hatā. — They were here.

- હતો — he, or a man saying I;
- હતી — she, or a woman saying I;
- હતું — a neuter thing;
- હતા — more than one, or respect.

મારો મારી મારું મારા and હતો હતી હતું હતા end alike, sign for sign.

Your turn

- Say it: hũ tyā̃ hato, or hatī
- Say it: તે અહીં હતી — te ahī̃ hatī, she was here
- Say it: અમે ત્યાં હતા — ame tyā̃ hatā, we were there
- Choose: the ending for પાણી, a neuter noun: પાણી ગરમ હતું

Before you move on

What does the past copula agree with? (The subject's gender and number, not its person.) Which form goes with ઘર? (હતું.)

147.2 ગઈકાલે, સવારે, ઘરે — the -e of when and where

Say I was there, then they were here. And the word for yesterday: ગઈકાલ.

Grammar Lens: -e on a time

ગઈકાલ names the day. To put something on that day, Gujarati adds **-ે:

> ગઈકાલે હું ત્યાં હતો. — gaīkāle hũ tyā̃ hato. — Yesterday I was there.

The same -ે turns every part of the day, and every day, into a when:

- આજ → આજે — ājе — today;
- આવતીકાલ → આવતીકાલે — āvtīkāle — tomorrow;
- સવાર → સવારે — savāre — in the morning;
- બપોર → બપોરે — bapore — at midday;
- સાંજ → સાંજે — sānje — in the evening;
- રવિવાર → રવિવારે — ravivāre — on Sunday.

રાત is the one that changes shape: રાત્રે (rātre), at night, keeps an older form with ત્ર.

You'll want to know: -e on a place, and the two-way કાલે

ઘર takes it too: ઘરે (ghare), at home.

કાલે has been in the book since કાલે મળીશું, see you tomorrow. It also means yesterday, and the verb decides which:

- કાલે મળીશું. — a future verb, so tomorrow;
- કાલે હું ઘરે હતી. — a past verb, so yesterday.

Your turn

- Say it: gaīkāle hũ ghare hato, or hatī
- Say it: રાત્રે તેઓ ઘરે હતા — rātre teo ghare hatā
- Answer: is કાલે in kāle hũ ghare hatī yesterday or tomorrow? (Yesterday: the verb is past.)
- Say it: the answer with નહીં: આવતીકાલે નહીં, ગઈકાલે — āvtīkāle nahī̃, gaīkāle

Before you move on

What does -ે do to સવાર? (It makes the time a when: in the morning.) How do you know which day કાલે means? (From the verb's tense.)

147.3 હું ગયો, હું ગઈ — the past of moving

Say yesterday I was at home, and say which day કાલે means in કાલે મળીશું. Then the two verbs of movement: જવું, to go, and આવવું, to come.

Grammar Lens: one word does the whole job

ગઈકાલે હું બજાર ગયો. — gaīkāle hũ bajār gayo. — Yesterday I went to the market.

ગયો is a past of જવું all on its own: no છું, no હતો beside it. It ends the way હતો ends, and it agrees the same way:

- ગયો — a man; ગઈ — a woman;
- ગયું — something neuter; ગયા — more than one, or respect.

ગઈ is not new to you. It is the first half of ગઈકાલ, yesterday: the gone day. ગયો goes back through Old Gujarati gayaü to Sanskrit gata, "gone" (CDIAL 4008).

You'll want to know: આવ્યો

આવવું builds its past on આવ્ય-:

તે ગઈકાલે ઘરે આવ્યો. — te gaīkāle ghare āvyo. — He came home yesterday. તે આવી. — te āvī. — She came.

The same four endings again: આવ્યો, આવી, આવ્યું, આવ્યા. The feminine sheds the ્ય.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- hũ gayo, hũ gaī, ame gayā

- મારી બહેન સાંજે આવી — mārī bahen sānje āvī
- તમે બજાર ગયા, ખરું? — tame bajār gayā, kharũ?, you went to the market, right?

Before you move on

Which other words does the past of go need? (None.) What does its ending agree with? (Whoever went.) Which old word holds ગઈ? (ગઈકાલ.)

147.4 થયું — it happened

Say I went, then she came. And the greeting from the second day: તમને મળીને આનંદ થયો, pleased to meet you.

Grammar Lens: the past that was there from the start

થયો is the past of થવું, to happen, to become. In તમને મળીને આનંદ થયો the joy is the subject (to you, meeting, joy happened), and આનંદ is masculine, so the verb says થયો.
Change the subject and the ending follows it:

- આનંદ થયો — joy happened: masculine;
- મને ચિંતા થઈ — worry happened to me, I got worried: feminine;
- કામ થયું — the work got done: neuter;
- તેઓ ખુશ થયા — they became happy: more than one.

થયો goes back to Sanskrit sthita, "standing", which CDIAL lists as a past of to be (CDIAL 13768).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- mane ānand thayo
- મને ચિંતા થઈ — mane cintā thaī

- કામ થયું — kām thayũ, done
- તેઓ ખુશ થયા — teo khuś thayā
- તેમને આનંદ થયો — temne ānand thayo, they were pleased
- the reply to I got worried: ચિંતા ન કરો — cintā na karo

Before you move on

In મને ચિંતા થઈ, what is the subject? (The worry; I am મને.) Why થઈ? (ચિંતા is feminine.)

147.5 મોડું (moḍũ) — late

Before the new one: say the work got done, then he came.

You'll want to know: મોડું

મોડું (moḍũ) — "late".

It is the partner of વહેલું, early, and like the possessives it bends to agree:

> હું મોડો આવ્યો. — hũ moḍo āvyo. — I came late. (a man) તે મોડી આવી. — te moḍī āvī. — She came late. મોડું થયું. — moḍũ thayũ. — It got late.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મોડું (moḍũ) is an old word whose origin is not settled: CDIAL lists no Gujarati form for it, and no Sanskrit source has been shown. Its -ું is the neuter ending of the adjective, which is why it turns into મોડો and મોડી.

What you've built

One more word, and it arrives already in the past.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- moḍũ

- hũ moḍo āvyo, or moḍī āvī
- moḍũ thayũ
- તેનો ભાઈ મોડો આવ્યો — teno bhāī moḍo āvyo, her brother came late
- હું ક્યારેય મોડો નથી આવતો — hũ kyārey moḍo nathī āvto, I never come late

Before you move on

What does મોડું mean? (Late.) Which letter in it have you read but never written? (ડ, the next lesson.)

147.6 ડ — retroflex ḍa

- Recall: say late — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say ટ, ઠ and ઢ, the three tongue-curled letters you already write

મોડું holds the one curled consonant your hand has not made yet.

You'll want to know: the fourth corner

Gujarati's retroflex row, with the tongue curled back, has a plain and a breathy letter for each voicing:

	plain	breathy
voiceless	ટ ṭa	ઠ ṭha
voiced	?	ઢ ḍha

The missing corner is the plain voiced one, ḍa, and મોડું needs it.

Script — meet one form

ડ — ḍa

Keep ડ visible. Begin at the upper right and sweep left across the high shoulder. Come down through the middle into the right side of the broad lower bowl, then carry the bowl round its base and finish at its lower-left end. One stroke, no lift.

ઠ starts the same way, but its bowl curls back inward and closes. ડ leaves its bowl open at the lower left. If the end turns back in, you have made a ઠ.

Writing — notice and trace

How it is written — one unbroken stroke · 1 movement

Stroke order after t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, animation, first SVG path
This order is attested, not standardised; the source records where it varies.

How ડ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace ડ once, then air-trace it once. Notice the shoulder, the drop through the middle, and the open end of the bowl.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible ડ once. Compare only two things: is the bowl broad, and does it end open at the lower left? Repair one landmark if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write retroflex ḍa once. Uncover ડ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Read ડ ઠ મોડું aloud. Which corner of the retroflex row is still missing? (None: with ડ all four are in your hand.)

147.7 Yesterday — a practice

Say I came late.

- Write it: ऽ once from memory

Read this

ગઈકાલે સવારે હું ઘરે હતી. બપોરે હું બજાર ગઈ. સાંજે મારો ભાઈ આવ્યો. તે મોડો આવ્યો. રાત્રે અમે ઘરે હતા. મને આનંદ થયો.

Say these aloud:

- the five lines aloud
- the same day as a man would tell it: hato, gayo

Your turn

- Answer: કાલે તમે ક્યાં હતા? — kāle tame kyā̃ hatā? — and say which day you took કાલે to mean
- Answer: તમે ગઈકાલે ઘરે હતા કે નહીં? — tame gaīkāle ghare hatā ke nahī̃?

Before you move on

Which forms in the day agreed with a woman? (હતી, ગઈ.) Which agreed with the brother? (આવ્યો, મોડો.)

Chapter 148

What I did

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what I or someone else did, such as drank, ate, took, gave, wrote or said, with the past whose verb agrees with the object.
> Tell five past events side by side and say what each verb agrees with, then move one event to another doer.

148.1 મેં ચા પીધી — the past that agrees with the thing

Say I went and she came. Then three old words: પીવું, to drink; ચા, tea; પાણી, water.

Grammar Lens: હું becomes મેં

હું ગયો keeps I in its plain form. A verb that does something to something, like drinking tea or eating rice, changes that in the past: the doer is marked, and હું becomes મેં (mẽ).

> મેં ચા પીધી. — mẽ cā pīdhī. — I drank tea.

મેં is the same for a man and a woman. The verb has stopped listening to the drinker.

You'll want to know: the verb follows the tea

પીધી ends in -ી because ચા is feminine. Change the drink and the verb changes with it:

- મેં ચા પીધી. — mẽ cā pīdhī — tea, feminine;
- મેં પાણી પીધું. — mẽ pāṇī pīdhũ — water, neuter;
- મેં દૂધ પીધું. — mẽ dūdh pīdhũ — milk, neuter.

This is the agreement મારી ચા showed you: the ending follows the thing. English has nothing like it, so it is worth saying slowly a few times.

Your turn

- Say it: mẽ cā pīdhī
- Say it: mẽ dūdh pīdhũ
- Say it: મેં તમારી ચા પીધી! — mẽ tamārī cā pīdhī!, I drank your tea!
- Contrast: hũ gayo and mẽ cā pīdhī: which verb follows the doer, and which the drink

Before you move on

What does હું become before a past verb with an object? (મેં.) What does that verb agree with? (The object: ચા gives પીધી.)

148.2 તેણે, તેમણે — who did it

Say I drank tea and I drank water, and say why the two verbs end differently.

Grammar Lens: one person

who	plain	in the object past
I	હું	મેં
you (familiar)	તું	તેં
he, she	તે	તેણે

તેણે ચા પીધી. — teṇe cā pīdhī. — He drank tea. She drank tea.

તેણે is the form CDIAL records for Gujarati under the old Sanskrit stem ta- (CDIAL 5612), the stem behind તે and તેઓ.

Grammar Lens: more than one

who	plain	in the object past
we	અમે	અમે
you (respectful)	તમે	તમે
they	તેઓ	તેમણે

અમે and તમે do not change at all: અમે ચા પીધી, તમે પાણી પીધું. Only તેઓ moves, to તેમણે, built on the તેમ- of તેમને.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- teṇe pāṇī pīdhũ
- તમે ચા પીધી? — tame cā pīdhī?, did you drink tea?
- તેમણે દૂધ પીધું — temṇe dūdh pīdhũ

Before you move on

Which two doers keep their plain form? (અમે and તમે.) What does તેઓ become? (તેમણે.)

148.3 કર્યું — the regular past: stem and -્યું

Say she drank tea and they drank milk. Then કામ કરવું, to work, to do work.

Grammar Lens: -્યું on the stem

Most verbs build this past in one move: take the stem and add -્યું, a virama and then યું, so the stem's last consonant joins the ય.

- કર- → કર્યું — karyũ — did (the ર rides on top as a small hook);
- આપ- → આપ્યું — āpyũ — gave;
- લખ- → લખ્યું — lakhyũ — wrote;
- કહ- → કહ્યું — kahyũ — said;
- જો- → જોયું — joyũ — saw (a stem ending in a vowel takes યું with no virama).

  મેં કામ કર્યું. — mẽ kām karyũ. — I did the work. તેણે પત્ર લખ્યો. — teṇe patra lakhyo. — She wrote a letter. મેં તેને પૈસા આપ્યા. — mẽ tene paisā āpyā. — I gave him the money. તેણે મને પત્ર આપ્યો. — teṇe mane patra āpyo. — She gave me a letter. મેં બે ફોન કર્યા. — mẽ be phon karyā. — I made two phone calls.

The four endings again: -્યો, -ી, -્યું, -્યા. પત્ર is masculine, so લખ્યો; પૈસા is plural, so આપ્યા. In the feminine the ય drops: કરી, આપી, જોઈ.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- mẽ kām karyũ
- teṇe patra lakhyo
- mẽ tene paisā āpyā
- તેમણે શું કહ્યું? — temṇe śũ kahyũ?, what did they say?

Before you move on

What is added to a stem like કર- to make this past? (-્યું.) Why લખ્યો in she wrote a letter? (પત્ર is masculine.)

148.4 લીધું, ખાધું, પીધું — three pasts in -ધું

Say I did the work and she wrote a letter. Then લેવું, to take, and ખાવું, to eat.

Grammar Lens: -ધું

પીધું has been doing this since the first lesson of the chapter. Three short, common verbs share it: instead of -્યું they take -ધું.

- લેવું → લીધું — līdhũ — took;
- ખાવું → ખાધું — khādhũ — ate;
- પીવું → પીધું — pīdhũ — drank.

Their endings are the usual four: ખાધો, ખાધી, ખાધું, ખાધા.

> મેં ભાત ખાધો. — mẽ bhāt khādho. — I ate rice. તેણે રોટલી ખાધી. — teṇe roṭlī khādhī. — She ate a roṭlī. મેં ટિકિટ લીધી. — mẽ ṭikiṭ līdhī. — I took a ticket. તેણે ભાત લીધો. — teṇe bhāt līdho. — He took some rice. તેણે દવા લીધી. — teṇe davā līdhī. — He took the medicine.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- mẽ bhāt khādho
- teṇe roṭlī khādhī
- mẽ ṭikiṭ līdhī

Before you move on

Which three verbs take -ધું? (લેવું, ખાવું, પીવું.) Why ખાધો with ભાત? (ભાત is masculine.)

148.5 What I did — a practice

Say I ate rice, then I did the work.

- Write it: S once from memory

Read this

ગઈકાલે હું બજાર ગઈ. મેં કેરી લીધી. સાંજે મારો ભાઈ આવ્યો. તેણે ભાત ખાધો અને ચા પીધી. અમે તેને પુસ્તક આપ્યું.

Say these aloud:

- the five lines aloud
- for each verb, who or what its ending agrees with ગઈ and આવ્યો follow whoever moved. લીધી, ખાધો, પીધી and આપ્યું follow the thing: the mango, the rice, the tea, the book.

Your turn

- Answer: તમે ગઈકાલે શું ખાધું? — tame gaīkāle śũ khādhũ?

Before you move on

In મેં કેરી લીધી, why -ી? (કેરી is feminine.) In હું બજાર ગઈ, why -ઈ? (The speaker is a woman.)

Chapter 149

What will happen

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first 4 of 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what I and other people will do tomorrow with the future endings, ask when someone will come, and say that I am sleepy.
> Tell tomorrow from morning to night, then ask someone when they will come and say where you will be.

149.1 હું બોલીશ — the future, built on મળીશું

Say I drank tea and I ate rice. Then the goodbye from the first week: કાલે મળીશું, see you tomorrow, word for word tomorrow we will meet.

Grammar Lens: -ીશું, we will મળીશું is મળ-, meet, plus -ીશું, we will. Gujarati needs no separate word for will: the future is an ending on the stem.

> આપણે કાલે મળીશું. — āpṇe kāle maḷīśũ. — We'll meet tomorrow. અમે ગુજરાતી બોલીશું. — ame gujarātī bolīśũ. — We will speak Gujarati.

You'll want to know: -ીશ, I will Take the last -ું off and you have I will:

હું ગુજરાતી બોલીશ. — hũ gujarātī bolīś. — I will speak Gujarati.

The familiar you takes the same form in the standard language: તું બોલીશ, you will speak. There is no copula and no gender: a man and a woman both say હું બોલીશ.

The -શ of these endings is usually traced to the old Sanskrit future, the -iṣya- of kariṣyati, "will do".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- hũ bolīś, ame bolīśũ
- હું આવતીકાલે લખીશ — hũ āvtīkāle lakhīś, I'll write tomorrow
- અમે ઘરે રહીશું — ame ghare rahīśũ, we'll stay at home
- અમે કાલે આવીશું — ame kāle āvīśũ, we'll come tomorrow

Before you move on

What word for will does Gujarati use? (None; the future is an ending.) Which ending did મળીશું teach you long ago? (-ીશું, we will.)

149.2 તે બોલશે — the future for everyone else

Say I will speak Gujarati, then we'll meet tomorrow.

Grammar Lens: -શે

તે આવતીકાલે આવશે. — te āvtīkāle āvśe. — He will come tomorrow. She will come tomorrow. તેઓ ગુજરાતી બોલશે. — teo gujarātī bolśe. — They will speak Gujarati.

-શે sits on the bare stem, with no -ી- before it: બોલ-શે, આવ-શે.

You'll want to know: -શો

તમે keeps the -ો it has in the present, બોલો છો:

તમે ક્યારે આવશો? — tame kyāre āvśo? — When will you come?

The future for one person:

who	will speak
હું, તું	બોલીશ
તે	બોલશે

And for more than one, or for respect:

who	will speak
અમે, આપણે	બોલીશું
તમે	બોલશો
તેઓ	બોલશે

Your turn

- Say it: te āvśe, then teo āvśe
- Ask: tame kyāre āvśo?
- Answer: with હું ... આવીશ — hũ … āvīś

Before you move on

Which two persons share -શે? (તે and તેઓ.) What does તમે take? (-શો.)

149.3 જઈશ, થશે, હશે — the short verbs

Say she will come tomorrow, then ask when will you come?
And two short verbs: જવું, to go, and લેવું, to take.

Grammar Lens: જવું, લેવું, કરવું

જવું and લેવું have short stems, and they put an ઈ where the long verbs have -ી-:

- હું જઈશ — jaīś — I will go; અમે જઈશું; તે જશે; તમે જશો;
- હું લઈશ — laīś — I will take; તે લેશે.

કરવું is regular: હું કરીશ, અમે કરીશું, તે કરશે.

હું આવતીકાલે બજાર જઈશ. — hũ āvtīkāle bajār jaīś. — I'll go to the market tomorrow.

You'll want to know: થશે and હશે

થવું, to happen, and હોવું, to be, are heard most often with -શે:

> મોડું થશે. — moḍũ thaśe. — It will be late, word for word lateness will happen. તે ઘરે હશે. — te ghare haśe. — She will be at home.

હશે is the future of છે: છે now, હતો before, હશે later. With તમે it is હશો: શું તમે ઘરે હશો?, will you be at home? Said about right now, હશે is a guess: તે ઘરે હશે can also mean she must be at home.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- hũ jaīś, te jaśe, tame jaśo
- હું દવા લઈશ — hũ davā laīś
- સાંજે તેઓ ઘરે હશે — sānje teo ghare haśe

Before you move on

Which form is the future of છે? (હશે.) What do જવું and લેવું put before -શ? (ઈ: જઈશ, લઈશ.)

149.4 ઊંઘ (ūṅgh) — sleepiness, sleep

Before the new one: say I will go, then it will be late.

You'll want to know: ઊંઘ

ઊંઘ (ūṅgh) — "sleepiness, sleep".

Gujarati does not say I am sleepy. Sleep comes to you, the way a fever does:

> મને ઊંઘ આવે છે. — mane ūṅgh āve che. — I'm sleepy. Word for word: to me, sleep comes. આજે રાત્રે સારી ઊંઘ આવશે. — āje rātre sārī ūṅgh āvśe. — Tonight there will be good sleep.

ઊંઘ is feminine, so good bends to સારી. સૂવું, to sleep, is lying down to sleep; ઊંઘ is the sleep itself.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઊંઘ (ūṅgh) is inherited. CDIAL reconstructs an Indo-Aryan uṅghā, "sleep", and lists the Gujarati word under it, beside Hindi ūṅgh (CDIAL 1633).

What you've built

One more word, and sleep joins likes and fevers among the things that happen to someone.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- ūṅgh
- mane ūṅgh āve che
- શું તમને ઊંઘ આવે છે? — śũ tamne ūṅgh āve che?, are you sleepy?

Before you move on

What does ઊંઘ mean? (Sleepiness, sleep.) Which letter in it have you read but never written? (ઊ, the next lesson.)

149.5 ઊ — the standing vowel ū

- Recall: say sleepiness — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say the standing vowel ઉ, and the sign ૂ that gives a consonant a long ū

ઊંઘ opens on a long ū with no consonant to carry it.

You'll want to know: ઉ with a long tail

	after a consonant	standing alone
short u	ુ	ઉ
long ū	ૂ	?

The missing letter is built on ઉ: the whole of ઉ, then a tail that runs across the top and down the right side.

Script — meet one form

ઊ — ū

Keep ઊ visible. Write ઉ first: the small upper bowl, the middle cusp, the broad lower bowl, and the tall curve on the outside. Do not lift. Carry on across the upper shoulder, come down the long tail on the right, and finish through its foot. One stroke, no lift.

The tail is the whole difference. Stop before it and the letter reads ઉ.

Writing — notice and trace

How ઊ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace ઊ once, then air-trace it once. Notice where ઉ ends and the tail begins.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible ઊ once. Compare only two things: is all of ઉ there, and does the tail reach down the right side? Repair one landmark if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write the standing vowel ū once. Uncover ઊ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Read ઉ ઊ ઊંઘ aloud. What turns ઉ into ઊ? (The long tail.) Sources: Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice and the Unicode Gujarati chart.

149.6 Tomorrow — a practice

Say I'm sleepy.

- Write it: ઊ once from memory

Read this

> આવતીકાલે સવારે હું વહેલો ઉઠીશ. બપોરે હું બજાર જઈશ. સાંજે મારી બહેન આવશે. અમે ઘરે ચા પીશું. રાત્રે મને ઊંઘ આવશે.

Say these aloud:

- the five lines aloud
- the same plan for your sister: te … uṭhśe, te … jaśe

Your turn

- Answer: તમે આવતીકાલે શું કરશો? — tame āvtīkāle śũ karśo?
- Say it: મોડું થશે — moḍũ thaśe — and say whose tomorrow it might spoil

Before you move on

Which line told someone else's future? (સાંજે મારી બહેન આવશે.)
Which verb put an ઈ before its ending? (જવું: જઈશ.)

Chapter 150

Plans and perhaps

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what I am going to do as a plan already made, ask other people about their plans, call a plan off, and say what will perhaps happen.
> Carry a short exchange about tomorrow that holds a plan, a plan called off, a guess and a promise.

150.1 હું જવાનો છું — a plan already made

Say I'll go to the market tomorrow. Then name the ending every verb's name wears: -વું, as in જવું.

Grammar Lens: -વાનો and the copula

હું જઈશ says I will go. હું જવાનો છું says I'm going to go: the plan is already made.

> હું કાલે જવાનો છું. — hũ kāle javāno chũ. — I'm going tomorrow. (a man) હું કાલે જવાની છું. — hũ kāle javānī chũ. — the same, said by a woman.

The pieces: the verb's name જવું, with -વું turned into -વાનો, then the present copula, છું, છે, છીએ or છો.
-વાનો agrees like my: -વાનો, -વાની, -વાનું, -વાના. So a group says અમે જવાના છીએ, we're going to go.

Your turn

- Say it: hũ kāle javāno chũ, or javānī
- Say it: તે કામ કરવાનો છે — te kām karvāno che, he is going to work
- Contrast: hũ jaīś and hũ javāno chũ: which one is a plan already made

Before you move on

Which part of જવાનો agrees with the speaker? (The last sign: -ો or -ી.) Which copula follows it? (The present one: છું.)

150.2 તમે શું કરવાના છો? — asking about plans

Say I'm going tomorrow, as a plan already made. Then ask do you speak Gujarati? with શું in front.

Grammar Lens: the question

> તમે આવતીકાલે શું કરવાના છો? — tame āvtīkāle śũ karvānā cho? — What are you going to do tomorrow?

તમે takes -વાના and છો: respect takes the -ા forms here as it does with મારા પિતા. Put શું at the front instead of inside, and the plan becomes a yes-or-no question:

> શું તમે આવવાના છો? — śũ tame āvvānā cho? — Are you going to come?

You'll want to know: the plan is off

નથી takes the copula's place, as in every present negative:

> ના, હું નથી આવવાનો. — nā, hũ nathī āvvāno. — No, I'm not going to come.

Your turn

- Say it: tame śũ karvānā cho?

- Answer: with હું ... જવાનો છું or જવાની છું
- Say it: hũ nathī āvvāno, or āvvānī

Before you move on

What does તમે take before છો? (-વાના.) Where does નથી go when a plan is off? (In the copula's place: હું નથી આવવાનો.)

150.3 કદાચ (kadāc) — perhaps

Before the new one: ask what are you going to do tomorrow?, then say I'm not going to come.

You'll want to know: કદાચ

કદાચ (kadāc) — "perhaps".

A plan is sure; a guess is not. કદાચ usually stands at the front, and it pairs easily with the future:

> કદાચ તે આવશે. — kadāc te āvśe. — Perhaps she'll come. કદાચ આજે વરસાદ આવશે. — kadāc āje varsād āvśe. — Maybe it will rain today.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કદાચ (kadāc) is usually traced to Sanskrit kadācit, "at some time, once", built on kadā, "when". Sanskrit already let kadācit lean towards "perhaps", and that is the sense Gujarati kept.

What you've built

One more word: the future can now be sure, planned, or only possible.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- kadāc
- kadāc te āvśe
- કદાચ હું મોડો આવીશ — kadāc hũ moḍo āvīś, perhaps I'll come late

Before you move on

What does કદાચ mean? (Perhaps.) Which tense does it pair with most easily? (The future.)

150.4 Sure, planned, possible — a practice

Say perhaps she'll come.

The exchange: sure, planned, possible

— તમે આવતીકાલે શું કરવાના છો? — હું બજાર જવાની છું. તમે? — હું ઘરે રહેવાનો છું. હું બજાર નથી જવાનો. — કદાચ મારી બહેન આવશે. — તો સાંજે આપણે ચા પીશું.

Say these aloud:

- the exchange aloud, taking each part in turn
- which line is a plan, which is a guess, and which is a promise

જવાની છું and રહેવાનો છું are plans already made. કદાચ ... આવશે is a guess. પીશું is a plain future, close to a promise.

Your turn

- Answer: તમે આવતીકાલે શું કરવાના છો? with one plan and one guess
- Say it: the plain-future question beside it: તમે ક્યારે આવશો? — tame kyāre āvśo?

Before you move on

Which word turns a statement about tomorrow into a guess? (કદાચ.) Which form says the plan is already made? (-વાનો છું, or -વાની છું.)

150.5 Not, yes or no, and the past — a review

Say perhaps she'll come, then I'm going tomorrow, as a plan, then I'm sleepy.

- Write it: ઓ, ડ and ઊ, once each, from memory

Your turn: not, and yes or no

Say these aloud:

- they; she speaks Gujarati; we speak Gujarati; you speak Gujarati
- I don't speak Gujarati; don't worry; not now
- nobody is here; I'm not eating anything; she never drinks tea
- do you speak Gujarati?, with and without શું; are you coming or not?; you live here, right?
- I have a fever; they like Gujarati; my sister; her name is Mira; our village, yours and mine

Your turn: the past

Say these aloud:

- I was there; the house was small; yesterday, at home
- I went; she came; I got worried; I came late
- I drank tea; she drank water; they drank milk
- I did the work; I ate rice; I took the medicine

Before you move on

They? (તેઓ.) I don't speak Gujarati? (હું ગુજરાતી નથી બોલતો, or બોલતી.) Do you speak Gujarati? (શું તમે ગુજરાતી બોલો છો?) I have a fever? (મને તાવ છે.) I went? (હું ગયો, or ગઈ.) Late? (મોડું.) I drank tea? (મેં ચા પીધી.) I ate rice? (મેં ભાત ખાધો.)

Chapter 151

Reading a shop notice

Modes: voice (4) eyes (1) Hands-free start: the first 4 of 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can read a shop's notice of opening days and times, with its advert, and decide when I can go.
> Read a 45-word shop notice and decide when to go for rice, for milk, and on the public holiday.

151.1 નોટિસ (noṭis) — a posted notice

> Before the new one: say perhaps she'll come, then I'm going to go to the market, as a plan.

You'll want to know: નોટિસ

નોટિસ (noṭis) — "a posted notice, a notice".

A notice is a sheet put up for everyone: on a shop door, at a station, at work. Gujarati took the English word whole.

> નોટિસ ક્યાં છે? — noṭis kyā̃ che? — Where is the notice? મેં નોટિસ વાંચી. — mẽ noṭis vā̃cī. — I read the notice.

વાંચી ends in -ી because નોટિસ is feminine.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

નોટિસ (noṭis) is a loan from English notice. English took it from French, and French from Latin notitia, "a being known", built on nōscere, “to come to know”.

What you’ve built

One more word for reading the notices on a street.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- noṭis
- મેં નોટિસ વાંચી — mẽ noṭis vā̃cī
- noṭis kyā̃ che?

Before you move on

What does નોટિસ mean? (A posted notice.) Why વાંચી after it? (It is feminine.)

151.2 ખુલ્લું (khullũ) — not closed

Before the new one: say a posted notice, then I read the notice.

You’ll want to know: ખુલ્લું

ખુલ્લું (khullũ) — “not closed, open”.

It describes a door, a window or a shop that stands open, and it bends like my:

> દુકાન ખુલ્લી છે. — dukān khullī che. — The shop is open. દરવાજો ખુલ્લો છે. — darvājo khullo che. — The gate is open. બારી ખુલ્લી હતી. — bārī khullī hatī. — The window was open.

ખોલવું is the act, to open; ખુલ્લું is the state it leaves behind.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખુલ્લું (khullũ) is inherited. CDIAL sets ખોલવું kholvũ, “to open”, and khulvũ, “to be open”, under a reconstructed Indo-Aryan khōll- and khull- (CDIAL 3945); ખુલ્લું is the adjective of that second verb.

What you've built

One more word for reading the notices on a street.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- khullũ
- દુકાન ખુલ્લી છે — dukān khullī che
- દુકાન ખુલ્લી નથી — dukān khullī nathī, the shop is not open

Before you move on

What does ખુલ્લું mean? (Not closed, open.) Why ખુલ્લી with દુકાન? (દુકાન is feminine.)

151.3 ફક્ત (phakt) — only

Before the new one: say the shop is open, then the window was open.

You'll want to know: ફક્ત

Notices are full of limits, and ફક્ત sets them:

> દુકાન ફક્ત સવારે ખુલ્લી છે. — dukān phakt savāre khullī che. — The shop is open only in the morning. ફક્ત પાંચ રૂપિયા. — phakt pā̃c rūpiyā. — Only five rupees.

It stands right before the word it limits.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ફક્ત (phakt) is usually traced, through Persian, to Arabic faqaṭ, "only, and that is enough". Lane treats faqaṭ under the root q-ṭ, whose qaṭ means “enough, sufficient” (Lane).

What you’ve built

One more word for reading the notices on a street.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- phakt
- dukān phakt savāre khullī che
- ફક્ત ચા — phakt cā, only tea

Before you move on

What does ફક્ત mean? (Only.) Where does it stand? (Right before the word it limits.)

151.4 જાહેર (jāher) — public

Before the new one: say only in the morning, then only five rupees.

You’ll want to know: જાહેર

જાહેર (jāher) — “public, open to all”.

It marks what belongs to everyone, and on a notice it most often comes before રજા, a holiday:

> આવતીકાલે જાહેર રજા છે. — āvtīkāle jāher rajā che. — Tomorrow is a public holiday.

A જાહેર રજા closes offices, banks and many shops for everybody at once.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

જાહેર (jāher) is usually traced, through Persian, to Arabic ẓāhir, “apparent, manifest”, from the root ẓ-h-r, “to come out into the open, to become evident" (Lane). What is out in the open is public.

What you've built

One more word for reading the notices on a street.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- jāher
- āvtīkāle jāher rajā che
- શું આજે જાહેર રજા છે? — is today a public holiday?

Before you move on

What does જાહેર mean? (Public, open to all.) Which word does it stand before on a notice? (રજા.)

151.5 (reading) — a notice on a shop door

Say tomorrow is a public holiday, then only in the morning.

Nobody is talking to anybody on this page. A notice tells you what you may do, and when.

Read this

નોટિસ

દુકાન રોજ સવારે અને સાંજે ખુલ્લી છે. બપોરે દુકાન ખુલ્લી નથી. રવિવારે રજા છે. આવતીકાલે, સોમવારે, જાહેર રજા છે. મંગળવારે દુકાન ફક્ત સવારે ખુલ્લી હશે. બુધવારે દુકાન સવારે અને સાંજે ફરી ખુલ્લી હશે. આજે કેરી સસ્તી છે! સાંજે દૂધ અને દહીં પણ છે. આભાર.

Read it: the notice once, straight through, without translating
Read it: it a second time, and find every word that says when

What to know first

Almost every line opens on a when: રોજ, બપોરે, then four days, each with the -ે of on. Two lines say ખુલ્લી હશે, will be open, about days still to come. The line with ! is an advert, set into the notice to bring you in.

Your turn

- Answer: can you shop here tomorrow, Monday? (No: જાહેર રજા.)
- Answer: milk on Wednesday evening: yes or no? (Yes: open, with milk in the evening.)
- Answer: what is cheap today? (Mangoes: કેરી.)

Before you move on

Which day is the shop open only in the morning? (મંગળવારે, Tuesday.) Which two days is it closed? (રવિવારે and સોમવારે: Sunday, and the public holiday.)

Chapter 152

Reading a note about a repair

Modes: voice (5) eyes (1) Hands-free start: the first 3 of 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can read a short note about a repair and the rent, find what it asks of me, and answer it.
> Read a 52-word note from a landlord about a repair and the rent, find the one question it asks, and plan the reply.

152.1 ચિઠ્ઠી (ciṭṭhī) — a note

Before the new one: say a posted notice, then the shop is open only in the morning.

You'll want to know: ચિઠ્ઠી

ચિઠ્ઠી (ciṭṭhī) — "a note, a short written message".

A notice is for everyone; a ચિઠ્ઠી is for one person: a line left under a door, a message from a neighbour.

> મેં તેને ચિઠ્ઠી લખી. — mẽ tene ciṭṭhī lakhī. — I wrote her a note.
> ચિઠ્ઠી ક્યાં છે? — ciṭṭhī kyā̃ che? — Where is the note?

લખી ends in -ી because ચિઠ્ઠી is feminine. The ઠ્ઠ in the middle is ઠ twice, joined by a virama: a doubled, breathy, tongue-curled ṭṭh.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ચિઠ્ઠી (ciṭṭhī) is inherited. CDIAL reconstructs an Indo-Aryan ciṣṭa, "message", and lists Gujarati ciṭṭhī, "message", under it, beside Hindi ciṭṭhī, "letter" (CDIAL 4832).

