> Complete the last lesson of chapter 698: I can say whether the sky is cloudy, clear or sunny, and whether it is clearing up.

698.1 nublado — cloudy, overcast

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the drizzle, then the Spanish for to drizzle.

You'll want to know: nublado

nublado — "cloudy, overcast".

> Hoy está nublado.
>
> It is cloudy today.

Used with estar: está nublado.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

nublado is built on nublo "cloud", from Latin nūbilus "cloudy" (EtymDB), from nūbēs "cloud".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: nublado
- Say it: nublado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with nublado
- Recall: say the Spanish for the drizzle, then the Spanish for to drizzle, then say nublado again

Before you move on

What does nublado mean? ("Cloudy, overcast".) Say it once more.

698.2 despejado — clear (sky); awake, alert

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to drizzle, then the Spanish for cloudy.

You'll want to know: despejado

despejado — "clear (sky); awake, alert".

Mañana el cielo estará despejado.

Tomorrow the sky will be clear.

Una noche despejada — a clear night.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

despejado is the past form of despejar "to clear", which came from Portuguese despejar (EtymDB), built on des- and a verb meaning "to hinder".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: despejado
- Say it: despejado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with despejado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to drizzle, then the Spanish for cloudy, then say despejado again

Before you move on

What does despejado mean? ("Clear (sky); awake, alert".) Say it once more.

698.3 soleado — sunny

Before the new one: say the Spanish for cloudy, then the Spanish for clear.

You'll want to know: soleado

soleado — "sunny".

Fue un día soleado y tranquilo.

It was a sunny, quiet day.

Hace sol is the everyday way to say it is sunny.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

soleado is built on sol "sun", which is inherited from Latin sōl (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: soleado
- Say it: soleado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with soleado
- Recall: say the Spanish for cloudy, then the Spanish for clear, then say soleado again

Before you move on

What does soleado mean? (“Sunny”.) Say it once more.

698.4 nublarse — to cloud over

Before the new one: say the Spanish for clear, then the Spanish for sunny.

You’ll want to know: nublarse

nublarse — “to cloud over”.

Por la tarde se nubló.

It clouded over in the afternoon.

Also of the eyes or the mind: se le nubló la vista.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

nublarse comes from Latin nūbilāre “to be cloudy” (EtymDB), built on nūbilus “cloudy”, from nūbēs “cloud”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: nublarse
- Say it: nublarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with nublarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for clear, then the Spanish for sunny, then say nublarse again

Before you move on

What does nublarse mean? ("To cloud over".) Say it once more.

698.5 despejar — to clear (up); to clear (a space)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for sunny, then the Spanish for to cloud over.

You'll want to know: despejar

despejar — "to clear (up); to clear (a space)".

Después de la lluvia despejó.

After the rain it cleared up.

Despejar la mesa — to clear the dishes away.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

despejar came from Portuguese despejar (EtymDB), built on des- and pejar "to hinder", from Latin pedica "a fetter for the feet".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: despejar
- Say it: despejar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with despejar
- Recall: say the Spanish for sunny, then the Spanish for to cloud over, then say despejar again

Before you move on

What does despejar mean? ("To clear (up); to clear (a space)".) Say it once more.

Chapter 699

Rayos y truenos

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about a storm: lightning, thunder and hail.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 699: I can talk about a storm: lightning, thunder and hail.

699.1 el rayo — the lightning bolt; the ray

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to cloud over, then the Spanish for to clear.

You'll want to know: el rayo

el rayo — "the lightning bolt; the ray".

> Un rayo cayó en el árbol.
>
> Lightning struck the tree.

Los rayos del sol — the sun's rays.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

rayo is inherited from Latin radius "a staff, a spoke, a ray".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el rayo
- Say it: el rayo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el rayo
- Recall: say the Spanish for to cloud over, then the Spanish for to clear, then say el rayo again

Before you move on

What does el rayo mean? ("The lightning bolt; the ray".) Say it once more.

699.2 relampaguear — to flash with lightning

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to clear, then the Spanish for the lightning bolt.

You'll want to know: relampaguear

relampaguear — "to flash with lightning".

Toda la noche estuvo relampagueando.

There was lightning all night.

Used in the third person: relampaguea.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

relampaguear is built on relámpago "flash of lightning" (EtymDB), from Latin lampas "a torch", Greek lampás.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: relampaguear
- Say it: relampaguear, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with relampaguear
- Recall: say the Spanish for to clear, then the Spanish for the lightning bolt, then say relampaguear again

Before you move on

What does relampaguear mean? ("To flash with lightning".) Say it once more.

699.3 el granizo — the hail

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the lightning bolt, then the Spanish for to flash with lightning.

You'll want to know: el granizo

el granizo — "the hail".

El granizo rompió los cristales.

The hail broke the windows.

One hailstone is un grano de granizo or una piedra.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

granizo is built on grano "grain", which is inherited from Latin grānum (EtymDB): hail falls like grains of ice.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el granizo
- Say it: el granizo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el granizo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the lightning bolt, then the Spanish for to flash with lightning, then say el granizo again

Before you move on

What does el granizo mean? (“The hail”.) Say it once more.

699.4 granizar — to hail

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to flash with lightning, then the Spanish for the hail.

You’ll want to know: granizar

granizar — “to hail”.

Ayer granizó en la sierra.

It hailed in the mountains yesterday.

Used in the third person, like llover.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

granizar is built on granizo “hail”, from grano “grain”, inherited from Latin grānum.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: granizar
- Say it: granizar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with granizar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to flash with lightning, then the Spanish for the hail, then say granizar again

Before you move on

What does granizar mean? ("To hail".) Say it once more.

699.5 tronar — to thunder

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the hail, then the Spanish for to hail.

You'll want to know: tronar

tronar — "to thunder".

Truena mucho esta noche.

It is thundering a lot tonight.

The o becomes ue: truena. El trueno is thunder.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

tronar is inherited from Latin tonāre "to thunder" (EtymDB), like trueno "thunder".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: tronar
- Say it: tronar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with tronar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the hail, then the Spanish for to hail, then say tronar again

Before you move on

What does tronar mean? (“To thunder”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 700

Nieve y hielo

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about winter weather: snow, snowfalls, blizzards and freezing.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 700: I can talk about winter weather: snow, snowfalls, blizzards and freezing.

700.1 nevar — to snow

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to hail, then the Spanish for to thunder.

You'll want to know: nevar

nevar — "to snow".

> En la sierra nieva en enero.
>
> It snows in the mountains in January.

The e becomes ie: nieva.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

nevar is inherited from Vulgar Latin nivāre "to snow" (EtymDB), from Latin nix, nivis "snow".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: nevar
- Say it: nevar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with nevar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to hail, then the Spanish for to thunder, then say nevar again

Before you move on

What does nevar mean? ("To snow".) Say it once more.

700.2 helar — to freeze

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to thunder, then the Spanish for to snow.

You'll want to know: helar

helar — "to freeze".

Anoche heló y la calle está blanca.

It froze last night and the street is white.

The e becomes ie: hiela. El helado is ice cream.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

helar is inherited from Latin gelāre "to freeze" (EtymDB), from gelū "frost"; Latin g before e became Spanish h here.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: helar
- Say it: helar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with helar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to thunder, then the Spanish for to snow, then say helar again

Before you move on

What does helar mean? ("To freeze".) Say it once more.

700.3 la ventisca — the blizzard, the snowstorm

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to snow, then the Spanish for to freeze.

You'll want to know: la ventisca

la ventisca — "the blizzard, the snowstorm".

Con la ventisca no se ve nada.

In the blizzard you cannot see a thing.

Snow and strong wind together.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ventisca is built on viento "wind", which is inherited from Latin ventus.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la ventisca
- Say it: la ventisca, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la ventisca
- Recall: say the Spanish for to snow, then the Spanish for to freeze, then say la ventisca again

Before you move on

What does la ventisca mean? ("The blizzard, the snowstorm".) Say it once more.

700.4 la nevada — the snowfall

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to freeze, then the Spanish for the blizzard.

You'll want to know: la nevada

la nevada — "the snowfall".

Después de la nevada no había autobuses.

After the snowfall there were no buses.

Una gran nevada — heavy snow.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

nevada is built on nevar "to snow", which is inherited from Vulgar Latin nivāre, from nix, nivis "snow".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la nevada
- Say it: la nevada, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la nevada
- Recall: say the Spanish for to freeze, then the Spanish for the blizzard, then say la nevada again

Before you move on

What does la nevada mean? ("The snowfall".) Say it once more.

700.5 la escarcha — the hoarfrost, the white frost

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the blizzard, then the Spanish for the snowfall.

You'll want to know: la escarcha

la escarcha — "the hoarfrost, the white frost".

Por la mañana hay escarcha en los coches.

In the morning there is frost on the cars.

The thin white ice on grass and glass.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

The origin of escarcha is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la escarcha
- Say it: la escarcha, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la escarcha
- Recall: say the Spanish for the blizzard, then the Spanish for the snowfall, then say la escarcha again

Before you move on

What does la escarcha mean? ("The hoarfrost, the white frost".) Say it once more.

Chapter 701

Calor y sequía

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about warm weather: mild, hot and muggy days, a drought, and sweating.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 701: I can talk about warm weather: mild, hot and muggy days, a drought, and sweating.

701.1 caluroso — hot (weather); warm (welcome)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the snowfall, then the Spanish for the hoarfrost.

You'll want to know: caluroso

caluroso — "hot (weather); warm (welcome)".

Fue un verano muy caluroso.

It was a very hot summer.

Un caluroso saludo — a warm greeting.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

caluroso is built on calor "heat", which is inherited from Latin calor (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: caluroso
- Say it: caluroso, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with caluroso
- Recall: say the Spanish for the snowfall, then the Spanish for the hoarfrost, then say caluroso again

Before you move on

What does caluroso mean? ("Hot (weather); warm (welcome)".) Say it once more.

701.2 templado — mild, temperate; lukewarm

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the hoarfrost, then the Spanish for hot.

You'll want to know: templado

templado — "mild, temperate; lukewarm".

En primavera el tiempo es templado.

In spring the weather is mild.

Agua templada — lukewarm water.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

templado is the past form of templar "to temper" (EtymDB), Old Spanish temprar, from Latin temperāre "to mix in due measure".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: templado
- Say it: templado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with templado
- Recall: say the Spanish for the hoarfrost, then the Spanish for hot, then say templado again

Before you move on

What does templado mean? ("Mild, temperate; lukewarm".) Say it once more.

701.3 el bochorno — the muggy heat, close weather; embarrassment

Before the new one: say the Spanish for hot, then the Spanish for mild.

You'll want to know: el bochorno

el bochorno — "the muggy heat, close weather; embarrassment".

¡Qué bochorno hace hoy!

It is so muggy today!

It also means embarrassment: ¡qué bochorno!

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

bochorno is inherited from Latin vulturnus "east wind" (EtymDB); the name of a hot wind became the name for hot, heavy weather.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el bochorno
- Say it: el bochorno, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el bochorno
- Recall: say the Spanish for hot, then the Spanish for mild, then say el bochorno again

Before you move on

What does el bochorno mean? ("The muggy heat, close weather; embarrassment".) Say it once more.

701.4 la sequía — the drought

Before the new one: say the Spanish for mild, then the Spanish for the muggy heat.

You'll want to know: la sequía

la sequía — "the drought".

Este año hay sequía y no llueve.

There is a drought this year and it does not rain.

Built on seco, dry.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sequía is built on seco "dry" (EtymDB), which is inherited from Latin siccus "dry".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la sequía
- Say it: la sequía, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la sequía
- Recall: say the Spanish for mild, then the Spanish for the muggy heat, then say la sequía again

Before you move on

What does la sequía mean? (“The drought”.) Say it once more.

701.5 sudar — to sweat

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the muggy heat, then the Spanish for the drought.

You’ll want to know: sudar

sudar — “to sweat”.

Con este calor sudo mucho.

I sweat a lot in this heat.

El sudor is sweat.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sudar is inherited from Latin sūdāre “to sweat” (EtymDB).

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: sudar
- Say it: sudar, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with sudar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the muggy heat, then the Spanish for the drought, then say sudar again

Before you move on

What does sudar mean? ("To sweat".) Say it once more.

Chapter 702

Mojarse

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say I got caught in the rain: soaked, with puddles, mud and a raincoat.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 702: I can say I got caught in the rain: soaked, with puddles, mud and a raincoat.

702.1 mojarse — to get wet

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the drought, then the Spanish for to sweat.

You'll want to know: mojarse

mojarse — "to get wet".

> Me mojé porque no llevaba paraguas.
>
> I got wet because I had no umbrella.

Without se, mojar is to wet something.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

mojarse is built on mojar "to wet", which is usually traced to Vulgar Latin molliāre "to soften", from mollis "soft": wet things go soft.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: mojarse
- Say it: mojarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with mojarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for the drought, then the Spanish for to sweat, then say mojarse again

Before you move on

What does mojarse mean? ("To get wet".) Say it once more.

702.2 empapado — soaked, drenched

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to sweat, then the Spanish for to get wet.

You'll want to know: empapado

empapado — "soaked, drenched".

Llegamos al hotel empapados.

We got to the hotel soaked.

Empapado hasta los huesos — soaked to the skin.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

empapado is the past form of empapar "to soak", which is built on papa "mush, pap", from Latin pappa "food", a word from baby talk (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: empapado
- Say it: empapado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with empapado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to sweat, then the Spanish for to get wet, then say empapado again

Before you move on

What does empapado mean? ("Soaked, drenched".) Say it once more.

702.3 el charco — the puddle

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to get wet, then the Spanish for soaked.

You'll want to know: el charco

el charco — "the puddle".

Los niños saltan en los charcos.

The children jump in the puddles.

Cruzar el charco — to cross the Atlantic.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

The origin of charco is not settled; it may come from a pre-Roman word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el charco
- Say it: el charco, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el charco
- Recall: say the Spanish for to get wet, then the Spanish for soaked, then say el charco again

Before you move on

What does el charco mean? ("The puddle".) Say it once more.

702.4 el barro — the mud; clay

Before the new one: say the Spanish for soaked, then the Spanish for the puddle.

You'll want to know: el barro

el barro — "the mud; clay".

Tengo los zapatos llenos de barro.

My shoes are covered in mud.

Una olla de barro — a clay pot.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

barro comes from Vulgar Latin barrum "mud, clay" (EtymDB); the deeper origin is not settled, and it may be pre-Roman.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el barro
- Say it: el barro, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el barro
- Recall: say the Spanish for soaked, then the Spanish for the puddle, then say el barro again

Before you move on

What does el barro mean? ("The mud; clay".) Say it once more.

702.5 el impermeable — the raincoat; waterproof

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the puddle, then the Spanish for the mud.

You'll want to know: el impermeable

el impermeable — "the raincoat; waterproof".

Lleva el impermeable, va a llover.

Take your raincoat, it is going to rain.

As an adjective: una chaqueta impermeable — a waterproof jacket.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

impermeable is a learned borrowing from Late Latin impermeābilis "that cannot be passed through" (EtymDB), built on meāre "to pass".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el impermeable
- Say it: el impermeable, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el impermeable
- Recall: say the Spanish for the puddle, then the Spanish for the mud, then say el impermeable again

Before you move on

What does el impermeable mean? ("The raincoat; waterproof".) Say it once more.

Chapter 703

Al caer la tarde

Modes: 🚗 voice (8) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe the end of a day out: sunset, nightfall, the horizon and a rainbow.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 703: I can describe the end of a day out: sunset, nightfall, the horizon and a rainbow.

703.1 el atardecer — dusk, sunset

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the mud, then the Spanish for the raincoat.

You'll want to know: el atardecer

el atardecer — "dusk, sunset".

> El atardecer en la playa es precioso.
>
> Sunset on the beach is beautiful.

Also a verb: atardece — evening is falling.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

atardecer is built on tarde "afternoon, late", which is inherited from Latin tardē "late" (EtymDB), from tardus "slow".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el atardecer
- Say it: el atardecer, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el atardecer
- Recall: say the Spanish for the mud, then the Spanish for the raincoat, then say el atardecer again

Before you move on

What does el atardecer mean? ("Dusk, sunset".) Say it once more.

703.2 anochecer — to get dark; nightfall

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the raincoat, then the Spanish for dusk.

You'll want to know: anochecer

anochecer — "to get dark; nightfall".

En invierno anochece muy pronto.

In winter it gets dark very early.

Al anochecer — at nightfall.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

anochecer is built from a- and Latin noctēscere "to grow dark" (EtymDB), from nox, noctis "night".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: anochecer
- Say it: anochecer, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with anochecer
- Recall: say the Spanish for the raincoat, then the Spanish for dusk, then say anochecer again

Before you move on

What does anochecer mean? ("To get dark; nightfall".) Say it once more.

703.3 el horizonte — the horizon

Before the new one: say the Spanish for dusk, then the Spanish for to get dark.

You'll want to know: el horizonte

el horizonte — "the horizon".

El sol se pone en el horizonte.

The sun sets on the horizon.

Nuevos horizontes — new horizons.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

horizonte is a learned borrowing from Latin horizōn, from Greek horízōn "bounding (circle)" (EtymDB), from hóros "boundary".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el horizonte
- Say it: el horizonte, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el horizonte
- Recall: say the Spanish for dusk, then the Spanish for to get dark, then say el horizonte again

Before you move on

What does el horizonte mean? ("The horizon".) Say it once more.

703.4 el arco iris — the rainbow

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to get dark, then the Spanish for the horizon.

You'll want to know: el arco iris

el arco iris — "the rainbow".

Después de la lluvia salió un arco iris.

After the rain a rainbow came out.

Also written arcoíris; the plural is los arcoíris.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

arco iris is built from arco "bow", inherited from Latin arcus (EtymDB), and iris "rainbow", from Latin īris and Greek îris (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el arco iris
- Say it: el arco iris, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el arco iris
- Recall: say the Spanish for to get dark, then the Spanish for the horizon, then say el arco iris again

Before you move on

What does el arco iris mean? ("The rainbow".) Say it once more.

703.5 contemplar — to gaze at, to contemplate

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the horizon, then the Spanish for the rainbow.

You'll want to know: contemplar

contemplar — "to gaze at, to contemplate".

Contemplamos el paisaje en silencio.

We gazed at the landscape in silence.

Slower and calmer than mirar.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

contemplar is a learned borrowing from Latin contemplārī "to observe, to gaze at" (EtymDB), built on templum, an open space marked out for watching the sky.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: contemplar
- Say it: contemplar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with contemplar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the horizon, then the Spanish for the rainbow, then say contemplar again

Before you move on

What does contemplar mean? ("To gaze at, to contemplate".) Say it once more.

703.6 Naturaleza y tiempo

Say the Spanish for the thermometer and the forecast.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the thermometer, the forecast, the outlook, humid, the humidity
- to stop raining, the shower, the downpour, the drizzle, to drizzle
- cloudy, clear, sunny, to cloud over, to clear
- the lightning bolt, to flash with lightning, the hail, to hail, to thunder
- to snow, to freeze, the blizzard, the snowfall, the hoarfrost
- hot, mild, the muggy heat, the drought, to sweat
- to get wet, soaked, the puddle, the mud, the raincoat
- dusk, to get dark, the horizon, the rainbow, to gaze at

Before you move on

The thermometer? (el termómetro.) The forecast? (el pronóstico.) The outlook? (la previsión.) Humid? (húmedo.)

The humidity? (la humedad.) To stop raining? (escampar.) The shower? (el chubasco.) The downpour? (el aguacero.) The drizzle? (la llovizna.) To drizzle? (lloviznar.) Cloudy? (nublado.) Clear? (despejado.) Sunny? (soleado.) To cloud over? (nublarse.) To clear? (despejar.) The lightning bolt? (el rayo.) To flash with lightning? (relampaguear.) The hail? (el granizo.) To hail? (granizar.) To thunder? (tronar.) To snow? (nevar.) To freeze? (helar.) The blizzard? (la ventisca.) The snowfall? (la nevada.) The hoarfrost? (la escarcha.) Hot? (caluroso.) Mild? (templado.) The muggy heat? (el bochorno.) The drought? (la sequía.) To sweat? (sudar.) To get wet? (mojarse.) Soaked? (empapado.) The puddle? (el charco.) The mud? (el barro.) The raincoat? (el impermeable.) Dusk? (el atardecer.) To get dark? (anochecer.) The horizon? (el horizonte.) The rainbow? (el arco iris.) To gaze at? (contemplar.)

703.7 Al caer la tarde — once more

Say the Spanish for dusk and to get dark.

Your turn

- Say it: dusk, to get dark, the horizon, the rainbow, to gaze at

Before you move on

Dusk? (el atardecer.) To get dark? (anochecer.) The horizon? (el horizonte.) The rainbow? (el arco iris.) To gaze at? (contemplar.)

703.8 Lost at the station — back to the first travel words

From the first travel chapter: say the Spanish for “a problem” and for “where is it?”.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- Perdone, tengo un problema con mi billete. — and keep un, not una.
- ¿Dónde está el andén cuatro? — Where is platform four?
- ¿Dónde está la taquilla? Necesito un billete para Madrid.
- two more -ma nouns with el: el sistema, el idioma.

Before you move on

Why is it el problema? (Greek -ma nouns came in masculine.) How do you ask where the ticket office is? (¿Dónde está la taquilla?) How do you ask for a ticket to Madrid? (Un billete para Madrid, por favor.)

Chapter 704

Alegrías y penas

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say when something fills me with joy, makes me sad or moves me to tears.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 704: I can say when something fills me with joy, makes me sad or moves me to tears.

704.1 la alegría — joy, happiness

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to seem, then the Spanish for to keep.

You'll want to know: la alegría

la alegría — "joy, happiness".

> Tu visita es una alegría.
>
> Your visit is a joy.

¡Qué alegría! — How lovely! It is built on alegre, cheerful.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

alegría is built on alegre "cheerful", which is usually traced to Latin alacer "lively, brisk" through a spoken form alecrem; English alacrity comes from the same Latin word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la alegría
- Say it: la alegría, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la alegría
- Recall: say the Spanish for to seem, then the Spanish for to keep, then say la alegría again

Before you move on

What does la alegría mean? ("Joy, happiness".) Say it once more.

704.2 la melancolía — melancholy, gloom

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to keep, then the Spanish for joy.

You'll want to know: la melancolía

la melancolía — "melancholy, gloom".

El otoño me da melancolía.

Autumn makes me melancholy.

A soft, lasting sadness. The adjective is melancólico.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

melancolía is a learned borrowing from Late Latin melancholia, from Greek melankholía "blackness of the bile" (EtymDB), built on mélas "black" and kholḗ "bile"; old medicine blamed gloom on black bile.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la melancolía
- Say it: la melancolía, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la melancolía
- Recall: say the Spanish for to keep, then the Spanish for joy, then say la melancolía again

Before you move on

What does la melancolía mean? ("Melancholy, gloom".) Say it once more.

704.3 la dicha — happiness, good fortune

Before the new one: say the Spanish for joy, then the Spanish for melancholy.

You'll want to know: la dicha

la dicha — "happiness, good fortune".

¡Qué dicha verte otra vez!

What joy to see you again!

More literary than la alegría. Nunca es tarde si la dicha es buena — better late than never.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

dicha is inherited from Latin dicta "things said" (EtymDB), from dīcere "to say"; the usual reading is that good fortune was what fate had said for you.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la dicha
- Say it: la dicha, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la dicha
- Recall: say the Spanish for joy, then the Spanish for melancholy, then say la dicha again

Before you move on

What does la dicha mean? ("Happiness, good fortune".) Say it once more.

704.4 emocionarse — to be moved, to get emotional

Before the new one: say the Spanish for melancholy, then the Spanish for happiness.

You'll want to know: emocionarse

emocionarse — "to be moved, to get emotional".

Mi madre se emociona con las bodas.

My mother gets emotional at weddings.

Reflexive: me emociono, te emocionas. It is about being touched, not about being angry.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

emocionarse is built on emoción, which came from French émotion (EtymDB); the French word goes back to Latin ēmovēre "to move out, to stir up", from movēre "to move".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: emocionarse
- Say it: emocionarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with emocionarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for melancholy, then the Spanish for happiness, then say emocionarse again

Before you move on

What does emocionarse mean? ("To be moved, to get emotional".) Say it once more.

704.5 llorar — to cry, to weep

Before the new one: say the Spanish for happiness, then the Spanish for to be moved.

You'll want to know: llorar

llorar — "to cry, to weep".

El bebé llora por la noche.

The baby cries at night.

Llorar de alegría — to cry with joy.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

llorar is inherited from Latin plōrāre "to wail, to weep aloud" (EtymDB). Latin pl- at the start of a word became ll- in Spanish, the same change that turned plēnus into lleno.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: llorar
- Say it: llorar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with llorar
- Recall: say the Spanish for happiness, then the Spanish for to be moved, then say llorar again

Before you move on

What does llorar mean? (“To cry, to weep”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 705

Orgullo y vergüenza

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say when I feel proud of someone or ashamed of something.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 705: I can say when I feel proud of someone or ashamed of something.

705.1 el orgullo — pride

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to be moved, then the Spanish for to cry.

You'll want to know: el orgullo

el orgullo — "pride".

> Mis hijos son mi orgullo.
>
> My children are my pride.

It can be good (pride in your work) or bad (too proud to say sorry).

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

orgullo was borrowed from Catalan orgull, which comes from Frankish urgōli "pride", a Germanic word (EtymDB). French orgueil is the same word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el orgullo
- Say it: el orgullo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el orgullo
- Recall: say the Spanish for to be moved, then the Spanish for to cry, then say el orgullo again

Before you move on

What does el orgullo mean? ("Pride".) Say it once more.

705.2 orgulloso — proud

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to cry, then the Spanish for pride.

You'll want to know: orgulloso

orgulloso — "proud".

Estoy orgulloso de ti.

I am proud of you.

Estar orgulloso de — to be proud of. Feminine orgullosa.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

orgulloso is built on orgullo "pride" with the ending -oso, which makes adjectives; orgullo was borrowed from Catalan orgull, from Frankish urgōli (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: orgulloso
- Say it: orgulloso, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with orgulloso
- Recall: say the Spanish for to cry, then the Spanish for pride, then say orgulloso again

Before you move on

What does orgulloso mean? (“Proud”.) Say it once more.

705.3 la vergüenza — shame, embarrassment

Before the new one: say the Spanish for pride, then the Spanish for proud.

You’ll want to know: la vergüenza

la vergüenza — “shame, embarrassment”.

¡Qué vergüenza! Me caí en la calle.

How embarrassing! I fell over in the street.

Me da vergüenza — I am embarrassed (to). The two dots on ü make the u sound.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

vergüenza is inherited from Latin verēcundia “modesty, shame”, built on verērī “to respect, to fear” (EtymDB).

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la vergüenza
- Say it: la vergüenza, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la vergüenza
- Recall: say the Spanish for pride, then the Spanish for proud, then say la vergüenza again

Before you move on

What does la vergüenza mean? ("Shame, embarrassment".) Say it once more.

705.4 avergonzado — ashamed, embarrassed

Before the new one: say the Spanish for proud, then the Spanish for shame.

You'll want to know: avergonzado

avergonzado — "ashamed, embarrassed".

Está avergonzado por su error.

He is ashamed of his mistake.

Used with estar. In Latin America apenado is also common for embarrassed.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

avergonzado is built on the verb avergonzar, made from vergüenza, which is inherited from Latin verēcundia "shame" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: avergonzado
- Say it: avergonzado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with avergonzado
- Recall: say the Spanish for proud, then the Spanish for shame, then say avergonzado again

Before you move on

What does avergonzado mean? ("Ashamed, embarrassed".) Say it once more.

705.5 avergonzarse — to be ashamed

Before the new one: say the Spanish for shame, then the Spanish for ashamed.

You'll want to know: avergonzarse

avergonzarse — "to be ashamed".

No te avergüences de llorar.

Do not be ashamed of crying.

Avergonzarse de algo. Stressed forms take üe: me avergüenzo.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

avergonzarse is built on vergüenza "shame" with the prefix a-; vergüenza is inherited from Latin verēcundia (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: avergonzarse
- Say it: avergonzarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with avergonzarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for shame, then the Spanish for ashamed, then say avergonzarse again

Before you move on

What does avergonzarse mean? ("To be ashamed".) Say it once more.

Chapter 706

Sustos y miedos

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can tell someone that something gave me a fright or that I fear something.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 706: I can tell someone that something gave me a fright or that I fear something.

706.1 asustar — to frighten, to scare

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for ashamed, then the Spanish for to be ashamed.

You'll want to know: asustar

asustar — "to frighten, to scare".

> El perro me asustó.
>
> The dog frightened me.

Asustarse is to get scared: me asusté.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

asustar is built on susto "fright" with the prefix a-. Where susto itself comes from, the origin is not settled; it may be an expressive word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: asustar
- Say it: asustar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with asustar
- Recall: say the Spanish for ashamed, then the Spanish for to be ashamed, then say asustar again

Before you move on

What does asustar mean? ("To frighten, to scare".) Say it once more.

706.2 asustado — frightened, scared

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to be ashamed, then the Spanish for to frighten.

You'll want to know: asustado

asustado — "frightened, scared".

La niña está asustada.

The little girl is frightened.

Used with estar.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

asustado is the participle of asustar, which is built on susto "fright"; for susto the origin is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: asustado
- Say it: asustado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with asustado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to be ashamed, then the Spanish for to frighten, then say asustado again

Before you move on

What does asustado mean? ("Frightened, scared".) Say it once more.

706.3 el susto — the fright, the scare

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to frighten, then the Spanish for frightened.

You'll want to know: el susto

el susto — "the fright, the scare".

¡Qué susto me diste!

What a fright you gave me!

Dar un susto — to give someone a fright.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

For susto the origin is not settled. It is old in Spanish and Portuguese, and it may have begun as an expressive word imitating a sharp breath.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el susto
- Say it: el susto, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el susto
- Recall: say the Spanish for to frighten, then the Spanish for frightened, then say el susto again

Before you move on

What does el susto mean? ("The fright, the scare".) Say it once more.

706.4 el pánico — panic

Before the new one: say the Spanish for frightened, then the Spanish for the fright.

You'll want to know: el pánico

el pánico — "panic".

Me da pánico hablar en público.

Speaking in public terrifies me.

Me da pánico + infinitive — something terrifies me.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

pánico is usually traced to Greek panikós "of Pan", the country god said to cause sudden fear; it came into Spanish through French and Latin.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el pánico
- Say it: el pánico, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el pánico
- Recall: say the Spanish for frightened, then the Spanish for the fright, then say el pánico again

Before you move on

What does el pánico mean? ("Panic".) Say it once more.

706.5 temer — to fear

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the fright, then the Spanish for panic.

You'll want to know: temer

temer — "to fear".

Temo que llegue tarde.

I fear he will be late.

More formal than tener miedo. Temer que takes the subjunctive.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

temer is inherited from Latin timēre "to fear" (EtymDB); English timid comes from the same Latin family.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: temer
- Say it: temer, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with temer
- Recall: say the Spanish for the fright, then the Spanish for panic, then say temer again

Before you move on

What does temer mean? (“To fear”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 707

Cuando me enfado

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say that I am angry or annoyed and how strong the feeling is.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 707: I can say that I am angry or annoyed and how strong the feeling is.

707.1 enfadado — angry, annoyed

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for panic, then the Spanish for to fear.

You'll want to know: enfadado

enfadado — "angry, annoyed".

> Mi jefe está enfadado conmigo.
>
> My boss is angry with me.

The usual word in Spain: estar enfadado con alguien. Latin America mostly uses another word, coming up next.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

enfadado is built on enfadar, which is usually traced to Portuguese enfadar, made from fado "fate", from Latin fātum.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: enfadado
- Say it: enfadado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with enfadado
- Recall: say the Spanish for panic, then the Spanish for to fear, then say enfadado again

Before you move on

What does enfadado mean? ("Angry, annoyed".) Say it once more.

707.2 enojado — cross, angry

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to fear, then the Spanish for angry.

You'll want to know: enojado

enojado — "cross, angry".

¿Por qué estás enojada?

Why are you cross?

The everyday word in Latin America; in Spain people mostly say enfadado.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

enojado is built on enojar, which is usually traced to spoken Latin inodiāre, from the phrase in odiō "in hatred"; odio comes from the same Latin word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: enojado
- Say it: enojado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with enojado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to fear, then the Spanish for angry, then say enojado again

Before you move on

What does enojado mean? ("Cross, angry".) Say it once more.

707.3 la rabia — rage, fury; rabies

Before the new one: say the Spanish for angry, then the Spanish for cross.

You'll want to know: la rabia

la rabia — "rage, fury; rabies".

Me da rabia perder el autobús.

It makes me furious to miss the bus.

Me da rabia — it makes me mad. The same word names the disease rabies.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

rabia is inherited from Latin rabiēs "rage, madness" through a spoken form rabia (EtymDB); English rabies and rabid share it.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la rabia
- Say it: la rabia, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la rabia
- Recall: say the Spanish for angry, then the Spanish for cross, then say la rabia again

Before you move on

What does la rabia mean? ("Rage, fury; rabies".) Say it once more.

707.4 la ira — anger, wrath

Before the new one: say the Spanish for cross, then the Spanish for rage.

You'll want to know: la ira

la ira — "anger, wrath".

Habló con ira.

He spoke with anger.

A strong, written word; in conversation people say rabia or enfado.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ira comes from Latin īra "anger" (EtymDB), the source of English ire and irate too.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la ira
- Say it: la ira, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la ira
- Recall: say the Spanish for cross, then the Spanish for rage, then say la ira again

Before you move on

What does la ira mean? ("Anger, wrath".) Say it once more.

707.5 fastidiar — to annoy, to bother

Before the new one: say the Spanish for rage, then the Spanish for anger.

You'll want to know: fastidiar

fastidiar — "to annoy, to bother".

Me fastidia el ruido de la calle.

The street noise annoys me.

Works like gustar: me fastidia. ¡No fastidies! — You are kidding!

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

fastidiar is a learned borrowing from Latin fastīdiāre (fastīdiō) "to feel disgust, to loathe" (EtymDB), built on fastīdium "loathing"; English fastidious comes from the same family.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: fastidiar
- Say it: fastidiar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with fastidiar
- Recall: say the Spanish for rage, then the Spanish for anger, then say fastidiar again

Before you move on

What does fastidiar mean? ("To annoy, to bother".) Say it once more.

Chapter 708

Celos y envidia

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about jealousy and envy between friends and partners.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 708: I can talk about jealousy and envy between friends and partners.

708.1 los celos — jealousy

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for anger, then the Spanish for to annoy.

You'll want to know: los celos

los celos — "jealousy".

> Los celos destruyen una pareja.
>
> Jealousy destroys a couple.

Plural in Spanish: tener celos — to be jealous.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

celos is the plural of celo "zeal", which comes from Latin zēlus, borrowed from Greek zēlos "zeal, eager rivalry, jealousy" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: los celos
- Say it: los celos, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with los celos
- Recall: say the Spanish for anger, then the Spanish for to annoy, then say los celos again

Before you move on

What does los celos mean? ("Jealousy".) Say it once more.

708.2 celoso — jealous

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to annoy, then the Spanish for jealousy.

You'll want to know: celoso

celoso — "jealous".

Mi novio es muy celoso.

My boyfriend is very jealous.

Ser celoso is your character; estar celoso is how you feel now.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

celoso is inherited from Late Latin zēlōsus, built on zēlus "zeal" (EtymDB). English jealous, through French, and zealous both go back to the same Latin family.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: celoso
- Say it: celoso, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with celoso
- Recall: say the Spanish for to annoy, then the Spanish for jealousy, then say celoso again

Before you move on

What does celoso mean? (“Jealous”.) Say it once more.

708.3 la envidia — envy

Before the new one: say the Spanish for jealousy, then the Spanish for jealous.

You’ll want to know: la envidia

la envidia — “envy”.

Me da envidia tu viaje.

I envy you your trip.

Envidia sana — healthy envy, the friendly kind.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

envidia was borrowed from Latin invidia “envy”, built on invidēre “to eye with ill will”, from in and vidēre “to see” (EtymDB).

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la envidia
- Say it: la envidia, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la envidia
- Recall: say the Spanish for jealousy, then the Spanish for jealous, then say la envidia again

Before you move on

What does la envidia mean? ("Envy".) Say it once more.

708.4 envidiar — to envy

Before the new one: say the Spanish for jealous, then the Spanish for envy.

You'll want to know: envidiar

envidiar — "to envy".

No envidio a los famosos.

I do not envy famous people.

Envidiar algo a alguien — to envy someone something.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

envidiar is built on envidia, which was borrowed from Latin invidia "envy", from vidēre "to see" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: envidiar
- Say it: envidiar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with envidiar
- Recall: say the Spanish for jealous, then the Spanish for envy, then say envidiar again

Before you move on

What does envidiar mean? ("To envy".) Say it once more.

708.5 el rencor — resentment, grudge

Before the new one: say the Spanish for envy, then the Spanish for to envy.

You'll want to know: el rencor

el rencor — "resentment, grudge".

No le guardo rencor.

I do not hold a grudge against him.

Guardar rencor — to bear a grudge.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

rencor comes from Old Spanish rancor, from Latin rancor "a rancid smell, a grudge" (EtymDB); English rancour is the same word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el rencor
- Say it: el rencor, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el rencor
- Recall: say the Spanish for envy, then the Spanish for to envy, then say el rencor again

Before you move on

What does el rencor mean? (“Resentment, grudge”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 709

Echar de menos

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say that I feel lonely and miss people and places.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 709: I can say that I feel lonely and miss people and places.

709.1 el aislamiento — isolation

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to envy, then the Spanish for resentment.

You'll want to know: el aislamiento

el aislamiento — "isolation".

> Muchas personas mayores viven en aislamiento.
>
> Many older people live in isolation.

Aislado — isolated, cut off.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

aislamiento is built on aislar "to isolate", made from isla "island", which is inherited from Latin īnsula (EtymDB): to be cut off like an island.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el aislamiento
- Say it: el aislamiento, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el aislamiento
- Recall: say the Spanish for to envy, then the Spanish for resentment, then say el aislamiento again

Before you move on

What does el aislamiento mean? ("Isolation".) Say it once more.

709.2 solitario — lonely, solitary

Before the new one: say the Spanish for resentment, then the Spanish for isolation.

You'll want to know: solitario

solitario — "lonely, solitary".

Es un hombre solitario.

He is a solitary man.

Also a card game you play alone: hacer un solitario.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

solitario is a learned borrowing from Latin sōlitārius "lonely" (EtymDB); the same Latin word, inherited, gave soltero.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: solitario
- Say it: solitario, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with solitario
- Recall: say the Spanish for resentment, then the Spanish for isolation, then say solitario again

Before you move on

What does solitario mean? ("Lonely, solitary".) Say it once more.

709.3 extrañar — to miss (someone); to find strange

Before the new one: say the Spanish for isolation, then the Spanish for lonely.

You'll want to know: extrañar

extrañar — "to miss (someone); to find strange".

Te extraño mucho.

I miss you a lot.

To miss is the Latin American sense; in Spain people mostly say echar de menos. Me extraña — I find it strange.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

extrañar is inherited from Late Latin extrāneāre, built on extrāneus "external, foreign, strange" (EtymDB); English strange comes from the same adjective through French.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: extrañar
- Say it: extrañar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with extrañar
- Recall: say the Spanish for isolation, then the Spanish for lonely, then say extrañar again

Before you move on

What does extrañar mean? ("To miss (someone); to find strange".) Say it once more.

709.4 la nostalgia — nostalgia, homesickness

Before the new one: say the Spanish for lonely, then the Spanish for to miss.

You'll want to know: la nostalgia

la nostalgia — "nostalgia, homesickness".

Siento nostalgia de mi pueblo.

I feel homesick for my village.

Nostalgia de + place or time.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

nostalgia was borrowed from New Latin nostalgia (EtymDB), a word a Swiss doctor coined from Greek nóstos "return home" and álgos "pain".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la nostalgia
- Say it: la nostalgia, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la nostalgia
- Recall: say the Spanish for lonely, then the Spanish for to miss, then say la nostalgia again

Before you move on

What does la nostalgia mean? ("Nostalgia, homesickness".) Say it once more.

709.5 añorar — to long for, to yearn for

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to miss, then the Spanish for nostalgia.

You'll want to know: añorar

añorar — "to long for, to yearn for".

Añoro los veranos de mi infancia.

I long for the summers of my childhood.

A little literary; it takes a direct object: añoro mi casa.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

añorar was borrowed from Catalan enyorar, which comes from Latin ignōrāre "not to know" (EtymDB); the sense moved from not knowing where someone is to missing them.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: añorar
- Say it: añorar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with añorar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to miss, then the Spanish for nostalgia, then say añorar again

Before you move on

What does añorar mean? ("To long for, to yearn for".) Say it once more.

Chapter 710

Los nervios

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say that I am nervous or stressed and that I need to calm down.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 710: I can say that I am nervous or stressed and that I need to calm down.

710.1 los nervios — nerves

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for nostalgia, then the Spanish for to long for.

You'll want to know: los nervios

los nervios — "nerves".

> Antes del examen tengo nervios.
>
> I get nervous before the exam.

Tener nervios — to be nervous. ¡Qué nervios! — I am so nervous!

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

nervios is the plural of nervio, which comes from Latin nervus "sinew" (EtymDB); the sense nerve came later, as in English nerve.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: los nervios
- Say it: los nervios, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with los nervios
- Recall: say the Spanish for nostalgia, then the Spanish for to long for, then say los nervios again

Before you move on

What does los nervios mean? ("Nerves".) Say it once more.

710.2 el estrés — stress

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to long for, then the Spanish for nerves.

You'll want to know: el estrés

el estrés — "stress".

El trabajo me causa estrés.

Work causes me stress.

Estar estresado — to be stressed. Spanish adds an e- before s + consonant.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

estrés was borrowed from English stress, usually dated to the twentieth century; Spanish put an e- in front, as it does with esnob and escáner.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el estrés
- Say it: el estrés, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el estrés
- Recall: say the Spanish for to long for, then the Spanish for nerves, then say el estrés again

Before you move on

What does el estrés mean? (“Stress”.) Say it once more.

710.3 la ansiedad — anxiety

Before the new one: say the Spanish for nerves, then the Spanish for stress.

You’ll want to know: la ansiedad

la ansiedad — “anxiety”.

La ansiedad no me deja dormir.

Anxiety does not let me sleep.

Also eagerness: esperar con ansiedad.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ansiedad is a learned borrowing from Latin anxietās “anxiety” (EtymDB), built on anxius “troubled”; English anxious comes from the same Latin.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la ansiedad
- Say it: la ansiedad, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la ansiedad
- Recall: say the Spanish for nerves, then the Spanish for stress, then say la ansiedad again

Before you move on

What does la ansiedad mean? ("Anxiety".) Say it once more.

710.4 la tensión — tension; blood pressure

Before the new one: say the Spanish for stress, then the Spanish for anxiety.

You'll want to know: la tensión

la tensión — "tension; blood pressure".

Había mucha tensión en la reunión.

There was a lot of tension in the meeting.

Tomar la tensión — to take someone's blood pressure (Spain); in Latin America la presión.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

tensión is a learned borrowing from Latin tēnsiō "a stretching" (EtymDB), from tendere "to stretch".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la tensión
- Say it: la tensión, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la tensión
- Recall: say the Spanish for stress, then the Spanish for anxiety, then say la tensión again

Before you move on

What does la tensión mean? ("Tension; blood pressure".) Say it once more.

710.5 calmar — to calm, to soothe

Before the new one: say the Spanish for anxiety, then the Spanish for tension.

You'll want to know: calmar

calmar — "to calm, to soothe".

Esta música me calma.

This music calms me.

Calmarse — to calm down. ¡Cálmate! — Calm down!

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

calmar is built on calma, which comes from Late Latin cauma, from Greek kauma "burning heat" (EtymDB); at sea the hottest hours were the windless ones.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: calmar
- Say it: calmar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with calmar
- Recall: say the Spanish for anxiety, then the Spanish for tension, then say calmar again

Before you move on

What does calmar mean? (“To calm, to soothe”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 711

Emociones fuertes

Modes: voice (6) Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe an exciting moment and the feelings it gave me.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 711: I can describe an exciting moment and the feelings it gave me.

711.1 la emoción — emotion; excitement

Before the new one: say the Spanish for tension, then the Spanish for to calm.

You'll want to know: la emoción

la emoción — "emotion; excitement".

¡Qué emoción! Mañana nos vamos.

How exciting! We leave tomorrow.

¡Qué emoción! — How exciting!

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

emoción was borrowed from French émotion (EtymDB), which goes back to Latin ēmovēre "to stir up", from movēre "to move".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la emoción
- Say it: la emoción, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la emoción
- Recall: say the Spanish for tension, then the Spanish for to calm, then say la emoción again

Before you move on

What does la emoción mean? ("Emotion; excitement".) Say it once more.

711.2 emocionado — excited; moved

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to calm, then the Spanish for emotion.

You'll want to know: emocionado

emocionado — "excited; moved".

Estoy muy emocionado por el viaje.

I am very excited about the trip.

Used with estar. It covers both excited and touched.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

emocionado is the participle of emocionar, built on emoción, which was borrowed from French émotion (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: emocionado
- Say it: emocionado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with emocionado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to calm, then the Spanish for emotion, then say emocionado again

Before you move on

What does emocionado mean? ("Excited; moved".) Say it once more.

711.3 emocionante — exciting; moving

Before the new one: say the Spanish for emotion, then the Spanish for excited.

You'll want to know: emocionante

emocionante — "exciting; moving".

Fue un partido emocionante.

It was an exciting match.

Emocionante describes the thing; emocionado describes the person.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

emocionante is built on emocionar with the ending -ante; the verb is made from emoción, borrowed from French émotion (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: emocionante
- Say it: emocionante, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with emocionante
- Recall: say the Spanish for emotion, then the Spanish for excited, then say emocionante again

Before you move on

What does emocionante mean? ("Exciting; moving".) Say it once more.

711.4 emotivo — moving, emotional

Before the new one: say the Spanish for excited, then the Spanish for exciting.

You'll want to know: emotivo

emotivo — "moving, emotional".

Fue una boda muy emotiva.

It was a very moving wedding.

Emotivo describes the moment; emocionado describes the person.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

emotivo is usually explained as a learned word built on Latin ēmōtus "stirred up", the participle of ēmovēre, from movēre "to move".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: emotivo
- Say it: emotivo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with emotivo
- Recall: say the Spanish for excited, then the Spanish for exciting, then say emotivo again

Before you move on

What does emotivo mean? ("Moving, emotional".) Say it once more.

711.5 conmover — to move, to touch (emotionally)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for exciting, then the Spanish for moving.

You'll want to know: conmover

conmover — "to move, to touch (emotionally)".

Su historia me conmovió.

Her story moved me.

Stem change: conmueve. Conmovido — moved, touched.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

conmover is inherited from Latin commovēre "to stir deeply" (EtymDB), built on movēre "to move".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: conmover
- Say it: conmover, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with conmover
- Recall: say the Spanish for exciting, then the Spanish for moving, then say conmover again

Before you move on

What does conmover mean? ("To move, to touch (emotionally)".) Say it once more.

711.6 Sentimientos y experiencias

Say the Spanish for joy and melancholy.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- joy, melancholy, happiness, to be moved, to cry
- pride, proud, shame, ashamed, to be ashamed
- to frighten, frightened, the fright, panic, to fear
- angry, cross, rage, anger, to annoy
- jealousy, jealous, envy, to envy, resentment
- isolation, lonely, to miss, nostalgia, to long for
- nerves, stress, anxiety, tension, to calm
- emotion, excited, exciting, moving, to move

Before you move on

Joy? (la alegría.) Melancholy? (la melancolía.) Happiness? (la dicha.) To be moved? (emocionarse.) To cry? (llorar.) Pride? (el orgullo.) Proud? (orgulloso.) Shame? (la vergüenza.) Ashamed? (avergonzado.) To be ashamed? (avergonzarse.) To frighten? (asustar.) Frightened? (asustado.) The fright? (el susto.) Panic? (el pánico.) To fear? (temer.) Angry? (enfadado.) Cross? (enojado.) Rage? (la rabia.) Anger? (la ira.) To annoy? (fastidiar.) Jealousy? (los celos.) Jealous? (celoso.) Envy? (la envidia.) To envy? (envidiar.) Resentment? (el rencor.) Isolation? (el aislamiento.) Lonely? (solitario.) To miss? (extrañar.) Nostalgia? (la nostalgia.) To long for? (añorar.) Nerves? (los nervios.) Stress? (el estrés.) Anxiety? (la ansiedad.) Tension? (la tensión.) To calm? (calmar.) Emotion? (la emoción.) Excited? (emocionado.) Exciting? (emocionante.) Moving? (emotivo.) To move? (conmover.)

Chapter 712

Mi estado de ánimo

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe my mood and cheer up a friend who is down.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 712: I can describe my mood and cheer up a friend who is down.

712.1 la sensación — the sensation, the feeling

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for moving, then the Spanish for to move.

You'll want to know: la sensación

la sensación — "the sensation, the feeling".

> Tengo la sensación de que va a llover.
>
> I have a feeling it is going to rain.

Tengo la sensación de que... — I have the feeling that...

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sensación is usually described as a learned borrowing from Medieval Latin sēnsātiō, built on sēnsus "feeling", from sentīre "to feel".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la sensación
- Say it: la sensación, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la sensación
- Recall: say the Spanish for moving, then the Spanish for to move, then say la sensación again

Before you move on

What does la sensación mean? ("The sensation, the feeling".) Say it once more.

712.2 el ánimo — mood, spirits; courage

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to move, then the Spanish for the sensation.

You'll want to know: el ánimo

el ánimo — "mood, spirits; courage".

¡Ánimo! Tú puedes.

Come on! You can do it.

¡Ánimo! is what you shout to encourage someone. Estado de ánimo — mood.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ánimo is a learned borrowing from Latin animus "spirit, mind" (EtymDB); English unanimous, of one mind, is built on it.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el ánimo
- Say it: el ánimo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el ánimo
- Recall: say the Spanish for to move, then the Spanish for the sensation, then say el ánimo again

Before you move on

What does el ánimo mean? ("Mood, spirits; courage".) Say it once more.

712.3 desanimado — discouraged, down

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the sensation, then the Spanish for mood.

You'll want to know: desanimado

desanimado — "discouraged, down".

Está desanimado porque no encuentra trabajo.

He is down because he cannot find work.

Used with estar. The opposite is animado.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

desanimado is built on animado with the prefix des-; animar comes from Latin animāre "to give life", from anima "breath, soul" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: desanimado
- Say it: desanimado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with desanimado
- Recall: say the Spanish for the sensation, then the Spanish for mood, then say desanimado again

Before you move on

What does desanimado mean? ("Discouraged, down".) Say it once more.

712.4 animar — to cheer up, to encourage

Before the new one: say the Spanish for mood, then the Spanish for discouraged.

You'll want to know: animar

animar — "to cheer up, to encourage".

Mis amigos me animan a seguir.

My friends encourage me to keep going.

Animar a alguien a + infinitive. Animarse — to cheer up, to decide to do something.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

animar is inherited from Latin animāre "to fill with breath, to give life" (EtymDB), from anima "breath, soul".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: animar
- Say it: animar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with animar
- Recall: say the Spanish for mood, then the Spanish for discouraged, then say animar again

Before you move on

What does animar mean? ("To cheer up, to encourage".) Say it once more.

712.5 el alivio — relief

Before the new one: say the Spanish for discouraged, then the Spanish for to cheer up.

You'll want to know: el alivio

el alivio — "relief".

¡Qué alivio! Ya llegaste.

What a relief! You are here.

¡Qué alivio! — What a relief!

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

alivio is built on aliviar, which comes from Latin allevāre or alleviāre "to lighten" (EtymDB), from levis "light".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el alivio
- Say it: el alivio, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el alivio
- Recall: say the Spanish for discouraged, then the Spanish for to cheer up, then say el alivio again

Before you move on

What does el alivio mean? (“Relief”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 713

Pasarlo bien

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say whether something was fun, funny or boring.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 713: I can say whether something was fun, funny or boring.

713.1 la diversión — fun, entertainment

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to cheer up, then the Spanish for relief.

You'll want to know: la diversión

la diversión — "fun, entertainment".

> Para los niños, la playa es pura diversión.
>
> For children, the beach is pure fun.

¡Qué diversión! — What fun!

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

diversión is built on divertir, from Latin dīvertere "to turn aside" (EtymDB), from vertere "to turn": fun is what turns you away from your cares.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la diversión
- Say it: la diversión, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la diversión
- Recall: say the Spanish for to cheer up, then the Spanish for relief, then say la diversión again

Before you move on

What does la diversión mean? ("Fun, entertainment".) Say it once more.

713.2 divertido — entertaining, fun

Before the new one: say the Spanish for relief, then the Spanish for fun.

You'll want to know: divertido

divertido — "entertaining, fun".

La fiesta fue muy divertida.

The party was a lot of fun.

With ser it means fun; divertirse is to have a good time.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

divertido is the participle of divertir, which comes from Latin dīvertere "to turn aside" (EtymDB), built on vertere "to turn".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: divertido
- Say it: divertido, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with divertido
- Recall: say the Spanish for relief, then the Spanish for fun, then say divertido again

Before you move on

What does divertido mean? ("Entertaining, fun".) Say it once more.

713.3 gracioso — funny, amusing

Before the new one: say the Spanish for fun, then the Spanish for entertaining.

You'll want to know: gracioso

gracioso — "funny, amusing".

Tu hermano es muy gracioso.

Your brother is very funny.

Gracioso is funny in a pleasant way; chistoso is close.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

gracioso was borrowed from Latin grātiōsus "agreeable, popular" (EtymDB), built on grātia "favour, charm", the source of gracia.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: gracioso
- Say it: gracioso, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with gracioso
- Recall: say the Spanish for fun, then the Spanish for entertaining, then say gracioso again

Before you move on

What does gracioso mean? ("Funny, amusing".) Say it once more.

713.4 aburrirse — to get bored

Before the new one: say the Spanish for entertaining, then the Spanish for funny.

You'll want to know: aburrirse

aburrirse — "to get bored".

Me aburro en las reuniones largas.

I get bored in long meetings.

Reflexive: me aburro. Aburrir without se is to bore someone.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

aburrirse is inherited from Latin abhorrēre "to shrink from in horror", through a spoken form abhorrīre (EtymDB); English abhor is the same word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: aburrirse
- Say it: aburrirse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with aburrirse
- Recall: say the Spanish for entertaining, then the Spanish for funny, then say aburrirse again

Before you move on

What does aburrirse mean? ("To get bored".) Say it once more.

713.5 el aburrimiento — boredom

Before the new one: say the Spanish for funny, then the Spanish for to get bored.

You'll want to know: el aburrimiento

el aburrimiento — "boredom".

¡Qué aburrimiento de película!

What a boring film!

¡Qué aburrimiento! — How boring!

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

aburrimiento is built on aburrir with the ending -miento (EtymDB); the verb comes from Latin abhorrēre "to shrink from".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el aburrimiento
- Say it: el aburrimiento, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el aburrimiento
- Recall: say the Spanish for funny, then the Spanish for to get bored, then say el aburrimiento again

Before you move on

What does el aburrimiento mean? ("Boredom".) Say it once more.

Chapter 714

Cariño y ternura

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can show affection and talk about tenderness in a family.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 714: I can show affection and talk about tenderness in a family.

714.1 el cariño — affection; darling

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to get bored, then the Spanish for boredom.

You'll want to know: el cariño

el cariño — "affection; darling".

> Le tengo mucho cariño a mi abuela.
>
> I am very fond of my grandmother.

Tener cariño a alguien — to be fond of someone. Cariño is also a pet name: darling.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cariño was borrowed from Galician-Portuguese cariño (EtymDB). Further back the origin is not settled; it is often linked to Latin carēre "to lack", as longing for someone absent.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el cariño
- Say it: el cariño, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el cariño
- Recall: say the Spanish for to get bored, then the Spanish for boredom, then say el cariño again

Before you move on

What does el cariño mean? ("Affection; darling".) Say it once more.

714.2 cariñoso — affectionate, loving

Before the new one: say the Spanish for boredom, then the Spanish for affection.

You'll want to know: cariñoso

cariñoso — "affectionate, loving".

Mi perro es muy cariñoso.

My dog is very affectionate.

Used with ser for character, with estar for how someone is acting now.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cariñoso is built on cariño "affection" with the ending -oso; cariño was borrowed from Galician-Portuguese (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: cariñoso
- Say it: cariñoso, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with cariñoso
- Recall: say the Spanish for boredom, then the Spanish for affection, then say cariñoso again

Before you move on

What does cariñoso mean? ("Affectionate, loving".) Say it once more.

714.3 la ternura — tenderness

Before the new one: say the Spanish for affection, then the Spanish for affectionate.

You'll want to know: la ternura

la ternura — "tenderness".

Mira a su hijo con ternura.

She looks at her son with tenderness.

Me da ternura — it melts my heart.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ternura is built on tierno "tender" with the ending -ura; tierno is inherited from Latin tener "soft, delicate" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la ternura
- Say it: la ternura, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la ternura
- Recall: say the Spanish for affection, then the Spanish for affectionate, then say la ternura again

Before you move on

What does la ternura mean? ("Tenderness".) Say it once more.

714.4 tierno — tender, soft; sweet

Before the new one: say the Spanish for affectionate, then the Spanish for tenderness.

You'll want to know: tierno

tierno — "tender, soft; sweet".

La carne está muy tierna.

The meat is very tender.

Used for food (tender) and for people (sweet, gentle).

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

tierno is inherited from Latin tener, tenerum "soft, delicate" (EtymDB); the stressed e became ie, as in tiempo.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: tierno
- Say it: tierno, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with tierno
- Recall: say the Spanish for affectionate, then the Spanish for tenderness, then say tierno again

Before you move on

What does tierno mean? ("Tender, soft; sweet".) Say it once more.

714.5 adorar — to adore, to worship

Before the new one: say the Spanish for tenderness, then the Spanish for tender.

You'll want to know: adorar

adorar — "to adore, to worship".

Adoro el chocolate.

I adore chocolate.

Stronger than encantar; it also means to worship.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

adorar was borrowed from Latin adōrāre "to address, to pray to" (EtymDB), built on ad "to" and ōrāre "to speak, to pray".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: adorar
- Say it: adorar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with adorar
- Recall: say the Spanish for tenderness, then the Spanish for tender, then say adorar again

Before you move on

What does adorar mean? ("To adore, to worship".) Say it once more.

Chapter 715

Amar y detestar

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about love, passion and loathing in a story or a song.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 715: I can talk about love, passion and loathing in a story or a song.

715.1 amar — to love

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for tender, then the Spanish for to adore.

You'll want to know: amar

amar — "to love".

> Te amo con todo mi corazón.
>
> I love you with all my heart.

Deep, romantic love; with friends and family people usually say te quiero.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

amar is inherited from Latin amāre "to love" (EtymDB); English amateur, one who does something for love, comes from it through French.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: amar
- Say it: amar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with amar
- Recall: say the Spanish for tender, then the Spanish for to adore, then say amar again

Before you move on

What does amar mean? ("To love".) Say it once more.

715.2 detestar — to detest, to loathe

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to adore, then the Spanish for to love.

You'll want to know: detestar

detestar — "to detest, to loathe".

Detesto las mentiras.

I loathe lies.

Close to odiar, and a little more formal. It takes a direct object: detesto el frío.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

detestar is a learned borrowing from Latin dētestārī "to curse, to call the gods to witness against", built on testis "witness".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: detestar
- Say it: detestar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with detestar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to adore, then the Spanish for to love, then say detestar again

Before you move on

What does detestar mean? ("To detest, to loathe".) Say it once more.

715.3 enamorado — in love

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to love, then the Spanish for to detest.

You'll want to know: enamorado

enamorado — "in love".

Están muy enamorados.

They are very much in love.

Estar enamorado de alguien — to be in love with someone.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

enamorado is built on enamorar "to make fall in love", from en- and amor "love" (EtymDB); amor comes from Latin amor.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: enamorado
- Say it: enamorado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with enamorado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to love, then the Spanish for to detest, then say enamorado again

Before you move on

What does enamorado mean? ("In love".) Say it once more.

715.4 besar — to kiss

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to detest, then the Spanish for in love.

You'll want to know: besar

besar — "to kiss".

Me besó en la cara.

She kissed me on the face.

Un beso is a kiss; besos closes many messages.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

besar is usually traced to Latin bāsiāre "to kiss" (Lewis & Short), built on bāsium "a kiss"; the Latin -si- became -s-.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: besar
- Say it: besar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with besar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to detest, then the Spanish for in love, then say besar again

Before you move on

What does besar mean? ("To kiss".) Say it once more.

715.5 la pasión — passion

Before the new one: say the Spanish for in love, then the Spanish for to kiss.

You'll want to know: la pasión

la pasión — "passion".

Baila con pasión.

She dances with passion.

Tener pasión por algo — to be passionate about something.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

pasión is a learned borrowing from Latin passiō "suffering" (EtymDB), built on patī "to suffer"; strong feeling was something you suffered.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la pasión
- Say it: la pasión, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la pasión
- Recall: say the Spanish for in love, then the Spanish for to kiss, then say la pasión again

Before you move on

What does la pasión mean? ("Passion".) Say it once more.

Chapter 716

Malas noticias

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

By the end of this chapter: I can react to bad news, show pity and comfort someone who is disappointed.

Complete the last lesson of chapter 716: I can react to bad news, show pity and comfort someone who is disappointed.

716.1 la lástima — pity, shame

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to kiss, then the Spanish for passion.

You'll want to know: la lástima

la lástima — "pity, shame".

¡Qué lástima que no vengas!

What a shame you are not coming!

¡Qué lástima! — What a pity! Qué lástima que takes the subjunctive.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

lástima is built on lastimar "to hurt", which comes from a spoken Latin blastemāre, Latin blasphēmāre "to insult", from Greek blasphēmía (EtymDB). The sense moved from insulting to hurting to pity.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la lástima
- Say it: la lástima, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la lástima
- Recall: say the Spanish for to kiss, then the Spanish for passion, then say la lástima again

Before you move on

What does la lástima mean? ("Pity, shame".) Say it once more.

716.2 consolar — to console, to comfort

Before the new one: say the Spanish for passion, then the Spanish for pity.

You'll want to know: consolar

consolar — "to console, to comfort".

Consolé a mi amiga después del examen.

I comforted my friend after the exam.

Stem change: consuelo, consuelas.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

consolar is inherited from Latin cōnsōlārī "to console, to offer comfort" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: consolar
- Say it: consolar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with consolar
- Recall: say the Spanish for passion, then the Spanish for pity, then say consolar again

Before you move on

What does consolar mean? ("To console, to comfort".) Say it once more.

716.3 lamentar — to regret, to be sorry about

Before the new one: say the Spanish for pity, then the Spanish for to console.

You'll want to know: lamentar

lamentar — "to regret, to be sorry about".

Lamento llegar tarde.

I am sorry I am late.

Formal: lamentamos las molestias — we apologise for the inconvenience.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

lamentar comes from Latin lāmentārī, built on lāmentum "wail, wailing" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: lamentar
- Say it: lamentar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with lamentar
- Recall: say the Spanish for pity, then the Spanish for to console, then say lamentar again

Before you move on

What does lamentar mean? ("To regret, to be sorry about".) Say it once more.

716.4 decepcionado — disappointed

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to console, then the Spanish for to regret.

You'll want to know: decepcionado

decepcionado — "disappointed".

Estoy decepcionado con el hotel.

I am disappointed with the hotel.

A false friend: it means disappointed, not deceived.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

decepcionado is built on decepción, a learned borrowing from Latin dēceptiō "deceit", from dēcipere "to trick"; the modern sense of disappointment probably came through French déception.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: decepcionado
- Say it: decepcionado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with decepcionado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to console, then the Spanish for to regret, then say decepcionado again

Before you move on

What does decepcionado mean? ("Disappointed".) Say it once more.

716.5 la decepción — disappointment

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to regret, then the Spanish for disappointed.

You'll want to know: la decepción

la decepción — "disappointment".

La película fue una decepción.

The film was a disappointment.

A false friend: it means disappointment, not deception.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

decepción is a learned borrowing from Latin dēceptiō "deceit", from dēcipere "to catch out", built on capere "to take"; it probably took the sense of disappointment from French déception.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la decepción
- Say it: la decepción, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la decepción
- Recall: say the Spanish for to regret, then the Spanish for disappointed, then say la decepción again

Before you move on

What does la decepción mean? (“Disappointment”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 717

Días difíciles

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about a hard time, sadness and letting off steam.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 717: I can talk about a hard time, sadness and letting off steam.

717.1 deprimido — depressed, low

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for disappointed, then the Spanish for disappointment.

You'll want to know: deprimido

deprimido — "depressed, low".

> Desde que perdió el trabajo está deprimido.
>
> Since he lost his job he has been depressed.

Used with estar. For the illness, say tener depresión.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

deprimido is the participle of deprimir, which comes from Latin dēprimere "to press down" (EtymDB), a learned word built on premere "to press".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: deprimido
- Say it: deprimido, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with deprimido
- Recall: say the Spanish for disappointed, then the Spanish for disappointment, then say deprimido again

Before you move on

What does deprimido mean? ("Depressed, low".) Say it once more.

717.2 desahogarse — to let off steam, to pour one's heart out

Before the new one: say the Spanish for disappointment, then the Spanish for depressed.

You'll want to know: desahogarse

desahogarse — "to let off steam, to pour one's heart out".

Necesito hablar contigo para desahogarme.

I need to talk to you to get it off my chest.

Desahogarse con alguien — to open up to someone. El desahogo is the relief it brings.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

desahogarse is built on ahogar "to choke, to drown" with the prefix des-: to stop choking. Ahogar comes from spoken Latin affōcāre, Latin offōcāre "to choke" (EtymDB), from faucēs "throat".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: desahogarse
- Say it: desahogarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with desahogarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for disappointment, then the Spanish for depressed, then say desahogarse again

Before you move on

What does desahogarse mean? ("To let off steam, to pour one's heart out".) Say it once more.

717.3 el sufrimiento — suffering

Before the new one: say the Spanish for depressed, then the Spanish for to let off steam.

You'll want to know: el sufrimiento

el sufrimiento — "suffering".

La guerra causa mucho sufrimiento.

War causes a lot of suffering.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sufrimiento is built on sufrir with the ending -miento; sufrir is usually traced to Latin sufferre "to bear up under".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el sufrimiento
- Say it: el sufrimiento, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el sufrimiento
- Recall: say the Spanish for depressed, then the Spanish for to let off steam, then say el sufrimiento again

Before you move on

What does el sufrimiento mean? ("Suffering".) Say it once more.

717.4 la lágrima — the tear (from the eye)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to let off steam, then the Spanish for suffering.

You'll want to know: la lágrima

la lágrima — "the tear (from the eye)".

Tenía lágrimas en los ojos.

She had tears in her eyes.

Llorar a lágrima viva — to cry your eyes out.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

lágrima comes from Old Spanish lagrima (EtymDB), from Latin lacrima "tear".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la lágrima
- Say it: la lágrima, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la lágrima
- Recall: say the Spanish for to let off steam, then the Spanish for suffering, then say la lágrima again

Before you move on

What does la lágrima mean? ("The tear (from the eye)".) Say it once more.

717.5 desesperado — desperate

Before the new one: say the Spanish for suffering, then the Spanish for the tear.

You'll want to know: desesperado

desesperado — "desperate".

Estaba desesperado por encontrar piso.

He was desperate to find a flat.

Estar desesperado por + infinitive.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

desesperado is built on desesperar "to despair", which EtymDB traces to Latin dēspērāre "to lose hope", from spērāre "to hope".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: desesperado
- Say it: desesperado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with desesperado
- Recall: say the Spanish for suffering, then the Spanish for the tear, then say desesperado again

Before you move on

What does desesperado mean? (“Desperate”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 718

Guiños y bromas

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about winking, joking and teasing among friends.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 718: I can talk about winking, joking and teasing among friends.

718.1 guiñar — to wink

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the tear, then the Spanish for desperate.

You'll want to know: guiñar

guiñar — "to wink".

> Me guiñó un ojo y sonreí.
>
> He winked at me and I smiled.

Guiñar un ojo — to wink. Un guiño — a wink.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

For guiñar the origin is not settled; a Germanic source has been suggested, and some see an imitative word, but none is proved.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: guiñar
- Say it: guiñar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with guiñar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the tear, then the Spanish for desperate, then say guiñar again

Before you move on

What does guiñar mean? ("To wink".) Say it once more.

718.2 bromista — joker; fond of jokes

Before the new one: say the Spanish for desperate, then the Spanish for to wink.

You'll want to know: bromista

bromista — "joker; fond of jokes".

Mi tío es muy bromista.

My uncle loves a joke.

Same form for men and women: es una bromista.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

bromista is built on broma "joke" with the ending -ista; broma comes from Greek brôma "food" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: bromista
- Say it: bromista, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with bromista
- Recall: say the Spanish for desperate, then the Spanish for to wink, then say bromista again

Before you move on

What does bromista mean? ("Joker; fond of jokes".) Say it once more.

718.3 la broma — the joke, the prank

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to wink, then the Spanish for joker.

You'll want to know: la broma

la broma — "the joke, the prank".

Era una broma, no te enfades.

It was a joke, do not be angry.

Gastar una broma — to play a joke. En broma — jokingly.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

broma comes from Greek brôma "food" (EtymDB), through Latin. It first named the shipworm that eats ship timber, then any nuisance, and at last a joke.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la broma
- Say it: la broma, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la broma
- Recall: say the Spanish for to wink, then the Spanish for joker, then say la broma again

Before you move on

What does la broma mean? ("The joke, the prank".) Say it once more.

718.4 bromear — to joke

Before the new one: say the Spanish for joker, then the Spanish for the joke.

You'll want to know: bromear

bromear — "to joke".

No te preocupes, estoy bromeando.

Do not worry, I am joking.

Estar bromeando — to be joking.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

bromear is built on broma "joke" with the verb ending -ear; broma comes from Greek brôma "food" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: bromear
- Say it: bromear, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with bromear
- Recall: say the Spanish for joker, then the Spanish for the joke, then say bromear again

Before you move on

What does bromear mean? ("To joke".) Say it once more.

718.5 burlarse — to make fun of

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the joke, then the Spanish for to joke.

You'll want to know: burlarse

burlarse — "to make fun of".

No te burles de tu hermano.

Do not make fun of your brother.

Burlarse de alguien. Less kind than bromear.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

burlarse is built on burla "mockery". For burla the origin is not settled; one old guess links it with Latin burrae "trifles".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: burlarse
- Say it: burlarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with burlarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for the joke, then the Spanish for to joke, then say burlarse again

Before you move on

What does burlarse mean? ("To make fun of".) Say it once more.

Chapter 719

Dudas y preocupaciones

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what I doubt, what worries me and what I cannot stand.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 719: I can say what I doubt, what worries me and what I cannot stand.

719.1 la angustia — anguish, distress

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to joke, then the Spanish for to make fun of.

You'll want to know: la angustia

la angustia — "anguish, distress".

> Sentí angustia al no tener noticias.
>
> I felt anguish at having no news.

Me da angustia — it makes me anxious.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

angustia is a learned borrowing from Latin angustia "narrowness, difficulty, distress" (EtymDB), built on angustus "narrow": distress is a tightness in the chest.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la angustia
- Say it: la angustia, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la angustia
- Recall: say the Spanish for to joke, then the Spanish for to make fun of, then say la angustia again

Before you move on

What does la angustia mean? ("Anguish, distress".) Say it once more.

719.2 soportar — to bear, to put up with

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to make fun of, then the Spanish for anguish.

You'll want to know: soportar

soportar — "to bear, to put up with".

No soporto el ruido.

I cannot stand the noise.

No soporto a mi vecino — I cannot stand my neighbour. A false friend: to support is apoyar.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

soportar comes from Latin supportāre "to carry, to convey" (EtymDB; Lewis & Short), built on sub "under" and portāre "to carry".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: soportar
- Say it: soportar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with soportar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to make fun of, then the Spanish for anguish, then say soportar again

Before you move on

What does soportar mean? ("To bear, to put up with".) Say it once more.

719.3 dudar — to doubt

Before the new one: say the Spanish for anguish, then the Spanish for to bear.

You'll want to know: dudar

dudar — "to doubt".

Dudo que venga hoy.

I doubt he will come today.

Dudar que takes the subjunctive. La duda is a doubt.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

dudar is inherited from Latin dubitāre "to waver, to doubt" (EtymDB); the middle -bit- wore away.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: dudar
- Say it: dudar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with dudar
- Recall: say the Spanish for anguish, then the Spanish for to bear, then say dudar again

Before you move on

What does dudar mean? ("To doubt".) Say it once more.

719.4 la preocupación — worry, concern

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to bear, then the Spanish for to doubt.

You'll want to know: la preocupación

la preocupación — "worry, concern".

Mi mayor preocupación es la salud.

My biggest worry is health.

The verb preocuparse is to worry.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

preocupación is a learned borrowing from Latin praeoccupātiō "a seizing beforehand" (EtymDB); a worry takes hold of the mind before anything else can.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la preocupación
- Say it: la preocupación, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la preocupación
- Recall: say the Spanish for to bear, then the Spanish for to doubt, then say la preocupación again

Before you move on

What does la preocupación mean? (“Worry, concern”.) Say it once more.

719.5 preocupado — worried

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to doubt, then the Spanish for worry.

You’ll want to know: preocupado

preocupado — “worried”.

Estoy preocupado por mi padre.

I am worried about my father.

Used with estar: estar preocupado por.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

preocupado is the participle of preocupar, a learned borrowing from Latin praeoccupāre “to seize beforehand” (EtymDB), built on occupāre “to seize”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: preocupado
- Say it: preocupado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with preocupado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to doubt, then the Spanish for worry, then say preocupado again

Before you move on

What does preocupado mean? ("Worried".) Say it once more.

719.6 Repaso de los capítulos 712–719

Say the Spanish for the sensation and mood.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the sensation, mood, discouraged, to cheer up, relief
- fun, entertaining, funny, to get bored, boredom
- affection, affectionate, tenderness, tender, to adore
- to love, to detest, in love, to kiss, passion
- pity, to console, to regret, disappointed, disappointment
- depressed, to let off steam, suffering, the tear, desperate
- to wink, joker, the joke, to joke, to make fun of
- anguish, to bear, to doubt, worry, worried

Before you move on

The sensation? (la sensación.) Mood? (el ánimo.) Discouraged? (desanimado.) To cheer up? (animar.) Relief? (el alivio.) Fun? (la diversión.) Entertaining? (divertido.) Funny? (gracioso.) To get bored? (aburrirse.) Boredom? (el aburrimiento.) Affection? (el cariño.) Affectionate? (cariñoso.) Tenderness? (la ternura.) Tender? (tierno.) To adore? (adorar.) To love? (amar.) To detest? (detestar.) In love? (enamorado.) To kiss? (besar.) Passion? (la pasión.) Pity? (la lástima.) To console? (consolar.) To regret? (lamentar.) Disappointed? (decepcionado.) Disappointment? (la decepción.) Depressed? (deprimido.) To let off steam? (desahogarse.) Suffering? (el sufrimiento.) The tear? (la lágrima.) Desperate? (desesperado.) To wink? (guiñar.) Joker? (bromista.) The joke? (la broma.) To joke? (bromear.) To make fun of? (burlarse.) Anguish? (la angustia.) To bear? (soportar.) To doubt? (dudar.) Worry? (la preocupación.) Worried? (preocupado.)

Chapter 720

Admirar y agradecer

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say whom I admire and thank someone warmly.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 720: I can say whom I admire and thank someone warmly.

720.1 la admiración — admiration

Before the new one: say the Spanish for worry, then the Spanish for worried.

You'll want to know: la admiración

la admiración — "admiration".

> Siento admiración por los médicos.
>
> I feel admiration for doctors.

Signo de admiración — exclamation mark.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

admiración is a learned borrowing from Latin admīrātiō (EtymDB), built on admīrārī "to wonder at", from mīrārī "to marvel".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la admiración
- Say it: la admiración, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la admiración
- Recall: say the Spanish for worry, then the Spanish for worried, then say la admiración again

Before you move on

What does la admiración mean? ("Admiration".) Say it once more.

720.2 admirar — to admire

Before the new one: say the Spanish for worried, then the Spanish for admiration.

You'll want to know: admirar

admirar — "to admire".

Admiro mucho a mi profesora.

I really admire my teacher.

Takes personal a with people: admiro a mi madre.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

admirar is a learned borrowing from Latin admīrārī "to wonder at" (EtymDB); mirar "to look" is the inherited form of mīrārī.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: admirar
- Say it: admirar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with admirar
- Recall: say the Spanish for worried, then the Spanish for admiration, then say admirar again

Before you move on

What does admirar mean? (“To admire”.) Say it once more.

720.3 agradecido — grateful

Before the new one: say the Spanish for admiration, then the Spanish for to admire.

You’ll want to know: agradecido

agradecido — “grateful”.

Te estoy muy agradecido.

I am very grateful to you.

Estar agradecido por algo. Muy agradecido — much obliged.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

agradecido is the participle of agradecer, built on old gradecer, from grado “goodwill”, which is usually traced to Latin grātum “pleasing”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: agradecido
- Say it: agradecido, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with agradecido
- Recall: say the Spanish for admiration, then the Spanish for to admire, then say agradecido again

Before you move on

What does agradecido mean? ("Grateful".) Say it once more.

720.4 la gratitud — gratitude

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to admire, then the Spanish for grateful.

You'll want to know: la gratitud

la gratitud — "gratitude".

Quiero expresar mi gratitud a todos.

I want to express my gratitude to everyone.

More formal than el agradecimiento.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

gratitud is a learned borrowing from Latin grātitūdō (EtymDB), built on grātus "thankful, pleasing".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la gratitud
- Say it: la gratitud, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la gratitud
- Recall: say the Spanish for to admire, then the Spanish for grateful, then say la gratitud again

Before you move on

What does la gratitud mean? ("Gratitude".) Say it once more.

720.5 apreciar — to appreciate, to value

Before the new one: say the Spanish for grateful, then the Spanish for gratitude.

You'll want to know: apreciar

apreciar — "to appreciate, to value".

Aprecio mucho tu ayuda.

I really appreciate your help.

Aprecio a mis compañeros — I am fond of my colleagues.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

apreciar is a learned borrowing from Late Latin appretiāre "to put a price on" (EtymDB), built on pretium "price", the source of precio.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: apreciar
- Say it: apreciar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with apreciar
- Recall: say the Spanish for grateful, then the Spanish for gratitude, then say apreciar again

Before you move on

What does apreciar mean? ("To appreciate, to value".) Say it once more.

Chapter 721

Rasgos de personalidad

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe someone's character, their strong points and their faults.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 721: I can describe someone's character, their strong points and their faults.

721.1 el rasgo — the trait, the feature

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for gratitude, then the Spanish for to appreciate.

You'll want to know: el rasgo

el rasgo — "the trait, the feature".

> La paciencia es su mejor rasgo.
>
> Patience is her best trait.

Los rasgos are also facial features: rasgos finos.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

rasgo is built on rasgar "to tear", which is usually traced to Latin resecāre "to cut off", from secāre "to cut". A rasgo was first a stroke of the pen, then a feature.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el rasgo
- Say it: el rasgo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el rasgo
- Recall: say the Spanish for gratitude, then the Spanish for to appreciate, then say el rasgo again

Before you move on

What does el rasgo mean? ("The trait, the feature".) Say it once more.

721.2 la personalidad — personality

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to appreciate, then the Spanish for the trait.

You'll want to know: la personalidad

la personalidad — "personality".

Tiene una personalidad muy fuerte.

She has a very strong personality.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

personalidad is a learned borrowing from Late Latin persōnālitās (EtymDB), built on persōna "an actor's mask, a role", the source of persona.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la personalidad
- Say it: la personalidad, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la personalidad
- Recall: say the Spanish for to appreciate, then the Spanish for the trait, then say la personalidad again

Before you move on

What does la personalidad mean? ("Personality".) Say it once more.

721.3 el temperamento — temperament

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the trait, then the Spanish for personality.

You'll want to know: el temperamento

el temperamento — "temperament".

Es un niño de temperamento tranquilo.

He is a child with a calm temperament.

Tener temperamento — to be fiery.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

temperamento is a learned borrowing from Latin temperāmentum "a due mixture" (EtymDB), from temperāre "to mix in proportion"; old medicine saw character as a mix of body fluids.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el temperamento
- Say it: el temperamento, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el temperamento
- Recall: say the Spanish for the trait, then the Spanish for personality, then say el temperamento again

Before you move on

What does el temperamento mean? ("Temperament".) Say it once more.

721.4 el defecto — the fault, the flaw

Before the new one: say the Spanish for personality, then the Spanish for temperament.

You'll want to know: el defecto

el defecto — "the fault, the flaw".

Su mayor defecto es la impaciencia.

His biggest fault is impatience.

The opposite is la virtud or la cualidad.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

defecto is a learned borrowing from Latin dēfectus "failure, lack" (EtymDB), from dēficere "to fail", built on dē- and facere "to do".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el defecto
- Say it: el defecto, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el defecto
- Recall: say the Spanish for personality, then the Spanish for temperament, then say el defecto again

Before you move on

What does el defecto mean? ("The fault, the flaw".) Say it once more.

721.5 valorar — to value, to appreciate

Before the new one: say the Spanish for temperament, then the Spanish for the fault.

You'll want to know: valorar

valorar — "to value, to appreciate".

Valoro mucho a mis amigos.

I really value my friends.

Also to assess: valorar los daños.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

valorar is built on valor "worth", which comes from Late Latin valor, from valēre "to be strong, to be worth" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: valorar
- Say it: valorar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with valorar
- Recall: say the Spanish for temperament, then the Spanish for the fault, then say valorar again

Before you move on

What does valorar mean? (“To value, to appreciate”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 722

Valientes y cobardes

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about courage, fear and daring to do something.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 722: I can talk about courage, fear and daring to do something.

722.1 el valor — courage; value

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the fault, then the Spanish for to value.

You'll want to know: el valor

el valor — "courage; value".

> Hace falta valor para decir la verdad.
>
> It takes courage to tell the truth.

Two senses: courage and value (el valor de una casa).

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

valor comes from Late Latin valor, valōrem (EtymDB), from valēre "to be strong, to be worth"; strength and worth stayed in one word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el valor
- Say it: el valor, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el valor
- Recall: say the Spanish for the fault, then the Spanish for to value, then say el valor again

Before you move on

What does el valor mean? ("Courage; value".) Say it once more.

722.2 el coraje — guts, courage; anger

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to value, then the Spanish for courage.

You'll want to know: el coraje

el coraje — "guts, courage; anger".

Tuvo el coraje de hablar.

She had the courage to speak.

In Mexico and other countries me da coraje means it makes me angry.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

coraje was borrowed from Old Occitan coratge (EtymDB), built on Latin cor "heart"; English courage is the French form of the same word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el coraje
- Say it: el coraje, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el coraje
- Recall: say the Spanish for to value, then the Spanish for courage, then say el coraje again

Before you move on

What does el coraje mean? (“Guts, courage; anger”.) Say it once more.

722.3 la valentía — bravery

Before the new one: say the Spanish for courage, then the Spanish for guts.

You’ll want to know: la valentía

la valentía — “bravery”.

Todos admiran su valentía.

Everyone admires her bravery.

Built on valiente, brave.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

valentía is built on valiente “brave”, usually explained as the old participle of valer, from Latin valēns “strong”, from valēre “to be strong”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la valentía
- Say it: la valentía, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la valentía
- Recall: say the Spanish for courage, then the Spanish for guts, then say la valentía again

Before you move on

What does la valentía mean? ("Bravery".) Say it once more.

722.4 cobarde — cowardly; the coward

Before the new one: say the Spanish for guts, then the Spanish for bravery.

You'll want to know: cobarde

cobarde — "cowardly; the coward".

No seas cobarde y llámala.

Do not be a coward, call her.

Same form for men and women: es una cobarde.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cobarde was borrowed from Old French cuard "coward" (EtymDB), built on coue "tail", from Latin cauda: the animal that runs with its tail down.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: cobarde
- Say it: cobarde, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with cobarde
- Recall: say the Spanish for guts, then the Spanish for bravery, then say cobarde again

Before you move on

What does cobarde mean? ("Cowardly; the coward".) Say it once more.

722.5 atreverse — to dare

Before the new one: say the Spanish for bravery, then the Spanish for cowardly.

You'll want to know: atreverse

atreverse — "to dare".

No me atrevo a decírselo.

I do not dare to tell him.

Atreverse a + infinitive.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

atreverse is inherited from Latin tribuere "to grant, to assign" (EtymDB), used with se: to grant oneself the right to do something.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: atreverse
- Say it: atreverse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with atreverse
- Recall: say the Spanish for bravery, then the Spanish for cowardly, then say atreverse again

Before you move on

What does atreverse mean? (“To dare”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 723

Generosos y egoístas

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say whether someone is kind, generous, stingy or selfish.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 723: I can say whether someone is kind, generous, stingy or selfish.

723.1 generoso — generous

Before the new one: say the Spanish for cowardly, then the Spanish for to dare.

You'll want to know: generoso

generoso — "generous".

> Mi tío es muy generoso con todos.
>
> My uncle is very generous to everyone.

Ser generoso con alguien.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

generoso comes from Latin generōsus "of noble birth" (EtymDB), built on genus "birth, family"; noble birth was expected to give freely.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: generoso
- Say it: generoso, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with generoso
- Recall: say the Spanish for cowardly, then the Spanish for to dare, then say generoso again

Before you move on

What does generoso mean? ("Generous".) Say it once more.

723.2 egoísta — selfish; the selfish person

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to dare, then the Spanish for generous.

You'll want to know: egoísta

egoísta — "selfish; the selfish person".

No seas egoísta y comparte.

Do not be selfish, share.

Same form for men and women.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

egoísta is built on Latin ego "I" with the ending -ista; the word probably came in through French égoïste.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: egoísta
- Say it: egoísta, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with egoísta
- Recall: say the Spanish for to dare, then the Spanish for generous, then say egoísta again

Before you move on

What does egoísta mean? ("Selfish; the selfish person".) Say it once more.

723.3 la amabilidad — kindness

Before the new one: say the Spanish for generous, then the Spanish for selfish.

You'll want to know: la amabilidad

la amabilidad — "kindness".

Gracias por su amabilidad.

Thank you for your kindness.

A polite formula in letters and shops. The adjective is amable.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

amabilidad is a learned borrowing from Latin amābilitās (EtymDB), built on amābilis "lovable", from amāre "to love".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la amabilidad
- Say it: la amabilidad, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la amabilidad
- Recall: say the Spanish for generous, then the Spanish for selfish, then say la amabilidad again

Before you move on

What does la amabilidad mean? ("Kindness".) Say it once more.

723.4 tacaño — stingy, mean

Before the new one: say the Spanish for selfish, then the Spanish for kindness.

You'll want to know: tacaño

tacaño — "stingy, mean".

No seas tacaño y paga la cena.

Do not be stingy, pay for dinner.

The opposite of generoso. Feminine tacaña.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

tacaño was borrowed from Italian taccagno "stingy" (EtymDB); further back the origin is not certain.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: tacaño
- Say it: tacaño, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with tacaño
- Recall: say the Spanish for selfish, then the Spanish for kindness, then say tacaño again

Before you move on

What does tacaño mean? ("Stingy, mean".) Say it once more.

723.5 cruel — cruel

Before the new one: say the Spanish for kindness, then the Spanish for stingy.

You'll want to know: cruel

cruel — "cruel".

Fue muy cruel con su hermano.

He was very cruel to his brother.

Same form for men and women; plural crueles.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cruel is usually traced to Latin crūdēlis "hard-hearted, cruel" (Lewis & Short), a word built on crūdus "raw, bloody".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: cruel
- Say it: cruel, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with cruel
- Recall: say the Spanish for kindness, then the Spanish for stingy, then say cruel again

Before you move on

What does cruel mean? (“Cruel”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 724

Sinceros y cotillas

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe honest people, liars and gossips.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 724: I can describe honest people, liars and gossips.

724.1 la sinceridad — sincerity, frankness

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for stingy, then the Spanish for cruel.

You'll want to know: la sinceridad

la sinceridad — "sincerity, frankness".

> Te lo digo con toda sinceridad.
>
> I am telling you in all honesty.

Con sinceridad — honestly, frankly.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sinceridad is usually described as a learned borrowing from Latin sinceritās "purity, soundness", built on sincērus "genuine", the source of sincero (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la sinceridad
- Say it: la sinceridad, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la sinceridad
- Recall: say the Spanish for stingy, then the Spanish for cruel, then say la sinceridad again

Before you move on

What does la sinceridad mean? ("Sincerity, frankness".) Say it once more.

724.2 cotillear — to gossip

Before the new one: say the Spanish for cruel, then the Spanish for sincerity.

You'll want to know: cotillear

cotillear — "to gossip".

Mis vecinas cotillean en la escalera.

My neighbours gossip on the stairs.

Spain; a gossip is un cotilla. In Latin America people say chismear.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cotillear is built on cotilla "a gossip" with the ending -ear. For cotilla in this sense the origin is not settled; an older cotilla was a corset.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: cotillear
- Say it: cotillear, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with cotillear
- Recall: say the Spanish for cruel, then the Spanish for sincerity, then say cotillear again

Before you move on

What does cotillear mean? ("To gossip".) Say it once more.

724.3 mentiroso — lying; the liar

Before the new one: say the Spanish for sincerity, then the Spanish for to gossip.

You'll want to know: mentiroso

mentiroso — "lying; the liar".

Eres un mentiroso.

You are a liar.

Feminine mentirosa.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

mentiroso is built on mentira "lie" with the ending -oso; mentir comes from Latin mentīrī (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: mentiroso
- Say it: mentiroso, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with mentiroso
- Recall: say the Spanish for sincerity, then the Spanish for to gossip, then say mentiroso again

Before you move on

What does mentiroso mean? ("Lying; the liar".) Say it once more.

724.4 sincero — sincere, honest

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to gossip, then the Spanish for lying.

You'll want to know: sincero

sincero — "sincere, honest".

Para ser sincero, no me gusta.

To be honest, I do not like it.

Para ser sincero — to be honest.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sincero is a learned borrowing from Latin sincērus "pure, genuine" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: sincero
- Say it: sincero, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with sincero
- Recall: say the Spanish for to gossip, then the Spanish for lying, then say sincero again

Before you move on

What does sincero mean? ("Sincere, honest".) Say it once more.

724.5 la honestidad — honesty

Before the new one: say the Spanish for lying, then the Spanish for sincere.

You'll want to know: la honestidad

la honestidad — "honesty".

Valoro la honestidad de mis amigos.

I value my friends' honesty.

Honradez is a close synonym.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

honestidad is built on honesto, which comes from Latin honestus "honourable" (EtymDB), itself built on honōs "honour".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la honestidad
- Say it: la honestidad, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la honestidad
- Recall: say the Spanish for lying, then the Spanish for sincere, then say la honestidad again

Before you move on

What does la honestidad mean? (“Honesty”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 725

Amigos fieles

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe a loyal friend, say when someone pretends, and make up after a quarrel.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 725: I can describe a loyal friend, say when someone pretends, and make up after a quarrel.

725.1 fiel — faithful, loyal

Before the new one: say the Spanish for sincere, then the Spanish for honesty.

You'll want to know: fiel

fiel — "faithful, loyal".

> Mi perro es muy fiel.
>
> My dog is very faithful.

Plural fieles; los fieles are the faithful in a church.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

fiel is inherited from Latin fidēlis "faithful" (EtymDB), built on fidēs "faith, trust".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: fiel
- Say it: fiel, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with fiel
- Recall: say the Spanish for sincere, then the Spanish for honesty, then say fiel again

Before you move on

What does fiel mean? ("Faithful, loyal".) Say it once more.

725.2 leal — loyal

Before the new one: say the Spanish for honesty, then the Spanish for faithful.

You'll want to know: leal

leal — "loyal".

Siempre ha sido leal a sus amigos.

He has always been loyal to his friends.

Leal a — loyal to.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

leal is usually traced to Latin lēgālis "of the law", built on lēx "law"; English loyal and legal are the same Latin word by two roads.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: leal
- Say it: leal, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with leal
- Recall: say the Spanish for honesty, then the Spanish for faithful, then say leal again

Before you move on

What does leal mean? (“Loyal”.) Say it once more.

725.3 la lealtad — loyalty

Before the new one: say the Spanish for faithful, then the Spanish for loyal.

You’ll want to know: la lealtad

la lealtad — “loyalty”.

Valoro la lealtad por encima de todo.

I value loyalty above everything.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

lealtad is built on leal “loyal” with the ending -tad; EtymDB traces its Portuguese twin lealdade to Medieval Latin lēgālitās, from lēgālis “of the law”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la lealtad
- Say it: la lealtad, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la lealtad
- Recall: say the Spanish for faithful, then the Spanish for loyal, then say la lealtad again

Before you move on

What does la lealtad mean? (“Loyalty”.) Say it once more.

725.4 reconciliarse — to make up, to be reconciled

Before the new one: say the Spanish for loyal, then the Spanish for loyalty.

You’ll want to know: reconciliarse

reconciliarse — “to make up, to be reconciled”.

Después de la pelea, nos reconciliamos.

After the fight, we made up.

Reconciliarse con alguien. Colloquially hacer las paces.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

reconciliarse is usually described as a learned borrowing from Latin reconciliāre “to bring together again”, built on conciliāre “to unite”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: reconciliarse
- Say it: reconciliarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with reconciliarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for loyal, then the Spanish for loyalty, then say reconciliarse again

Before you move on

What does reconciliarse mean? ("To make up, to be reconciled".) Say it once more.

725.5 fingir — to pretend, to fake

Before the new one: say the Spanish for loyalty, then the Spanish for to make up.

You'll want to know: fingir

fingir — "to pretend, to fake".

Fingió que no me veía.

He pretended not to see me.

Fingir que + indicative. Spelling: finjo.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

fingir comes from Latin fingere "to shape, to invent, to feign" (EtymDB); English fiction and feign share it.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: fingir
- Say it: fingir, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with fingir
- Recall: say the Spanish for loyalty, then the Spanish for to make up, then say fingir again

Before you move on

What does fingir mean? (“To pretend, to fake”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 726

Humildes y presumidos

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe someone modest and someone who shows off.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 726: I can describe someone modest and someone who shows off.

726.1 humilde — humble; poor

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to make up, then the Spanish for to pretend.

You'll want to know: humilde

humilde — "humble; poor".

> A pesar de su fama, es muy humilde.
>
> Despite her fame, she is very humble.

Una familia humilde is a poor family.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

humilde is inherited from Latin humilis "low, lowly" (EtymDB), built on humus "earth, ground".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: humilde
- Say it: humilde, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with humilde
- Recall: say the Spanish for to make up, then the Spanish for to pretend, then say humilde again

Before you move on

What does humilde mean? ("Humble; poor".) Say it once more.

726.2 la humildad — humility

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to pretend, then the Spanish for humble.

You'll want to know: la humildad

la humildad — "humility".

Habla de sus éxitos con humildad.

She speaks about her successes with humility.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

humildad is usually traced to Latin humilitās "lowness", built on humilis, from humus "earth".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la humildad
- Say it: la humildad, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la humildad
- Recall: say the Spanish for to pretend, then the Spanish for humble, then say la humildad again

Before you move on

What does la humildad mean? ("Humility".) Say it once more.

726.3 la vanidad — vanity

Before the new one: say the Spanish for humble, then the Spanish for humility.

You'll want to know: la vanidad

la vanidad — "vanity".

Su vanidad no tiene límites.

His vanity knows no limits.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

vanidad is usually traced to Latin vānitās "emptiness", built on vānus "empty".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la vanidad
- Say it: la vanidad, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la vanidad
- Recall: say the Spanish for humble, then the Spanish for humility, then say la vanidad again

Before you move on

What does la vanidad mean? ("Vanity".) Say it once more.

726.4 modesto — modest

Before the new one: say the Spanish for humility, then the Spanish for vanity.

You'll want to know: modesto

modesto — "modest".

Vive en un piso modesto.

She lives in a modest flat.

For people and for things: un sueldo modesto.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

modesto is a learned borrowing from Latin modestus "keeping due measure" (EtymDB), built on modus "measure".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: modesto
- Say it: modesto, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with modesto
- Recall: say the Spanish for humility, then the Spanish for vanity, then say modesto again

Before you move on

What does modesto mean? (“Modest”.) Say it once more.

726.5 presumir — to show off, to boast

Before the new one: say the Spanish for vanity, then the Spanish for modest.

You’ll want to know: presumir

presumir — “to show off, to boast”.

Le gusta presumir de su coche.

He likes to show off his car.

Presumir de algo. Also to presume: se presume inocente.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

presumir is a learned borrowing from Latin praesūmere “to take beforehand” (EtymDB), built on sūmere “to take”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: presumir
- Say it: presumir, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with presumir
- Recall: say the Spanish for vanity, then the Spanish for modest, then say presumir again

Before you move on

What does presumir mean? ("To show off, to boast".) Say it once more.

Chapter 727

Sensibles y educados

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe sensitive, polite and rude people.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 727: I can describe sensitive, polite and rude people.

727.1 sensible — sensitive

Before the new one: say the Spanish for modest, then the Spanish for to show off.

You'll want to know: sensible

sensible — "sensitive".

> Es un chico muy sensible.
>
> He is a very sensitive boy.

A false friend: sensible is sensato.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sensible comes from Latin sēnsibilis "having feeling" (EtymDB), from sentīre "to feel"; Spanish kept the feeling sense.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: sensible
- Say it: sensible, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with sensible
- Recall: say the Spanish for modest, then the Spanish for to show off, then say sensible again

Before you move on

What does sensible mean? ("Sensitive".) Say it once more.

727.2 la sensibilidad — sensitivity

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to show off, then the Spanish for sensitive.

You'll want to know: la sensibilidad

la sensibilidad — "sensitivity".

Tiene mucha sensibilidad para la música.

She has a great feel for music.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sensibilidad comes from Latin sēnsibilitās (EtymDB), built on sēnsibilis, from sentīre "to feel".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la sensibilidad
- Say it: la sensibilidad, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la sensibilidad
- Recall: say the Spanish for to show off, then the Spanish for sensitive, then say la sensibilidad again

Before you move on

What does la sensibilidad mean? ("Sensitivity".) Say it once more.

727.3 ofender — to offend

Before the new one: say the Spanish for sensitive, then the Spanish for sensitivity.

You'll want to know: ofender

ofender — "to offend".

No quería ofenderte.

I did not want to offend you.

Ofenderse — to take offence.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ofender comes from Latin offendere "to strike against" (EtymDB), built on ob "against".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: ofender
- Say it: ofender, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with ofender
- Recall: say the Spanish for sensitive, then the Spanish for sensitivity, then say ofender again

Before you move on

What does ofender mean? ("To offend".) Say it once more.

727.4 educado — polite, well-mannered

Before the new one: say the Spanish for sensitivity, then the Spanish for to offend.

You'll want to know: educado

educado — "polite, well-mannered".

Tus hijos son muy educados.

Your children are very polite.

A false friend: it means polite, not only educated. Maleducado is rude.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

educado is the participle of educar, a learned borrowing from Latin ēducāre "to bring up, to rear" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: educado
- Say it: educado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with educado
- Recall: say the Spanish for sensitivity, then the Spanish for to offend, then say educado again

Before you move on

What does educado mean? (“Polite, well-mannered”.) Say it once more.

727.5 grosero — rude, coarse

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to offend, then the Spanish for polite.

You’ll want to know: grosero

grosero — “rude, coarse”.

No seas grosero con la camarera.

Do not be rude to the waitress.

Also vulgar: una palabra grosera.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

grosero is built on grueso “thick”, which is inherited from Latin grossus “thick, coarse” (EtymDB); rough cloth became rough manners.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: grosero
- Say it: grosero, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with grosero
- Recall: say the Spanish for to offend, then the Spanish for polite, then say grosero again

Before you move on

What does grosero mean? ("Rude, coarse".) Say it once more.

727.6 Repaso de los capítulos 720–727

Say the Spanish for admiration and to admire.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- admiration, to admire, grateful, gratitude, to appreciate
- the trait, personality, temperament, the fault, to value
- courage, guts, bravery, cowardly, to dare
- generous, selfish, kindness, stingy, cruel
- sincerity, to gossip, lying, sincere, honesty
- faithful, loyal, loyalty, to make up, to pretend
- humble, humility, vanity, modest, to show off
- sensitive, sensitivity, to offend, polite, rude

Before you move on

Admiration? (la admiración.) To admire? (admirar.) Grateful? (agradecido.) Gratitude? (la gratitud.) To appreciate? (apreciar.) The trait? (el rasgo.) Personality? (la personalidad.) Temperament? (el temperamento.) The fault? (el defecto.) To value? (valorar.) Courage? (el valor.) Guts? (el coraje.) Bravery? (la valentía.) Cowardly? (cobarde.) To dare? (atreverse.) Generous? (generoso.) Selfish? (egoísta.) Kindness? (la amabilidad.) Stingy? (tacaño.) Cruel? (cruel.) Sincerity? (la sinceridad.) To gossip? (cotillear.) Lying? (mentiroso.) Sincere? (sincero.) Honesty? (la honestidad.) Faithful? (fiel.) Loyal? (leal.) Loyalty? (la lealtad.) To make up? (reconciliarse.) To pretend? (fingir.) Humble? (humilde.) Humility? (la humildad.) Vanity? (la vanidad.) Modest? (modesto.) To show off? (presumir.) Sensitive? (sensible.) Sensitivity? (la sensibilidad.) To offend? (ofender.) Polite? (educado.) Rude? (grosero.)

Chapter 728

Listos y sabios

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe someone wise, clever or skilful.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 728: I can describe someone wise, clever or skilful.

728.1 sabio — wise; the wise person

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for polite, then the Spanish for rude.

You'll want to know: sabio

sabio — "wise; the wise person".

> Mi abuelo era un hombre sabio.
>
> My grandfather was a wise man.

Un sabio is a sage or a scholar.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sabio comes from Latin sapidus (EtymDB), from sapere "to taste, to be wise", the source of saber.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: sabio
- Say it: sabio, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with sabio
- Recall: say the Spanish for polite, then the Spanish for rude, then say sabio again

Before you move on

What does sabio mean? ("Wise; the wise person".) Say it once more.

728.2 la sabiduría — wisdom

Before the new one: say the Spanish for rude, then the Spanish for wise.

You'll want to know: la sabiduría

la sabiduría — "wisdom".

La sabiduría viene con los años.

Wisdom comes with the years.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sabiduría belongs with sabio "wise" (EtymDB), and its form is usually traced to old sabidor "one who knows", built on saber, from Latin sapere "to taste, to be wise".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la sabiduría
- Say it: la sabiduría, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la sabiduría
- Recall: say the Spanish for rude, then the Spanish for wise, then say la sabiduría again

Before you move on

What does la sabiduría mean? ("Wisdom".) Say it once more.

728.3 astuto — clever, cunning

Before the new one: say the Spanish for wise, then the Spanish for wisdom.

You'll want to know: astuto

astuto — "clever, cunning".

El zorro es astuto.

The fox is cunning.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

astuto is a learned borrowing from Latin astūtus "crafty" (EtymDB), built on astus "craft, cunning".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: astuto
- Say it: astuto, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with astuto
- Recall: say the Spanish for wise, then the Spanish for wisdom, then say astuto again

Before you move on

What does astuto mean? ("Clever, cunning".) Say it once more.

728.4 hábil — skilful, clever

Before the new one: say the Spanish for wisdom, then the Spanish for clever.

You'll want to know: hábil

hábil — "skilful, clever".

Es muy hábil con las manos.

He is very good with his hands.

Día hábil — a working day.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

hábil is a learned borrowing from Latin habilis "apt, skilful" (EtymDB), from habēre "to hold"; English able is its inherited French form.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: hábil
- Say it: hábil, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with hábil
- Recall: say the Spanish for wisdom, then the Spanish for clever, then say hábil again

Before you move on

What does hábil mean? ("Skilful, clever".) Say it once more.