What you've built

One more word for the notes people leave for each other.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- ciṭṭhī
- mẽ tene ciṭṭhī lakhī
- ciṭṭhī kyã̃ che?

Before you move on

What does ચિઠ્ઠી mean? (A note.) Who is it for, compared with a notice? (One person, not everyone.)

152.2 મરામત (marāmat) — a repair

Before the new one: say I wrote her a note, then ask where is the note?

You'll want to know: મરામત

મરામત (marāmat) — "a repair, repair work".
It is the job of putting something right: a window, a door, a road.

> આવતીકાલે મરામત થશે. — āvtīkāle marāmat thaśe. — The repair will be done tomorrow. તે મરામત કરશે. — te marāmat karśe. — He will do the repair.

થશે and કરશે split the work the way English be done and do do: થશે when the repair happens, કરશે when someone does it.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મરામત (marāmat) came into Gujarati through Persian from Arabic maramma, "a repairing". Its root is r-m-m, "to repair, to put into a sound state", said in Lane of a worn rope, a house or a wall (Lane).

What you've built

One more word for the notes people leave for each other.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- marāmat
- āvtīkāle marāmat thaśe
- te marāmat karśe, he will do the repair

Before you move on

What does મરામત mean? (A repair.) Which verb says someone does it? (કરશે.)

152.3 ભાડું (bhāḍũ) — rent

Before the new one: say the repair will be done tomorrow, then he will do the repair.

You'll want to know: ભાડું

ભાડું (bhāḍũ) — "rent, a fare".

It is the money paid for using something that is not yours: a room, a house, a seat on a bus.

ભાડું કેટલું છે? — bhāḍũ keṭlũ che? — How much is the rent? How much is the fare? મેં ભાડું આપ્યું. — mẽ bhāḍũ āpyũ. — I paid the rent.

ભાડું is neuter, so આપ્યું.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ભાડું (bhāḍũ) is inherited. CDIAL lists the Gujarati word under a reconstructed bhārta, "pertaining to servants", which Middle Indo-Aryan continued as bhāṭa, "wages" (CDIAL 9468). Pay for a servant's work became pay for a room.

What you've built

One more word for the notes people leave for each other.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- bhāḍũ
- bhāḍũ keṭlũ che?
- mẽ bhāḍũ āpyũ

Before you move on

What does ભાડું mean? (Rent, a fare.) Why આપ્યું? (ભાડું is neuter.)

152.4 (reading) — a note under the door

Say how much is the rent?, then the repair will be done tomorrow. And the word for owner: માલિક.

The shop notice spoke to everyone. This note speaks to one person, Mira, and asks her for something.

Read this

ચિઠ્ઠી

નમસ્તે મીરા બહેન, હું અરુણ છું, માલિક. ગઈકાલે તમે ફોન કર્યો: તમારી બારી ખુલ્લી રહે છે. આવતીકાલે સવારે મરામત થશે. એક માણસ આવશે. તે બારી અને દરવાજો જોશે. માણસ બપોરે જશે. શું તમે ઘરે હશો? હું પણ આવીશ. ભાડું પાંચ હજાર રૂપિયા છે. સોમવારે હું ભાડું લઈશ. ચિંતા ન કરો. આભાર, અરુણ

Read it: the note once, straight through, without translating
Read it: it a second time, and find the one line that is a question

What to know first

ખુલ્લી રહે છે is stays open: the window will not shut, and that is the reason for the note. It runs in time order: yesterday's call in the past, ફોન કર્યો; tomorrow's repair in the future, થશે, આવશે, જશે; and one question in the middle for Mira to answer.

Your turn

- Answer: who will come, and when will he leave? (A man; at midday.)
- Answer: the rent, and the day Arun collects it. (Five thousand rupees; Monday.)
- Answer: Mira will be at work tomorrow morning. What should her reply say? (No, and why, as a plan: ના. હું કામ કરવાની છું.)

Before you move on

Who is the note for? (One person, Mira.) What does it ask her? (Whether she will be at home tomorrow morning.)

152.5 The future, plans and notices — a review

Say what Arun's note asked Mira, and how much the rent was.

- Write it: ઊ once from memory

Your turn: the future and plans

Say these aloud:

- I will speak Gujarati; we will meet; she will come; when will you come?
- I will go; I will take the medicine; it will be late; she will be at home
- I'm sleepy; I'm going tomorrow, as a plan; what are you going to do?
- I'm not going to come; perhaps she'll come

Your turn: the notice

- Say it: a posted notice; the shop is open; only in the morning; a public holiday
- Answer: on a notice, which words do you hunt for first? (The whens.)

Before you move on

I will speak? (હું બોલીશ.) When will you come? (તમે ક્યારે આવશો?) It will be late? (મોડું થશે.) I'm sleepy? (મને ઊંઘ આવે છે.) I'm going tomorrow? (હું કાલે જવાનો છું, or જવાની છું.) Perhaps? (કદાચ.) Open? (ખુલ્લું.) Public? (જાહેર.)

152.6 The whole A2 core — a second pass

Say a note, then a repair.

Your turn: the note

- Say it: I wrote her a note; the repair will be done tomorrow; how much is the rent?
- Answer: what did Arun's note ask Mira? (Whether she will be at home tomorrow morning.)
- Answer: a notice or a note: which one speaks to one person? (A note: ચિઠ્ઠી.)

Your turn: one sweep

Say these aloud:

- I don't speak Gujarati; nobody is here; are you coming or not?
- their brother; I got worried; I came late; I did the work
- I drank tea; she ate rice; he took the medicine
- they will speak Gujarati; when will you come?; what are you going to do tomorrow?

Before you move on

A note? (ચિઠ્ઠી.) A repair? (મરામત.) Rent? (ભાડું.) Which tense did Arun use for the repair, and why? (The future, થશે: it has not happened yet.)

Rooms, roof and veranda

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can name the rooms and spaces of a Gujarati home.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 153: I can name the rooms and spaces of a Gujarati home.

153.1 ઓરડો (orḍo) — room

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to believe, then the Gujarati for to change.

You'll want to know: ઓરડો

ઓરડો — orḍo — "room".

> આ મારો ઓરડો છે. — ā māro orḍo che — "This is my room."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઓરડો (orḍo) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from apavaraka, "inner apartment", and CDIAL glosses the Gujarati word "principal room" (CDIAL 450).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: orḍo
- Say it: orḍo, once more
- Say it: ā māro orḍo che — This is my room.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to believe, then the Gujarati for to change, then say orḍo again

Before you move on

What does ઓરડો mean? ("Room".) Say it once more.

153.2 રસોડું (rasoḍũ) — kitchen

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to change, then the Gujarati for room.

You'll want to know: રસોડું

રસોડું — rasoḍũ — "kitchen".

> માતા રસોડામાં રાંધે છે. — mātā rasoḍāmā̃ rā̃dhe che — "Mother cooks in the kitchen."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

રસોડું (rasoḍũ) is a tadbhava. It comes from rasavāṭa*, "cooking enclosure", a reconstructed form built from rasa, "juice, flavour", and vāṭa, "enclosure"; CDIAL glosses the Gujarati word "kitchen" (CDIAL 10658).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: rasoḍũ
- Say it: rasoḍũ, once more
- Say it: mātā rasoḍāmā̃ rā̃dhe che — Mother cooks in the kitchen.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to change, then the Gujarati for room, then say rasoḍũ again

Before you move on

What does રસોડું mean? ("Kitchen".) Say it once more.

153.3 અગાસી (agāsī) — terrace, flat roof

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for room, then the Gujarati for kitchen.

You'll want to know: અગાસી

અગાસી — agāsī — "terrace, flat roof".

> ઉનાળામાં અમે અગાસીમાં સૂઈએ છીએ. — unāḷāmā̃ ame agāsīmā̃ sūīe chīe — "In summer we sleep on the terrace."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of અગાસી (agāsī) is not settled. CDIAL lists no Gujarati form of it, and EtymDB has no entry for it.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: agāsī
- Say it: agāsī, once more

- Say it: unāḷāmā̃ ame agāsīmā̃ sūīe chīe — In summer we sleep on the terrace.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for room, then the Gujarati for kitchen, then say agāsī again

Before you move on

What does અગાસી mean? ("Terrace, flat roof".) Say it once more.

153.4 ઓસરી (osrī) — veranda

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for kitchen, then the Gujarati for terrace.

You'll want to know: ઓસરી

ઓસરી — osrī — "veranda".

દાદા ઓસરીમાં બેસે છે. — dādā osrīmā̃ bese che — "Grandfather sits on the veranda."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઓસરી (osrī) is inherited, but its source is not settled. CDIAL glosses it "front portion of a house" and lists it twice: under avaśara*, "protection, shelter", and under Sanskrit upasara, "approach" (CDIAL 848, 2258).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: osrī
- Say it: osrī, once more
- Say it: dādā osrīmā̃ bese che — Grandfather sits on the veranda.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for kitchen, then the Gujarati for terrace, then say osrī again

Before you move on

What does ઓસરી mean? ("Veranda".) Say it once more.

153.5 દાદર (dādar) — stairs, staircase

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for terrace, then the Gujarati for veranda.

You'll want to know: દાદર

દાદર — dādar — "stairs, staircase".

તે દાદર ચઢે છે. — te dādar caḍhe che — "He climbs the stairs."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દાદર (dādar) is counted as inherited. CDIAL lists Gujarati dādar, "ladder", under Sanskrit dardara, "split, broken", without saying how the sense moved (CDIAL 6196).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: dādar
- Say it: dādar, once more
- Say it: te dādar caḍhe che — He climbs the stairs.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for terrace, then the Gujarati for veranda, then say dādar again

Before you move on

What does દાદર mean? ("Stairs, staircase".) Say it once more.

> Complete the last lesson of chapter 154: I can talk about the clothes people put on and take off.

154.1 કપડું (kapḍũ) — cloth, garment

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for veranda, then the Gujarati for stairs.

You'll want to know: કપડું

> આ કપડું નરમ છે. — ā kapḍũ naram che — "This cloth is soft."

The plural કપડાં, kapḍã̃, means clothes.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કપડું (kapḍũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from karpaṭa, "patched garment, rag"; CDIAL glosses the Gujarati word "any garment" and asks whether it came by way of Hindi (CDIAL 2871).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: kapḍũ
- Say it: kapḍũ, once more
- Say it: ā kapḍũ naram che — This cloth is soft.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for veranda, then the Gujarati for stairs, then say kapḍũ again

Before you move on

What does કપડું mean? ("Cloth, garment".) Say it once more.

154.2 સાડી (sāḍī) — sari

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for stairs, then the Gujarati for cloth.

You'll want to know: સાડી

સાડી — sāḍī — "sari".

મારી બહેન સાડી પહેરે છે. — mārī bahen sāḍī pahere che — "My sister wears a sari."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સાડી (sāḍī) is a tadbhava. It comes from Sanskrit śāṭa, śāṭī, "strip of cloth", and CDIAL glosses the Gujarati word "sari" (CDIAL 12381).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: sāḍī
- Say it: sāḍī, once more
- Say it: mārī bahen sāḍī pahere che — My sister wears a sari.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for stairs, then the Gujarati for cloth, then say sāḍī again

Before you move on

What does સાડી mean? ("Sari".) Say it once more.

154.3 દુપટ્ટો (dupaṭṭo) — scarf, stole

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for cloth, then the Gujarati for sari.

You'll want to know: દુપટ્ટો

દુપટ્ટો — dupaṭṭo — "scarf, stole".

તેનો દુપટ્ટો લાલ છે. — teno dupaṭṭo lāl che — "Her scarf is red."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દુપટ્ટો (dupaṭṭo) is built from du-, "two", and paṭṭo, "strip of cloth". Under Sanskrit paṭṭa, "cloth", which it thinks probably non-Aryan, CDIAL lists the kindred Gujarati pāṭ, "strip of cloth", and pāṭo, "bandage", but no form of the compound itself (CDIAL 7700).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: dupaṭṭo
- Say it: dupaṭṭo, once more

- Say it: teno dupaṭṭo lāl che — Her scarf is red.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for cloth, then the Gujarati for sari, then say dupaṭṭo again

Before you move on

What does દુપટ્ટો mean? ("Scarf, stole".) Say it once more.

154.4 ઉતારવું (utārvũ) — to take off, to take down

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for sari, then the Gujarati for scarf.

You'll want to know: ઉતારવું

ઉતારવું — utārvũ — "to take off, to take down".

તે ઘરે બૂટ ઉતારે છે. — te ghare būṭ utāre che — "He takes off his shoes at home."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઉતારવું (utārvũ) is a tadbhava. It comes from Sanskrit uttārayati, "makes come out, makes descend", and CDIAL glosses the Gujarati verb "to set down, bring down" (CDIAL 1770).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: utārvũ
- Say it: utārvũ, once more
- Say it: te ghare būṭ utāre che — He takes off his shoes at home.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for sari, then the Gujarati for scarf, then say utārvũ again

Before you move on

What does ઉતારવું mean? ("To take off, to take down".) Say it once more.

154.5 ઓઢવું (oḍhvũ) — to wrap oneself in, to cover oneself

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for scarf, then the Gujarati for to take off.

You'll want to know: ઓઢવું

ઓઢવું — oḍhvũ — "to wrap oneself in, to cover oneself".

> શિયાળામાં હું ધાબળો ઓઢું છું. — śiyāḷāmā̃ hũ dhābaḷo oḍhũ chũ — "In winter I wrap myself in a blanket."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઓઢવું (oḍhvũ) is inherited through Prakrit. It comes from ōḍḍh*, "put on, wear, cover", a reconstructed form that CDIAL takes to be borrowed from Dravidian, beside Tamil uṭu-, "to dress", though it notes that Burrow derives the Tamil verb otherwise (CDIAL 2547).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: oḍhvũ
- Say it: oḍhvũ, once more
- Say it: śiyāḷāmā̃ hũ dhābaḷo oḍhũ chũ — In winter I wrap myself in a blanket.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for scarf, then the Gujarati for to take off, then say oḍhvũ again

Before you move on

What does ઓઢવું mean? ("To wrap oneself in, to cover oneself".) Say it once more.

Getting ready in the morning

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say how I get ready in the morning.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 155: I can say how I get ready in the morning.

155.1 ઉઠાડવું (uṭhāḍvũ) — to wake someone, to get someone up

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to take off, then the Gujarati for to wrap oneself in.

You'll want to know: ઉઠાડવું

ઉઠાડવું — uṭhāḍvũ — "to wake someone, to get someone up".

> માતા મને સવારે ઉઠાડે છે. — mātā mane savāre uṭhāḍe che — "Mother wakes me in the morning."

Built on ઉઠવું, uṭhvũ, to get up: this verb is to get someone else up.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઉઠાડવું (uṭhāḍvũ) is built on the inherited uṭhvũ, "to get up", with the causative -āḍ-. CDIAL traces uṭhvũ to utsthāti*, "stands up", a reconstructed form (CDIAL 1900); it lists no Gujarati form of the causative itself.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: uṭhāḍvũ
- Say it: uṭhāḍvũ, once more
- Say it: mātā mane savāre uṭhāḍe che — Mother wakes me in the morning.

Before you move on

What does ઓળવું mean? ("To comb one's hair, to comb".) Say it once more.

155.4 અત્તર (attar) — perfume, attar

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to get ready, then the Gujarati for to comb one's hair.

You'll want to know: અત્તર

અત્તર — attar — "perfume, attar".

આ અત્તર મોંઘું છે. — ā attar moṅghũ che — "This perfume is expensive."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

અત્તર (attar) is a loan from Arabic ᶜiṭr, "perfume", which reached Gujarati through Persian; EtymDB lists the Persian word, glossed "scent". Its Arabic root is ᶜ-ṭ-r (Lane).

What you've built

155.5 લગાડવું (lagāḍvũ) — to apply, to put on

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to comb one's hair, then the Gujarati for perfume.

You'll want to know: લગાડવું

લગાડવું — lagāḍvũ — "to apply, to put on".

તે વાળમાં તેલ લગાડે છે. — te vāḷmā̃ tel lagāḍe che — "She puts oil in her hair."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

લગાડવું (lagāḍvũ) is built on the inherited lāgvũ, "to touch, to come into contact", with the causative -āḍ-. CDIAL traces lāgvũ to Sanskrit lagyati, "adheres to" (CDIAL 10895).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

> Complete the last lesson of chapter 156: I can talk about jewellery, the bindi and henna.

156.1 ઘરેણું (ghareṇũ) — ornament, piece of jewellery

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for perfume, then the Gujarati for to apply.

You'll want to know: ઘરેણું

ઘરેણું — ghareṇũ — "ornament, piece of jewellery".

> દાદી પાસે જૂનું ઘરેણું છે. — dādī pāse jūnũ ghareṇũ che — "Grandmother has an old piece of jewellery."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઘરેણું (ghareṇũ) is a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it, glossed "jewelry", under Sanskrit grahaṇa, "seizing, holding", in its second sense, "putting on (clothes)"; the same entry gives a Gujarati ghareṇe, "in pawn", under the first sense (CDIAL 4364).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

What does મેંદી mean? ("Henna".) Say it once more.

156.4 સજાવવું (sajāvvũ) — to decorate

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for bindi, then the Gujarati for henna.

You'll want to know: સજાવવું

સજાવવું — sajāvvũ — "to decorate".

> અમે દિવાળીમાં ઘર સજાવીએ છીએ. — ame divāḷīmā̃ ghar sajāvīe chīe — "We decorate the house at Diwali."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of સજાવવું (sajāvvũ) is not settled. CDIAL lists no Gujarati form of the verb; under Sanskrit sajja, "put in place, equipped", it lists Gujarati sāj, "dress, equipment", which may be related (CDIAL 13095).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: sajāvvũ
- Say it: sajāvvũ, once more
- Say it: ame divāḷīmā̃ ghar sajāvīe chīe — We decorate the house at Diwali.

- Recall: say the Gujarati for bindi, then the Gujarati for henna, then say sajāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does સજાવવું mean? ("To decorate".) Say it once more.

156.5 બાંધવું (bā̃dhvũ) — to tie, to bind

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for henna, then the Gujarati for to decorate.

You'll want to know: બાંધવું

બાંધવું — bā̃dhvũ — "to tie, to bind".

તે વાળ બાંધે છે. — te vāḷ bā̃dhe che — "She ties up her hair."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બાંધવું (bā̃dhvũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from bandhati, "binds", and CDIAL glosses the Gujarati verb "to bind, tie" (CDIAL 9139).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: bā̃dhvũ
- Say it: bā̃dhvũ, once more
- Say it: te vāḷ bā̃dhe che — She ties up her hair.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for henna, then the Gujarati for to decorate, then say bā̃dhvũ again

Before you move on

What does બાંધવું mean? ("To tie, to bind".) Say it once more.

ગોઠવવું — goṭhavvũ — "to arrange, to set out".

> તે પુસ્તકો ગોઠવે છે. — te pustako goṭhave che — "He arranges the books."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of ગોઠવવું (goṭhavvũ) is not settled. CDIAL lists no Gujarati form of it, and EtymDB has no entry for it.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: goṭhavvũ
- Say it: goṭhavvũ, once more
- Say it: te pustako goṭhave che — He arranges the books.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to decorate, then the Gujarati for to tie, then say goṭhavvũ again

Before you move on

What does ગોઠવવું mean? ("To arrange, to set out".) Say it once more.

157.2 મૂકવું (mūkvũ) — to put, to place

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to tie, then the Gujarati for to arrange.

You'll want to know: મૂકવું

મૂકવું — mūkvũ — "to put, to place".

> હું ચાવી કબાટમાં મૂકું છું. — hũ cāvī kabāṭmā̃ mūkũ chũ — "I put the key in the cupboard."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મૂકવું (mūkvũ) is a tadbhava. It comes from mukna*, "loosed", a reconstructed form beside Sanskrit mukta, "released"; CDIAL glosses the Gujarati verb "to let go, put, place" (CDIAL 10157).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: mūkvũ
- Say it: mūkvũ, once more

- Say it: hũ cāvī kabāṭmā̃ mūkũ chũ — I put the key in the cupboard.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to tie, then the Gujarati for to arrange, then say mūkvũ again

Before you move on

What does મૂકવું mean? ("To put, to place".) Say it once more.

157.3 ટાંગવું (ṭā̃gvũ) — to hang up

> તે કોટ કબાટમાં ટાંગે છે. — te koṭ kabāṭmā̃ ṭā̃ge che — "He hangs his coat in the cupboard."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ટાંગવું (ṭā̃gvũ) is a tadbhava. It comes from ṭaṅg*, "hang up", a reconstructed form, and CDIAL glosses the Gujarati verb the same way (CDIAL 5436).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭā̃gvũ
- Say it: ṭā̃gvũ, once more
- Say it: te koṭ kabāṭmā̃ ṭā̃ge che — He hangs his coat in the cupboard.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to arrange, then the Gujarati for to put, then say ṭā̃gvũ again

Before you move on

157.4 પડદો (paḍdo) — curtain

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to put, then the Gujarati for to hang up.

You'll want to know: પડદો

પડદો — paḍdo — "curtain".

બારીનો પડદો ભૂરો છે. — bārīno paḍdo bhūro che — "The window curtain is blue."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પડદો (paḍdo) is a loan, usually traced to Persian parda, "curtain, veil". CDIAL, which follows inherited words, lists no Gujarati form.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: paḍdo
- Say it: paḍdo, once more
- Say it: bārīno paḍdo bhūro che — The window curtain is blue.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to put, then the Gujarati for to hang up, then say paḍdo again

Before you move on

What does પડદો mean? ("Curtain".) Say it once more.

157.5 છાજલી (chājlī) — shelf

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to hang up, then the Gujarati for curtain.

You'll want to know: છાજલી

છાજલી — chājlī — "shelf".

> છાજલીમાં ત્રણ પુસ્તકો છે. — chājlīmā̃ traṇ pustako che — "There are three books on the shelf."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of છાજલી (chājlī) is not settled. CDIAL lists no Gujarati form of it; it lists Gujarati chāj, "thatch", and chājũ, "thatched lean-to shed", but does not link them to a shelf (CDIAL 5023).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

158.1 સાફ કરવું (sāph karvũ) — to clean up, to clean

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for curtain, then the Gujarati for shelf.

You'll want to know: સાફ કરવું

સાફ કરવું — sāph karvũ — "to clean up, to clean".

> અમે રોજ ઘર સાફ કરીએ છીએ. — ame roj ghar sāph karīe chīe — "We clean the house every day."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સાફ કરવું (sāph karvũ) is built from sāph, "clean", and the inherited karvũ, "to do". Sāph is a loan from Persian sāf, "clear, pure" (EtymDB), which comes from Arabic; its Arabic root is ṣ-f-w, "to be clear" (Lane).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

> Complete the last lesson of chapter 161: I can say what I move, cover and shake out at home.

161.1 ખસેડવું (khaseḍvũ) — to move, to shift

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for electric light, then the Gujarati for to put out.

You'll want to know: ખસેડવું

ખસેડવું — khaseḍvũ — "to move, to shift".

> અમે પલંગ ખસેડીએ છીએ. — ame palaṅg khaseḍīe chīe — "We move the bed."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખસેડવું (khaseḍvũ) is built on the inherited khasvũ, "to slide, move", with a causative ending. CDIAL traces khasvũ to khasati*, "falls, slips", a reconstructed form (CDIAL 3856).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: khaseḍvũ
- Say it: khaseḍvũ, once more
- Say it: ame palaṅg khaseḍīe chīe — We move the bed.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for electric light, then the Gujarati for to put out, then say khaseḍvũ again

Before you move on

What does ખસેડવું mean? ("To move, to shift".) Say it once more.

161.2 ખંખેરવું (khankhervũ) — to shake out, to dust off

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to put out, then the Gujarati for to move.

You'll want to know: ખંખેરવું

ખંખેરવું — khankhervũ — "to shake out, to dust off".

તે ચાદર ખંખેરે છે. — te cādar khaṅkhere che — "She shakes the dust out of the sheet."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખંખેરવું (khankhervũ) is a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it, glossed "to shake off dust", under khaṅkhālayati*, "rinses", a reconstructed form it takes to imitate a sound (CDIAL 3762).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: khankhervũ
- Say it: khankhervũ, once more
- Say it: te cādar khaṅkhere che — She shakes the dust out of the sheet.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to put out, then the Gujarati for to move, then say khankhervũ again

Before you move on

What does ખંખેરવું mean? ("To shake out, to dust off".) Say it once more.

161.3 ઢાંકવું (ḍhā̃kvũ) — to cover

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to move, then the Gujarati for to shake out.

You'll want to know: ઢાંકવું

ઢાંકવું — ḍhā̃kvũ — "to cover".

> માતા તપેલી ઢાંકે છે. — mātā tapelī ḍhā̃ke che — "Mother covers the pot."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઢાંકવું (ḍhā̃kvũ) is a tadbhava. It comes from ḍhakk*, ḍhaṅk*, "cover", a reconstructed form beside Sanskrit ḍhakkana, "shutting" (CDIAL 5574).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: ḍhā̃kvũ
- Say it: ḍhā̃kvũ, once more
- Say it: mātā tapelī ḍhā̃ke che — Mother covers the pot.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to move, then the Gujarati for to shake out, then say ḍhā̃kvũ again

Before you move on

What does ઢાંકવું mean? ("To cover".) Say it once more.

161.4 તૂટવું (tūṭvũ) — to break, to get broken

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to shake out, then the Gujarati for to cover.

You'll want to know: તૂટવું

તૂટવું — tūṭvũ — "to break, to get broken".

> પાતળી સોય જલદી તૂટે છે. — pātḷī soy jaldī tūṭe che — "A thin needle breaks quickly."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તૂટવું (tūṭvũ) is a tadbhava. It comes from Sanskrit truṭyati, "is broken, falls apart", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati tuṭvũ, "is broken" (CDIAL 6065).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: tūṭvũ
- Say it: tūṭvũ, once more

- Say it: pātḷī soy jaldī tūṭe che — A thin needle breaks quickly.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to shake out, then the Gujarati for to cover, then say tūṭvũ again

Before you move on

What does તૂટવું mean? ("To break, to get broken".) Say it once more.

161.5 ભેગું કરવું (bhegũ karvũ) — to gather, to collect

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to cover, then the Gujarati for to break.

You'll want to know: ભેગું કરવું

ભેગું કરવું — bhegũ karvũ — "to gather, to collect".

> તે કચરો ભેગો કરે છે. — te kacro bhego kare che — "He gathers up the rubbish."

Here ભેગો agrees with કચરો.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ભેગું કરવું (bhegũ karvũ) is built from bhegũ, "together, collected", and the inherited karvũ, "to do". CDIAL lists bhegũ, "collected, mixed together", under bhēkkha*, bhēgga*, "lump", a reconstructed form (CDIAL 9602).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: bhegũ karvũ
- Say it: bhegũ karvũ, once more

- Say it: te kacro bhego kare che — He gathers up the rubbish.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to cover, then the Gujarati for to break, then say bhegũ karvũ again

Before you move on

What does ભેગું કરવું mean? ("To gather, to collect".) Say it once more.

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for bell, then the Gujarati for to tidy up.

You'll want to know: માટલું

માટલું — māṭlũ — "clay pot, water pot".

માટલામાં પાણી છે. — māṭlāmā̃ pāṇī che — "There is water in the clay pot."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

માટલું (māṭlũ) is a tadbhava. It comes from mārtta*, "earthen", beside Sanskrit mārttika, "earthen pot", and CDIAL glosses the Gujarati word "large earthen pot" (CDIAL 10085).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: māṭlũ
- Say it: māṭlũ, once more
- Say it: māṭlāmā̃ pāṇī che — There is water in the clay pot.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for bell, then the Gujarati for to tidy up, then say māṭlũ again

Before you move on

What does માટલું mean? ("Clay pot, water pot".) Say it once more.

162.5 ખૂણો (khūṇo) — corner

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to tidy up, then the Gujarati for clay pot.

You'll want to know: ખૂણો

ખૂણો — khūṇo — "corner".

> માટલું રસોડાના ખૂણામાં છે. — māṭlũ rasoḍānā khūṇāmā̃ che — "The clay pot is in the corner of the kitchen."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખૂણો (khūṇo) is a tadbhava. It comes from khuṇṭa*, "corner", a reconstructed form, crossed with Sanskrit koṇa, "corner"; CDIAL lists the Gujarati khūṇo, "corner" (CDIAL 3898).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: khūṇo
- Say it: khūṇo, once more

Chapter 175

Full moon and new moon

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about the full moon, the new moon and the end of the month.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 175: I can talk about the full moon, the new moon and the end of the month.

175.1 પૂનમ (pūnam) — full moon day

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for wall calendar, then the Gujarati for beginning.

You'll want to know: પૂનમ

પૂનમ — pūnam — "full moon day".

> પૂનમે અમે મંદિરે જઈશું. — pūname ame mandire jaīśũ — "We will go to the temple on the full moon day."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પૂનમ (pūnam) is usually traced to Sanskrit pūrṇimā, "full-moon day", and EtymDB derives it from that word, but the path is not settled: CDIAL lists the Sanskrit word with no Gujarati form under it (CDIAL 8340).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: pūnam
- Say it: pūnam, once more
- Say it: pūname ame mandire jaīśũ — We will go to the temple on the full moon day.

> મારી પાસે દસ રૂપિયા બચે છે. — mārī pāse das rūpiyā bace che — "I have ten rupees left over."

બચાવવું saves a thing; બચવું is what is left or spared.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બચવું (bacvũ) goes back to Sanskrit váñcati, "moves; escapes from", but CDIAL marks the Gujarati verb, glossed "to escape", as borrowed from Hindi bacnā, "to escape"; the taught bacāvvũ, "to save", is its causative (CDIAL 11208).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: bacvũ
- Say it: bacvũ, once more
- Say it: mārī pāse das rūpiyā bace che — I have ten rupees left over.

212.3 રાહદારી (rāhdārī) — pedestrian, passer-by

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for rest house, then the Gujarati for guide.

You'll want to know: રાહદારી

રાહદારી — rāhdārī — "pedestrian, passer-by".

> એક રાહદારીએ મને સરનામું કહ્યું. — ek rāhdārīe mane sarnāmũ kahyũ — "A passer-by told me the address."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

રાહદારી (rāhdārī) is built from rāh, "road, way", usually traced to Persian rāh, "road", the Persian suffix -dār, "holder", and the ending -ī: one who keeps to the road.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: rāhdārī
- Say it: rāhdārī, once more

- Recall: say the Gujarati for rest house, then the Gujarati for guide, then say rāhdārī again

Before you move on

What does રાહદારી mean? ("Pedestrian, passer-by".) Say it once more.

212.4 સુરંગ (surang) — tunnel

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for guide, then the Gujarati for pedestrian.

You'll want to know: સુરંગ

સુરંગ — surang — "tunnel".

ટ્રેન લાંબી સુરંગમાંથી ગઈ. — ṭren lā̃bī surangmā̃thī gaī — "The train went through a long tunnel."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સુરંગ (surang) is a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it, glossed "underground passage, mine for blasting", under Sanskrit suruṅgā, "subterranean passage, mine" (CDIAL 13506).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: surang
- Say it: surang, once more
- Say it: ṭren lā̃bī surangmā̃thī gaī — The train went through a long tunnel.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for guide, then the Gujarati for pedestrian, then say surang again

Before you move on

What does સુરંગ mean? ("Tunnel".) Say it once more.

212.5 મુસાફરખાનું (musāpharkhānũ) — waiting room

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for pedestrian, then the Gujarati for tunnel.

You'll want to know: મુસાફરખાનું

મુસાફરખાનું — musāpharkhānũ — "waiting room".

> મુસાફરખાનું ભરેલું હતું. — musāpharkhānũ bharelũ hatũ — "The waiting room was full."

Built on મુસાફર, musāphar, 'traveller'.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મુસાફરખાનું (musāpharkhānũ) is built from musāphar, "traveller", a loan from Arabic musāfir that reached Gujarati through Persian, and khānũ, "house, room", from Persian khāna. The Arabic root is s-f-r, "to journey" (Lane).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: musāpharkhānũ
- Say it: musāpharkhānũ, once more
- Say it: musāpharkhānũ bharelũ hatũ — The waiting room was full.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for pedestrian, then the Gujarati for tunnel, then say musāpharkhānũ again

Before you move on

What does મુસાફરખાનું mean? ("Waiting room".) Say it once more.

To ride? (સવારી કરવી.) To steer? (હંકારવું.) Pilgrimage? (યાત્રા.) Vehicle? (વાહન.) Rest house? (ધર્મશાળા.) Guide? (ભોમિયો.) Pedestrian? (રાહદારી.) Tunnel? (સુરંગ.) Waiting room? (મુસાફરખાનું.)

212.7 Resting on the way — once more

Say the Gujarati for rest house and guide.

Your turn

- Say it: rest house, guide, pedestrian, tunnel, waiting room

Before you move on

Rest house? (ધર્મશાળા.) Guide? (ભોમિયો.) Pedestrian? (રાહદારી.) Tunnel? (સુરંગ.) Waiting room? (મુસાફરખાનું.)

Chapter 213

Tomorrow's weather

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what the weather will be like tomorrow.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 213: I can say what the weather will be like tomorrow.

213.1 હવામાન (havāmān) — weather, climate

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to believe, then the Gujarati for to change.

You'll want to know: હવામાન

હવામાન — havāmān — "weather, climate".

> કાલે હવામાન સારું હશે. — kāle havāmān sārũ haśe — "The weather will be good tomorrow."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હવામાન (havāmān) is built from two older words: havā, "air", a loan from Arabic hawā', which reached Gujarati through Persian (Lane, under the root h-w-y), and mān, "measure", from Sanskrit māna. CDIAL has no entry for the compound.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: havāmān
- Say it: havāmān, once more
- Say it: kāle havāmān sārũ haśe — The weather will be good tomorrow.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to believe, then the Gujarati for to change, then say havāmān again

Before you move on

What does હવામાન mean? ("Weather, climate".) Say it once more.

213.2 તડકો (taḍko) — sunshine, the sun's heat

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to change, then the Gujarati for weather.

You'll want to know: તડકો

તડકો — taḍko — "sunshine, the sun's heat".

> આવતીકાલે તડકો હશે. — āvtīkāle taḍko haśe — "It will be sunny tomorrow."

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of તડકો (taḍko) is not settled. CDIAL lists no Gujarati form like it; its nearest entry, Sanskrit tāpa, "heat", gives Old Gujarati tāvaḍu, "heat of the sun", but no link to taḍko is made there (CDIAL 5767).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: taḍko
- Say it: taḍko, once more
- Say it: āvtīkāle taḍko haśe — It will be sunny tomorrow.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to change, then the Gujarati for weather, then say taḍko again

Before you move on

What does તડકો mean? ("Sunshine, the sun's heat".) Say it once more.

213.3 ઠંડું (ṭhanḍũ) — cold, cool

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for weather, then the Gujarati for sunshine.

You'll want to know: ઠંડું

ઠંડું — ṭhanḍũ — "cold, cool".

રાત્રે પાણી ઠંડું હશે. — rātre pāṇī ṭhanḍũ haśe — "The water will be cold at night."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઠંડું (ṭhanḍũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. CDIAL lists it, glossed "cold", under stabdha, "firmly fixed; stiff; solidified (as water)", by way of a reshaped ṭhaṇḍha-*, so cold is what has set hard (CDIAL 13676).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭhanḍũ
- Say it: ṭhanḍũ, once more
- Say it: rātre pāṇī ṭhanḍũ haśe — The water will be cold at night.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for weather, then the Gujarati for sunshine, then say ṭhanḍũ again

Before you move on

What does ઠંડું mean? ("Cold, cool".) Say it once more.

213.4 વાદળછાયું (vādaḷchāyũ) — cloudy, overcast

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for sunshine, then the Gujarati for cold.

You'll want to know: વાદળછાયું

વાદળછાયું — vādaḷchāyũ — "cloudy, overcast".

કાલે આકાશ વાદળછાયું હશે. — kāle ākāś vādaḷchāyũ haśe — "The sky will be cloudy tomorrow."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

વાદળછાયું (vādaḷchāyũ) is built from vādaḷ, "cloud", inherited from Sanskrit vārdala, "rainy day" (CDIAL 11567), and chāyũ, "covered", from the verb chāvũ, "to cover", which CDIAL lists, glossed "to thatch", under Sanskrit chādayati, "covers, veils" (CDIAL 5018).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: vādaḷchāyũ
- Say it: vādaḷchāyũ, once more

- Say it: kāle ākāś vādaḷchāyũ haśe — The sky will be cloudy tomorrow.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for sunshine, then the Gujarati for cold, then say vādaḷchāyũ again

Before you move on

What does વાદળછાયું mean? ("Cloudy, overcast".) Say it once more.

213.5 વરસવું (varasvũ) — to pour down, to rain

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for cold, then the Gujarati for cloudy.

You'll want to know: વરસવું

વરસવું — varasvũ — "to pour down, to rain".

> આવતીકાલે વરસાદ વરસશે. — āvtīkāle varsād varasśe — "It will pour with rain tomorrow."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

વરસવું (varasvũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from varṣati, "it rains" (CDIAL 11394).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: varasvũ
- Say it: varasvũ, once more
- Say it: āvtīkāle varsād varasśe — It will pour with rain tomorrow.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for cold, then the Gujarati for cloudy, then say varasvũ again

Before you move on

What does વરસવું mean? ("To pour down, to rain".) Say it once more.

Chapter 214

Rain on the way

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say that rain will fall and that I will get wet.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 214: I can say that rain will fall and that I will get wet.

214.1 પડવું (paḍvũ) — to fall, to happen

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for cloudy, then the Gujarati for to pour down.

You'll want to know: પડવું

> સાંજે વરસાદ પડશે. — sā̃je varsād paḍśe — "It will rain in the evening."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પડવું (paḍvũ) is a tadbhava. It comes from Sanskrit patati, "flies; falls", and CDIAL glosses the Gujarati verb "to fall, happen" (CDIAL 7722).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: paḍvũ
- Say it: paḍvũ, once more
- Say it: sā̃je varsād paḍśe — It will rain in the evening.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for cloudy, then the Gujarati for to pour down, then say paḍvũ again

Before you move on

What does પડવું mean? ("To fall, to happen".) Say it once more.

214.2 ધોધમાર (dhodhmār) — pouring, torrential

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to pour down, then the Gujarati for to fall.

You'll want to know: ધોધમાર

ધોધમાર — dhodhmār — "pouring, torrential".

> કાલે ધોધમાર વરસાદ પડશે. — kāle dhodhmār varsād paḍśe — "There will be very heavy rain tomorrow."

It does not change for gender.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ધોધમાર (dhodhmār) is built on dhodh, "waterfall", so the rain comes down like a waterfall. The second part, -mār, is often linked to mārvũ, "to strike", but CDIAL lists no form of the compound, so its make-up is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: dhodhmār
- Say it: dhodhmār, once more
- Say it: kāle dhodhmār varsād paḍśe — There will be very heavy rain tomorrow.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to pour down, then the Gujarati for to fall, then say dhodhmār again

Before you move on

What does ધોધમાર mean? ("Pouring, torrential".) Say it once more.

214.3 ટીપું (ṭīpũ) — a drop

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to fall, then the Gujarati for pouring.

You'll want to know: ટીપું

ટીપું — ṭīpũ — "a drop".

પાણીનું એક ટીપું પડશે. — pāṇīnũ ek ṭīpũ paḍśe — "A drop of water will fall."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ટીપું (ṭīpũ) comes from ṭipp*, "drip, drop", one of a set of imitative reconstructed forms that CDIAL gathers under ṭapp*; it lists Gujarati ṭīpũ, "drop" (CDIAL 5444).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭīpũ
- Say it: ṭīpũ, once more

- Say it: pāṇīnũ ek ṭīpũ paḍśe — A drop of water will fall.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to fall, then the Gujarati for pouring, then say ṭīpũ again

Before you move on

What does ટીપું mean? ("A drop".) Say it once more.

214.4 ટપકવું (ṭapakvũ) — to drip, to leak

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for pouring, then the Gujarati for a drop.

You'll want to know: ટપકવું

ટપકવું — ṭapakvũ — "to drip, to leak".

વરસાદમાં છત ટપકશે. — varsādmā̃ chat ṭapakśe — "The roof will leak in the rain."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ટપકવું (ṭapakvũ) is built on ṭapp*, "drip, drop", an imitative reconstructed form. CDIAL lists the Gujarati noun ṭapkũ, "drop", there, but not the verb itself (CDIAL 5444).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭapakvũ
- Say it: ṭapakvũ, once more

- Recall: say the Gujarati for pouring, then the Gujarati for a drop, then say ṭapakvũ again

Before you move on

What does ટપકવું mean? ("To drip, to leak".) Say it once more.

214.5 પલળવું (palaḷvũ) — to get soaked, to get wet

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a drop, then the Gujarati for to drip.

You'll want to know: પલળવું

પલળવું — palaḷvũ — "to get soaked, to get wet".

> હું વરસાદમાં પલળીશ. — hũ varsādmā̃ palaḷīś — "I will get soaked in the rain."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પલળવું (palaḷvũ) is probably a tadbhava. CDIAL lists its transitive partner palāḷvũ, "to make wet, soak", under pralālayate*, "slobbers", a reconstructed form; palaḷvũ itself is not listed (CDIAL 8759).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: palaḷvũ
- Say it: palaḷvũ, once more
- Say it: hũ varsādmā̃ palaḷīś — I will get soaked in the rain.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a drop, then the Gujarati for to drip, then say palaḷvũ again

Before you move on

What does પલળવું mean? ("To get soaked, to get wet".) Say it once more.

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for temperature, then the Gujarati for degree.

You'll want to know: હવા

હવા — havā — "air".

> સવારે હવા ઠંડી હશે. — savāre havā ṭhanḍī haśe — "The air will be cool in the morning."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હવા (havā) is a loan from Arabic hawā', "air", which reached Gujarati through Persian. Its Arabic root is h-w-y (Lane).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: havā
- Say it: havā, once more
- Say it: savāre havā ṭhanḍī haśe — The air will be cool in the morning.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for temperature, then the Gujarati for degree, then say havā again

- Recall: say the Gujarati for patient, then the Gujarati for pulse, then say dhabakvũ again

Before you move on

What does ધબકવું mean? ("To throb, to beat".) Say it once more.

224.5 શ્વાસ (śvās) — breath

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for pulse, then the Gujarati for to throb.

You'll want to know: શ્વાસ

શ્વાસ — śvās — "breath".

શું તે શ્વાસ લે છે? — śũ te śvās le che? — "Is he breathing?"

A masculine noun. With લેવું it means to breathe.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

શ્વાસ (śvās) is Sanskrit śvāsa, "breath, breathing", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama. The inherited form of the same word is Gujarati sās, "breath" (CDIAL 12769).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

225.1 ચક્કર (cakkar) — dizziness, a turn

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to throb, then the Gujarati for breath.

You'll want to know: ચક્કર

ચક્કર — cakkar — "dizziness, a turn".

> શું તમને ચક્કર આવે છે? — śũ tamne cakkar āve che? — "Do you feel dizzy?"

A neuter noun. Word for word, does a turn come to you.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ચક્કર (cakkar) is usually traced to Sanskrit cakra, "wheel", so dizziness is the head going round. CDIAL lists only the inherited Gujarati cāk, "wheel", under cakra, not cakkar itself (CDIAL 4538).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: cakkar
- Say it: cakkar, once more
- Say it: śũ tamne cakkar āve che? — Do you feel dizzy?

225.4 બગાસું ખાવું (bagāsũ khāvũ) — to yawn

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to vomit, then the Gujarati for to digest.

You'll want to know: બગાસું ખાવું

બગાસું ખાવું — bagāsũ khāvũ — "to yawn".

> શું બાળક બગાસું ખાય છે? — śũ bāḷak bagāsũ khāy che? — "Is the child yawning?"

Word for word, to eat a yawn: બગાસું, bagāsũ, and ખાવું, khāvũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બગાસું ખાવું (bagāsũ khāvũ) is built from bagāsũ, "a yawn", and the inherited verb khāvũ, "to eat". The origin of bagāsũ is not settled: CDIAL lists no Gujarati form for it.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: bagāsũ khāvũ
- Say it: bagāsũ khāvũ, once more
- Say it: śũ bāḷak bagāsũ khāy che? — Is the child yawning?

- Recall: say the Gujarati for skin, then the Gujarati for blister, then say kā̃ḍũ again

Before you move on

What does કાંડું mean? ("Wrist".) Say it once more.

229.2 અંગૂઠો (angūṭho) — thumb, big toe

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for blister, then the Gujarati for wrist.

You'll want to know: અંગૂઠો

અંગૂઠો — angūṭho — "thumb, big toe".

મારો અંગૂઠો નથી દુખતો. — māro angūṭho nathī dukhto — "My thumb does not hurt."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

અંગૂઠો (angūṭho) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from aṅguṣṭha, "thumb; big toe" (CDIAL 137).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: angūṭho
- Say it: angūṭho, once more
- Say it: māro angūṭho nathī dukhto — My thumb does not hurt.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for blister, then the Gujarati for wrist, then say angūṭho again

What does અંગૂઠો mean? ("Thumb, big toe".) Say it once more.

229.3 ઘૂંટી (ghũṭī) — ankle

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for wrist, then the Gujarati for thumb.

You'll want to know: ઘૂંટી

ઘૂંટી — ghũṭī — "ankle".

> શું તમારી ઘૂંટી સૂજે છે? — śũ tamārī ghũṭī sūje che? — "Is your ankle swelling?"

Not ઘૂંટણ, the knee.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઘૂંટી (ghũṭī) is inherited. CDIAL lists it, glossed "ankle joint", under the lexical Sanskrit ghuṭa, "ankle", which it takes from Dravidian, after T. Burrow (CDIAL 4479).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: ghũṭī
- Say it: ghũṭī, once more
- Say it: śũ tamārī ghũṭī sūje che? — Is your ankle swelling?
- Recall: say the Gujarati for wrist, then the Gujarati for thumb, then say ghũṭī again

Before you move on

What does ઘૂંટી mean? ("Ankle".) Say it once more.

229.4 એડી (eḍī) — heel

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for thumb, then the Gujarati for ankle.

You'll want to know: એડી

એડી — eḍī — "heel".

મારી એડી નથી દુખતી. — mārī eḍī nathī dukhtī — "My heel does not hurt."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

એડી (eḍī) comes from aḍḍi*, "heel", a reconstructed form; CDIAL notes J. Bloch's view that it was borrowed from Dravidian, as in Tamil aḍi (CDIAL 191).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: eḍī
- Say it: eḍī, once more

- Say it: mārī eḍī nathī dukhtī — My heel does not hurt.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for thumb, then the Gujarati for ankle, then say eḍī again

Before you move on

230.1 દાઢ (dāḍh) — molar, back tooth

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for heel, then the Gujarati for rib.

You'll want to know: દાઢ

દાઢ — dāḍh — "molar, back tooth".

> મારી દાઢ હવે નથી દુખતી. — mārī dāḍh have nathī dukhtī — "My back tooth doesn't hurt any more."

Not દાઢી, a beard.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દાઢ (dāḍh) is a tadbhava. It comes from dāṁṣṭra*, "fang, tusk", beside Sanskrit daṁṣṭra, "tusk, fang"; CDIAL glosses the Gujarati word "molar" (CDIAL 6250).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: dāḍh
- Say it: dāḍh, once more
- Say it: mārī dāḍh have nathī dukhtī — My back tooth doesn't hurt any more.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for heel, then the Gujarati for rib, then say dāḍh again

Before you move on

What does દાઢ mean? ("Molar, back tooth".) Say it once more.

230.2 જડબું (jaḍbũ) — jaw

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for rib, then the Gujarati for molar.

You'll want to know: જડબું

જડબું — jaḍbũ — "jaw".

> શું તમારું જડબું દુખે છે? — śũ tamārũ jaḍbũ dukhe che? — "Does your jaw hurt?"

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of જડબું (jaḍbũ) is not settled: CDIAL lists no Gujarati form for it, and none of its entries for the jaw holds the word.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: jaḍbũ
- Say it: jaḍbũ, once more
- Say it: śũ tamārũ jaḍbũ dukhe che? — Does your jaw hurt?
- Recall: say the Gujarati for rib, then the Gujarati for molar, then say jaḍbũ again

Before you move on

What does જડબું mean? ("Jaw".) Say it once more.

230.3 આંસુ (ãsu) — tear, teardrop

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for molar, then the Gujarati for jaw.

You'll want to know: આંસુ

આંસુ — ãsu — "tear, teardrop".

> તેની આંખમાં આંસુ નથી. — tenī ãkhmã ãsu nathī — "There are no tears in her eyes."

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

આંસુ (ãsu) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from aśru, "tear", which picked up its nasal early, as the word for eye did (CDIAL 919).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: ãsu
- Say it: ãsu, once more
- Say it: tenī ãkhmã ãsu nathī — There are no tears in her eyes.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for molar, then the Gujarati for jaw, then say ãsu again

Before you move on

What does આંસુ mean? ("Tear, teardrop".) Say it once more.

230.4 પીડાવું (pīḍāvũ) — to suffer, to be in pain

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for jaw, then the Gujarati for tear.

You'll want to know: પીડાવું

પીડાવું — pīḍāvũ — "to suffer, to be in pain".

> શું દર્દી પીડાય છે? — śũ dardī pīḍāy che? — "Is the patient in pain?"

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પીડાવું (pīḍāvũ) is built on pīḍā, "pain, damage", a Sanskrit word taken over whole; CDIAL lists the inherited Gujarati pīḍ, "pain", under it (CDIAL 8227).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: pīḍāvũ
- Say it: pīḍāvũ, once more

- Say it: śũ dardī pīḍāy che? — Is the patient in pain?

230.5 બેભાન થવું (bebhān thavũ) — to faint, to pass out

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for tear, then the Gujarati for to suffer.

You'll want to know: બેભાન થવું

બેભાન થવું — bebhān thavũ — "to faint, to pass out".

શું તે બેભાન થયો? — śũ te bebhān thayo? — "Did he faint?"

Word for word, to become senseless: બેભાન, bebhān, and થવું, thavũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બેભાન થવું (bebhān thavũ) is built from bebhān, "senseless", and thavũ, "to become". Bebhān is usually explained as the Persian prefix be-, "without", joined to bhān, "awareness", usually traced to Sanskrit bhāna, "appearance" (CDIAL 9451); CDIAL lists no Gujarati form of the whole.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: bebhān thavũ
- Say it: bebhān thavũ, once more

- Say it: śũ te bebhān thayo? — Did he faint?
- Recall: say the Gujarati for tear, then the Gujarati for to suffer, then say bebhān thavũ again

Before you move on

What does બેભાન થવું mean? ("To faint, to pass out".) Say it once more.

Chapter 231

Pills and ointment

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can ask about pills, ointment and treatment.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 231: I can ask about pills, ointment and treatment.

231.1 ગોળી (goḷī) — pill, tablet

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to suffer, then the Gujarati for to faint.

You'll want to know: ગોળી

ગોળી — goḷī — "pill, tablet".

> હું રાત્રે ગોળી નથી લેતો. — hũ rātre goḷī nathī leto — "I don't take the pill at night."

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગોળી (goḷī) is a tadbhava. It comes from Sanskrit gola, "ball", through golikā, "little ball", and CDIAL glosses the Gujarati word "pill" (CDIAL 4321).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: goḷī
- Say it: goḷī, once more
- Say it: hũ rātre goḷī nathī leto — I don't take the pill at night.

231.5 મટવું (maṭvũ) — to be cured, to clear up

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for nurse, then the Gujarati for treatment.

You'll want to know: મટવું

મટવું — maṭvũ — "to be cured, to clear up".

> શું તમારો તાવ મટ્યો? — śũ tamāro tāv maṭyo? — "Has your fever gone?"

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મટવું (maṭvũ) is probably a tadbhava. CDIAL lists it, glossed "to be rubbed out", under Sanskrit mṛṣṭa, "rubbed, washed", though it calls one change of sound unexplained (CDIAL 10299); an illness that is cured is rubbed out.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: maṭvũ
- Say it: maṭvũ, once more
- Say it: śũ tamāro tāv maṭyo? — Has your fever gone?

Before you move on

What does પાળવું mean? ("To keep a pet, to rear; to obey".) Say it once more.

235.4 ચાટવું (cāṭvũ) — to lick

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to bite, then the Gujarati for to keep a pet.

You'll want to know: ચાટવું

ચાટવું — cāṭvũ — "to lick".

તેણે મારો હાથ ચાટ્યો. — teṇe māro hāth cāṭyo — "It licked my hand."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ચાટવું (cāṭvũ) comes from caṭṭ*, "lick, taste", a reconstructed form that CDIAL thinks may be imitative; it lists the Gujarati verb, glossed "to lick" (CDIAL 4573).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: cāṭvũ
- Say it: cāṭvũ, once more

236.1 પંખી (pankhī) — bird

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to lick, then the Gujarati for tail.

You'll want to know: પંખી

પંખી — pankhī — "bird".

> સવારે એક પંખી આવ્યું. — savāre ek pankhī āvyũ — "A bird came in the morning."

Not પંખો, a fan.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પંખી (pankhī) is a tadbhava. It comes from Sanskrit pakṣin, "winged; bird", built on pakṣa, "wing" (CDIAL 7636).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: pankhī
- Say it: pankhī, once more

236.3 ડાળી (ḍāḷī) — branch, twig

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for bird, then the Gujarati for neem tree.

You'll want to know: ડાળી

ડાળી — ḍāḷī — "branch, twig".

> ગઈકાલે લીમડાની ડાળી પડી. — gaīkāle līmḍānī ḍāḷī paḍī — "Yesterday a branch of the neem tree fell."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ડાળી (ḍāḷī) is inherited from the late Sanskrit ḍāla, "branch"; CDIAL lists Gujarati ḍāḷī, "branch", and notes that the many shapes of the word point to a non-Aryan, perhaps Munda, source (CDIAL 5546).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: ḍāḷī

- Say it: ḍāḷī, once more

Before you move on

What does ચાંચ mean? ("Beak".) Say it once more.

236.5 ચણવું (caṇvũ) — to peck

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for branch, then the Gujarati for beak.

You'll want to know: ચણવું

ચણવું — caṇvũ — "to peck".

> ચકલી આંગણામાં ચણી. — caklī ā̃gaṇāmā̃ caṇī — "The sparrow pecked in the courtyard."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of ચણવું (caṇvũ) in the sense "to peck" is not settled. CDIAL lists Gujarati caṇvũ only as "to build", under Sanskrit cinoti, "heaps up" (CDIAL 4814), and gives cugvũ as the word for a bird pecking (CDIAL 4852).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

243.1 પાઠ (pāṭh) — lesson, reading

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to believe, then the Gujarati for to change.

You'll want to know: પાઠ

પાઠ — pāṭh — "lesson, reading".

> આજે અમે નવો પાઠ ભણીએ છીએ. — āje ame navo pāṭh bhaṇīe chīe — "Today we study a new lesson."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પાઠ (pāṭh) is Sanskrit pāṭha, "text of a book; study", taken over whole as a learned loan, a tatsama (CDIAL 8035).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: pāṭh
- Say it: pāṭh, once more
- Say it: āje ame navo pāṭh bhaṇīe chīe — Today we study a new lesson.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to believe, then the Gujarati for to change, then say pāṭh again

Before you move on

What does પાઠ mean? ("Lesson, reading".) Say it once more.

243.2 ગોખવું (gokhvũ) — to learn by heart, to cram

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to change, then the Gujarati for lesson.

You'll want to know: ગોખવું

ગોખવું — gokhvũ — "to learn by heart, to cram".

તે રોજ પાઠ ગોખે છે. — te roj pāṭh gokhe che — "He learns the lesson by heart every day."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of ગોખવું (gokhvũ) is not settled. CDIAL lists no Gujarati verb of this form with the meaning "to learn by rote", and our other sources do not trace it.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

261.1 પતંગ (patang) — kite

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to guess, then the Gujarati for to choose.

You'll want to know: પતંગ

પતંગ — patang — "kite".

> મારો પતંગ દૂર ગયો. — māro patang dūr gayo — "My kite went far."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પતંગ (patang) comes from Sanskrit pataṅga, "bird; flying insect", taken over in a learned shape and used for the paper kite (CDIAL 7721). CDIAL lists no Gujarati form.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: patang
- Say it: patang, once more
- Say it: māro patang dūr gayo — My kite went far.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to guess, then the Gujarati for to choose, then say patang again

Before you move on

What does પતંગ mean? ("Kite".) Say it once more.

261.2 ઉડાડવું (uḍāḍvũ) — to fly a kite, to make fly

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to choose, then the Gujarati for kite.

You'll want to know: ઉડાડવું

ઉડાડવું — uḍāḍvũ — "to fly a kite, to make fly".

> અમે બપોરે પતંગ ઉડાડ્યા. — ame bapore patang uḍāḍyā — "We flew kites in the afternoon."

The causative of ઊડવું, ūḍvũ, to fly up: to make something fly.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઉડાડવું (uḍāḍvũ), to make something fly, is a causative of the inherited ūḍvũ, "to fly up". CDIAL lists that verb, as uḍvũ, under Sanskrit uḍḍīyatē, "flies up", and uḍāḍvũ under its causative uḍḍāpayati (CDIAL 1697).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: uḍāḍvũ
- Say it: uḍāḍvũ, once more
- Say it: ame bapore patang uḍāḍyā — We flew kites in the afternoon.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to choose, then the Gujarati for kite, then say uḍāḍvũ again

270.5 ઘમંડી (ghamaṇḍī) — arrogant, proud

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for honest, then the Gujarati for funny.

You'll want to know: ઘમંડી

ઘમંડી — ghamaṇḍī — "arrogant, proud".

> શું તે છોકરો ઘમંડી છે? — śũ te chokro ghamaṇḍī che? — "Is that boy arrogant?"

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

The origin of ઘમંડી (ghamaṇḍī) is not settled. It is built on ghamaṇḍ, "pride", with -ī, but CDIAL has no entry for ghamaṇḍ and our other sources do not trace it.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: ghamaṇḍī
- Say it: ghamaṇḍī, once more
- Say it: śũ te chokro ghamaṇḍī che? — Is that boy arrogant?
- Recall: say the Gujarati for honest, then the Gujarati for funny, then say ghamaṇḍī again

Before you move on

What does ઘમંડી mean? ("Arrogant, proud".) Say it once more.

You'll want to know: મૂર્ખ

મૂર્ખ — mūrkh — "foolish, a fool".

શું હું મૂર્ખ છું? — śũ hũ mūrkh chũ? — "Am I a fool?"

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મૂર્ખ (mūrkh) is Sanskrit mūrkha, "foolish, stupid", taken over whole as a tatsama. CDIAL has no entry for it.

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: mūrkh
- Say it: mūrkh, once more
- Say it: śũ hũ mūrkh chũ? — Am I a fool?
- Recall: say the Gujarati for generous, then the Gujarati for selfish, then say mūrkh again

Before you move on

What does મૂર્ખ mean? ("Foolish, a fool".) Say it once more.

271.5 જિદ્દી (jiddī) — stubborn

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for selfish, then the Gujarati for foolish.

You'll want to know: જિદ્દી

જિદ્દી — jiddī — "stubborn".

> મારો ભત્રીજો જિદ્દી છે, તે સાંભળતો નથી. — māro bhatrījo jiddī che, te sā̃bhaḷto nathī — "My nephew is stubborn; he does not listen."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

જિદ્દી (jiddī) is built on jid, "obstinacy", with -ī. Jid is usually traced to Arabic ḍidd, "an opposite", through Persian; Lane gives the root ḍ-d-d, "to overcome in contention" (Lane).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: jiddī
- Say it: jiddī, once more
- Say it: māro bhatrījo jiddī che, te sā̃bhaḷto nathī — My nephew is stubborn; he does not listen.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for selfish, then the Gujarati for foolish, then say jiddī again

Before you move on

What does જિદ્દી mean? ("Stubborn".) Say it once more.

Chapter 272

Promises, hope and courage

Modes: 🚗 voice (7) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 7 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about promises, invitations and hope, and say what I dare not do.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 272: I can talk about promises, invitations and hope, and say what I dare not do.

272.1 હિંમત (himmat) — courage

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for foolish, then the Gujarati for stubborn.

You'll want to know: હિંમત

હિંમત — himmat — "courage".

> મારામાં બોલવાની હિંમત નથી. — mārāmā̃ bolvānī himmat nathī — "I do not have the courage to speak."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હિંમત (himmat) is a loan from Arabic himma, "resolve, aspiration", which reached Gujarati through Persian. Its Arabic root is h-m-m, "to intend" (Lane).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: himmat
- Say it: himmat, once more
- Say it: mārāmā̃ bolvānī himmat nathī — I do not have the courage to speak.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for foolish, then the Gujarati for stubborn, then say himmat again

Before you move on

What does હિંમત mean? ("Courage".) Say it once more.

272.2 વચન (vacan) — promise, word

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for stubborn, then the Gujarati for courage.

You'll want to know: વચન

વચન — vacan — "promise, word".

> શું તમે વચન આપો છો? — śũ tame vacan āpo cho? — "Do you promise?"

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

વચન (vacan) is Sanskrit vacaná, "speaking, statement", taken over as a tatsama. CDIAL also lists the inherited Gujarati veṇ, "word, promise", from the same word (CDIAL 11199).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: vacan
- Say it: vacan, once more
- Say it: śũ tame vacan āpo cho? — Do you promise?
- Recall: say the Gujarati for stubborn, then the Gujarati for courage, then say vacan again

Before you move on

What does વચન mean? ("Promise, word".) Say it once more.

272.3 નોતરવું (notarvũ) — to invite

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for courage, then the Gujarati for promise.

You'll want to know: નોતરવું

નોતરવું — notarvũ — "to invite".

> શું તમે પડોશીને લગ્નમાં નોતર્યા? — śũ tame paḍośīne lagnamā̃ notaryā? — "Did you invite the neighbours to the wedding?"

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

નોતરવું (notarvũ) is a tadbhava, a word inherited from Sanskrit and reshaped by sound change. It comes from nimantrayatē, "invites" (CDIAL 7235).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: notarvũ
- Say it: notarvũ, once more
- Say it: śũ tame paḍośīne lagnamã̃ notaryā? — Did you invite the neighbours to the wedding?
- Recall: say the Gujarati for courage, then the Gujarati for promise, then say notarvũ again

Before you move on

What does નોતરવું mean? ("To invite".) Say it once more.

272.4 સતાવવું (satāvvũ) — to pester, to bother

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for promise, then the Gujarati for to invite.

You'll want to know: સતાવવું

સતાવવું — satāvvũ — "to pester, to bother".

> મારો ભાઈ મને નથી સતાવતો. — māro bhāī mane nathī satāvto — "My brother does not bother me."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સતાવવું (satāvvũ) is a tadbhava. It comes from Sanskrit saṁtāpayati, "causes to be heated; torments"; CDIAL glosses the Gujarati verb "to tease, vex" (CDIAL 12886).

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: satāvvũ
- Say it: satāvvũ, once more

- Say it: māro bhāī mane nathī satāvto — My brother does not bother me.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for promise, then the Gujarati for to invite, then say satāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does સતાવવું mean? ("To pester, to bother".) Say it once more.

272.5 આશા રાખવી (āśā rākhvī) — to hope

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to invite, then the Gujarati for to pester.

You'll want to know: આશા રાખવી

આશા રાખવી — āśā rākhvī — "to hope".

> હું આશા રાખું છું કે તમે આવશો. — hũ āśā rākhũ chũ ke tame āvśo — "I hope that you will come."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

આશા રાખવી (āśā rākhvī), to keep a hope, is built from āśā, Sanskrit āśā́, "hope", taken over as a tatsama (EtymDB; CDIAL 7278 cites it), and the taught verb rākhvũ, "to keep".

What you've built

One more word for everyday life at A2.

Your turn

- Say it: āśā rākhvī
- Say it: āśā rākhvī, once more
- Say it: hũ āśā rākhũ chũ ke tame āvśo — I hope that you will come.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to invite, then the Gujarati for to pester, then say āśā rākhvī again

Before you move on

What does આશા રાખવી mean? ("To hope".) Say it once more.

272.6 People and feelings

Say the Gujarati for displeased and disappointed.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- displeased, disappointed, to feel restless, to get irritated, to sulk
- to quarrel, to scold, to deceive, to persuade, advice
- to look after, to bring up, to praise, to remember fondly, respect
- temperament, kind, honest, funny, arrogant
- polite, generous, selfish, foolish, stubborn
- courage, promise, to invite, to pester, to hope

Before you move on

Displeased? (નારાજ.) Disappointed? (નિરાશ.) To feel restless? (અકળાવું.) To get irritated? (ચિડાવું.) To sulk? (રિસાવું.) To quarrel? (લડવું.) To scold? (વઢવું.) To deceive? (છેતરવું.) To persuade? (મનાવવું.) Advice? (સલાહ.) To look after? (સંભાળવું.) To bring up? (ઉછેરવું.) To praise? (વખાણવું.) To remember fondly? (યાદ આવવી.) Respect? (આદર.) Temperament? (સ્વભાવ.) Kind? (દયાળુ.) Honest? (પ્રામાણિક.) Funny? (રમૂજી.) Arrogant? (ઘમંડી.) Polite? (નમ્ર.) Generous? (ઉદાર.) Selfish? (સ્વાર્થી.) Foolish? (મૂર્ખ.) Stubborn? (જિદ્દી.) Courage? (હિંમત.) Promise? (વચન.) To invite? (નોતરવું.) To pester? (સતાવવું.) To hope? (આશા રાખવી.)

272.7 Promises, hope and courage — once more

Say the Gujarati for courage and promise.

Your turn

- Say it: courage, promise, to invite, to pester, to hope

Before you move on

Courage? (હિંમત.) Promise? (વચન.) To invite? (નોતરવું.) To pester? (સતાવવું.) To hope? (આશા રાખવી.)

Chapter 273

Who did it, and what has happened

Modes: 🚗 voice (3) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 3 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say who did something with a name or a noun (Aruṇe cā pīdhī, Mīrāe patra lakhyo), and say what has happened and what had happened (gayo che, karyũ hatũ).
> Complete GU-R273-who-did-it: say who did something, and what has and had happened.

273.1 અરુણે ચા પીધી (Aruṇe cā pīdhī) — a name as the doer

Before the new one: say "I drank tea" and "he drank water". (mẽ cā pīdhī, teṇe pāṇī pīdhũ.) Both times the doer was a pronoun. This lesson puts a name in its place.

Grammar Lens: the doer takes -એ

> અરુણે ચા પીધી.
> Aruṇe cā pīdhī. — "Arun drank tea."

With a verb that has an object, a name or a noun that does it takes -એ (-e), the way હું becomes મેં:

the doer	with -એ
અરુણ	અરુણે (Aruṇe)
મીરા	મીરાએ (Mīrāe)
બહેન	બહેને (bahene)
પોલીસ	પોલીસે (polīse)
છોકરો	છોકરાએ (chokrāe)

After a consonant it is the sign ે; after a vowel, the letter એ. છોકરો first turns its -ો into -ા, as it does before -ને. A plural keeps its -ઓ and adds એ: છોકરાઓએ (chokrāoe), "the boys".

You'll want to know: the verb follows the thing

મીરાએ પત્ર લખ્યો.

Mīrāe patra lakhyo. — "Mira wrote a letter."

પત્ર is masculine, so લખ્યો. The doer leaves the ending alone; the thing sets it: મીરાએ વાર્તા લખી (Mīrāe vārtā lakhī), for a feminine story, and અરુણે પુસ્તક વાંચ્યું (Aruṇe pustak vā̃cyũ), for a neuter book.

When the thing is a person, it takes -ને, and in Gujarati the verb follows that person too:

અરુણે મીરાને જોઈ.

Aruṇe Mīrāne joī. — "Arun saw Mira."

જોઈ is feminine, for Mira. Turn it round, મીરાએ અરુણને જોયો (Mīrāe Aruṇne joyo): masculine, for Arun. Some speakers say જોયું in both; this book follows the person.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "The boy ate rice" — chokrāe bhāt khādho
- "My sister wrote a story" — mārī bahene vārtā lakhī
- "Mira saw Arun" — Mīrāe Aruṇne joyo

Before you move on

"Arun drank tea"? (અરુણે ચા પીધી.) Why પીધી? (ચા is feminine.) "Mira wrote a letter"? (મીરાએ પત્ર લખ્યો.) Who sets the ending, Mira or the letter? (The letter.)

273.2 ગયો છે, ગયો હતો (gayo che, gayo hato) — has gone, had gone

Say "he went" and "she came". (te gayo, te āvī.) Then "he was". (te hato.) Put a past and a copula side by side, and a new past appears.

Grammar Lens: has gone

અરુણ બજાર ગયો છે.

Aruṇ bajār gayo che. — "Arun has gone to the market."

ગયો says he went. ગયો છે says he went and is still away: the going matters now. The છે follows the person, as in the present: હું હમણાં આવ્યો છું (hũ hamṇā̃ āvyo chũ), "I have come this moment"; અમે આવ્યા છીએ (ame āvyā chīe), "we have come".
A verb with an object keeps its doer form and follows the thing: મેં કામ કર્યું છે (mẽ kām karyũ che), "I have done the work". There the copula is છે, whoever the doer.

You'll want to know: had gone

હું સ્ટેશન પહોંચ્યો, પણ ટ્રેન ઊપડી ગઈ હતી.

hũ sṭeśan pahõcyo, paṇ ṭren ūpaḍī gaī hatī. — "I reached the station, but the train had left."

હતી puts the leaving further back, before another past. It follows the way હતો, હતી, હતું, હતા do:

	has (now)	had (before)
he went	તે ગયો છે	તે ગયો હતો
she went	તે ગઈ છે	તે ગઈ હતી
I did the work	મેં કામ કર્યું છે	મેં કામ કર્યું હતું
Mira drank tea	મીરાએ ચા પીધી છે	મીરાએ ચા પીધી હતી

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "We have come" — ame āvyā chīe
- "Arun had drunk the tea" — Aruṇe cā pīdhī hatī

Before you move on

"He has gone"? (તે ગયો છે.) "She had gone"? (તે ગઈ હતી.) "I have done the work"? (મેં કામ કર્યું છે.) In મીરાએ ચા પીધી હતી, why હતી? (It follows ચા.)

273.3 Review — who did it, and what has happened

Say "I drank tea" and "she went home". (mẽ cā pīdhī, te ghare gaī.)