728.5 el ingenio — wit, ingenuity

Before the new one: say the Spanish for clever, then the Spanish for skilful.

You'll want to know: el ingenio

el ingenio — "wit, ingenuity".

Tiene mucho ingenio para resolver problemas.

She is very ingenious at solving problems.

Un ingenio can also be a clever device; in Latin America un ingenio is a sugar mill.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ingenio was borrowed from Latin ingenium "inborn nature, talent" (EtymDB), built on in and the root of gignere "to beget": the gifts you are born with.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el ingenio
- Say it: el ingenio, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el ingenio
- Recall: say the Spanish for clever, then the Spanish for skilful, then say el ingenio again

Before you move on

What does el ingenio mean? (“Wit, ingenuity”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 729

Defectos de cada día

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about stubborn, lazy, nosy and curious people.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 729: I can talk about stubborn, lazy, nosy and curious people.

729.1 terco — stubborn

Before the new one: say the Spanish for skilful, then the Spanish for wit.

You'll want to know: terco

terco — "stubborn".

> Es tan terco como su padre.
>
> He is as stubborn as his father.

Cabezota is the colloquial word in Spain.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

For terco the origin is not settled. It is found in old Spanish, and no Latin or Germanic source has been proved.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: terco
- Say it: terco, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with terco
- Recall: say the Spanish for skilful, then the Spanish for wit, then say terco again

Before you move on

What does terco mean? ("Stubborn".) Say it once more.

729.2 perezoso — lazy

Before the new one: say the Spanish for wit, then the Spanish for stubborn.

You'll want to know: perezoso

perezoso — "lazy".

Los domingos soy muy perezoso.

On Sundays I am very lazy.

Un perezoso is also the animal, a sloth.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

perezoso is built on pereza "laziness" with the ending -oso; pereza is usually traced to Latin pigritia.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: perezoso
- Say it: perezoso, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with perezoso
- Recall: say the Spanish for wit, then the Spanish for stubborn, then say perezoso again

Before you move on

What does perezoso mean? ("Lazy".) Say it once more.

729.3 la pereza — laziness

Before the new one: say the Spanish for stubborn, then the Spanish for lazy.

You'll want to know: la pereza

la pereza — "laziness".

Me da pereza salir con este frío.

I cannot be bothered to go out in this cold.

Me da pereza + infinitive — I cannot be bothered to.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

pereza is usually traced to Latin pigritia "laziness", built on piger "slow, lazy"; Latin -itia became Spanish -eza, as in tristeza.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la pereza
- Say it: la pereza, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la pereza
- Recall: say the Spanish for stubborn, then the Spanish for lazy, then say la pereza again

Before you move on

What does la pereza mean? ("Laziness".) Say it once more.

729.4 entrometido — nosy, meddling

Before the new one: say the Spanish for lazy, then the Spanish for laziness.

You'll want to know: entrometido

entrometido — "nosy, meddling".

Mi vecina es muy entrometida.

My neighbour is very nosy.

Entrometerse — to meddle. Feminine entrometida.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

entrometido is the participle of entrometer, built on entre "between" and meter "to put", which is inherited from Latin mittere "to send" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: entrometido
- Say it: entrometido, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with entrometido
- Recall: say the Spanish for lazy, then the Spanish for laziness, then say entrometido again

Before you move on

What does entrometido mean? ("Nosy, meddling".) Say it once more.

729.5 la curiosidad — curiosity

Before the new one: say the Spanish for laziness, then the Spanish for nosy.

You'll want to know: la curiosidad

la curiosidad — "curiosity".

Lo pregunto por curiosidad.

I am asking out of curiosity.

Por curiosidad — out of curiosity.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

curiosidad was borrowed from Latin cūriōsitās (EtymDB), built on cūriōsus, from cūra "care".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la curiosidad
- Say it: la curiosidad, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la curiosidad
- Recall: say the Spanish for laziness, then the Spanish for nosy, then say la curiosidad again

Before you move on

What does la curiosidad mean? ("Curiosity".) Say it once more.

Chapter 730

Encanto y belleza

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe someone charming, attractive or elegant.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 730: I can describe someone charming, attractive or elegant.

730.1 encantador — charming, delightful

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for nosy, then the Spanish for curiosity.

You'll want to know: encantador

encantador — "charming, delightful".

> Tu madre es encantadora.
>
> Your mother is charming.

Feminine encantadora. Un encantador de serpientes is a snake charmer.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

encantador is built on encantar, which comes from Latin incantāre "to chant a spell over" (EtymDB), from cantāre "to sing".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: encantador
- Say it: encantador, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with encantador
- Recall: say the Spanish for nosy, then the Spanish for curiosity, then say encantador again

Before you move on

What does encantador mean? ("Charming, delightful".) Say it once more.

730.2 el encanto — charm

Before the new one: say the Spanish for curiosity, then the Spanish for charming.

You'll want to know: el encanto

el encanto — "charm".

El pueblo tiene mucho encanto.

The village has a lot of charm.

Es un encanto — he or she is a sweetheart.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

encanto is built on encantar "to enchant", from Latin incantāre (EtymDB); charm was first a spell.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el encanto
- Say it: el encanto, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el encanto
- Recall: say the Spanish for curiosity, then the Spanish for charming, then say el encanto again

Before you move on

What does el encanto mean? ("Charm".) Say it once more.

730.3 atractivo — attractive

Before the new one: say the Spanish for charming, then the Spanish for charm.

You'll want to know: atractivo

atractivo — "attractive".

Es una oferta muy atractiva.

It is a very attractive offer.

Also a noun: el atractivo de la ciudad — the city's appeal.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

atractivo comes from Latin attractīvus (EtymDB), built on attrahere "to draw towards", from trahere "to pull".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: atractivo
- Say it: atractivo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with atractivo
- Recall: say the Spanish for charming, then the Spanish for charm, then say atractivo again

Before you move on

What does atractivo mean? ("Attractive".) Say it once more.

730.4 la belleza — beauty

Before the new one: say the Spanish for charm, then the Spanish for attractive.

You'll want to know: la belleza

la belleza — "beauty".

Me impresionó la belleza del paisaje.

The beauty of the landscape struck me.

Un salón de belleza — a beauty salon.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

belleza is built on bello "beautiful" with the ending -eza (EtymDB); bello comes from Latin bellus "pretty, handsome". Some dictionaries think the form came in through Catalan bellesa or Occitan.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la belleza
- Say it: la belleza, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la belleza
- Recall: say the Spanish for charm, then the Spanish for attractive, then say la belleza again

Before you move on

What does la belleza mean? (“Beauty”.) Say it once more.

730.5 la elegancia — elegance

Before the new one: say the Spanish for attractive, then the Spanish for beauty.

You’ll want to know: la elegancia

la elegancia — “elegance”.

Viste con mucha elegancia.

She dresses with great elegance.

The adjective is elegante.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

elegancia comes from Latin ēlegantia “refinement, elegance” (EtymDB), linked with ēligere “to pick out”: elegance is good choosing.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la elegancia
- Say it: la elegancia, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la elegancia
- Recall: say the Spanish for attractive, then the Spanish for beauty, then say la elegancia again

Before you move on

What does la elegancia mean? (“Elegance”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 731

Crecer por dentro

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about maturity and whether I see life with hope or gloom.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 731: I can talk about maturity and whether I see life with hope or gloom.

731.1 maduro — mature; ripe

Before the new one: say the Spanish for beauty, then the Spanish for elegance.

You'll want to know: maduro

maduro — "mature; ripe".

> Es muy maduro para su edad.
>
> He is very mature for his age.

With estar it is ripe fruit: el plátano está maduro.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

maduro is inherited from Latin mātūrus "ripe, mature" (EtymDB); the Latin -t- softened to -d-.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: maduro
- Say it: maduro, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with maduro
- Recall: say the Spanish for beauty, then the Spanish for elegance, then say maduro again

Before you move on

What does maduro mean? ("Mature; ripe".) Say it once more.

731.2 la madurez — maturity

Before the new one: say the Spanish for elegance, then the Spanish for mature.

You'll want to know: la madurez

la madurez — "maturity".

Actuó con madurez.

She acted with maturity.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

madurez is built on maduro with the ending -ez; maduro is inherited from Latin mātūrus (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la madurez
- Say it: la madurez, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la madurez
- Recall: say the Spanish for elegance, then the Spanish for mature, then say la madurez again

Before you move on

What does la madurez mean? (“Maturity”.) Say it once more.

731.3 madurar — to mature, to ripen

Before the new one: say the Spanish for mature, then the Spanish for maturity.

You’ll want to know: madurar

madurar — “to mature, to ripen”.

Has madurado mucho este año.

You have grown up a lot this year.

For people and fruit.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

madurar comes from Latin mātūrāre “to ripen” (EtymDB), built on mātūrus.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: madurar
- Say it: madurar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with madurar
- Recall: say the Spanish for mature, then the Spanish for maturity, then say madurar again

Before you move on

What does madurar mean? ("To mature, to ripen".) Say it once more.

731.4 optimista — optimistic; the optimist

Before the new one: say the Spanish for maturity, then the Spanish for to mature.

You'll want to know: optimista

optimista — "optimistic; the optimist".

Soy optimista sobre el futuro.

I am optimistic about the future.

Same form for men and women.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

optimista is usually traced to French optimiste, built on Latin optimus "best".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: optimista
- Say it: optimista, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with optimista
- Recall: say the Spanish for maturity, then the Spanish for to mature, then say optimista again

Before you move on

What does optimista mean? ("Optimistic; the optimist".) Say it once more.

731.5 pesimista — pessimistic; the pessimist

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to mature, then the Spanish for optimistic.

You'll want to know: pesimista

pesimista — "pessimistic; the pessimist".

No seas tan pesimista.

Do not be so pessimistic.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

pesimista is usually traced to French pessimiste, built on Latin pessimus "worst".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: pesimista
- Say it: pesimista, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with pesimista
- Recall: say the Spanish for to mature, then the Spanish for optimistic, then say pesimista again

Before you move on

What does pesimista mean? (“Pessimistic; the pessimist”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 732

Cuidarse

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say how I look after my health and when someone gets worse.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 732: I can say how I look after my health and when someone gets worse.

732.1 saludable — healthy

Before the new one: say the Spanish for optimistic, then the Spanish for pessimistic.

You'll want to know: saludable

saludable — "healthy".

Como de forma saludable.

I eat in a healthy way.

For food and habits; a healthy person is sano.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

saludable is built on salud "health" with the ending -able; salud comes from Latin salūs, salūtem "health, safety" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: saludable
- Say it: saludable, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with saludable
- Recall: say the Spanish for optimistic, then the Spanish for pessimistic, then say saludable again

Before you move on

What does saludable mean? ("Healthy".) Say it once more.

732.2 cuidarse — to look after oneself

Before the new one: say the Spanish for pessimistic, then the Spanish for healthy.

You'll want to know: cuidarse

cuidarse — "to look after oneself".

Cuídate mucho.

Take good care of yourself.

¡Cuídate! is a common goodbye.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cuidarse is the reflexive of cuidar, which is inherited from Latin cōgitāre "to think" (EtymDB); in old Spanish cuidar meant to think, then to watch over.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: cuidarse
- Say it: cuidarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with cuidarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for pessimistic, then the Spanish for healthy, then say cuidarse again

Before you move on

What does cuidarse mean? ("To look after oneself".) Say it once more.

732.3 la enfermedad — illness, disease

Before the new one: say the Spanish for healthy, then the Spanish for to look after oneself.

You'll want to know: la enfermedad

la enfermedad — "illness, disease".

Es una enfermedad muy rara.

It is a very rare disease.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

enfermedad is inherited from Latin īnfirmitās "weakness" (EtymDB), built on īnfirmus "not firm, weak".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la enfermedad
- Say it: la enfermedad, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la enfermedad
- Recall: say the Spanish for healthy, then the Spanish for to look after oneself, then say la enfermedad again

Before you move on

What does la enfermedad mean? ("Illness, disease".) Say it once more.

732.4 enfermarse — to fall ill, to get sick

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to look after oneself, then the Spanish for illness.

You'll want to know: enfermarse

enfermarse — "to fall ill, to get sick".

Me enfermé en las vacaciones.

I got sick on holiday.

Common in Latin America; in Spain people say ponerse enfermo or enfermar.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

enfermarse is built on enfermo "ill", which is inherited from Latin īnfirmus "weak" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: enfermarse
- Say it: enfermarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with enfermarse

- Recall: say the Spanish for to look after oneself, then the Spanish for illness, then say enfermarse again

Before you move on

What does enfermarse mean? ("To fall ill, to get sick".) Say it once more.

732.5 empeorar — to get worse, to worsen

Before the new one: say the Spanish for illness, then the Spanish for to fall ill.

You'll want to know: empeorar

empeorar — "to get worse, to worsen".

El tiempo va a empeorar.

The weather is going to get worse.

The opposite of mejorar.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

empeorar is built on peor "worse", which is inherited from Latin peior (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: empeorar
- Say it: empeorar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with empeorar
- Recall: say the Spanish for illness, then the Spanish for to fall ill, then say empeorar again

Before you move on

What does empeorar mean? ("To get worse, to worsen".) Say it once more.

Chapter 733

Gripe y resfriado

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say that I have a cold or the flu and that I keep sneezing.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 733: I can say that I have a cold or the flu and that I keep sneezing.

733.1 la gripe — the flu

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to fall ill, then the Spanish for to get worse.

You'll want to know: la gripe

la gripe — "the flu".

Estoy en cama con gripe.

I am in bed with the flu.

In Mexico and Colombia people say la gripa.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

gripe was borrowed from French grippe (EtymDB), from gripper "to seize", which comes from Frankish grīpan: an illness that grips you.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la gripe
- Say it: la gripe, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la gripe
- Recall: say the Spanish for to fall ill, then the Spanish for to get worse, then say la gripe again

Before you move on

What does la gripe mean? ("The flu".) Say it once more.

733.2 el resfriado — the cold (illness)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to get worse, then the Spanish for the flu.

You'll want to know: el resfriado

el resfriado — "the cold (illness)".

Tengo un resfriado fuerte.

I have a bad cold.

In Spain also el catarro; in parts of South America el resfrío.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

resfriado is built on resfriarse "to catch cold", from frío "cold", which is usually traced to Latin frīgidus.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el resfriado
- Say it: el resfriado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el resfriado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to get worse, then the Spanish for the flu, then say el resfriado again

Before you move on

What does el resfriado mean? ("The cold (illness)".) Say it once more.

733.3 constipado — having a cold, bunged up

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the flu, then the Spanish for the cold.

You'll want to know: constipado

constipado — "having a cold, bunged up".

Estoy constipado y no puedo respirar bien.

I have a cold and cannot breathe properly.

A false friend, mainly in Spain: estar constipado is to have a cold. Constipated is estreñido.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

constipado comes from Latin cōnstīpātus "crowded or pressed closely together" (EtymDB), from stīpāre "to pack": a head packed tight.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: constipado
- Say it: constipado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with constipado
- Recall: say the Spanish for the flu, then the Spanish for the cold, then say constipado again

Before you move on

What does constipado mean? ("Having a cold, bunged up".) Say it once more.

733.4 contagiar — to infect, to pass on

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the cold, then the Spanish for having a cold.

You'll want to know: contagiar

contagiar — "to infect, to pass on".

No quiero contagiarte el resfriado.

I do not want to give you my cold.

Contagiarse — to catch something. It is also used for feelings: contagia su alegría.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

contagiar is built on contagio, usually described as a learned borrowing from Latin contāgium "contact, infection", from tangere "to touch".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: contagiar
- Say it: contagiar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with contagiar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the cold, then the Spanish for having a cold, then say contagiar again

Before you move on

What does contagiar mean? ("To infect, to pass on".) Say it once more.

733.5 estornudar — to sneeze

Before the new one: say the Spanish for having a cold, then the Spanish for to infect.

You'll want to know: estornudar

estornudar — "to sneeze".

El polvo me hace estornudar.

Dust makes me sneeze.

People say ¡Salud! or ¡Jesús! when someone sneezes.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

estornudar is inherited from Latin sternūtāre "to sneeze" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: estornudar
- Say it: estornudar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with estornudar
- Recall: say the Spanish for having a cold, then the Spanish for to infect, then say estornudar again

Before you move on

What does estornudar mean? ("To sneeze".) Say it once more.

Chapter 734

Quemaduras y cortes

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe a burn or a cut that bleeds, the bandage and the scar.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 734: I can describe a burn or a cut that bleeds, the bandage and the scar.

734.1 quemarse — to burn oneself; to get sunburnt

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to infect, then the Spanish for to sneeze.

You'll want to know: quemarse

quemarse — "to burn oneself; to get sunburnt".

> Me quemé la mano con la sartén.
>
> I burned my hand on the frying pan.

Quemarse + body part. Quemarse al sol — to get sunburnt.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

quemarse is the reflexive of quemar, which is inherited from Latin cremāre "to burn" (EtymDB); English cremate is the same Latin verb.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: quemarse
- Say it: quemarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with quemarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for to infect, then the Spanish for to sneeze, then say quemarse again

Before you move on

What does quemarse mean? ("To burn oneself; to get sunburnt".) Say it once more.

734.2 la quemadura — the burn

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to sneeze, then the Spanish for to burn oneself.

You'll want to know: la quemadura

la quemadura — "the burn".

Tengo una quemadura en el brazo.

I have a burn on my arm.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

quemadura is built on quemar "to burn" with the ending -dura; quemar is inherited from Latin cremāre (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la quemadura
- Say it: la quemadura, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la quemadura
- Recall: say the Spanish for to sneeze, then the Spanish for to burn oneself, then say la quemadura again

Before you move on

What does la quemadura mean? ("The burn".) Say it once more.

734.3 la venda — the bandage

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to burn oneself, then the Spanish for the burn.

You'll want to know: la venda

la venda — "the bandage".

La enfermera me puso una venda.

The nurse put a bandage on me.

A small sticking plaster is una tirita (Spain) or una curita (Latin America).

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

venda is usually traced to Germanic binda "band, strip of cloth", from the root that gives English bind (EtymDB gives the Indo-European root $b^{h}end^{h}$- "to bind").

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la venda
- Say it: la venda, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la venda
- Recall: say the Spanish for to burn oneself, then the Spanish for the burn, then say la venda again

Before you move on

What does la venda mean? (“The bandage”.) Say it once more.

734.4 sangrar — to bleed

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the burn, then the Spanish for the bandage.

You’ll want to know: sangrar

sangrar — “to bleed”.

Me sangra la nariz.

My nose is bleeding.

Works like doler: me sangra la rodilla.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sangrar is inherited from Latin sanguināre “to bleed” (EtymDB), built on sanguis “blood”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: sangrar
- Say it: sangrar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with sangrar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the burn, then the Spanish for the bandage, then say sangrar again

Before you move on

What does sangrar mean? ("To bleed".) Say it once more.

734.5 la cicatriz — the scar

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the bandage, then the Spanish for to bleed.

You'll want to know: la cicatriz

la cicatriz — "the scar".

Tengo una cicatriz en la mano.

I have a scar on my hand.

Plural las cicatrices.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cicatriz comes from Latin cicātrīx, cicātrīcem "scar" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la cicatriz
- Say it: la cicatriz, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la cicatriz
- Recall: say the Spanish for the bandage, then the Spanish for to bleed, then say la cicatriz again

Before you move on

What does la cicatriz mean? (“The scar”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 735

Por dentro del cuerpo

Modes: voice (6) Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can name the skeleton and inner organs and say that my heart is beating fast.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 735: I can name the skeleton and inner organs and say that my heart is beating fast.

735.1 el esqueleto — the skeleton

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to bleed, then the Spanish for the scar.

You'll want to know: el esqueleto

el esqueleto — "the skeleton".

> El esqueleto humano tiene 206 huesos.
>
> The human skeleton has 206 bones.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

esqueleto comes from Greek skeletós "dried up, a dried body" (EtymDB), from skéllein "to dry up".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el esqueleto
- Say it: el esqueleto, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el esqueleto
- Recall: say the Spanish for to bleed, then the Spanish for the scar, then say el esqueleto again

Before you move on

What does el esqueleto mean? ("The skeleton".) Say it once more.

735.2 el pulmón — the lung

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the scar, then the Spanish for the skeleton.

You'll want to know: el pulmón

el pulmón — "the lung".

Fumar es malo para los pulmones.

Smoking is bad for the lungs.

Plural los pulmones.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

pulmón comes from Latin pulmō, pulmōnem "lung" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el pulmón
- Say it: el pulmón, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with el pulmón
- Recall: say the Spanish for the scar, then the Spanish for the skeleton, then say el pulmón again

Before you move on

What does el pulmón mean? (“The lung”.) Say it once more.

735.3 el estómago — the stomach

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the skeleton, then the Spanish for the lung.

You’ll want to know: el estómago

el estómago — “the stomach”.

Me duele el estómago.

My stomach hurts.

Dolor de estómago — stomach ache.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

estómago is a learned borrowing from Latin stomachus, which came from Greek stómakhos, built on stóma “mouth” (EtymDB).

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el estómago
- Say it: el estómago, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el estómago
- Recall: say the Spanish for the skeleton, then the Spanish for the lung, then say el estómago again

Before you move on

What does el estómago mean? ("The stomach".) Say it once more.

735.4 el cerebro — the brain

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the lung, then the Spanish for the stomach.

You'll want to know: el cerebro

el cerebro — "the brain".

El cerebro necesita dormir.

The brain needs sleep.

El cerebro del grupo — the brains of the group.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cerebro is usually described as a learned borrowing from Latin cerebrum "brain".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el cerebro
- Say it: el cerebro, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el cerebro
- Recall: say the Spanish for the lung, then the Spanish for the stomach, then say el cerebro again

Before you move on

What does el cerebro mean? ("The brain".) Say it once more.

735.5 latir — to beat (of the heart)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the stomach, then the Spanish for the brain.

You'll want to know: latir

latir — "to beat (of the heart)".

Me late muy rápido el corazón.

My heart is beating very fast.

El latido is the heartbeat.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

latir comes from Medieval Latin glattīre "to yelp" (EtymDB). Old latir was a dog's yelping; the steady, repeated sound gave the heartbeat.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: latir
- Say it: latir, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with latir
- Recall: say the Spanish for the stomach, then the Spanish for the brain, then say latir again

Before you move on

What does latir mean? ("To beat (of the heart)".) Say it once more.

735.6 Repaso de los capítulos 728–735

Say the Spanish for wise and wisdom.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- wise, wisdom, clever, skilful, wit
- stubborn, lazy, laziness, nosy, curiosity
- charming, charm, attractive, beauty, elegance
- mature, maturity, to mature, optimistic, pessimistic
- healthy, to look after oneself, illness, to fall ill, to get worse
- the flu, the cold, having a cold, to infect, to sneeze
- to burn oneself, the burn, the bandage, to bleed, the scar
- the skeleton, the lung, the stomach, the brain, to beat

Before you move on

Wise? (sabio.) Wisdom? (la sabiduría.) Clever? (astuto.) Skilful? (hábil.) Wit? (el ingenio.) Stubborn? (terco.) Lazy? (perezoso.) Laziness? (la pereza.) Nosy? (entrometido.) Curiosity? (la curiosidad.) Charming? (encantador.) Charm? (el encanto.) Attractive? (atractivo.) Beauty? (la belleza.) Elegance? (la elegancia.) Mature? (maduro.) Maturity? (la madurez.) To mature? (madurar.) Optimistic? (optimista.) Pessimistic? (pesimista.) Healthy? (saludable.) To look after oneself? (cuidarse.) Illness? (la enfermedad.) To fall ill? (enfermarse.) To get worse? (empeorar.) The flu? (la gripe.) The cold? (el resfriado.) Having a cold? (constipado.) To infect? (contagiar.) To sneeze? (estornudar.) To burn oneself? (quemarse.) The burn? (la quemadura.) The bandage? (la venda.) To bleed? (sangrar.) The scar? (la cicatriz.) The skeleton? (el esqueleto.) The lung? (el pulmón.) The stomach? (el estómago.) The brain? (el cerebro.) To beat? (latir.)

Chapter 736

La cara

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe a face: the forehead, cheeks, chin, beard and ears.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 736: I can describe a face: the forehead, cheeks, chin, beard and ears.

736.1 la frente — the forehead

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the brain, then the Spanish for to beat.

You'll want to know: la frente

la frente — "the forehead".

> Tienes la frente caliente.
>
> Your forehead is hot.

La frente is the forehead; el frente is the front.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

frente is inherited from Latin frōns, frontem "forehead, front" (EtymDB), through Old Spanish fruente.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la frente
- Say it: la frente, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la frente
- Recall: say the Spanish for the brain, then the Spanish for to beat, then say la frente again

Before you move on

What does la frente mean? ("The forehead".) Say it once more.

736.2 la mejilla — the cheek

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to beat, then the Spanish for the forehead.

You'll want to know: la mejilla

la mejilla — "the cheek".

Me dio un beso en la mejilla.

She kissed me on the cheek.

Colloquially also el cachete in Latin America.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

mejilla is usually traced to Latin maxilla "jaw"; the Latin -x- became the Spanish j sound.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la mejilla
- Say it: la mejilla, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la mejilla
- Recall: say the Spanish for to beat, then the Spanish for the forehead, then say la mejilla again

Before you move on

What does la mejilla mean? ("The cheek".) Say it once more.

736.3 la barbilla — the chin

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the forehead, then the Spanish for the cheek.

You'll want to know: la barbilla

la barbilla — "the chin".

Tiene una cicatriz en la barbilla.

He has a scar on his chin.

Levantar la barbilla — to lift your chin. El mentón means the same.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

barbilla is built on barba "beard, chin" with the small ending -illa; barba is inherited from Latin barba (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la barbilla
- Say it: la barbilla, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la barbilla
- Recall: say the Spanish for the forehead, then the Spanish for the cheek, then say la barbilla again

Before you move on

What does la barbilla mean? ("The chin".) Say it once more.

736.4 la barba — the beard; the chin

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the cheek, then the Spanish for the chin.

You'll want to know: la barba

la barba — "the beard; the chin".

Mi padre lleva barba.

My father has a beard.

Llevar barba — to have a beard.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

barba is inherited from Latin barba "beard" (EtymDB); English barber comes from the same word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la barba
- Say it: la barba, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la barba
- Recall: say the Spanish for the cheek, then the Spanish for the chin, then say la barba again

Before you move on

What does la barba mean? ("The beard; the chin".) Say it once more.

736.5 la oreja — the ear (outer)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the chin, then the Spanish for the beard.

You'll want to know: la oreja

la oreja — "the ear (outer)".

Lleva un pendiente en la oreja.

He wears an earring in his ear.

La oreja is the outer ear; el oído is hearing and the inner ear.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

oreja is inherited from Latin auricula "little ear" through spoken oricla (EtymDB), a small form of auris "ear".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la oreja
- Say it: la oreja, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la oreja
- Recall: say the Spanish for the chin, then the Spanish for the beard, then say la oreja again

Before you move on

What does la oreja mean? (“The ear (outer)”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 737

Del codo a la cadera

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say where it hurts: elbow, wrist, waist, hip or ribs.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 737: I can say where it hurts: elbow, wrist, waist, hip or ribs.

737.1 el codo — the elbow

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the beard, then the Spanish for the ear.

You'll want to know: el codo

el codo — "the elbow".

> Me di un golpe en el codo.
>
> I banged my elbow.

Codo con codo — side by side.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

codo is inherited from Latin cubitus "elbow" (EtymDB), through Old Spanish cobdo.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el codo
- Say it: el codo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el codo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the beard, then the Spanish for the ear, then say el codo again

Before you move on

What does el codo mean? ("The elbow".) Say it once more.

737.2 la muñeca — the wrist; the doll

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the ear, then the Spanish for the elbow.

You'll want to know: la muñeca

la muñeca — "the wrist; the doll".

Me duele la muñeca de tanto escribir.

My wrist hurts from so much writing.

Two senses: the wrist and a doll.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

For muñeca the origin is not settled. Old Spanish munneca meant a doll (EtymDB); the wrist sense may come from the knob of bone, but no source is sure.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la muñeca
- Say it: la muñeca, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la muñeca
- Recall: say the Spanish for the ear, then the Spanish for the elbow, then say la muñeca again

Before you move on

What does la muñeca mean? ("The wrist; the doll".) Say it once more.

737.3 la cintura — the waist

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the elbow, then the Spanish for the wrist.

You'll want to know: la cintura

la cintura — "the waist".

El pantalón me queda grande de cintura.

The trousers are too big at the waist.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cintura comes from Latin cinctūra "a girdle, a belt" (EtymDB), from cingere "to gird".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la cintura
- Say it: la cintura, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la cintura
- Recall: say the Spanish for the elbow, then the Spanish for the wrist, then say la cintura again

Before you move on

What does la cintura mean? ("The waist".) Say it once more.

737.4 la cadera — the hip

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the wrist, then the Spanish for the waist.

You'll want to know: la cadera

la cadera — "the hip".

Mi abuela se rompió la cadera.

My grandmother broke her hip.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cadera is inherited from Latin cathedra "a seat, a chair", through spoken cathegra; the Latin came from Greek kathédra (EtymDB). The hips are what you sit on.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la cadera
- Say it: la cadera, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la cadera
- Recall: say the Spanish for the wrist, then the Spanish for the waist, then say la cadera again

Before you move on

What does la cadera mean? (“The hip”.) Say it once more.

737.5 la costilla — the rib

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the waist, then the Spanish for the hip.

You’ll want to know: la costilla

la costilla — “the rib”.

Me duele una costilla al respirar.

One of my ribs hurts when I breathe.

Las costillas de cerdo — pork ribs.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

costilla comes from Late Latin costula “little rib” (EtymDB), a small form of costa “rib, side”, the source of costa “coast”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la costilla
- Say it: la costilla, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la costilla
- Recall: say the Spanish for the waist, then the Spanish for the hip, then say la costilla again

Before you move on

What does la costilla mean? (“The rib”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 738

En la consulta del médico

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can explain my symptoms to a doctor and understand a diagnosis and a treatment.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 738: I can explain my symptoms to a doctor and understand a diagnosis and a treatment.

738.1 el diagnóstico — the diagnosis

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the hip, then the Spanish for the rib.

You'll want to know: el diagnóstico

el diagnóstico — "the diagnosis".

> El médico ya tiene el diagnóstico.
>
> The doctor has the diagnosis now.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

diagnóstico is a learned word built on Greek diagnōstikós "able to distinguish", from diagignṓskein "to tell apart", built on gignṓskein "to know".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el diagnóstico
- Say it: el diagnóstico, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el diagnóstico
- Recall: say the Spanish for the hip, then the Spanish for the rib, then say el diagnóstico again

Before you move on

What does el diagnóstico mean? ("The diagnosis".) Say it once more.

738.2 diagnosticar — to diagnose

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the rib, then the Spanish for the diagnosis.

You'll want to know: diagnosticar

diagnosticar — "to diagnose".

Le diagnosticaron diabetes.

He was diagnosed with diabetes.

Spelling: diagnostiqué.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

diagnosticar is built on diagnóstico, a learned word from Greek diagnōstikós "able to distinguish", built on gignṓskein "to know".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: diagnosticar
- Say it: diagnosticar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with diagnosticar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the rib, then the Spanish for the diagnosis, then say diagnosticar again

Before you move on

What does diagnosticar mean? ("To diagnose".) Say it once more.

738.3 el síntoma — the symptom

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the diagnosis, then the Spanish for to diagnose.

You'll want to know: el síntoma

el síntoma — "the symptom".

¿Qué síntomas tiene?

What symptoms do you have?

Masculine, though it ends in -a.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

síntoma comes from Late Latin symptōma, from Greek sýmptōma "a happening, a symptom" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el síntoma
- Say it: el síntoma, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el síntoma
- Recall: say the Spanish for the diagnosis, then the Spanish for to diagnose, then say el síntoma again

Before you move on

What does el síntoma mean? ("The symptom".) Say it once more.

738.4 el tratamiento — the treatment

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to diagnose, then the Spanish for the symptom.

You'll want to know: el tratamiento

el tratamiento — "the treatment".

El tratamiento dura dos semanas.

The treatment lasts two weeks.

Also a form of address: el tratamiento de usted.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

tratamiento is built on tratar "to treat", which is usually traced to Latin tractāre "to handle".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el tratamiento
- Say it: el tratamiento, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el tratamiento
- Recall: say the Spanish for to diagnose, then the Spanish for the symptom, then say el tratamiento again

Before you move on

What does el tratamiento mean? ("The treatment".) Say it once more.

738.5 padecer — to suffer from

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the symptom, then the Spanish for the treatment.

You'll want to know: padecer

padecer — "to suffer from".

Padece una enfermedad del corazón.

She suffers from a heart condition.

Padecer de + illness. More formal than sufrir.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

padecer is inherited from a spoken Latin patīscere (EtymDB), from patī "to suffer".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: padecer
- Say it: padecer, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with padecer
- Recall: say the Spanish for the symptom, then the Spanish for the treatment, then say padecer again

Before you move on

What does padecer mean? (“To suffer from”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 739

Curarse

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about treating an illness, an operation and getting better.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 739: I can talk about treating an illness, an operation and getting better.

739.1 curar — to cure, to heal

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the treatment, then the Spanish for to suffer from.

You'll want to know: curar

curar — "to cure, to heal".

El tiempo lo cura todo.

Time heals everything.

Curarse — to get better.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

curar is inherited from Latin cūrāre "to take care of" (EtymDB), built on cūra "care".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: curar
- Say it: curar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with curar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the treatment, then the Spanish for to suffer from, then say curar again

Before you move on

What does curar mean? ("To cure, to heal".) Say it once more.

739.2 mejorarse — to get better

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to suffer from, then the Spanish for to cure.

You'll want to know: mejorarse

mejorarse — "to get better".

¡Que te mejores pronto!

Get well soon!

¡Que te mejores! takes the subjunctive.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

mejorarse is built on mejor "better" (EtymDB), which is inherited from Latin melior.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: mejorarse
- Say it: mejorarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with mejorarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for to suffer from, then the Spanish for to cure, then say mejorarse again

Before you move on

What does mejorarse mean? ("To get better".) Say it once more.

739.3 la recuperación — recovery

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to cure, then the Spanish for to get better.

You'll want to know: la recuperación

la recuperación — "recovery".

Le deseo una pronta recuperación.

I wish you a speedy recovery.

Pronta recuperación — get well soon.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

recuperación is usually described as a learned borrowing from Latin recuperātiō, built on recuperāre "to get back".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la recuperación
- Say it: la recuperación, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la recuperación
- Recall: say the Spanish for to cure, then the Spanish for to get better, then say la recuperación again

Before you move on

What does la recuperación mean? ("Recovery".) Say it once more.

739.4 operar — to operate (on)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to get better, then the Spanish for recovery.

You'll want to know: operar

operar — "to operate (on)".

Me operan de la rodilla en mayo.

I am having a knee operation in May.

Operarse de — to have an operation on.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

operar is a learned borrowing from Late Latin operāre "to work" (EtymDB), built on opus "work".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: operar
- Say it: operar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with operar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to get better, then the Spanish for recovery, then say operar again

Before you move on

What does operar mean? ("To operate (on)".) Say it once more.

739.5 la cirugía — surgery

Before the new one: say the Spanish for recovery, then the Spanish for to operate.

You'll want to know: la cirugía

la cirugía — "surgery".

Necesita cirugía urgente.

He needs urgent surgery.

Cirugía estética — cosmetic surgery. The surgeon is el cirujano.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cirugía is usually traced to Latin chīrurgia, borrowed from Greek kheirourgía "handwork", built on kheír "hand" and érgon "work".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la cirugía
- Say it: la cirugía, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la cirugía
- Recall: say the Spanish for recovery, then the Spanish for to operate, then say la cirugía again

Before you move on

What does la cirugía mean? (“Surgery”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 740

Me siento mal

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say that I feel sick or faint and what relieves it.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 740: I can say that I feel sick or faint and what relieves it.

740.1 las náuseas — nausea, sickness

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to operate, then the Spanish for surgery.

You'll want to know: las náuseas

las náuseas — "nausea, sickness".

> El barco me da náuseas.
>
> Boats make me feel sick.

Usually plural: tener náuseas, dar náuseas.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

náuseas is a learned borrowing from Latin nausea, from Greek nausía "seasickness" (EtymDB), built on naûs "ship".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: las náuseas
- Say it: las náuseas, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with las náuseas
- Recall: say the Spanish for to operate, then the Spanish for surgery, then say las náuseas again

Before you move on

What does las náuseas mean? ("Nausea, sickness".) Say it once more.

740.2 aliviar — to relieve, to ease

Before the new one: say the Spanish for surgery, then the Spanish for nausea.

You'll want to know: aliviar

aliviar — "to relieve, to ease".

Esta pastilla alivia el dolor.

This tablet relieves the pain.

El alivio is the relief.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

aliviar is inherited from Latin alleviāre "to lighten" (EtymDB), built on levis "light".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: aliviar
- Say it: aliviar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with aliviar
- Recall: say the Spanish for surgery, then the Spanish for nausea, then say aliviar again

Before you move on

What does aliviar mean? ("To relieve, to ease".) Say it once more.

740.3 vomitar — to vomit, to be sick

Before the new one: say the Spanish for nausea, then the Spanish for to relieve.

You'll want to know: vomitar

vomitar — "to vomit, to be sick".

El niño vomitó en el coche.

The boy was sick in the car.

Tener ganas de vomitar — to feel sick.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

vomitar is a learned borrowing from Latin vomitāre (EtymDB), from vomere "to throw up".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: vomitar
- Say it: vomitar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with vomitar
- Recall: say the Spanish for nausea, then the Spanish for to relieve, then say vomitar again

Before you move on

What does vomitar mean? ("To vomit, to be sick".) Say it once more.

740.4 desmayarse — to faint

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to relieve, then the Spanish for to vomit.

You'll want to know: desmayarse

desmayarse — "to faint".

Se desmayó por el calor.

She fainted because of the heat.

El desmayo — the faint.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

desmayarse is the reflexive of desmayar, which is usually traced to Old French esmaier "to trouble, to dismay"; desmayo "a faint" is built on the verb, and English dismay is a cousin.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: desmayarse
- Say it: desmayarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with desmayarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for to relieve, then the Spanish for to vomit, then say desmayarse again

Before you move on

What does desmayarse mean? ("To faint".) Say it once more.

740.5 la alergia — the allergy

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to vomit, then the Spanish for to faint.

You'll want to know: la alergia

la alergia — "the allergy".

Tengo alergia al polen.

I am allergic to pollen.

Tener alergia a algo; the adjective is alérgico.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

alergia was borrowed from German Allergie (EtymDB), a word an Austrian doctor coined in 1906 from Greek állos "other" and érgon "work".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la alergia
- Say it: la alergia, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la alergia
- Recall: say the Spanish for to vomit, then the Spanish for to faint, then say la alergia again

Before you move on

What does la alergia mean? (“The allergy”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 741

Cansancio y descanso

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say how tired I am and how I sleep.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 741: I can say how tired I am and how I sleep.

741.1 el cansancio — tiredness

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to faint, then the Spanish for the allergy.

You'll want to know: el cansancio

el cansancio — "tiredness".

Siento mucho cansancio.

I feel very tired.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cansancio is built on cansar "to tire", which comes from Latin campsāre "to bend, to sail round a headland" (EtymDB; Lewis & Short). How the sense moved to tiring is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el cansancio
- Say it: el cansancio, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el cansancio
- Recall: say the Spanish for to faint, then the Spanish for the allergy, then say el cansancio again

Before you move on

What does el cansancio mean? ("Tiredness".) Say it once more.

741.2 agotado — exhausted; sold out

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the allergy, then the Spanish for tiredness.

You'll want to know: agotado

agotado — "exhausted; sold out".

Después del viaje estoy agotado.

After the trip I am exhausted.

On a ticket office: agotado — sold out.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

agotado is the participle of agotar, usually explained as built on gota "drop", from Latin gutta: emptied down to the last drop.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: agotado
- Say it: agotado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with agotado
- Recall: say the Spanish for the allergy, then the Spanish for tiredness, then say agotado again

Before you move on

What does agotado mean? ("Exhausted; sold out".) Say it once more.

741.3 dormirse — to fall asleep

Before the new one: say the Spanish for tiredness, then the Spanish for exhausted.

You'll want to know: dormirse

dormirse — "to fall asleep".

Me dormí viendo la tele.

I fell asleep watching TV.

Dormirse also means to oversleep: me dormí y llegué tarde.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

dormirse is the reflexive of dormir, which is usually traced to Latin dormīre "to sleep".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: dormirse
- Say it: dormirse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with dormirse
- Recall: say the Spanish for tiredness, then the Spanish for exhausted, then say dormirse again

Before you move on

What does dormirse mean? ("To fall asleep".) Say it once more.

741.4 el insomnio — insomnia

Before the new one: say the Spanish for exhausted, then the Spanish for to fall asleep.

You'll want to know: el insomnio

el insomnio — "insomnia".

Sufro de insomnio.

I suffer from insomnia.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

insomnio is usually traced to Latin insomnia "want of sleep" (Lewis & Short), built on in- "not" and somnus "sleep"; its ending follows Latin insomnium, which in Latin meant a dream.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el insomnio
- Say it: el insomnio, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with el insomnio
- Recall: say the Spanish for exhausted, then the Spanish for to fall asleep, then say el insomnio again

Before you move on

What does el insomnio mean? (“Insomnia”.) Say it once more.

741.5 la siesta — the nap, the siesta

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to fall asleep, then the Spanish for insomnia.

You’ll want to know: la siesta

la siesta — “the nap, the siesta”.

Después de comer echo la siesta.

After lunch I have a nap.

Echar la siesta (Spain) or dormir la siesta.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

siesta is inherited from Latin sexta, short for sexta hōra “the sixth hour” (EtymDB): counted from dawn, the sixth hour is midday.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la siesta
- Say it: la siesta, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la siesta
- Recall: say the Spanish for to fall asleep, then the Spanish for insomnia, then say la siesta again

Before you move on

What does la siesta mean? (“The nap, the siesta”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 742

Comer bien

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about diet, appetite, chewing well, being overweight and exercise.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 742: I can talk about diet, appetite, chewing well, being overweight and exercise.

742.1 la dieta — the diet

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for insomnia, then the Spanish for the nap.

You'll want to know: la dieta

la dieta — "the diet".

> Estoy a dieta.
>
> I am on a diet.

Estar a dieta — to be on a diet.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins dieta comes from Latin diaeta, which was borrowed from Greek díaita "way of life" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la dieta
- Say it: la dieta, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la dieta
- Recall: say the Spanish for insomnia, then the Spanish for the nap, then say la dieta again

Before you move on

What does la dieta mean? ("The diet".) Say it once more.

742.2 el sobrepeso — excess weight, being overweight

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the nap, then the Spanish for the diet.

You'll want to know: el sobrepeso

el sobrepeso — "excess weight, being overweight".

El médico dice que tengo sobrepeso.

The doctor says I am overweight.

Tener sobrepeso — to be overweight.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sobrepeso is built on sobre "over", from Latin super, and peso "weight", from Latin pēnsum "something weighed".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el sobrepeso
- Say it: el sobrepeso, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el sobrepeso
- Recall: say the Spanish for the nap, then the Spanish for the diet, then say el sobrepeso again

Before you move on

What does el sobrepeso mean? ("Excess weight, being overweight".) Say it once more.

742.3 el apetito — appetite

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the diet, then the Spanish for excess weight.

You'll want to know: el apetito

el apetito — "appetite".

No tengo apetito hoy.

I have no appetite today.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

apetito comes from Latin appetītus "desire" (EtymDB), from appetere "to seek after", built on petere "to aim at".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el apetito
- Say it: el apetito, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el apetito
- Recall: say the Spanish for the diet, then the Spanish for excess weight, then say el apetito again

Before you move on

What does el apetito mean? ("Appetite".) Say it once more.

742.4 el ejercicio — exercise

Before the new one: say the Spanish for excess weight, then the Spanish for appetite.

You'll want to know: el ejercicio

el ejercicio — "exercise".

Hago ejercicio tres veces por semana.

I exercise three times a week.

Hacer ejercicio — to exercise. Also a school exercise.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ejercicio comes from Latin exercitium "exercise" (EtymDB), from exercēre "to keep busy, to train".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el ejercicio
- Say it: el ejercicio, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el ejercicio
- Recall: say the Spanish for excess weight, then the Spanish for appetite, then say el ejercicio again

Before you move on

What does el ejercicio mean? (“Exercise”.) Say it once more.

742.5 masticar — to chew

Before the new one: say the Spanish for appetite, then the Spanish for exercise.

You’ll want to know: masticar

masticar — “to chew”.

Hay que masticar bien la comida.

You have to chew your food well.

Spelling: mastiqué. Mascar is the older, everyday twin.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

masticar is a learned borrowing from Late Latin masticāre “to chew” (EtymDB); the inherited form of the same word is mascar.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: masticar
- Say it: masticar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with masticar
- Recall: say the Spanish for appetite, then the Spanish for exercise, then say masticar again

Before you move on

What does masticar mean? ("To chew".) Say it once more.

Chapter 743

Salud emocional

Modes: voice (6) Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about therapists, therapy, well-being and self-esteem.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 743: I can talk about therapists, therapy, well-being and self-esteem.

743.1 el terapeuta — the therapist

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for exercise, then the Spanish for to chew.

You'll want to know: el terapeuta

el terapeuta — "the therapist".

> Mi terapeuta me escucha mucho.
>
> My therapist really listens to me.

Same form for men and women.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

terapeuta comes from Greek therapeutês "attendant" (EtymDB), from therapeúein "to serve, to treat".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el terapeuta
- Say it: el terapeuta, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el terapeuta
- Recall: say the Spanish for exercise, then the Spanish for to chew, then say el terapeuta again

Before you move on

What does el terapeuta mean? ("The therapist".) Say it once more.

743.2 la terapia — therapy

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to chew, then the Spanish for the therapist.

You'll want to know: la terapia

la terapia — "therapy".

Voy a terapia una vez por semana.

I go to therapy once a week.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

terapia comes from Greek therapeía "service, medical treatment" (EtymDB), from therapeúein "to serve, to treat".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la terapia
- Say it: la terapia, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la terapia
- Recall: say the Spanish for to chew, then the Spanish for the therapist, then say la terapia again

Before you move on

What does la terapia mean? ("Therapy".) Say it once more.

743.3 el psicólogo — the psychologist

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the therapist, then the Spanish for therapy.

You'll want to know: el psicólogo

el psicólogo — "the psychologist".

Mi hermana es psicóloga.

My sister is a psychologist.

The p is often silent in speech; sicólogo is also accepted.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

psicólogo is built on Greek psykhḗ "breath, soul, mind" and lógos "word, study": one who studies the mind.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el psicólogo
- Say it: el psicólogo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el psicólogo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the therapist, then the Spanish for therapy, then say el psicólogo again

Before you move on

What does el psicólogo mean? ("The psychologist".) Say it once more.

743.4 el bienestar — well-being

Before the new one: say the Spanish for therapy, then the Spanish for the psychologist.

You'll want to know: el bienestar

el bienestar — "well-being".

El deporte mejora el bienestar.

Sport improves well-being.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

bienestar is built on bien "well", from Latin bene, and estar "to be", from Latin stāre "to stand".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el bienestar
- Say it: el bienestar, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with el bienestar
- Recall: say the Spanish for therapy, then the Spanish for the psychologist, then say el bienestar again

Before you move on

What does el bienestar mean? ("Well-being".) Say it once more.

743.5 la autoestima — self-esteem

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the psychologist, then the Spanish for well-being.

You'll want to know: la autoestima

la autoestima — "self-esteem".

Tiene la autoestima muy baja.

He has very low self-esteem.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

autoestima is built on Greek autós "self" and estima "esteem", from estimar, a learned borrowing from Latin aestimāre "to value" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la autoestima
- Say it: la autoestima, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la autoestima
- Recall: say the Spanish for the psychologist, then the Spanish for well-being, then say la autoestima again

Before you move on

What does la autoestima mean? (“Self-esteem”.) Say it once more.

743.6 Repaso de los capítulos 736–743

Say the Spanish for the forehead and the cheek.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the forehead, the cheek, the chin, the beard, the ear
- the elbow, the wrist, the waist, the hip, the rib
- the diagnosis, to diagnose, the symptom, the treatment, to suffer from
- to cure, to get better, recovery, to operate, surgery
- nausea, to relieve, to vomit, to faint, the allergy
- tiredness, exhausted, to fall asleep, insomnia, the nap
- the diet, excess weight, appetite, exercise, to chew
- the therapist, therapy, the psychologist, well-being, self-esteem

Before you move on

The forehead? (la frente.) The cheek? (la mejilla.) The chin? (la barbilla.) The beard? (la barba.) The ear? (la oreja.) The elbow? (el codo.) The wrist? (la muñeca.) The waist? (la cintura.) The hip? (la cadera.) The rib? (la costilla.) The diagnosis? (el diagnóstico.) To diagnose? (diagnosticar.) The symptom? (el síntoma.) The treatment? (el tratamiento.) To suffer from? (padecer.) To cure? (curar.) To get better? (mejorarse.) Recovery? (la recuperación.) To operate? (operar.) Surgery? (la cirugía.) Nausea? (las náuseas.) To relieve? (aliviar.) To vomit? (vomitar.) To faint? (desmayarse.) The allergy? (la alergia.) Tiredness? (el cansancio.) Exhausted?

(agotado.) To fall asleep? (dormirse.) Insomnia? (el insomnio.) The nap? (la siesta.) The diet? (la dieta.) Excess weight? (el sobrepeso.) Appetite? (el apetito.) Exercise? (el ejercicio.) To chew? (masticar.) The therapist? (el terapeuta.) Therapy? (la terapia.) The psychologist? (el psicólogo.) Well-being? (el bienestar.) Self-esteem? (la autoestima.)

Chapter 744

Flechazos y piropos

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about falling for someone, compliments, a courtship and admirers.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 744: I can talk about falling for someone, compliments, a courtship and admirers.

744.1 el flechazo — love at first sight

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for well-being, then the Spanish for self-esteem.

You'll want to know: el flechazo

el flechazo — "love at first sight".

> Fue un flechazo: nos casamos en un año.
>
> It was love at first sight: we married within a year.

Literally an arrow shot, Cupid's arrow.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

flechazo is built on flecha "arrow" with -azo, the ending for a blow. Flecha is usually traced to French flèche.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el flechazo
- Say it: el flechazo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el flechazo
- Recall: say the Spanish for well-being, then the Spanish for self-esteem, then say el flechazo again

Before you move on

What does el flechazo mean? ("Love at first sight".) Say it once more.

744.2 el piropo — the compliment (flirtatious)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for self-esteem, then the Spanish for love at first sight.

You'll want to know: el piropo

el piropo — "the compliment (flirtatious)".

Mi marido siempre me echa piropos.

My husband is always paying me compliments.

Echar un piropo — to pay someone a flirtatious compliment. From a stranger in the street, a piropo is now widely seen as harassment.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

piropo comes from Latin pyrōpus "gold-bronze", from Greek pyrōpós "fire-coloured" (EtymDB; Lewis & Short); the name of a red gem became the word for a sparkling compliment.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el piropo
- Say it: el piropo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el piropo
- Recall: say the Spanish for self-esteem, then the Spanish for love at first sight, then say el piropo again

Before you move on

What does el piropo mean? ("The compliment (flirtatious)".) Say it once more.

744.3 el noviazgo — the courtship, the engagement

Before the new one: say the Spanish for love at first sight, then the Spanish for the compliment.

You'll want to know: el noviazgo

el noviazgo — "the courtship, the engagement".

Tuvieron un noviazgo de cinco años.

Their courtship lasted five years.

The time when two people are novios.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

noviazgo is built on novio with the ending -azgo; novio comes from a spoken Latin novius "newly married", from novus "new" (EtymDB, under novio).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el noviazgo
- Say it: el noviazgo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el noviazgo
- Recall: say the Spanish for love at first sight, then the Spanish for the compliment, then say el noviazgo again

Before you move on

What does el noviazgo mean? ("The courtship, the engagement".) Say it once more.