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- Arun ate rice. Mira drank water.
- My sister wrote a letter, and Arun read it.
- Mira saw Arun at the market.
- Arun has gone home. I have done the work.
- I reached the station, but the train had left.

Before you move on

In મીરાએ પત્ર લખ્યો, which word sets લખ્યો? (પત્ર.) Now the other way round: put Arun in Mira's place. Does the verb change? (No: અરુણે પત્ર લખ્યો.) Put વાર્તા in place of પત્ર? (Yes: લખી.) And "had gone", for a woman? (ગઈ હતી.)

Chapter 274

What won't happen, and what was going to

Modes: 🚗 voice (3) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 3 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what will not happen (hũ nahī̃ āvũ, te nahī̃ jāy), and what was going to happen but did not (hũ javāno hato, paṇ …).
> Complete GU-R274-plans-that-changed: say what will not happen, and what was going to happen.

274.1 હું નહીં આવું (hũ nahī̃ āvũ) — won't

Say "I will come tomorrow" and "she will go". (hũ kāle āvīś, te jaśe.) Now the same two, but they won't happen.

Grammar Lens: નહીં and a short form

> હું કાલે નહીં આવું.
> hũ kāle nahī̃ āvũ. — "I won't come tomorrow."

"Won't" is નહીં with a short form of the verb: no -ીશ, no -શે. Learn it as one piece. The short form follows the person, and it is the same for a man and a woman:

who	આવવું	કરવું
હું	નહીં આવું	નહીં કરું
તું, તે, તેઓ	નહીં આવે	નહીં કરે
અમે, આપણે	નહીં આવીએ	નહીં કરીએ
તમે	નહીં આવો	નહીં કરો

You'll want to know: the short verbs

તે આજે નહીં જાય.

te āje nahī̃ jāy. — "She won't go today."

જવું gives નહીં જાઉં (nahī̃ jāũ), નહીં જાય, નહીં જઈએ, નહીં જાઓ. લેવું gives નહીં લઉં, નહીં લે; ખાવું gives નહીં ખાઉં, નહીં ખાય. થવું gives નહીં થાય: મોડું નહીં થાય (moḍũ nahī̃ thāy), "it won't be late".

Keep these short forms after નહીં for now. "I will" still takes -ીશ: હું જઈશ, but હું નહીં જાઉં.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "We won't eat at home" — ame ghare nahī̃ khāīe
- "I won't take the medicine" — hũ davā nahī̃ laũ

Before you move on

"I won't do it"? (હું નહીં કરું.) "He won't come"? (તે નહીં આવે.) "You won't go", with respect? (તમે નહીં જાઓ.) And "I will go"? (હું જઈશ: the short form stays with નહીં.)

274.2 હું જવાનો હતો (hũ javāno hato) — was going to Say "I'm going to go tomorrow", as a plan already made. (hũ kāle javāno chũ.) Then "I won't go". (hũ nahī̃ jāũ.)

Grammar Lens: છું becomes હતો

> હું ગઈકાલે બજાર જવાનો હતો.
> hũ gaīkāle bajār javāno hato. — "I was going to go to the market yesterday."

Put હતો where છું stood, and the plan moves into the past. Both halves agree, as જવાનો છું did: a woman says જવાની હતી, a group જવાના હતા. With a verb that has an object, the doer stays plain: હું પત્ર લખવાનો હતો (hũ patra lakhvāno hato), not મેં. It is a plan, not a past of લખવું.

You'll want to know: ..., પણ ...

> અમે જવાના હતા, પણ વરસાદ પડ્યો.
> ame javānā hatā, paṇ varsād paḍyo. — "We were going to go, but it rained."

A plan in the past often did not happen. પણ names what got in the way: મીરા આવવાની હતી, પણ ટ્રેન મોડી હતી (Mīrā āvvānī hatī, paṇ ṭren moḍī hatī), "Mira was going to come, but the train was late."

Your turn

- Say it: "Mira was going to come, but the train was late" — Mīrā āvvānī hatī, paṇ ṭren moḍī hatī
- Contrast: hũ javāno chũ and hũ javāno hato: which plan can still happen

Before you move on

"I was going to go"? (હું જવાનો હતો, or જવાની હતી.) "We were going to go, but it rained"? (અમે જવાના હતા, પણ વરસાદ પડ્યો.) "I was going to write a letter": મેં or હું? (હું.)

274.3 Review — what won't happen, and what was going to Say "Arun has gone home". (Aruṇ ghare gayo che.) Then "I will come tomorrow". (hũ kāle āvīś.)

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- I won't come tomorrow. She won't go today.
- We won't eat at home. He won't take the medicine.
- I was going to go to the market, but it rained.
- Mira was going to come, but the train was late.
- I was going to write a letter, but I came home late.

Before you move on

"I won't go"? (હું નહીં જાઉં.) Does it change for a woman? (No.) "We were going to go"? (અમે જવાના હતા.) What turns જવાનો છું into a plan that is over? (હતો in place of છું.)

Chapter 275

What was going on

Modes: 🚗 voice (3) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 3 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what was going on and what used to happen (hũ vā̃cto hato), set a scene against an event with jyāre … tyāre, and ask what happened with banvũ (śũ banyũ?).
> Complete GU-R275-the-scene: set a scene, say what happened in it, and ask what happened.

275.1 હું વાંચતો હતો (hũ vā̃cto hato) — was reading, used to read

Say "I don't read", the A2 way. (hũ nathī vā̃cto.) Keep its -તો. Then say "I was at home". (hũ ghare hato.)

Grammar Lens: -તો with હતો

> હું પુસ્તક વાંચતો હતો.
> hũ pustak vā̃cto hato. — "I was reading a book."

The stem takes -તો, then comes હતો, and both follow the person:

who	was reading
a man	વાંચતો હતો (vā̃cto hato)
a woman	વાંચતી હતી (vā̃ctī hatī)
a neuter thing	વાંચતું હતું (vā̃ctũ hatũ)
several, or respect	વાંચતા હતા (vā̃ctā hatā)

There is no -એ here, even with an object: મીરા ચા પીતી હતી (Mīrā cā pītī hatī), "Mira was drinking tea". The doer form goes with the plain past, પીધી.
The same form tells what used to happen: પહેલાં અરુણ રોજ ચાલતો હતો (pahelā̃ Aruṇ roj cālto hato), "Arun used to walk every day".

You'll want to know: the scene and the event

> હું વાંચતો હતો ત્યારે ફોન આવ્યો.
> hũ vā̃cto hato tyāre phon āvyo. — "I was reading when the phone rang."

વાંચતો હતો is the scene: it was going on. આવ્યો is the event that broke in. ત્યારે (tyāre), "at that time", joins them, and જ્યારે can open the scene: જ્યારે અરુણ ઘરે પહોંચ્યો, ત્યારે મીરા રાંધતી હતી (jyāre Aruṇ ghare pahõcyo, tyāre Mīrā rā̃dhtī hatī), "when Arun got home, Mira was cooking".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "It was raining" — varsād paḍto hato
- "Mira was cooking when Arun came home" — Mīrā rā̃dhtī hatī tyāre Aruṇ ghare āvyo

Before you move on

"She was reading"? (તે વાંચતી હતી.) Which part is the scene in હું વાંચતો હતો ત્યારે ફોન આવ્યો? (વાંચતો હતો.) "Mira was drinking tea": મીરા or મીરાએ? (મીરા.)

275.2 બનવું (banvũ) — to happen; to become

Before the new one: ask "what happened?" the A2 way. (શું થયું?, śũ thayũ?) Then say "it was raining". (varsād paḍto hato.)

You'll want to know: બનવું

બનવું — banvũ — "to happen; to become".

> ગઈકાલે રાતે શું બન્યું?
> gaīkāle rāte śũ banyũ? — "What happened last night?"

શું થયું? is the everyday question. બનવું is for an event, a thing that takes place, and it suits a story. It takes no object, so its past follows its subject, as ગયો does: બન્યું, બન્યો, બની.

Its second sense is "to become":

> અરુણ દાક્તર બન્યો.
> Aruṇ dāktar banyo. — "Arun became a doctor."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બનવું (banvũ) sits beside બનાવવું, "to make", which you know: one makes a thing, the other is what a thing does when it comes about. CDIAL lists it under Sanskrit vanati, "desires, gains, makes ready", and marks the Gujarati verb as taken from Hindi bannā (CDIAL 11260).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- banvũ, then its past, banyũ
- "What happened last night?" — gaīkāle rāte śũ banyũ?
- "This used to happen every day" — āvũ roj bantũ hatũ

Before you move on

What does બનવું mean? ("To happen; to become".) "Arun became a doctor"? (અરુણ દાક્તર બન્યો.) Which question is the everyday one? (શું થયું?)

275.3 Review — what was going on

Say "Arun has gone home". (Aruṇ ghare gayo che.) Then "I was going to go, but it rained". (hũ javāno hato, paṇ varsād paḍyo.)

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- I was reading a book. Mira was drinking tea.
- I was reading when the phone rang.
- When Arun got home, Mira was cooking.
- Arun used to walk every day.
- What happened last night? Arun became a doctor.

Before you move on

Which form paints the scene, વાંચતો હતો or આવ્યો? (વાંચતો હતો.) Which word joins it to the event? (ત્યારે.) "What happened?", in a story? (શું બન્યું?)

Chapter 276

A story in order

Modes: voice (4) eyes (1) Hands-free start: the first 3 of 5 lessons.

By the end of this chapter: I can join two actions with the -īne form (jaīne, khāīne) and -yā pachī, keep a story in order with pahelā̃, pachī, tyār pachī and chevṭe, and read a short story told in the past.

Complete GU-R276-a-story-in-order: tell a short story in order, and read one.

276.1 ખાઈને, જમ્યા પછી (khāīne, jamyā pachī) — having done, after doing

Say "please", the long way. (મહેરબાની કરીને.) Its કરીને is the form this lesson teaches. Then say "I went home". (hũ ghare gayo.)

Grammar Lens: the -ઈને form

હું ઘરે જઈને જમ્યો.

hũ ghare jaīne jamyo. — "I went home and ate."

One doer, two actions in a row: the first takes -ઈને, "having done it", and the second ends the sentence. After a vowel the stem takes -ઈને: જઈને, ખાઈને, લઈને, જોઈને. After a consonant it takes -ીને: કરીને, લખીને, વાંચીને.
The last verb decides the doer's form: હું ખાઈને આવ્યો (hũ khāīne āvyo), "I ate and came", but મેં ખાઈને ચા પીધી (mẽ khāīne cā pīdhī), "I ate and then drank tea".

You'll want to know: -્યા પછી

જમ્યા પછી અમે બજાર ગયા.

jamyā pachī ame bajār gayā. — "After eating, we went to the market."

પછી after the past stem in -્યા says "after doing it": જમ્યા પછી, કામ કર્યા પછી (kām karyā pachī), ચા પીધા પછી (cā pīdhā pachī). That stem takes no -એ doer of its own: કામ કર્યા પછી હું ઘરે ગયો.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "Mira wrote the letter and sent it" — Mīrāe patra lakhīne mokalyo
- "After the work, I drank tea" — kām karyā pachī mẽ cā pīdhī

Before you move on

"Having gone"? (જઈને.) "Having done"? (કરીને.) "After eating"? (જમ્યા પછી.) In મેં ખાઈને ચા પીધી, which verb chose મેં? (પીધી.)

276.2 છેવટે (chevṭe) — finally; in the end

Before the new one: say "I went home and ate". (hũ ghare jaīne jamyo.) Then the word for "last". (છેલ્લું, chellũ.)

You'll want to know: છેવટે

છેવટે — chevṭe — "finally; in the end".

છેવટે ટ્રેન આવી.

chevṭe ṭren āvī. — "In the end the train came."

છેવટે comes after waiting, or after a long run of things: it closes them off.

અમે આખો દિવસ ચાલ્યા, અને છેવટે ગામ પહોંચ્યા.

ame ākho divas cālyā, ane chevṭe gām pahõcyā. — "We walked all day, and finally reached the village."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

છેવટે (chevṭe) is built from છેવટ, "the end", and the -ે of સવારે and ઘરે: "at the end". CDIAL lists Gujarati chevaṭ, "end", under Sanskrit cheda, "a cut, a break" (CDIAL 5064), the entry that also holds the che- of છેલ્લું, "last".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- chevṭe
- "In the end the train came" — chevṭe ṭren āvī
- "Finally we got home" — chevṭe ame ghare pahõcyā

Before you move on

What does છેવટે mean? ("Finally; in the end".) Which word that you know shares its start? (છેલ્લું, "last".)

276.3 પહેલાં, પછી, ત્યાર પછી (pahelā̃, pachī, tyār pachī) — first, then, after that

Say "before" and "later". (પહેલાં, પછી.) Then "in the end the train came". (chevṭe ṭren āvī.)

Grammar Lens: first, then

પહેલાં અમે ચા પીધી, પછી અમે બજાર ગયા.

pahelā̃ ame cā pīdhī, pachī ame bajār gayā. — "First we drank tea, then we went to the market."

At the head of a sentence, પહેલાં is "first" and પછી is "then". Each sentence keeps its own past: અમે ચા પીધી follows the tea, અમે બજાર ગયા follows the people who went.

You'll want to know: ત્યાર પછી and છેવટે

> ત્યાર પછી અમે ઘરે આવ્યા.
> tyār pachī ame ghare āvyā. — "After that we came home."

ત્યાર પછી (tyār pachī), "after that", is a fuller પછી: it opens a new step. A story runs પહેલાં … પછી … ત્યાર પછી … and ends on છેવટે:

step	word
the first thing	પહેલાં
the next	પછી
a new step	ત્યાર પછી
the last	છેવટે

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "First I wrote the letter, then I drank tea" — pahelā̃ mẽ patra lakhyo, pachī mẽ cā pīdhī
- "In the end we came home in the evening" — chevṭe ame sānje ghare āvyā

Before you move on

"First"? (પહેલાં.) "After that"? (ત્યાર પછી.) Which word ends the story? (છેવટે.)

276.4 (reading) — a Sunday at the village

Mira tells of a Sunday at her grandfather's village. Every word is one you have met. Listen for the order words: પહેલાં, ત્યાર પછી, છેવટે.

Read this

> ગઈકાલે રવિવાર હતો. સવારે અમે બસમાં ગામ ગયા. બસમાં ઘણી ભીડ હતી. પહેલાં અમે દાદાના ઘરે ગયા. દાદા ઓસરીમાં બેસીને ચા પીતા હતા. દાદાએ અમને પણ ચા આપી. ત્યાર પછી અમે ખેતરમાં ગયા. ત્યાં

બળદ ચરતા હતા. અમે ખેતરમાં ચાલતા હતા ત્યારે અચાનક વરસાદ પડ્યો. અમે દોડીને ઘરે આવ્યા. શું બન્યું? અમારાં કપડાં ભીનાં થઈ ગયાં હતાં! જમ્યા પછી દાદાએ અમને એક જૂની વાર્તા કહી. સાંજે અમે બસમાં શહેર પાછા જવાના હતા, પણ બસ મોડી હતી. છેવટે અમે રાતે ઘરે પહોંચ્યા. દિવસ લાંબો હતો, પણ મને મજા આવી. આવતા રવિવારે હું ગામ નહીં જાઉં. દાદા શહેર આવશે.

Read it: the story once, straight through, without translating
Read it: it again, and sort the verbs: scene, event or plan

Why it's said this way

New pieces: દાદાના ઘરે, "at Grandfather's house"; બેસીને (besīne), "sitting"; ભીનાં થઈ ગયાં હતાં, "had got wet", neuter plural for કપડાં. The scenes take -તા હતા; the events take the plain past. દાદાએ has -એ because he gave and told something: ચા આપી, વાર્તા કહી. The bus was a plan that changed: જવાના હતા, પણ .... નહીં જાઉં is the short form of જવું after નહીં.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- what Grandfather was doing on the veranda
- why they got home late

Before you move on

Which word turns the story? (અચાનક.) Why ભીનાં થઈ ગયાં હતાં, not ભીનું થઈ ગયું? (કપડાં is neuter plural.) Who is coming next Sunday? (Grandfather.)

276.5 Review — a story in order

Say "I was reading". (hũ vā̃cto hato.) Then "what happened?", in a story. (śũ banyũ?)

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- I went home and ate.
- After eating, we went to the market.
- First we drank tea, then we went to the market.
- After that we came home, and in the end we slept.
- In Mira's Sunday, what happened in the field?

Before you move on

"Having eaten"? (ખાઈને.) "After the work"? (કામ કર્યા પછી.) Put these in order: છેવટે, પહેલાં, ત્યાર પછી, પછી. (પહેલાં, પછી, ત્યાર પછી, છેવટે.)

Chapter 277

Opinions and reasons

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what I think (mane lāge che ke …, mārā mate), ask someone's view, and give a reason with kāraṇ ke or -ne līdhe.
> Complete GU-R277-opinion-and-reason: give an opinion and the reason for it.

277.1 મત (mat) — an opinion; a view

> Before the new one: say "I think that …", the A2 way. (વિચારું છું કે.) Then "your", with respect. (તમારું.)

You'll want to know: મત

મત — mat — "an opinion; a view". It is masculine: તમારો મત, "your opinion".

> તમારો મત શું છે?
> tamāro mat śũ che? — "What is your opinion?"

The answer often opens on મારા મતે (mārā mate), "in my opinion": મત takes the -ે of સવારે, and મારો turns to મારા before it.

> મારા મતે ગુજરાતી અઘરી નથી.
> mārā mate gujarātī agharī nathī. — "In my opinion Gujarati is not hard."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મત (mat) is a tatsama: Sanskrit mata, "thought, held to be", and as a noun "an opinion" (Monier-Williams), taken into Gujarati as it was. It belongs with the Sanskrit verb man-, "to think".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- mat, then tamāro mat
- "What is your opinion?" — tamāro mat śũ che?
- "In my opinion he is a good doctor" — mārā mate te sāro dāktar che

Before you move on

What does મત mean? ("An opinion".) "In my opinion"? (મારા મતે.) Why તમારો, not તમારું? (મત is masculine.)

277.2 મને લાગે છે કે ... (mane lāge che ke ...) — I think that ...

Say "in my opinion". (mārā mate.) Then the verb લાગવું: "to cost; to seem". Its second sense carries this lesson.

Grammar Lens: it seems to me

મને લાગે છે કે વરસાદ પડશે.

mane lāge che ke varsād paḍśe. — "I think it will rain."

Word for word: "to me it seems that it will rain". The thinker takes -ને, as with મને તાવ છે: તમને, તેને, અરુણને. કે hands over the thought, which keeps its own verb.
In the past, લાગ્યું: મને લાગ્યું કે તે નહીં આવે (mane lāgyũ ke te nahī̃ āve), "I thought he wouldn't come". "I don't think so" is મને નથી લાગતું (mane nathī lāgtũ).
હું વિચારું છું કે ... is thinking something over. મને લાગે છે કે ... gives an opinion.

You'll want to know: asking for a view

તમને શું લાગે છે?

tamne śũ lāge che? — "What do you think?"

Two ways to ask: તમને શું લાગે છે? and તમારો મત શું છે? Two ways to answer: મને લાગે છે કે ... and મારા મતે ...: મારા મતે ટ્રેન મોડી આવશે (mārā mate ṭren moḍī āvśe).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "I thought he wouldn't come" — mane lāgyũ ke te nahĩ āve
- "I don't think so" — mane nathī lāgtũ

Before you move on

"I think it will rain"? (મને લાગે છે કે વરસાદ પડશે.) "What do you think?" (તમને શું લાગે છે?) Who takes -ને in it? (The thinker.)

277.3 કારણ (kāraṇ) — a reason; a cause

Before the new one: ask "why?" and answer "because ...". (કેમ? ... કેમકે ....) Then "I think that ...". (mane lāge che ke ...)

You'll want to know: કારણ

કારણ — kāraṇ — "a reason; a cause". It is neuter: તેનું કારણ, "the reason for it".

તેનું કારણ શું છે?

tenũ kāraṇ śũ che? — "What is the reason for it?"

મારી પાસે બે કારણ છે.

mārī pāse be kāraṇ che. — "I have two reasons."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કારણ (kāraṇ) is a tatsama: Sanskrit kāraṇa, "cause" (CDIAL 3057), "what makes a thing happen", from the root kṛ-, "to do", that also stands behind કરવું.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- kāraṇ, then tenũ kāraṇ
- "What is the reason for it?" — tenũ kāraṇ śũ che?
- "I have two reasons" — mārī pāse be kāraṇ che

Before you move on

What does કારણ mean? ("A reason; a cause".) Its gender? (Neuter: તેનું કારણ.)

277.4 કારણ કે, -ને લીધે (kāraṇ ke, -ne līdhe) — because, because of

Say "a reason". (kāraṇ.) Then "late". (મોડું.)

Grammar Lens: કારણ કે, and a clause

હું મોડો આવ્યો, કારણ કે ટ્રેન મોડી હતી.

hũ moḍo āvyo, kāraṇ ke ṭren moḍī hatī. — "I came late, because the train was late."

કારણ કે (kāraṇ ke) works like કેમકે: what happened first, then the reason, a whole clause with its own verb. મોડો follows the man who came, મોડી the train.

You'll want to know: -ને લીધે, and a noun

varsādne līdhe ame ghare rahyā. — "Because of the rain, we stayed at home."

When the reason is a single thing, a noun, it takes -ને લીધે (-ne līdhe), "because of", or -ને કારણે (-ne kāraṇe), the same thing with the noun you have:

the reason is	say
a clause: the train was late	..., કારણ કે ટ્રેન મોડી હતી
a noun: the rain	વરસાદને લીધે ...
a noun: the crowd	ભીડને કારણે ...

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "Because of the crowd, we were late" — bhīḍne kāraṇe amne moḍũ thayũ
- "She won't come, because she has a fever" — te nahī̃ āve, kāraṇ ke tene tāv che

Before you move on

"Because the train was late"? (કારણ કે ટ્રેન મોડી હતી.) "Because of the rain"? (વરસાદને લીધે.) Which one takes a noun? (-ને લીધે.)

277.5 Review — opinions and reasons

Say "I went home and ate". (hũ ghare jaīne jamyo.) Then "first we drank tea, then we went to the market". (pahelā̃ ame cā pīdhī, pachī ame bajār gayā.)

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- What do you think? What is your opinion?
- I think it will rain. In my opinion the train will come late.
- I came late, because the train was late.

- Because of the rain, we stayed at home. Because of the rain, I won't go.
- What is the reason for it? I have two reasons.

Before you move on

"In my opinion"? (મારા મતે.) "I don't think so"? (મને નથી લાગતું.) Which takes a clause, કારણ કે or -ને લીધે? (કારણ કે.)

Chapter 278

Should, must, and so

Modes: voice (4) Hands-free start: all 4 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what someone should do and has to do (tamāre javũ joīe, māre javũ paḍśe), and join a reason to its result with eṭle or tethī.
> Complete GU-R278-advice-and-result: give advice, say what has to be done, and say what follows.

278.1 તમારે જવું જોઈએ (tamāre javũ joīe) — should, and have to Say "because of the rain". (varsādne līdhe.) Then "Arun drank tea". (Aruṇe cā pīdhī.) Keep that -એ.

Grammar Lens: the one who should takes -એ

> તમારે દાક્તર પાસે જવું જોઈએ.
> tamāre dāktar pāse javũ joīe. — "You should go to the doctor."

The verb's name in -વું, then જોઈએ (joīe), which stays as it is. The one who should takes an -એ form:

who	should go
I	મારે જવું જોઈએ
you, to a friend	તારે જવું જોઈએ
he, she	તેણે જવું જોઈએ
we	અમારે જવું જોઈએ
you, with respect	તમારે જવું જોઈએ
Arun, Mira	અરુણે, મીરાએ

With an object, the -વું follows the thing, as a past does: તમારે દવા લેવી જોઈએ (tamāre davā levī joīe), feminine for દવા; મારે પત્ર લખવો જોઈએ (māre patra lakhvo joīe), masculine for પત્ર.

You'll want to know: have to > મારે કાલે વહેલા જવું પડશે.

> māre kāle vahelā javũ paḍśe. — "I'll have to go early tomorrow."

Put પડવું in place of જોઈએ and "should" becomes "have to": પડે છે, as a rule; પડશે, later; પડ્યું, it was so. મારે રોજ બસમાં જવું પડે છે (māre roj basmā̃ javũ paḍe che); ગઈકાલે મારે ચાલીને જવું પડ્યું (gaīkāle māre cālīne javũ paḍyũ), "yesterday I had to walk".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "He should rest" — teṇe ārām karvo joīe
- "Yesterday I had to walk" — gaīkāle māre cālīne javũ paḍyũ

Before you move on

"You should go"? (તમારે જવું જોઈએ.) "I have to go every day"? (મારે રોજ જવું પડે છે.) Why લેવી in તમારે દવા લેવી જોઈએ? (It follows દવા.)

278.2 એટલે (eṭle) — so; that is why

> Before the new one: say "it was raining". (varsād paḍto hato.) Then "that much". (એટલું, eṭlũ.)

You'll want to know: એટલે

એટલે — eṭle — "so; that is why". The reason comes first, then એટલે, then what followed from it.

> વરસાદ પડતો હતો, એટલે અમે ઘરે રહ્યા.
> varsād paḍto hato, eṭle ame ghare rahyā. — "It was raining, so we stayed at home."
> હું થાકી ગઈ હતી, એટલે હું ઘરે રહી.
> hũ thākī gaī hatī, eṭle hũ ghare rahī. — "I was tired, so I stayed at home."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

એટલે (eṭle) is probably built from એટલું, "that much", with the -ે of સવારે: "to that point", and so "for that reason". CDIAL lists Gujarati eṭlũ under Sanskrit iyattaka, "so little" (CDIAL 1589); it has no row for એટલે itself.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- eṭle
- "It was raining, so we stayed at home" — varsād paḍto hato, eṭle ame ghare rahyā
- "The train was late, so I came late" — ṭren moḍī hatī, eṭle hũ moḍo āvyo

Before you move on

What does એટલે mean? ("So; that is why".) Which comes first, the reason or the result? (The reason.)

278.3 તેથી, એટલે (tethī, eṭle) — so, therefore

> Say "so" in the everyday way. (એટલે.) Then "therefore", from A2. (તેથી.)

Grammar Lens: reason, then result

તમને તાવ છે, એટલે તમારે આરામ કરવો જોઈએ.

tamne tāv che, eṭle tamāre ārām karvo joīe. — "You have a fever, so you should rest."

એટલે is the everyday "so". તેથી (tethī), "therefore", says the same and suits a letter or a notice: ટ્રેન મોડી હતી, તેથી અમે મોડા પહોંચ્યા (ṭren moḍī hatī, tethī ame moḍā pahõcyā).

You'll want to know: turning a reason round

કારણ કે puts the reason after; એટલે puts it before. The same two facts, either way:

result first	reason first
હું મોડો આવ્યો, કારણ કે ટ્રેન મોડી હતી.	ટ્રેન મોડી હતી, એટલે હું મોડો આવ્યો.
અમે ઘરે રહ્યા, કારણ કે વરસાદ પડતો હતો.	વરસાદ પડતો હતો, એટલે અમે ઘરે રહ્યા.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "You have a fever, so you should rest" — tamne tāv che, eṭle tamāre ārām karvo joīe
- "The bus was late, so I had to walk" — bas moḍī hatī, eṭle māre cālīne javũ paḍyũ

Before you move on

"So", in everyday speech? (એટલે.) In a letter? (તેથી.) Turn અમે ઘરે રહ્યા, કારણ કે વરસાદ પડતો હતો round. (વરસાદ પડતો હતો, એટલે અમે ઘરે રહ્યા.)

278.4 Review — should, must, and so

Say "I think it will rain". (mane lāge che ke varsād paḍśe.)
Then "because of the rain". (varsādne līdhe.)

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- You should go to the doctor. You should take the medicine.
- He should rest. I should write a letter.
- I have to go by bus every day. Tomorrow I'll have to go early.
- What do you think? I think you have a fever, so you should rest.
- The train was late, so I came late. Now turn it round, with kāraṇ ke.

Before you move on

"I should go"? (મારે જવું જોઈએ.) "I had to go"? (મારે જવું પડ્યું.) Turn હું મોડો આવ્યો, કારણ કે ટ્રેન મોડી હતી round with એટલે. (ટ્રેન મોડી હતી, એટલે હું મોડો આવ્યો.)

Chapter 279

Asking the way

Modes: 🚗 voice (3) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 3 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can ask where a place is, how far it is and how to get there (sṭeśan kevī rīte javũ?), ask someone to show me the way, and follow and give simple directions.
> Complete GU-R279-asking-the-way: ask the way, and give it.

279.1 રીત (rīt) — a way; a manner

Before the new one: say "it was raining, so we stayed at home". (varsād paḍto hato, eṭle ame ghare rahyā.) Then "by bus". (બસમાં.)

You'll want to know: રીત

રીત — rīt — "a way; a manner": the way a thing is done. It is feminine: તેની રીત, "his way".

> તેની રીત સારી છે.
> tenī rīt sārī che. — "His way of doing it is good."

કેવી રીતે (kevī rīte), "in what way", is how Gujarati says "how": કેવી asks "what kind of", agreeing with રીત, and રીતે takes the -ે of સવારે.

> તે કેવી રીતે આવી?
> te kevī rīte āvī? — "How did she come?"

The answer can be બસમાં: by bus.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

રીત (rīt) goes back to Sanskrit rīti, "going, a course", and later "a way of doing things" (Monier-Williams). CDIAL's entry for rīti (CDIAL 10751) lists a Gujarati rī, "method, manner"; રીત keeps the Sanskrit -t, so it is probably the learned form.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- rīt, then kevī rīte
- "How did she come?" — te kevī rīte āvī?
- "How did you come?", with respect — tame kevī rīte āvyā?

Before you move on

What does રીત mean? ("A way; a manner".) "How?" (કેવી રીતે?) Why કેવી, not કેવો? (રીત is feminine.)

279.2 સ્ટેશન કેવી રીતે જવું? (sṭeśan kevī rīte javũ?) — asking the way

Say "how?" (kevī rīte?) Then "where" and "far". (ક્યાં, દૂર.) And "excuse me". (માફ કરો.)

Grammar Lens: three questions

> માફ કરો, સ્ટેશન કેવી રીતે જવું?
> māph karo, sṭeśan kevī rīte javũ? — "Excuse me, how do I get to the station?"

The verb stays in its -વું form: "how to go to the station?" Three questions do most of the work: where it is, સ્ટેશન ક્યાં છે?; how far, કેટલું દૂર છે?; and how, સ્ટેશન કેવી રીતે જવું? One more asks to be shown: મને રસ્તો બતાવશો? It is a polite future, "will you show me the way?": a request, not an order.

You'll want to know: the answer

> સીધા જાઓ, પછી પુલ પાસે ડાબી બાજુ વળો.
> sīdhā jāo, pachī pul pāse ḍābī bāju vaḷo. — "Go straight, then turn left at the bridge."

Directions are said with -ઓ, the form of માફ કરો: જાઓ, વળો. ડાબી and જમણી follow બાજુ, which is feminine. Other pieces: બેંકની સામે (beṅknī sāme), "opposite the bank"; સિગ્નલ પછી (signal pachī), "after the signal"; દૂર નથી, દસ મિનિટ છે (dūr nathī, das miniṭ che), "it's not far, ten minutes".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "Will you show me the way?" — mane rasto batāvśo?
- "It's opposite the bank" — beṅknī sāme che

Before you move on

"How far is it?" (કેટલું દૂર છે?) "How do I get to the station?" (સ્ટેશન કેવી રીતે જવું?) "Turn left"? (ડાબી બાજુ વળો.)

279.3 Review — asking the way

> Say "you should go to the doctor". (tamāre dāktar pāse javũ joīe.) Then "so", the everyday way. (eṭle.)

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- Excuse me, where is the station? How far is it?
- How do I get to the station? Will you show me the way?
- Go straight, then turn left at the bridge.
- It's not far, ten minutes. It's opposite the bank.
- How did you come? By bus, because the train was late. Now turn it round, with eṭle.

Before you move on

"How?" (કેવી રીતે?) Which form gives a direction? (-ઓ: જાઓ, વળો.) Why ડાબી બાજુ? (બાજુ is feminine.)

Chapter 280

Tickets, and when things go wrong

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) ✓ pen (1) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first of 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can buy a ticket and ask about the next train (āvtī ṭren kyāre che?), report a lost bag or a missed train (khovāī gaī, chūṭī gaī), make a complaint, and read and write ઝ in ઝડપી.
> Complete GU-R280-at-the-station: buy a ticket, and report a problem.

280.1 ઝડપી (jhaḍpī) — fast; quick

> Before the new one: ask how to get to the station. (sṭeśan kevī rīte javũ?) Then say "a train" and "expensive". (ટ્રેન, મોંઘું.)

You'll want to know: ઝડપી

ઝડપી — jhaḍpī — "fast; quick". It ends in -ી whatever it describes: ઝડપી ટ્રેન, ઝડપી બસ, ઝડપી વિમાન.

> ઝડપી ટ્રેન ક્યારે છે?
> jhaḍpī ṭren kyāre che? — "When is the fast train?"
> તે ઝડપી છે, પણ મોંઘી છે.
> te jhaḍpī che, paṇ moṅghī che. — "It's fast, but it's expensive."

Said of the train, મોંઘી follows ટ્રેન; ઝડપી stays as it is.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઝડપી (jhaḍpī) is built from ઝડપ, "speed", and the -ી that makes a describing word of it. CDIAL lists Gujarati jhaṛap under a reconstructed root jhaṭ, "sudden movement" (CDIAL 5327). It glosses that form "scuffling", so the sense of speed is probably the later one.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- jhaḍpī, then jhaḍpī ṭren
- "When is the fast train?" — jhaḍpī ṭren kyāre che?
- "It's fast, but it's expensive" — te jhaḍpī che, paṇ moṅghī che

Before you move on

What does ઝડપી mean? ("Fast; quick".) "A fast bus"? (ઝડપી બસ.) Does ઝડપી change for a bus? (No.)

280.2 ઝ — the consonant jha

- Recall: say fast — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say જ, as in જવું, and છ, as in છે

ઝડપી opens on a sound you have not written yet: jh.

You'll want to know: જ with a breath

	plain	with a breath
c	ચ	છ
j	જ	?

The missing letter is ઝ, jha: say જ and let a breath follow. Its print has three parts: a rounded left body, a separate right loop flowing into a lower tail, and a separate short upper stem.

Script — meet one form

ઝ — jha

Keep ઝ visible. Follow the numbered strip: it shows where each part starts.

1. begin at the upper left and circle the rounded left body to the lower left
2. lift once and circle the right loop into its lower tail
3. lift again and descend the short upper stem

Three strokes, two pen lifts: a verified three-stroke teaching-app variant fitted to the bundled printed outline (t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, ઝ animation, first through third SVG paths).

Writing — notice and trace

How it is written — 3 strokes · 2 pen lifts · 3 movements

Stroke order after t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, animation, first through third SVG paths
This order is attested, not standardised; the source records where it varies.