744.4 el pretendiente — the suitor, the admirer

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the compliment, then the Spanish for the courtship.

You'll want to know: el pretendiente

el pretendiente — "the suitor, the admirer".

Tiene muchos pretendientes.

She has a lot of admirers.

Also a candidate for a job or a throne.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

pretendiente is built on pretender "to aim at, to court", a learned borrowing from Latin praetendere "to hold out in front" (EtymDB), from tendere "to stretch".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el pretendiente
- Say it: el pretendiente, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el pretendiente
- Recall: say the Spanish for the compliment, then the Spanish for the courtship, then say el pretendiente again

Before you move on

What does el pretendiente mean? ("The suitor, the admirer".) Say it once more.

744.5 la complicidad — closeness, understanding; complicity

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the courtship, then the Spanish for the suitor.

You'll want to know: la complicidad

la complicidad — "closeness, understanding; complicity".

Entre ellos hay mucha complicidad.

There is a great understanding between them.

Between friends or partners it is a warm word; in law it is complicity.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

complicidad is built on cómplice, usually described as a learned borrowing from Late Latin complex, complicem "closely joined", from plicāre "to fold".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la complicidad
- Say it: la complicidad, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la complicidad
- Recall: say the Spanish for the courtship, then the Spanish for the suitor, then say la complicidad again

Before you move on

What does la complicidad mean? ("Closeness, understanding; complicity".) Say it once more.

Chapter 745

Cuando se acaba

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about unfaithfulness, a break-up and betrayal.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 745: I can talk about unfaithfulness, a break-up and betrayal.

745.1 la relación — the relationship

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the suitor, then the Spanish for closeness.

You'll want to know: la relación

la relación — "the relationship".

> Tenemos una buena relación.
>
> We have a good relationship.

Estar en una relación — to be in a relationship.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

relación comes from Latin relātiō "a carrying back, a report" (EtymDB), from referre, built on ferre "to carry".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la relación
- Say it: la relación, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la relación
- Recall: say the Spanish for the suitor, then the Spanish for closeness, then say la relación again

Before you move on

What does la relación mean? ("The relationship".) Say it once more.

745.2 la ruptura — the break-up

Before the new one: say the Spanish for closeness, then the Spanish for the relationship.

You'll want to know: la ruptura

la ruptura — "the break-up".

Después de la ruptura, se fue a vivir sola.

After the break-up, she went to live alone.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ruptura is a learned borrowing from Latin ruptūra "a breaking" (EtymDB), from rumpere "to break", the source of romper.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la ruptura
- Say it: la ruptura, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la ruptura
- Recall: say the Spanish for closeness, then the Spanish for the relationship, then say la ruptura again

Before you move on

What does la ruptura mean? ("The break-up".) Say it once more.

745.3 infiel — unfaithful

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the relationship, then the Spanish for the break-up.

You'll want to know: infiel

infiel — "unfaithful".

Descubrió que su novio le era infiel.

She found out her boyfriend was unfaithful.

Ser infiel a alguien. La infidelidad — infidelity.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

infiel comes from Latin īnfidēlis "unfaithful", built on in- "not" and fidēlis "faithful", from fidēs "faith".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: infiel
- Say it: infiel, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with infiel
- Recall: say the Spanish for the relationship, then the Spanish for the break-up, then say infiel again

Before you move on

What does infiel mean? ("Unfaithful".) Say it once more.

745.4 traicionar — to betray

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the break-up, then the Spanish for unfaithful.

You'll want to know: traicionar

traicionar — "to betray".

Me traicionó mi mejor amigo.

My best friend betrayed me.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

traicionar is built on traición, usually traced to Latin trāditiō "a handing over", from trādere "to hand over".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: traicionar
- Say it: traicionar, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with traicionar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the break-up, then the Spanish for unfaithful, then say traicionar again

Before you move on

What does traicionar mean? (“To betray”.) Say it once more.

745.5 la traición — betrayal, treason

Before the new one: say the Spanish for unfaithful, then the Spanish for to betray.

You’ll want to know: la traición

la traición — “betrayal, treason”.

Fue una traición imperdonable.

It was an unforgivable betrayal.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

traición is usually traced to Latin trāditiō, trāditiōnem “a handing over”, built on trādere “to hand over”; English treason is the same word through French.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la traición
- Say it: la traición, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la traición
- Recall: say the Spanish for unfaithful, then the Spanish for to betray, then say la traición again

Before you move on

What does la traición mean? (“Betrayal, treason”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 746

Engaños y coqueteos

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about flirting, chatting someone up, caresses and deceit.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 746: I can talk about flirting, chatting someone up, caresses and deceit.

746.1 acariciar — to stroke, to caress

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to betray, then the Spanish for betrayal.

You'll want to know: acariciar

acariciar — "to stroke, to caress".

> Le gusta acariciar al gato.
>
> She likes stroking the cat.

Una caricia — a caress.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

acariciar is built on caricia, which was borrowed from Italian carezza (EtymDB), from caro "dear", Latin cārus.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: acariciar
- Say it: acariciar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with acariciar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to betray, then the Spanish for betrayal, then say acariciar again

Before you move on

What does acariciar mean? ("To stroke, to caress".) Say it once more.

746.2 el engaño — the deception, the trick

Before the new one: say the Spanish for betrayal, then the Spanish for to stroke.

You'll want to know: el engaño

el engaño — "the deception, the trick".

La oferta era un engaño.

The offer was a trick.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

engaño is built on engañar "to deceive", which is usually traced to spoken Latin ingannāre "to mock".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el engaño
- Say it: el engaño, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el engaño
- Recall: say the Spanish for betrayal, then the Spanish for to stroke, then say el engaño again

Before you move on

What does el engaño mean? ("The deception, the trick".) Say it once more.

746.3 ligar — to chat up, to pick up; to tie

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to stroke, then the Spanish for the deception.

You'll want to know: ligar

ligar — "to chat up, to pick up; to tie".

Fue a la discoteca a ligar.

He went to the club to pick someone up.

Colloquial, mainly in Spain: ligar con alguien. Also to tie, to bind.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ligar is usually traced to Latin ligāre "to tie, to bind" (Lewis & Short); the slang sense of flirting grew from the idea of tying.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: ligar
- Say it: ligar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with ligar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to stroke, then the Spanish for the deception, then say ligar again

Before you move on

What does ligar mean? ("To chat up, to pick up; to tie".) Say it once more.

746.4 coquetear — to flirt

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the deception, then the Spanish for to chat up.

You'll want to know: coquetear

coquetear — "to flirt".

Coquetea con todo el mundo.

She flirts with everyone.

Coqueto — flirtatious; also vain about one's looks.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

coquetear is built on coqueta, borrowed from French coquette (EtymDB), from coq "cockerel": showing off like a strutting cock.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: coquetear
- Say it: coquetear, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with coquetear
- Recall: say the Spanish for the deception, then the Spanish for to chat up, then say coquetear again

Before you move on

What does coquetear mean? ("To flirt".) Say it once more.

746.5 el amante — the lover; lover of something

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to chat up, then the Spanish for to flirt.

You'll want to know: el amante

el amante — "the lover; lover of something".

Es un amante de la música.

He is a music lover.

La amante for a woman. Amante de — keen on.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

amante comes from Latin amāns, amantem "loving" (EtymDB), the present participle of amāre.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el amante
- Say it: el amante, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el amante
- Recall: say the Spanish for to chat up, then the Spanish for to flirt, then say el amante again

Before you move on

What does el amante mean? ("The lover; lover of something".) Say it once more.

Chapter 747

La familia política

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can name my in-laws and talk about them.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 747: I can name my in-laws and talk about them.

747.1 el cuñado — the brother-in-law

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to flirt, then the Spanish for the lover.

You'll want to know: el cuñado

el cuñado — "the brother-in-law".

> Mi cuñado vive en Valencia.
>
> My brother-in-law lives in Valencia.

La cuñada — sister-in-law.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cuñado is usually traced to Latin cognātus "related by blood" (Lewis & Short); Spanish narrowed it to the in-law.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el cuñado
- Say it: el cuñado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el cuñado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to flirt, then the Spanish for the lover, then say el cuñado again

Before you move on

What does el cuñado mean? ("The brother-in-law".) Say it once more.

747.2 el suegro — the father-in-law

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the lover, then the Spanish for the brother-in-law.

You'll want to know: el suegro

el suegro — "the father-in-law".

Mi suegro cocina muy bien.

My father-in-law cooks very well.

Los suegros — the parents-in-law.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

suegro is usually traced to Latin socer, socerum "father-in-law" (Lewis & Short); the stressed o became ue.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el suegro
- Say it: el suegro, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el suegro
- Recall: say the Spanish for the lover, then the Spanish for the brother-in-law, then say el suegro again

Before you move on

What does el suegro mean? ("The father-in-law".) Say it once more.

747.3 la suegra — the mother-in-law

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the brother-in-law, then the Spanish for the father-in-law.

You'll want to know: la suegra

la suegra — "the mother-in-law".

Mi suegra viene a comer el domingo.

My mother-in-law is coming for lunch on Sunday.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins suegra is inherited from spoken Latin socra, Latin socrus "mother-in-law" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la suegra
- Say it: la suegra, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la suegra
- Recall: say the Spanish for the brother-in-law, then the Spanish for the father-in-law, then say la suegra again

Before you move on

What does la suegra mean? ("The mother-in-law".) Say it once more.

747.4 el yerno — the son-in-law

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the father-in-law, then the Spanish for the mother-in-law.

You'll want to know: el yerno

el yerno — "the son-in-law".

Su yerno es médico.

Her son-in-law is a doctor.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

yerno is inherited from Latin gener, generum "son-in-law" (EtymDB); Latin ge- became ye-.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el yerno
- Say it: el yerno, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el yerno
- Recall: say the Spanish for the father-in-law, then the Spanish for the mother-in-law, then say el yerno again

Before you move on

What does el yerno mean? (“The son-in-law”.) Say it once more.

747.5 la nuera — the daughter-in-law

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the mother-in-law, then the Spanish for the son-in-law.

You’ll want to know: la nuera

la nuera — “the daughter-in-law”.

Se lleva muy bien con su nuera.

She gets on very well with her daughter-in-law.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

nuera is inherited from Latin nurus “daughter-in-law”, through spoken nora and Old Spanish nuera (EtymDB).

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la nuera
- Say it: la nuera, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la nuera
- Recall: say the Spanish for the mother-in-law, then the Spanish for the son-in-law, then say la nuera again

Before you move on

What does la nuera mean? (“The daughter-in-law”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 748

Familias de hoy

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about adoption, fostering and step-parents in a family.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 748: I can talk about adoption, fostering and step-parents in a family.

748.1 adoptar — to adopt

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the son-in-law, then the Spanish for the daughter-in-law.

You'll want to know: adoptar

adoptar — "to adopt".

> Adoptaron a una niña.
>
> They adopted a little girl.

Also for pets and ideas: adoptar un perro, adoptar una medida.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

adoptar is a learned borrowing from Latin adoptāre "to choose for oneself" (EtymDB), built on optāre "to choose".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: adoptar
- Say it: adoptar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with adoptar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the son-in-law, then the Spanish for the daughter-in-law, then say adoptar again

Before you move on

What does adoptar mean? ("To adopt".) Say it once more.

748.2 acoger — to take in, to foster; to welcome

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the daughter-in-law, then the Spanish for to adopt.

You'll want to know: acoger

acoger — "to take in, to foster; to welcome".

Acogieron a dos niños durante un año.

They fostered two children for a year.

Spelling: acojo. Una familia de acogida — a foster family.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

acoger is inherited from a spoken Latin accolligere (EtymDB), built on colligere "to gather": to gather someone in.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: acoger
- Say it: acoger, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with acoger
- Recall: say the Spanish for the daughter-in-law, then the Spanish for to adopt, then say acoger again

Before you move on

What does acoger mean? ("To take in, to foster; to welcome".) Say it once more.

748.3 la adopción — adoption

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to adopt, then the Spanish for to take in.

You'll want to know: la adopción

la adopción — "adoption".

La adopción tardó dos años.

The adoption took two years.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

adopción is a learned borrowing from Latin adoptiō (EtymDB), from adoptāre "to choose for oneself".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la adopción
- Say it: la adopción, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la adopción
- Recall: say the Spanish for to adopt, then the Spanish for to take in, then say la adopción again

Before you move on

What does la adopción mean? ("Adoption".) Say it once more.

748.4 la madrastra — the stepmother

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to take in, then the Spanish for adoption.

You'll want to know: la madrastra

la madrastra — "the stepmother".

Se lleva bien con su madrastra.

She gets on well with her stepmother.

Fairy tales give it a bad name; today people often say la mujer de mi padre.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

madrastra is inherited from spoken Latin mātrastra (EtymDB), built on māter "mother" with a belittling ending.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la madrastra
- Say it: la madrastra, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la madrastra
- Recall: say the Spanish for to take in, then the Spanish for adoption, then say la madrastra again

Before you move on

What does la madrastra mean? (“The stepmother”.) Say it once more.

748.5 el padrastro — the stepfather; the hangnail

Before the new one: say the Spanish for adoption, then the Spanish for the stepmother.

You’ll want to know: el padrastro

el padrastro — “the stepfather; the hangnail”.

Mi padrastro me enseñó a nadar.

My stepfather taught me to swim.

Also a hangnail beside a fingernail.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

padrastro is usually traced to a spoken Latin patraster, built on pater “father” with the belittling ending -aster.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el padrastro
- Say it: el padrastro, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el padrastro
- Recall: say the Spanish for adoption, then the Spanish for the stepmother, then say el padrastro again

Before you move on

What does el padrastro mean? (“The stepfather; the hangnail”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 749

Más parientes

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe more family members: a teenager, twins, a stepbrother, a great-grandfather and an orphan.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 749: I can describe more family members: a teenager, twins, a stepbrother, a great-grandfather and an orphan.

749.1 el gemelo — the twin; the calf (muscle)

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the stepmother, then the Spanish for the stepfather.

You'll want to know: el gemelo

el gemelo — "the twin; the calf (muscle)".

> Mi hermana tiene dos gemelos.
>
> My sister has twins.

Los gemelos are also the calf muscles and cufflinks. Non-identical twins are mellizos.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

gemelo is a learned borrowing from Latin gemellus "twin" (EtymDB), a small form of geminus "twin".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el gemelo
- Say it: el gemelo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el gemelo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the stepmother, then the Spanish for the stepfather, then say el gemelo again

Before you move on

What does el gemelo mean? ("The twin; the calf (muscle)".) Say it once more.

749.2 el hermanastro — the stepbrother

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the stepfather, then the Spanish for the twin.

You'll want to know: el hermanastro

el hermanastro — "the stepbrother".

Mi hermanastro vive con nosotros.

My stepbrother lives with us.

La hermanastra — stepsister.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

hermanastro is built on hermano with the ending -astro (EtymDB); hermano is inherited from Latin germānus "of the same parents".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el hermanastro
- Say it: el hermanastro, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el hermanastro
- Recall: say the Spanish for the stepfather, then the Spanish for the twin, then say el hermanastro again

Before you move on

What does el hermanastro mean? ("The stepbrother".) Say it once more.

749.3 el adolescente — the teenager

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the twin, then the Spanish for the stepbrother.

You'll want to know: el adolescente

el adolescente — "the teenager".

Mi hijo es un adolescente.

My son is a teenager.

La adolescente for a girl.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

adolescente is a learned borrowing from Latin adolēscēns "growing up" (EtymDB), the participle of adolēscere.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el adolescente
- Say it: el adolescente, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el adolescente
- Recall: say the Spanish for the twin, then the Spanish for the stepbrother, then say el adolescente again

Before you move on

What does el adolescente mean? ("The teenager".) Say it once more.

749.4 el bisabuelo — the great-grandfather

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the stepbrother, then the Spanish for the teenager.

You'll want to know: el bisabuelo

el bisabuelo — "the great-grandfather".

Mi bisabuelo vivió cien años.

My great-grandfather lived to a hundred.

Los bisabuelos — great-grandparents.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

bisabuelo is built on Latin bis "twice" and abuelo "grandfather", which is usually traced to Latin aviolus, from avus "grandfather".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el bisabuelo
- Say it: el bisabuelo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el bisabuelo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the stepbrother, then the Spanish for the teenager, then say el bisabuelo again

Before you move on

What does el bisabuelo mean? ("The great-grandfather".) Say it once more.

749.5 el huérfano — the orphan

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the teenager, then the Spanish for the great-grandfather.

You'll want to know: el huérfano

el huérfano — "the orphan".

Se quedó huérfano a los diez años.

He was orphaned at ten.

Quedarse huérfano — to be orphaned.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

huérfano is usually traced to Late Latin orphanus, borrowed from Greek orphanós "bereft".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el huérfano
- Say it: el huérfano, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el huérfano
- Recall: say the Spanish for the teenager, then the Spanish for the great-grandfather, then say el huérfano again

Before you move on

What does el huérfano mean? ("The orphan".) Say it once more.

Chapter 750

Bajo el mismo techo

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about sharing a home, pampering each other and the bonds that support us.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 750: I can talk about sharing a home, pampering each other and the bonds that support us.

750.1 el vínculo — the bond, the link

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the great-grandfather, then the Spanish for the orphan.

You'll want to know: el vínculo

el vínculo — "the bond, the link".

> Tengo un vínculo especial con mi abuela.
>
> I have a special bond with my grandmother.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

vínculo is a learned borrowing from Latin vinculum "bond, link" (EtymDB), built on vincīre "to bind".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el vínculo
- Say it: el vínculo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el vínculo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the great-grandfather, then the Spanish for the orphan, then say el vínculo again

Before you move on

What does el vínculo mean? ("The bond, the link".) Say it once more.

750.2 mimar — to spoil, to pamper

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the orphan, then the Spanish for the bond.

You'll want to know: mimar

mimar — "to spoil, to pamper".

Los abuelos miman mucho a los nietos.

Grandparents really spoil their grandchildren.

Mimado — spoilt. Los mimos — cuddles, pampering.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

mimar is built on mimo "a cuddle, pampering", which is usually traced to Latin mīmus "mime, clown", from Greek mîmos: the playful faces made to a child.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: mimar
- Say it: mimar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with mimar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the orphan, then the Spanish for the bond, then say mimar again

Before you move on

What does mimar mean? ("To spoil, to pamper".) Say it once more.

750.3 convivir — to live together

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the bond, then the Spanish for to spoil.

You'll want to know: convivir

convivir — "to live together".

Convivo con dos compañeros de piso.

I live with two flatmates.

La convivencia — living together.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

convivir comes from Latin convīvere "to live together" (EtymDB), built on vīvere "to live".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: convivir
- Say it: convivir, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with convivir
- Recall: say the Spanish for the bond, then the Spanish for to spoil, then say convivir again

Before you move on

What does convivir mean? ("To live together".) Say it once more.

750.4 el colega — the colleague; mate

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to spoil, then the Spanish for to live together.

You'll want to know: el colega

el colega — "the colleague; mate".

Voy a cenar con unos colegas.

I am having dinner with some mates.

At work it is a colleague; in Spain, colloquially, a mate.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

colega is a learned borrowing from Latin collēga "a partner in office" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el colega
- Say it: el colega, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el colega
- Recall: say the Spanish for to spoil, then the Spanish for to live together, then say el colega again

Before you move on

What does el colega mean? ("The colleague; mate".) Say it once more.

750.5 el apoyo — support

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to live together, then the Spanish for the colleague.

You'll want to know: el apoyo

el apoyo — "support".

Gracias por tu apoyo.

Thank you for your support.

Apoyar — to support.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

apoyo is built on apoyar (EtymDB), which is usually traced to Italian appoggiare "to lean on", from Latin podium "a raised base".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el apoyo
- Say it: el apoyo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el apoyo
- Recall: say the Spanish for to live together, then the Spanish for the colleague, then say el apoyo again

Before you move on

What does el apoyo mean? (“Support”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 751

Mis aficiones

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about my hobbies, what I collect and what I like to paint.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 751: I can talk about my hobbies, what I collect and what I like to paint.

751.1 la afición — the hobby; liking; fans

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the colleague, then the Spanish for support.

You'll want to know: la afición

la afición — "the hobby; liking; fans".

> Mi afición es la fotografía.
>
> My hobby is photography.

Tener afición a — to be keen on. La afición is also a team's fans.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

afición comes from Latin affectiō "disposition, affection" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la afición
- Say it: la afición, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la afición
- Recall: say the Spanish for the colleague, then the Spanish for support, then say la afición again

Before you move on

What does la afición mean? ("The hobby; liking; fans".) Say it once more.

751.2 el pasatiempo — the pastime

Before the new one: say the Spanish for support, then the Spanish for the hobby.

You'll want to know: el pasatiempo

el pasatiempo — "the pastime".

Leer es mi pasatiempo favorito.

Reading is my favourite pastime.

Plural los pasatiempos — also puzzles in a newspaper.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

pasatiempo is built on pasar "to pass" and tiempo "time". Pasar is usually traced to a spoken Latin verb built on passus "step", and tiempo comes from Latin tempus "time" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el pasatiempo
- Say it: el pasatiempo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el pasatiempo
- Recall: say the Spanish for support, then the Spanish for the hobby, then say el pasatiempo again

Before you move on

What does el pasatiempo mean? ("The pastime".) Say it once more.

751.3 coleccionar — to collect

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the hobby, then the Spanish for the pastime.

You'll want to know: coleccionar

coleccionar — "to collect".

Colecciono sellos desde niño.

I have collected stamps since I was a boy.

For hobbies; to pick someone up is recoger.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

coleccionar is built on colección, a learned borrowing from Latin collēctiō "a gathering together" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: coleccionar
- Say it: coleccionar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with coleccionar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the hobby, then the Spanish for the pastime, then say coleccionar again

Before you move on

What does coleccionar mean? ("To collect".) Say it once more.

751.4 la colección — the collection

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the pastime, then the Spanish for to collect.

You'll want to know: la colección

la colección — "the collection".

Tiene una colección de monedas antiguas.

He has a collection of old coins.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

colección was borrowed from Latin collēctiō "a gathering together" (EtymDB), from colligere, built on legere "to gather".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la colección
- Say it: la colección, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la colección
- Recall: say the Spanish for the pastime, then the Spanish for to collect, then say la colección again

Before you move on

What does la colección mean? (“The collection”.) Say it once more.

751.5 la acuarela — watercolour

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to collect, then the Spanish for the collection.

You’ll want to know: la acuarela

la acuarela — “watercolour”.

Pinto acuarelas los fines de semana.

I paint watercolours at weekends.

Both the paint and the picture.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

acuarela was borrowed from Italian acquerello (EtymDB), built on acqua “water”, from Latin aqua.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la acuarela
- Say it: la acuarela, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la acuarela
- Recall: say the Spanish for to collect, then the Spanish for the collection, then say la acuarela again

Before you move on

What does la acuarela mean? (“Watercolour”.) Say it once more.

751.6 Repaso de los capítulos 744–751

Say the Spanish for love at first sight and the compliment.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- love at first sight, the compliment, the courtship, the suitor, closeness
- the relationship, the break-up, unfaithful, to betray, betrayal
- to stroke, the deception, to chat up, to flirt, the lover
- the brother-in-law, the father-in-law, the mother-in-law, the son-in-law, the daughter-in-law
- to adopt, to take in, adoption, the stepmother, the stepfather
- the twin, the stepbrother, the teenager, the great-grandfather, the orphan
- the bond, to spoil, to live together, the colleague, support
- the hobby, the pastime, to collect, the collection, watercolour

Before you move on

Love at first sight? (el flechazo.) The compliment? (el piropo.) The courtship? (el noviazgo.) The suitor? (el pretendiente.) Closeness? (la complicidad.) The relationship? (la relación.) The break-up? (la ruptura.) Unfaithful? (infiel.) To betray? (traicionar.) Betrayal? (la traición.) To stroke? (acariciar.) The deception? (el engaño.) To chat up? (ligar.) To flirt? (coquetear.) The lover? (el amante.) The brother-in-law? (el cuñado.) The father-in-law? (el suegro.) The mother-in-law? (la suegra.) The son-in-law? (el yerno.) The daughter-in-law? (la nuera.) To adopt? (adoptar.) To take in? (acoger.) Adoption?

(la adopción.) The stepmother? (la madrastra.) The stepfather? (el padrastro.) The twin? (el gemelo.) The stepbrother? (el hermanastro.) The teenager? (el adolescente.) The great-grandfather? (el bisabuelo.) The orphan? (el huérfano.) The bond? (el vínculo.) To spoil? (mimar.) To live together? (convivir.) The colleague? (el colega.) Support? (el apoyo.) The hobby? (la afición.) The pastime? (el pasatiempo.) To collect? (coleccionar.) The collection? (la colección.) Watercolour? (la acuarela.)

Chapter 752

Juegos de mesa

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about board games, cards, puzzles, magic tricks and betting.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 752: I can talk about board games, cards, puzzles, magic tricks and betting.

752.1 el ajedrez — chess

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the collection, then the Spanish for watercolour.

You'll want to know: el ajedrez

el ajedrez — "chess".

> Juego al ajedrez con mi abuelo.
>
> I play chess with my grandfather.

Jugar al ajedrez (in Latin America also jugar ajedrez).

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ajedrez was borrowed from Andalusian Arabic aš-šaṭranj (EtymDB), which came from Persian and, further back, from Sanskrit caturaṅga "the four-limbed army".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el ajedrez
- Say it: el ajedrez, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el ajedrez
- Recall: say the Spanish for the collection, then the Spanish for watercolour, then say el ajedrez again

Before you move on

What does el ajedrez mean? ("Chess".) Say it once more.

752.2 el rompecabezas — the jigsaw puzzle; the puzzle

Before the new one: say the Spanish for watercolour, then the Spanish for chess.

You'll want to know: el rompecabezas

el rompecabezas — "the jigsaw puzzle; the puzzle".

Hicimos un rompecabezas de mil piezas.

We did a thousand-piece jigsaw.

Same form in the plural. In Spain also el puzle.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

rompecabezas is built on romper "to break" and cabeza "head", from Latin rumpere and caput (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el rompecabezas
- Say it: el rompecabezas, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el rompecabezas
- Recall: say the Spanish for watercolour, then the Spanish for chess, then say el rompecabezas again

Before you move on

What does el rompecabezas mean? ("The jigsaw puzzle; the puzzle".) Say it once more.

752.3 la baraja — the pack of cards

Before the new one: say the Spanish for chess, then the Spanish for the jigsaw puzzle.

You'll want to know: la baraja

la baraja — "the pack of cards".

Saca la baraja y jugamos.

Get the cards out and let us play.

Barajar — to shuffle. La baraja española has 40 or 48 cards.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

baraja is built on barajar (EtymDB), which in Old Spanish meant to quarrel, then to mix up and shuffle. Beyond that the origin is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la baraja
- Say it: la baraja, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la baraja
- Recall: say the Spanish for chess, then the Spanish for the jigsaw puzzle, then say la baraja again

Before you move on

What does la baraja mean? ("The pack of cards".) Say it once more.

752.4 la magia — magic

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the jigsaw puzzle, then the Spanish for the pack of cards.

You'll want to know: la magia

la magia — "magic".

Le encantan los trucos de magia.

He loves magic tricks.

Por arte de magia — as if by magic.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

magia comes from Late Latin magīa, from Greek mageía (EtymDB), built on mágos, a Persian priest.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la magia
- Say it: la magia, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la magia
- Recall: say the Spanish for the jigsaw puzzle, then the Spanish for the pack of cards, then say la magia again

Before you move on

What does la magia mean? ("Magic".) Say it once more.

752.5 apostar — to bet

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the pack of cards, then the Spanish for magic.

You'll want to know: apostar

apostar — "to bet".

Te apuesto a que gana el Madrid.

I bet you Madrid win.

Te apuesto a que... — I bet you that... Stem change: apuesto.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

apostar is usually explained as built on puesto "put, placed", the participle of poner, which comes from Latin pōnere "to put": to bet is to put money down.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: apostar
- Say it: apostar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with apostar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the pack of cards, then the Spanish for magic, then say apostar again

Before you move on

What does apostar mean? (“To bet”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 753

Música y canciones

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about musicians, humming a tune, songs and rhythm.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 753: I can talk about musicians, humming a tune, songs and rhythm.

753.1 el músico — the musician

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for magic, then the Spanish for to bet.

You'll want to know: el músico

el músico — "the musician".

> Mi vecino es músico de jazz.
>
> My neighbour is a jazz musician.

La música is music and also a woman musician.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

músico comes from Latin mūsicus "musician", from Greek mousikós "of the Muses" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el músico
- Say it: el músico, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el músico
- Recall: say the Spanish for magic, then the Spanish for to bet, then say el músico again

Before you move on

What does el músico mean? ("The musician".) Say it once more.

753.2 tararear — to hum

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to bet, then the Spanish for the musician.

You'll want to know: tararear

tararear — "to hum".

Siempre tarareo en la ducha.

I always hum in the shower.

To sing a tune without the words.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

tararear comes from the syllables ta-ra-ra people sing when they do not know the words; it is an imitative word.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: tararear
- Say it: tararear, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with tararear
- Recall: say the Spanish for to bet, then the Spanish for the musician, then say tararear again

Before you move on

What does tararear mean? (“To hum”.) Say it once more.

753.3 la canción — the song

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the musician, then the Spanish for to hum.

You’ll want to know: la canción

la canción — “the song”.

Esta canción me recuerda a ti.

This song reminds me of you.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

canción is inherited from Latin cantiō, cantiōnem “song, singing” (EtymDB), built on canere “to sing”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la canción
- Say it: la canción, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la canción
- Recall: say the Spanish for the musician, then the Spanish for to hum, then say la canción again

Before you move on

What does la canción mean? (“The song”.) Say it once more.

753.4 el ritmo — rhythm; pace

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to hum, then the Spanish for the song.

You’ll want to know: el ritmo

el ritmo — “rhythm; pace”.

Esta canción tiene buen ritmo.

This song has a good beat.

Also pace: el ritmo de vida — the pace of life.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ritmo comes from Latin rhythmus, borrowed from Greek rhythmós “measured flow”, from rheîn “to flow” (EtymDB).

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el ritmo
- Say it: el ritmo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el ritmo
- Recall: say the Spanish for to hum, then the Spanish for the song, then say el ritmo again

Before you move on

What does el ritmo mean? ("Rhythm; pace".) Say it once more.

753.5 componer — to compose, to write (music)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the song, then the Spanish for rhythm.

You'll want to know: componer

componer — "to compose, to write (music)".

Compone canciones para su grupo.

He writes songs for his band.

Conjugates like poner: compongo, compuse.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

componer is inherited from Latin compōnere "to put together, to arrange" (EtymDB), built on pōnere "to put".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: componer
- Say it: componer, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with componer
- Recall: say the Spanish for the song, then the Spanish for rhythm, then say componer again

Before you move on

What does componer mean? (“To compose, to write (music)”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 754

Aficiones tranquilas

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about quiet hobbies: fishing, gardening, sewing, knitting and pottery.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 754: I can talk about quiet hobbies: fishing, gardening, sewing, knitting and pottery.

754.1 tejer — to knit, to weave

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for rhythm, then the Spanish for to compose.

You'll want to know: tejer

tejer — "to knit, to weave".

> Mi abuela teje bufandas.
>
> My grandmother knits scarves.

Spain also says hacer punto.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

tejer is inherited from Latin texere "to weave" (EtymDB); a text is words woven together.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: tejer
- Say it: tejer, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with tejer
- Recall: say the Spanish for rhythm, then the Spanish for to compose, then say tejer again

Before you move on

What does tejer mean? ("To knit, to weave".) Say it once more.

754.2 la pesca — fishing

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to compose, then the Spanish for to knit.

You'll want to know: la pesca

la pesca — "fishing".

La pesca es su gran afición.

Fishing is his great hobby.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

pesca is built on pescar (EtymDB), which is inherited from Latin piscārī "to fish".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la pesca
- Say it: la pesca, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la pesca
- Recall: say the Spanish for to compose, then the Spanish for to knit, then say la pesca again

Before you move on

What does la pesca mean? (“Fishing”.) Say it once more.

754.3 la cerámica — pottery, ceramics

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to knit, then the Spanish for fishing.

You’ll want to know: la cerámica

la cerámica — “pottery, ceramics”.

Hago un curso de cerámica.

I am doing a pottery course.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cerámica comes from Greek keramikē “the potter’s art”, built on kéramos “potter’s clay”; it probably came in through French céramique.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la cerámica
- Say it: la cerámica, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la cerámica
- Recall: say the Spanish for to knit, then the Spanish for fishing, then say la cerámica again

Before you move on

What does la cerámica mean? ("Pottery, ceramics".) Say it once more.

754.4 la jardinería — gardening

Before the new one: say the Spanish for fishing, then the Spanish for pottery.

You'll want to know: la jardinería

la jardinería — "gardening".

Mi abuelo dedica la mañana a la jardinería.

My grandfather spends the morning gardening.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

jardinería is built on jardín, which is usually traced to French jardin, from Frankish gardo "enclosure".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la jardinería
- Say it: la jardinería, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la jardinería
- Recall: say the Spanish for fishing, then the Spanish for pottery, then say la jardinería again

Before you move on

What does la jardinería mean? (“Gardening”.) Say it once more.

754.5 coser — to sew

Before the new one: say the Spanish for pottery, then the Spanish for gardening.

You’ll want to know: coser

coser — “to sew”.

Mi madre me enseñó a coser.

My mother taught me to sew.

Ser coser y cantar — to be a piece of cake.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

coser is inherited from Latin cōnsuere “to sew together”, through spoken cosēre (EtymDB).

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: coser
- Say it: coser, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with coser
- Recall: say the Spanish for pottery, then the Spanish for gardening, then say coser again

Before you move on

What does coser mean? (“To sew”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 755

Calentar y trotar

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about warming up, jogging, muscles and sports injuries.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 755: I can talk about warming up, jogging, muscles and sports injuries.

755.1 el calentamiento — the warm-up; warming

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for gardening, then the Spanish for to sew.

You'll want to know: el calentamiento

el calentamiento — "the warm-up; warming".

> Antes de correr hago diez minutos de calentamiento.
>
> Before running I do a ten-minute warm-up.

El calentamiento global — global warming.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

calentamiento is built on calentar "to warm", made from caliente "hot" (EtymDB), which comes from Latin calēns, from calēre "to be warm".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el calentamiento
- Say it: el calentamiento, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el calentamiento
- Recall: say the Spanish for gardening, then the Spanish for to sew, then say el calentamiento again

Before you move on

What does el calentamiento mean? ("The warm-up; warming".) Say it once more.

755.2 trotar — to jog, to trot

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to sew, then the Spanish for the warm-up.

You'll want to know: trotar

trotar — "to jog, to trot".

Troto en el parque cada mañana.

I jog in the park every morning.

Common in Latin America; in Spain people mostly say salir a correr.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

trotar was borrowed from French trotter "to trot", which is usually traced to Frankish trottōn "to tread".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: trotar
- Say it: trotar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with trotar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to sew, then the Spanish for the warm-up, then say trotar again

Before you move on

What does trotar mean? ("To jog, to trot".) Say it once more.

755.3 el atleta — the athlete

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the warm-up, then the Spanish for to jog.

You'll want to know: el atleta

el atleta — "the athlete".

Es una atleta muy rápida.

She is a very fast athlete.

Same form for men and women: el atleta, la atleta.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

atleta comes from Latin āthlēta, from Greek athlētḗs "one who competes for a prize" (EtymDB), from áthlos "contest".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el atleta
- Say it: el atleta, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el atleta
- Recall: say the Spanish for the warm-up, then the Spanish for to jog, then say el atleta again

Before you move on

What does el atleta mean? ("The athlete".) Say it once more.

755.4 lesionarse — to get injured

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to jog, then the Spanish for the athlete.

You'll want to know: lesionarse

lesionarse — "to get injured".

Se lesionó la rodilla en el partido.

He injured his knee in the match.

Una lesión — an injury.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

lesionarse is built on lesión "injury", a learned borrowing from Latin laesiō "injury" (EtymDB), from laedere "to hurt".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: lesionarse
- Say it: lesionarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with lesionarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for to jog, then the Spanish for the athlete, then say lesionarse again

Before you move on

What does lesionarse mean? ("To get injured".) Say it once more.

755.5 el músculo — the muscle

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the athlete, then the Spanish for to get injured.

You'll want to know: el músculo

el músculo — "the muscle".

Me duelen los músculos después del gimnasio.

My muscles ache after the gym.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

músculo is a learned borrowing from Latin mūsculus "little mouse, muscle" (EtymDB), from mūs "mouse"; a moving muscle looked like a mouse under the skin.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el músculo
- Say it: el músculo, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with el músculo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the athlete, then the Spanish for to get injured, then say el músculo again

Before you move on

What does el músculo mean? ("The muscle".) Say it once more.

Chapter 756

El partido

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can follow a football match: the striker, scoring, the score, the referee and a draw.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 756: I can follow a football match: the striker, scoring, the score, the referee and a draw.

756.1 el delantero — the forward, the striker

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to get injured, then the Spanish for the muscle.

You'll want to know: el delantero

el delantero — "the forward, the striker".

> Nuestro delantero es muy rápido.
>
> Our striker is very fast.

As an adjective: la parte delantera — the front.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

delantero is built on delante "in front", which comes from Old Spanish denante (EtymDB), from Latin dē, in and ante "before".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el delantero
- Say it: el delantero, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el delantero
- Recall: say the Spanish for to get injured, then the Spanish for the muscle, then say el delantero again

Before you move on

What does el delantero mean? ("The forward, the striker".) Say it once more.

756.2 marcar — to score; to mark; to dial

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the muscle, then the Spanish for the forward.

You'll want to know: marcar

marcar — "to score; to mark; to dial".

Marcó dos goles en la final.

He scored two goals in the final.

Also to dial a number: marcar el número. Spelling: marqué.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

marcar comes from Italian marcare "to mark" (EtymDB), which is built on Germanic marka "boundary, sign".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: marcar
- Say it: marcar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with marcar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the muscle, then the Spanish for the forward, then say marcar again

Before you move on

What does marcar mean? (“To score; to mark; to dial”.) Say it once more.

756.3 el marcador — the scoreboard, the score

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the forward, then the Spanish for to score.

You’ll want to know: el marcador

el marcador — “the scoreboard, the score”.

El marcador final fue dos a uno.

The final score was two-one.

In Latin America un marcador is also a marker pen.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

marcador is built on marcar with the ending -dor; marcar comes from Italian marcare, built on Germanic marka “boundary, sign”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el marcador
- Say it: el marcador, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el marcador
- Recall: say the Spanish for the forward, then the Spanish for to score, then say el marcador again

Before you move on

What does el marcador mean? ("The scoreboard, the score".) Say it once more.

756.4 el árbitro — the referee

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to score, then the Spanish for the scoreboard.

You'll want to know: el árbitro

el árbitro — "the referee".

El árbitro no vio la falta.

The referee did not spot the foul.

La árbitra for a woman.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

árbitro comes from Latin arbiter "judge, umpire" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el árbitro
- Say it: el árbitro, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el árbitro
- Recall: say the Spanish for to score, then the Spanish for the scoreboard, then say el árbitro again

Before you move on

What does el árbitro mean? ("The referee".) Say it once more.

756.5 empatar — to draw, to tie

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the scoreboard, then the Spanish for the referee.

You'll want to know: empatar

empatar — "to draw, to tie".

Empatamos uno a uno.

We drew one all.

El empate — the draw.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

empatar was borrowed from Italian impattare "to draw", built on patta "a draw, a tie" (EtymDB). Where patta comes from is not settled: EtymDB lists both a Lombardic word and Latin pactum "agreement".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: empatar
- Say it: empatar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with empatar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the scoreboard, then the Spanish for the referee, then say empatar again

Before you move on

What does empatar mean? ("To draw, to tie".) Say it once more.

Chapter 757

Campeones y medallas

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about a tournament, the champion, a victory, a defeat and a medal.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 757: I can talk about a tournament, the champion, a victory, a defeat and a medal.

757.1 el campeón — the champion

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the referee, then the Spanish for to draw.

You'll want to know: el campeón

el campeón — "the champion".

Somos los campeones de la liga.

We are the league champions.

La campeona for a woman.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

campeón was borrowed from Italian campione (EtymDB), from Late Latin campiō "a fighter in the field", built on campus "field".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el campeón
- Say it: el campeón, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el campeón
- Recall: say the Spanish for the referee, then the Spanish for to draw, then say el campeón again

Before you move on

What does el campeón mean? ("The champion".) Say it once more.

757.2 el torneo — the tournament

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to draw, then the Spanish for the champion.

You'll want to know: el torneo

el torneo — "the tournament".

Ganó el torneo de tenis.

She won the tennis tournament.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

torneo is built on tornear, which is usually traced to Old French tornoier "to joust", from Latin tornāre "to turn": knights wheeled their horses.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el torneo
- Say it: el torneo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el torneo
- Recall: say the Spanish for to draw, then the Spanish for the champion, then say el torneo again

Before you move on

What does el torneo mean? ("The tournament".) Say it once more.

757.3 la victoria — victory, win

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the champion, then the Spanish for the tournament.

You'll want to know: la victoria

la victoria — "victory, win".

Fue una victoria importante.

It was an important win.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

victoria is a learned borrowing from Latin victōria "victory" (EtymDB), from vincere "to conquer".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la victoria
- Say it: la victoria, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la victoria
- Recall: say the Spanish for the champion, then the Spanish for the tournament, then say la victoria again

Before you move on

What does la victoria mean? ("Victory, win".) Say it once more.

757.4 la derrota — defeat

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the tournament, then the Spanish for victory.

You'll want to know: la derrota

la derrota — "defeat".

Fue una derrota dura.

It was a hard defeat.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

derrota is built on old derromper "to break up" (EtymDB), which is inherited from Latin dīrumpere, from rumpere "to break": an army broken and scattered.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la derrota
- Say it: la derrota, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la derrota
- Recall: say the Spanish for the tournament, then the Spanish for victory, then say la derrota again

Before you move on

What does la derrota mean? (“Defeat”.) Say it once more.

757.5 la medalla — the medal

Before the new one: say the Spanish for victory, then the Spanish for defeat.

You’ll want to know: la medalla

la medalla — “the medal”.

Ganó una medalla de oro.

She won a gold medal.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

medalla is usually traced to Italian medaglia, which comes from a spoken Latin metallea “made of metal”, from metallum “metal”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la medalla
- Say it: la medalla, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la medalla
- Recall: say the Spanish for victory, then the Spanish for defeat, then say la medalla again

Before you move on

What does la medalla mean? (“The medal”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 758

Más deportes

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about volleyball, boxing, skiing and skating, and about being a fan.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 758: I can talk about volleyball, boxing, skiing and skating, and about being a fan.

758.1 el voleibol — volleyball

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for defeat, then the Spanish for the medal.

You'll want to know: el voleibol

el voleibol — "volleyball".

> Jugamos al voleibol en la playa.
>
> We play volleyball on the beach.

Also el vóley. In some countries el vóleibol.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

voleibol was borrowed from English volleyball (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el voleibol
- Say it: el voleibol, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el voleibol
- Recall: say the Spanish for defeat, then the Spanish for the medal, then say el voleibol again

Before you move on

What does el voleibol mean? ("Volleyball".) Say it once more.

758.2 el boxeo — boxing

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the medal, then the Spanish for volleyball.

You'll want to know: el boxeo

el boxeo — "boxing".

No me gusta ver el boxeo.

I do not like watching boxing.

The boxer is el boxeador.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

boxeo is built on boxear, which was borrowed from English box "to fight with the fists" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el boxeo
- Say it: el boxeo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el boxeo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the medal, then the Spanish for volleyball, then say el boxeo again

Before you move on

What does el boxeo mean? ("Boxing".) Say it once more.

758.3 esquiar — to ski

Before the new one: say the Spanish for volleyball, then the Spanish for boxing.

You'll want to know: esquiar

esquiar — "to ski".

En invierno vamos a esquiar.

In winter we go skiing.

Forms: esquío, esquías. El esquí — skiing, a ski.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

esquiar is built on esquí, which is usually traced to Norwegian ski "a strip of wood", partly through French; Spanish added e- before s.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: esquiar
- Say it: esquiar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with esquiar
- Recall: say the Spanish for volleyball, then the Spanish for boxing, then say esquiar again

Before you move on

What does esquiar mean? ("To ski".) Say it once more.

758.4 patinar — to skate; to skid

Before the new one: say the Spanish for boxing, then the Spanish for to ski.

You'll want to know: patinar

patinar — "to skate; to skid".

Los niños patinan en el parque.

The children skate in the park.

A car can also patinar on ice: to skid.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

patinar is built on patín "skate" (EtymDB), which was borrowed from French patin, built on patte "paw, foot".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: patinar
- Say it: patinar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with patinar
- Recall: say the Spanish for boxing, then the Spanish for to ski, then say patinar again

Before you move on

What does patinar mean? ("To skate; to skid".) Say it once more.

758.5 el aficionado — the fan; the amateur

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to ski, then the Spanish for to skate.

You'll want to know: el aficionado

el aficionado — "the fan; the amateur".

Los aficionados cantan en el estadio.

The fans sing in the stadium.

Also an amateur: un fotógrafo aficionado.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

aficionado is the participle of aficionar (EtymDB), built on afición "liking", which comes from Latin affectiō.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el aficionado
- Say it: el aficionado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el aficionado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to ski, then the Spanish for to skate, then say el aficionado again

Before you move on

What does el aficionado mean? ("The fan; the amateur".) Say it once more.

Chapter 759

Sobre el escenario

Modes: 🚗 voice (6) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about a show, the applause and how the actors performed.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 759: I can talk about a show, the applause and how the actors performed.

759.1 el escenario — the stage; the setting

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to skate, then the Spanish for the fan.

You'll want to know: el escenario

el escenario — "the stage; the setting".

> El cantante salió al escenario.
>
> The singer came out on stage.

Also a setting or scenario: el escenario del crimen.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

escenario is built on escena with the ending -ario; escena comes from Latin scaena, from Greek skēnḗ "tent, stage" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el escenario
- Say it: el escenario, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el escenario
- Recall: say the Spanish for to skate, then the Spanish for the fan, then say el escenario again

Before you move on

What does el escenario mean? ("The stage; the setting".) Say it once more.

759.2 el espectáculo — the show

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the fan, then the Spanish for the stage.

You'll want to know: el espectáculo

el espectáculo — "the show".

El espectáculo empieza a las ocho.

The show starts at eight.

Dar un espectáculo — to make a scene.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

espectáculo is a learned borrowing from Latin spectāculum "sight, show" (EtymDB), from spectāre "to watch".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el espectáculo
- Say it: el espectáculo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el espectáculo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the fan, then the Spanish for the stage, then say el espectáculo again

Before you move on

What does el espectáculo mean? ("The show".) Say it once more.

759.3 aplaudir — to applaud, to clap

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the stage, then the Spanish for the show.

You'll want to know: aplaudir

aplaudir — "to applaud, to clap".

Al final, todos aplaudieron.

At the end, everyone clapped.

El aplauso — applause.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

aplaudir is a learned borrowing from Latin applaudere "to clap the hands together" (EtymDB), built on plaudere "to strike, to clap".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: aplaudir
- Say it: aplaudir, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with aplaudir
- Recall: say the Spanish for the stage, then the Spanish for the show, then say aplaudir again

Before you move on

What does aplaudir mean? ("To applaud, to clap".) Say it once more.

759.4 actuar — to act, to perform

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the show, then the Spanish for to applaud.

You'll want to know: actuar

actuar — "to act, to perform".

Actúa en una obra de teatro.

She is acting in a play.

Also to act, to take action. Forms: actúo, actúas.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

actuar comes from Medieval Latin āctuāre "to put into action" (EtymDB), built on āctus, from agere "to do".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: actuar
- Say it: actuar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with actuar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the show, then the Spanish for to applaud, then say actuar again

Before you move on

What does actuar mean? ("To act, to perform".) Say it once more.

759.5 la actuación — the performance

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to applaud, then the Spanish for to act.

You'll want to know: la actuación

la actuación — "the performance".

Su actuación fue increíble.

His performance was incredible.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

actuación is built on actuar with the ending -ción; actuar comes from Medieval Latin āctuāre (EtymDB), from agere "to do".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la actuación
- Say it: la actuación, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la actuación
- Recall: say the Spanish for to applaud, then the Spanish for to act, then say la actuación again

Before you move on

What does la actuación mean? (“The performance”.) Say it once more.

759.6 Repaso de los capítulos 752–759

Say the Spanish for chess and the jigsaw puzzle.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- chess, the jigsaw puzzle, the pack of cards, magic, to bet
- the musician, to hum, the song, rhythm, to compose
- to knit, fishing, pottery, gardening, to sew
- the warm-up, to jog, the athlete, to get injured, the muscle
- the forward, to score, the scoreboard, the referee, to draw
- the champion, the tournament, victory, defeat, the medal
- volleyball, boxing, to ski, to skate, the fan
- the stage, the show, to applaud, to act, the performance

Before you move on

Chess? (el ajedrez.) The jigsaw puzzle? (el rompecabezas.) The pack of cards? (la baraja.) Magic? (la magia.) To bet? (apostar.) The musician? (el músico.) To hum? (tararear.) The song? (la canción.) Rhythm? (el ritmo.) To compose? (componer.) To knit? (tejer.) Fishing? (la pesca.) Pottery? (la cerámica.) Gardening? (la jardinería.) To sew? (coser.) The warm-up? (el calentamiento.) To jog? (trotar.) The athlete? (el atleta.) To get injured? (lesionarse.) The muscle? (el músculo.) The forward? (el delantero.) To score? (marcar.) The scoreboard? (el marcador.) The referee? (el árbitro.) To draw? (empatar.) The champion? (el campeón.) The tournament? (el torneo.) Victory? (la victoria.) Defeat? (la derrota.) The medal? (la medalla.) Volleyball? (el voleibol.) Boxing? (el boxeo.) To ski? (esquiar.) To skate? (patinar.) The fan? (el aficionado.) The stage? (el escenario.) The show? (el espectáculo.) To applaud? (aplaudir.) To act? (actuar.) The performance? (la actuación.)

Chapter 760

Teatro y disfraces

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about amateur theatre and dressing up: costumes, make-up and opening night.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 760: I can talk about amateur theatre and dressing up: costumes, make-up and opening night.

760.1 el disfraz — the costume, the disguise

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to act, then the Spanish for the performance.

You'll want to know: el disfraz

el disfraz — "the costume, the disguise".

Mi disfraz de carnaval es de pirata.

My carnival costume is a pirate costume.

Una fiesta de disfraces — a fancy-dress party.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

disfraz is built on disfrazar (EtymDB), from Old Spanish desfrezar. For desfrezar the origin is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el disfraz
- Say it: el disfraz, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el disfraz
- Recall: say the Spanish for to act, then the Spanish for the performance, then say el disfraz again

Before you move on

What does el disfraz mean? ("The costume, the disguise".) Say it once more.

760.2 disfrazarse — to dress up, to disguise oneself

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the performance, then the Spanish for the costume.

You'll want to know: disfrazarse

disfrazarse — "to dress up, to disguise oneself".

En carnaval nos disfrazamos.

At carnival we dress up.

Disfrazarse de — to dress up as.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

disfrazarse comes from Old Spanish desfrezar "to disguise". For desfrezar itself the origin is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: disfrazarse
- Say it: disfrazarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with disfrazarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for the performance, then the Spanish for the costume, then say disfrazarse again

Before you move on

What does disfrazarse mean? ("To dress up, to disguise oneself".) Say it once more.

760.3 el maquillaje — make-up

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the costume, then the Spanish for to dress up.

You'll want to know: el maquillaje

el maquillaje — "make-up".

Los actores necesitan mucho maquillaje.

The actors need a lot of make-up.

Maquillarse — to put on make-up.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

maquillaje was borrowed from French maquillage, built on maquiller "to make up", which is usually traced to a northern French dialect verb meaning to work, to do.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el maquillaje
- Say it: el maquillaje, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el maquillaje
- Recall: say the Spanish for the costume, then the Spanish for to dress up, then say el maquillaje again

Before you move on

What does el maquillaje mean? ("Make-up".) Say it once more.

760.4 el estreno — the premiere, the first showing

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to dress up, then the Spanish for make-up.

You'll want to know: el estreno

el estreno — "the premiere, the first showing".

Fuimos al estreno de la película.

We went to the premiere of the film.

Estrenar — to show for the first time, to wear for the first time.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

estreno is built on estrenar, which is usually traced to Latin strēna "an omen; a New Year gift" (Lewis & Short): using something new for the first time.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el estreno
- Say it: el estreno, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el estreno
- Recall: say the Spanish for to dress up, then the Spanish for make-up, then say el estreno again

Before you move on

What does el estreno mean? ("The premiere, the first showing".) Say it once more.

760.5 interpretar — to play (a role); to interpret

Before the new one: say the Spanish for make-up, then the Spanish for the premiere.

You'll want to know: interpretar

interpretar — "to play (a role); to interpret".

Interpreta a un médico en la película.

He plays a doctor in the film.

Also to interpret a language or a text.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

interpretar is usually described as a learned borrowing from Latin interpretārī "to explain", built on interpres "go-between, translator".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: interpretar
- Say it: interpretar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with interpretar
- Recall: say the Spanish for make-up, then the Spanish for the premiere, then say interpretar again

Before you move on

What does interpretar mean? ("To play (a role); to interpret".) Say it once more.

Chapter 761

Tardes en el sofá

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe a lazy afternoon at home: a series, video games, cushions and yawns.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 761: I can describe a lazy afternoon at home: a series, video games, cushions and yawns.

761.1 la serie — the series (TV)

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the premiere, then the Spanish for to play.

You'll want to know: la serie

la serie — "the series (TV)".

> Estoy viendo una serie muy buena.
>
> I am watching a really good series.

Same form in the plural: las series.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

serie comes from Latin seriēs "a row, a chain" (EtymDB), from serere "to join together".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la serie
- Say it: la serie, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la serie
- Recall: say the Spanish for the premiere, then the Spanish for to play, then say la serie again

Before you move on

What does la serie mean? ("The series (TV)".) Say it once more.

761.2 el videojuego — the video game

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to play, then the Spanish for the series.

You'll want to know: el videojuego

el videojuego — "the video game".

Mi hijo juega a los videojuegos.

My son plays video games.

Jugar a los videojuegos.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

videojuego is built on vídeo, from Latin videō "I see", and juego "game", from Latin iocus "jest" (EtymDB); it follows English video game.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el videojuego
- Say it: el videojuego, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el videojuego
- Recall: say the Spanish for to play, then the Spanish for the series, then say el videojuego again

Before you move on

What does el videojuego mean? ("The video game".) Say it once more.

761.3 el cojín — the cushion

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the series, then the Spanish for the video game.

You'll want to know: el cojín

el cojín — "the cushion".

El sofá tiene muchos cojines.

The sofa has lots of cushions.

Plural cojines.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cojín comes from Old Spanish coxín, from a spoken Latin coxīnum (EtymDB), built on coxa "hip": something to rest the hip on. Many dictionaries say it came in through French coussin.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el cojín
- Say it: el cojín, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el cojín
- Recall: say the Spanish for the series, then the Spanish for the video game, then say el cojín again

Before you move on

What does el cojín mean? ("The cushion".) Say it once more.

761.4 bostezar — to yawn

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the video game, then the Spanish for the cushion.

You'll want to know: bostezar

bostezar — "to yawn".

Bostezo mucho cuando tengo sueño.

I yawn a lot when I am sleepy.

El bostezo — the yawn. Spelling: bostecé.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

bostezar is usually traced to Latin ōscitāre "to gape, to yawn" (EtymDB); how it gained its b- is not clear.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: bostezar
- Say it: bostezar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with bostezar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the video game, then the Spanish for the cushion, then say bostezar again

Before you move on

What does bostezar mean? (“To yawn”.) Say it once more.

761.5 grabar — to record; to engrave

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the cushion, then the Spanish for to yawn.

You’ll want to know: grabar

grabar — “to record; to engrave”.

Grabamos el concierto con el móvil.

We recorded the concert on our phones.

For sound and video; also to engrave.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

grabar was borrowed from French graver “to engrave” (EtymDB), which comes from Frankish graban “to dig”; a recording is sound cut into a surface.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: grabar
- Say it: grabar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with grabar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the cushion, then the Spanish for to yawn, then say grabar again

Before you move on

What does grabar mean? (“To record; to engrave”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 762

Leer en casa

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about reading at home: magazines, covers, crosswords and flicking through pages.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 762: I can talk about reading at home: magazines, covers, crosswords and flicking through pages.

762.1 el crucigrama — the crossword

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to yawn, then the Spanish for to record.

You'll want to know: el crucigrama

el crucigrama — "the crossword".

> Hago el crucigrama del periódico.
>
> I do the newspaper crossword.

Masculine, though it ends in -a.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

crucigrama is built on cruz "cross", from Latin crux, and Greek grámma "letter", a twentieth-century coinage for crossed words.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el crucigrama
- Say it: el crucigrama, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el crucigrama
- Recall: say the Spanish for to yawn, then the Spanish for to record, then say el crucigrama again

Before you move on

What does el crucigrama mean? ("The crossword".) Say it once more.

762.2 la revista — the magazine

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to record, then the Spanish for the crossword.

You'll want to know: la revista

la revista — "the magazine".

Compro una revista de cocina.

I buy a cooking magazine.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

revista is built on re- and vista "view", from Latin vidēre "to see"; it was probably modelled on English review and French revue.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la revista
- Say it: la revista, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la revista
- Recall: say the Spanish for to record, then the Spanish for the crossword, then say la revista again

Before you move on

What does la revista mean? (“The magazine”.) Say it once more.

762.3 el lector — the reader

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the crossword, then the Spanish for the magazine.

You’ll want to know: el lector

el lector — “the reader”.

Es un gran lector de novelas.

He is a great reader of novels.

La lectora for a woman. Un lector de libros electrónicos — an e-reader.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

lector is a learned borrowing from Latin lēctor “reader” (EtymDB), from legere “to read”.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el lector
- Say it: el lector, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el lector
- Recall: say the Spanish for the crossword, then the Spanish for the magazine, then say el lector again

Before you move on

What does el lector mean? (“The reader”.) Say it once more.

762.4 la portada — the cover; the front page

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the magazine, then the Spanish for the reader.

You’ll want to know: la portada

la portada — “the cover; the front page”.

Me gusta la portada de esta revista.

I like the cover of this magazine.

En portada — on the front page.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

portada is usually traced to Latin porta “door, gate”, the source of puerta: it named the front of a building, then the cover of a book.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la portada
- Say it: la portada, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la portada
- Recall: say the Spanish for the magazine, then the Spanish for the reader, then say la portada again

Before you move on

What does la portada mean? ("The cover; the front page".) Say it once more.

762.5 hojear — to leaf through, to flick through

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the reader, then the Spanish for the cover.

You'll want to know: hojear

hojear — "to leaf through, to flick through".

Hojeo una revista en el tren.

I flick through a magazine on the train.

Not to be confused with ojear, to glance at.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

hojear is built on hoja "leaf, page" with the ending -ear; hoja is inherited from Latin folia "leaves" (EtymDB), with f- turned to h-.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: hojear
- Say it: hojear, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with hojear
- Recall: say the Spanish for the reader, then the Spanish for the cover, then say hojear again

Before you move on

What does hojear mean? ("To leaf through, to flick through".) Say it once more.

Chapter 763

En el museo

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about sculptures, portraits, canvases and painters, and about taking photos.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 763: I can talk about sculptures, portraits, canvases and painters, and about taking photos.

763.1 la escultura — the sculpture

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the cover, then the Spanish for to leaf through.

You'll want to know: la escultura

la escultura — "the sculpture".

> En el museo hay una escultura enorme.
>
> There is a huge sculpture in the museum.

El escultor — the sculptor.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

escultura comes from Latin sculptūra "sculpture" (EtymDB), from sculpere "to carve in stone".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la escultura
- Say it: la escultura, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la escultura
- Recall: say the Spanish for the cover, then the Spanish for to leaf through, then say la escultura again

Before you move on

What does la escultura mean? ("The sculpture".) Say it once more.

763.2 el retrato — the portrait

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to leaf through, then the Spanish for the sculpture.

You'll want to know: el retrato

el retrato — "the portrait".

Este retrato es de mi abuela.

This portrait is of my grandmother.

Un retrato robot — an identikit picture.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

retrato was borrowed from Italian ritratto "portrait" (EtymDB), from Latin retractus, built on trahere "to draw, to pull".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el retrato
- Say it: el retrato, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el retrato
- Recall: say the Spanish for to leaf through, then the Spanish for the sculpture, then say el retrato again

Before you move on

What does el retrato mean? (“The portrait”.) Say it once more.

763.3 el lienzo — the canvas

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the sculpture, then the Spanish for the portrait.

You’ll want to know: el lienzo

el lienzo — “the canvas”.

Compré un lienzo para pintar.

I bought a canvas to paint on.

Also an old word for linen cloth.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

lienzo is inherited from Latin linteum “linen cloth” (EtymDB), through Old Spanish lienço.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el lienzo
- Say it: el lienzo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el lienzo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the sculpture, then the Spanish for the portrait, then say el lienzo again

Before you move on

What does el lienzo mean? ("The canvas".) Say it once more.

763.4 el pintor — the painter

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the portrait, then the Spanish for the canvas.

You'll want to know: el pintor

el pintor — "the painter".

Picasso fue un pintor muy famoso.

Picasso was a very famous painter.

La pintora for a woman. Also a house painter.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

pintor is inherited from spoken Latin pinctor, Latin pictor "painter" (EtymDB), from pingere "to paint".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el pintor
- Say it: el pintor, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el pintor
- Recall: say the Spanish for the portrait, then the Spanish for the canvas, then say el pintor again

Before you move on

What does el pintor mean? ("The painter".) Say it once more.

763.5 fotografiar — to photograph

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the canvas, then the Spanish for the painter.

You'll want to know: fotografiar

fotografiar — "to photograph".

Está prohibido fotografiar los cuadros.

Photographing the paintings is not allowed.

Everyday speech prefers hacer fotos (Spain) or tomar fotos (Latin America). Forms: fotografío.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

fotografiar is built on fotografía, made from Greek phōs, phōtós "light" and gráphein "to write": writing with light.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: fotografiar
- Say it: fotografiar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with fotografiar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the canvas, then the Spanish for the painter, then say fotografiar again

Before you move on

What does fotografiar mean? ("To photograph".) Say it once more.

Chapter 764

Recuerdos

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about unforgettable moments, forgetting things and learning by heart.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 764: I can talk about unforgettable moments, forgetting things and learning by heart.

764.1 inolvidable — unforgettable

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the painter, then the Spanish for to photograph.

You'll want to know: inolvidable

inolvidable — "unforgettable".

> Fue un viaje inolvidable.
>
> It was an unforgettable trip.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

inolvidable is built on olvidar "to forget", with in- and -able; olvidar is inherited from a spoken Latin oblītāre (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: inolvidable
- Say it: inolvidable, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with inolvidable
- Recall: say the Spanish for the painter, then the Spanish for to photograph, then say inolvidable again

Before you move on

What does inolvidable mean? ("Unforgettable".) Say it once more.

764.2 el olvido — forgetting; oblivion; oversight

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to photograph, then the Spanish for unforgettable.

You'll want to know: el olvido

el olvido — "forgetting; oblivion; oversight".

Perdón, fue un olvido.

Sorry, I forgot.

Caer en el olvido — to be forgotten.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

olvido is built on olvidar, which is inherited from a spoken Latin oblītāre (EtymDB), from oblītus, the participle of oblīvīscī "to forget".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el olvido
- Say it: el olvido, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el olvido
- Recall: say the Spanish for to photograph, then the Spanish for unforgettable, then say el olvido again

Before you move on

What does el olvido mean? ("Forgetting; oblivion; oversight".) Say it once more.

764.3 memorizar — to memorize, to learn by heart

Before the new one: say the Spanish for unforgettable, then the Spanish for forgetting.

You'll want to know: memorizar

memorizar — "to memorize, to learn by heart".

Tengo que memorizar estos números.

I have to learn these numbers by heart.

Aprender de memoria means the same.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

memorizar is built on memoria "memory" with the ending -izar; memoria is a learned borrowing from Latin memoria, from memor "mindful".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: memorizar
- Say it: memorizar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with memorizar
- Recall: say the Spanish for unforgettable, then the Spanish for forgetting, then say memorizar again

Before you move on

What does memorizar mean? ("To memorize, to learn by heart".) Say it once more.

764.4 revivir — to relive; to revive

Before the new one: say the Spanish for forgetting, then the Spanish for to memorize.

You'll want to know: revivir

revivir — "to relive; to revive".

Al ver las fotos revivo aquel día.

Looking at the photos, I relive that day.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

revivir is usually traced to Latin revīvere "to live again", built on vīvere "to live".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: revivir
- Say it: revivir, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with revivir
- Recall: say the Spanish for forgetting, then the Spanish for to memorize, then say revivir again

Before you move on

What does revivir mean? ("To relive; to revive".) Say it once more.

764.5 el diario — the diary; the daily paper

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to memorize, then the Spanish for to relive.

You'll want to know: el diario

el diario — "the diary; the daily paper".

De pequeña escribía un diario.

As a girl I kept a diary.

Also a daily newspaper, and the adjective daily: la vida diaria. A diario — every day.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

diario comes from Latin diārium "a daily allowance" (EtymDB), built on diēs "day".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el diario
- Say it: el diario, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el diario
- Recall: say the Spanish for to memorize, then the Spanish for to relive, then say el diario again

Before you move on

What does el diario mean? (“The diary; the daily paper”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 765

Ilusiones y deseos

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about my wishes, my whims and my imagination.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 765: I can talk about my wishes, my whims and my imagination.

765.1 la ilusión — excitement, hope; illusion

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to relive, then the Spanish for the diary.

You'll want to know: la ilusión

la ilusión — "excitement, hope; illusion".

> Me hace mucha ilusión verte.
>
> I am really looking forward to seeing you.

Me hace ilusión — I am excited about it. It is usually a happy word in Spanish.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ilusión is a learned borrowing from Latin illūsiō "mockery, deception" (EtymDB), from illūdere, built on lūdere "to play"; Spanish turned it into hope and excitement.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la ilusión
- Say it: la ilusión, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la ilusión
- Recall: say the Spanish for to relive, then the Spanish for the diary, then say la ilusión again

Before you move on

What does la ilusión mean? ("Excitement, hope; illusion".) Say it once more.

765.2 anhelar — to yearn for, to long for

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the diary, then the Spanish for excitement.

You'll want to know: anhelar

anhelar — "to yearn for, to long for".

Anhela una vida tranquila.

She longs for a quiet life.

Literary; in conversation people say desear mucho.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

anhelar is a learned borrowing from Latin anhēlāre "to pant, to gasp" (EtymDB); to long for something is to be out of breath for it.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: anhelar
- Say it: anhelar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with anhelar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the diary, then the Spanish for excitement, then say anhelar again

Before you move on

What does anhelar mean? ("To yearn for, to long for".) Say it once more.

765.3 el capricho — the whim, the treat

Before the new one: say the Spanish for excitement, then the Spanish for to yearn for.

You'll want to know: el capricho

el capricho — "the whim, the treat".

Me di un capricho y compré chocolate.

I treated myself and bought chocolate.

Darse un capricho — to treat yourself. Caprichoso — fussy, impulsive.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

capricho was borrowed from Italian capriccio "whim, fancy" (EtymDB). The Italian word is often explained as capo "head" plus riccio "hedgehog", hair on end, but that is not certain.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el capricho
- Say it: el capricho, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el capricho
- Recall: say the Spanish for excitement, then the Spanish for to yearn for, then say el capricho again

Before you move on

What does el capricho mean? ("The whim, the treat".) Say it once more.

765.4 la imaginación — imagination

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to yearn for, then the Spanish for the whim.

You'll want to know: la imaginación

la imaginación — "imagination".

Los niños tienen mucha imaginación.

Children have a lot of imagination.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

imaginación is a learned borrowing from Latin imāginātiō "imagination" (EtymDB), from imāgō "image, likeness".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la imaginación
- Say it: la imaginación, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la imaginación
- Recall: say the Spanish for to yearn for, then the Spanish for the whim, then say la imaginación again

Before you move on

What does la imaginación mean? ("Imagination".) Say it once more.

765.5 aspirar — to aspire; to breathe in; to vacuum

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the whim, then the Spanish for imagination.

You'll want to know: aspirar

aspirar — "to aspire; to breathe in; to vacuum".

Aspira a ser médica.

She aspires to be a doctor.

Aspirar a — to aspire to. Also to vacuum: aspirar la alfombra.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

aspirar is a learned borrowing from Latin aspīrāre "to breathe upon" (EtymDB), built on spīrāre "to breathe".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: aspirar
- Say it: aspirar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with aspirar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the whim, then the Spanish for imagination, then say aspirar again

Before you move on

What does aspirar mean? ("To aspire; to breathe in; to vacuum".) Say it once more.

Chapter 766

Retos y logros

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about my challenges, achievements, talents and ambitions.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 766: I can talk about my challenges, achievements, talents and ambitions.

766.1 el reto — the challenge

Before the new one: say the Spanish for imagination, then the Spanish for to aspire.

You'll want to know: el reto

el reto — "the challenge".

> Aprender chino es un gran reto.
>
> Learning Chinese is a big challenge.

Desafío is a synonym.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

reto is built on retar (EtymDB), which comes from Old French reter "to accuse", from Latin reputāre "to reckon".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el reto
- Say it: el reto, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el reto
- Recall: say the Spanish for imagination, then the Spanish for to aspire, then say el reto again

Before you move on

What does el reto mean? ("The challenge".) Say it once more.

766.2 la ambición — ambition

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to aspire, then the Spanish for the challenge.

You'll want to know: la ambición

la ambición — "ambition".

Su ambición es abrir un restaurante.

Her ambition is to open a restaurant.

It can be positive or negative.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ambición comes from Latin ambitiō "a going round, canvassing" (EtymDB), from ambīre "to go around": a Roman candidate went round asking for votes.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la ambición
- Say it: la ambición, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la ambición
- Recall: say the Spanish for to aspire, then the Spanish for the challenge, then say la ambición again

Before you move on

What does la ambición mean? ("Ambition".) Say it once more.

766.3 creativo — creative

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the challenge, then the Spanish for ambition.

You'll want to know: creativo

creativo — "creative".

Es una persona muy creativa.

She is a very creative person.

Un creativo also means someone who works in advertising.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

creativo is a learned borrowing from Late Latin creātīvus (EtymDB), built on creāre "to create".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: creativo
- Say it: creativo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with creativo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the challenge, then the Spanish for ambition, then say creativo again

Before you move on

What does creativo mean? ("Creative".) Say it once more.

766.4 el logro — the achievement

Before the new one: say the Spanish for ambition, then the Spanish for creative.

You'll want to know: el logro

el logro — "the achievement".

Terminar la carrera fue un gran logro.

Finishing my degree was a great achievement.

The verb is lograr.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

logro comes from Latin lucrum "gain, profit" (EtymDB), through lograr, from lucrārī "to gain"; in old Spanish logro also meant interest on a loan.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el logro
- Say it: el logro, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el logro
- Recall: say the Spanish for ambition, then the Spanish for creative, then say el logro again

Before you move on

What does el logro mean? ("The achievement".) Say it once more.

766.5 el talento — talent

Before the new one: say the Spanish for creative, then the Spanish for the achievement.

You'll want to know: el talento

el talento — "talent".

Tiene mucho talento para la música.

She has a great talent for music.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

talento was borrowed from Latin talentum, from Greek tálanton "a balance, a weight of silver" (EtymDB); the parable of the talents turned money into gifts.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el talento
- Say it: el talento, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with el talento
- Recall: say the Spanish for creative, then the Spanish for the achievement, then say el talento again

Before you move on

What does el talento mean? (“Talent”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 767

Cuerpo y mente en calma

Modes: 🚗 voice (8) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 8 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can talk about willpower, meditation, stretching and massage.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 767: I can talk about willpower, meditation, stretching and massage.

767.1 meditar — to meditate; to ponder

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the achievement, then the Spanish for talent.

You'll want to know: meditar

meditar — "to meditate; to ponder".

> Medito diez minutos cada mañana.
>
> I meditate for ten minutes every morning.

Also to think something over: meditar una decisión.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

meditar is a learned borrowing from Latin meditārī "to think over, to practise" (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: meditar
- Say it: meditar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with meditar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the achievement, then the Spanish for talent, then say meditar again

Before you move on

What does meditar mean? ("To meditate; to ponder".) Say it once more.

767.2 la meditación — meditation

Before the new one: say the Spanish for talent, then the Spanish for to meditate.

You'll want to know: la meditación

la meditación — "meditation".

La meditación me ayuda con el estrés.

Meditation helps me with stress.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

meditación is a learned borrowing from Latin meditātiō "thinking, contemplation" (EtymDB), from meditārī.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la meditación
- Say it: la meditación, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la meditación
- Recall: say the Spanish for talent, then the Spanish for to meditate, then say la meditación again

Before you move on

What does la meditación mean? ("Meditation".) Say it once more.

767.3 la voluntad — will, willpower

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to meditate, then the Spanish for meditation.

You'll want to know: la voluntad

la voluntad — "will, willpower".

Con fuerza de voluntad, todo es posible.

With willpower, anything is possible.

Fuerza de voluntad — willpower. Buena voluntad — goodwill.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

voluntad is usually traced to Latin voluntās, voluntātem "will", built on velle "to want".

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la voluntad
- Say it: la voluntad, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la voluntad
- Recall: say the Spanish for to meditate, then the Spanish for meditation, then say la voluntad again

Before you move on

What does la voluntad mean? ("Will, willpower".) Say it once more.

767.4 estirarse — to stretch

Before the new one: say the Spanish for meditation, then the Spanish for will.

You'll want to know: estirarse

estirarse — "to stretch".

Me estiro antes de correr.

I stretch before running.

Estirar las piernas — to stretch your legs.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

estirarse is built on tirar "to pull" with the prefix es-. For tirar the origin is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: estirarse
- Say it: estirarse, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with estirarse
- Recall: say the Spanish for meditation, then the Spanish for will, then say estirarse again

Before you move on

What does estirarse mean? ("To stretch".) Say it once more.

767.5 el masaje — the massage

Before the new one: say the Spanish for will, then the Spanish for to stretch.

You'll want to know: el masaje

el masaje — "the massage".

Después del partido me dieron un masaje.

After the match I had a massage.

Dar un masaje — to give a massage.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

masaje was borrowed from French massage (EtymDB), from masser "to knead". Beyond French the origin is not settled; Arabic and Greek sources have both been proposed.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el masaje
- Say it: el masaje, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el masaje
- Recall: say the Spanish for will, then the Spanish for to stretch, then say el masaje again

Before you move on

What does el masaje mean? ("The massage".) Say it once more.

767.6 Más sentimientos y experiencias

Say the Spanish for the costume and to dress up.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the costume, to dress up, make-up, the premiere, to play
- the series, the video game, the cushion, to yawn, to record
- the crossword, the magazine, the reader, the cover, to leaf through
- the sculpture, the portrait, the canvas, the painter, to photograph
- unforgettable, forgetting, to memorize, to relive, the diary
- excitement, to yearn for, the whim, imagination, to aspire
- the challenge, ambition, creative, the achievement, talent
- to meditate, meditation, will, to stretch, the massage

Before you move on

The costume? (el disfraz.) To dress up? (disfrazarse.) Make-up? (el maquillaje.) The premiere? (el estreno.) To play? (interpretar.) The series? (la serie.) The video game? (el videojuego.) The cushion? (el cojín.) To yawn? (bostezar.) To record? (grabar.) The crossword? (el crucigrama.) The magazine? (la revista.) The reader? (el lector.) The cover? (la portada.) To leaf through? (hojear.) The sculpture? (la escultura.) The portrait? (el retrato.) The canvas? (el lienzo.) The painter? (el pintor.) To photograph? (fotografiar.) Unforgettable? (inolvidable.) Forgetting? (el olvido.) To memorize? (memorizar.) To relive? (revivir.) The diary? (el diario.) Excitement? (la ilusión.) To yearn for? (anhelar.) The whim? (el capricho.) Imagination? (la imaginación.) To aspire? (aspirar.) The challenge? (el reto.) Ambition? (la ambición.) Creative? (creativo.) The achievement? (el logro.) Talent? (el talento.) To meditate? (meditar.) Meditation? (la meditación.) Will? (la voluntad.) To stretch? (estirarse.) The massage? (el masaje.)

767.7 Cuerpo y mente en calma — once more

Say the Spanish for to meditate and meditation.

Your turn

- Say it: to meditate, meditation, will, to stretch, the massage

Before you move on

To meditate? (meditar.) Meditation? (la meditación.) Will? (la voluntad.) To stretch? (estirarse.) The massage? (el masaje.)

767.8 How it was — back to the first story of a trip

From the first chapter about experiences: say the Spanish for "happy" and for "during, for".

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the scene, then the events: Llovía. Llegamos a la playa y luego comimos.
- how long: Estuvimos allí durante una semana.
- feliz for him and for her, the same word: Él estaba feliz. Ella estaba feliz.
- a comparison: Este viaje me gustó más que el otro.
- what you hope for next: Espero volver el año que viene.

Before you move on

In your story, which tense set the scene? (The imperfect: llovía.) Which told the events? (The preterite: llegamos, comimos.) Why does feliz not change for ella? (It ends in a consonant.) What two things can esperar mean? (To wait and to hope.)

Chapter 768

Lo que cociné

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can tell someone how I cooked a dish: what I boiled, fried, peeled and beat, and which ingredients I used.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 768: I can tell someone how I cooked a dish: what I boiled, fried, peeled and beat, and which ingredients I used.

768.1 hervir — to boil

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to seem, then the Spanish for to keep.

You'll want to know: hervir

hervir — "to boil".

> Herví el agua para la pasta.
>
> I boiled the water for the pasta.

Stem change: hiervo, hirvió. El agua está hirviendo — the water is boiling.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

hervir is inherited from Latin fervēre 'to boil, to seethe' (EtymDB), through old Spanish herver. Latin f- became Spanish h-. English fervent comes from the same verb.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: hervir
- Say it: hervir, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with hervir
- Recall: say the Spanish for to seem, then the Spanish for to keep, then say hervir again

Before you move on

What does hervir mean? ("To boil".) Say it once more.

768.2 freír — to fry

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to keep, then the Spanish for to boil.

You'll want to know: freír

freír — "to fry".

Frió los huevos con un poco de aceite.

He fried the eggs in a little oil.

Stem change: fríо, frió. Participle: frito — patatas fritas.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

freír is inherited from Latin frīgere 'to roast, to fry' (EtymDB). The g between vowels was lost. It is not the frigidus 'cold' behind frío.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: freír
- Say it: freír, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with freír
- Recall: say the Spanish for to keep, then the Spanish for to boil, then say freír again

Before you move on

What does freír mean? ("To fry".) Say it once more.

768.3 pelar — to peel

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to boil, then the Spanish for to fry.

You'll want to know: pelar

pelar — "to peel".

Pelé las patatas y las corté.

I peeled the potatoes and cut them.

Pelarse is to peel after sunburn. Hace un frío que pela — it is bitterly cold.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

pelar is inherited from Latin pilāre 'to strip of hair' (EtymDB), built on pilus 'a hair', the word behind pelo. Peeling a fruit is stripping its skin.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: pelar
- Say it: pelar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with pelar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to boil, then the Spanish for to fry, then say pelar again

Before you move on

What does pelar mean? ("To peel".) Say it once more.

768.4 batir — to beat, to whisk

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to fry, then the Spanish for to peel.

You'll want to know: batir

batir — "to beat, to whisk".

Batí tres huevos para la tortilla.

I beat three eggs for the omelette.

Batir un récord — to break a record.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

batir comes from Late Latin battere 'to beat' (EtymDB), a form of Latin battuere. Batido 'milkshake' is its participle.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: batir
- Say it: batir, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with batir
- Recall: say the Spanish for to fry, then the Spanish for to peel, then say batir again

Before you move on

What does batir mean? ("To beat, to whisk".) Say it once more.

768.5 el ingrediente — the ingredient

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to peel, then the Spanish for to beat.

You'll want to know: el ingrediente

el ingrediente — "the ingredient".

Usé solo cuatro ingredientes para la salsa.

I used only four ingredients for the sauce.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ingrediente is a learned borrowing from Latin ingrediēns 'going in' (EtymDB), from ingredī 'to enter', built on in and gradī 'to step'. An ingredient is what goes into the dish.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el ingrediente
- Say it: el ingrediente, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el ingrediente
- Recall: say the Spanish for to peel, then the Spanish for to beat, then say el ingrediente again

Before you move on

What does el ingrediente mean? (“The ingredient”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 769

Una gotera en casa

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can tell someone that the roof leaked, something broke down, and that a plumber or an electrician came.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 769: I can tell someone that the roof leaked, something broke down, and that a plumber or an electrician came.

769.1 gotear — to drip, to leak

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to beat, then the Spanish for the ingredient.

You'll want to know: gotear

gotear — "to drip, to leak".

> El grifo goteó toda la noche.
>
> The tap dripped all night.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

gotear is built on gota 'a drop' with the ending -ear. Gota is inherited from Latin gutta 'a drop' (Lewis & Short).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: gotear
- Say it: gotear, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with gotear
- Recall: say the Spanish for to beat, then the Spanish for the ingredient, then say gotear again

Before you move on

What does gotear mean? ("To drip, to leak".) Say it once more.

769.2 la gotera — the leak (in a roof)

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the ingredient, then the Spanish for to drip.

You'll want to know: la gotera

la gotera — "the leak (in a roof)".

Con la lluvia salió una gotera en el techo.

With the rain a leak appeared in the ceiling.

Used for water coming through a roof or ceiling; a leaking pipe is una fuga.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

gotera is built on gota 'a drop' (EtymDB), which comes from Latin gutta 'a drop', with the ending -era.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la gotera
- Say it: la gotera, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la gotera
- Recall: say the Spanish for the ingredient, then the Spanish for to drip, then say la gotera again

Before you move on

What does la gotera mean? ("The leak (in a roof)".) Say it once more.

769.3 averiado — broken down, out of order

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to drip, then the Spanish for the leak.

You'll want to know: averiado

averiado — "broken down, out of order".

El ascensor está averiado desde el lunes.

The lift has been out of order since Monday.

For machines, with estar. Una avería is a breakdown.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

averiado is built on avería 'a breakdown, damage'. Avería is usually traced to Arabic ʿawāriyya 'damaged goods', through Catalan or Italian avaria, a word of sailors and merchants.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: averiado
- Say it: averiado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with averiado
- Recall: say the Spanish for to drip, then the Spanish for the leak, then say averiado again

Before you move on

What does averiado mean? ("Broken down, out of order".) Say it once more.

769.4 el fontanero — the plumber

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the leak, then the Spanish for broken down.

You'll want to know: el fontanero

el fontanero — "the plumber".

El fontanero arregló la tubería en una hora.

The plumber fixed the pipe in an hour.

This is the word in Spain; in Latin America people say el plomero.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

fontanero is built on old fontana 'a fountain', from Late Latin fontāna (EtymDB), from fōns 'a spring', with the ending -ero.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el fontanero
- Say it: el fontanero, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el fontanero
- Recall: say the Spanish for the leak, then the Spanish for broken down, then say el fontanero again

Before you move on

What does el fontanero mean? ("The plumber".) Say it once more.

769.5 el electricista — the electrician

Before the new one: say the Spanish for broken down, then the Spanish for the plumber.

You'll want to know: el electricista

el electricista — "the electrician".

Llamamos a un electricista porque no había luz.

We called an electrician because there was no power.

The same form for a woman: la electricista.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

electricista is built on eléctrico with the ending -ista. Eléctrico goes back to Greek ēlektron 'amber' (Lewis & Short, under electrum), because rubbed amber pulls in light things.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el electricista
- Say it: el electricista, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el electricista
- Recall: say the Spanish for broken down, then the Spanish for the plumber, then say el electricista again

Before you move on

What does el electricista mean? ("The electrician".) Say it once more.

Chapter 770

Las tiendas del barrio

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can explain why I go to a particular shop: the dry cleaner, the hardware shop, the butcher, the greengrocer, or a shop with a fitting room.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 770: I can explain why I go to a particular shop: the dry cleaner, the hardware shop, the butcher, the greengrocer, or a shop with a fitting room.

770.1 la tintorería — the dry cleaner's

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the plumber, then the Spanish for the electrician.

You'll want to know: la tintorería

la tintorería — "the dry cleaner's".

> Llevo el traje a la tintorería porque no se puede lavar.
>
> I take the suit to the dry cleaner's because it can't be washed.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

tintorería is built on tintorero 'a dyer', from tinto 'dyed', which comes from Latin tīnctus, the participle of tingere 'to wet, to dye' (Lewis & Short). Dry cleaners were first dyers.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la tintorería
- Say it: la tintorería, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la tintorería
- Recall: say the Spanish for the plumber, then the Spanish for the electrician, then say la tintorería again

Before you move on

What does la tintorería mean? ("The dry cleaner's".) Say it once more.

770.2 el probador — the fitting room

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the electrician, then the Spanish for the dry cleaner's.

You'll want to know: el probador

el probador — "the fitting room".

Prefiero esta tienda porque los probadores son grandes.

I prefer this shop because the fitting rooms are big.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

probador is built on probar 'to try on', inherited from Latin probāre 'to test, to prove' (Lewis & Short), with the ending -dor.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el probador
- Say it: el probador, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el probador
- Recall: say the Spanish for the electrician, then the Spanish for the dry cleaner's, then say el probador again

Before you move on

What does el probador mean? ("The fitting room".) Say it once more.

770.3 la ferretería — the hardware shop

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the dry cleaner's, then the Spanish for the fitting room.

You'll want to know: la ferretería

la ferretería — "the hardware shop".

Voy a la ferretería porque necesito tornillos.

I'm going to the hardware shop because I need screws.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ferretería is built on ferrete 'a small piece of iron' with the ending -ería (EtymDB). Ferrete comes from Latin ferrum 'iron', the word that gave hierro.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la ferretería
- Say it: la ferretería, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la ferretería
- Recall: say the Spanish for the dry cleaner's, then the Spanish for the fitting room, then say la ferretería again

Before you move on

What does la ferretería mean? ("The hardware shop".) Say it once more.

770.4 la carnicería — the butcher's

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the fitting room, then the Spanish for the hardware shop.

You'll want to know: la carnicería

la carnicería — "the butcher's".

Compro en esta carnicería porque la carne es muy buena.

I shop at this butcher's because the meat is very good.

El carnicero is the butcher.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

carnicería is built on carnicero 'a butcher' with the ending -ería (EtymDB). The root is carne, which comes from Latin carō, carnem 'flesh'.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la carnicería
- Say it: la carnicería, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la carnicería
- Recall: say the Spanish for the fitting room, then the Spanish for the hardware shop, then say la carnicería again

Before you move on

What does la carnicería mean? ("The butcher's".) Say it once more.

770.5 la frutería — the greengrocer's, the fruit shop

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the hardware shop, then the Spanish for the butcher's.

You'll want to know: la frutería

la frutería — "the greengrocer's, the fruit shop".

Voy a la frutería de la esquina porque tiene fruta de temporada.

I go to the fruit shop on the corner because it has fruit in season.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

frutería is built on fruta with the ending -ería (EtymDB). Fruta comes from Late Latin frūcta, from frūctus 'produce, enjoyment'.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la frutería
- Say it: la frutería, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la frutería
- Recall: say the Spanish for the hardware shop, then the Spanish for the butcher's, then say la frutería again

Before you move on

What does la frutería mean? ("The greengrocer's, the fruit shop".) Say it once more.

Chapter 771

Por el sabor

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say why I like or dislike a dish: its taste, whether it is hot, salty or raw, and how it smells.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 771: I can say why I like or dislike a dish: its taste, whether it is hot, salty or raw, and how it smells.

771.1 el sabor — the taste, the flavour

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the butcher's, then the Spanish for the greengrocer's.

You'll want to know: el sabor

el sabor — "the taste, the flavour".

> Me gusta por el sabor, no por el precio.
>
> I like it for the taste, not the price.

¿De qué sabor? — which flavour? Saber a is to taste of: Sabe a limón.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sabor is inherited from Latin sapōrem, from sapor 'a taste, a flavour' (EtymDB), built on sapere 'to taste', the verb behind saber.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el sabor
- Say it: el sabor, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el sabor
- Recall: say the Spanish for the butcher's, then the Spanish for the greengrocer's, then say el sabor again

Before you move on

What does el sabor mean? ("The taste, the flavour".) Say it once more.

771.2 picante — spicy, hot

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the greengrocer's, then the Spanish for the taste.

You'll want to know: picante

picante — "spicy, hot".

No lo como porque es demasiado picante.

I don't eat it because it is too spicy.

Picante is spicy-hot; hot in temperature is caliente.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

picante is built on picar 'to sting, to prick'. Picar is usually traced to spoken Latin pīccāre* 'to sting, to strike', the form EtymDB gives for its French cousin piquer. Spicy food stings the tongue.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: picante
- Say it: picante, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with picante
- Recall: say the Spanish for the greengrocer's, then the Spanish for the taste, then say picante again

Before you move on

What does picante mean? ("Spicy, hot".) Say it once more.

771.3 salado — salty; savoury

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the taste, then the Spanish for spicy.

You'll want to know: salado

salado — "salty; savoury".

No me gusta la sopa porque está muy salada.

I don't like the soup because it is very salty.

In Spain salado can also mean witty or charming; in parts of Latin America, unlucky.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

salado is built on the participle of salar 'to salt', from sal, which is inherited from Latin sāl 'salt' (Lewis & Short).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: salado
- Say it: salado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with salado
- Recall: say the Spanish for the taste, then the Spanish for spicy, then say salado again

Before you move on

What does salado mean? ("Salty; savoury".) Say it once more.

771.4 crudo — raw; uncooked

Before the new one: say the Spanish for spicy, then the Spanish for salty.

You'll want to know: crudo

crudo — "raw; uncooked".

No como sushi porque no me gusta el pescado crudo.

I don't eat sushi because I don't like raw fish.

El petróleo crudo — crude oil. Lo tiene crudo (Spain, informal) — he's got it tough.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

crudo is inherited from Latin crūdus 'raw, uncooked, bloody' (EtymDB), through old Spanish crudo.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: crudo
- Say it: crudo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with crudo
- Recall: say the Spanish for spicy, then the Spanish for salty, then say crudo again

Before you move on

What does crudo mean? ("Raw; uncooked".) Say it once more.

771.5 oler — to smell

Before the new one: say the Spanish for salty, then the Spanish for raw.

You'll want to know: oler

oler — "to smell".

No la como porque huele mal.

I don't eat it because it smells bad.

An h is added where it changes: huelo, hueles. Oler a — to smell of.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

oler is inherited from Latin olēre 'to give off a smell' (EtymDB). The stressed o became ue, and Spanish writes an h in front: huele.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: oler
- Say it: oler, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with oler
- Recall: say the Spanish for salty, then the Spanish for raw, then say oler again

Before you move on

What does oler mean? ("To smell".) Say it once more.

Chapter 772

Cuesta arriba

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can cope on a hill walk: a breeze blowing, a steep slope, slipping, and finding the way with a compass.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 772: I can cope on a hill walk: a breeze blowing, a steep slope, slipping, and finding the way with a compass.

772.1 la brisa — the breeze

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for raw, then the Spanish for to smell.

You'll want to know: la brisa

la brisa — "the breeze".

> Arriba sopla una brisa fresca.
>
> Up there a cool breeze blows.

La brisa del mar — the sea breeze.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

brisa comes from old Spanish briza (EtymDB), which named the northeast wind. Where briza came from is not settled; French brise and English breeze are related words.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la brisa
- Say it: la brisa, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la brisa
- Recall: say the Spanish for raw, then the Spanish for to smell, then say la brisa again

Before you move on

What does la brisa mean? ("The breeze".) Say it once more.

772.2 soplar — to blow

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to smell, then the Spanish for the breeze.

You'll want to know: soplar

soplar — "to blow".

Si sopla mucho viento, volvemos.

If the wind blows hard, we'll turn back.

Soplar las velas — to blow out the candles.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

soplar is inherited from Latin sufflāre 'to blow from below, to puff out' (Lewis & Short), built on sub and flāre 'to blow'.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: soplar
- Say it: soplar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with soplar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to smell, then the Spanish for the breeze, then say soplar again

Before you move on

What does soplar mean? ("To blow".) Say it once more.

772.3 la ladera — the hillside, the slope

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the breeze, then the Spanish for to blow.

You'll want to know: la ladera

la ladera — "the hillside, the slope".

El camino sube por la ladera de la montaña.

The path climbs up the side of the mountain.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

ladera is built on lado 'side' with the ending -era. Lado is inherited from Latin latus 'side, flank' (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la ladera
- Say it: la ladera, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with la ladera
- Recall: say the Spanish for the breeze, then the Spanish for to blow, then say la ladera again

Before you move on

What does la ladera mean? ("The hillside, the slope".) Say it once more.

772.4 resbalar — to slip

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to blow, then the Spanish for the hillside.

You'll want to know: resbalar

resbalar — "to slip".

Cuidado, que las piedras resbalan.

Careful, the stones are slippery.

Resbalarse is to slip and fall: Me resbalé en el barro.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

resbalar is built on old Spanish esbarar 'to slide' with re- (EtymDB). Where esbarar came from is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: resbalar
- Say it: resbalar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with resbalar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to blow, then the Spanish for the hillside, then say resbalar again

Before you move on

What does resbalar mean? (“To slip”.) Say it once more.

772.5 la brújula — the compass

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the hillside, then the Spanish for to slip.

You’ll want to know: la brújula

la brújula — “the compass”.

Sin mapa, usamos la brújula.

With no map, we used the compass.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

brújula comes from Italian bussola ’a compass’ (EtymDB), from Late Latin buxula ’a little box’, built on buxus ’boxwood’ (Lewis & Short). The needle sat in a small wooden box.

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la brújula
- Say it: la brújula, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la brújula
- Recall: say the Spanish for the hillside, then the Spanish for to slip, then say la brújula again

Before you move on

What does la brújula mean? (“The compass”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 773

Conectado de viaje

Modes: voice (5) Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can sort out my phone on a trip: the signal, a plug adapter, an app, a link, and topping up credit.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 773: I can sort out my phone on a trip: the signal, a plug adapter, an app, a link, and topping up credit.

773.1 la cobertura — the signal, the coverage

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for to slip, then the Spanish for the compass.

You'll want to know: la cobertura

la cobertura — "the signal, the coverage".

> En el pueblo no hay cobertura.
>
> There is no signal in the village.

For an insurance policy it is the cover: la cobertura del seguro.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cobertura comes from Late Latin coopertūra 'a covering' (EtymDB), from coopertus, the participle of cooperīre 'to cover over', the verb behind cubrir.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la cobertura
- Say it: la cobertura, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la cobertura
- Recall: say the Spanish for to slip, then the Spanish for the compass, then say la cobertura again

Before you move on

What does la cobertura mean? ("The signal, the coverage".) Say it once more.

773.2 el adaptador — the adapter

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the compass, then the Spanish for the signal.

You'll want to know: el adaptador

el adaptador — "the adapter".

Necesito un adaptador para el enchufe del hotel.

I need an adapter for the hotel socket.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

adaptador is built on adaptar with the ending -dor. Adaptar comes from Latin adaptāre 'to fit to' (EtymDB), built on aptus 'fitted'.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el adaptador
- Say it: el adaptador, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el adaptador
- Recall: say the Spanish for the compass, then the Spanish for the signal, then say el adaptador again

Before you move on

What does el adaptador mean? ("The adapter".) Say it once more.

773.3 la aplicación — the app; the application

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the signal, then the Spanish for the adapter.

You'll want to know: la aplicación

la aplicación — "the app; the application".

Descarga la aplicación del metro antes de salir.

Download the metro app before you leave.

In speech it is often la app.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

aplicación is a learned borrowing from Latin applicātiō 'a joining to' (EtymDB), from applicāre 'to attach', built on plicāre 'to fold'.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la aplicación
- Say it: la aplicación, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la aplicación
- Recall: say the Spanish for the signal, then the Spanish for the adapter, then say la aplicación again

Before you move on

What does la aplicación mean? ("The app; the application".) Say it once more.

773.4 el enlace — the link; the connection

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the adapter, then the Spanish for the app.

You'll want to know: el enlace

el enlace — "the link; the connection".

Te mando el enlace del billete.

I'll send you the link to the ticket.

At a station or airport it is a connection: perder el enlace.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

enlace is built on enlazar 'to tie together' (EtymDB), which comes from Latin inlaqueāre, built on laqueus 'a noose' (Lewis & Short).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el enlace
- Say it: el enlace, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el enlace
- Recall: say the Spanish for the adapter, then the Spanish for the app, then say el enlace again

Before you move on

What does el enlace mean? (“The link; the connection”.) Say it once more.

773.5 recargar — to top up; to recharge

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the app, then the Spanish for the link.

You’ll want to know: recargar

recargar — “to top up; to recharge”.

Tengo que recargar el móvil antes del viaje.

I have to top up my phone before the trip.

It takes gu before e: recargué. It also means to recharge a battery.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

recargar is built on cargar ’to load, to charge’ with re- ’again’. Cargar comes from Late Latin carricāre ’to load a cart’, from carrus ’a cart’ (Lewis & Short).

What you’ve built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: recargar
- Say it: recargar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with recargar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the app, then the Spanish for the link, then say recargar again

Before you move on

What does recargar mean? (“To top up; to recharge”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 774

La casa de mis abuelos

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe an old house as I remember it: the cellar, the attic, a drawer, a mirror and the blinds.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 774: I can describe an old house as I remember it: the cellar, the attic, a drawer, a mirror and the blinds.

774.1 el sótano — the basement, the cellar

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the link, then the Spanish for to top up.

You'll want to know: el sótano

el sótano — "the basement, the cellar".

> El sótano siempre estaba frío y oscuro.
>
> The basement was always cold and dark.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

sótano is usually traced to spoken Latin subtulum* 'a place below', built on subtus 'beneath' (Lewis & Short).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el sótano
- Say it: el sótano, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el sótano
- Recall: say the Spanish for the link, then the Spanish for to top up, then say el sótano again

Before you move on

What does el sótano mean? ("The basement, the cellar".) Say it once more.

774.2 el desván — the attic, the loft

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to top up, then the Spanish for the basement.

You'll want to know: el desván

el desván — "the attic, the loft".

En el desván había cajas de fotos viejas.

In the attic there were boxes of old photos.

In Spain el ático is usually a top-floor flat, not a loft.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

desván is usually traced to des- and vano 'an empty space', from Latin vānus 'empty, void' (Lewis & Short); the details are not settled.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el desván
- Say it: el desván, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el desván
- Recall: say the Spanish for to top up, then the Spanish for the basement, then say el desván again

Before you move on

What does el desván mean? ("The attic, the loft".) Say it once more.

774.3 el cajón — the drawer

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the basement, then the Spanish for the attic.

You'll want to know: el cajón

el cajón — "the drawer".

Mi abuela guardaba las cartas en un cajón.

My grandmother kept the letters in a drawer.

De cajón — obvious, of course.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cajón is built on caja 'box' with the ending -ón. Caja comes from Latin capsa 'a box, a case for books' (Lewis & Short), most likely through Catalan caixa.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el cajón
- Say it: el cajón, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el cajón
- Recall: say the Spanish for the basement, then the Spanish for the attic, then say el cajón again

Before you move on

What does el cajón mean? ("The drawer".) Say it once more.

774.4 el espejo — the mirror

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the attic, then the Spanish for the drawer.

You'll want to know: el espejo

el espejo — "the mirror".

En el pasillo había un espejo enorme.

In the hall there was a huge mirror.

Mirarse en el espejo — to see yourself in the mirror.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

espejo is inherited from Latin speculum 'a mirror' (Lewis & Short), built on specere 'to look' (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el espejo
- Say it: el espejo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el espejo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the attic, then the Spanish for the drawer, then say el espejo again

Before you move on

What does el espejo mean? ("The mirror".) Say it once more.

774.5 la persiana — the blind, the shutter

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the drawer, then the Spanish for the mirror.

You'll want to know: la persiana

la persiana — "the blind, the shutter".

Mi abuela siempre bajaba la persiana por la tarde.

My grandmother always lowered the blind in the afternoon.

Subir and bajar la persiana — to raise and lower the blind.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

persiana comes from French persienne (EtymDB), a word built on the name of Persia; the slatted blind was thought to come from there.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la persiana
- Say it: la persiana, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la persiana
- Recall: say the Spanish for the drawer, then the Spanish for the mirror, then say la persiana again

Before you move on

What does la persiana mean? (“The blind, the shutter”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 775

En mi cocina

Modes: voice (6) Hands-free start: all 6 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can describe my kitchen and what I find there: the fridge, the coffee maker, a tin, a piece of something, and the smell.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 775: I can describe my kitchen and what I find there: the fridge, the coffee maker, a tin, a piece of something, and the smell.

775.1 la nevera — the fridge

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the mirror, then the Spanish for the blind.

You'll want to know: la nevera

la nevera — "the fridge".

> La nevera está casi vacía.
>
> The fridge is almost empty.

El frigorífico is also common in Spain; in parts of Latin America people say el refrigerador or la heladera.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

nevera comes from Latin nivārius 'of snow' (EtymDB; Lewis & Short), built on nix, nivis 'snow', which also gave nieve. It was first a place where snow was stored to keep things cold.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la nevera
- Say it: la nevera, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la nevera
- Recall: say the Spanish for the mirror, then the Spanish for the blind, then say la nevera again

Before you move on

What does la nevera mean? ("The fridge".) Say it once more.

775.2 la cafetera — the coffee maker, the coffee pot

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the blind, then the Spanish for the fridge.

You'll want to know: la cafetera

la cafetera — "the coffee maker, the coffee pot".

Por la mañana la cafetera hace mucho ruido.

In the morning the coffee maker makes a lot of noise.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

cafetera comes from French cafetière 'coffee pot' (EtymDB), built on café, which reached Europe through Ottoman Turkish kahve from Arabic qahwa.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la cafetera
- Say it: la cafetera, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la cafetera
- Recall: say the Spanish for the blind, then the Spanish for the fridge, then say la cafetera again

Before you move on

What does la cafetera mean? ("The coffee maker, the coffee pot".) Say it once more.

775.3 la lata — the tin, the can; a nuisance

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the fridge, then the Spanish for the coffee maker.

You'll want to know: la lata

la lata — "the tin, the can; a nuisance".

En el armario hay latas de atún.

In the cupboard there are tins of tuna.

¡Qué lata! — what a pain! Dar la lata — to pester.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

lata is usually traced to Late Latin latta 'a lath, a thin board', probably of Germanic origin. EtymDB traces its French cousin latte to Frankish latta*, the same Germanic word as English lath. The sense moved from a thin strip of wood to a thin sheet of tin.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la lata
- Say it: la lata, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la lata
- Recall: say the Spanish for the fridge, then the Spanish for the coffee maker, then say la lata again

Before you move on

What does la lata mean? ("The tin, the can; a nuisance".) Say it once more.

775.4 el trozo — the piece, the bit

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the coffee maker, then the Spanish for the tin.

You'll want to know: el trozo

el trozo — "the piece, the bit".

Me queda un trozo de pastel en la nevera.

I have a piece of cake left in the fridge.

Un trozo de pan — a piece of bread.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

The origin of trozo is not settled. One proposal links it to Latin thyrsus 'a stalk' (Lewis & Short), but no account is agreed.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el trozo
- Say it: el trozo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el trozo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the coffee maker, then the Spanish for the tin, then say el trozo again

Before you move on

What does el trozo mean? ("The piece, the bit".) Say it once more.

775.5 el olor — the smell

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the tin, then the Spanish for the piece.

You'll want to know: el olor

el olor — "the smell".

Me encanta el olor del pan recién hecho.