How ઝ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace ઝ once, then air-trace it once. Notice the two lifts: after the left body, and after the loop.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible ઝ once. Compare only two things: are there three parts, and does the short stem come last? Repair one landmark if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write jha once. Uncover ઝ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Read જ ઝ ઝડપી aloud. Which part of ઝ is written last? (The short upper stem.)
Sources: Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice and the Unicode Gujarati chart.

280.3 એક ટિકિટ આપો (ek ṭikiṭ āpo) — at the ticket window

Say "the fast train". (jhaḍpī ṭren.) Then "a ticket" and "to give". (ટિકિટ, આપવું.)

Grammar Lens: asking for a ticket

બે ટિકિટ આપો.

be ṭikiṭ āpo. — "Two tickets, please."

આપો is આપવું in the -ઓ form of જાઓ and વળો: said with respect at a window, it is polite enough. Then the price: ભાડું કેટલું છે? (bhāḍũ keṭlũ che?), "how much is the fare?" ઝડપી ટ્રેનની ટિકિટ મોંઘી છે (jhaḍpī ṭrennī ṭikiṭ moṅghī che): the fast train's ticket costs more.

You'll want to know: the next train

આવતી ટ્રેન ક્યારે છે?

āvtī ṭren kyāre che? — "When is the next train?"

આવતું, "coming, next", follows ટ્રેન: આવતી. Then the platform: ટ્રેન કયા પ્લેટફોર્મથી ઊપડશે? (ṭren kayā pleṭphormthī ūpaḍśe?), "which platform does the train leave from?" The answer: પ્લેટફોર્મ બેથી (pleṭphorm bethī), "from platform two".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "How much is the fare?" — bhāḍũ keṭlũ che?
- "When is the next bus?" — āvtī bas kyāre che?

Before you move on

"One ticket, please"? (એક ટિકિટ આપો.) "The next train"? (આવતી ટ્રેન.) "From which platform?" (કયા પ્લેટફોર્મથી?)

280.4 ફરિયાદ (phariyād) — a complaint

Before the new one: ask when the next train is. (āvtī ṭren kyāre che?) Then say "the police". (પોલીસ.)

You'll want to know: ફરિયાદ

ફરિયાદ — phariyād — "a complaint". It is feminine, so a past of કરવું follows it with કરી:

મેં પોલીસમાં ફરિયાદ કરી.

mẽ polīsmã̃ phariyād karī. — "I made a complaint to the police."

પોલીસમાં (polīsmã̃) is "with the police", word for word "in the police". A complaint can be about anything:

તમારી ફરિયાદ શું છે?

tamārī phariyād śũ che? — "What is your complaint?"

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ફરિયાદ (phariyād) is a loan, usually traced to Persian faryād, "an outcry; a call for help", and from there "a complaint".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- phariyād
- "I made a complaint to the police" — mẽ polīsmã̃ phariyād karī
- "What is your complaint?" — tamārī phariyād śũ che?

Before you move on

What does ફરિયાદ mean? ("A complaint".) Why કરી in મેં ફરિયાદ કરી? (ફરિયાદ is feminine.)

280.5 મારી થેલી ખોવાઈ ગઈ (mārī thelī khovāī gaī) — when things go wrong

Say "a complaint". (phariyād.) Then "to get lost" and "a bag". (ખોવાવું, થેલી.)

Grammar Lens: the lost thing is the subject

મારી થેલી ખોવાઈ ગઈ.

mārī thelī khovāī gaī. — "My bag is lost."

The bag is what got lost, so ગઈ follows it, and there is no -એ. Change the thing and the ending changes: મારું પાકીટ ખોવાઈ ગયું (mārũ pākīṭ khovāī gayũ), neuter; મારો ફોન ખોવાઈ ગયો (māro phon khovāī gayo), masculine.

You'll want to know: a missed train, and help

મારી ટ્રેન છૂટી ગઈ.

mārī ṭren chūṭī gaī. — "I missed my train."

Word for word, "my train got away": the train is the subject again. Then ask for help: મને મદદ કરશો? (mane madad karśo?), "will you help me?" And the next step: મારે પોલીસમાં ફરિયાદ કરવી પડશે (māre polīsmā̃ phariyād karvī paḍśe), "I'll have to make a complaint to the police". કરવી follows ફરિયાદ.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "My key is lost" — mārī cāvī khovāī gaī
- "I missed my train, so I'll have to take the bus" — mārī ṭren chūṭī gaī, eṭle māre basmā̃ javũ paḍśe

Before you move on

"My bag is lost"? (મારી થેલી ખોવાઈ ગઈ.) "My phone is lost"? (મારો ફોન ખોવાઈ ગયો.) "I missed my train"? (મારી ટ્રેન છૂટી ગઈ.)

280.6 Review — at the station

Ask "how do I get to the station?" (sṭeśan kevī rīte javũ?)
Then "turn left". (ḍābī bāju vaḷo.)

- Write it: ઝ, then ઝડપી, from memory

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- Two tickets, please. How much is the fare?
- When is the next train? Which platform does it leave from?
- The fast train is quick, but it's expensive.
- My bag is lost. My wallet is lost too.
- I missed my train. Will you help me? I'll have to make a complaint to the police.

Before you move on

"The next train"? (આવતી ટ્રેન.) "My phone is lost": ગયો or ગઈ? (ગયો: ફોન is masculine.) Which letter opens ઝડપી? (ઝ, jha.)

Chapter 281

Feelings and hopes

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) ✓ pen (2) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say how I feel and felt (mane bīk lāge che, hũ khuś chũ, mane duḥkh thayũ), say what I want to do and become (māre dāktar banvũ che), talk about a wish and a dream, and read and write ઃ and ઇ.
> Complete GU-R281-feelings-and-hopes: say how you feel, and what you want and hope for.

281.1 દુઃખ (duḥkh) — sorrow; distress

Before the new one: say "contentment" and "happiness". (સુખ, ખુશી.) Then "it happened". (થયું.)

You'll want to know: દુઃખ

દુઃખ — duḥkh — "sorrow; distress", the opposite of સુખ. It is neuter. In speech its ઃ is light, close to dukh.

> મને દુઃખ થયું.
> mane duḥkh thayũ. — "I felt sad."

Word for word, "to me sorrow happened": the one who feels it takes -ને.

> તેને કોઈ દુઃખ નથી.
> tene koī duḥkh nathī. — "He has no troubles."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દુઃખ (duḥkh) is a tatsama: Sanskrit duḥkha, “difficulty, pain” (CDIAL 6375), written with the Sanskrit ઃ kept. CDIAL also lists an inherited Gujarati dukh from the same word.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- duḥkh, then sukh
- “I felt sad” — mane duḥkh thayũ
- “He has no troubles” — tene koī duḥkh nathī

Before you move on

What does દુઃખ mean? (“Sorrow; distress”.) Its opposite? (સુખ.) “I felt sad”? (મને દુઃખ થયું.)

281.2 ઃ (visarga) — the two dots in દુઃખ

Before the new one: say દુઃખ (duḥkh), “sorrow”. Then write ં, the one dot above a syllable.

Script you’ll notice: ઃ

ઃ — the visarga, ḥ: a pair of dots to the right of the syllable, marking a voiceless breath after the vowel.

In દુઃખ it stands after દુ and before ખ:

દુ	du
દુઃ	duḥ: the two dots after it
દુઃખ	duḥkh

It is written after its consonant and its vowel sign: the consonant first, then the visarga to its right, the upper dot, then the lower dot.

Writing — notice and trace

How ઃ is written, stroke by stroke

Follow the numbered strip:

1. start at the top of the upper dot and curve down its left side
2. without lifting, round its bottom and up its right side to close it
3. lift, then start at the top of the lower dot and curve down its left side
4. without lifting, round its bottom and up its right side to close it — and only now lift

Two strokes — four movements, one pen lift; cited to KanoAI's hand-made Gujarati barakhadi templates. Finger-trace ઃ once.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy કઃ once: ક first, then the two dots. Compare only two things: do the dots sit to the right, one above the other? Repair one if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write the visarga once. Uncover ઃ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Read દુઃખ aloud. Which dot comes first? (The upper one.) Is it written before or after દુ? (After.)

281.3 મને બીક લાગે છે (mane bīk lāge che) — how I feel

Say "I felt sad". (mane duḥkh thayũ.) Then "fear" and "worry". (બીક, ચિંતા.)

Grammar Lens: a feeling that comes to me

મને બીક લાગે છે.

mane bīk lāge che. — "I'm afraid."

Many feelings are nouns that happen to the one who feels them, and that one takes -ને. Each noun has its own verb:

the feeling	now	in the past
fear, બીક	મને બીક લાગે છે	મને બીક લાગી
worry, ચિંતા	મને ચિંતા થાય છે	મને ચિંતા થઈ
sorrow, દુઃખ	મને દુઃખ થાય છે	મને દુઃખ થયું
anger, ગુસ્સો	મને ગુસ્સો આવે છે	મને ગુસ્સો આવ્યો

The past follows the feeling: બીક is feminine, લાગી; ગુસ્સો is masculine, આવ્યો.

You'll want to know: I am happy

આજે હું ખુશ છું.

āje hũ khuś chũ. — "Today I'm happy."

Other feelings are describing words, and the one who feels them is a plain subject: હું ખુશ છું, તે ઉદાસ હતી (te udās hatī), "she was sad". Tiredness is a past: હું થાકી ગયો છું (hũ thākī gayo chũ), "I'm tired", word for word "I have got tired".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "I got angry" — mane gusso āvyo
- "My train was late, so I was worried" — mārī ṭren moḍī hatī, eṭle mane cintā thaī

Before you move on

"I'm afraid"? (મને બીક લાગે છે.) "I got angry"? (મને ગુસ્સો આવ્યો.)
"She was sad": તે or તેને? (તે ઉદાસ હતી.)

281.4 ઇચ્છા (icchā) — a wish; a desire

Before the new one: say "I'm afraid". (mane bīk lāge che.)
Then "good wishes". (શુભેચ્છા, śubhecchā.) Its second half is this lesson's word.

You'll want to know: ઇચ્છા

ઇચ્છા — icchā — "a wish; a desire". It is feminine: મારી ઇચ્છા, "my wish".

મારી એક ઇચ્છા છે.

mārī ek icchā che. — "I have a wish."

તમારી ઇચ્છા શું છે?

tamārī icchā śũ che? — "What is your wish?"

શુભેચ્છા is śubh, "good, lucky", with ઇચ્છા: good wishes.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઇચ્છા (icchā) is a tatsama: Sanskrit icchā, "wish, desire" (Monier-Williams). CDIAL lists an inherited Gujarati verb ichvũ, "to wish", under Sanskrit icchati, "seeks, wishes" (CDIAL 1556).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- icchā, then mārī icchā
- "I have a wish" — mārī ek icchā che
- "What is your wish?" — tamārī icchā śũ che?

Before you move on

What does ઇચ્છા mean? ("A wish; a desire".) Why મારી? (ઇચ્છા is feminine.)

281.5 ઇ — the standing vowel i

- Recall: say a wish — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say ઈ, as in ઈજા, and the sign િ that gives a consonant a short i

ઇચ્છા opens on a short i with no consonant to carry it.

You'll want to know: ઈ without its curl

	after a consonant	standing alone
short i	િ	?
long ī	ી	ઈ

The missing letter is ઇ. It has the same small upper-left loop, narrow middle crossing and broad lower loop as ઈ. Its hook rises on the upper right and stops there; ઈ carries it on, curling over the top.

Script — meet one form

ઈ — i

Keep ઈ visible. Follow the numbered strip:

1. begin in the upper-left and circle the small loop down to the middle crossing
2. continue through the crossing and sweep clockwise around the broad lower loop
3. rise along the right side and finish in the upper-right hook without lifting

One stroke, no lift: a verified one-stroke teaching-app variant fitted to the bundled printed outline (t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, ઈ animation, first SVG path).

Writing — notice and trace

How ઈ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace ઈ once, then air-trace it once. Notice where the hook stops.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible ઈ once. Compare only two things: are both loops there, and does the hook stop on the upper right? Repair one landmark if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write the standing vowel i once. Uncover ઇ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Read ઇ ઈ ઇચ્છા aloud. What turns ઇ into ઈ? (The curl over the top.)

281.6 સપનું (sapnũ) — a dream; an ambition

Before the new one: say "my wish". (mārī icchā.) Then "sleepiness". (ઊંઘ.)

You'll want to know: સપનું

સપનું — sapnũ — "a dream; an ambition". It is neuter: મારું સપનું. In Gujarati a dream comes to the dreamer:

> મને રાતે એક સપનું આવ્યું.
> mane rāte ek sapnũ āvyũ. — "I had a dream last night."

The second sense is a hope for the future:

> મારું સપનું છે કે એક દિવસ હું દાક્તર બનીશ.
> mārũ sapnũ che ke ek divas hũ dāktar banīś. — "My dream is that one day I'll become a doctor."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સપનું (sapnũ) is usually traced to Sanskrit svapna, "sleep; a dream" (Monier-Williams), worn down in speech: the sv- became s-. CDIAL lists a related Gujarati samṇũ, "dream", under a reconstructed supna (CDIAL 13481).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- sapnũ, then mārũ sapnũ
- "I had a dream last night" — mane rāte ek sapnũ āvyũ
- "My dream is that one day I'll become a doctor" — mārũ sapnũ che ke ek divas hũ dāktar banīś

Before you move on

What does સપનું mean? ("A dream; an ambition".) "I had a dream"? (મને સપનું આવ્યું.)

281.7 મારે દાક્તર બનવું છે (māre dāktar banvũ che) — what I want, and hope for

Say "I should go". (māre javũ joīe.) Then "my dream" and "my wish". (mārũ sapnũ, mārī icchā.)

Grammar Lens: મારે ... -વું છે

મારે દાક્તર બનવું છે.

māre dāktar banvũ che. — "I want to become a doctor."

The મારે of મારે જવું જોઈએ, then the -વું form, then છે: "I want to". With an object, the -વું follows it, as with જોઈએ: મારે ચા પીવી છે (māre cā pīvī che), "I want to drink tea"; મારે નવું ઘર બનાવવું છે. "I don't want to go" is મારે નથી જવું (māre nathī javũ).

You'll want to know: a wish, a dream

મારી ઇચ્છા ગામમાં રહેવાની છે.

mārī icchā gāmmã̃ rahevānī che. — "My wish is to live in the village."

રહેવાની is the -વાનો of હું જવાનો છું, here following ઇચ્છા, which is feminine. With સપનું, neuter, it is -વાનું: મારું સપનું દાક્તર બનવાનું છે (mārũ sapnũ dāktar banvānũ che). A dream can also take કે and a future: મારું સપનું છે કે હું દાક્તર બનીશ.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "I want to drink tea" — māre cā pīvī che
- "I don't want to go to the city" — māre śaher nathī javũ

Before you move on

"I want to become a doctor"? (મારે દાક્તર બનવું છે.) Why પીવી in મારે ચા પીવી છે? (It follows ચા.) "My dream is to become a doctor"? (મારું સપનું દાક્તર બનવાનું છે.)

281.8 Review — feelings and hopes

Say "my bag is lost". (mārī thelī khovāī gaī.) Then "I'll have to go". (māre javũ paḍśe.)

- Write it: ઃ in દુઃખ, then ઇ in ઇચ્છા, from memory

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- I'm afraid. I got angry. I felt sad.
- Today I'm happy. She was sad. I'm tired.
- I want to become a doctor. I don't want to go to the city.
- My wish is to live in the village.
- I had a dream last night. My dream is that one day I'll become a doctor.

Before you move on

"I'm afraid": હું or મને? (મને બીક લાગે છે.) "I'm happy"? (હું ખુશ છું.) "I want to drink tea"? (મારે ચા પીવી છે.) Which two dots sit in દુઃખ? (ઃ, the visarga.)

Chapter 282

Comparing, and how long

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) ✓ pen (2) 🚗 Hands-free start: the first of 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can compare two things (X Y kartā̃ moṭũ che), say what is most (sauthī), say how long and since when (be varasthī, savārthī sānj sudhī), name the seasons with ṛtu, and read and write ૌ and ऋ.
> Complete GU-R282-comparing-and-time: compare things, and say how long and since when.

282.1 સૌથી (sauthī) — most; of all

> Before the new one: say "I want to become a doctor". (māre dāktar banvũ che.) Then "small", "more" and "to like". (નાનું, વધારે, ગમવું.)

You'll want to know: સૌથી

સૌથી — sauthī — "most; of all". Put it before a describing word and it becomes the most of all:

> મીરા સૌથી નાની છે.
> Mīrā sauthī nānī che. — "Mira is the youngest."

નાની follows Mira; સૌથી stays as it is. With વધારે it is "most of all":

> મને ચોમાસું સૌથી વધારે ગમે છે.
> mane comāsũ sauthī vadhāre game che. — "I like the monsoon most of all."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સૌથી (sauthī) is built from sau, "all, everyone", and -થી, "from": "from all", so "more than all". CDIAL lists Gujarati sau, "wholly", under Sanskrit sarva, "all, whole" (CDIAL 13276).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- sauthī, then sauthī nānũ
- "Mira is the youngest" — Mīrā sauthī nānī che
- "I like the monsoon most of all" — mane comāsũ sauthī vadhāre game che

Before you move on

What does સૌથી mean? ("Most; of all".) "The biggest", of a house? (સૌથી મોટું.)

282.2 ◌ૌ (au sign) — the au sign in સૌથી

Before the new one: say સૌથી (sauthī), "most of all". Then write ◌ૈ, the ai sign, and ◌ો, the o sign, once each.

Script you'll notice: ◌ૌ

◌ૌ — the au sign: the ◌ા bar on the right plus two stacked strokes above. It sits on સ in સૌથી.

one stroke above	two strokes above
◌े e	◌ૈ ai, as in પૈસા
◌ો o: ◌ા with ◌े above	◌ૌ au: ◌ા with ◌ૈ above

It is written after its consonant: સ first, then the bar to its right, then the lower flag, then the upper flag.

Writing — notice and trace

How ૌ is written, stroke by stroke

Follow the numbered strip:

1. start at the top of the bar and draw it straight down
2. without lifting, turn into the short foot to the right
3. lift, then start at the lower flag's upper-left tip and arc it to the right
4. without lifting, curve it down to the right
5. lift, then start at the upper flag's upper-left tip and arc it to the right
6. without lifting, curve it down to the right — and only now lift

Three strokes — six movements, two pen lifts; cited to KanoAI's hand-made Gujarati barakhadi templates. Finger-trace ૌ once.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy સૌથી once: સ, the bar, the two flags, then થી. Compare only two things: are there two flags, and does the lower one come first? Repair one if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write the au sign once. Uncover ૌ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Read સો and સૌથી aloud. What turns ો into ૌ? (A second flag above.)

282.3 ... કરતાં મોટું (... kartā̃ moṭũ) — bigger than ...

Say "Mira is the youngest". (Mīrā sauthī nānī che.) Then "big" and "a city". (મોટું, શહેર.)

Grammar Lens: કરતાં, than શહેર ગામ કરતાં મોટું છે.

śaher gām kartā̃ moṭũ che. — "The city is bigger than the village."

The thing being described, then the one it is measured against with કરતાં (kartā̃), "than", then the describing word, which follows the first: મીરા અરુણ કરતાં નાની છે (Mīrā Aruṇ kartā̃ nānī che), "Mira is younger than Arun".
A word with no ending of its own takes વધારે, "more", or ઓછું, "less": ટ્રેન બસ કરતાં વધારે ઝડપી છે (ṭren bas kartā̃ vadhāre jhaḍpī che).

You'll want to know: the most of all

ઝડપી ટ્રેન સૌથી મોંઘી છે.

jhaḍpī ṭren sauthī moṅghī che. — "The fast train is the most expensive."

Two things take કરતાં; the top of a whole group takes સૌથી:

	say
the bus is cheaper than the train	બસ ટ્રેન કરતાં સસ્તી છે
the bus is the cheapest	બસ સૌથી સસ્તી છે

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "Mira is younger than Arun" — Mīrā Aruṇ kartā̃ nānī che
- "The train is faster than the bus" — ṭren bas kartā̃ vadhāre jhaḍpī che

Before you move on

"Than"? (કરતાં.) "The city is bigger than the village"? (શહેર ગામ કરતાં મોટું છે.) For the top of a whole group? (સૌથી.)

282.4 સુધી (sudhī) — until; as far as

Before the new one: say "the city is bigger than the village". (śaher gām kartā̃ moṭũ che.) Then "evening" and "a river". (સાંજ, નદી.)

You'll want to know: સુધી

સુધી — sudhī — "until; as far as". It comes after its word, as કરતાં does: an end in time, or in space.

હું સાંજ સુધી ઘરે છું.

hũ sānj sudhī ghare chũ. — "I'm at home until evening."

અમે નદી સુધી ચાલ્યા.

ame nadī sudhī cālyā. — "We walked as far as the river."

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સુધી (sudhī) is a small word with no older form in any dictionary we use, so its history is not settled.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- sudhī, then sānj sudhī
- "I'm at home until evening" — hũ sānj sudhī ghare chũ
- "We walked as far as the river" — ame nadī sudhī cālyā

Before you move on

What does સુધી mean? ("Until; as far as".) Before its word, or after? (After: સાંજ સુધી.)

282.5 બે વરસથી (be varasthī) — for how long, since when

Say "until evening". (sānj sudhī.) Then "a year" and "morning". (વરસ, સવાર.)

Grammar Lens: -થી and the present

હું બે વરસથી અહીં રહું છું.

hũ be varasthī ahī̃ rahũ chũ. — "I have lived here for two years."

-થી, "from", on a length of time or a starting point says how long something has gone on, and the verb stays in the present: it is still going on. English says "have lived"; Gujarati says "I live, from two years". સવારથી વરસાદ પડે છે (savārthī varsād paḍe che): "it has been raining since morning". To ask: તમે કેટલા વખતથી અહીં રહો છો? (tame keṭlā vakhatthī ahī̃ raho cho?), "how long have you lived here?"

You'll want to know: from ... until, and all day

દુકાન સવારથી સાંજ સુધી ખુલ્લી છે.

dukān savārthī sānj sudhī khullī che. — "The shop is open from morning until evening."

-થી marks the start and સુધી the end. A span with no start or end named takes આખું, "whole", and neither -થી nor સુધી: મેં આખો દિવસ કામ કર્યું (mẽ ākho divas kām karyũ), "I worked all day".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "How long have you lived here?" — tame keṭlā vakhatthī ahī̃ raho cho?
- "I worked all day" — mẽ ākho divas kām karyũ

Before you move on

"For two years"? (બે વરસથી.) Past or present after it? (Present: રહું છું.) "From morning until evening"? (સવારથી સાંજ સુધી.)

282.6 ઋતુ (ṛtu) — a season

Before the new one: say "summer", "winter" and "the monsoon". (ઉનાળો, શિયાળો, ચોમાસું.) Then મોસમ: "a season; the weather".

You'll want to know: ઋતુ

ઋતુ — ṛtu — "a season". It is feminine. મોસમ is also the weather; ઋતુ is one part of the year.

> અહીં ત્રણ ઋતુ છે: ઉનાળો, ચોમાસું અને શિયાળો.
> ahī̃ traṇ ṛtu che: unāḷo, comāsũ ane śiyāḷo. — "There are three seasons here: summer, the monsoon and winter."
> તમને કઈ ઋતુ સૌથી વધારે ગમે છે?
> tamne kaī ṛtu sauthī vadhāre game che? — "Which season do you like most?"

કઈ is કયું, "which", following ઋતુ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઋતુ (ṛtu) is a tatsama: Sanskrit ṛtu, "a fixed time; a season" (Monier-Williams), taken into Gujarati as it was, with the vowel letter ઋ that the next lesson writes.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- ṛtu, then traṇ ṛtu
- "Which season do you like most?" — tamne kaī ṛtu sauthī vadhāre game che?
- "I like winter most of all" — mane śiyāḷo sauthī vadhāre game che

Before you move on

What does ઋતુ mean? ("A season".) "Which season?" (કઈ ઋતુ?: ઋતુ is feminine.)

282.7 ઋ — the standing vowel ṛ

- Recall: say a season — R1, one lesson back
- Recall: say હૃદય, "the heart", and find the sign ૃ under its હ

ઋતુ opens on the same vowel ṛ, with no consonant to carry it.

You'll want to know: ૃ, standing alone

	after a consonant	standing alone
ṛ	ૃ, as in હૃદય	?

The missing letter is ઋ. Its print has three parts: a bent left body, a separate central stem with a foot, and a right loop flowing into a descending tail.

Script — meet one form

ઋ — ṛ

Keep ઋ visible. Follow the numbered strip:

1. sweep right along the upper left body and turn back down-left
2. lift and descend the central stem into its foot
3. lift again, circle the right loop, and finish through the descending tail

Three strokes, two pen lifts: a verified three-stroke teaching-app variant fitted to the bundled printed outline (t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, ઋ animation, first through third SVG paths).

Writing — notice and trace

How it is written — 3 strokes · 2 pen lifts · 3 movements

Stroke order after t30apps.com, 'Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice', version 1.0, ઋ animation, first through third SVG paths
This order is attested, not standardised; the source records where it varies.

How ઋ is written, stroke by stroke

Finger-trace ઋ once, then air-trace it once. Notice the two lifts: before the stem, and before the loop.

Writing — copy with the model

Copy visible ઋ once. Compare only two things: are there three parts, and does the loop come last? Repair one landmark if needed.

Writing — recall after hiding

Hide the model and write the standing vowel ṛ once. Uncover ઋ, compare, and stop after one repair.

Before you move on

Read ૃ ઋ ઋતુ aloud. Which part of ઋ is written last? (The right loop and its tail.)
Sources: Gujarati Alphabet Writing Practice and the Unicode Gujarati chart.

282.8 Review — comparing, and how long

Say "I'm afraid". (mane bīk lāge che.) Then "I want to become a doctor". (māre dāktar banvũ che.) And "my dream is to become a doctor". (mārũ sapnũ dāktar banvānũ che.)

- Write it: ૌ in સૌથી, then ઋ in ઋતુ, from memory

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- The city is bigger than the village. Mira is younger than Arun.
- The bus is the cheapest. The fast train is the most expensive.
- I have lived here for two years. It has been raining since morning.
- The shop is open from morning until evening. I worked all day.
- Which season do you like most? I like the monsoon most of all.

Before you move on

"Than"? (કરતાં.) "Most of all"? (સૌથી વધારે.) "For two years": which tense follows? (The present.) Which sign is on સ in સૌથી? (ૌ.)

Chapter 283

If, then, or else

Modes: voice (4) Hands-free start: all 4 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what will happen if something does (jo varsād paḍśe, to …), give advice on a condition, and warn with nahītar, or else.
> Complete GU-R283-if-and-otherwise: say what happens if, and what happens otherwise.

283.1 જો ..., તો ... (jo ..., to ...) — if, then

Say "if", then "if … then", from A2. (જો, જો ... તો ....) Then "you should rest". (tamāre ārām karvo joīe.)

Grammar Lens: two halves

> જો તમને તાવ છે, તો તમારે આરામ કરવો જોઈએ.
> jo tamne tāv che, to tamāre ārām karvo joīe. — "If you have a fever, then you should rest."

જો (jo) opens the condition, and તો (to), "then", opens what follows from it. Each half is a whole sentence with its own verb. In quick speech તો can drop, but written down it marks where the second half begins.

You'll want to know: if it is so now

> જો તમને ભૂખ છે, તો ખાઈ લો.
> jo tamne bhūkh che, to khāī lo. — "If you're hungry, then go ahead and eat."

When the condition is about now, it takes the present: જો તમને ભૂખ છે, જો તે ઘરે છે. The second half can be advice, a request with -ઓ, or a plain statement: જો ઠંડી છે, તો હું ઘરે રહીશ (jo ṭhanḍī che, to hũ ghare rahīś).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "If you're hungry, go ahead and eat" — jo tamne bhūkh che, to khāī lo
- "If it's cold, I'll stay at home" — jo ṭhanḍī che, to hũ ghare rahīś

Before you move on

Which word opens the condition? (જો.) Which opens the second half? (તો.) "If you have a fever"? (જો તમને તાવ છે.)

283.2 જો વરસાદ પડશે, તો ... (jo varsād paḍśe, to ...) — if it happens

> Say "if you have a fever, then you should rest". (jo tamne tāv che, to tamāre ārām karvo joīe.) Then "we will stay". (ame rahīśũ.)

Grammar Lens: the future after જો

> જો વરસાદ પડશે, તો અમે ઘરે રહીશું.
> jo varsād paḍśe, to ame ghare rahīśũ. — "If it rains, we'll stay at home."

English says "if it rains"; Gujarati says "if it will rain": a condition about later takes the future, પડશે, and so does the result, રહીશું. "If it doesn't rain" is the નહીં form: જો વરસાદ નહીં પડે, તો અમે જઈશું (jo varsād nahī̃ paḍe, to ame jaīśũ).

You'll want to know: the past after જો

> જો ટ્રેન છૂટી ગઈ, તો હું બસમાં આવીશ.
> jo ṭren chūṭī gaī, to hũ basmā̃ āvīś. — "If I miss the train, I'll come by bus."

When the condition would be over before the result starts, it can take the plain past: "if the train has gone, then …". જો મારું પાકીટ ખોવાઈ ગયું, તો હું પોલીસમાં ફરિયાદ કરીશ (jo mārũ pākīṭ khovāī gayũ, to hũ polīsmā̃ phariyād karīś).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "If it doesn't rain, we'll go" — jo varsād nahī̃ paḍe, to ame jaīśũ
- "If my wallet is lost, I'll make a complaint" — jo mārũ pākīṭ khovāī gayũ, to hũ phariyād karīś

Before you move on

"If it rains"? (જો વરસાદ પડશે.) "If it doesn't rain"? (જો વરસાદ નહીં પડે.) "If I miss the train"? (જો ટ્રેન છૂટી ગઈ.)

283.3 નહીંતર (nahī̃tar) — otherwise; or else

> Before the new one: say "if it rains, we'll stay at home". (jo varsād paḍśe, to ame ghare rahīśũ.) Then "quickly" and "an umbrella". (જલદી, છત્રી.)

You'll want to know: નહીંતર

નહીંતર — nahī̃tar — "otherwise; or else". First what to do, then નહીંતર, then what will happen if it is not done:

જલદી ચાલો, નહીંતર ટ્રેન છૂટી જશે.

jaldī cālo, nahī̃tar ṭren chūṭī jaśe. — "Walk quickly, or else we'll miss the train."

છત્રી લો, નહીંતર તમે પલળી જશો.

chatrī lo, nahī̃tar tame palḷī jaśo. — "Take an umbrella, otherwise you'll get soaked."

It says in one word what જો ... નહીં ..., તો ... says in a whole clause.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

નહીંતર (nahī̃tar) is built from નહીં, "not", and -tar: "if not, then". CDIAL lists Gujarati nahitar, "otherwise", under Sanskrit tarhi, "then" (CDIAL 5730).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- nahī̃tar
- "Walk quickly, or else we'll miss the train" — jaldī cālo, nahī̃tar ṭren chūṭī jaśe
- "Take an umbrella, otherwise you'll get soaked" — chatrī lo, nahī̃tar tame palḷī jaśo

Before you move on

What does નહીંતર mean? ("Otherwise; or else".) Which two words are inside it? (નહીં and -tar, "then".)

283.4 Review — if, then, or else

Say "the city is bigger than the village". (śaher gām kartā̃ moṭũ che.) Then "I have lived here for two years". (hũ be varasthī ahī̃ rahũ chũ.) And "my wish is to live in the village". (mārī icchā gāmmā̃ rahevānī che.)

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- If you have a fever, then you should rest.
- If you're hungry, go ahead and eat.
- If it rains, we'll stay at home. If it doesn't rain, we'll go.
- If I miss the train, I'll come by bus. The bus is the cheapest.
- The shop is open from morning until evening. Go quickly, otherwise it will close.

Before you move on

"If it rains", about tomorrow: which tense? (The future: પડશે.) "If I miss the train"? (જો ટ્રેન છૂટી ગઈ.) "Or else"? (નહીંતર.)

Chapter 284

It depends, and what would have been

Modes: 🎧 voice (4) ✓ pen (1) 🎧 Hands-free start: the first 3 of 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what something depends on (… par ādhār rākhe che), say what would happen or would have happened (jo … hot, to … āvat), and write six connected lines about a trip.
> Complete GU-R284-depends-and-would: say what something depends on, and what would have been.

284.1 આધાર (ādhār) — a support; what something rests on

Before the new one: say "or else". (nahī̃tar.) Then "to keep". (રાખવું.)

You'll want to know: આધાર

આધાર — ādhār — "a support; what something rests on". It is masculine: મારો આધાર, "my support".

> મારાં માતા-પિતા મારો આધાર છે.
> mārā̃ mātā-pitā māro ādhār che. — "My parents are my support."

A person can be a આધાર, and so can a fact that a plan rests on. The next lesson builds "it depends" on that second sense.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

આધાર (ādhār) is a tatsama: Sanskrit ādhāra, "support, prop", and "the power of holding up" (Monier-Williams), from ā- and the root dhṛ-, "to hold".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- ādhār, then māro ādhār
- "My parents are my support" — mārā̃ mātā-pitā māro ādhār che

Before you move on

What does આધાર mean? ("A support; what something rests on".) Its gender? (Masculine: મારો આધાર.)

284.2 ... પર આધાર રાખે છે (... par ādhār rākhe che) — it depends on ...

Say "my support". (māro ādhār.) Then "if it rains". (jo varsād paḍśe.)

Grammar Lens: it keeps its support on ...

તે હવામાન પર આધાર રાખે છે.

te havāmān par ādhār rākhe che. — "It depends on the weather."

Word for word: "it keeps its support on the weather". પર (par), "on", comes after its word, as સુધી does. The thing that depends is the subject of રાખે છે: બધું સમય પર આધાર રાખે છે (badhũ samay par ādhār rākhe che), "everything depends on the time". A person takes મારા, તમારા: તે તમારા પર આધાર રાખે છે (te tamārā par ādhār rākhe che), "it depends on you".

You'll want to know: "it depends", and then

> અમે જઈશું કે નહીં? તે વરસાદ પર આધાર રાખે છે.
> ame jaīśũ ke nahī̃? te varsād par ādhār rākhe che. — "Will we go or not? It depends on the rain."

"It depends" is seldom the end of an answer. Say on what, then follow with જો: જો વરસાદ નહીં પડે, તો અમે જઈશું (jo varsād nahī̃ paḍe, to ame jaīśũ).

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "Everything depends on the time" — badhũ samay par ādhār rākhe che
- "It depends on you" — te tamārā par ādhār rākhe che

Before you move on

"It depends on the weather"? (તે હવામાન પર આધાર રાખે છે.) Where does પર go? (After its word.) "On you"? (તમારા પર.)

284.3 જો ... હોત, તો ... આવત (jo ... hot, to ... āvat) — what would have been

> Say "it depends on the rain: if it doesn't rain, we'll go". (te varsād par ādhār rākhe che: jo varsād nahī̃ paḍe, to ame jaīśũ.) Then "I have time", the A2 way. (મારી પાસે સમય છે.)

Grammar Lens: the -ત form

> જો મારી પાસે સમય હોત, તો હું આવત.
> jo mārī pāse samay hot, to hũ āvat. — "If I had had time, I would have come."