I love the smell of freshly baked bread.

Olor a — a smell of: olor a café.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

olor is usually traced to Latin olor 'a smell' (Lewis & Short), a rare by-form of odor shaped by the verb olēre 'to give off a smell'.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el olor
- Say it: el olor, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el olor
- Recall: say the Spanish for the tin, then the Spanish for the piece, then say el olor again

Before you move on

What does el olor mean? ("The smell".) Say it once more.

775.6 Casa, cocina y compras

Say the Spanish for to boil and to fry.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- to boil, to fry, to peel, to beat, the ingredient
- to drip, the leak, broken down, the plumber, the electrician
- the dry cleaner's, the fitting room, the hardware shop, the butcher's, the greengrocer's
- the taste, spicy, salty, raw, to smell
- the breeze, to blow, the hillside, to slip, the compass
- the signal, the adapter, the app, the link, to top up
- the basement, the attic, the drawer, the mirror, the blind
- the fridge, the coffee maker, the tin, the piece, the smell

Before you move on

To boil? (hervir.) To fry? (freír.) To peel? (pelar.) To beat? (batir.) The ingredient? (el ingrediente.) To drip? (gotear.) The leak? (la gotera.) Broken down? (averiado.) The plumber? (el fontanero.) The electrician? (el electricista.) The dry cleaner's? (la tintorería.) The fitting room? (el probador.) The hardware shop? (la ferretería.) The butcher's? (la carnicería.) The greengrocer's? (la frutería.) The taste? (el sabor.) Spicy? (picante.) Salty? (salado.) Raw? (crudo.) To smell? (oler.) The breeze? (la brisa.) To blow? (soplar.) The hillside? (la ladera.) To slip? (resbalar.) The compass? (la brújula.) The signal? (la cobertura.) The adapter? (el adaptador.) The app? (la aplicación.) The link? (el enlace.) To top up? (recargar.) The basement? (el sótano.) The attic? (el desván.) The drawer? (el cajón.) The mirror? (el espejo.) The blind? (la persiana.) The fridge? (la nevera.) The coffee maker? (la cafetera.) The tin? (la lata.) The piece? (el trozo.) The smell? (el olor.)

Chapter 776

Si olvidas la contraseña

Modes: 🚗 voice (5) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 5 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what to do if something goes wrong on a computer: a password, a file, a folder, an update or a keyboard.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 776: I can say what to do if something goes wrong on a computer: a password, a file, a folder, an update or a keyboard.

776.1 la contraseña — the password

> Before the new one: say the Spanish for the piece, then the Spanish for the smell.

You'll want to know: la contraseña

la contraseña — "the password".

> Si olvidas la contraseña, pulsa aquí.
>
> If you forget your password, click here.

La clave is also used, especially for a PIN.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

contraseña is built on contra 'against, in return' and seña 'a sign', which comes from Latin signa, the plural of signum 'a mark' (Lewis &

Short). It was first a soldier's countersign.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la contraseña
- Say it: la contraseña, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la contraseña
- Recall: say the Spanish for the piece, then the Spanish for the smell, then say la contraseña again

Before you move on

What does la contraseña mean? ("The password".) Say it once more.

776.2 el archivo — the file; the archive

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the smell, then the Spanish for the password.

You'll want to know: el archivo

el archivo — "the file; the archive".

Si el archivo es muy grande, no se puede enviar.

If the file is very big, it can't be sent.

Un archivo adjunto — an attachment.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

archivo is a learned borrowing from Late Latin archīvum 'the archives' (Lewis & Short), which comes from Greek archeîon 'a town hall' (EtymDB).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el archivo
- Say it: el archivo, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el archivo
- Recall: say the Spanish for the smell, then the Spanish for the password, then say el archivo again

Before you move on

What does el archivo mean? ("The file; the archive".) Say it once more.

776.3 la carpeta — the folder

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the password, then the Spanish for the file.

You'll want to know: la carpeta

la carpeta — "the folder".

Si no encuentras la foto, mira en esta carpeta.

If you can't find the photo, look in this folder.

Also a cardboard folder for papers.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

carpeta was borrowed from French carpette (EtymDB), a cloth cover for a table, which goes back to Medieval Latin carpīta. The cover for papers became a folder.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: la carpeta
- Say it: la carpeta, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with la carpeta
- Recall: say the Spanish for the password, then the Spanish for the file, then say la carpeta again

Before you move on

What does la carpeta mean? ("The folder".) Say it once more.

776.4 actualizar — to update

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the file, then the Spanish for the folder.

You'll want to know: actualizar

actualizar — "to update".

Si no funciona, actualiza la aplicación.

If it doesn't work, update the app.

It takes c before e: actualicé. La actualización is the update.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

actualizar is built on actual 'current' with the ending -izar. Actual comes from Latin āctuālis 'active, practical' (EtymDB; Lewis & Short), from agere 'to do'. In Spanish actual means current, not real.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: actualizar
- Say it: actualizar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with actualizar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the file, then the Spanish for the folder, then say actualizar again

Before you move on

What does actualizar mean? ("To update".) Say it once more.

776.5 el teclado — the keyboard

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the folder, then the Spanish for to update.

You'll want to know: el teclado

el teclado — "the keyboard".

Si el teclado no funciona, prueba con otro.

If the keyboard doesn't work, try another one.

Una tecla is a key.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

teclado is built on tecla 'a key' with the ending -ado (EtymDB). The origin of tecla itself is not settled.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: el teclado
- Say it: el teclado, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with el teclado
- Recall: say the Spanish for the folder, then the Spanish for to update, then say el teclado again

Before you move on

What does el teclado mean? (“The keyboard”.) Say it once more.

Chapter 777

Si se va la luz

Modes: 🚗 voice (7) 🚗 Hands-free start: all 7 lessons.

> By the end of this chapter: I can say what to do if the power goes or food goes off: freeze it, let it cool, iron later, plug in and restart.
>
> Complete the last lesson of chapter 777: I can say what to do if the power goes or food goes off: freeze it, let it cool, iron later, plug in and restart.

777.1 congelar — to freeze

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to update, then the Spanish for the keyboard.

You'll want to know: congelar

congelar — "to freeze".

Si no vas a comerlo hoy, congélalo.

If you aren't going to eat it today, freeze it.

Congelado — frozen. Los congelados — frozen food.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

congelar is a learned borrowing from Latin congelāre 'to cause to freeze' (EtymDB), built on gelū 'frost', the word that gave hielo.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: congelar
- Say it: congelar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with congelar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to update, then the Spanish for the keyboard, then say congelar again

Before you move on

What does congelar mean? ("To freeze".) Say it once more.

777.2 enfriar — to cool, to chill

Before the new one: say the Spanish for the keyboard, then the Spanish for to freeze.

You'll want to know: enfriar

enfriar — "to cool, to chill".

Si la sopa está muy caliente, déjala enfriar.

If the soup is very hot, let it cool.

It takes an accent: enfrío. Enfriarse is to cool down, and also to catch a cold.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

enfriar is built on frío 'cold' with en- and -ar. Frío is inherited from Latin frīgidus 'cold' (Lewis & Short).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: enfriar
- Say it: enfriar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with enfriar
- Recall: say the Spanish for the keyboard, then the Spanish for to freeze, then say enfriar again

Before you move on

What does enfriar mean? ("To cool, to chill".) Say it once more.

777.3 planchar — to iron

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to freeze, then the Spanish for to cool.

You'll want to know: planchar

planchar — "to iron".

Si tienes tiempo, plancha la camisa.

If you have time, iron the shirt.

La plancha is the iron; a la plancha is grilled on a hot plate.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

planchar is built on plancha 'a flat iron plate', which comes from French planche 'a board' (EtymDB), from Latin planca 'a plank' (Lewis & Short).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: planchar
- Say it: planchar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with planchar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to freeze, then the Spanish for to cool, then say planchar again

Before you move on

What does planchar mean? ("To iron".) Say it once more.

777.4 enchufar — to plug in

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to cool, then the Spanish for to iron.

You'll want to know: enchufar

enchufar — "to plug in".

Si no carga, enchufa el cable otra vez.

If it isn't charging, plug the cable in again.

El enchufe is the plug or socket; in Spain it also means connections, knowing the right people.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

The origin of enchufar is not settled. It is usually treated as imitative, built on a sound like chuf, the noise of one pipe pushed into another.

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: enchufar
- Say it: enchufar, once more
- Say it: a sentence of your own with enchufar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to cool, then the Spanish for to iron, then say enchufar again

Before you move on

What does enchufar mean? ("To plug in".) Say it once more.

777.5 reiniciar — to restart, to reboot

Before the new one: say the Spanish for to iron, then the Spanish for to plug in.

You'll want to know: reiniciar

reiniciar — "to restart, to reboot".

Si se bloquea, reinicia el móvil.

If it freezes, restart your phone.

The word, taken apart — and its English cousins

reiniciar is built on iniciar with re- 'again'. Iniciar is a learned borrowing from Latin initiāre 'to begin', from initium 'a beginning' (Lewis & Short).

What you've built

One more word for telling, explaining and describing at B1.

Your turn

- Say it: reiniciar
- Say it: reiniciar, once more

- Say it: a sentence of your own with reiniciar
- Recall: say the Spanish for to iron, then the Spanish for to plug in, then say reiniciar again

Before you move on

What does reiniciar mean? ("To restart, to reboot".) Say it once more.

777.6 Más cosas de cada día

Say the Spanish for the password and the file.

Your turn

Say these aloud:

- the password, the file, the folder, to update, the keyboard
- to freeze, to cool, to iron, to plug in, to restart

Before you move on

The password? (la contraseña.) The file? (el archivo.) The folder? (la carpeta.) To update? (actualizar.) The keyboard? (el teclado.) To freeze? (congelar.) To cool? (enfriar.) To iron? (planchar.) To plug in? (enchufar.) To restart? (reiniciar.)

777.7 Si se va la luz — once more

Say the Spanish for to freeze and to cool.

Your turn

- Say it: to freeze, to cool, to iron, to plug in, to restart

Before you move on

To freeze? (congelar.) To cool? (enfriar.) To iron? (planchar.) To plug in? (enchufar.) To restart? (reiniciar.)

Pronunciation — a reference, not a chapter

This is a reference, not a chapter. You are not meant to read it front to back before starting. Each lesson tells you the one or two sounds you need for that word, and links here if you want the fuller picture. Look things up as curiosity strikes; otherwise, keep learning words.

Each entry has an id (e.g. `silent-h`) that lessons cite in their front-matter `sounds:` field, so "Sounds you'll need" notes and this page stay in sync.

Vowels — the five pure sounds

Spanish has exactly five vowel sounds, one per letter, every time. English has a dozen-plus and reuses letters for several; that habit is the thing to unlearn.

- `vowel-a` — a as in English father. Always. Never cat, never cake.
- `vowel-e` — e as in bed. Always. Never the ee of see.
- `vowel-i` — i as the ee in see (not the English i of sit). The single most common vowel mistake English speakers make.
- `vowel-o` — o as in note, but short and clean, with no w-glide at the end.
- `vowel-u` — u as the oo in food. Always.

Diphthongs — two vowels run together

- `diphthong-ue` — ue as a quick weh (Spanish u + e), e.g. bueno, nueve.

- `diphthong-ie` — ie as a quick yeh (Spanish i + e), e.g. quiero, siete.
- `diphthong-ei` — ei as in English they, e.g. seis, treinta.

Consonants that differ from English

- `silent-h` — h is always silent, no exceptions. hola is OH-la, hay is eye.
- `soft-c` — c before e or i is a soft sound: s in Latin America, a th (as in think) in most of Spain. gracias, cero. Before a/o/u it's a hard k (casa).
- `qu-k` — qu is a hard k, and the u is silent: quiero is KYEH-ro, qué is keh. (This silent-u-after-q is inherited straight from Latin.)
- `ll-y` — ll sounds like English y in yes across most of Latin America: llamo is YA-mo. (Regional variation exists; y is the safe default.)
- `n-tilde` — ñ is the ny of canyon: español is es-pa-NYOL. A different letter from n, not a decoration.
- `rr-trill` — rr is a rolled/trilled r; a single r between vowels is a light tap. pero (but) vs. perro (dog) is a real minimal pair.
- `j-h` — j is a throat-h, rougher than English h (like the ch in Scottish loch): jueves.
- `g-soft` — g before e/i is the same throat sound as j (gente); before a/o/u it's a hard g (gato).
- `d-soft` — d between vowels softens toward English th in this: nada is closer to NA-tha.
- `v-b` — v and b sound essentially identical in Spanish, both a soft b.

Stress & written accents

Three facts cover almost every word:

- `stress-default-vowel-ns` — a word ending in a vowel, n, or s is stressed on the second-to-last syllable: ca-SA, ha-BLAN, li-BROS.

- `stress-default-consonant` — a word ending in any other consonant is stressed on the last syllable: ha-BLAR, ciu-DAD.
- `accent-mark` — a written accent (´) overrides both rules and puts the stress exactly on the marked vowel: ha-BLÓ, DÍ-as. The mark can also distinguish otherwise-identical words (qué "what?" vs. que "that", tú "you" vs. tu "your").
- `accent-i` — a specific case of the above: the accent on í in words like días keeps the stress on the i where the default rule would otherwise misplace it.

Punctuation

- `inverted-marks` — questions and exclamations open with an inverted mark: ¿cómo estás?, ¡hola! — so you know the intonation before you reach the end of the sentence.

Glossary

This glossary collects every word and phrase taught in the book. Pronunciation appears when it differs from the written form; chapter numbers show where each entry is introduced.

a causa de because of
Introduced in Chapter 581.

a condición de que
on condition that
Introduced in Chapter 612.

a continuación
next, then; below
Introduced in Chapter 534.

a finales de
at the end of
Introduced in Chapter 540.

a la larga
in the long run
Introduced in Chapter 535.

a la vez
at once, at the same time
Introduced in Chapter 536.

a lo mejor
maybe, perhaps
Introduced in Chapter 619.

a mediados de
in the middle of, around the middle of
Introduced in Chapter 540.

a menos que
unless
Introduced in Chapter 611.

a no ser que
except if; unless
Introduced in Chapter 612.

a principios de
at the beginning of Introduced in Chapter 540.

a raíz de
as a result of, following
Introduced in Chapter 580.

abajo
down, below, downstairs — Late Latin bassus, low; English base, bass, abase and debase are the same lowness Introduced in Chapter 341.

abandonar
to abandon, to give up; to leave
Introduced in Chapter 639.

abonar
to pay; to credit
Introduced in Chapter 632.

abrazar
to hug
Introduced in Chapter 506.

abrir
to open — a regular -ir verb with one irregular part, the participle abierto Introduced in Chapter 166.

abrocharse
to fasten (a belt, a button)
Introduced in Chapter 644.

absurdo
absurd, ridiculous
Introduced in Chapter 579.

aburrido
bored; boring
Introduced in Chapter 476.

aburrirse
to get bored
Introduced in Chapter 713.

acabar
to finish — from cabo, an end, from Latin caput, a head; English achieve is the same metaphor built again in French Introduced in Chapter 382.

acabar por
to end up (doing)
Introduced in Chapter 562.

acampar
to camp
Introduced in Chapter 666.

acariciar
to stroke, to caress
Introduced in Chapter 746.

acaso
perhaps, by chance — a + caso, and Latin casus was a fall; English case, casual, casualty, cadence and accident are all falls too Introduced in Chapter 324.

acelerar
to speed up, to accelerate Introduced in Chapter 643.

aceptable
acceptable
Introduced in Chapter 508.

aceptar
to accept — to take a thing towards you, and the sign on the till Introduced in Chapter 456.

acercar
to pass, to bring closer — the same verb as acercarse with the -se taken off Introduced in Chapter 449.

acercarse
to approach — a preposition turned into a verb, and the date that comes closer on its own Introduced in Chapter 443.

acoger
to take in, to foster; to welcome
Introduced in Chapter 748.

acompañar
to go with somebody — built on the one you share bread with Introduced in Chapter 446.

aconsejar
to advise — el consejo with a verb built on it, and the verb a question reaches for when it asks what somebody recommends Introduced in Chapter 473.

acontecer
to come about; to happen
Introduced in Chapter 512.

acordar
to agree on
Introduced in Chapter 634.

acortar
to shorten; to cut short
Introduced in Chapter 673.

actual current, present-day
Introduced in Chapter 508.

actualizar
to update
Introduced in Chapter 776.

actuar
to act, to perform
Introduced in Chapter 759.

acudir
to go, to come (to a place or to someone for help)
Introduced in Chapter 483.

acusar
to accuse
Introduced in Chapter 523.

adaptarse
to adapt, to get used to Introduced in Chapter 551.

adelantado
in advance; early, ahead
Introduced in Chapter 479.

adelantar
to bring forward; to overtake Introduced in Chapter 543.

adelante
forward, ahead
Introduced in Chapter 671.

adelgazar
to lose weight
Introduced in Chapter 503.

además
furthermore, moreover Introduced in Chapter 273.

adiós
goodbye
Introduced in Chapter 12.

admirar
to admire
Introduced in Chapter 720.

admitir
to let in, to own up to — the mittere you already have in meter Introduced in Chapter 458.

adoptar
to adopt
Introduced in Chapter 748.

adorar
to adore, to worship
Introduced in Chapter 714.

adulto, adulta
adult, grown-up
Introduced in Chapter 417.

advertir
to warn; to notice
Introduced in Chapter 585.

afectar
to affect
Introduced in Chapter 583.

afeitarse
to shave
Introduced in Chapter 486.

afirmar
to state, to say that something is so Introduced in Chapter 480.

afrontar
to face, to confront
Introduced in Chapter 609.

agosto
August — Latin Augustus, the emperor the month was renamed for, inherited by way of the attested Vulgar Latin agustus; its learned twin augusto keeps the au and the u that agosto lost
Introduced in Chapter 392.

agotado
exhausted; sold out
Introduced in Chapter 741.

agradecer
to thank for, to be grateful for
Introduced in Chapter 484.

agradecido grateful
Introduced in Chapter 720.

aguantar
to put up with, to bear; to hold
Introduced in Chapter 503.

ahí · allí
there, over there — the two places aquí has been missing, and they line up exactly with the three pointing words
Introduced in Chapter 251.

ahora
now — the time word mañana has been waiting for, and a Latin hour in disguise Introduced in Chapter 252.

ahorrar
to save (money or time)
Introduced in Chapter 484.

ajeno
somebody else's — Latin alienus from alius, other; English alien, alias and alibi all point at somebody who is not you Introduced in Chapter 350.

al
to the — one of only two places where Spanish forces two words into one, and it does it because the two vowels refuse to sit next to each other
Introduced in Chapter 230.

al día siguiente
the next day, the following day
Introduced in Chapter 537.

al mismo tiempo
at the same time
Introduced in Chapter 536.

alcanzar
to reach, to catch up with Introduced in Chapter 573.

alegrarse
to be glad
Introduced in Chapter 487.

alegre
cheerful — Latin alacer, lively, through two reconstructed spoken forms; English alacrity and Italian allegro are the same word Introduced in Chapter 380.

alejarse
to move away, to go off
Introduced in Chapter 562.

algo
something — Latin aliquod, ali- plus quod, "some other what"; the same ali- is in alias, alien and altruism
Introduced in Chapter 317.

alguien
somebody — Latin aliquem, ali- plus quem, “some other whom”; algo’s exact partner, built for people Introduced in Chapter 317.

alimentar
to feed — from a Latin verb wider than feeding, which is why the same root is inside adult and alumnus Introduced in Chapter 467.

aliviar
to relieve, to ease
Introduced in Chapter 740.

alojarse
to stay (at a hotel or a house), to lodge
Introduced in Chapter 660.

alquilar
to rent, to hire; to rent out Introduced in Chapter 667.

alrededor
around, round about — al plus rededor, from Latin retro backwards crossed with rota, a wheel; English rotate, rotund and retro all roll here
Introduced in Chapter 347.

alto
high, tall — Latin altus, which meant high and also deep; altitude, exalt, enhance, haughty and the oboe are all still measuring height
Introduced in Chapter 365.

amable kind — Latin amabilis, loveable: the person it is easy to be fond of Introduced in Chapter 283.

amar
to love
Introduced in Chapter 715.

amarillo
yellow — from “a little bitter,” not from any Latin word for yellow at all Introduced in Chapter 151.

ambicioso
ambitious
Introduced in Chapter 595.

ambos
both — Latin ambo, the two together; English ambidextrous, ambiguous and amphitheatre all carry the same both Introduced in Chapter 351.

añadir
to add
Introduced in Chapter 499.

analizar
to analyse
Introduced in Chapter 599.

ancho
wide — Latin amplus, spacious; ample, amplify and amplitude are the borrowed branch, and Spanish amplio is the same adjective taken fresh from the page Introduced in Chapter 365.

anciano
elderly; the elderly person
Introduced in Chapter 555.

anhelar
to yearn for, to long for Introduced in Chapter 765.

animar
to cheer up, to encourage Introduced in Chapter 712.

anoche
last night — Latin ad noctem, toward night, worn into one word; the same noctem gives English nocturnal and equinox Introduced in Chapter 322.

anochecer
to get dark; nightfall
Introduced in Chapter 703.

añorar
to long for, to yearn for Introduced in Chapter 709.

anotar
to note down — Latin nota on a verb, and the quieter twin of apuntar Introduced in Chapter 465.

anteayer
the day before yesterday
Introduced in Chapter 537.

anteriormente
previously, earlier
Introduced in Chapter 538.

antes
before — Latin ante; English ante-, antique, ancient and ancestor all come off it, and an ancestor is one who went before Introduced in Chapter 323.

anticipar
to bring forward; to anticipate
Introduced in Chapter 616.

antiguamente
in the old days, formerly
Introduced in Chapter 575.

antiguo
old, ancient; former
Introduced in Chapter 575.

antipático
unpleasant, disagreeable — simpático with the Greek anti- fastened on the front; the two words are a matched pair and neither means what its English lookalike means Introduced in Chapter 423.

anual
yearly, annual
Introduced in Chapter 540.

anunciar
to announce
Introduced in Chapter 514.

apagar
to turn off or extinguish — from Latin pacare, to calm or pacify Introduced in Chapter 404.

aparcar
to park
Introduced in Chapter 489.

aparentemente apparently
Introduced in Chapter 587.

apearse
to get off (a train or bus), to step down
Introduced in Chapter 651.

apenas
barely, hardly, scarcely — a + penas, from Latin poena, a penalty; English pain, penalty, penal and subpoena are the same root Introduced in Chapter 328.

apetecer
to feel like, to fancy
Introduced in Chapter 499.

aplaudir
to applaud, to clap
Introduced in Chapter 759.

aplazar
to postpone, to put off
Introduced in Chapter 543.

aportar
to contribute, to bring Introduced in Chapter 598.

apostar
to bet
Introduced in Chapter 752.

apoyar
to support; to lean
Introduced in Chapter 484.

apreciar
to appreciate, to value
Introduced in Chapter 720.

aprender
to learn — Latin apprehendere, to seize, worn down through apprēndere; the bookish twin aprehender kept the -he- and kept the seizing Introduced in Chapter 396.

aprobar
to pass an exam — and the surprise is who does the approving, because the Latin has the exam approving you Introduced in Chapter 429.

aprovechar
to make the most of, to take advantage of Introduced in Chapter 484.

apuntar
to note down, to put your name on a list — a verb built on the point of something Introduced in Chapter 451.

apuntarse
to sign up, to put one's name down
Introduced in Chapter 414.

aquel
that one over there, away from us both — and the second life of the word that became el in your very first chapter Introduced in Chapter 223.

arder
to burn, to be on fire
Introduced in Chapter 524.

argumentar
to argue, to give reasons
Introduced in Chapter 577.

arrancar
to start (an engine); to pull out, to tear out Introduced in Chapter 643.

arrastrar
to drag, to pull along
Introduced in Chapter 668.

arreglar
to fix, to sort out — putting a thing back to the straight edge it came off Introduced in Chapter 449.

arreglarse
to get ready, to get dressed up
Introduced in Chapter 494.

arrepentirse
to regret — a verb that looks like it contains sentir, behaves like sentir, and is not related to it Introduced in Chapter 443.

arrestar
to arrest
Introduced in Chapter 519.

arriba
up, above, upstairs — Latin ripa, a riverbank; English river, riparian and arrive all come off the same bank
Introduced in Chapter 341.

arriesgado
risky, daring
Introduced in Chapter 530.

arriesgar
to risk
Introduced in Chapter 614.

ascender
to be promoted; to rise
Introduced in Chapter 595.

asegurar
to assure, to insist; to insure Introduced in Chapter 516.

así
thus, like this, that way — Latin ad sic, to thus; the same sic that Spanish turned into sí and that English still writes inside a quotation
Introduced in Chapter 328.

así que
thus, in that way — and with que after it, "so"; built on the same sīc that gave you sí Introduced in Chapter 175.

asistir
to attend
Introduced in Chapter 505.

asonancia
assonance — the rhyme Spanish verse actually uses Introduced in Chapter 276.

aspirar
to aspire; to breathe in; to vacuum
Introduced in Chapter 765.

astuto
clever, cunning
Introduced in Chapter 728.

asumir
to take on; to accept
Introduced in Chapter 639.

asustado
frightened, scared
Introduced in Chapter 706.

asustar
to frighten, to scare
Introduced in Chapter 706.

atacar
to attack
Introduced in Chapter 530.

atascarse
to get stuck; to get jammed
Introduced in Chapter 643.

atender
to serve (a customer); to attend to; to pay attention
Introduced in Chapter 681.

aterrizar
to land
Introduced in Chapter 654.

atracar
to hold up, to mug; to moor
Introduced in Chapter 518.

atractivo
attractive
Introduced in Chapter 730.

atrapar
to trap, to catch
Introduced in Chapter 526.

atravesar
to cross, to go through Introduced in Chapter 670.

atreverse
to dare
Introduced in Chapter 722.

atropellar
to run over, to knock down
Introduced in Chapter 527.

aumentar
to increase, to rise
Introduced in Chapter 608.

aunque
although, even though
Introduced in Chapter 270.

autorizar
to authorise, to allow Introduced in Chapter 624.

avalar
to vouch for, to guarantee; to back Introduced in Chapter 635.

avanzado
advanced — a participle used as an adjective, and a cousin of antes, because to advance is to move to the front
Introduced in Chapter 471.

avergonzado
ashamed, embarrassed
Introduced in Chapter 705.

avergonzarse
to be ashamed
Introduced in Chapter 705.

averiado
broken down, out of order
Introduced in Chapter 769.

averiarse
to break down
Introduced in Chapter 645.

averiguar
to find out
Introduced in Chapter 521.

avisar
to let know — the verb el aviso was named from, handed over now, and it shows rather than orders Introduced in Chapter 470.

ayer
yesterday
Introduced in Chapter 103.

ayudar
to help — literally the same word as English “aid”, arriving by a different road Introduced in Chapter 161.

azul
blue — an Arabic loan that became the plain everyday word, where French’s cousin stayed poetic Introduced in Chapter 139.

bailar
to dance (bailar — infinitive)
Introduced in Chapter 419.

bajar
to go down, to come down; to lower
Introduced in Chapter 494.

bañarse
to have a swim; to have a bath
Introduced in Chapter 690.

barato
cheap — from the old verb baratar, to trade or haggle; Corominas calls the ultimate origin uncertain, probably pre-Roman and possibly Celtic, and English barter is very likely the same family Introduced in Chapter 397.

barrer
to sweep
Introduced in Chapter 485.

bastante
enough, quite — an ending you already decode, on a verb meaning to suffice, giving a word that means exactly “sufficing”
Introduced in Chapter 227.

batir
to beat, to whisk
Introduced in Chapter 768.

be larga o be corta
the letters with more than one name — which matters because b and v sound identical in Spanish, so the name is how a speaker tells them apart
Introduced in Chapter 425.

beber
to drink (another -er verb — cementing the pattern)
Introduced in Chapter 36.

besar
to kiss
Introduced in Chapter 715.

bien
well / good / fine
Introduced in Chapter 1.

bienvenido
welcome — bien plus venido, well come, two pieces you already own Introduced in Chapter 282.

billete
ticket
Introduced in Chapter 268.

bonito
pretty — bueno with a real diminutive on it, "nice and good"; and Latin bellus, which gave bello and English beautiful, had already been made the same way out of the same bonus
Introduced in Chapter 399.

bordear
to go along the edge of, to skirt
Introduced in Chapter 673.

borrar
to erase — from borra, coarse wool, the pad that rubbed writing out; English borrow is no relation Introduced in Chapter 388.

bostezar
to yawn
Introduced in Chapter 761.

brindar
to toast, to drink to; to offer
Introduced in Chapter 549.

bromear
to joke
Introduced in Chapter 718.

bromista
joker; fond of jokes
Introduced in Chapter 718.

broncearse
to get a tan
Introduced in Chapter 690.

bruscamente
abruptly, sharply
Introduced in Chapter 534.

buenas noches
good evening / good night
Introduced in Chapter 2.

buenas tardes
good afternoon
Introduced in Chapter 2.

buenos días
good morning (literally "good days")
Introduced in Chapter 1.

burlarse
to make fun of Introduced in Chapter 718.

buscar
to look for — of unknown origin; English busker is the one relative anybody can point to Introduced in Chapter 383.

cada
each, every — Greek kata, down or by, through Latin cata; English catalogue, catastrophe and cathedral all begin with the same kata Introduced in Chapter 345.

caducar
to expire
Introduced in Chapter 657.

caer
to fall
Introduced in Chapter 527.

café
coffee / a café — one useful noun before the polite request that follows Introduced in Chapter 14.

calentar
to heat up, to warm up
Introduced in Chapter 494.

callejear
to wander the streets
Introduced in Chapter 674.

calmar
to calm, to soothe
Introduced in Chapter 710.

caluroso
hot (weather); warm (welcome)
Introduced in Chapter 701.

cambiar
to change — Latin cambiāre, itself a word of Gaulish origin, for exchanging one thing for another Introduced in Chapter 401.

caminar
to walk — built on a Celtic word for a path, beside andar, whose own past is unsettled Introduced in Chapter 165.

cancelar
to cancel
Introduced in Chapter 479.

cansado
tired — a state, not a quality, which is why it takes estar and never ser Introduced in Chapter 59.

cariñoso
affectionate, loving Introduced in Chapter 714.

caro
expensive — Latin cārus already meant both dear-and-beloved and dear-and-costly, exactly as English dear still does, and charity, cherish and caress all come from it Introduced in Chapter 397.

casado
married
Introduced in Chapter 549.

casar
to marry (someone to someone)
Introduced in Chapter 549.

casarse
to get married
Introduced in Chapter 488.

casi
almost, nearly — Latin quasi, as if; English borrowed quasi whole and still hyphenates it onto anything that is nearly a thing
Introduced in Chapter 328.

castigar
to punish Introduced in Chapter 623.

causar
to cause
Introduced in Chapter 581.

ceder
to give way, to give in; to hand over Introduced in Chapter 634.

celebrar
to celebrate — and, underneath, to make a crowd; the verb a notice uses for holding an event at all Introduced in Chapter 440.

celoso
jealous
Introduced in Chapter 708.

cenar
to have dinner — one verb where English needs three words, and the meal a plan usually ends at Introduced in Chapter 437.

cerca
near, nearby — Latin circa, around; English circa, circle, circuit and circus all turn on the same ring Introduced in Chapter 340.

cercano
nearby, close
Introduced in Chapter 671.

cero
zero — Arabic sifr, empty; English took the same word twice, as zero and as cipher Introduced in Chapter 344.

cerrado
closed — the participle doing an adjective's job, and the sign you read most often Introduced in Chapter 439.

cerrar
to close — from the bar dropped across a door, not from the Latin verb English inherited Introduced in Chapter 166.

charlar
to chat
Introduced in Chapter 502.

chocar
to crash, to collide
Introduced in Chapter 527.

cien
a hundred — Latin centum, cut short before a noun; English cent, century and percent keep the Latin, and English hundred is the very same ancient word Introduced in Chapter 351.

cierto
true — Latin certus, sifted: what is left after you separate it out Introduced in Chapter 284.

circular
to circulate, to drive (of traffic)
Introduced in Chapter 643.

claro
light, pale, clear — the adjective behind a word you have been saying for chapters Introduced in Chapter 455.

cobarde
cowardly; the coward
Introduced in Chapter 722.

cobrar
to charge, to be paid — the other side of pagar, and the verb that decides who owes whom Introduced in Chapter 431.

cocinar
to cook — built on cocina, the kitchen, from Latin coquīna; English kitchen is that same Latin noun, borrowed early into Germanic Introduced in Chapter 396.

coincidir
to clash, to coincide — the reason people give for not coming, and a word your English eye can already read
Introduced in Chapter 437.

coleccionar
to collect
Introduced in Chapter 751.

colgar
to hang — Latin collocare, to place; English couch is the same verb, and the jump from placing to hanging happened only on the Spanish side Introduced in Chapter 385.

colocar
to put, to place
Introduced in Chapter 496.

comentar
to comment, to mention — to turn a thing over in the mind, together Introduced in Chapter 447.

comenzar
to begin, to start
Introduced in Chapter 542.

comer
to eat — your first -er verb, and the family whose yo-form you already own Introduced in Chapter 34.

cometer un error
to make a mistake — with the verb Spanish insists on Introduced in Chapter 275.

comí
the regular singular -er preterite — comí, comiste, comió
Introduced in Chapter 104.

cómo
how — a whole Latin phrase, quo modo, worn smooth into one word Introduced in Chapter 6.

cómodo
comfortable, convenient — "with measure", and a false friend in one direction Introduced in Chapter 452.

comparar
to compare
Introduced in Chapter 599.

compartir
to share
Introduced in Chapter 499.

compensar
to compensate, to make up for Introduced in Chapter 665.

competir
to compete
Introduced in Chapter 498.

complicado
complicated
Introduced in Chapter 620.

componer
to compose, to write (music)
Introduced in Chapter 753.

comprar
to buy — from Latin's "get ready, procure", and not from the verb behind English compare Introduced in Chapter 174.

comprender
to understand
Introduced in Chapter 476.

comprobar
to check, to verify
Introduced in Chapter 587.

comprometerse
to get engaged; to commit oneself
Introduced in Chapter 547.

comunicar
to communicate, to inform
Introduced in Chapter 480.

con permiso
excuse me, said when you pass — per plus mittere, to let through Introduced in Chapter 283.

con tal de que
provided that
Introduced in Chapter 611.

concentrarse
to concentrate — to gather yourself to a centre, with the Greek word for a goad inside it Introduced in Chapter 443.

concertar
to arrange an appointment — the same word as a concert, and it began as a fight Introduced in Chapter 442.

concreto
specific, particular
Introduced in Chapter 482.

condenar
to sentence, to condemn Introduced in Chapter 522.

conducir
to drive
Introduced in Chapter 501.

conectar
to connect — the Academy's dictionary records it as taken from English to connect, which had itself been built out of Latin pieces Introduced in Chapter 469.

confesar
to confess Introduced in Chapter 523.

confirmar
to confirm
Introduced in Chapter 515.

congelar
to freeze
Introduced in Chapter 777.

congregarse
to gather, to assemble
Introduced in Chapter 560.

conllevar
to involve, to entail
Introduced in Chapter 582.

conmemorar
to commemorate
Introduced in Chapter 558.

conmigo · contigo
with me, with you — two words carrying the same preposition twice, because the first one stopped being audible Introduced in Chapter 247.

conmover
to move, to touch (emotionally)
Introduced in Chapter 711.

conocer
to meet, to be acquainted with — a verb built out of the moment knowing begins Introduced in Chapter 171.

conocido
well known; an acquaintance
Introduced in Chapter 508.

conquistar
to conquer; to win over Introduced in Chapter 568.

conseguir
to get, to obtain — getting as following a thing until you have it Introduced in Chapter 169.

considerar
to consider; to regard as Introduced in Chapter 576.

consolar
to console, to comfort
Introduced in Chapter 716.

constipado
having a cold, bunged up
Introduced in Chapter 733.

consultar
to check, to look up, to consult — asking a document rather than a person Introduced in Chapter 453.

consumir
to consume, to use
Introduced in Chapter 607.

contagiar
to infect, to pass on Introduced in Chapter 733.

contar
to tell a story — and also to count, because in Spanish, as once in English, a story is something you reckon up Introduced in Chapter 167.

contemplar
to gaze at, to contemplate
Introduced in Chapter 703.

contento
happy, content — Latin contentus, held together, from continere Introduced in Chapter 304.

contestar
to answer — a Roman courtroom word that English turned into a fight and Spanish turned into a reply
Introduced in Chapter 174.

contradecir
to contradict
Introduced in Chapter 579.

contrario
opposed, against; opposite
Introduced in Chapter 578.

controlar
to control; to check
Introduced in Chapter 638.

convencer
to convince
Introduced in Chapter 493.

convencido
convinced
Introduced in Chapter 577.

conveniente
advisable, convenient
Introduced in Chapter 637.

convenir
to suit, to be advisable; to agree
Introduced in Chapter 637.

convertirse
to become, to turn into Introduced in Chapter 572.

convivir
to live together
Introduced in Chapter 750.

convocar
to call (a meeting, a strike)
Introduced in Chapter 560.

copiar
to copy — from Latin copia, abundance, because the first copies were made to have plenty Introduced in Chapter 472.

coquetear
to flirt
Introduced in Chapter 746.

correr
to run — a plain -er verb sitting on one of the largest roots English ever borrowed Introduced in Chapter 165.

cortar
to cut — and on a road sign, to close; the verb behind an adjective you already own Introduced in Chapter 439.

corto
short — Latin curtus, cut off or docked; curt and curtail descend from it and cortar is its Spanish verb, while English short, shirt and skirt are Germanic and meet it only far back Introduced in Chapter 365.

cosechar
to harvest, to reap
Introduced in Chapter 692.

coser
to sew
Introduced in Chapter 754.

costar
to cost — Latin constare, to stand together or be settled Introduced in Chapter 402.

cotillear
to gossip
Introduced in Chapter 724.

creativo
creative
Introduced in Chapter 766.

crecer
to grow — Latin crescere; a crescent is the growing moon, and a recruit is a fresh growth on an army Introduced in Chapter 386.

creer
to believe, to think — putting your heart somewhere, where pensar weighs it up Introduced in Chapter 175.

criar
to bring up, to raise
Introduced in Chapter 545.

criticar
to criticise
Introduced in Chapter 579.

crudo
raw; uncooked
Introduced in Chapter 771.

cruel
cruel
Introduced in Chapter 723.

cruzar
to cross — from cruz, Latin crux; English cross reached England by way of Irish and Norse, and crusade stands beside Spanish cruzada Introduced in Chapter 387.

cual
which, as, of what kind — Latin qualis, of what kind; English quality is qualitas, the what-kind-ness of a thing
Introduced in Chapter 329.

cuando
"when" — the word that puts a scene and an event in one sentence, so the two pasts can be seen doing different jobs
Introduced in Chapter 112.

cubrir
to cover — an irregular participle that joins abierto, and the des- that really does reverse Introduced in Chapter 444.

cuestionar
to question, to call into doubt
Introduced in Chapter 635.

cuidar
to look after, to take care of Introduced in Chapter 497.

cuidarse
to look after oneself
Introduced in Chapter 732.

culpable
guilty; the culprit
Introduced in Chapter 626.

cultivar
to grow (crops), to farm; to cultivate
Introduced in Chapter 691.

cumplir
to keep (a promise); to turn (an age)
Introduced in Chapter 492.

curar
to cure, to heal
Introduced in Chapter 739.

dado que
given that Introduced in Chapter 580.

dañar
to damage, to harm
Introduced in Chapter 504.

dar a luz
to give birth
Introduced in Chapter 544.

de acuerdo
agreed — from cor, the heart: an agreement is two hearts brought together Introduced in Chapter 284.

de hecho
in fact
Introduced in Chapter 589.

de lo contrario
otherwise
Introduced in Chapter 612.

de modo que
so; so that Introduced in Chapter 582.

de nada
you're welcome (literally "of nothing")
Introduced in Chapter 7.

de pronto
suddenly
Introduced in Chapter 534.

de repente
suddenly — Latin repente, from repens sudden, which is the present participle of repere to creep; the English reptile is the same creeping Introduced in Chapter 356.

debajo
underneath; below
Introduced in Chapter 407.

deber
should, ought to — and to owe, because the word is literally "to have something from someone"
Introduced in Chapter 175.

deber de
must — the guess, not the obligation
Introduced in Chapter 275.

debido a due to, owing to Introduced in Chapter 581.

débil
weak — Latin debilis; English debilitate and debility are the same word, and the written accent is there because the word ends in -l Introduced in Chapter 327.

decepcionado
disappointed
Introduced in Chapter 716.

decidir
to decide — to cut a question off, and the verb every notice uses when it stops offering options Introduced in Chapter 437.

decidirse
to make up your mind — decidir with the -se, and a cut underneath Introduced in Chapter 462.

decir
to say or tell — with the singular present forms digo, dices, and dice Introduced in Chapter 70.

declarar
to declare, to state
Introduced in Chapter 515.

dedicarse
to do for a living; to devote oneself
Introduced in Chapter 593.

defender
to defend
Introduced in Chapter 569.

dejar
to leave — Latin laxare, to loosen, through an older Spanish lejar; the d- is borrowed from dar Introduced in Chapter 383.

del
of the, from the — the second and last of Spanish's forced contractions, which means once you have these two you have all of them
Introduced in Chapter 231.

delante
in front, ahead — Latin ante, before; English ante, antecedent, anterior, antique and anticipate all come off it
Introduced in Chapter 341.

delgado / flaco
thin — the kind word and the blunt one Introduced in Chapter 275.

demasiado
too much, too — the top of the degree scale bastante taught, and the member that was missing from it Introduced in Chapter 471.

demostrar
to show, to prove
Introduced in Chapter 586.

dentro
inside, within — Latin de intro, from within, on intra; English interior, internal, entrance and the intro of anything share it Introduced in Chapter 341.

denunciar
to report; to denounce
Introduced in Chapter 625.

depende
it depends
Introduced in Chapter 210.

deprimido
depressed, low
Introduced in Chapter 717.

derrapar
to skid
Introduced in Chapter 643.

derrochar
to waste, to squander
Introduced in Chapter 627.

derrotar
to defeat
Introduced in Chapter 569.

desahogarse
to let off steam, to pour one's heart out Introduced in Chapter 717.

desanimado
discouraged, down
Introduced in Chapter 712.

desaparecer
to disappear
Introduced in Chapter 495.

desaparecido
missing; disappeared
Introduced in Chapter 531.

desarrollar
to develop Introduced in Chapter 572.

descansar
to rest — named in Spanish as the undoing of tiredness, not as a state Introduced in Chapter 438.

descartar
to rule out, to discard
Introduced in Chapter 481.

descontar
to deduct — contar with the des- that really does reverse, and the o breaks to ue Introduced in Chapter 474.

desde
from, since — three Latin prepositions welded shut, de plus ex plus de; despues is built the same way, out of de plus ex plus post
Introduced in Chapter 356.

desde entonces
since then
Introduced in Chapter 537.

desde luego
certainly, of course
Introduced in Chapter 589.

desear
to wish, to want
Introduced in Chapter 509.

desembarcar
to disembark, to go ashore; to unload
Introduced in Chapter 658.

desempeñar
to carry out, to perform; to hold (a post)
Introduced in Chapter 593.

desesperado desperate
Introduced in Chapter 717.

deshacer
to undo; to unpack
Introduced in Chapter 668.

desmayarse
to faint
Introduced in Chapter 740.

desmentir
to refute, to deny publicly Introduced in Chapter 516.

despedir
to dismiss, to fire; to see off
Introduced in Chapter 553.

despedirse
to say goodbye
Introduced in Chapter 488.

despegar
to take off; to unstick
Introduced in Chapter 654.

despejado
clear (sky); awake, alert
Introduced in Chapter 698.

despejar
to clear (up); to clear (a space)
Introduced in Chapter 698.

despertarse
to wake up
Introduced in Chapter 494.

despierto
awake — from despertar, and Latin expergisci, to set out from sleep; the e breaks to ie exactly where the stress lands
Introduced in Chapter 327.

después
after — Latin de ex post, three little words run together; the post in it is English postpone, postscript and posterior Introduced in Chapter 323.

destruir
to destroy
Introduced in Chapter 529.

desviarse
to turn off, to leave the road; to go off course Introduced in Chapter 670.

detener
to detain, to arrest; to stop
Introduced in Chapter 519.

detestar
to detest, to loathe
Introduced in Chapter 715.

detrás
behind, at the back — Latin trans, across or beyond; English transfer, transit, translate and transparent all carry it Introduced in Chapter 341.

devolver
to give back — the verb every shop notice and every borrowed object needs, and the one this level asks for most Introduced in Chapter 431.

día
day (el día — masculine)
Introduced in Chapter 1.

diagnosticar
to diagnose
Introduced in Chapter 738.

dibujar
to draw
Introduced in Chapter 498.

dieciséis — diecinueve
16-19 — not words to memorise but a formula, diez y X, with the seam still visible Introduced in Chapter 149.

difícil
difficult — Latin difficilis, dis- plus facilis, "not doable"; English difficult is odd by comparison, having been cut backwards out of the noun difficulty Introduced in Chapter 398.

dificultar
to make difficult, to hinder
Introduced in Chapter 621.

difundir
to spread, to broadcast
Introduced in Chapter 514.

directo
direct, straight through — and on a broadcast, live
Introduced in Chapter 446.

dirigir
to run, to manage; to direct
Introduced in Chapter 594.

dirigirse
to head (for), to make your way; to speak to Introduced in Chapter 673.

discrepar
to disagree, to differ
Introduced in Chapter 578.

disculparse
to apologise
Introduced in Chapter 510.

disculpe
excuse me — from culpa, fault: literally, take the fault off me Introduced in Chapter 283.

discutir
to discuss, and to argue — one verb for both, from a Latin verb about shaking a thing apart
Introduced in Chapter 466.

disfrazarse
to dress up, to disguise oneself
Introduced in Chapter 760.

disfrutar
to enjoy — to take the fruit of something, with a prefix that does not undo Introduced in Chapter 440.

disminuir
to decrease, to go down
Introduced in Chapter 608.

disponible
available
Introduced in Chapter 478.

dispuesto
willing, ready
Introduced in Chapter 635.

distinto
a different one — Latin distinctus, pricked apart, from dis and stinguere; English distinct, distinguish and instinct all come off the same pricking Introduced in Chapter 350.

divertido
entertaining, fun
Introduced in Chapter 713.

divertirse
to have fun, to enjoy yourself
Introduced in Chapter 487.

divorciado
divorced
Introduced in Chapter 550.

divorciarse
to get divorced
Introduced in Chapter 488.

doblar
to turn (a corner); to fold; to dub
Introduced in Chapter 670.

doble
double, twice as much — Latin duplus, from duo two and -plus fold; English double, duplicate, duplex and duplicity are the same two folds Introduced in Chapter 344.

doler
to hurt — the verb that makes the pain the subject and you the one it happens to Introduced in Chapter 443.

donar
to donate — the giving inside perdón, said plainly Introduced in Chapter 461.

dónde
where?
Introduced in Chapter 36.

dormido
asleep — the past participle of dormir, from Latin dormire; English dormitory, dormant and dormouse are all sleeping Introduced in Chapter 327.

dormir
to sleep — and the other half of the boot, where a stressed o breaks to ue Introduced in Chapter 165.

dormirse
to fall asleep
Introduced in Chapter 741.

dudar
to doubt
Introduced in Chapter 719.

dulce
sweet — Latin dulcis; the older Spanish form was duz, and the resemblance to Greek glykys, behind glucose, is a genuine unsolved puzzle Introduced in Chapter 371.

durante
for, during
Introduced in Chapter 269.

duro
hard — of a thing under your hand, and of a day you would rather not repeat
Introduced in Chapter 448.

e → ie and o → ue
comparing the two vowel changes inside the learned singular forms Introduced in Chapter 69.

echarse a
to burst out (doing)
Introduced in Chapter 562.

económico
economic; cheap
Introduced in Chapter 630.

educado
polite, well-mannered
Introduced in Chapter 727.

educar
to educate; to bring up
Introduced in Chapter 597.

eficiente
efficient
Introduced in Chapter 593.

egoísta
selfish; the selfish person
Introduced in Chapter 723.

el / la
the (masculine / feminine)
Introduced in Chapter 1.

el abecedario
the alphabet — twenty-seven letters, and a name built out of the first four of them
Introduced in Chapter 425.

el abogado
the lawyer — Latin advocatus, one called to your side; English advocate is the same word, and it explains what the job originally was Introduced in Chapter 427.

el abono
pass, season ticket, subscription — the document or right acquired by someone who subscribes; do not confuse it with the separate abono meaning fertilizer Introduced in Chapter 400.

el abrazo
a hug — from bracchium, the arm: the word says what the body does Introduced in Chapter 282.

el abrigo
the coat — named for the shelter it gives rather than the shape it has, and the verb behind it once meant to sit in the sun
Introduced in Chapter 468.

el abuelo
the grandfather — Latin avus, the root inside English avuncular and atavistic Introduced in Chapter 306.

el aburrimiento
boredom
Introduced in Chapter 713.

el acantilado
the cliff
Introduced in Chapter 689.

el accidente
the accident — something that falls upon you, where an ocasión falls to you Introduced in Chapter 454.

el aceite
oil — Andalusi Arabic az-zayt, the oil, borrowed with its article fused on; Latin oleum gave English oil, olive, petroleum and linoleum, and the two words meet in aceite de oliva
Introduced in Chapter 361.

el acontecimiento
the event, the happening
Introduced in Chapter 512.

el actor
actor — Latin actor, "one who does", from agere "to drive, to do"; the same verb sits inside agent, agenda and action
Introduced in Chapter 421.

el acuerdo
the agreement
Introduced in Chapter 509.

el adaptador
the adapter
Introduced in Chapter 773.

el adolescente
the teenager
Introduced in Chapter 749.

el adoquín
the paving stone, the cobblestone
Introduced in Chapter 675.

el aduanero
the customs officer
Introduced in Chapter 656.

el aeropuerto
airport — Greek aēr, air, set on Latin portus, a harbour; the shape matches English airport but cannot prove a loan, since French built aéroport at home
Introduced in Chapter 392.

el aficionado
the fan; the amateur
Introduced in Chapter 758.

el agricultor
the farmer
Introduced in Chapter 691.

el agua
water — a word that barely changed from Latin, and takes el without ever stopping being feminine Introduced in Chapter 143.

el aguacero
the downpour
Introduced in Chapter 697.

el ahorro
the saving; savings
Introduced in Chapter 477.

el aire
air — Greek aer into Latin aer into Spanish; aerial, aerobic and aerosol are the family, and malaria is Italian mala aria, bad air, a discarded medical theory frozen inside a word
Introduced in Chapter 362.

el aislamiento
isolation
Introduced in Chapter 709.

el ajedrez
chess
Introduced in Chapter 752.

el ajo
the garlic — Latin allium, which English kept as the botanical name; aioli is this word and oil, run together
Introduced in Chapter 297.

el albergue
the hostel; the shelter
Introduced in Chapter 660.

el alivio
relief
Introduced in Chapter 712.

el almacén
the warehouse, the storeroom — an Arabic word with its article still attached Introduced in Chapter 452.

el alojamiento
the accommodation, the lodging
Introduced in Chapter 660.

el alquiler
the rent; renting
Introduced in Chapter 477.

el alumno
the pupil, the student
Introduced in Chapter 476.

el amanecer
the daybreak — Latin mane, in the morning, the same piece that sits inside mañana Introduced in Chapter 289.

el amante
the lover; lover of something
Introduced in Chapter 746.

el análisis
the test, the analysis — a loosening-apart, and a noun that never changes for plural Introduced in Chapter 447.

el andén
the platform — the one station word whose history nobody can recover
Introduced in Chapter 439.

el anfitrión
the host
Introduced in Chapter 667.

el anillo
the ring
Introduced in Chapter 547.

el animal
the animal — Latin for a thing with breath in it, and the superordinate word the corpus never had although it taught a dozen creatures Introduced in Chapter 428.

el ánimo
mood, spirits; courage
Introduced in Chapter 712.

el aniversario
the anniversary — Latin annus, year, plus vertere, to turn; the year turning back to the same day, and English annual, versus and reverse share the pieces
Introduced in Chapter 349.

el aparcamiento
parking, car park — aparcar plus -miento; aparcar is built in Spanish from parque, not borrowed from English park
Introduced in Chapter 400.

el apartamento
the flat, the apartment
Introduced in Chapter 667.

el apellido
the surname — from appellitare, to call on repeatedly; English appeal sits on the same verb Introduced in Chapter 305.

el apetito
appetite
Introduced in Chapter 742.

el apodo
the nickname — from apodar, Latin putare, to prune and so to reckon; English compute, dispute, amputate Introduced in Chapter 309.

el apoyo
support
Introduced in Chapter 750.

el aprendizaje
the learning; the apprenticeship
Introduced in Chapter 597.

el árbitro
the referee
Introduced in Chapter 756.

el árbol
tree — Latin arbor, with one of its two r sounds slid away to l
Introduced in Chapter 278.

el arbusto
the bush, the shrub
Introduced in Chapter 693.

el arcén
the hard shoulder (of a road)
Introduced in Chapter 642.

el archivo
the file; the archive
Introduced in Chapter 776.

el arco iris
the rainbow
Introduced in Chapter 703.

el argumento
the storyline, the plot summary; the argument
Introduced in Chapter 565.

el armario
wardrobe, cupboard — Latin armārium from arma, which meant tools and gear rather than weapons; arms, army, armour and alarm are cousins, and French armoire is the very same room-word
Introduced in Chapter 366.

el arranque
the start; the outburst
Introduced in Chapter 542.

el arroyo
the stream, the brook
Introduced in Chapter 689.

el arroz
the rice — Arabic ar-ruzz, carrying its own article; rice is the same grain by a different road
Introduced in Chapter 290.

el ascenso
the promotion; the climb
Introduced in Chapter 553.

el ascensor
elevator, lift — Latin ascēnsor, the one who climbs, from ascendere; the form is ancient but the machine sense is French and dates to 1867
Introduced in Chapter 390.

el aseo
the toilet, the restroom (Spain); cleanliness
Introduced in Chapter 679.

el asiento
the seat — Latin sedere, to sit; English sedentary, session, reside and assess all sit on it Introduced in Chapter 311.

el asunto
the matter, the affair — Latin assumptus, taken up, from ad + sumere; English assume, resume, consume and presume are all takings Introduced in Chapter 331.

el atajo
the short cut
Introduced in Chapter 671.

el ataque
the attack
Introduced in Chapter 530.

el atardecer
dusk, sunset
Introduced in Chapter 703.

el atasco
the traffic jam
Introduced in Chapter 489.

el ataúd
the coffin
Introduced in Chapter 557.

el atleta
the athlete
Introduced in Chapter 755.

el aumento
the increase, the rise
Introduced in Chapter 608.

el autobús
bus — French autobus, auto(móvil) plus (omni)bus; omnibus is the Latin dative plural of omnis, for all, so bus is a case ending left standing after its own word was thrown away
Introduced in Chapter 363.

el autocar
the coach (long-distance bus)
Introduced in Chapter 650.

el automóvil
the car, the automobile
Introduced in Chapter 640.

el autónomo
the self-employed worker; autonomous
Introduced in Chapter 591.

el ave
the large bird, the bird (formal); poultry
Introduced in Chapter 694.

el avión
aeroplane — Latin avis bird, but borrowed whole from French avion, coined by Clément Ader in 1875; aviation, aviator, aviary, avian, ostrich and auspices are all avis, and el aviso is not Introduced in Chapter 363.

el aviso
the notice, the warning — from avisar, and Latin ad visum, to what is seen; English advise, advice, vision, evident and provide share the root videre
Introduced in Chapter 332.

el ayuntamiento
the town hall, the city council
Introduced in Chapter 489.

el azúcar
sugar — Arabic as-sukkar back through Persian to Sanskrit śarkarā, grit; the a- on the front is the Arabic article, and English sugar came the same road through French Introduced in Chapter 367.

el bache
the pothole; the bad patch
Introduced in Chapter 642.

el baile
dance — from bailar, borrowed from Occitan balar, from Late Latin ballare; English ball, ballet and ballad are the same word, and ball the round thing is not Introduced in Chapter 377.

el balcón
the balcony
Introduced in Chapter 664.

el bañador
the swimsuit, the swimming trunks
Introduced in Chapter 690.

el banco
bank — a Germanic word for a bench; the money-changers of medieval Italy worked at a bench, and a broken bench, banca rotta, is English bankrupt Introduced in Chapter 353.

el baño
the bathroom — Latin balneum from Greek balaneion; English bath only looks related, and is not Introduced in Chapter 310.

el banquete
the banquet, the wedding meal
Introduced in Chapter 548.

el barco
ship — Late Latin barca, a small boat attested around 400 AD; barge, bark the sailing ship, embark and disembark are the same word, and the three English barks have three separate origins
Introduced in Chapter 363.

el barrio
the neighbourhood — Andalusi Arabic barri, of the outside, from barr, the open land beyond the walls; English borrowed barrio whole Introduced in Chapter 325.

el barro
the mud; clay
Introduced in Chapter 702.

el batido
the milkshake, the smoothie
Introduced in Chapter 499.

el bautizo
the christening
Introduced in Chapter 546.

el bebé
the baby — French bebe, echoic babble, the same kind of word as English baby and babble
Introduced in Chapter 309.

el beneficio
the profit; the benefit
Introduced in Chapter 629.

el beso
kiss — Latin basium, which the Academy's dictionary says Latin itself took from Celtic; French baiser and Italian bacio are the same word Introduced in Chapter 375.

el bienestar
well-being
Introduced in Chapter 743.

el bisabuelo
the great-grandfather
Introduced in Chapter 749.

el bocadillo
the sandwich (in a bread roll)
Introduced in Chapter 499.

el bochorno
the muggy heat, close weather; embarrassment
Introduced in Chapter 701.

el boleto
the ticket — a little bulla, a Latin seal; the same seal gives English bulletin and the papal bull Introduced in Chapter 313.

el bolso
the handbag — one letter away from la bolsa, which is a different thing, and the vowel is the whole difference
Introduced in Chapter 430.

el bombero
the firefighter — named from la bomba, the pump, so Spanish calls them the pump-person while English calls them the fire-person
Introduced in Chapter 427.

el bonobús
the bus pass (for several trips)
Introduced in Chapter 650.

el bordillo
the kerb, the curb
Introduced in Chapter 682.

el bosque
the wood — a Germanic word, not a Latin one; bush, bosky and ambush are its English cousins Introduced in Chapter 291.

el botón
button — Old French boton, a thing that pushes out, from bouter, to thrust, taken from Germanic botan, to strike; button, buttress, rebut, abut and the butting of a goat all still push, and beat is the inherited cousin Introduced in Chapter 360.

el botones
the bellboy, the porter (in a hotel)
Introduced in Chapter 661.

el boxeo
boxing
Introduced in Chapter 758.

el brazo
the arm — Greek brakhion, "the shorter one", taken into Latin as bracchium; an embrace and a bracelet are both built on it
Introduced in Chapter 314.

el brindis
the toast (with a drink)
Introduced in Chapter 548.

el burro
the donkey — Latin burricus, a little reddish horse, from burrus, red; English borrowed the whole word back, and the burrito with it Introduced in Chapter 296.

el buzón
the postbox, the letterbox
Introduced in Chapter 489.

el caballo
the horse — Latin caballus, the working nag, which beat the noble equus and left cavalry and chivalry behind it Introduced in Chapter 296.

el cajero
the cashier; the cash machine
Introduced in Chapter 491.

el cajón
the drawer
Introduced in Chapter 774.

el calendario
the calendar — Latin calendarium, an account book, from calendae the first of the month when debts fell due; English calendar and intercalate share it
Introduced in Chapter 343.

el calentamiento
the warm-up; warming
Introduced in Chapter 755.

el callejón
the alley, the lane
Introduced in Chapter 675.

el calor
heat — Latin calor from calere, to be warm; English calorie, cauldron, scald, chowder and nonchalant are all built on it Introduced in Chapter 334.

el calzado
the footwear
Introduced in Chapter 478.

el camarero
waiter — Greek kamára, a vault, into Latin camera and Vulgar Latin camara, giving Spanish cámara, a room; whether camarero was built inside Spanish or borrowed from Medieval Latin camarārius cannot be told apart Introduced in Chapter 391.

el cambio
the change — Latin cambiare, borrowed from Gaulish; English change and exchange are the same word, and so is the coin you get back Introduced in Chapter 313.

el camino
the road, the way — Late Latin camminus, borrowed from Gaulish; one of the few Celtic words Spanish kept, and the source of French chemin Introduced in Chapter 330.

el campeón
the champion
Introduced in Chapter 757.

el campeonato
the championship
Introduced in Chapter 498.

el campesino
the country person, the peasant, the farm worker
Introduced in Chapter 691.

el campo
the field, the countryside — Latin campus, flat open ground; camp, campus, campaign and champion are all fought or pitched on it
Introduced in Chapter 299.

el candidato
the candidate
Introduced in Chapter 602.

el cansancio
tiredness
Introduced in Chapter 741.

el capitán
the captain
Introduced in Chapter 659.

el capítulo
the chapter; the episode
Introduced in Chapter 565.

el capricho
the whim, the treat
Introduced in Chapter 765.

el cargador
the charger — the doer-ending a fourth time, on a verb worth having in its own right Introduced in Chapter 434.

el cargo
the charge on a bill — a load, from the same cart as el carrito
Introduced in Chapter 456.

el cariño
affection; darling
Introduced in Chapter 714.

el carné
the card, the licence — four folded sheets that turned into a piece of plastic Introduced in Chapter 451.

el carril
the lane; the rail
Introduced in Chapter 648.

el carrito
the trolley — a little cart, and the ending Spanish uses more than almost any other Introduced in Chapter 444.

el castigo
the punishment
Introduced in Chapter 623.

el castillo
the castle
Introduced in Chapter 677.

el cementerio
the cemetery
Introduced in Chapter 556.

el centro
centre, downtown — Latin centrum from Greek kentron, the spike a compass turns on; English centre, central, concentrate and eccentric all turn on it
Introduced in Chapter 347.

el centro comercial
the shopping centre, the mall
Introduced in Chapter 681.

el cepillo
brush — a diminutive of cepo, from Latin cippus, a post or block of wood; the brush is named for its back, not its bristles Introduced in Chapter 374.

el cerdo
pig — most likely from cerda, a bristle, so the bristly one; Spanish also kept puerco from Latin porcus, which English has as pork and as the older farrow Introduced in Chapter 368.

el cerebro
the brain
Introduced in Chapter 735.

el certificado
the certificate
Introduced in Chapter 624.

el césped
the lawn, the pitch — grass as a surface somebody looks after Introduced in Chapter 450.

el chaleco
the waistcoat, the vest
Introduced in Chapter 655.

el charco
the puddle
Introduced in Chapter 702.

el chico
the boy, the lad — Latin ciccum, a worthless trifle; a word that means small first and boy second Introduced in Chapter 308.

el chiste
the joke
Introduced in Chapter 502.

el chocolate
chocolate — Nahuatl, but the Academy marks the etymology disputed; the famous xocolātl is unattested, and chicolātl, named for the whisking stick, is the live proposal
Introduced in Chapter 376.

el choque
the crash, the collision; the shock
Introduced in Chapter 527.

el chubasco
the shower (of rain)
Introduced in Chapter 697.

el ciclista
the cyclist
Introduced in Chapter 649.

el cielo
the sky — Latin caelum, which is also the ceiling over a room and the cerulean of a paint box Introduced in Chapter 289.

el ciervo
the deer, the stag
Introduced in Chapter 695.

el cine
cinema — short for cinematografo, Greek kinema movement plus graphein to write, a movement-writer; the same kinein is in English kinetic Introduced in Chapter 354.

el cinturón
the belt; the seat belt
Introduced in Chapter 644.

el circo
circus — Latin circus "ring", from Greek kirkos; the ring is the oldest part of the idea and the only part still round
Introduced in Chapter 420.

el ciudadano
the citizen
Introduced in Chapter 600.

el civismo
civic-mindedness, good citizenship
Introduced in Chapter 600.

el cliente, la cliente
client; customer — the person who buys or uses a service Introduced in Chapter 406.

el coche
car — Hungarian kocsi, a cart from the town of Kocs, by way of German Kutsche and French coche; English coach is the same word, and the coach on the touchline began as a tutor who carried a student through Introduced in Chapter 363.

el cocinero
the cook — coquere, to cook; the kitchen, the biscuit and a precocious child are all in it Introduced in Chapter 285.

el codo
the elbow
Introduced in Chapter 737.

el cojín
the cushion
Introduced in Chapter 761.

el colectivo
the group; collective Introduced in Chapter 600.

el colega
the colleague; mate
Introduced in Chapter 750.

el color
colour — Latin color, from celare to hide, because a colour is what covers a thing; conceal, cell, occult and even hell are the same hiding
Introduced in Chapter 358.

el combate
the fight, the combat
Introduced in Chapter 567.

el combustible
the fuel
Introduced in Chapter 646.

el comercio
the trade, the commerce; the shop
Introduced in Chapter 630.

el comienzo
the beginning, the start
Introduced in Chapter 542.

el compañero
the colleague — the word whose story you were told when you learned bread, finally given to you as a word
Introduced in Chapter 436.

el comportamiento
behaviour — carrying yourself, with the same portare that carries goods in and out Introduced in Chapter 466.

el comprador
the buyer — the other half of a sale, built from comprar with the same ending, so the pair costs one rule rather than two words
Introduced in Chapter 427.

el compromiso
the engagement; the commitment
Introduced in Chapter 547.

el comunicado
the official statement, the press release
Introduced in Chapter 515.

el concejal
the town councillor
Introduced in Chapter 601.

el concierto concert
Introduced in Chapter 413.

el conductor
the driver
Introduced in Chapter 640.

el conflicto
the conflict
Introduced in Chapter 569.

el conjunto
the set, the whole group — Latin coniunctus, yoked together, from com and iungere; English junction, join and even yoga come off the same yoking
Introduced in Chapter 352.

el conocimiento
the knowledge
Introduced in Chapter 598.

el consejo
advice, and also a council — Latin consilium; English counsel is the same word, and council a look-alike from concilium
Introduced in Chapter 321.

el conserje
the concierge, the porter; the caretaker
Introduced in Chapter 661.

el consulado
the consulate
Introduced in Chapter 657.

el consumo
the consumption
Introduced in Chapter 607.

el contador
the meter — the same doer-ending a second time, on the verb for counting, and the word on every notice about the water
Introduced in Chapter 432.

el contenedor
the large bin; the container
Introduced in Chapter 682.

el contratiempo
the setback, the mishap
Introduced in Chapter 616.

el contrato
the contract — two parties drawn together, and the verb that still does the drawing Introduced in Chapter 441.

el control
the control; the check
Introduced in Chapter 638.

el convenio
the agreement; the collective agreement
Introduced in Chapter 591.

el coraje
guts, courage; anger
Introduced in Chapter 722.

el corazón
heart — Latin cor, cordis with a Spanish augmentative ending; cordial, courage, accord and discord are all hearts, and record is literally to bring a thing back to the heart
Introduced in Chapter 364.

el correo electrónico
email — correo is not built on correr but comes through Catalan correu from Old French corlieu, a messenger; electrónico goes back to Greek ēlektron, amber, and the pair renders English electronic mail
Introduced in Chapter 393.

el corresponsal
the correspondent
Introduced in Chapter 513.

el coste
the cost — the noun that belongs to costar, and what it stands on Introduced in Chapter 456.

el crecimiento
the growth
Introduced in Chapter 608.

el crimen
the crime (serious)
Introduced in Chapter 520.

el criterio
the criterion; judgement
Introduced in Chapter 617.

el crucero
the cruise; the cruise ship
Introduced in Chapter 658.

el crucigrama
the crossword
Introduced in Chapter 762.

el cuaderno
the notebook — a counting word underneath, because the oldest notebook was four sheets folded once Introduced in Chapter 465.

el cuarto
the quarter, a fourth — Latin quartus, fourth, on quattuor four; English quarter, quart, quartet and quarantine all count to four
Introduced in Chapter 342.

el cuchillo
the knife — Latin cultellus, a little culter; cutlery, cutlass and the plough's coulter are the same blade
Introduced in Chapter 294.

el cuello
the neck — Latin collum, which is also the collar round it and the accolade thrown round it Introduced in Chapter 293.

el cuidado
care, caution — Latin cogitatum, a thing thought about, from cogitare to think; English cogitate and Descartes' cogito are the same verb
Introduced in Chapter 333.

el cumpleaños
the birthday — the same day as an aniversario, named by the opposite metaphor Introduced in Chapter 440.

el cuñado
the brother-in-law
Introduced in Chapter 747.

el currículum
the CV — a Latin word that kept its Latin ending, and the first thing a job advert asks you to send Introduced in Chapter 435.

el curso
course, class
Introduced in Chapter 417.

el dato
piece of information; datum
Introduced in Chapter 406.

el debate
the debate
Introduced in Chapter 507.

el dedo
finger, and equally toe — Latin digitus; digit became a numeral because people count on fingers, and digital reached the computer through the numerals rather than through the hand
Introduced in Chapter 364.

el defecto
the fault, the flaw
Introduced in Chapter 721.

el delantero
the forward, the striker
Introduced in Chapter 756.

el delincuente
the offender, the criminal
Introduced in Chapter 520.

el delito
the offence, the crime
Introduced in Chapter 520.

el dentista / la dentista
the dentist — an -ista noun, where only the article changes Introduced in Chapter 464.

el deporte
sport
Introduced in Chapter 412.

el deportista
the sportsperson, the athlete
Introduced in Chapter 498.

el depósito
the tank; the deposit
Introduced in Chapter 646.

el desacuerdo
the disagreement
Introduced in Chapter 578.

el desafío
the challenge
Introduced in Chapter 609.

el desarrollo
the development
Introduced in Chapter 571.

el desastre
the disaster
Introduced in Chapter 528.

el desayuno
breakfast — des- undoing ayuno, a fast; English breakfast says the same thing in Germanic words, and dinner is the borrowed Romance version of it
Introduced in Chapter 367.

el descanso
the rest — des- undoes cansar, to tire; rest in Spanish is defined as the reversal of being worn down
Introduced in Chapter 315.

el descubrimiento
the discovery
Introduced in Chapter 571.

el desenlace
the ending, the outcome
Introduced in Chapter 565.

el desfase horario
jet lag; the time difference
Introduced in Chapter 655.

el desfile
the parade
Introduced in Chapter 559.

el desierto
the desert; deserted
Introduced in Chapter 685.

el desperfecto
the minor damage, the defect
Introduced in Chapter 665.

el destino
destination, fate, and a job posting — from destinar, a learned borrowing of Latin dēstinā̆re, to make firm or fix in place, on the stā̆re that also stands behind estar Introduced in Chapter 392.

el desván
the attic, the loft
Introduced in Chapter 774.

el desvío
the diversion, the detour
Introduced in Chapter 672.

el detalle
the detail
Introduced in Chapter 517.

el detector
the detector; the metal detector
Introduced in Chapter 653.

el diagnóstico
the diagnosis
Introduced in Chapter 738.

el diario
the diary; the daily paper
Introduced in Chapter 764.

el diente
the tooth — Latin dentem, with the e broken to ie; a dandelion is a dent de lion, a lion's tooth Introduced in Chapter 314.

el difunto
the deceased, the late
Introduced in Chapter 555.

el dilema
the dilemma
Introduced in Chapter 617.

el dinero
money — the name of a Roman coin, still doing service two thousand years later Introduced in Chapter 280.

el director / la directora
the head, the director — the -tor noun you were shown in a table, now the person who signs the letter Introduced in Chapter 466.

el disfraz
the costume, the disguise
Introduced in Chapter 760.

el disturbio
the disturbance, the riot
Introduced in Chapter 570.

el divorcio
the divorce
Introduced in Chapter 550.

el doctor / la doctora
doctor
Introduced in Chapter 408.

el documento
document — a written record or proof
Introduced in Chapter 406.

el dolor
the pain — Latin dolor; condolence hurts with you, and indolent once felt no pain at all Introduced in Chapter 286.

el dormitorio
the bedroom — built on a verb you learned in the first weeks Introduced in Chapter 455.

el dueño
the owner
Introduced in Chapter 665.

el edificio
building — Latin aedificium, from aedes, temple or house, plus facere, to make; English edifice and edify are the same word
Introduced in Chapter 378.

el efectivo
the cash
Introduced in Chapter 628.

el ejercicio
exercise
Introduced in Chapter 742.

el ejército
the army
Introduced in Chapter 567.

el electricista
the electrician
Introduced in Chapter 769.

el embarazo
the pregnancy
Introduced in Chapter 544.

el embarque
the boarding
Introduced in Chapter 653.

el empleado
the employee
Introduced in Chapter 590.

el empleo
the job, employment
Introduced in Chapter 490.

el empresario
the businessman, the employer
Introduced in Chapter 592.

el encanto
charm
Introduced in Chapter 730.

el enchufe
the socket, the plug; connections (influence) Introduced in Chapter 664.

el engaño
the deception, the trick
Introduced in Chapter 746.

el enigma
the enigma, the puzzle
Introduced in Chapter 532.

el enlace
the link; the connection
Introduced in Chapter 773.

el entierro
the burial, the funeral
Introduced in Chapter 556.

el entrenamiento
the training session — and the train you already know, hiding inside it Introduced in Chapter 450.

el envío
the shipment — what enviar leaves behind, and a road hidden inside the verb
Introduced in Chapter 442.

el episodio
the episode
Introduced in Chapter 565.

el equipaje
the luggage
Introduced in Chapter 478.

el error
the mistake, the error
Introduced in Chapter 476.

el escándalo
the scandal; the racket
Introduced in Chapter 570.

el escenario
the stage; the setting
Introduced in Chapter 759.

el esfuerzo
the effort
Introduced in Chapter 503.

el espacio
the space
Introduced in Chapter 478.

el espectáculo
the show
Introduced in Chapter 759.

el espejo
the mirror
Introduced in Chapter 774.

el esposo
the husband — Latin spondere, to pledge solemnly; English spouse, sponsor, respond, despondent Introduced in Chapter 306.

el esqueleto
the skeleton
Introduced in Chapter 735.

el estacionamiento
the car park, the parking lot; parking
Introduced in Chapter 648.

el estado
the state, the condition — Latin status, which only looks like estar's participle, and the phrase a donation notice already used on you
Introduced in Chapter 473.

el estanco
the tobacconist's (Spain)
Introduced in Chapter 679.

el estómago
the stomach
Introduced in Chapter 735.

el estreno
the premiere, the first showing
Introduced in Chapter 760.

el estrés
stress
Introduced in Chapter 710.

el euro
the currency — the Academy derives it as a clipping of europeo, and files the Greek wind eurus as a separate, unrelated entry under the same spelling Introduced in Chapter 391.

el examen
exam, examination
Introduced in Chapter 410.

el exceso
the excess
Introduced in Chapter 668.

el exilio
the exile
Introduced in Chapter 552.

el éxito
success
Introduced in Chapter 505.

el experimento
the experiment
Introduced in Chapter 599.

el extranjero
abroad, a foreign country; a foreign person
Introduced in Chapter 415.

el factor
the factor
Introduced in Chapter 583.

el faro
the lighthouse — named after Pharos, the island at Alexandria that held the first one; a place name that became the word for the thing
Introduced in Chapter 302.

el favor
a favour, a good turn — Latin favere, to be well disposed toward somebody; English favour, favourite and favourable are all the same word Introduced in Chapter 320.

el ferry
the ferry
Introduced in Chapter 658.

el fin
the end — Latin finis, a boundary stone between fields; English final, finish, finite, define and confine all mark the same edge
Introduced in Chapter 348.

el fin de semana
the weekend
Introduced in Chapter 409.

el finiquito
the final settlement, the severance pay
Introduced in Chapter 553.

el flechazo
love at first sight
Introduced in Chapter 744.

el folleto
the leaflet, the brochure
Introduced in Chapter 676.

el fondo
the bottom, the back of a room — Latin fundus, the bottom of a thing; English found, foundation, fund and profound all sit on it, and Spanish hondo is the same word with f turned to h
Introduced in Chapter 355.

el fontanero
the plumber
Introduced in Chapter 769.

el forastero
the outsider, the stranger (from out of town)
Introduced in Chapter 684.

el fracaso
the failure
Introduced in Chapter 573.

el fraude
the fraud
Introduced in Chapter 626.

el freno
the brake — named after the bit in a horse's mouth, and still doing that job Introduced in Chapter 449.

el frío
cold — Latin frigidus; English frigid, refrigerate and refrigerator are the same word, and hace frio has been carrying this noun all along Introduced in Chapter 334.

el fuego
fire — Latin focus, which meant the hearth and not the fire at all; focus, focal, curfew and fuel all come down from that hearth, while the Latin word for fire itself lost the fight across Romance
Introduced in Chapter 362.

el funcionario
the civil servant, the public employee
Introduced in Chapter 591.

el ganado
the livestock — from ganar, to gain: cattle are simply "what has been gained", the way English cattle and chattel are what you own Introduced in Chapter 299.

el garaje
the garage — a French word wearing a Spanish spelling, and the floor of the building most notices are about Introduced in Chapter 433.

el gemelo
the twin; the calf (muscle)
Introduced in Chapter 749.

el gerente
the manager
Introduced in Chapter 665.

el gimnasio
gym, gymnasium
Introduced in Chapter 412.

el gobierno
the government
Introduced in Chapter 601.

el golpe
the blow — and de golpe, all at once, which is the phrase a payment plan is defined against Introduced in Chapter 474.

el gorro
brimless cap — a round or close-fitting head covering, of uncertain origin Introduced in Chapter 402.

el grado
the degree — the unit la temperatura was missing, and the word the degree scale was named after without ever being shown to you
Introduced in Chapter 468.

el gramo
a gram — Greek gramma, a written thing and also a small weight, from graphein to scratch; grammar, program, diagram and telegram are the same gramma Introduced in Chapter 359.

el granizo
the hail
Introduced in Chapter 699.

el grifo
the tap, the faucet
Introduced in Chapter 664.

el grupo
the group — a short plain word that came in whole, and the unit a course or a trip is organised into Introduced in Chapter 436.

el guante
glove — Germanic rather than Latin, probably through Catalan from Frankish want, a mitten, arriving already wearing the gu- Romance gives Germanic w-Introduced in Chapter 374.

el guía / la guía
the guide and the guidebook — the article decides which Introduced in Chapter 463.

el guion
the hyphen — shorter than la raya and with a different job, and a word whose own spelling the Academy changed
Introduced in Chapter 424.

el guion bajo
the underscore — the low hyphen, named by position rather than by shape, and the last piece an address can contain
Introduced in Chapter 428.

el habitante
the inhabitant
Introduced in Chapter 507.

el hallazgo
the find, the discovery
Introduced in Chapter 531.

el hambre
hunger — Latin famen from fames; a feminine noun that takes el before its stressed a-, and one of the f-to-h words like hacer, hijo and hierro Introduced in Chapter 334.

el helado
ice cream; frozen
Introduced in Chapter 411.

el herido
the injured person; injured
Introduced in Chapter 525.

el hermanastro
the stepbrother
Introduced in Chapter 749.

el hermano, la hermana
brother and sister — NOT from frater/soror, but from an adjective meaning "of the same seed"
Introduced in Chapter 140.

el héroe
the hero
Introduced in Chapter 564.

el hielo
ice — Latin gelu; English gelatin, jelly, congeal and gelid are the same word, and the h- here is a spelling habit, not the f- that hides in humo Introduced in Chapter 370.

el hijo
the son — Latin filius, cousin to English filial and affiliate; the f- that became a silent h-Introduced in Chapter 306.

el hilo
the thread — Latin filum with its f worn down to a silent h; filament, filigree and a file of soldiers are all threads Introduced in Chapter 301.

el hogar
the home
Introduced in Chapter 496.

el hombro
the shoulder — Latin umerus, which doctors still call the humerus; the h is silent and came late Introduced in Chapter 293.

el homenaje
the tribute, the homage
Introduced in Chapter 558.

el horario
the timetable, the opening hours — Latin horarium, on hora an hour; English hour, horoscope and horology come off the same root, and the -ario ending is English -ary
Introduced in Chapter 342.

el horizonte
the horizon
Introduced in Chapter 703.

el horno
the oven — Latin furnus, wearing the silent h that marks where an f used to stand; furnace is the same fire
Introduced in Chapter 297.

el hospital
hospital — Latin hospitale, a house kept for guests, from hospes, which meant the host and the guest at once; English host, hotel, hostel and hospitality all come off it Introduced in Chapter 353.

el hostal
the guesthouse, the small hotel
Introduced in Chapter 660.

el hotel
hotel — French hotel, from Old French hostel, from the same Latin hospitale as hospital; the little hat on the French o is a headstone for a lost s
Introduced in Chapter 354.

el huérfano
the orphan
Introduced in Chapter 749.

el huésped
the guest (at a hotel or a house)
Introduced in Chapter 661.

el huevo
egg — Latin ovum, wearing an h that exists only to help your eyes Introduced in Chapter 280.

el humo
smoke — Latin fumus, a clean example of Latin f- turning into Spanish h-; English has fume, perfume and fumigate from the same word Introduced in Chapter 369.

el humor
mood, and humour — one word for both, because your temperament was once a fluid Introduced in Chapter 440.

el idioma
language — Greek idioma, a peculiarity of style, from idios, one's own; idiom, idiosyncrasy and idiot are all from the same idios Introduced in Chapter 377.

el impacto
the impact
Introduced in Chapter 582.

el impermeable
the raincoat; waterproof
Introduced in Chapter 702.

el importe
the amount — the third sense of importar, and the one a bill uses Introduced in Chapter 474.

el impreso
printed form — a sheet with spaces to fill in Introduced in Chapter 406.

el imprevisto
the unexpected problem; unforeseen
Introduced in Chapter 616.

el impuesto
the tax
Introduced in Chapter 507.

el incendio
the fire (big, destructive)
Introduced in Chapter 524.

el incidente
the incident
Introduced in Chapter 574.

el inconveniente
the drawback, the problem; inconvenient
Introduced in Chapter 584.

el indicador
the signpost, the sign; the gauge
Introduced in Chapter 672.

el ingenio
wit, ingenuity
Introduced in Chapter 728.

el ingrediente
the ingredient
Introduced in Chapter 768.

el ingreso
the income; the deposit; admission
Introduced in Chapter 627.

el inmigrante
the immigrant
Introduced in Chapter 552.

el inquilino
the tenant
Introduced in Chapter 667.

el insecto
the insect
Introduced in Chapter 694.

el insomnio
insomnia
Introduced in Chapter 741.

el instante
the instant — Latin instans, standing upon you, from in plus stare; English instant, instance and constant all stand on the same verb
Introduced in Chapter 348.

el instituto
the secondary school — the false friend that sends English speakers to the wrong building, because an English institute is a research body and a Spanish one is where you go at twelve
Introduced in Chapter 429.

el interés
the interest
Introduced in Chapter 628.

el inventario
the stocktake — a list of what was found, from venir
Introduced in Chapter 459.

el invento
the invention
Introduced in Chapter 571.

el inventor
the inventor
Introduced in Chapter 571.

el invitado
a guest — the invited one; Spanish names the person by what was done to him Introduced in Chapter 282.

el jabón
soap — Latin sapo, which Latin had itself borrowed from its northern neighbours Introduced in Chapter 287.

el jardín
garden — Frankish gardo, an enclosure, the same Germanic word English kept as yard and borrowed back from French as garden; kindergarten is a children's enclosure
Introduced in Chapter 354.

el jardinero
the gardener
Introduced in Chapter 475.

el jefe
the boss — a head, and the same head as la cabeza
Introduced in Chapter 462.

el jersey
the jumper — an English word for an island, borrowed whole, and then made to follow Spanish accent rules in the plural Introduced in Chapter 430.

el juez
the judge
Introduced in Chapter 522.

el juguete
the toy
Introduced in Chapter 506.

el juicio
the trial; judgement
Introduced in Chapter 522.

el kilo
a kilo — Greek khilioi, a thousand; it is not Latin mille, so kilo and the mil of mil gracias are two unrelated thousands
Introduced in Chapter 359.

el kilómetro
the kilometre
Introduced in Chapter 646.

el labio
lip — Latin labium, the same word as English labial; English lip is Germanic, and the old Indo-European link between them is now doubted Introduced in Chapter 375.

el lado
side
Introduced in Chapter 407.

el ladrón
the thief
Introduced in Chapter 495.

el lago
the lake — Latin lacus; lake, lagoon and lacuna are all the same standing water Introduced in Chapter 292.

el lápiz
pencil — Latin lapis, a stone, with no diminutive in it; lapis opens lapis lazuli, and Spanish azul comes from the other half Introduced in Chapter 374.

el lector
the reader
Introduced in Chapter 762.

el letrero
the sign (with words), the notice
Introduced in Chapter 672.

el libro
book — named after the part of a tree people wrote on before paper
Introduced in Chapter 57.

el liderazgo
the leadership
Introduced in Chapter 594.

el lienzo
the canvas
Introduced in Chapter 763.

el litro
a litre — Greek litra, a Sicilian unit, the same word Latin took as libra, the pound; a pound is still abbreviated lb, and Libra is the scales in the sky
Introduced in Chapter 359.

el llanto
the weeping — Latin planctus, a beating; Roman mourners struck their own chest, and pl- became ll- on the way into Spanish Introduced in Chapter 316.

el lobo
wolf — Latin lupus, which is irregular for the ancient word it should be and probably reached Rome from a neighbouring Italian dialect; English wolf is the inherited cousin Introduced in Chapter 368.

el localizador
the booking reference
Introduced in Chapter 662.

el logro
the achievement
Introduced in Chapter 766.

el lugar
the place, the spot — Latin locus through localis; the same locus is already inside hasta luego and en primer lugar
Introduced in Chapter 325.

el lujo
the luxury
Introduced in Chapter 633.

el lustro
the five-year period
Introduced in Chapter 539.

el luto
mourning
Introduced in Chapter 557.

el maestro
the teacher — magister, from magis, more; and minister, from minus, less Introduced in Chapter 285.

el maíz
maize — Taíno mahis, one of the first American words to reach Europe, and the word Spanish handed on to English as maize Introduced in Chapter 376.

el maletero
the boot (of a car), the trunk
Introduced in Chapter 644.

el mango
the handle — a cousin of la mano, and a homonym of the fruit in the way la cola taught Introduced in Chapter 470.

el mapa
the map — Latin mappa, a cloth; the world was drawn on a napkin, and napkin is the same word
Introduced in Chapter 312.

el maquillaje
make-up
Introduced in Chapter 760.

el maquinista
the train driver, the engine driver
Introduced in Chapter 651.

el mar
sea — Latin mare; marine, maritime, marina and ultramarine are borrowed from it, while the mer- of mermaid and the words marsh and moor are inherited English cousins of the same ancient root
Introduced in Chapter 362.

el marcador
the scoreboard, the score
Introduced in Chapter 756.

el mareo
travel sickness; dizziness
Introduced in Chapter 655.

el margen
the margin; the room
Introduced in Chapter 638.

el marido
the husband
Introduced in Chapter 549.

el marinero
the sailor
Introduced in Chapter 659.

el masaje
the massage
Introduced in Chapter 767.

el máster
the master's degree
Introduced in Chapter 596.

el material
the material, the equipment
Introduced in Chapter 475.

el matrimonio
the marriage; the married couple
Introduced in Chapter 548.

el mecánico
the mechanic
Introduced in Chapter 645.

el medicamento
the medicine — the word on the box, built on the doctor you already know Introduced in Chapter 457.

el médico
doctor — Latin medicus, a physician, from medeor, to heal; a word taken off the page, still carrying whole the three beats that Catalan metge wore away
Introduced in Chapter 394.

el medio ambiente
the environment
Introduced in Chapter 607.

el menú
the set meal, and the card it is printed on — French menu, small and detailed, from Latin minūtus, made small; menudo and minuto are that same Latin word by two other roads
Introduced in Chapter 391.

el mercadillo
the street market, the flea market
Introduced in Chapter 681.

el mercado
market — Latin mercatus from merx, goods; English market, merchant, commerce and even mercy grow out of the same trade Introduced in Chapter 346.

el mérito
the merit, the credit
Introduced in Chapter 595.

el método
the method
Introduced in Chapter 599.

el metro
a metre — Greek metron, a measure, as in diameter and geometry; the underground metro is a different word, short for metropolitano, from meter a mother plus polis a city Introduced in Chapter 359.

el miedo
the fear — Latin metus, with the e broken to ie; meticulous once meant full of fear Introduced in Chapter 315.

el milenio
the millennium
Introduced in Chapter 539.

el ministro
the minister
Introduced in Chapter 601.

el minuto
the minute — Latin minutus, made small, from minuere to lessen; English minute, minor, minus, diminish and minuscule are the same smallness Introduced in Chapter 342.

el mirador
the viewpoint; the glazed balcony
Introduced in Chapter 676.

el misterio
the mystery
Introduced in Chapter 532.

el mito
the myth
Introduced in Chapter 564.

el modo
the way, the mode — Latin modus, a measure; English mode, model, modern, modest and moderate are measurings, and Spanish como is quomodo, in what measure
Introduced in Chapter 331.

el momento
a moment — Latin momentum, the smallest movement that tips a balance Introduced in Chapter 303.

el monarca
the monarch
Introduced in Chapter 568.

el monte
the mountain, the hill; the woodland
Introduced in Chapter 685.

el monumento
the monument, the sight
Introduced in Chapter 677.

el motivo
the reason, the motive
Introduced in Chapter 580.

el motor
the engine, the motor
Introduced in Chapter 644.

el motorista
the motorcyclist
Introduced in Chapter 649.

el móvil
mobile phone — literally the movable one, from Latin mobilis Introduced in Chapter 404.

el muelle
the quay, the dock; the spring (metal)
Introduced in Chapter 658.

el mundo
the world — Latin mundus, meaning clean and orderly; English mundane is the same word, and Greek kosmos made the identical jump from order to world
Introduced in Chapter 330.

el municipio
the municipality, the town council
Introduced in Chapter 683.

el músculo
the muscle
Introduced in Chapter 755.

el museo
museum — Greek mouseion, a seat of the Muses; the Mouseion at Alexandria was a place scholars lived and worked, and the same Muses are inside English music Introduced in Chapter 353.

el músico
the musician
Introduced in Chapter 753.

el nacimiento
the birth
Introduced in Chapter 544.

el narrador
the narrator
Introduced in Chapter 563.

el negocio
the business
Introduced in Chapter 490.

el neumático
the tyre
Introduced in Chapter 645.

el nieto
the grandson, the grandchild
Introduced in Chapter 546.

el niño
the boy, the child — a nursery word with no Latin pedigree, and the one English borrowed whole as El Niño Introduced in Chapter 308.

el nivel
the level — a cousin of el litro through Latin libra, the balance, because a level is a little pair of scales
Introduced in Chapter 471.

el nombre
the name — Latin nomen, cousin to English name and root of noun and nominate Introduced in Chapter 305.

el norte
north — Germanic northa through Old French nord; this is literally the English word north, borrowed back into a Romance language
Introduced in Chapter 347.

el noviazgo
the courtship, the engagement
Introduced in Chapter 744.

el novio
the boyfriend; the groom
Introduced in Chapter 547.

el nudo
knot — Latin nodus by way of an irregular Vulgar Latin form; desnudo, naked, is a different Latin word, and Corominas denies the two ever merged Introduced in Chapter 374.

el número
the number — Latin numerus; English number, numeral, numerous, enumerate and numb all come off it Introduced in Chapter 344.

el objetivo
the target, the objective — el objeto wearing -ivo, narrowed to the thing placed in front to be reached Introduced in Chapter 467.

el objeto
the object, the thing — Latin objectum, thrown before, from ob and iacere to throw; English object, project, inject, eject and subject are all throws
Introduced in Chapter 345.

el obstáculo
the obstacle
Introduced in Chapter 620.

el océano
the ocean
Introduced in Chapter 688.

el oeste
west — Germanic westaz through Old French ouest; the same word as English west, and behind it the old root for evening that also gives vespers Introduced in Chapter 347.

el oído
the hearing, the inner ear — the past participle of oír made into a noun; Latin audire is under audio, audience and obedient Introduced in Chapter 314.

el ojo
the eye — Latin oculus; English eye is its distant cousin, not a translation of it Introduced in Chapter 286.

el olivo
the olive tree
Introduced in Chapter 693.

el olor
the smell
Introduced in Chapter 775.

el olvido
forgetting; oblivion; oversight
Introduced in Chapter 764.

el ordenador
computer, in Spain — Latin ōrdinātor, the one who puts things in order; the word is old and Spanish, but the computing sense was taken from French ordinateur in the mid-1950s
Introduced in Chapter 393.

el orgullo
pride
Introduced in Chapter 705.

el origen
the origin
Introduced in Chapter 571.

el oro
gold — Latin aurum, from an ancient root for shining and dawning; aurora is the same root, and so, far back, is the English word east Introduced in Chapter 373.

el pacto
the pact, the deal
Introduced in Chapter 635.

el padrastro
the stepfather; the hangnail
Introduced in Chapter 748.

el padre, la madre
father and mother — among the oldest reconstructible words in the whole family Introduced in Chapter 140.

el padrino
the godfather; the best man
Introduced in Chapter 546.

el país
the country — Late Latin pagensis, of the country district, from pagus a village; English pagan and peasant are both country-dwellers
Introduced in Chapter 325.

el paisaje
the landscape, the scenery
Introduced in Chapter 685.

el palacio
the palace
Introduced in Chapter 677.

el pan
bread — and the compañero who shares it with you Introduced in Chapter 143.

el pañal
the nappy, the diaper
Introduced in Chapter 546.

el pánico
panic
Introduced in Chapter 706.

el pantalón
trousers — French pantalon, from Pantalone, the Venetian comic stock character and his long tight legwear; English pantaloons, clipped to pants, is the very same word Introduced in Chapter 360.

el pantano
the marsh, the swamp; the reservoir (Spain)
Introduced in Chapter 689.

el papel
the paper — from papyrus, the reed the Egyptians wrote on; it also means the part an actor plays, because the part was written on one Introduced in Chapter 301.

el paquete
package, parcel
Introduced in Chapter 415.

el paraguas
the umbrella — the para- of la parada, fused to a plural noun the way cumpleaños was, and invariable for the reason el análisis gave
Introduced in Chapter 470.

el pariente
the relative — Latin parere, to give birth; English parent and postpartum, and a false friend worth knowing Introduced in Chapter 309.

el parque
park — Frankish parrik, an enclosure, through Medieval Latin parricus; a park was a fence before it was grass, and the English dialect word paddock is the same fence
Introduced in Chapter 354.

el parquímetro
the parking meter
Introduced in Chapter 648.

el partido
the match, and the political party — both of them a side split off Introduced in Chapter 446.

el parto
the delivery (of a baby), the birth
Introduced in Chapter 544.

el pasajero
passenger, and passing or fleeting — pasaje plus -ero, on pasar from Vulgar Latin passāre, from passus, a step; an adjective first, and without the intruding n of English passenger
Introduced in Chapter 392.

el pasaporte
the passport — pass plus port; the paper that lets you through the gate, from Latin passus and porta
Introduced in Chapter 313.

el pasatiempo
the pastime
Introduced in Chapter 751.

el paseo
the walk, the stroll; the promenade
Introduced in Chapter 674.

el pastor
the shepherd — from pascere, to graze; the pasture, the pastor of a church and a repast are all feeding
Introduced in Chapter 299.

el patinete
the scooter (kick or electric)
Introduced in Chapter 649.

el patio
the courtyard — a word Spanish gave the world, and cannot account for itself Introduced in Chapter 450.

el peaje
the toll
Introduced in Chapter 642.

el peatón
the pedestrian
Introduced in Chapter 647.

el pecho
the chest — Latin pectus, whose ct became ch on the same road that took noctem to noche; English keeps the Latin in pectoral Introduced in Chapter 315.

el pedido
the order — the thing you have asked a shop to send, named from the verb for asking Introduced in Chapter 431.

el peine
comb — Latin pecten; the same Latin family may reach the words for money, since pecuniary and peculiar are built on the word for livestock Introduced in Chapter 373.

el perfil
the profile
Introduced in Chapter 590.

el período
the period
Introduced in Chapter 539.

el permiso
permission, leave — Latin permissus from permittere, per + mittere, to let go through; English permit, mission, transmit, submit and promise are all sendings
Introduced in Chapter 332.

el personaje
the character (in a story)
Introduced in Chapter 564.

el pésame
the condolences
Introduced in Chapter 557.

el pescado
fish as food — Latin piscātus, the catch, from piscārī to fish, on piscis; Pisces and piscine are borrowed, English fish is the inherited cousin, and pecado sin is a different word entirely Introduced in Chapter 361.

el peso
weight — Latin pensum, a thing weighed out, from pendere to weigh and to hang; pension, spend, expensive, pendant and ponder are all still weighing something Introduced in Chapter 359.

el pico
the peak; the beak
Introduced in Chapter 686.

el pie
the foot — Latin pedem, from a root so old that Hindi pair, Persian pa and English foot are all the same word Introduced in Chapter 314.

el piloto
the pilot; the driver (racing)
Introduced in Chapter 654.

el pimiento
pepper — from pimienta, Latin pigmenta, which passed from colouring matter through drug and ingredient to condiment; the American pepper took the Old World name
Introduced in Chapter 376.

el pinchazo
the puncture, the flat tyre
Introduced in Chapter 645.

el pino
the pine tree
Introduced in Chapter 693.

el pintor
the painter
Introduced in Chapter 763.

el piropo
the compliment (flirtatious)
Introduced in Chapter 744.

el piso
floor, storey, flat — from pisar, to tread, from Late Latin pinsare to pound; English pestle and piston are the same pounding, and in Spain un piso is a flat Introduced in Chapter 355.

el placer
pleasure — Latin placere, to please; English please, placid, plea and placebo are all the same verb Introduced in Chapter 321.

el plano
the street map, the plan
Introduced in Chapter 669.

el plato
a plate — Greek platys, flat: the same flatness in a plaza and in a platypus Introduced in Chapter 287.

el plazo
the deadline, the instalment — a term that was agreed, from the same root as el placer
Introduced in Chapter 458.

el policía
the police officer — Greek polis, the city, so the word names the person by the thing they keep in order; and the article changes what it means
Introduced in Chapter 427.

el polideportivo
the sports centre — one building, many sports, and the word says so Introduced in Chapter 438.

el pollo
chicken — the food word to keep distinct from polvo, dust
Introduced in Chapter 403.

el polvo
dust — Latin pulvis; English took the same word twice, powder through French with a d that was never in it, and pulverize straight off the Latin Introduced in Chapter 369.

el portal
the entrance hall — the door made big, and the part of a Spanish building that has no tidy English name
Introduced in Chapter 433.

el porvenir
the future (what lies ahead)
Introduced in Chapter 575.

el postre
dessert — the Latin family of post, after, with posterus and postrēmus behind it; Corominas makes postre a back-formation out of the phrase a la postre, the dessert sense documented in 1561
Introduced in Chapter 391.

el pozo
the well
Introduced in Chapter 692.

el prado
meadow — Latin pratum; English prairie is the same word through French, and Madrid's museum is named for the meadow it stands on Introduced in Chapter 378.

el precio
the price — Latin pretium, worth; English price, precious, appreciate and praise all come off it Introduced in Chapter 311.

el presente
the present
Introduced in Chapter 575.

el preso
the prisoner
Introduced in Chapter 523.

el préstamo
the loan — the noun the lending cycle was missing, and the word for a borrowed word
Introduced in Chapter 441.

el pretendiente
the suitor, the admirer
Introduced in Chapter 744.

el pretexto
the pretext
Introduced in Chapter 586.

el primo
the cousin — Latin primus, first; the same root as primero, and as English prime and primary Introduced in Chapter 307.

el principiante
the beginner — el principio plus the -ante ending el estudiante already taught you to build with Introduced in Chapter 471.

el principio
the beginning — Latin principium from princeps, the one who takes first place; English prince, principal and principle are the same first taking
Introduced in Chapter 348.

el privilegio
the privilege
Introduced in Chapter 603.

el probador
the fitting room
Introduced in Chapter 770.

el progreso
the progress
Introduced in Chapter 609.

el pronóstico
the forecast; the prognosis
Introduced in Chapter 696.

el propietario
the proprietor, the owner; the landlord
Introduced in Chapter 667.

el propósito
the purpose, the aim; the resolution
Introduced in Chapter 615.

el protagonista
the main character, the lead
Introduced in Chapter 564.

el proveedor
the supplier — the third party a shop blames when your order is late, and the reason this word turns up in complaints
Introduced in Chapter 431.

el psicólogo
the psychologist
Introduced in Chapter 743.

el pueblo
the village, and also the people — Latin populus, which gave popular, population and public Introduced in Chapter 292.

el puente
the bridge — Latin pontem; a pontoon floats one and a pontiff is, underneath, a bridge-builder Introduced in Chapter 295.

el puerto
the harbour — Latin portus, the twin of the porta you already have; import, export and opportunity are all ships coming in Introduced in Chapter 302.

el pulgar
thumb — Latin pollicaris, which meant an inch long, from pollex; the same word gives Spanish pulgada, an inch Introduced in Chapter 375.

el pulmón
the lung
Introduced in Chapter 735.

el punto
the full stop — one mark with three jobs, and the job it is doing is decided by what comes after it rather than by the mark itself
Introduced in Chapter 424.

el punto
the point, the dot — Latin punctum, a prick, from pungere to prick; English point, puncture, punctual, punctuation and pungent share the needle Introduced in Chapter 342.

el queso
cheese — Latin caseus, the very same word as English cheese by another road Introduced in Chapter 280.

el racismo
the racism
Introduced in Chapter 605.

el rasgo
the trait, the feature
Introduced in Chapter 721.

el rato
a while, a short time — Latin raptus, a snatching, from rapere to seize; English rapid, rapt, rapture and ravish are all seizures Introduced in Chapter 331.

el rayo
the lightning bolt; the ray
Introduced in Chapter 699.

el recepcionista
the receptionist
Introduced in Chapter 661.

el recibo
the receipt
Introduced in Chapter 491.

el recién nacido
the newborn baby
Introduced in Chapter 544.

el récord
the record (best result)
Introduced in Chapter 566.

el recorrido
the route, the tour
Introduced in Chapter 674.

el recurso
the resource; the appeal
Introduced in Chapter 607.

el reembolso
the refund
Introduced in Chapter 663.

el reencuentro
the reunion
Introduced in Chapter 560.

el refugiado
the refugee
Introduced in Chapter 552.

el refugio
the mountain hut; the shelter
Introduced in Chapter 687.

el regalo
a present — from regalar, French regaler, on Old French gale, merry-making; English gala and to regale a guest are the same fun, and it has nothing to do with king or regal
Introduced in Chapter 357.

el reglamento
the regulations, the rules
Introduced in Chapter 622.

el regreso
the return
Introduced in Chapter 561.

el relato
the account; the short story
Introduced in Chapter 563.

el relevo
the replacement, the handover; the relay Introduced in Chapter 553.

el reloj
the clock — Greek horologium, the hour-teller; the same hora sits in English hour and horoscope Introduced in Chapter 312.

el remedio
the remedy — re- and mederi, to heal again; medicine, medical and a medic are all the same healing
Introduced in Chapter 300.

el remolque
the trailer; towing
Introduced in Chapter 648.

el rencor
resentment, grudge
Introduced in Chapter 708.

el rendimiento
the performance, the output; the yield
Introduced in Chapter 593.

el reportaje
the report, the feature story
Introduced in Chapter 514.

el reportero
the reporter
Introduced in Chapter 514.

el requisito
the requirement
Introduced in Chapter 613.

el rescate
the rescue; the ransom
Introduced in Chapter 526.

el resfriado
the cold (illness)
Introduced in Chapter 733.