The stem with -ત (-t) is "would": the condition did not hold, so the result did not happen. Both halves take it: હોત, from હોવું, and આવત, from આવવું. It can also be about now, a thing that is not so: "if I had time, I would come".

"If not" puts ન before it: જો ટ્રેન મોડી ન હોત, તો અમે વહેલા પહોંચત (jo ṭren moḍī na hot, to ame vahelā pahõcat), "if the train hadn't been late, we would have arrived early".

You'll want to know: one form for everyone

-ત stays the same for every person, man or woman: હું જાત, તે જાત, અમે જાત, with the same jāt each time. It is no past, so a verb with an object keeps a plain doer, with no -એ:

plain past	would have
મેં કામ કર્યું	હું કામ કરત
તેણે કહ્યું	તે કહેત

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- "If the train hadn't been late, we would have arrived early" — jo ṭren moḍī na hot, to ame vahelā pahõcat
- "If I had time, I would do the work" — jo mārī pāse samay hot, to hũ kām karat

Before you move on

"I would have come"? (હું આવત.) Does it change for a woman? (No.) "I would do the work": મેં or હું? (હું કામ કરત.)

284.4 Six lines about a trip

The A2 composition was a practical note. This task asks for six lines that tell a story: a trip by train, bus or boat, real or invented.

Pick one reader: Arun, અરુણ, or Mira, મીરા. Mira's Sunday at the village is your model of order.

What to know first

A told story is not a list. It has a scene, with -તો હતો or જ્યારે ... ત્યારે, and events in the plain past, kept in order with પહેલાં, ત્યાર પછી and છેવટે and joined with -ઈને. It has a reason, with કારણ કે, -ને લીધે or એટલે, and a feeling, with મને બીક લાગી or હું ખુશ હતો.

A good one ends on what might have been: જો ..., તો ... -ત.

Writing — connected composition

On paper, in Gujarati script, write six lines to your reader about the trip, one line for each of these:

1. the scene: when it was, and what was going on as it began, with -તો હતો or જ્યારે ... ત્યારે;
2. the first thing that happened, with પહેલાં, and a -ઈને form;
3. what happened next, with ત્યાર પછી, and one thing that went wrong: ખોવાઈ ગઈ or છૂટી ગઈ;
4. why, with કારણ કે, -ને લીધે or એટલે;
5. how it ended and how you felt, with છેવટે and મને દુઃખ થયું or હું ખુશ હતો;
6. what might have been, with જો ... હોત, તો ... -ત, and one comparison, with કરતાં or સૌથી.

There is no model in this lesson. Use only words you already write. The work is choosing the right past for each line, and joining them.

Before you move on

Now read your lines as you read Mira's Sunday. Mark every verb s for scene, e for event. Line one should be mostly s; lines two and three mostly e.
Then three checks. A verb with an object in the plain past needs -એ on a name: અરુણે, મીરાએ. દુઃખ has ઃ after દુ, and સૌથી has ૌ on its સ. ઝડપી opens on ઝ.
Last, read line six alone. Do both halves take -ત: હોત, then આવત or જાત?

284.5 Review — it depends, and what would have been

Say "if it rains, we'll stay at home". (jo varsād paḍśe, to ame ghare rahīśũ.) Then "or else". (nahī̃tar.)

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- My parents are my support. What do you think?
- It depends on the weather. Everything depends on the time.
- Will we go or not? It depends on the rain. If it doesn't rain, we'll go.
- If you're tired, stay at home. If I miss the train, I'll come by bus: the train is faster than the bus, but the bus is cheaper.
- If I had had time, I would have come.
- If the train hadn't been late, we would have arrived early.

Before you move on

"It depends on you"? (તે તમારા પર આધાર રાખે છે.) "I would have come", said by a woman? (હું આવત: the same.) "I would do the work": with -એ or without? (Without: હું કામ કરત.)

Chapter 285

A Thief in the Night

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say that a thief came in the night and what happened next.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 285: I can say that a thief came in the night and what happened next.

285.1 ચોર (cor) — a thief

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to pester, then the Gujarati for to hope.

You'll want to know: ચોર

ચોર — cor — "a thief".

> ગઈકાલે રાત્રે એક ચોર અમારા ઘરમાં આવ્યો.
> gaīkāle rātre ek cor amārā gharmā̃ āvyo.
> Last night a thief got into our house.

A masculine or feminine noun, by the person meant.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ચોર (cor) is inherited from Sanskrit cōrá-, "a thief", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati word (CDIAL 4931). The verb ચોરવું, to steal, belongs to the same family.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: cor
- Say it: cor, once more
- Say it: gaīkāle rātre ek cor amārā gharmā̃ āvyo. — Last night a thief got into our house.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to pester, then the Gujarati for to hope, then say cor again

Before you move on

What does ચોર mean? ("A thief".) Say it once more.

285.2 ચોરી (corī) — a theft

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to hope, then the Gujarati for a thief.

You'll want to know: ચોરી

ચોરી — corī — "a theft".

ગઈકાલે રાત્રે અમારી ગલીમાં ચોરી થઈ.

gaīkāle rātre amārī galīmā̃ corī thaī.

There was a theft in our lane last night.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

is inherited from Sanskrit caurikā, "theft" (CDIAL 4937). ચોર is the person and ચોરી what the person does; a theft takes place with થવું: ચોરી થઈ.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: corī
- Say it: corī, once more
- Say it: gaīkāle rātre amārī galīmā̃ corī thaī. — There was a theft in our lane last night.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to hope, then the Gujarati for a thief, then say corī again

Before you move on

What does ચોરી mean? ("A theft".) Say it once more.

285.3 નાસવું (nāsvũ) — to flee

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a thief, then the Gujarati for a theft.

You'll want to know: નાસવું

નાસવું — nāsvũ — "to flee".

ચોરે પાકીટ ચોર્યું અને તે નાસી ગયો.

core pākīṭ coryũ ane te nāsī gayo.

The thief stole the wallet and ran off.

Past (he …): તે ચોર નાસી ગયો, te cor nāsī gayo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

નાસવું (nāsvũ) is inherited from Sanskrit náśyati, "is lost, runs away", and CDIAL glosses the Gujarati verb "to flee" (CDIAL 7027). It is usually said with જવું: નાસી ગયો, he ran off.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: nāsvũ
- Say it: nāsvũ, once more
- Say it: core pākīṭ coryũ ane te nāsī gayo. — The thief stole the wallet and ran off.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a thief, then the Gujarati for a theft, then say nāsvũ again

Before you move on

What does નાસવું mean? ("To flee".) Say it once more.

285.4 પકડવું (pakaḍvũ) — to catch

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a theft, then the Gujarati for to flee.

You'll want to know: પકડવું

પકડવું — pakaḍvũ — "to catch".

પોલીસે ચોરને બજારમાં પકડ્યો.

polīse corne bajārmā̃ pakaḍyo.

The police caught the thief in the market.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે ચોરને પકડ્યો, teṇe corne pakaḍyo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પકડવું (pakaḍvũ) comes from pakkaḍ*, "to seize", a form CDIAL reconstructs from its descendants, and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb (CDIAL 7619). A person caught takes ને, and the verb agrees with him: ચોરને પકડ્યો.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: pakaḍvũ
- Say it: pakaḍvũ, once more
- Say it: polīse corne bajārmã̃ pakaḍyo. — The police caught the thief in the market.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a theft, then the Gujarati for to flee, then say pakaḍvũ again

Before you move on

What does પકડવું mean? ("To catch".) Say it once more.

285.5 લોકો (loko) — people

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to flee, then the Gujarati for to catch.

You'll want to know: લોકો

લોકો — loko — "people".

પોલીસનું કામ લોકો પર પણ આધાર રાખે છે.

polīsnũ kām loko par paṇ ādhār rākhe che.

The work of the police depends on people too.

A masculine noun, used in the plural.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

લોકો (loko) is the plural of lok, from Sanskrit lōká-, "open space, the world", which later also meant "people" (CDIAL 11119). Gujarati uses it in the plural, and a verb with it is plural too: લોકો આવ્યા.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: loko
- Say it: loko, once more
- Say it: polīsnũ kām loko par paṇ ādhār rākhe che. — The work of the police depends on people too.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to flee, then the Gujarati for to catch, then say loko again

Before you move on

What does લોકો mean? ("People".) Say it once more.

Chapter 286

Calling the Police

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can report a crime and say whom I suspect.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 286: I can report a crime and say whom I suspect.

286.1 ગુનો (guno) — a crime

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to catch, then the Gujarati for people.

You'll want to know: ગુનો

ગુનો — guno — "a crime".

> ચોરી એક ગુનો છે.
> corī ek guno che.
> Theft is a crime.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગુનો (guno) is usually traced to Persian gunāh, "a sin, a fault"; in Gujarati it is an offence against the law. It is masculine: મોટો ગુનો, a serious crime.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: guno
- Say it: guno, once more
- Say it: corī ek guno che. — Theft is a crime.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to catch, then the Gujarati for people, then say guno again

Before you move on

What does ગુનો mean? ("A crime".) Say it once more.

286.2 સિપાઈ (sipāī) — a constable

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for people, then the Gujarati for a crime.

You'll want to know: સિપાઈ

સિપાઈ — sipāī — "a constable".

જો ત્યાં એક સિપાઈ હોત તો તે ચોરને પકડત.

jo tyā̃ ek sipāī hot to te corne pakḍat.

If a constable had been there, he would have caught the thief.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સિપાઈ (sipāī) is usually traced to Persian sipāhī, "a soldier", the word English took as sepoy. In Gujarati it is the constable on the beat.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: sipāī
- Say it: sipāī, once more
- Say it: jo tyā̃ ek sipāī hot to te corne pakḍat. — If a constable had been there, he would have caught the thief.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for people, then the Gujarati for a crime, then say sipāī again

Before you move on

What does સિપાઈ mean? ("A constable".) Say it once more.

286.3 શંકા (śankā) — a suspicion

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a crime, then the Gujarati for a constable.

You'll want to know: શંકા

શંકા — śankā — "a suspicion".

મીરાને ચોકીદાર પર શંકા હતી.

Mīrāne cokīdār par śankā hatī.

Mira suspected the watchman.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

શંકા (śankā) is a tatsama, Sanskrit śaṅkā, "fear, distrust" (CDIAL 12258). The person suspected takes પર: ચોકીદાર પર શંકા, a suspicion about the watchman.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: śankā
- Say it: śankā, once more
- Say it: Mīrāne cokīdār par śankā hatī. — Mira suspected the watchman.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a crime, then the Gujarati for a constable, then say śankā again

Before you move on

What does શંકા mean? ("A suspicion".) Say it once more.

286.4 ખૂબ (khūb) — very; a great deal

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a constable, then the Gujarati for a suspicion.

You'll want to know: ખૂબ

ખૂબ — khūb — "very; a great deal".

ચોરી પછી મીરા ખૂબ ડરી ગઈ.

corī pachī Mīrā khūb ḍarī gaī.

After the theft Mira was badly frightened.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખૂબ (khūb) is usually traced to Persian khūb, "good, fine". In Gujarati it makes a word stronger: ખૂબ સારું, very good; ખૂબ ડરી ગઈ, got very frightened.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: khūb
- Say it: khūb, once more
- Say it: corī pachī Mīrā khūb ḍarī gaī. — After the theft Mira was badly frightened.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a constable, then the Gujarati for a suspicion, then say khūb again

Before you move on

What does ખૂબ mean? ("Very; a great deal".) Say it once more.

286.5 છુપાવવું (chupāvvũ) — to hide (something)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a suspicion, then the Gujarati for very.

You'll want to know: છુપાવવું

છુપાવવું — chupāvvũ — "to hide (something)".

ચોરે પૈસા પથ્થર નીચે છુપાવ્યા.

core paisā paththar nīce chupāvyā.

The thief hid the money under a stone.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે પૈસા છુપાવ્યા, teṇe paisā chupāvyā.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

છુપાવવું (chupāvvũ) is the causative of chupāvũ, to be hidden, which CDIAL lists under chupp*, "to hide", a form it reconstructs (CDIAL 5058). You hide a thing, and the verb agrees with it: પૈસા છુપાવ્યા.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: chupāvvũ
- Say it: chupāvvũ, once more
- Say it: core paisā paththar nīce chupāvyā. — The thief hid the money under a stone.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a suspicion, then the Gujarati for very, then say chupāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does છુપાવવું mean? ("To hide (something)".) Say it once more.

Chapter 287

Clues at the Door

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what the thief left behind and how he got in.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 287: I can say what the thief left behind and how he got in.

287.1 ભાળ (bhāḷ) — a trace; whereabouts

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for very, then the Gujarati for to hide (something).

You'll want to know: ભાળ

ભાળ — bhāḷ — "a trace; whereabouts".

> પોલીસ ચોરની ભાળ કાઢતી હતી.
> polīs cornī bhāḷ kāḍhtī hatī.
> The police were trying to trace the thief.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ભાળ (bhāḷ) comes from bhāla*, "observation", a form CDIAL reconstructs, and CDIAL lists Gujarati bhāḷ, "search, investigation"

(CDIAL 9473). It is the trail that leads to someone: ભાળ કાઢવી, to trace a person.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: bhāḷ
- Say it: bhāḷ, once more
- Say it: polīs cornī bhāḷ kāḍhtī hatī. — The police were trying to trace the thief.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for very, then the Gujarati for to hide (something), then say bhāḷ again

Before you move on

What does ભાળ mean? ("A trace; whereabouts".) Say it once more.

287.2 પગલું (paglũ) — a footstep

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to hide (something), then the Gujarati for a trace.

You'll want to know: પગલું

પગલું — paglũ — "a footstep".

હવે બધું આ પગલાં પર આધાર રાખે છે.

have badhũ ā paglã̃ par ādhār rākhe che.

Now everything rests on these footprints.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પગલું (paglũ) is built on પગ, a foot, which CDIAL sets under Sanskrit padga- (CDIAL 7766), with the ending -lũ. It is a step, and the sound or the print a step leaves: કોઈનાં પગલાં, someone's footsteps.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: paglũ
- Say it: paglũ, once more
- Say it: have badhũ ā paglā̃ par ādhār rākhe che. — Now everything rests on these footprints.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to hide (something), then the Gujarati for a trace, then say paglũ again

Before you move on

What does પગલું mean? ("A footstep".) Say it once more.

287.3 ખખડાવવું (khakhḍāvvũ) — to knock (at a door)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a trace, then the Gujarati for a footstep.

You'll want to know: ખખડાવવું

ખખડાવવું — khakhḍāvvũ — "to knock (at a door)".

અડધી રાત્રે કોઈએ બારણું ખખડાવ્યું.

aḍdhī rātre koīe bārṇũ khakhḍāvyũ.

In the middle of the night someone knocked at the door.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે બારણું ખખડાવ્યું, teṇe bārṇũ khakhḍāvyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખખડાવવું (khakhḍāvvũ) is the causative of khakhaḍvũ, to rattle, an imitative word: CDIAL sets Gujarati khaṛkhaṛvũ, "to rattle", under Sanskrit khaṭakhaṭāyatē, "crackles" (CDIAL 3771), and this verb probably belongs with it. To knock is to make the door rattle.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: khakhḍāvvũ
- Say it: khakhḍāvvũ, once more
- Say it: aḍdhī rātre koīe bārṇũ khakhḍāvyũ. — In the middle of the night someone knocked at the door.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a trace, then the Gujarati for a footstep, then say khakhḍāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does ખખડાવવું mean? ("To knock (at a door)".) Say it once more.

287.4 સંતાવું (santāvũ) — to hide oneself

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a footstep, then the Gujarati for to knock.

You'll want to know: સંતાવું

સંતાવું — santāvũ — "to hide oneself".

ચોર દાદર નીચે સંતાઈ ગયો.

cor dādar nīce santāī gayo.

The thief hid under the stairs.

Past (he ...): તે ચોર સંતાઈ ગયો, te cor santāī gayo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

goes back to Sanskrit sámitāyatē, "is stretched out, is covered", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to conceal oneself" (CDIAL 12887): to be covered over, out of sight. A person hides himself with સંતાવું: સંતાઈ ગયો; a thing is hidden with છુપાવવું.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: santāvũ
- Say it: santāvũ, once more
- Say it: cor dādar nīce santāī gayo. — The thief hid under the stairs.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a footstep, then the Gujarati for to knock, then say santāvũ again

Before you move on

What does સંતાવું mean? ("To hide oneself".) Say it once more.

287.5 તોડવું (toḍvũ) — to break (something)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to knock, then the Gujarati for to hide oneself.

You'll want to know: તોડવું

તોડવું — toḍvũ — "to break (something)".

ચોરે તાળું તોડ્યું.

core tāḷũ toḍyũ.

The thief broke the lock.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે તાળું તોડ્યું, teṇe tāḷũ toḍyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તોડવું (toḍvũ) goes back to Sanskrit trōṭáyati, "breaks, tears", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb (CDIAL 6079). It is the doing partner of તૂટવું, to get broken: તાળું તૂટ્યું says that it broke, ચોરે તાળું તોડ્યું says who broke it.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: toḍvũ
- Say it: toḍvũ, once more
- Say it: core tāḷũ toḍyũ. — The thief broke the lock.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to knock, then the Gujarati for to hide oneself, then say toḍvũ again

Before you move on

What does તોડવું mean? ("To break (something)".) Say it once more.

Chapter 288

The Confession

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> Complete the last lesson of chapter 288: I can say who confessed and who denied it.

288.1 ધરપકડ (dharpakaḍ) — an arrest

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to hide oneself, then the Gujarati for to break (something).

You'll want to know: ધરપકડ

ધરપકડ — dharpakaḍ — "an arrest".

> પોલીસે ગઈકાલે બે ચોરોની ધરપકડ કરી.
> polīse gaīkāle be coronī dharpakaḍ karī.
> Yesterday the police arrested two thieves.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ધરપકડ (dharpakaḍ) is built from the stem of dharvũ, to hold, from Sanskrit dhárati (CDIAL 6747), and pakaḍ, a grip, the noun of પકડવું: a holding and a seizing. The police ધરપકડ કરે છે, make an arrest.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: dharpakaḍ
- Say it: dharpakaḍ, once more
- Say it: polīse gaīkāle be coronī dharpakaḍ karī. — Yesterday the police arrested two thieves.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to hide oneself, then the Gujarati for to break (something), then say dharpakaḍ again

Before you move on

What does ધરપકડ mean? ("An arrest".) Say it once more.

288.2 કબૂલવું (kabūlvũ) — to confess

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to break (something), then the Gujarati for an arrest.

You'll want to know: કબૂલવું

કબૂલવું — kabūlvũ — "to confess".

ચોરે થાણામાં ગુનો કબૂલ્યો.

core thāṇāmã̃ guno kabūlyo.

At the police station the thief confessed to the crime.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે ગુનો કબૂલ્યો, teṇe guno kabūlyo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કબૂલવું (kabūlvũ) is built on kabūl, usually traced through Persian to Arabic qabūl, "acceptance": to confess is to accept what you did. ગુનો કબૂલ્યો, he admitted the crime.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: kabūlvũ
- Say it: kabūlvũ, once more
- Say it: core thāṇāmā̃ guno kabūlyo. — At the police station the thief confessed to the crime.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to break (something), then the Gujarati for an arrest, then say kabūlvũ again

Before you move on

What does કબૂલવું mean? ("To confess".) Say it once more.

- Recall: say the Gujarati for a scam, then the Gujarati for a bribe, then say jāsūs again

Before you move on

What does જાસૂસ mean? ("A detective; a spy".) Say it once more.

292.5 ઝડપવું (jhaḍapvũ) — to nab

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a bribe, then the Gujarati for a detective.

You'll want to know: ઝડપવું

ઝડપવું — jhaḍapvũ — "to nab".

> છેવટે પોલીસે ઠગને સ્ટેશન પર ઝડપ્યો.
> chevṭe polīse ṭhagne sṭeśan par jhaḍapyo.
> In the end the police nabbed the swindler at the station.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે ઠગને ઝડપ્યો, teṇe ṭhagne jhaḍapyo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઝડપવું (jhaḍapvũ) comes from jhaṭ*, a form CDIAL reconstructs for a quick, sudden movement; CDIAL lists Gujarati jhaṛapvũ, "to snatch"

(CDIAL 5327). In news reports it is what the police do to a wanted man: they grab him fast.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: jhaḍapvũ
- Say it: jhaḍapvũ, once more
- Say it: chevṭe polīse ṭhagne sṭeśan par jhaḍapyo. — In the end the police nabbed the swindler at the station.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say where an accident happened and who was hurt.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 293: I can say where an accident happened and who was hurt.

293.1 અકસ્માત (akasmāt) — an accident

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a detective, then the Gujarati for to nab.

You'll want to know: અકસ્માત

અકસ્માત — akasmāt — "an accident".

> ગઈકાલે સાંજે પુલ પાસે મોટો અકસ્માત થયો.
> gaīkāle sā̃je pul pāse moṭo akasmāt thayo.
> Yesterday evening there was a big accident near the bridge.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

અકસ્માત (akasmāt) is Sanskrit akasmāt, "without a why or a wherefore, suddenly" (Monier-Williams), used in Gujarati as a noun: what happens without warning. It is masculine: અકસ્માત થયો, there was an accident.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: akasmāt
- Say it: akasmāt, once more
- Say it: gaīkāle sā̃je pul pāse moṭo akasmāt thayo. — Yesterday evening there was a big accident near the bridge.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a detective, then the Gujarati for to nab, then say akasmāt again

Before you move on

What does અકસ્માત mean? ("An accident".) Say it once more.

બસ અને ગાડીની ટક્કર થઈ.

bas ane gāḍīnī ṭakkar thaī.

A bus and a car collided.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

goes back to ṭakkarā, "a blow on the head", and CDIAL lists Gujarati ṭakkar, "a blow" (CDIAL 5424). Two vehicles have a ટક્કર: બસ અને ગાડીની ટક્કર થઈ.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭakkar
- Say it: ṭakkar, once more
- Say it: bas ane gāḍīnī ṭakkar thaī. — A bus and a car collided.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to nab, then the Gujarati for an accident, then say ṭakkar again

Before you move on

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for an accident, then the Gujarati for a collision.

You'll want to know: ઘાયલ

ઘાયલ — ghāyal — "injured".

આ અકસ્માતમાં ત્રણ લોકો ઘાયલ થયા.

ā akasmātmã̃ traṇ loko ghāyal thayā.

Three people were hurt in this accident.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઘાયલ (ghāyal) is built on ghāy, a wound, from Sanskrit ghāta, "a blow"; CDIAL lists Gujarati ghāyo, a wounded person, under that word (CDIAL 4460). A person ઘાયલ થાય છે, gets hurt.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: ghāyal
- Say it: ghāyal, once more
- Say it: ā akasmātmā̃ traṇ loko ghāyal thayā. — Three people were hurt in this accident.

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a collision, then the Gujarati for injured.

You'll want to know: ગંભીર

ગંભીર — gambhīr — "serious".

એક છોકરાને ગંભીર ઈજા થઈ.

ek chokrāne gambhīr ījā thaī.

One boy was seriously injured.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગંભીર (gambhīr) is a tatsama, Sanskrit gambhīra, "deep" (Monier-Williams). In Gujarati it is a deep, grave matter: ગંભીર ઈજા, a serious injury; ગંભીર માણસ, a serious man.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: gambhīr

You'll want to know: ગભરાવું

ગભરાવું — gabhrāvũ — "to panic".

અકસ્માત જોઈને ડ્રાઈવર ગભરાઈ ગયો.

akasmāt joīne ḍrāīvar gabhrāī gayo.

When he saw the accident, the driver panicked.

Past (he …): તે ડ્રાઈવર ગભરાઈ ગયો, te ḍrāīvar gabhrāī gayo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગભરાવું (gabhrāvũ) probably comes from ghabbhara*, "confused", a form CDIAL reconstructs, under which it lists Gujarati ghābhrũ, "confused" (CDIAL 4427). It is to lose your head with fright: ગભરાઈ ગયો.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: gabhrāvũ
- Say it: gabhrāvũ, once more
- Say it: akasmāt joīne ḍrāīvar gabhrāī gayo. — When he saw the accident, the driver panicked.

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a graze, then the Gujarati for to tumble.

You'll want to know: ઢાળ

ઢાળ — ḍhāḷ — "a slope".

આ રસ્તા પર મોટો ઢાળ છે.

ā rastā par moṭo ḍhāḷ che.

This road has a steep slope.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઢાળ (ḍhāḷ) probably belongs with ḍhaḷvũ, to slip, to be poured out, which CDIAL sets under ḍhalati* (CDIAL 5581): ground that falls away. A bicycle goes fast ઢાળ પર, on a slope.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: ḍhāḷ
- Say it: ḍhāḷ, once more
- Say it: ā rastā par moṭo ḍhāḷ che. — This road has a steep slope.

garam telthī Mīrāno hāth dājhī gayo.

Mira burned her hand on hot oil.

Past (he …): તે છોકરો દાઝી ગયો, te chokro dājhī gayo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દાઝવું (dājhvũ) is inherited from Sanskrit dahyátē, "is burnt", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to be burnt, be scalded" (CDIAL 6248). It is skin that દાઝે છે; wood and paper બળે છે.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: dājhvũ
- Say it: dājhvũ, once more
- Say it: garam telthī Mīrāno hāth dājhī gayo. — Mira burned her hand on hot oil.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a flame, then the Gujarati for to set alight, then say dājhvũ again

Before you move on

What does દાઝવું mean? ("To be scalded; to get a burn".) Say it once more.

300.6 Looking back: from An Accident near the Bridge to Smoke from the Kitchen

Say the Gujarati for an accident and a collision.

Chapter 301

A Building on Fire

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what happened when a building caught fire.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 301: I can say what happened when a building caught fire.

301.1 ઇમારત (imārat) — a large building

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to set alight, then the Gujarati for to be scalded.

You'll want to know: ઇમારત

ઇમારત — imārat — "a large building".

> ગઈકાલે રાત્રે શહેરની એક જૂની ઇમારતમાં આગ લાગી.
> gaīkāle rātre śahernī ek jūnī imāratmā̃ āg lāgī.
> Last night a fire broke out in an old building in the city.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઇમારત (imārat) is usually traced, through Persian, to Arabic ᶜimāra, "building, construction". It is a large building, where મકાન is any building or house.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: imārat
- Say it: imārat, once more
- Say it: gaīkāle rātre śahernī ek jūnī imāratmā̃ āg lāgī. — Last night a fire broke out in an old building in the city.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to set alight, then the Gujarati for to be scalded, then say imārat again

Before you move on

What does ઇમારત mean? ("A large building".) Say it once more.

301.2 સીડી (sīḍī) — a ladder

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to be scalded, then the Gujarati for a large building.

You'll want to know: સીડી

સીડી — sīḍī — "a ladder".

લોકો સીડીથી નીચે ઊતર્યા.

loko sīḍīthī nīce ūtaryā.

People climbed down by the ladder.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

comes from śrīḍhi*, a form CDIAL reconstructs, and CDIAL lists the Gujarati noun, "a ladder" (CDIAL 12709). દાદર is a building's staircase; a સીડી is a ladder you can carry.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: sīḍī
- Say it: sīḍī, once more
- Say it: loko sīḍīthī nīce ūtaryā. — People climbed down by the ladder.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to be scalded, then the Gujarati for a large building, then say sīḍī again

Before you move on

What does સીડી mean? ("A ladder".) Say it once more.

301.3 ગૂંગળાવું (gũgḷāvũ) — to choke (for want of air)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a large building, then the Gujarati for a ladder.

You'll want to know: ગૂંગળાવું

ગૂંગળાવું — gũgḷāvũ — "to choke (for want of air)".

ધુમાડામાં ઘણા લોકો ગૂંગળાઈ ગયા.

dhumāḍāmã̃ ghaṇā loko gũgḷāī gayā.

Many people choked in the smoke.

Past (he …): તે માણસ ગૂંગળાઈ ગયો, te māṇas gũgḷāī gayo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગૂંગળાવું (gũgḷāvũ) No dictionary we use records an older form, so its history is not settled. Smoke and a closed room make people ગૂંગળાઈ જવું: they cannot get their breath.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: gũgḷāvũ
- Say it: gũgḷāvũ, once more
- Say it: dhumāḍāmã̃ ghaṇā loko gũgḷāī gayā. — Many people choked in the smoke.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a large building, then the Gujarati for a ladder, then say gũgḷāvũ again

Before you move on

What does ગૂંગળાવું mean? ("To choke (for want of air)".) Say it once more.

301.4 ફાટવું (phāṭvũ) — to burst; to split

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a ladder, then the Gujarati for to choke.

You'll want to know: ફાટવું

ફાટવું — phāṭvũ — "to burst; to split".

ગરમીથી દીવાલ ફાટી ગઈ.

garmīthī dīvāl phāṭī gaī.

The heat split the wall.

Past (it …): તે કપડું ફાટી ગયું, te kapḍũ phāṭī gayũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ફાટવું (phāṭvũ) belongs with Sanskrit sphāṭayati, "causes to split", where CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to be split" (CDIAL 13825). Cloth tears and walls crack with it: ફાટી ગયું.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: phāṭvũ
- Say it: phāṭvũ, once more
- Say it: garmīthī dīvāl phāṭī gaī. — The heat split the wall.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a ladder, then the Gujarati for to choke, then say phāṭvũ again

Before you move on

What does ફાટવું mean? ("To burst; to split".) Say it once more.

301.5 ધડાકો (dhaḍāko) — a bang; a blast

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to choke, then the Gujarati for to burst.

You'll want to know: ધડાકો

ધડાકો — dhaḍāko — "a bang; a blast".

અચાનક મોટો ધડાકો થયો.

acānak moṭo dhaḍāko thayo.

Suddenly there was a loud bang.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ધડાકો (dhaḍāko) comes from dhaḍ*, "throb, beat", a form CDIAL reconstructs, and CDIAL lists the Gujarati noun, glossed "a quick push" (CDIAL 6711); the sense of a loud bang, the commonest one today, is not in that gloss. It happens with થવું: ધડાકો થયો.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: dhaḍāko
- Say it: dhaḍāko, once more
- Say it: acānak moṭo dhaḍāko thayo. — Suddenly there was a loud bang.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to choke, then the Gujarati for to burst, then say dhaḍāko again

Before you move on

What does ધડાકો mean? ("A bang; a blast".) Say it once more.

Chapter 302

The Fire Engine

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say how the fire was put out.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 302: I can say how the fire was put out.

302.1 બંબો (bambo) — a fire engine

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to burst, then the Gujarati for a bang.

You'll want to know: બંબો

બંબો — bambo — "a fire engine".

> પાંચ મિનિટમાં બંબો આવી ગયો.
> pā̃c miniṭmā̃ bambo āvī gayo.
> The fire engine arrived within five minutes.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બંબો (bambo) is probably from Portuguese bomba, "a pump": the fire engine began as a pump on wheels. The firemen are બંબાવાળા, the men of the pump.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: bambo
- Say it: bambo, once more
- Say it: pā̃c miniṭmā̃ bambo āvī gayo. — The fire engine arrived within five minutes.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to burst, then the Gujarati for a bang, then say bambo again

Before you move on

What does બંબો mean? ("A fire engine".) Say it once more.

302.2 બુઝાવવું (bujhāvvũ) — to extinguish

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a bang, then the Gujarati for a fire engine.

You'll want to know: બુઝાવવું

બુઝાવવું — bujhāvvũ — "to extinguish".

લોકોએ પાણી નાખીને આગ બુઝાવી.

lokoe pāṇī nākhīne āg bujhāvī.

People poured water on the fire and put it out.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે આગ બુઝાવી, teṇe āg bujhāvī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બુઝાવવું (bujhāvvũ) belongs with bujhāvũ, to go out, which CDIAL lists under vijjhāyati*, "is burnt out, is extinguished", a form it reconstructs; the doing verb continues that entry's causative line, vijjhāpayati* (CDIAL 11703): to make a fire go out.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: bujhāvvũ
- Say it: bujhāvvũ, once more
- Say it: lokoe pāṇī nākhīne āg bujhāvī. — People poured water on the fire and put it out.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a bang, then the Gujarati for a fire engine, then say bujhāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does બુઝાવવું mean? ("To extinguish".) Say it once more.

302.3 દોરડું (dorḍũ) — a rope

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a fire engine, then the Gujarati for to extinguish.

You'll want to know: દોરડું

દોરડું — dorḍũ — "a rope".

તેમણે દોરડાથી એક બાળકને નીચે ઉતાર્યું.

temṇe dorḍāthī ek bāḷakne nīce utāryũ.

They let a child down on a rope.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

દોરડું (dorḍũ) belongs with દોરો, a thread: both go back to Sanskrit davara, "string", where CDIAL lists Gujarati doro, "string, rope" (CDIAL 6225). The ending -ḍũ makes the thicker thing, a rope.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: dorḍũ
- Say it: dorḍũ, once more
- Say it: temṇe dorḍāthī ek bāḷakne nīce utāryũ. — They let a child down on a rope.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a fire engine, then the Gujarati for to extinguish, then say dorḍũ again

Before you move on

What does દોરડું mean? ("A rope".) Say it once more.

302.4 ઓગળવું (ogaḷvũ) — to melt

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to extinguish, then the Gujarati for a rope.

You'll want to know: ઓગળવું

ઓગળવું — ogaḷvũ — "to melt".

તડકામાં માખણ ઓગળી ગયું.

taḍkāmā̃ mākhaṇ ogḷī gayũ.

The butter melted in the sun.

Past (it …): તે બરફ ઓગળી ગયો, te baraph ogḷī gayo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઓગળવું (ogaḷvũ) is inherited from Sanskrit avagalati, "trickles down", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to trickle down, melt" (CDIAL 742). Ice and butter ઓગળે છે.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: ogaḷvũ
- Say it: ogaḷvũ, once more
- Say it: taḍkāmā̃ mākhaṇ ogḷī gayũ. — The butter melted in the sun.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to extinguish, then the Gujarati for a rope, then say ogaḷvũ again

Before you move on

What does ઓગળવું mean? ("To melt".) Say it once more.

302.5 ભડકો (bhaḍko) — a blaze; a sudden flare of flame

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a rope, then the Gujarati for to melt.

You'll want to know: ભડકો

ભડકો — bhaḍko — "a blaze; a sudden flare of flame".

તપેલીમાં તેલ ખૂબ ગરમ થયું અને મોટો ભડકો થયો.

tapelīmā̃ tel khūb garam thayũ ane moṭo bhaḍko thayo.

The oil in the pan got too hot and flared up in a big blaze.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

comes from bhaṭ*, "a sudden movement or noise", a form CDIAL reconstructs, under which it lists Gujarati bhaṛkũ, "a blaze" (CDIAL 9365). A ભડકો is flame that leaps up all at once.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: bhaḍko
- Say it: bhaḍko, once more
- Say it: tapelīmã̃ tel khūb garam thayũ ane moṭo bhaḍko thayo. — The oil in the pan got too hot and flared up in a big blaze.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a rope, then the Gujarati for to melt, then say bhaḍko again

Before you move on

What does ભડકો mean? ("A blaze; a sudden flare of flame".) Say it once more.

> gaīkāle rātre dariyā kināre moṭũ vāvājhoḍũ āvyũ.
> Last night a big cyclone hit the coast.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

is probably built on vā, wind, which CDIAL lists for Gujarati under Sanskrit vāyú, "wind" (CDIAL 11544); no dictionary we use records the rest of the word, so its history is not settled. It is neuter, and it આવે છે, comes: વાવાઝોડું આવ્યું. તોફાન is any storm; a વાવાઝોડું is a whirling one.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: vāvājhoḍũ
- Say it: vāvājhoḍũ, once more
- Say it: gaīkāle rātre dariyā kināre moṭũ vāvājhoḍũ āvyũ. — Last night a big cyclone hit the coast.

વાવાઝોડું સવારે ગામ પર ત્રાટક્યું.

vāvājhoḍũ savāre gām par trāṭakyũ.

The cyclone struck the village in the morning.

Past (it …): તે વાવાઝોડું ત્રાટક્યું, te vāvājhoḍũ trāṭakyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ત્રાટકવું (trāṭakvũ) No dictionary we use records an older form, so its history is not settled. Storms and armies ત્રાટકે છે: they fall on a place suddenly and hard.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: trāṭakvũ
- Say it: trāṭakvũ, once more
- Say it: vāvājhoḍũ savāre gām par trāṭakyũ. — The cyclone struck the village in the morning.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a blaze, then the Gujarati for a cyclone, then say trāṭakvũ again

Before you move on

What does ત્રાટકવું mean? ("To strike (of a storm or an attack)".) Say it once more.

303.3 છાપરું (chāprũ) — a thatched roof

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a cyclone, then the Gujarati for to strike.

You'll want to know: છાપરું

છાપરું — chāprũ — "a thatched roof".

વાવાઝોડામાં અમારું છાપરું ઊડી ગયું.

vāvājhoḍāmā̃ amārũ chāprũ ūḍī gayũ.

Our roof blew off in the cyclone.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

goes back to Sanskrit chattvará, "a house, a bower", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati noun, "a thatched roof, a cottage" (CDIAL 4976). છત is a ceiling or a flat roof; a છાપરું is a sloping roof of thatch or tiles.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: chāprũ
- Say it: chāprũ, once more
- Say it: vāvājhoḍāmā̃ amārũ chāprũ ūḍī gayũ. — Our roof blew off in the cyclone.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a cyclone, then the Gujarati for to strike, then say chāprũ again

Before you move on

What does છાપરું mean? ("A thatched roof".) Say it once more.

303.4 ઝૂંપડું (jhū̃pḍũ) — a hut

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to strike, then the Gujarati for a thatched roof.

You'll want to know: ઝૂંપડું

ઝૂંપડું — jhū̃pḍũ — "a hut".

ગરીબ લોકોનાં ઝૂંપડાં તૂટી ગયાં.

garīb lokonā̃ jhū̃pḍā̃ tūṭī gayā̃.

The poor people's huts were wrecked.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

comes from jhuppa*, a form CDIAL reconstructs, and CDIAL lists the Gujarati noun, "a hut" (CDIAL 5403). It is neuter: ઝૂંપડું, plural ઝૂંપડાં.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: jhũpḍũ
- Say it: jhũpḍũ, once more
- Say it: garīb lokonã̃ jhũpḍã̃ tūṭī gayã̃. — The poor people's huts were wrecked.

Before you move on

What does ઝૂંપડું mean? ("A hut".) Say it once more.

303.5 ઉજાડવું (ujāḍvũ) — to lay waste

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a thatched roof, then the Gujarati for a hut.

You'll want to know: ઉજાડવું

ઉજાડવું — ujāḍvũ — "to lay waste".

વાવાઝોડાએ આખું ગામ ઉજાડ્યું.

vāvājhoḍāe ākhũ gām ujāḍyũ.

The cyclone laid waste to the whole village.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે ખેતર ઉજાડ્યું, teṇe khetar ujāḍyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઉજાડવું (ujāḍvũ) comes from ujjaṭati*, a form CDIAL reconstructs, and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to lay waste" (CDIAL 1661). A storm, a war or a flood ઉજાડે છે: it leaves a place empty.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: ujāḍvũ
- Say it: ujāḍvũ, once more
- Say it: vāvājhoḍāe ākhũ gām ujāḍyũ. — The cyclone laid waste to the whole village.

What does ઉજાડવું mean? ("To lay waste".) Say it once more.

Chapter 304

The Flood

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what the flood carried away and what it cost.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 304: I can say what the flood carried away and what it cost.

304.1 તણાવું (taṇāvũ) — to be swept away

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a hut, then the Gujarati for to lay waste.

You'll want to know: તણાવું

તણાવું — taṇāvũ — "to be swept away".

> પૂરમાં અમારી ગાય તણાઈ ગઈ.
> pūrmā̃ amārī gāy taṇāī gaī.
> Our cow was swept away in the flood.

Past (it …): તે ઝૂંપડું તણાઈ ગયું, te jhū̃pḍũ taṇāī gayũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તણાવું (taṇāvũ) goes back to Sanskrit tanṓti, "stretches", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to be dragged" (CDIAL 5659): a flood drags things along with it. તણાઈ ગયું, it was swept away.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: taṇāvũ
- Say it: taṇāvũ, once more
- Say it: pūrmā̃ amārī gāy taṇāī gaī. — Our cow was swept away in the flood.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a hut, then the Gujarati for to lay waste, then say taṇāvũ again

Before you move on

What does તણાવું mean? ("To be swept away".) Say it once more.

304.2 ડુબાડવું (ḍubāḍvũ) — to submerge; to flood

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to lay waste, then the Gujarati for to be swept away.

You'll want to know: ડુબાડવું

ડુબાડવું — ḍubāḍvũ — "to submerge; to flood".

નદીએ આખું ગામ ડુબાડી દીધું.

nadīe ākhũ gām ḍubāḍī dīdhũ.

The river flooded the whole village.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે હોડી ડુબાડી, teṇe hoḍī ḍubāḍī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ડુબાડવું (ḍubāḍvũ) is the causative of ડૂબવું, to sink, from ḍubb*, "sink", a form CDIAL reconstructs (CDIAL 5561): to make something go under. The long ū of ડૂબવું shortens in the longer verb.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: ḍubāḍvũ
- Say it: ḍubāḍvũ, once more

varsād aṭakyo tyāre lokone rāhat thaī.

When the rain stopped, people felt relieved.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

રાહત (rāhat) is usually traced, through Persian, to Arabic rāḥa, "rest, ease". Gujarati uses it for the ease that comes after trouble, રાહત થઈ, and for the help sent to people in need.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: rāhat
- Say it: rāhat, once more
- Say it: varsād aṭakyo tyāre lokone rāhat thaī. — When the rain stopped, people felt relieved.

Before you move on

What does છાવણી mean? ("A camp".) Say it once more.

306.4 અનાજ (anāj) — grain (as food)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for relief, then the Gujarati for a camp.

You'll want to know: અનાજ

અનાજ — anāj — "grain (as food)".

છાવણીમાં રોજ અનાજ અને દૂધ આવે છે.

chāvṇīmā̃ roj anāj ane dūdh āve che.

Grain and milk come to the camp every day.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

goes back to Sanskrit annādya, "food", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati noun, "grain" (CDIAL 398). Wheat, rice and millet are all અનાજ.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: anāj
- Say it: anāj, once more

306.5 ઊમટવું (ūmaṭvũ) — to pour in; to throng (of people)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a camp, then the Gujarati for grain.

You'll want to know: ઊમટવું

ઊમટવું — ūmaṭvũ — "to pour in; to throng (of people)".

આખા શહેરમાંથી લોકો મદદ લઈને ઊમટ્યા.

ākhā śahermā̃thī loko madad laīne ūmaṭyā.

People poured in from all over the city, bringing help.

Past (it …): તે ટોળું ઊમટ્યું, te ṭoḷũ ūmaṭyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઊમટવું (ūmaṭvũ) probably goes back to Sanskrit únmṛṣṭa, "rubbed off", and so "made clear": CDIAL lists Gujarati umaṭvũ, "to appear, come to light", there (CDIAL 2133). The sense of crowds that ઊમટે છે, pour out all at once, is the modern language's.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: ūmaṭvũ
- Say it: ūmaṭvũ, once more
- Say it: ākhā śahermãthī loko madad laīne ūmaṭyā. — People poured in from all over the city, bringing help.

- Say it: sainiknā hāthmā̃ talvār hatī. — The soldier had a sword in his hand.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for an enemy, then the Gujarati for an invasion, then say talvār again

Before you move on

What does તલવાર mean? ("A sword".) Say it once more.

321.2 ઢાલ (ḍhāl) — a shield

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for an invasion, then the Gujarati for a sword.

You'll want to know: ઢાલ

ઢાલ — ḍhāl — "a shield".

તેણે ઢાલથી પોતાને બચાવ્યો.

teṇe ḍhālthī potāne bacāvyo.

He protected himself with his shield.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઢાલ (ḍhāl) goes back to ḍhāla, "a shield", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati noun (CDIAL 5583). It is feminine: ઢાલથી, with a shield.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: ḍhāl
- Say it: ḍhāl, once more
- Say it: teṇe ḍhālthī potāne bacāvyo. — He protected himself with his shield.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for an invasion, then the Gujarati for a sword, then say ḍhāl again દુશ્મને હથિયાર નીચે મૂક્યાં.

duśmane hathiyār nīce mūkyā̃.

The enemy laid down their weapons.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હથિયાર (hathiyār) comes from hastakāra*, a form CDIAL reconstructs on hásta, the hand, where it lists Gujarati hathiyār, "a tool" (CDIAL 14027): what the hand works with. In war it is a weapon.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: hathiyār
- Say it: hathiyār, once more
- Say it: duśmane hathiyār nīce mūkyã. — The enemy laid down their weapons.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a sword, then the Gujarati for a shield, then say hathiyār again

Before you move on

321.4 તોપ (top) — a cannon

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a shield, then the Gujarati for a weapon.

You'll want to know: તોપ

તોપ — top — "a cannon".

કિલ્લા પર બે જૂની તોપ છે.

killā par be jūnī top che.

There are two old cannons on the fort.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તોપ (top) is usually traced to Turkish top, "a ball", and then "a cannon", a word that came with the armies of the Mughal age. It is feminine: જૂની તોપ.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: top
- Say it: top, once more
- Say it: killā par be jūnī top che. — There are two old cannons on the fort.

321.5 વીંધવું (vī̃dhvũ) — to pierce

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a weapon, then the Gujarati for a cannon.

You'll want to know: વીંધવું

વીંધવું — vī̃dhvũ — "to pierce".

સૈનિકે તલવારથી ઢાલ વીંધી.

sainike talvārthī ḍhāl vī̃dhī.

The soldier pierced the shield with his sword.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે ઢાલ વીંધી, teṇe ḍhāl vī̃dhī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

વીંધવું (vĩdhvũ) comes from vindhati*, a form CDIAL reconstructs, and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to pierce" (CDIAL 11784). It agrees with what is pierced: ઢાલ વીંધી.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: vĩdhvũ
- Say it: vĩdhvũ, once more

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a cannon, then the Gujarati for to pierce.

You'll want to know: હુમલો

હુમલો — humlo — "an attack".

> પરોઢે દુશ્મને કિલ્લા પર હુમલો કર્યો.
> paroḍhe duśmane killā par humlo karyo.
> At dawn the enemy attacked the fort.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હુમલો (humlo) is usually traced, through Persian, to Arabic ḥamla, "a charge, an attack". The place attacked takes પર: કિલ્લા પર હુમલો.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: humlo
- Say it: humlo, once more
- Say it: paroḍhe duśmane killā par humlo karyo. — At dawn the enemy attacked the fort.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a cannon, then the Gujarati for to pierce, then say humlo again

Before you move on

What does હુમલો mean? ("An attack".) Say it once more.

322.2 લડાઈ (laḍāī) — a battle; a fight

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to pierce, then the Gujarati for an attack.

You'll want to know: લડાઈ

લડાઈ — laḍāī — "a battle; a fight".

આ લડાઈ આખો દિવસ ચાલી.

ā laḍāī ākho divas cālī.

This battle went on all day.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

લડાઈ (laḍāī) is built on લડવું, to fight, from laḍ*, a form CDIAL reconstructs (CDIAL 10920), with the noun ending -āī: the fighting itself, from a quarrel to a battle.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: laḍāī
- Say it: laḍāī, once more
- Say it: ā laḍāī ākho divas cālī. — This battle went on all day.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to pierce, then the Gujarati for an attack, then say laḍāī again

Before you move on

What does લડાઈ mean? ("A battle; a fight".) Say it once more.

322.3 યોદ્ધો (yoddho) — a warrior

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for an attack, then the Gujarati for a battle.

You'll want to know: યોદ્ધો

યોદ્ધો — yoddho — "a warrior".

> ગામના યોદ્ધા બહાદુર હતા.
> gāmnā yoddhā bahādur hatā.
> The village's warriors were brave.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

goes back to Sanskrit yoddhṛ, "a fighter, a warrior" (Monier-Williams), made into a Gujarati noun in -o: યોદ્ધો, plural યોદ્ધા.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: yoddho
- Say it: yoddho, once more
- Say it: gāmnā yoddhā bahādur hatā. — The village's warriors were brave.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for an attack, then the Gujarati for a battle, then say yoddho again

Before you move on

What does યોદ્ધો mean? ("A warrior".) Say it once more.

322.4 હણવું (haṇvũ) — to slay

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a battle, then the Gujarati for a warrior.

You'll want to know: હણવું

હણવું — haṇvũ — "to slay".

યોદ્ધાએ એક વાઘને હણ્યો.

yoddhāe ek vāghne haṇyo.

The warrior slew a tiger.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે દુશ્મનને હણ્યો, teṇe duśmanne haṇyo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હણવું (haṇvũ) is inherited from Sanskrit hánati, "strikes, kills", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to strike, kill" (CDIAL 13963). It is a word of old stories; મારવું is the everyday verb.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: haṇvũ
- Say it: haṇvũ, once more
- Say it: yoddhāe ek vāghne haṇyo. — The warrior slew a tiger.

What does હણવું mean? ("To slay".) Say it once more.

322.5 ઝઝૂમવું (jhajhūmvũ) — to fight on; to struggle

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a warrior, then the Gujarati for to slay.

You'll want to know: ઝઝૂમવું

ઝઝૂમવું — jhajhūmvũ — "to fight on; to struggle".

> સૈનિકો છેલ્લી પળ સુધી ઝઝૂમ્યા.
> sainiko chellī paḷ sudhī jhajhūmyā.
> The soldiers fought on to the very last moment.

Past (he …): તે ખૂબ ઝઝૂમ્યો, te khūb jhajhūmyo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઝઝૂમવું (jhajhūmvũ) probably belongs with jhujhvũ, to fight, which CDIAL lists for Gujarati under Sanskrit yúdhyatē, "fights against" (CDIAL 10502); CDIAL does not list this longer form, so the link is not settled. It is to keep fighting against long odds: છેલ્લી પળ સુધી ઝઝૂમ્યા.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: jhajhūmvũ
- Say it: jhajhūmvũ, once more

329.1 રંગોળી (rangoḷī) — a rangoli (a coloured floor pattern)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to light, then the Gujarati for incense.

You'll want to know: રંગોળી

રંગોળી — rangoḷī — "a rangoli (a coloured floor pattern)".

> દિવાળીમાં મીરાએ આંગણામાં રંગોળી બનાવી.
> divāḷīmā̃ Mīrāe ā̃gṇāmā̃ rangoḷī banāvī.
> At Diwali Mira made a rangoli in the courtyard.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

રંગોળી (rangoḷī) has a history that is not settled: Monier-Williams records a Sanskrit raṅgavallī, built from raṅga, colour, and vallī, a creeper, but only as the name of a plant used at sacrifices. It is a pattern of coloured powder laid on the floor at a doorway for a festival; it is feminine: રંગોળી બનાવી.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

329.2 શણગારવું (śaṇgārvũ) — to adorn

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for incense, then the Gujarati for a rangoli.

You'll want to know: શણગારવું

શણગારવું — śaṇgārvũ — "to adorn".

લોકોએ આખું ગામ શણગાર્યું.

lokoe ākhũ gām śaṇgāryũ.

People decorated the whole village.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે ઘર શણગાર્યું, teṇe ghar śaṇgāryũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

comes from śṛṅgārayati*, "adorns", a form CDIAL reconstructs on śṛṅgāra, finery (CDIAL 12593). સજાવવું is to decorate; શણગારવું is to dress up richly, a bride or a whole town.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

On Diwali night the whole city sparkled with lamps.

Past (it …): તે શહેર ઝગમગ્યું, te śaher jhagmagyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઝગમગવું (jhagmagvũ) is an imitative word: CDIAL sets the Hindi cousin jagmag, "glitter", under jag*, "glitter", a form it reconstructs (CDIAL 5076), but does not list the Gujarati verb. The doubled sound jhag-mag imitates light that flickers and shines.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: jhagmagvũ
- Say it: jhagmagvũ, once more

> ગુફામાં એક જૂનો ખજાનો હતો.
> guphāmā̃ ek jūno khajāno hato.
> There was an old treasure in the cave.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખજાનો (khajāno) is usually traced, through Persian, to Arabic khizāna, "a storehouse, a treasury". It is masculine: જૂનો ખજાનો.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: khajāno
- Say it: khajāno, once more
- Say it: guphāmā̃ ek jūno khajāno hato. — There was an old treasure in the cave.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for vanished, then the Gujarati for to appear, then say khajāno again

Before you move on

What does ખજાનો mean? ("A treasure".) Say it once more.

334.2 અજગર (ajgar) — a python

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to appear, then the Gujarati for a treasure.

You'll want to know: અજગર

અજગર — ajgar — "a python".

ખજાના પાસે એક મોટો અજગર બેઠો હતો.

khajānā pāse ek moṭo ajgar beṭho hato.

A huge python lay beside the treasure.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

અજગર (ajgar) is a tatsama, Sanskrit ajagara, "a goat-swallower", a large snake (Monier-Williams). In stories it guards treasure.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: ajgar

> The treasure tempted the thief.

Past, with તેણે (he or she ...): તેણે બાળકને લલચાવ્યું, teṇe bāḷakne lalcāvyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

લલચાવવું (lalcāvvũ) is probably built on lālac, a longing: CDIAL sets the Hindi cousins lālac, "cupidity", and lalcānā, "to lust after", under Sanskrit lālitya, "amorousness" (CDIAL 11029). To tempt is to make someone long for something. The one tempted takes ને.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: lalcāvvũ
- Say it: lalcāvvũ, once more
- Say it: khajānāe corne lalcāvyo. — The treasure tempted the thief.

Before you move on

What does લલચાવવું mean? ("To tempt".) Say it once more.

334.5 ભટકવું (bhaṭakvũ) — to wander (lost)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for greed, then the Gujarati for to tempt.

You'll want to know: ભટકવું

ભટકવું — bhaṭakvũ — "to wander (lost)".

ચોર ઘણા દિવસ જંગલમાં ભટક્યો.

cor ghaṇā divas jangalmã̃ bhaṭakyo.

The thief wandered in the forest for many days.

Past (he …): તે જંગલમાં ભટક્યો, te jangalmã̃ bhaṭakyo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

is listed by CDIAL under bhaṭ*, "sudden movement or noise", glossed "to blaze, start" (CDIAL 9365), while CDIAL files the Hindi cousin bhaṭaknā, “to wander”, under Sanskrit bhraṣṭá, “fallen” (CDIAL 9655); which line the wandering sense belongs to is not settled. રખડવું is to roam; ભટકવું is to wander without finding the way.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: bhaṭakvũ
- Say it: bhaṭakvũ, once more

ગ્રંથ (granth) is a tatsama, Sanskrit grantha, "a knot", and then "a book", once leaves tied together (CDIAL 4350). It is a large or important book.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

Your turn

- Say it: granth
- Say it: granth, once more
- Say it: pustakālaymā̃ ek prācīn granth che. — There is an ancient tome in the library.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for the hero (of a story), then the Gujarati for a reader, then say granth again

Before you move on

What does ગ્રંથ mean? ("A tome; a great book".) Say it once more.

338.2 સામયિક (sāmayik) — a magazine

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a reader, then the Gujarati for a tome.

You'll want to know: સામયિક

સામયિક — sāmayik — "a magazine".

આ સામયિક દરેક મહિને આવે છે.

ā sāmayik darek mahine āve che.

This magazine comes out every month.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સામયિક (sāmayik) is a tatsama, Sanskrit sāmayika, "seasonable, timely" (Monier-Williams); the sense of a magazine that comes out at set times is the modern language's.

What you've built

One more word for telling what happened.

> jo samaysar varsād paḍśe to ā varse pāk sāro thaśe.
> If the rain comes on time, the crop will be good this year.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પાક (pāk) shares its source with પાકવું (pākvũ), "to ripen": CDIAL traces both to Sanskrit pakvá, "cooked, ripe", which in the Atharvaveda already meant "ripe corn" (CDIAL 7621). CDIAL glosses the Gujarati noun only as "sugar boiled for conserves", so "a crop" is a sense it does not give.

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: pāk
- Say it: pāk, once more

- Recall: say the Gujarati for mature, then the Gujarati for barren, then say ugāḍvũ again

Before you move on

What does ઉગાડવું mean? ("To grow plants".) Say it once more.

390.5 ઊપજવું (ūpajvũ) — to be produced (as a crop)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for barren, then the Gujarati for to grow plants.

You'll want to know: ઊપજવું

ઊપજવું — ūpajvũ — "to be produced (as a crop)".

જો ખેતરમાં પૂરતું પાણી હશે તો ઘણા ઘઉં ઊપજશે.

jo khetarmā̃ pūrtũ pāṇī haśe to ghaṇā ghaũ ūpajśe.

The wind changed direction, so the big storm was averted.

Past (it …): તે તોફાન ટળી ગયું, te tophān ṭaḷī gayũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ટળવું (ṭaḷvũ) is a tadbhava of Sanskrit ṭálati, "moves aside" (CDIAL 5450); ટાળવું, to avoid, is its causative partner: what you put off, ટાળવું; what passes off by itself, ટળવું.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭaḷvũ
- Say it: ṭaḷvũ, once more
- Say it: pavannī diśā pharī gaī, eṭle moṭũ tophān ṭaḷī gayũ. — The wind changed direction, so the big storm was averted.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to be heard, then the Gujarati for a public announcement, then say ṭaḷvũ again

Before you move on

ટાયર — ṭāyar — "a tyre".

> ગાડીના ટાયરમાં હવા ઓછી છે.
> gāḍīnā ṭāyarmā̃ havā ochī che.
> There is too little air in the car's tyre.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ટાયર (ṭāyar) is borrowed from English tyre.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭāyar
- Say it: ṭāyar, once more
- Say it: gāḍīnā ṭāyarmā̃ havā ochī che. — There is too little air in the car's tyre.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a handlebar, then the Gujarati for to toss, then say ṭāyar again

Before you move on

What does ટાયર mean? ("A tyre".) Say it once more.

401.2 પંક્ચર (pankcar) — a puncture

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to toss, then the Gujarati for a tyre.

You'll want to know: પંક્ચર

પંક્ચર — pankcar — "a puncture".

મારી સાઈકલમાં પંક્ચર પડ્યું.

mārī sāīkalmā̃ pankcar paḍyũ.

My bicycle got a puncture.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પંક્ચર (pankcar) is borrowed from English puncture.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: pankcar
- Say it: pankcar, once more
- Say it: mārī sāīkalmā̃ pankcar paḍyũ. — My bicycle got a puncture.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to toss, then the Gujarati for a tyre, then say pankcar again

401.4 ઘસડવું (ghasaḍvũ) — to drag

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a puncture, then the Gujarati for a truck.

You'll want to know: ઘસડવું

ઘસડવું — ghasaḍvũ — "to drag".

તે ભારે પટારો રસ્તા પર ઘસડે છે.

te bhāre paṭāro rastā par ghasḍe che.

He drags the heavy trunk along the road.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે પટારો ઘસડ્યો, teṇe paṭāro ghasaḍyo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઘસડવું (ghasaḍvũ) seems to be built on the root of the Gujarati verb ghasvũ, "to rub", which CDIAL lists under Sanskrit gharṣati, "rubs" (CDIAL 4450): what you drag rubs along the ground. CDIAL gives no form for ઘસડવું itself, so the link is hedged.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: ghasaḍvũ
- Say it: ghasaḍvũ, once more
- Say it: te bhāre paṭāro rastā par ghasḍe che. — He drags the heavy trunk along the road.

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a small goods van, then the Gujarati for a bullock cart.

You'll want to know: કંડક્ટર

કંડક્ટર — kanḍakṭar — "a bus conductor".

બસના કંડક્ટરે મને ટિકિટ આપી.

basnā kanḍakṭare mane ṭikiṭ āpī.

The bus conductor gave me a ticket.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કંડક્ટર (kanḍakṭar) is borrowed from English conductor, the one who sells tickets on a bus.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: kanḍakṭar
- Say it: kanḍakṭar, once more
- Say it: basnā kanḍakṭare mane ṭikiṭ āpī. — The bus conductor gave me a ticket.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a small goods van, then the Gujarati for a bullock cart, then say kanḍakṭar again

Before you move on

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે પથારી સંકેલી, teṇe pathārī sankelī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સંકેલવું (sankelvũ) may belong with Hindi sakilnā, "to gather up, to shrink", which CDIAL lists under Sanskrit saṁkirati, "mixes together"

(CDIAL 12823); it gives no Gujarati form, so the link is hedged.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: sankelvũ
- Say it: sankelvũ, once more
- Say it: savāre uṭhīne mẽ pathārī sankelī. — In the morning I got up and rolled up the bedding.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a cushion for the head, then the Gujarati for a mosquito net, then say sankelvũ again

Before you move on

What does સંકેલવું mean? ("To roll up; to fold up (bedding)".) Say it once more.

411.5 સુવડાવવું (suvḍāvvũ) — to put to sleep (a child)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a mosquito net, then the Gujarati for to roll up.

You'll want to know: સુવડાવવું

સુવડાવવું — suvḍāvvũ — "to put to sleep (a child)".

માતા બાળકને ગીત ગાઈને સુવડાવે છે.

mātā bāḷakne gīt gāīne suvḍāve che.

The mother sings the child to sleep.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે બાળકને સુવડાવ્યું, teṇe bāḷakne suvḍāvyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સુવડાવવું (suvḍāvvũ) is the causative partner of સૂવું, "to sleep, to lie down", a tadbhava of Sanskrit svápati, "sleeps" (CDIAL 13902): to make someone sleep.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

412.1 ડેરો (ḍero) — a tent; a camp (for a stay)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to roll up, then the Gujarati for to put to sleep.

You'll want to know: ડેરો

ડેરો — ḍero — "a tent; a camp (for a stay)".

> નદીના કિનારે અમે ડેરો નાખ્યો.
> nadīnā kināre ame ḍero nākhyo.
> We pitched our tent on the river bank.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ડેરો (ḍero) goes back to ḍēra*, "a resting place", a form CDIAL reconstructs; CDIAL lists the Gujarati word, "a tent, a shelter" (CDIAL 5564).

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: ḍero
- Say it: ḍero, once more
- Say it: nadīnā kināre ame ḍero nākhyo. — We pitched our tent on the river bank.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to roll up, then the Gujarati for to put to sleep, then say ḍero again

Before you move on

What does ડેરો mean? ("A tent; a camp (for a stay)".) Say it once more.

412.2 પડાવ (paḍāv) — a halt for the night; a camp

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to put to sleep, then the Gujarati for a tent.

You'll want to know: પડાવ

પડાવ — paḍāv — "a halt for the night; a camp".

સાંજે અમારો પડાવ ગામની બહાર હતો.

sā̃je amāro paḍāv gāmnī bahār hato.

In the evening our camp was outside the village.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પડાવ (paḍāv) seems to be built on પડવું, to fall, here to stop and lie down for the night; CDIAL lists that verb under Sanskrit pátati, "falls" (CDIAL 7722), but gives no form for પડાવ itself, so the link is hedged.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: paḍāv
- Say it: paḍāv, once more
- Say it: sā̃je amāro paḍāv gāmnī bahār hato. — In the evening our camp was outside the village.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to put to sleep, then the Gujarati for a tent, then say paḍāv again

Before you move on

What does પડાવ mean? ("A halt for the night; a camp".) Say it once more.

412.3 રાતવાસો (rātvāso) — a night's stay

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a tent, then the Gujarati for a halt for the night.

You'll want to know: રાતવાસો

રાતવાસો — rātvāso — "a night's stay".

અમે ધર્મશાળામાં રાતવાસો કર્યો.

ame dharmaśāḷāmā̃ rātvāso karyo.

We stayed the night at the rest house.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

રાતવાસો (rātvāso) is built from રાત, night, and વાસો, a stay, from Sanskrit vāsa, "a dwelling, an abode" (Monier-Williams): a roof for one night.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

Before you move on

What does રાતવાસો mean? ("A night's stay".) Say it once more.

412.4 ખોડવું (khoḍvũ) — to drive in (a peg); to plant (a pole)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a halt for the night, then the Gujarati for a night's stay.

You'll want to know: ખોડવું

ખોડવું — khoḍvũ — "to drive in (a peg); to plant (a pole)".

છોકરાએ રેતીમાં લાંબી ડાળી ખોડી.

chokrāe retīmā̃ lā̃bī ḍāḷī khoḍī.

The boy stuck a long branch into the sand.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે ડાળી ખોડી, teṇe ḍāḷī khoḍī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ખોડવું (khoḍvũ) may belong with a Gujarati word for a large block of wood, which CDIAL lists under Sanskrit kṣōḍa, "a post to which an elephant is tied" (CDIAL 3748), beside Marathi khoḍ, "a tree stump": to drive a post into the ground. CDIAL gives no form for ખોડવું itself, so the link is hedged.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: khoḍvũ
- Say it: khoḍvũ, once more
- Say it: chokrāe retīmā̃ lā̃bī ḍāḷī khoḍī. — The boy stuck a long branch into the sand.

Before you move on

What does ખોડવું mean? ("To drive in (a peg); to plant (a pole)".) Say it once more.

412.5 ગાળવું (gāḷvũ) — to spend (time)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a night's stay, then the Gujarati for to drive in.

You'll want to know: ગાળવું

ગાળવું — gāḷvũ — "to spend (time)".

અમે બે દિવસ ગામમાં ગાળ્યા.

ame be divas gāmmā̃ gāḷyā.

We spent two days in the village.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે રાત ત્યાં ગાળી, teṇe rāt tyā̃ gāḷī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગાળવું (gāḷvũ) is a tadbhava of Sanskrit gālayati, "causes to drop, strains, melts"; CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, which also means to pass time (CDIAL 4144): the days drip away.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: gāḷvũ
- Say it: gāḷvũ, once more

tophānmā̃ gharnā̃ ghaṇā̃ naḷiyā̃ tūṭī gayā̃.

Many roof tiles of the house broke in the storm.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

નળિયું (naḷiyũ) seems to be built on નળ, a pipe, which goes back to Sanskrit naḍa, "a reed" (CDIAL 6936): a curved tile is like half a pipe.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: naḷiyũ
- Say it: naḷiyũ, once more
- Say it: tophānmā̃ gharnā̃ ghaṇā̃ naḷiyā̃ tūṭī gayā̃. — Many roof tiles of the house broke in the storm.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to wander aimlessly, then the Gujarati for a wooden door, then say naḷiyũ again

Before you move on

What does નળિયું mean? ("A roof tile (a curved clay tile)".) Say it once more.

420.3 વાડ (vāḍ) — a fence; a hedge

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a wooden door, then the Gujarati for a roof tile.

> By the end of this chapter: I can complain about noise and animals in the street.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 421: I can complain about noise and animals in the street.

421.1 ઘોંઘાટ (ghõghāṭ) — noise; a din

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a post, then the Gujarati for to thatch.

You'll want to know: ઘોંઘાટ

ઘોંઘાટ — ghõghāṭ — "noise; a din".

> શહેરમાં આખો દિવસ ઘોંઘાટ રહે છે.
> śahermā̃ ākho divas ghõghāṭ rahe che.
> In the city there is noise all day.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઘોંઘાટ (ghõghāṭ) sounds like the noise it names. No dictionary we use records an older form, so its history is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: ghõghāṭ
- Say it: ghõghāṭ, once more
- Say it: śahermā̃ ākho divas ghõghāṭ rahe che. — In the city there is noise all day.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a post, then the Gujarati for to thatch, then say ghõghāṭ again

Before you move on

What does ઘોંઘાટ mean? ("Noise; a din".) Say it once more.

421.2 હોબાળો (hobāḷo) — an uproar; an outcry

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to thatch, then the Gujarati for a din.

You'll want to know: હોબાળો

હોબાળો — hobāḷo — "an uproar; an outcry".

rastā par ḍhor beṭhā̃ che, eṭle gāḍīo dhīme cāle che.

Cattle are sitting on the road, so the cars move slowly.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઢોર (ḍhor) CDIAL lists Hindi ḍhor, "cattle", under Sanskrit dhaurēya, "a beast of burden" (CDIAL 6884), the word behind ધોરી in ધોરીમાર્ગ; it gives no Gujarati form for ઢોર, so the link is hedged.

What you've built

One more word for getting around.

Your turn

- Say it: ḍhor
- Say it: ḍhor, once more
- Say it: rastā par ḍhor beṭhā̃ che, eṭle gāḍīo dhīme cāle che. — Cattle are sitting on the road, so the cars move slowly.

Before you move on

What does ઠોકવું mean? ("To hammer in".) Say it once more.

Chapter 503

Smooth and Straight

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say how a carpenter smooths, glues and splits wood.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 503: I can say how a carpenter smooths, glues and splits wood.

503.1 રંદો (rando) — a carpenter's plane

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a nail, then the Gujarati for to hammer in.

You'll want to know: રંદો

રંદો — rando — "a carpenter's plane".

> સુથાર રંદાથી લાકડું સીધું કરે છે.
> suthār randāthī lākḍũ sīdhũ kare che.
> The carpenter makes the wood straight with a plane.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

રંદો (rando) is usually traced to Persian randa, "a carpenter's plane". Before થી it becomes રંદાથી.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: rando
- Say it: rando, once more
- Say it: suthār randāthī lākḍũ sīdhũ kare che. — The carpenter makes the wood straight with a plane.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a nail, then the Gujarati for to hammer in, then say rando again

Before you move on

What does રંદો mean? ("A carpenter's plane".) Say it once more.

503.2 મઠારવું (maṭhārvũ) — to smooth (a surface)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to hammer in, then the Gujarati for a carpenter's plane.

You'll want to know: મઠારવું

સુથારે રંદાથી બારણું મઠાર્યું.

suthāre randāthī bārṇũ maṭhāryũ.

The carpenter smoothed the door with a plane.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે બારણું મઠાર્યું, teṇe bārṇũ maṭhāryũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મઠારવું (maṭhārvũ) is filed by CDIAL under Sanskrit mṛṣṭá, "rubbed, washed, pure", and CDIAL gives the Gujarati verb as "to smooth" (CDIAL 10299).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: maṭhārvũ
- Say it: maṭhārvũ, once more
- Say it: suthāre randāthī bārṇũ maṭhāryũ. — The carpenter smoothed the door with a plane.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to hammer in, then the Gujarati for a carpenter's plane, then say maṭhārvũ again આ ગુંદર લાકડા પર સારું ચોંટે છે.

ā gundar lākḍā par sārũ cõṭe che.

This glue sticks well to wood.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગુંદર (gundar) is filed by CDIAL under Sanskrit gundra, the name of a reed, and CDIAL lists the Gujarati word with the sense "gum" (CDIAL 4199); how the reed's name came to mean gum is not explained there.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: gundar
- Say it: gundar, once more
- Say it: ā gundar lākḍā par sārũ cõṭe che. — This glue sticks well to wood.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a carpenter's plane, then the Gujarati for to smooth, then say gundar again

Before you move on

What does ગુંદર mean? ("Glue".) Say it once more.

503.4 તિરાડ (tirāḍ) — a crack

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to smooth, then the Gujarati for glue.

You'll want to know: તિરાડ

તિરાડ — tirāḍ — "a crack".

જૂના બારણામાં એક મોટી તિરાડ છે.

jūnā bārṇāmā̃ ek moṭī tirāḍ che.

There is a big crack in the old door.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તિરાડ (tirāḍ) is perhaps related to taraṛ, "a crack", which CDIAL files under traṭ (CDIAL 5988), but CDIAL does not list this form, so its history is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: tirāḍ
- Say it: tirāḍ, once more

> Complete the last lesson of chapter 504: I can talk about how a potter shapes clay.

504.1 કુંભાર (kumbhār) — a potter

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a crack, then the Gujarati for to split (wood).

You'll want to know: કુંભાર

કુંભાર — kumbhār — "a potter".

> અમારા ગામમાં એક કુંભાર રહે છે.
> amārā gāmmā̃ ek kumbhār rahe che.
> A potter lives in our village.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કુંભાર (kumbhār) is inherited from Sanskrit kumbhakāra, "a pot-maker", built from kumbha, "a pot", and kāra, "maker"; CDIAL lists the

Gujarati word (CDIAL 3310).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: kumbhār
- Say it: kumbhār, once more
- Say it: amārā gāmmā̃ ek kumbhār rahe che. — A potter lives in our village.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a crack, then the Gujarati for to split (wood), then say kumbhār again

Before you move on

What does કુંભાર mean? ("A potter".) Say it once more.

504.2 ચાકડો (cākḍo) — a potter's wheel

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to split (wood), then the Gujarati for a potter.

You'll want to know: ચાકડો

ચાકડો — cākḍo — "a potter's wheel".

કુંભાર ચાકડા પર માટીનું માટલું બનાવે છે.

kumbhār cākḍā par māṭīnũ māṭlũ banāve che.

The potter makes a clay pot on the wheel.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

is built on cāk, "a wheel, a potter's wheel", which CDIAL lists under Sanskrit cakrá, "a wheel" (CDIAL 4538); ચાકડો adds the ending -ḍo.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: cākḍo
- Say it: cākḍo, once more
- Say it: kumbhār cākḍā par māṭīnũ māṭlũ banāve che. — The potter makes a clay pot on the wheel.

The potter kneaded the clay with his feet.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે માટી ગૂંદી, teṇe māṭī gū̃dī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ગૂંદવું (gũ̃dvũ) is said of clay or of a stiff dough worked long and hard; the past agrees with what is kneaded: માટી ગૂંદી. CDIAL lists Hindi gũ̃dhnā, "to plait, mix, knead", under Sanskrit gupháti, "strings together" (CDIAL 4205), beside a Gujarati verb for plaiting; it gives no Gujarati form for kneading, so its history is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: gũ̃dvũ
- Say it: gũ̃dvũ, once more

- Say it: Mīrāe doro ã̃gaḷī par vĩṭyo. — Mira wound the thread round her finger.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a weave, then the Gujarati for to stretch tight, then say vĩṭvũ again

Before you move on

What does વીંટવું mean? ("To wind round (a thread)".) Say it once more.

Chapter 507

Needle and Thread

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about threading a needle, mending and embroidery.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 507: I can talk about threading a needle, mending and embroidery.

507.1 પરોવવું (parovvũ) — to thread (a needle)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to stretch tight, then the Gujarati for to wind round.

You'll want to know: પરોવવું

પરોવવું — parovvũ — "to thread (a needle)".

> દાદીએ ચશ્માં પહેરીને સોયમાં દોરો પરોવ્યો.
> dādīe caśmā̃ paherīne soymā̃ doro parovyo.
> Grandmother put on her glasses and threaded the needle.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે દોરો પરોવ્યો, teṇe doro parovyo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

પરોવવું (parovvũ) is inherited from Sanskrit právayati, "weaves on", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to thread a needle, string pearls" (CDIAL 8785). What goes through the needle is the object: દોરો પરોવ્યો.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: parovvũ
- Say it: parovvũ, once more
- Say it: dādīe caśmā̃ paherīne soymā̃ doro parovyo. — Grandmother put on her glasses and threaded the needle.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to stretch tight, then the Gujarati for to wind round, then say parovvũ again

Before you move on

What does પરોવવું mean? ("To thread (a needle)".) Say it once more.

507.2 મોતી (motī) — a pearl

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to wind round, then the Gujarati for to thread (a needle).

You'll want to know: મોતી

મોતી — motī — "a pearl".

તેણે દોરામાં મોતી પરોવ્યાં.

teṇe dorāmā̃ motī parovyā̃.

She strung pearls on a thread.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મોતી (motī) is a tadbhava, inherited from Sanskrit mauktika, "a pearl", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati word (CDIAL 10365). It is neuter, and the plural looks the same: મોતી પરોવ્યાં.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: motī
- Say it: motī, once more
- Say it: teṇe dorāmã̃ motī parovyã̃. — She strung pearls on a thread.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to wind round, then the Gujarati for to thread (a needle), then say motī again

Before you move on

What does મોતી mean? ("A pearl".) Say it once more.

507.3 સાંધવું (sã̃dhvũ) — to mend (a tear)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to thread (a needle), then the Gujarati for a pearl.

You'll want to know: સાંધવું

સાંધવું — sã̃dhvũ — "to mend (a tear)".

દરજીએ મારું જૂનું ખમીસ સાંધ્યું.

darjīe mārũ jūnũ khamīs sã̃dhyũ.

The tailor mended my old shirt.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે ખમીસ સાંધ્યું, teṇe khamīs sã̃dhyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સાંધવું (sā̃dhvũ) is inherited from Sanskrit sáṁdadhāti, "places on, puts together", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to unite, attach" (CDIAL 12898).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: sā̃dhvũ
- Say it: sā̃dhvũ, once more
- Say it: darjīe mārũ jūnũ khamīs sā̃dhyũ. — The tailor mended my old shirt.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to thread (a needle), then the Gujarati for a pearl, then say sā̃dhvũ again

Before you move on

What does સાંધવું mean? ("To mend (a tear)".) Say it once more.

507.4 થીંગડું (thī̃gḍũ) — a patch (on cloth)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a pearl, then the Gujarati for to mend (a tear).

You'll want to know: થીંગડું

થીંગડું — thī̃gḍũ — "a patch (on cloth)".

મારા જૂના ખમીસ પર એક થીંગડું છે.

mārā jūnā khamīs par ek thī̃gḍũ che.

There is a patch on my old shirt.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

થીંગડું (thĩgḍũ) comes from thigga*, a form CDIAL reconstructs, and CDIAL lists the Gujarati word as "a patch, a rag" (CDIAL 6096).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: thĩgḍũ
- Say it: thĩgḍũ, once more
- Say it: mārā jūnā khamīs par ek thĩgḍũ che. — There is a patch on my old shirt.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a pearl, then the Gujarati for to mend (a tear), then say thĩgḍũ again

Before you move on

What does થીંગડું mean? ("A patch (on cloth)".) Say it once more.

507.5 ભરતકામ (bharatkām) — embroidery

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to mend (a tear), then the Gujarati for a patch (on cloth).

You'll want to know: ભરતકામ

ભરતકામ — bharatkām — "embroidery".

મારી માસી સુંદર ભરતકામ કરે છે.

mārī māsī sundar bharatkām kare che.

My aunt does beautiful embroidery.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ભરતકામ (bharatkām) is built from bharat, "filling in", from ભરવું, "to fill" (CDIAL 9397), and કામ, "work": thread fills in the pattern.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: bharatkām
- Say it: bharatkām, once more
- Say it: mārī māsī sundar bharatkām kare che. — My aunt does beautiful embroidery.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to mend (a tear), then the Gujarati for a patch (on cloth), then say bharatkām again

Before you move on

What does ભરતકામ mean? ("Embroidery".) Say it once more.

Chapter 508

The Blacksmith's Fire

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about a blacksmith, his fire and his anvil.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 508: I can talk about a blacksmith, his fire and his anvil.

508.1 લોખંડ (lokhanḍ) — iron

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a patch (on cloth), then the Gujarati for embroidery.

You'll want to know: લોખંડ

લોખંડ — lokhanḍ — "iron".

> આ દરવાજો લોખંડનો છે.
> ā darvājo lokhanḍno che.
> This gate is made of iron.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

લોખંડ (lokhanḍ) comes from lōhōpaskara*, "iron tools", a form CDIAL builds from lōhá, "iron", and upaskara, "tool"; CDIAL lists the Gujarati word as "tools, iron, ironware" (CDIAL 11171).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: lokhanḍ
- Say it: lokhanḍ, once more
- Say it: ā darvājo lokhanḍno che. — This gate is made of iron.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a patch (on cloth), then the Gujarati for embroidery, then say lokhanḍ again

Before you move on

What does લોખંડ mean? ("Iron".) Say it once more.

508.2 લુહાર (luhār) — a blacksmith

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for embroidery, then the Gujarati for iron.

You'll want to know: લુહાર

લુહાર — luhār — "a blacksmith".

લુહાર લોખંડમાંથી ઓજારો બનાવે છે.

luhār lokhanḍmā̃thī ojāro banāve che.

The blacksmith makes tools out of iron.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

લુહાર (luhār) goes back to Sanskrit lōhakāra, "an iron-worker", built from lōha, "iron", and kāra, "maker"; CDIAL gives the Gujarati form as lavār (CDIAL 11159).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: luhār
- Say it: luhār, once more
- Say it: luhār lokhaṇḍmā̃thī ojāro banāve che. — The blacksmith makes tools out of iron.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for embroidery, then the Gujarati for iron, then say luhār again

Before you move on

What does લુહાર mean? ("A blacksmith".) Say it once more.

508.3 ભઠ્ઠી (bhaṭhṭhī) — a furnace

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for iron, then the Gujarati for a blacksmith.

You'll want to know: ભઠ્ઠી

ભઠ્ઠી — bhaṭhṭhī — "a furnace".

લુહારની ભઠ્ઠીમાં આગ સળગે છે.

luhārnī bhaṭhṭhīmā̃ āg saḷge che.

A fire burns in the blacksmith's furnace.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ભઠ્ઠી (bhaṭhṭhī) is a furnace or a kiln. CDIAL lists Panjabi bhaṭṭhī, "a furnace", and Hindi bhaṭṭhā, "a kiln", under Sanskrit bhráṣṭra, "a frying pan, a gridiron" (CDIAL 9656); it gives no Gujarati form for this word, so its exact history is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: bhaṭhṭhī
- Say it: bhaṭhṭhī, once more
- Say it: luhārnī bhaṭhṭhīmā̃ āg saḷge che. — A fire burns in the blacksmith's furnace.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for iron, then the Gujarati for a blacksmith, then say bhaṭhṭhī again

Before you move on

What does ભઠ્ઠી mean? ("A furnace".) Say it once more.

508.4 તપાવવું (tapāvvũ) — to heat (something)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a blacksmith, then the Gujarati for a furnace.

You'll want to know: તપાવવું

તપાવવું — tapāvvũ — "to heat (something)".

લુહારે ભઠ્ઠીમાં લોખંડ તપાવ્યું.

luhāre bhaṭhṭhīmā̃ lokhanḍ tapāvyũ.

The blacksmith heated the iron in the furnace.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે લોખંડ તપાવ્યું, teṇe lokhanḍ tapāvyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તપાવવું (tapāvvũ) is built from તપવું, "to be hot", with the causative -āv-: to make something hot. CDIAL files the family under Sanskrit tapyati, "is hot" (CDIAL 5684).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: tapāvvũ
- Say it: tapāvvũ, once more
- Say it: luhāre bhaṭhṭhīmā̃ lokhanḍ tapāvyũ. — The blacksmith heated the iron in the furnace.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a blacksmith, then the Gujarati for a furnace, then say tapāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does તપાવવું mean? ("To heat (something)".) Say it once more.

508.5 એરણ (eraṇ) — an anvil

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a furnace, then the Gujarati for to heat (something).

You'll want to know: એરણ

એરણ — eraṇ — "an anvil".

લુહાર એરણ પર ગરમ લોખંડ મૂકે છે.

luhār eraṇ par garam lokhanḍ mūke che.

The blacksmith puts the hot iron on the anvil.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

એરણ (eraṇ) is inherited from Sanskrit adhikaraṇī, "an anvil", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati word (CDIAL 252).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: eraṇ
- Say it: eraṇ, once more
- Say it: luhār eraṇ par garam lokhanḍ mūke che. — The blacksmith puts the hot iron on the anvil.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a furnace, then the Gujarati for to heat (something), then say eraṇ again

Before you move on

What does એરણ mean? ("An anvil".) Say it once more.

508.6 Looking back: from The Craftsman's Bench to The Blacksmith's Fire

Bellows, Hammer and Rust

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say how iron is heated, beaten and how it rusts.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 509: I can say how iron is heated, beaten and how it rusts.

509.1 ધમણ (dhamaṇ) — bellows

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to heat (something), then the Gujarati for an anvil.

You'll want to know: ધમણ

ધમણ — dhamaṇ — "bellows".

> લુહારનો દીકરો ધમણ ચલાવે છે.
> luhārno dīkro dhamaṇ calāve che.
> The blacksmith's son works the bellows.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ધમણ (dhamaṇ) is inherited from Sanskrit dhamanī, "bellows", from a root meaning "to blow", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati word (CDIAL 6734).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: dhamaṇ
- Say it: dhamaṇ, once more
- Say it: luhārno dīkro dhamaṇ calāve che. — The blacksmith's son works the bellows.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to heat (something), then the Gujarati for an anvil, then say dhamaṇ again

Before you move on

What does ધમણ mean? ("Bellows".) Say it once more.

509.2 ફૂંકવું (phũ̃kvũ) — to blow out (a flame)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for an anvil, then the Gujarati for bellows.

You'll want to know: ફૂંકવું

ફૂંકવું — phũ̃kvũ — "to blow out (a flame)".

જન્મદિવસે મીરાએ બધી મીણબત્તીઓ ફૂંકી.

janmadivse Mīrāe badhī mīṇbattīo phũ̃kī.

On her birthday Mira blew out all the candles.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે મીણબત્તી ફૂંકી, teṇe mīṇbattī phũ̃kī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ફૂંકવું (phũ̃kvũ) comes from phūtka*, "blowing", a form CDIAL reconstructs, and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb (CDIAL 9102). The wind's own verb is ફૂંકાવું.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: phũ̃kvũ
- Say it: phũ̃kvũ, once more
- Say it: janmadivse Mīrāe badhī mīṇbattīo phũ̃kī. — On her birthday Mira blew out all the candles.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for an anvil, then the Gujarati for bellows, then say phũ̃kvũ again

Before you move on

What does ફૂંકવું mean? ("To blow out (a flame)".) Say it once more.

509.3 ટીપવું (ṭīpvũ) — to beat (metal) flat

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for bellows, then the Gujarati for to blow out.

You'll want to know: ટીપવું

ટીપવું — ṭīpvũ — "to beat (metal) flat".

લુહારે ગરમ લોખંડ હથોડીથી ટીપ્યું.

luhāre garam lokhanḍ hathoḍīthī ṭīpyũ.

The blacksmith beat the hot iron flat with the hammer.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે લોખંડ ટીપ્યું, teṇe lokhanḍ ṭīpyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ટીપવું (ṭīpvũ) is said of metal, and of dough patted flat by hand. CDIAL lists a Gujarati ṭīpvũ under a reconstructed ṭipp*, "squeeze, nip", with another sense, and Hindi ṭīpnā, "to press", beside it (CDIAL 5464); beating flat is not recorded there, so its history is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭīpvũ
- Say it: ṭīpvũ, once more
- Say it: luhāre garam lokhaṇḍ hathoḍīthī ṭīpyũ. — The blacksmith beat the hot iron flat with the hammer.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for bellows, then the Gujarati for to blow out, then say ṭīpvũ again

Before you move on

What does ટીપવું mean? ("To beat (metal) flat".) Say it once more.

509.4 કાટ (kāṭ) — rust

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to blow out, then the Gujarati for to beat (metal) flat.

You'll want to know: કાટ

કાટ — kāṭ — "rust".

varsād pachī lokhaṇḍnā darvājāne kāṭ lāgyo.

After the rain the iron gate went rusty.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કાટ (kāṭ) is filed by CDIAL under Sanskrit kiṭṭa, "secretion, dross", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati word as "rust" (CDIAL 3156). Rust strikes the metal: દરવાજાને કાટ લાગ્યો.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: kāṭ
- Say it: kāṭ, once more
- Say it: varsād pachī lokhanḍnā darvājāne kāṭ lāgyo. — After the rain the iron gate went rusty.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to blow out, then the Gujarati for to beat (metal) flat, then say kāṭ again

Before you move on

What does કાટ mean? ("Rust".) Say it once more.

509.5 કટાવું (kaṭāvũ) — to rust

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to beat (metal) flat, then the Gujarati for rust.

You'll want to know: કટાવું

કટાવું — kaṭāvũ — "to rust".

varsādmā̃ badhā̃ ojāro kaṭāī gayā̃.

All the tools rusted in the rain.

Past (it …): તે છરી કટાઈ ગઈ, te charī kaṭāī gaī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કટાવું (kaṭāvũ) is built on કાટ, "rust", which CDIAL files under Sanskrit kiṭṭa, "dross" (CDIAL 3156). It is intransitive: છરી કટાઈ ગઈ.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: kaṭāvũ
- Say it: kaṭāvũ, once more
- Say it: varsādmã̃ badhã̃ ojāro kaṭāī gayã̃. — All the tools rusted in the rain.

> Complete the last lesson of chapter 510: I can talk about what a goldsmith melts, casts and makes.

510.1 સોની (sonī) — a goldsmith

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for rust, then the Gujarati for to rust.

You'll want to know: સોની

સોની — sonī — "a goldsmith".

> અમારી ગલીમાં એક સોનીની દુકાન છે.
> amārī galīmā̃ ek sonīnī dukān che.
> There is a goldsmith's shop in our lane.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

સોની (sonī) is built on the Gujarati word for gold, which goes back to Sanskrit suvárṇa, "gold" (CDIAL 13519). CDIAL also lists the older sonār, "a goldsmith", from Sanskrit suvarṇakāra (CDIAL 13520).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: sonī
- Say it: sonī, once more
- Say it: amārī galīmā̃ ek sonīnī dukān che. — There is a goldsmith's shop in our lane.

510.2 ઓગાળવું (ogāḷvũ) — to melt down (metal)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to rust, then the Gujarati for a goldsmith.

You'll want to know: ઓગાળવું

ઓગાળવું — ogāḷvũ — "to melt down (metal)".

સોનીએ જૂની વીંટી ઓગાળી.

sonīe jūnī vī̃ṭī ogāḷī.

The goldsmith melted down the old ring.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે વીંટી ઓગાળી, teṇe vī̃ṭī ogāḷī.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઓગાળવું (ogāḷvũ) goes back to Sanskrit avagalati, "falls down, slips down"; CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb for making something melt beside the plain verb for oozing and melting (CDIAL 742). The past agrees with what is melted: વીંટી ઓગાળી.

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: ogāḷvũ
- Say it: ogāḷvũ, once more
- Say it: sonīe jūnī vĩṭī ogāḷī. — The goldsmith melted down the old ring.

Before you move on

What does ઓગાળવું mean? ("To melt down (metal)".) Say it once more.

510.3 તાંબું (tā̃bũ) — copper

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a goldsmith, then the Gujarati for to melt down.

You'll want to know: તાંબું

તાંબું — tā̃bũ — "copper".

દાદીનું જૂનું વાસણ તાંબાનું છે.

dādīnũ jūnũ vāsaṇ tā̃bānũ che.

Grandmother's old pot is made of copper.

A neuter noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

તાંબું (tā̃bũ) is a tadbhava, inherited from Sanskrit tāmrá, "coppery red; copper", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati word (CDIAL 5779).

What you've built

One more word for describing what you lived and felt.

Your turn

- Say it: tā̃bũ
- Say it: tā̃bũ, once more
- Say it: dādīnũ jūnũ vāsaṇ tā̃bānũ che. — Grandmother's old pot is made of copper.

If something unexpected happens, phone me at once.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

અણધાર્યું (aṇdhāryũ) is built from aṇ-, "un-", and ધાર્યું, the past of ધારવું, "to suppose": not supposed, unexpected. CDIAL files ધારવું under Sanskrit dhāráyati, "holds" (CDIAL 6791).

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: aṇdhāryũ
- Say it: aṇdhāryũ, once more
- Say it: jo kaīk aṇdhāryũ banśe to mane tarat phon karo. — If something unexpected happens, phone me at once.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for at long last, then the Gujarati for a hassle, then say aṇdhāryũ again

Before you move on

What does અણધાર્યું mean? ("Unexpected".) Say it once more.

531.3 ઓચિંતું (ocintũ) — sudden

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a hassle, then the Gujarati for unexpected.

You'll want to know: ઓચિંતું

ઓચિંતું — ocintũ — "sudden".

જો ઓચિંતો વરસાદ આવશે તો મેચ બંધ થઈ જશે.

jo ocinto varsād āvśe to mec bandh thaī jaśe.

If a sudden shower comes, the match will be stopped.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઓચિંતું (ocintũ) goes back to a reconstructed apacitta*, "without thought", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati word, "suddenly" (CDIAL 420): what comes without being thought of. It agrees with its noun: ઓચિંતો વરસાદ.

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: ocintũ
- Say it: ocintũ, once more
- Say it: jo ocinto varsād āvśe to mec bandh thaī jaśe. — If a sudden shower comes, the match will be stopped.

Chapter 539

Making Up My Mind

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say that I have made up my mind.
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 539: I can say that I have made up my mind.

539.1 મક્કમ (makkam) — resolute

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to mull over, then the Gujarati for a settlement.

You'll want to know: મક્કમ

મક્કમ — makkam — "resolute".

> જો તમે મક્કમ રહેશો તો તમે જીતશો.
> jo tame makkam raheśo to tame jītśo.
> If you stay firm, you will win.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

મક્કમ (makkam) is usually traced to Arabic muḥkam, "made firm, strong", through Persian.

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: makkam
- Say it: makkam, once more
- Say it: jo tame makkam raheśo to tame jītśo. — If you stay firm, you will win.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to mull over, then the Gujarati for a settlement, then say makkam again

Before you move on

What does મક્કમ mean? ("Resolute".) Say it once more.

539.2 ઠરાવવું (ṭharāvvũ) — to settle on (a decision)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a settlement, then the Gujarati for resolute.

You'll want to know: ઠરાવવું

ઠરાવવું — ṭharāvvũ — "to settle on (a decision)".

> અમે ઠરાવ્યું છે કે જો વરસાદ પડશે તો અમે નહીં જઈએ.
> ame ṭharāvyũ che ke jo varsād paḍśe to ame nahī̃ jaīe.
> We have decided that if it rains we won't go.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે ઠરાવ્યું, teṇe ṭharāvyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઠરાવવું (ṭharāvvũ) is the causative of ઠરવું, "to settle, to become fixed", which CDIAL lists under stharati*, "is firm" (CDIAL 13742): to make a decision firm.

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: ṭharāvvũ
- Say it: ṭharāvvũ, once more
- Say it: ame ṭharāvyũ che ke jo varsād paḍśe to ame nahī̃ jaīe. — We have decided that if it rains we won't go.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a settlement, then the Gujarati for resolute, then say ṭharāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does ઠરાવવું mean? ("To settle on (a decision)".) Say it once more.

539.3 કસોટી (kasoṭī) — a touchstone; a hard test

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for resolute, then the Gujarati for to settle on.

You'll want to know: કસોટી

કસોટી — kasoṭī — "a touchstone; a hard test".

જો તમે આ કસોટીમાં મક્કમ રહેશો તો તમને આ નોકરી મળશે.

jo tame ā kasoṭīmā̃ makkam raheśo to tamne ā nokrī maḷśe.

If you stand firm through this test, you will get this job.

A feminine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

કસોટી (kasoṭī) is first the touchstone, the dark stone on which gold is rubbed to show its worth, and so any hard test. CDIAL lists the Gujarati word, “a touchstone”, under Sanskrit kaṣapaṭṭikā (CDIAL 2973); the sense of a trial it does not give.

What you’ve built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: kasoṭī
- Say it: kasoṭī, once more
- Say it: jo tame ā kasoṭīmā̃ makkam raheśo to tamne ā nokrī maḷśe. — If you stand firm through this test, you will get this job.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for resolute, then the Gujarati for to settle on, then say kasoṭī again

Before you move on

What does કસોટી mean? (“A touchstone; a hard test”.) Say it once more.

539.4 ઝંપલાવવું (jhamplāvvũ) — to take the plunge

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for to settle on, then the Gujarati for a hard test.

You’ll want to know: ઝંપલાવવું

ઝંપલાવવું — jhamplāvvũ — “to take the plunge”.

જો હું ત્યારે ધંધામાં ઝંપલાવત તો આજે હું અમીર હોત.

jo hũ tyāre dhandhāmā̃ jhamplāvat to āje hũ amīr hot.

If I had taken the plunge into business then, I would be rich today.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે ધંધામાં ઝંપલાવ્યું, teṇe dhandhāmā̃ jhamplāvyũ.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

ઝંપલાવવું (jhamplāvvũ) is perhaps related to a reconstructed jhapp*, "sudden movement", with a variant jhamp-*, "a jump", under which CDIAL lists a Gujarati verb, "to throw headlong" (CDIAL 5336); this form is not listed, so its history is not settled. One plunges into water, or into a venture.

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: jhamplāvvũ
- Say it: jhamplāvvũ, once more
- Say it: jo hũ tyāre dhandhāmã̃ jhamplāvat to āje hũ amīr hot. — If I had taken the plunge into business then, I would be rich today.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for to settle on, then the Gujarati for a hard test, then say jhamplāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does ઝંપલાવવું mean? ("To take the plunge".) Say it once more.

539.5 નિશ્ચય (niścay) — resolve (a firm decision)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a hard test, then the Gujarati for to take the plunge.

You'll want to know: નિશ્ચય

નિશ્ચય — niścay — "resolve (a firm decision)".

જો તમારો નિશ્ચય મક્કમ હશે તો તમે આ કામ પતાવી દેશો.

jo tamāro niścay makkam haśe to tame ā kām patāvī deśo.

If your resolve is firm, you will finish this work.

A masculine noun.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

નિશ્ચય (niścay) is a tatsama, taken from Sanskrit niścaya, "certainty; resolve, a fixed intention" (Monier-Williams).

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: niścay
- Say it: niścay, once more
- Say it: jo tamāro niścay makkam haśe to tame ā kām patāvī deśo. — If your resolve is firm, you will finish this work.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for a hard test, then the Gujarati for to take the plunge, then say niścay again

Before you move on

What does નિશ્ચય mean? ("Resolve (a firm decision)".) Say it once more.

Before you move on

What does બંધન mean? ("A tie (that binds)".) Say it once more.

540.3 બંધાવું (bandhāvũ) — to be bound (by a promise)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for coercion, then the Gujarati for a tie (that binds).

You'll want to know: બંધાવું

બંધાવું — bandhāvũ — "to be bound (by a promise)".

જો હું વચન ન આપત તો હું ન બંધાત.

jo hũ vacan na āpat to hũ na bandhāt.

If I had not given my word, I would not have been bound.

Past (he …): તે વચનથી બંધાયો, te vacanthī bandhāyo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

બંધાવું (bandhāvũ) is the intransitive partner of બાંધવું, "to tie", which CDIAL files under Sanskrit bandhati, "binds" (CDIAL 9139): to be tied, by a rope or by a promise.

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: bandhāvũ
- Say it: bandhāvũ, once more
- Say it: jo hũ vacan na āpat to hũ na bandhāt. — If I had not given my word, I would not have been bound.

540.4 જકડવું (jakaḍvũ) — to hold fast

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for a tie (that binds), then the Gujarati for to be bound.

You'll want to know: જકડવું

જકડવું — jakaḍvũ — "to hold fast".

જો તમે બાળકનો હાથ જકડી રાખશો તો તે નહીં ખોવાય.

jo tame bāḷakno hāth jakḍī rākhśo to te nahī̃ khovāy.

If you hold the child's hand tight, he won't get lost.

Past, with તેણે (he or she …): તેણે હાથ જકડ્યો, teṇe hāth jakaḍyo.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

જકડવું (jakaḍvũ) is filed by CDIAL under Sanskrit yatá, "held, restrained", and CDIAL lists the Gujarati verb, "to tighten, bind" (CDIAL 10400).

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: jakaḍvũ
- Say it: jakaḍvũ, once more

> Complete the last lesson of chapter 547: I can add a contrast to a condition with despite, rather, of course and by no means.

547.1 અલબત્ત (albatt) — of course (granted)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for in addition to, then the Gujarati for ever.

You'll want to know: અલબત્ત

અલબત્ત — albatt — "of course (granted)".

> જો તમે બોલાવશો તો અલબત્ત હું આવીશ.
> jo tame bolāvśo to albatt hũ āvīś.
> If you invite me, of course I'll come.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

અલબત્ત (albatt) is usually traced to Persian albatta, "certainly", a word Persian took from Arabic.

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: albatt
- Say it: albatt, once more
- Say it: jo tame bolāvśo to albatt hũ āvīś. — If you invite me, of course I'll come.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for in addition to, then the Gujarati for ever, then say albatt again

Before you move on

What does અલબત્ત mean? ("Of course (granted)".) Say it once more.

547.2 હરગિજ (hargij) — by no means (with a negative)

Before the new one: say the Gujarati for ever, then the Gujarati for of course.

You'll want to know: હરગિજ

હરગિજ — hargij — "by no means (with a negative)".

જો વરસાદ પડશે તો હું હરગિજ બહાર નહીં જાઉં.

jo varsād paḍśe to hũ hargij bahār nahī̃ jāũ.

If it rains, I will by no means go out.

The word, taken apart — its roots and family

હરગિજ (hargij) is usually traced to Persian hargiz, "ever", which with a negative means "never"; in Gujarati it comes with નહીં.

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: hargij
- Say it: hargij, once more
- Say it: jo varsād paḍśe to hũ hargij bahār nahī̃ jāũ. — If it rains, I will by no means go out.

What you've built

One more word for saying what happens if.

Your turn

- Say it: nacāvvũ
- Say it: nacāvvũ, once more
- Say it: jo tũ ḍhol vagāḍīś to tũ badhāne nacāvīś. — If you play the drum, you'll get everyone dancing.
- Recall: say the Gujarati for an ankle bell, then the Gujarati for to sway, then say nacāvvũ again

Before you move on

What does નચાવવું mean? ("To make (someone) dance".) Say it once more.

554.6 Looking back: from If We Win the Match to Dancing All Night

Say the Gujarati for a team and a captain.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- a team, a captain, a match-up, a winner, to win it for (a team)
- football, a goal (in a game), a score, to catch a ball, a medal
- an arrow, a target, to aim at, to pierce (a target), a runner

- training, a sports coach, music practice, to make (someone) run, a trophy
- a stage, acting, a spectator, to make ring, to get going
- a kettledrum, a shehnai, to sing out, to chime, to be itching to dance
- raas, dandiya sticks, an ankle bell, to sway, to make (someone) dance

Before you move on

The Gujarati script — a reference

A reference, not a chapter — the lessons teach reading through real words. This page gathers the system and flags what is special about the Gujarati script and Gujarati sounds.

How the Gujarati script works (the three facts)

1. Consonants carry a built-in "a" — and there is no top line. ક = ka, ન = na, મ = ma, સ = sa — written left to right. Gujarati is Devanagari's sister, but it dropped the *shirorekhā (the horizontal bar Devanagari, Bengali, and Gurmukhi hang their letters from) — cut it away, so its letters stand free. This missing top line is the one thing to remember, and the fastest way to tell Gujarati from Hindi at a glance — the "headless script."

2. A vowel sign changes the built-in "a": કા kā · કિ ki · કી kī · કુ ku · કે ke · કો ko. The i-sign િ is written before the consonant but read after it. An anusvāra ં nasalises (છું chhũ); a chandra ઁ marks the light nasal on some words.

3. A virama (્) removes the vowel, and the bare consonant joins the next as a conjunct: સ + ્ + ત → સ્ત.

Standalone vowels (word-initial)

Standalone vowels have their own letters, used when a word starts with a vowel: અ a · આ ā · ઇ i · ઉ u · એ e · ઓ o (આભાર ābhār).

What is special about Gujarati sounds and grammar

- Three genders. Gujarati keeps Sanskrit's masculine, feminine, and neuter, visible on adjectives and possessives as -o / -ī / -ũ: sāro (m.) / sārī (f.) / sārũ (n.), "good"; māro / mārī / mārũ, "my". Hindi collapsed to two; Gujarati, like Marathi, kept three.
- A copula all its own — chhe. Gujarati's "is" is neither Hindi's hai nor Sanskrit's asti; it grew from an Old Gujarati form (achhaï): hũ chhũ (I am), tũ chhe, te chhe, tame chho.
- The retroflex ળ (ḷ) — and ણ (ṇ). Gujarati keeps the extra "hard l" — a retroflex l, tongue curled back — like Marathi and the Dravidian south, and absent from Hindi, as in maḷvũ ("to meet"). ણ is the matching retroflex n: the tongue tip curls back onto the roof of the mouth, as in jāṇvũ ("to know"). Middle Indo-Aryan regularly pulled a single n between vowels back to this sound.
- Aspirated stops are separate letters. ક ka and ખ kha differ only by a puff of breath after the consonant — a difference English makes without noticing and Gujarati writes down (khāvũ, "to eat").
- Every verb is named in the neuter. The infinitive ending -વું -vũ is the neuter of the three genders, so hovũ, javũ, khāvũ all end the same way. Strip -vũ and what is left is the stem.
- Verb goes last; "in" comes after the noun. Gujarati is subject–object–verb and uses postpositions: Amdāvad-mā rahũ chhũ ("I live in Ahmedabad").
- The trade-language layer. Centuries as a great trading language across the Arabian Sea wove a heavy Perso-Arabic layer, and a few Portuguese words from the coastal ports, into everyday Gujarati — even "how are you" is answered with the Persian loan majā ("enjoyment" ← maza).

Gujarati in the family

Gujarati (gujarātī) is Indo-Aryan — from Sanskrit, like Hindi, Marathi, and Punjabi — and its name comes from the Gurjar, a people who settled western India and gave their name to the land of Gujarāt. Its Sanskrit core is shared with Hindi. Spoken by some 55 million people in Gujarat and across a vast trading diaspora, it is the mother tongue of Mohandas K. ("Mahatma") Gandhi. The lessons trace both threads — its Sanskrit roots and its Perso-Arabic trade layer — and, where they reach, the wider Indo-European family that also shaped English.