el respeto
respect — Latin respicere, to look back at somebody; the same specere gives English spectacle, inspect and suspect
Introduced in Chapter 321.

el restaurante
restaurant — French restaurant, a thing that restores, from Latin restaurare; the first restaurant was a broth sold to people who felt weak, and the room took the name of the soup Introduced in Chapter 354.

el resto
the rest, what is left — Latin restare, to stand back, from re and stare; English rest and arrest stand on the same verb Introduced in Chapter 352.

el reto
the challenge
Introduced in Chapter 766.

el retraso
the delay — the word a station announcement, a courier and an apology all reach for Introduced in Chapter 431.

el retrato
the portrait
Introduced in Chapter 763.

el riesgo
the risk
Introduced in Chapter 530.

el rincón
the inside corner of a room — Arabic rukn, a corner or a supporting pillar; the street corner, la esquina, is Latin, so Spanish gets its two corners from two languages
Introduced in Chapter 355.

el río
river — Latin rivus, a stream, which gave rival and derive; English river is not this word at all but comes from ripa, a bank, the same word behind arrive Introduced in Chapter 369.

el ritmo
rhythm; pace
Introduced in Chapter 753.

el roble
the oak tree
Introduced in Chapter 693.

el robo
the robbery, the theft
Introduced in Chapter 518.

el rodeo
the detour, the long way round; the rodeo
Introduced in Chapter 671.

el rompecabezas
the jigsaw puzzle; the puzzle
Introduced in Chapter 752.

el ruido
the noise — Latin rugitus, a roaring, from rugire to roar; the same root gave English rut, the roaring season of deer
Introduced in Chapter 333.

el rumor
the rumour
Introduced in Chapter 515.

el sabor
the taste, the flavour
Introduced in Chapter 771.

el saco de dormir
the sleeping bag
Introduced in Chapter 666.

el saludo
a greeting — from salutem, health: to greet was to wish someone their health Introduced in Chapter 282.

el secreto
the secret; secret
Introduced in Chapter 532.

el seguimiento
tracking, follow-up — the -miento ending on a verb you have had for chapters Introduced in Chapter 452.

el sello
the stamp; the seal
Introduced in Chapter 679.

el semáforo
the traffic lights
Introduced in Chapter 647.

el semestre
the semester, the half-year
Introduced in Chapter 539.

el sendero
the path — Latin semita, a by-way, with semi- meaning half: a path is a half-road
Introduced in Chapter 295.

el servicio
the service — and, on a door, the toilet
Introduced in Chapter 454.

el siglo
the century, the age — Latin saeculum, a generation or a lifetime; English secular is the same word, meaning of this age rather than of eternity
Introduced in Chapter 343.

el silencio
the silence — Latin silentium from silere, to be still; English silence, silent and the silent film all come off it unchanged
Introduced in Chapter 333.

el sindicato
the trade union
Introduced in Chapter 591.

el síntoma
the symptom
Introduced in Chapter 738.

el sitio
the place; the room, the space
Introduced in Chapter 478.

el sobrepeso
excess weight, being overweight
Introduced in Chapter 742.

el sobrino
nephew — Latin sobrinus, a cousin on the mother's side, built on soror, sister; English cousin is the prefixed consobrinus Introduced in Chapter 375.

el sofá
the sofa — the one word in this chapter you could not have built, and the stress that keeps its accent
Introduced in Chapter 432.

el soldado
the soldier
Introduced in Chapter 567.

el soportal
the arcade (covered walkway)
Introduced in Chapter 675.

el sospechoso
the suspect; suspicious
Introduced in Chapter 518.

el sótano
the basement, the cellar
Introduced in Chapter 774.

el suceso
the happening, the incident
Introduced in Chapter 512.

el suegro
the father-in-law
Introduced in Chapter 747.

el sueldo
the salary, the pay
Introduced in Chapter 490.

el sueño
the sleep, and the dream — Latin somnus with the o broken to ue; insomnia and somnolent keep the o intact
Introduced in Chapter 300.

el sufrimiento
suffering
Introduced in Chapter 717.

el supermercado
supermarket — a calque of English supermarket, American and dated 1933, built on mercado, which Spanish inherited from Latin mercātus, from mercārī, to trade, from merx, wares
Introduced in Chapter 391.

el suplemento
the extra charge, the supplement
Introduced in Chapter 663.

el sur
south — Germanic sunthaz through Old French sud; the same word as English south, and probably built on the word for sun
Introduced in Chapter 347.

el surtidor
the petrol pump; the jet (of a fountain)
Introduced in Chapter 646.

el susto
the fright, the scare
Introduced in Chapter 706.

el taladro
the drill — the loudest thing a neighbour owns, and a word worth knowing before they use it Introduced in Chapter 449.

el talento
talent
Introduced in Chapter 766.

el taller
the workshop — where a thing goes to be mended, and also the name of a short course Introduced in Chapter 434.

el tamaño
size — Latin tam magnum, so big, welded shut; the tam is the tan inside tambien and tampoco, and magnus is the magn- of magnify and magnitude
Introduced in Chapter 358.

el taxi
the taxi
Introduced in Chapter 641.

el taxista
the taxi driver
Introduced in Chapter 641.

el teatro
theatre — Greek theatron, a place for viewing, from theaomai "to behold"; the same root sits inside the English word theory Introduced in Chapter 420.

el techo
roof, ceiling — Latin tectum, the covered part, from tegere to cover; to protect is to cover in front, to detect is to take the cover off, and a Roman toga was a covering Introduced in Chapter 355.

el teclado
the keyboard
Introduced in Chapter 776.

el telediario
the television news
Introduced in Chapter 574.

el teléfono
the telephone — Greek tele far plus phone voice; a far-voice, and both halves are everywhere in English
Introduced in Chapter 312.

el teletrabajo
remote work, working from home
Introduced in Chapter 591.

el temario
the syllabus, the list of topics
Introduced in Chapter 596.

el temperamento
temperament
Introduced in Chapter 721.

el tenedor
the fork — built on tener, to hold: it is "the holder", the same shape as any Spanish word ending in -dor
Introduced in Chapter 297.

el terapeuta
the therapist
Introduced in Chapter 743.

el termómetro
the thermometer
Introduced in Chapter 696.

el terremoto
the earthquake
Introduced in Chapter 528.

el testigo
the witness
Introduced in Chapter 517.

el ticket
the receipt — a word that went to England, changed jobs, and came back Introduced in Chapter 451.

el tiempo
the one noun that covers both "time" and "weather" — because Latin tempus already did Introduced in Chapter 148.

el tío
the uncle — Greek theios, borrowed into Late Latin; the word English did not take, because English took avunculus instead Introduced in Chapter 307.

el tipo
the kind, the sort — Greek typos, a blow and the dent a blow leaves; English type, typical, typography and prototype all take the same impression Introduced in Chapter 350.

el titular
the headline
Introduced in Chapter 513.

el título
the qualification, the title
Introduced in Chapter 475.

el tobillo
the ankle — from Latin tuber, a swelling; a tuber in the ground and a protuberance are the same lump Introduced in Chapter 293.

el tomate
the tomato — Nahuatl tomatl, one of the words Spanish carried back across the Atlantic Introduced in Chapter 290.

el torneo
the tournament
Introduced in Chapter 757.

el toro
bull — Latin taurus, most likely taken from a language spoken before Latin; English Taurus and toreador come from it, and steer may or may not belong with it Introduced in Chapter 368.

el trabajo
work, a job — a reconstructed Vulgar Latin tripaliāre, to torture, on Late Latin tripalium, an instrument of torture attested in a church canon of 578; English travail is the same word
Introduced in Chapter 394.

el tramo
the stretch, the section (of a road or route)
Introduced in Chapter 642.

el transbordo
the change, the transfer (between trains or buses)
Introduced in Chapter 650.

el transcurso
the passing, the span (of time)
Introduced in Chapter 541.

el tranvía
the tram, the streetcar
Introduced in Chapter 650.

el tratamiento
the treatment
Introduced in Chapter 738.

el trayecto
the journey, the stretch (from one place to another)
Introduced in Chapter 641.

el tren
train — borrowed from French train, a thing drawn along, from traîner to drag; keep it sharply apart from tres, three
Introduced in Chapter 400.

el tribunal
the court
Introduced in Chapter 626.

el trigo
the wheat — Latin triticum, the rubbed grain, from terere, to rub; trite is worn down the same way Introduced in Chapter 290.

el triple
triple, three times as much — Latin triplus, three plus the -plus that means fold; English triple, treble and triplicate are all three folds Introduced in Chapter 351.

el tronco
the trunk — Latin truncus, meaning lopped or maimed; to truncate is to do it on purpose Introduced in Chapter 291.

el trozo
the piece, the bit
Introduced in Chapter 775.

el trueno
thunder — from a Latin word for a thunderclap, with an r that wandered in; English thunder is the inherited cousin, and tornado is a mangled Spanish tronada Introduced in Chapter 370.

el turismo
tourism; a private car (Spain, on forms)
Introduced in Chapter 676.

el turno
the turn, your slot — Greek tornos, a lathe, through Latin tornus; English turn, tour, tournament, contour and tornado all spin off it Introduced in Chapter 348.

el usuario
the user — usar plus the -ario ending, and the word a service uses for the people it serves Introduced in Chapter 472.

el vagón
the carriage, the railway car
Introduced in Chapter 651.

el valle
the valley — Latin vallis; valley, vale and avalanche all come down the same slope Introduced in Chapter 292.

el valor
courage; value
Introduced in Chapter 722.

el vaso
a glass — Latin vas, a vessel: named for what it does, not for what it is made of Introduced in Chapter 287.

el vecindario
the neighbourhood; the residents
Introduced in Chapter 684.

el vecino
the neighbour — from vicus, a village street: the person off your own block
Introduced in Chapter 285.

el velatorio
the wake; the funeral parlour
Introduced in Chapter 556.

el velero
the sailing boat
Introduced in Chapter 659.

el vendedor
the seller — vender plus the same -dor ending that turned trabajar into trabajador, which is how Spanish makes a person out of an action
Introduced in Chapter 427.

el vestido
dress — Latin vestire, to clothe, its past participle standing alone as a noun; vest, invest, divest and travesty are all still clothing something, and wear is the inherited cousin Introduced in Chapter 360.

el viaje
the journey — Latin viaticum, the provisions you packed for the road
Introduced in Chapter 288.

el viajero
the traveller, the passenger
Introduced in Chapter 501.

el videojuego
the video game
Introduced in Chapter 761.

el viento
wind — Latin ventus, and the English word that is its cousin rather than its borrowing Introduced in Chapter 278.

el vínculo
the bond, the link
Introduced in Chapter 750.

el viñedo
the vineyard
Introduced in Chapter 691.

el vino
wine — one Latin root that reached English by three separate roads, plus one English built at home Introduced in Chapter 143.

el visado
the visa
Introduced in Chapter 656.

el viudo
the widower; widowed
Introduced in Chapter 550.

el volante
the steering wheel
Introduced in Chapter 644.

el volcán
volcano — through Portuguese volcão from Latin Vulcanus, the Roman god of fire and the forge Introduced in Chapter 378.

el voleibol
volleyball
Introduced in Chapter 758.

el voluntariado
the volunteering; the volunteers
Introduced in Chapter 606.

el votante
the voter
Introduced in Chapter 602.

el voto
the vote
Introduced in Chapter 602.

el vuelo
flight — the noun built from volar, to fly; for travel, the route an aeroplane covers from origin to destination Introduced in Chapter 400.

el wifi
Wi-Fi — a brand name coined to echo Hi-Fi, with Wireless Fidelity attached later as marketing Introduced in Chapter 404.

el yerno
the son-in-law
Introduced in Chapter 747.

el zapato
shoe — origin genuinely unknown; Portuguese sapato, Catalan sabata, French savate, Italian ciabatta and Arabic sabbat all share it, and the famous sabotage story attached to it is false Introduced in Chapter 360.

elegir
to choose
Introduced in Chapter 492.

embarcar
to board; to embark
Introduced in Chapter 653.

emigrar
to emigrate
Introduced in Chapter 551.

emocionado excited; moved
Introduced in Chapter 711.

emocionante
exciting; moving
Introduced in Chapter 711.

emocionarse
to be moved, to get emotional Introduced in Chapter 704.

emotivo
moving, emotional Introduced in Chapter 711.

empapado soaked, drenched
Introduced in Chapter 702.

empaquetar
to pack up, to wrap up
Introduced in Chapter 668.

empatar
to draw, to tie
Introduced in Chapter 756.

empeorar
to get worse, to worsen
Introduced in Chapter 732.

empezar
to begin — from pieza, a piece; English begin is a different word built on the same idea Introduced in Chapter 382.

empujar
to push — probably late Latin impulsare, though both dictionaries hedge; English push is a cousin, not the same word
Introduced in Chapter 388.

en absoluto
not at all
Introduced in Chapter 589.

en cambio
whereas, by contrast
Introduced in Chapter 588.

en caso de que
in case; if
Introduced in Chapter 611.

en cuanto
as soon as Introduced in Chapter 536.

en efecto
indeed — from ex and facere, carried out; it confirms what somebody has just said, and does not mean "in effect"
Introduced in Chapter 298.

en el fondo
deep down, at heart
Introduced in Chapter 589.

en ese caso
in that case
Introduced in Chapter 612.

en general
in general, generally
Introduced in Chapter 588.

en medio
in the middle
Introduced in Chapter 407.

en mi opinión
in my opinion
Introduced in Chapter 270.

en primer lugar
in the first place, firstly
Introduced in Chapter 273.

en realidad
actually, really
Introduced in Chapter 589.

en resumen
in short — and the last thing this book asks of you Introduced in Chapter 277.

en teoría
in theory
Introduced in Chapter 618.

en todo caso
in any case; if anything
Introduced in Chapter 612.

en un principio
at first, in the beginning
Introduced in Chapter 535.

enamorado
in love
Introduced in Chapter 715.

enamorarse
to fall in love
Introduced in Chapter 488.

encantado
delighted to meet you — Latin incantare, to sing a spell into; English enchanted Introduced in Chapter 305.

encantador
charming, delightful
Introduced in Chapter 730.

encargar
to order in, to put somebody in charge — the cart again, with a prefix Introduced in Chapter 457.

encender
to switch on; to light
Introduced in Chapter 494.

enchufar
to plug in
Introduced in Chapter 777.

encontrar
to find — literally to come up against, and the o that breaks into ue exactly as mostrar's does Introduced in Chapter 470.

endeudarse
to get into debt
Introduced in Chapter 627.

enfadado
angry, annoyed
Introduced in Chapter 707.

enfadarse
to get angry
Introduced in Chapter 487.

enfermarse
to fall ill, to get sick
Introduced in Chapter 732.

enfermo
ill — Latin infirmus, not firm; the same word as English infirm Introduced in Chapter 304.

enfrente
opposite, across from, facing — Latin frontem, the forehead; English front, frontier, affront, confront and effrontery all come off the same brow Introduced in Chapter 340.

enfriar
to cool, to chill
Introduced in Chapter 777.

engañar
to deceive, to cheat
Introduced in Chapter 636.

enojado
cross, angry
Introduced in Chapter 707.

ensayar
to rehearse, to practise
Introduced in Chapter 505.

enseguida
right away — en seguida, "in what follows," from Latin sequi, to follow; English sequence, sequel and pursue come off the same verb Introduced in Chapter 322.

enseñar
to teach, and to show — to put a sign into somebody, which is one act in Spanish Introduced in Chapter 445.

entender
to understand — literally "to stretch toward"; the second e→ie stem-changer Introduced in Chapter 154.

enterarse
to hear about, to find out Introduced in Chapter 574.

entero
whole, entire — Latin integer, untouched, from in not plus tangere to touch; English integer, integrity and intact are the same untouched thing Introduced in Chapter 352.

enterrar
to bury Introduced in Chapter 556.

entonces
then — Latin in tunc, "at that time"; tunc and English then both grow out of the old pointing word that also gives the, that and there
Introduced in Chapter 323.

entrar
to go in — Latin intrāre, from intrā, within; the short i dropped to e in words carried by mouth, while the prefix intra- kept its i, and English enter, entrance and interior are the same root Introduced in Chapter 395.

entregar
to hand in, to deliver — to give a thing over whole
Introduced in Chapter 458.

entrevistar
to interview
Introduced in Chapter 514.

entrometido
nosy, meddling
Introduced in Chapter 729.

envejecer
to grow old, to age
Introduced in Chapter 554.

enviar
to send — Latin inviare, to put on the road, from via; not related to envy Introduced in Chapter 384.

envidiar
to envy
Introduced in Chapter 708.

envolver
to wrap
Introduced in Chapter 506.

equivocarse
to get it wrong — two Latin pieces meaning "equal voice", and the verb a shop uses to admit a mistake Introduced in Chapter 437.

es decir
that is to say — the same idea in your own words
Introduced in Chapter 277.

es que...
it's just that…
Introduced in Chapter 272.

escalar
to climb (a mountain, a wall)
Introduced in Chapter 686.

escampar
to stop raining, to clear up
Introduced in Chapter 697.

escaso
scarce, in short supply — Vulgar Latin excarpsus, picked over, from ex and carpere to pluck; English scarce, excerpt and carpet are the same plucking Introduced in Chapter 352.

esconder
to hide
Introduced in Chapter 532.

escribir
to write — from a Latin verb meaning "to scratch", and the reason Spanish puts an e- in front Introduced in Chapter 156.

ese
that one, by you — the slot Latin's iste left empty when Spanish moved it, filled by a word that used to mean self
Introduced in Chapter 222.

esforzarse
to make an effort, to try hard
Introduced in Chapter 598.

español
"Spanish" — the language, the people, and the Roman name for the peninsula underneath it Introduced in Chapter 22.

esperar
to wait — and to hope, and to expect, all in one verb
Introduced in Chapter 174.

espero viajar
I hope to travel
Introduced in Chapter 269.

esquiar
to ski
Introduced in Chapter 758.

está en...
is in or at… — locate someone with estar and the already-known en
Introduced in Chapter 48.

establecerse
to settle, to establish oneself
Introduced in Chapter 551.

estallar
to burst, to break out Introduced in Chapter 529.

estar
to be — but the standing kind, straight from Latin stāre
Introduced in Chapter 8.

estar en paro
to be out of work — el paro is a stoppage, and Spain names unemployment after the halt rather than after the missing job
Introduced in Chapter 430.

estás / está
what estar is for — a current state or location — and the only two forms you need this chapter Introduced in Chapter 8.

este
this one, here, next to me — the first of three words for pointing, and the reason Spanish never needs to say "the this book"
Introduced in Chapter 221.

estirarse
to stretch
Introduced in Chapter 767.

estornudar
to sneeze
Introduced in Chapter 733.

estropear / estropeado
to ruin, to break — and the adjective on the sign when the machine will not work Introduced in Chapter 448.

estudiante
student — a word you can build yourself, out of a verb you already have Introduced in Chapter 52.

estudiar
to study (a third -ar verb — the pattern is automatic now) Introduced in Chapter 21.

evacuar
to evacuate
Introduced in Chapter 524.

evaluar
to assess, to evaluate Introduced in Chapter 597.

evidente
evident, obvious
Introduced in Chapter 587.

evitar
to avoid
Introduced in Chapter 492.

evolucionar
to evolve, to progress
Introduced in Chapter 572.

exacto
exactly — from exigere, to drive out, and then to weigh out precisely Introduced in Chapter 284.

excepto
except Introduced in Chapter 638.

exento exempt, free from Introduced in Chapter 621.

exigente
demanding — a word that drives things out of you, from the verb behind agenda and actor Introduced in Chapter 445.

exitoso
successful
Introduced in Chapter 639.

explicar
to explain — literally to unfold, and the verb that names what this whole chapter has been building
Introduced in Chapter 175.

explorar
to explore
Introduced in Chapter 687.

explotar
to explode; to exploit
Introduced in Chapter 529.

expresar
to express
Introduced in Chapter 604.

extrañar
to miss (someone); to find strange
Introduced in Chapter 709.

extraviarse
to go missing, to get lost (of things)
Introduced in Chapter 652.

fácil
easy — Latin facilis, built on facere, “to do”, so what it says is do-able rather than light; hacer is the same verb worn down by mouth, while fácil was lifted off the page and kept its c Introduced in Chapter 398.

facilitar
to make easier; to provide
Introduced in Chapter 621.

fallar
to fail, to let somebody down — the deceiving inside falso
Introduced in Chapter 464.

fallecer
to pass away
Introduced in Chapter 497.

falso
false, fake — Latin falsus, the past participle of fallere, to trip somebody up; English fail, fault, fallacy and false all come off it Introduced in Chapter 324.

fastidiar
to annoy, to bother
Introduced in Chapter 707.

favorecer
to favour; to suit
Introduced in Chapter 637.

favorito
favourite — from favor, Latin favēre, "to be well disposed toward"; the -ito on the end is an Italian past participle, not the Spanish little-word ending it looks exactly like Introduced in Chapter 398.

felicitar
to congratulate, to wish a happy birthday
Introduced in Chapter 506.

feliz
happy
Introduced in Chapter 269.

feo
ugly — Latin foedus, foul; a different Latin foedus meaning treaty gave English federal, and the two never had anything to do with each other Introduced in Chapter 380.

festejar
to celebrate, to party
Introduced in Chapter 558.

festivo
holiday (of a day: día festivo); festive Introduced in Chapter 681.

fiarse
to trust
Introduced in Chapter 510.

fiel
faithful, loyal
Introduced in Chapter 725.

fijo
fixed, permanent — a past participle so old that nobody feels it as one Introduced in Chapter 441.

finalizar
to end, to finish
Introduced in Chapter 542.

finalmente
finally, in the end
Introduced in Chapter 535.

financiar
to finance, to fund
Introduced in Chapter 629.

fingir
to pretend, to fake
Introduced in Chapter 725.

firmar
to sign — literally to make firm, which is what a signature was for Introduced in Chapter 441.

florecer
to flower, to bloom; to flourish
Introduced in Chapter 692.

flotar
to float
Introduced in Chapter 688.

fortuito
accidental, by chance
Introduced in Chapter 533.

fotografiar
to photograph
Introduced in Chapter 763.

fracasar
to fail
Introduced in Chapter 573.

fraccionar
to split into instalments, to divide
Introduced in Chapter 632.

francés / francesa
French; French person
Introduced in Chapter 410.

fregar
to wash up; to mop
Introduced in Chapter 485.

freír
to fry
Introduced in Chapter 768.

fresco
fresh, cool — a Germanic frisk, new and lively, that spread through Romance; the painting technique is the Italian form, for paint laid on wet plaster
Introduced in Chapter 379.

fuera
outside
Introduced in Chapter 407.

fuerte
strong, loud — Latin fortis, the same root already spent on la fuerza; English fort, force, effort, comfort and fortify all come off it Introduced in Chapter 327.

fui
the shared singular preterite of ser and ir — fui, fuiste, fue Introduced in Chapter 103.

funcionar
to work, said of a machine — built on función, Latin fūnctiō from fungī, to discharge a duty; the untouched Latin cluster shows it came off the page Introduced in Chapter 396.

ganar
to earn; to win
Introduced in Chapter 477.

garantizar
to guarantee
Introduced in Chapter 614.

gastar
to spend — Latin vastare, to lay waste; devastate is the clean cousin, and the w in English waste is a Germanic fingerprint Introduced in Chapter 386.

gato
cat — a word that travelled out of Africa with the animal, pushing Latin's own fēlēs aside Introduced in Chapter 150.

generar
to generate, to create
Introduced in Chapter 583.

generoso generous
Introduced in Chapter 723.

gestionar
to manage, to handle
Introduced in Chapter 594.

girar
to turn — Latin gyrare, from Greek gyros, a circle; a late arrival taken from books rather than inherited from speech Introduced in Chapter 387.

gordo
fat — Latin gurdus, dull or blunt, which Quintilian says he heard came into Latin from Spain; French gourd, numb, is the survivor, and English gourd is a false friend Introduced in Chapter 371.

gotear
to drip, to leak
Introduced in Chapter 769.

grabar
to record; to engrave
Introduced in Chapter 761.

gracias
thank you
Introduced in Chapter 7.

gracias a thanks to Introduced in Chapter 581.

gracioso
funny, amusing
Introduced in Chapter 713.

graduarse
to graduate
Introduced in Chapter 554.

grande
big — the first word in this book for what something is like, and it does not change for gender Introduced in Chapter 58.

granizar
to hail
Introduced in Chapter 699.

gratis
free of charge — a whole Latin word swallowed unchanged, grātīs contracted from grātiīs, "for thanks", which is why it never grows an -o or an -a Introduced in Chapter 397.

gratuito
free of charge
Introduced in Chapter 633.

gris
grey — a Germanic word borrowed into Spanish through its Romance neighbours; English grey is a cousin from a different Germanic stem, not the same word Introduced in Chapter 372.

gritar
to shout — Latin quiritare, to cry out; English cry is the same word, and only English moved it from shouting to weeping Introduced in Chapter 388.

grosero
rude, coarse
Introduced in Chapter 727.

grueso
thick — Late Latin grossus, coarse; English gross is the same word, and so is grocer, a dealer who sold in bulk Introduced in Chapter 379.

guapo
good-looking — the Academy derives it from Latin vappa, flat wine and so a good-for-nothing, but Corominas argues against that route, so this is a word whose origin the two standard authorities do not agree on Introduced in Chapter 399.

guardar
to keep — Germanic wardon, to watch over; the w- became gu- in Spanish, which is why ward and guard are the same word twice Introduced in Chapter 383.

guiñar
to wink
Introduced in Chapter 718.

gustar
to please — the verb English calls "to like", built the other way round Introduced in Chapter 163.

hábil
skilful, clever
Introduced in Chapter 728.

habitación
room
Introduced in Chapter 268.

habitual usual, regular — what you hold on to, from the haber you already have Introduced in Chapter 459.

hablar
to speak / to talk — at root, "to tell stories"
Introduced in Chapter 16.

hablaré
I will speak
Introduced in Chapter 49.

Hablo español
your first sentence built from parts — and the rule that languages take no article
Introduced in Chapter 22.

hace calor, hace frío, hace sol
the three weather words Spanish reports with hacer — "it makes heat," "it makes cold," "it makes sun"
Introduced in Chapter 148.

hace poco
a short time ago, recently Introduced in Chapter 537.

hacer
to do or make — with the singular present forms hago, haces, and hace Introduced in Chapter 70.

hallar
to find
Introduced in Chapter 531.

hasta
until / up to
Introduced in Chapter 12.

hasta entonces
until then
Introduced in Chapter 537.

hasta luego
see you later (literally "until later")
Introduced in Chapter 13.

hasta mañana
see you tomorrow (literally "until tomorrow")
Introduced in Chapter 13.

hasta pronto
see you soon (literally "until soon")
Introduced in Chapter 13.

hay
"there is" and "there are" — one word for both, which no other Spanish verb form manages Introduced in Chapter 191.

helar
to freeze
Introduced in Chapter 700.

heredar
to inherit
Introduced in Chapter 497.

herir
to wound, to injure; to hurt
Introduced in Chapter 525.

hervir
to boil
Introduced in Chapter 768.

histórico
historic; historical Introduced in Chapter 568.

hojear
to leaf through, to flick through Introduced in Chapter 762.

hola
hello / hi
Introduced in Chapter 1.

honesto
honest
Introduced in Chapter 636.

hospedarse
to stay as a guest
Introduced in Chapter 660.

hoy
today — a whole Latin phrase worn down to three letters, and the tense it prefers Introduced in Chapter 252.

huir
to flee, to run away
Introduced in Chapter 518.

húmedo
humid, damp
Introduced in Chapter 696.

humilde
humble; poor
Introduced in Chapter 726.

igual
the same, equal — Latin aequalis from aequus, level; English equal, equator and adequate are all about a surface with no tilt in it Introduced in Chapter 350.

ilegal
illegal
Introduced in Chapter 625.

ileso
unhurt, unharmed
Introduced in Chapter 527.

imaginar
to imagine
Introduced in Chapter 618.

impedir
to stop, to prevent
Introduced in Chapter 621.

importante
important — built on importar, from Latin importāre, "to carry in"; classical Latin never used it to mean "to matter", and English import still carries both jobs Introduced in Chapter 398.

importar
to matter — the verb behind importante, and it works like gustar
Introduced in Chapter 463.

imprimir
to print — the verb el impreso was the participle of, handed back with its own lesson Introduced in Chapter 469.

inaugurar
to open, to inaugurate Introduced in Chapter 558.

incendiar
to set on fire
Introduced in Chapter 524.

incluir
to include
Introduced in Chapter 409.

incluso
even, including — Latin inclusus from includere, in + claudere, to shut in; English include, enclose, recluse, seclude and conclude are all shuttings Introduced in Chapter 328.

increíble
incredible, unbelievable
Introduced in Chapter 508.

independiente independent
Introduced in Chapter 508.

independizarse
to become independent; to leave home
Introduced in Chapter 552.

indicar
to show, to point out, to indicate
Introduced in Chapter 670.

inesperado
unexpected
Introduced in Chapter 533.

infiel
unfaithful
Introduced in Chapter 745.

influir
to influence, to have an effect
Introduced in Chapter 583.

infringir
to break, to infringe
Introduced in Chapter 625.

ingresar
to pay in, to deposit; to be admitted
Introduced in Chapter 632.

iniciar
to launch, to start, to begin Introduced in Chapter 542.

injusto
unfair
Introduced in Chapter 603.

inmediatamente
immediately
Introduced in Chapter 534.

inolvidable
unforgettable
Introduced in Chapter 764.

inscribirse
to sign up, to enrol
Introduced in Chapter 479.

insistir
to insist
Introduced in Chapter 493.

instalarse
to settle in, to move in
Introduced in Chapter 551.

inteligente
intelligent — Latin intellegere, inter "between" plus legere "to pick out"; intelligence is literally the act of choosing between things Introduced in Chapter 423.

intentar
to try
Introduced in Chapter 492.

interesante
interesting — from Latin interesse, inter + esse, "to be between"; the same phrase gave banking the word interest, because what a lender lost was id quod interest, the difference between Introduced in Chapter 398.

interesar
to interest — the verb behind an adjective you own, running on the same machine as doler Introduced in Chapter 443.

internet
the internet — English Internet, itself Latin inter, between, bolted onto Germanic net; taken into Spanish unchanged except for the beat, which moves to the last syllable
Introduced in Chapter 393.

interpretar
to play (a role); to interpret
Introduced in Chapter 760.

interrumpir
to interrupt
Introduced in Chapter 480.

invertir
to invest; to reverse
Introduced in Chapter 627.

investigar
to investigate
Introduced in Chapter 521.

invitar
to invite — the verb el invitado was named from, handed over now, and in Spanish it also means paying Introduced in Chapter 474.

ir
to go — with the three singular present forms voy, vas, and va Introduced in Chapter 49.

jamás
never, ever — Latin iam magis, already more; the magis half is the same word that became más, and French jamais took the identical road
Introduced in Chapter 328.

joven
young — Latin iuvenis; English young is the inherited cousin, juvenile and junior are the borrowed ones, and June comes in only through Juno Introduced in Chapter 371.

jubilado
retired — a participle used as a noun, the same move that made el pedido, and a surprisingly cheerful root Introduced in Chapter 435.

jubilarse
to retire — the verb behind a word you were given, and it names a shout of joy Introduced in Chapter 445.

jugar
to play — from Latin's word for joking, and the only verb in the language that breaks u to ue Introduced in Chapter 170.

juntarse
to get together; to join Introduced in Chapter 560.

junto
together, next to — one short word doing two jobs, and the preposition that decides which Introduced in Chapter 433.

justificar
to justify
Introduced in Chapter 586.

justo
fair; exactly; tight
Introduced in Chapter 482.

juzgar
to judge, to try
Introduced in Chapter 522.

la
"it" for something feminine — the one word in this pair that never had to change
Introduced in Chapter 84.

la abeja
bee — Latin apicula, the little apis; Spanish kept the small form and let the big one die, the same way oveja and oreja did Introduced in Chapter 368.

la abuela
the grandmother — the avus root swung feminine, the same -o/-a switch as hijo and hija
Introduced in Chapter 306.

la academia
academy, language school
Introduced in Chapter 410.

la acogida
the welcome, the reception
Introduced in Chapter 551.

la actividad
activity — Medieval Latin āctīvitās, a Scholastic coinage on āctīvus, from agere, to drive or to do; the -ct- still sitting intact inside activ- is the sign the word came off the page Introduced in Chapter 394.

la actriz
actress — Latin actrix, the feminine of actor; the -triz ending is a museum piece that survives in only a handful of Spanish words
Introduced in Chapter 421.

la actuación
the performance
Introduced in Chapter 759.

la acuarela
watercolour
Introduced in Chapter 751.

la acusación
the accusation, the charge
Introduced in Chapter 626.

la administración
the administration — built on the word for the LESSER one, which is what a servant was Introduced in Chapter 442.

la admiración
admiration
Introduced in Chapter 720.

la adolescencia
adolescence, the teenage years
Introduced in Chapter 545.

la adopción
adoption
Introduced in Chapter 748.

la aduana
customs
Introduced in Chapter 656.

la advertencia
the warning
Introduced in Chapter 585.

la aerolínea
the airline
Introduced in Chapter 652.

la afición
the hobby; liking; fans
Introduced in Chapter 751.

la agencia
the agency — a place that acts for you, and the agenda is its cousin Introduced in Chapter 456.

la agenda
the diary, the schedule — Latin agenda, the things that must be done, from agere to drive; English agent, agile and act come off the same verb Introduced in Chapter 349.

la aguja
the needle — a little acus, a sharp; the same sharp that names the acute accent, and the one in acupuncture Introduced in Chapter 301.

la alarma
the alarm
Introduced in Chapter 524.

la alcaldía
the mayor's office; the office of mayor
Introduced in Chapter 683.

la aldea
the hamlet, the small village
Introduced in Chapter 683.

la alegría
joy, happiness
Introduced in Chapter 704.

la alergia
the allergy
Introduced in Chapter 740.

la alfombra
rug, carpet — Andalusi Arabic al-ḥánbal, a kind of tapestry; the al- is the Arabic article, and a once-popular red-carpet story turned out to be a different word
Introduced in Chapter 373.

la almohada
pillow — Andalusi Arabic al-mukhadda, the cheek-instrument, with the Arabic article fused on; this word has no English relative at all
Introduced in Chapter 366.

la alternativa
the alternative, the other option
Introduced in Chapter 616.

la amabilidad
kindness
Introduced in Chapter 723.

la ambición
ambition
Introduced in Chapter 766.

la ambulancia
the ambulance
Introduced in Chapter 525.

la amenaza
the threat
Introduced in Chapter 530.

la amiga
a friend, of a woman — Latin amica, from the same amare as amable Introduced in Chapter 285.

la amistad
friendship
Introduced in Chapter 497.

la anécdota
the anecdote
Introduced in Chapter 566.

la angustia
anguish, distress
Introduced in Chapter 719.

la ansiedad
anxiety
Introduced in Chapter 710.

la antigüedad
antiquity, the ancient world; age
Introduced in Chapter 575.

la aplicación
the app; the application
Introduced in Chapter 773.

la arena
sand — Latin harena, whose origin nobody has settled; English arena is the same word, the sand spread on an amphitheatre floor to soak up what was spilled on it Introduced in Chapter 369.

la arroba
the at sign — an Arabic unit of weight that became a merchant's shorthand and then an e-mail address, which is why Spanish has a real word where English says at
Introduced in Chapter 428.

la asociación
the association, the society
Introduced in Chapter 606.

la aspirina
the aspirin
Introduced in Chapter 486.

la ausencia
the absence
Introduced in Chapter 561.

la autoestima
self-esteem
Introduced in Chapter 743.

la autorización
the authorisation, the permission
Introduced in Chapter 624.

la avenida
avenue — a broad street, from avenir, whose older senses include things that come or arrive Introduced in Chapter 401.

la aventura
the adventure; the affair
Introduced in Chapter 566.

la ayuda
help — Latin adiutare, to bring strength toward someone; the same root gives English aid Introduced in Chapter 303.

la azafata
the flight attendant
Introduced in Chapter 654.

la bahía
the bay
Introduced in Chapter 688.

la bandeja
the tray
Introduced in Chapter 653.

la baraja
the pack of cards
Introduced in Chapter 752.

la barba
the beard; the chin
Introduced in Chapter 736.

la barbilla
the chin
Introduced in Chapter 736.

la barra
the slash — the mark that offers a choice, abbreviates a street, and sits inside every speed limit sign
Introduced in Chapter 424.

la báscula
the scales (for weighing)
Introduced in Chapter 668.

la basura
the rubbish, the trash
Introduced in Chapter 485.

la batalla
the battle
Introduced in Chapter 567.

la batería
the battery — a word that looks built and is not, at least not in this language
Introduced in Chapter 434.

la belleza
beauty
Introduced in Chapter 730.

la biblioteca
library — Greek biblion, a book, plus theke, a chest, so a book-chest; the same theke gave Spanish bodega and botica, French boutique and English apothecary
Introduced in Chapter 353.

la bicicleta
bicycle — French bicyclette, Latin bi- two on Greek kyklos circle, wheel; cycle, tricycle, cyclops and the 1848 coinage cyclone are the same root, English wheel is its inherited cousin, and encyclopedia comes from a misread Greek phrase
Introduced in Chapter 363.

la boca
the mouth — Latin bucca was the cheek, and the cheek pushed the mouth out of the job
Introduced in Chapter 286.

la bocacalle
the turning, the side-street opening
Introduced in Chapter 647.

la boda
the wedding — a Latin plural that hardened into a Spanish singular, and the pieces are invisible Introduced in Chapter 440.

la bolsa
the bag — Latin bursa from Greek byrsa, a hide; English purse, bursar and reimburse are all the same leather Introduced in Chapter 311.

la botella
bottle — from French bouteille, on a late Latin buttis, a cask; a butler is the bottle-keeper, and the older Spanish form of the same word is bota Introduced in Chapter 373.

la brisa
the breeze
Introduced in Chapter 772.

la broma
the joke, the prank
Introduced in Chapter 718.

la brújula
the compass
Introduced in Chapter 772.

la bufanda
the scarf — one of a handful of words this book has had to leave open, and the fifth to say so out loud
Introduced in Chapter 468.

la búsqueda
the search
Introduced in Chapter 531.

la cabeza
the head — Spanish KEPT Latin's real word, unlike French, which replaced it with slang for "pot"
Introduced in Chapter 141.

la cadera
the hip
Introduced in Chapter 737.

la cafetera
the coffee maker, the coffee pot
Introduced in Chapter 775.

la caja
box — Latin capsa, the case a Roman kept scrolls in, probably reaching Castilian through Catalan or Occitan; case, capsule and chassis are cousins, and English cash first meant the box itself
Introduced in Chapter 366.

la calefacción
the heating — heat-making, built from two words you already own
Introduced in Chapter 444.

la calificación
the grade, as printed on a document — the formal partner of nota, and a word that says out loud what a grade is for Introduced in Chapter 429.

la calle
the street — Latin callis, the narrow track worn through rough ground by driven animals; the town's word began in the hills
Introduced in Chapter 302.

la calma
the calm — Late Latin cauma from Greek kauma, burning heat; the windless noon at sea gave sailors a word for stillness
Introduced in Chapter 333.

la calzada
the roadway, the carriageway
Introduced in Chapter 647.

la cama
bed — one of the commonest Spanish words, and nobody has settled where it came from Introduced in Chapter 279.

la caminata
the long walk, the hike
Introduced in Chapter 687.

la camisa
shirt — Late Latin camisia, a garment worn close to the body
Introduced in Chapter 402.

la camiseta
T-shirt — camisa plus the diminutive suffix -eta
Introduced in Chapter 402.

la cancelación
the cancellation
Introduced in Chapter 662.

la canción
the song
Introduced in Chapter 753.

la cantidad
the quantity, the amount — Latin quantitas from quantus, how much; English quantity, quantum and quantify all ask the same question
Introduced in Chapter 351.

la capacidad
the ability, the capacity
Introduced in Chapter 598.

la cara
face — Late Latin cara, generally traced to Greek kara head though the trail is not clean; the identical cara meaning expensive is a separate root, carus, which gave English charity, caress and cherish
Introduced in Chapter 364.

la caravana
the caravan, the camper; the tailback
Introduced in Chapter 666.

la cárcel
the prison, the jail
Introduced in Chapter 522.

la caridad
the charity
Introduced in Chapter 606.

la carne
meat, flesh — Latin carō, stem carn-; carnal, incarnate and carnage are the direct cousins, and carnival is carnelevare, the removing of meat Introduced in Chapter 361.

la carnicería
the butcher's
Introduced in Chapter 770.

la carpeta
the folder
Introduced in Chapter 776.

la carrera
the career; the degree; the race
Introduced in Chapter 595.

la carroza
the float (in a parade); the carriage
Introduced in Chapter 559.

la carta
the letter, and the menu — Latin charta from Greek khartes, a papyrus sheet; English chart, charter, card and cartoon are all it Introduced in Chapter 312.

la cartera
the wallet
Introduced in Chapter 491.

la casa
house, home — and a word French wore down so far it stopped looking like a noun Introduced in Chapter 56.

la cascada
the waterfall
Introduced in Chapter 689.

la casualidad
chance, coincidence
Introduced in Chapter 533.

la catástrofe
the catastrophe
Introduced in Chapter 528.

la catedral
the cathedral
Introduced in Chapter 677.

la cebolla
the onion — Latin caepulla, a little caepa; the chive in English is the same root, undiminished Introduced in Chapter 290.

la celebración
the celebration
Introduced in Chapter 558.

la ceniza
ash — from Latin cinis; English incinerate is the same word, but English cinder is a Germanic impostor that only borrowed the Latin spelling Introduced in Chapter 369.

la cerámica
pottery, ceramics
Introduced in Chapter 754.

la ceremonia
the ceremony
Introduced in Chapter 548.

la cerradura
the lock
Introduced in Chapter 496.

la certeza
the certainty
Introduced in Chapter 587.

la cesta
the basket — Latin cista from Greek kiste, a box; English chest and cistern are the same container by two different doors
Introduced in Chapter 301.

la chaqueta
the jacket — a word you have already been shown twice without being given it, and probably named after a peasant rather than a place
Introduced in Chapter 468.

la chica
the girl — the same ciccum root, and the one word here that English borrowed from Spanish rather than the reverse
Introduced in Chapter 308.

la cicatriz
the scar
Introduced in Chapter 734.

la cima
the top, the summit
Introduced in Chapter 686.

la cintura
the waist
Introduced in Chapter 737.

la circulación
the traffic (flow); circulation
Introduced in Chapter 640.

la circunvalación
the ring road, the bypass
Introduced in Chapter 642.

la cirugía
surgery
Introduced in Chapter 739.

la cita
an appointment, a date — from citar, Latin citare to summon, from ciere to set in motion; English cite, recite, incite and excite are all the same summons Introduced in Chapter 356.

la ciudad
the city — Latin civitatem from civis, a citizen; English city, civic, civil, civilian and citizen are the same word
Introduced in Chapter 325.

la ciudadanía
the citizenship; the citizens
Introduced in Chapter 600.

la clase
a class, a kind, a lesson — Latin classis, one of the six bands Rome sorted its citizens into by wealth; a writer of the top band was classicus, which is where classic comes from
Introduced in Chapter 358.

la cobertura
the signal, the coverage
Introduced in Chapter 773.

la coherencia
the consistency, the coherence
Introduced in Chapter 635.

la coincidencia
the coincidence
Introduced in Chapter 533.

la cola
the queue — named after a tail, and not to be confused with its own homonym
Introduced in Chapter 451.

la colaboración
the collaboration, the help
Introduced in Chapter 594.

la colección
the collection
Introduced in Chapter 751.

la colina
the hill — Latin collis, from a root meaning to rise; excel and culminate rise from the same place Introduced in Chapter 292.

la coma
the comma — and the list rule where Spanish and English disagree, because Spanish puts no comma in front of the final y Introduced in Chapter 424.

la comarca
the district, the area (of several villages)
Introduced in Chapter 683.

la comida
food, a meal — a noun you can build yourself out of a verb you already own Introduced in Chapter 77.

la comisaría
the police station
Introduced in Chapter 679.

la complicidad
closeness, understanding; complicity
Introduced in Chapter 744.

la conclusión
the conclusion
Introduced in Chapter 599.

la condición
the condition
Introduced in Chapter 611.

la confirmación
the confirmation
Introduced in Chapter 662.

la consecuencia
the consequence
Introduced in Chapter 582.

la contaminación
pollution
Introduced in Chapter 504.

la contraseña
the password
Introduced in Chapter 776.

la convicción
the conviction, the firm belief
Introduced in Chapter 576.

la convivencia
the living together, the coexistence
Introduced in Chapter 610.

la corrupción
the corruption
Introduced in Chapter 605.

la cosa
the thing — Latin causa, a cause or legal case, which drifted to mean thing; English cause, because, accuse and excuse keep the original sense Introduced in Chapter 331.

la cosecha
the harvest — from collecta, the gathered-up, which is the colligere you already took apart once Introduced in Chapter 299.

la costa
coast — Latin costa, a rib, so the coast is the country's side; English coast, intercostal, accost and cutlet are all the same rib Introduced in Chapter 370.

la costilla
the rib
Introduced in Chapter 737.

la costumbre
the custom, the habit
Introduced in Chapter 483.

la creencia
the belief
Introduced in Chapter 576.

la crítica
the criticism; the review
Introduced in Chapter 579.

la cuadra
the block (of a street) (Latin America); the stable Introduced in Chapter 675.

la cuchara
a spoon — Latin cochlear, from cochlea, a snail shell you dug the snail out with Introduced in Chapter 287.

la cuenta
the bill — Latin computare, to reckon together; English compute, count and account are the same word at three distances Introduced in Chapter 311.

la cuerda
the rope — Greek khorde by way of Latin chorda, a gut string; cord, chord and cordon are the same string, and the o breaks to ue again Introduced in Chapter 301.

la cueva
cave — from a Latin variant of cavus, hollow; cavity, excavate and cage are relatives, but English cove is a Germanic look-alike that is not Introduced in Chapter 370.

la culpa
fault, blame — Latin culpa; English culprit and culpable are the same word, and mea culpa was never translated at all Introduced in Chapter 320.

la cumbre
summit — Latin culmen, which meant the ridge of a roof before it meant a mountaintop; culmen is a squeezed-down columen, with columna a cousin rather than a twin
Introduced in Chapter 378.

la curiosidad
curiosity
Introduced in Chapter 729.

la década
the decade — Greek deka, ten, through Latin decas; English decade, decimal, December and dean all count in tens Introduced in Chapter 349.

la decepción
disappointment
Introduced in Chapter 716.

la decisión
the decision
Introduced in Chapter 617.

la declaración
the statement; the declaration
Introduced in Chapter 515.

la demanda
the demand; the lawsuit
Introduced in Chapter 631.

la democracia
the democracy
Introduced in Chapter 602.

la demora
the delay — Latin mora, a lingering, through demorari; English demur and moratorium are the same hanging back
Introduced in Chapter 348.

la denuncia
the report, the complaint
Introduced in Chapter 625.

la derecha
the right, the right-hand side — Latin directus, straightened, from dirigere to set straight; English direct, direction, erect and address share it
Introduced in Chapter 340.

la derrota
defeat
Introduced in Chapter 757.

la desigualdad
the inequality
Introduced in Chapter 603.

la despedida
the farewell — from despedir, Latin expetere, to ask out: a leave-taking was a request Introduced in Chapter 288.

la desventaja
the disadvantage
Introduced in Chapter 584.

la detención
the arrest
Introduced in Chapter 519.

la deuda
the debt
Introduced in Chapter 627.

la dicha
happiness, good fortune
Introduced in Chapter 704.

la dieta
the diet
Introduced in Chapter 742.

la dirección
address — Latin dīrēctiō, dīrēctiōnem, lifted from the written language rather than handed down, as derecho beside directo and razón beside ración show; on a form it is where you live
Introduced in Chapter 393.

la discriminación
the discrimination
Introduced in Chapter 605.

la disculpa
the apology — dis- undoing culpa, blame, from Latin culpa; English culpable, culprit, exculpate and mea culpa keep the blame in place
Introduced in Chapter 332.

la diversión
fun, entertainment
Introduced in Chapter 713.

la docena
the dozen — Latin duodecim, two-ten, from duo and decem; English dozen and duodecimal are the same twelve
Introduced in Chapter 344.

la documentación
the paperwork — a fourth ending, and the one that turns an action into a thing Introduced in Chapter 435.

la ducha
the shower — Latin ducere, to lead; the same root leads water through an aqueduct and gives English duct, conduct and duke Introduced in Chapter 310.

la duda
the doubt; the question
Introduced in Chapter 493.

la duración
the length, the duration
Introduced in Chapter 541.

la economía
the economy; economics
Introduced in Chapter 630.

la edad
age — Latin aetatem from aetas and aevum, a lifetime; the -dad ending you know from verdad and ciudad, and English age, eternal, medieval and longevity share the root
Introduced in Chapter 334.

la educación
education; manners
Introduced in Chapter 505.

la elegancia
elegance
Introduced in Chapter 730.

la embajada
the embassy
Introduced in Chapter 679.

la emoción
emotion; excitement
Introduced in Chapter 711.

la empresa
the company — literally a thing taken on, from the same root as English enterprise, which Spanish uses for the firm itself rather than only for the venture
Introduced in Chapter 427.

la encuesta
the survey — a cousin of querer, because asking and wanting are one Latin verb
Introduced in Chapter 472.

la enfermedad
illness, disease
Introduced in Chapter 732.

la enfermera
the nurse — from infirmus, not firm: named after the patient, not the work
Introduced in Chapter 285.

la ensalada
the salad — a salted thing, and the salt is still in the word
Introduced in Chapter 456.

la enseñanza
the teaching, the education
Introduced in Chapter 597.

la entrada
the entrance, and the admission ticket — Latin intrare from intra, within; English enter, entrance and interior are all inside it
Introduced in Chapter 313.

la entrevista
the interview
Introduced in Chapter 490.

la envidia
envy
Introduced in Chapter 708.

la época
the age, the era, the season — Greek epokhe, a stopping point, from epekhein to hold back; English epoch is the same word Introduced in Chapter 343.

la ermita
the country chapel, the hermitage
Introduced in Chapter 678.

la escala
the stopover; the scale; the ladder
Introduced in Chapter 653.

la escalera
stairs, ladder — Latin scālāria from scāla, a ladder; scale, ascend, descend and echelon are cousins, while escalate arrived by way of a 1900 trademark Introduced in Chapter 366.

la escarcha
the hoarfrost, the white frost
Introduced in Chapter 700.

la escoba
the broom — Latin scopa, a bundle of twigs, wearing the Spanish e- step for the third time Introduced in Chapter 294.

la escuela
school — Latin schola from Greek skholē, spare time; English school, scholar and scholastic keep the leisure that turned into study
Introduced in Chapter 346.

la escultura
the sculpture
Introduced in Chapter 763.

la espalda
the back — Latin spatula, a broad blade; the same blade is a spatula, a spade and an epaulette Introduced in Chapter 293.

la espera
the wait — the noun of esperar, and the sign above the chairs
Introduced in Chapter 460.

la esperanza
hope
Introduced in Chapter 509.

la esposa
the wife — the same spondere pledge, feminine; and the reason handcuffs are called esposas Introduced in Chapter 307.

la esquela
the death notice
Introduced in Chapter 557.

la esquina
the corner — from a Germanic word for a shinbone; English shin is the same bone, and a corner is an edge as sharp as one Introduced in Chapter 302.

la estación
station — Latin statio from stare, to stand; a station is a standing-place, and English station, stationary, statue and stable stand on the same verb
Introduced in Chapter 346.

la estancia
the stay; the room; the ranch (Southern Cone)
Introduced in Chapter 661.

la estantería
the shelving unit — a second ending that builds nouns, and the thing every flat-pack instruction is about
Introduced in Chapter 432.

la estatua
the statue
Introduced in Chapter 678.

la esterilla
the sleeping mat; the small mat
Introduced in Chapter 666.

la estrella
the star — Latin stella, wearing the e- that Spanish puts in front of an s and a consonant Introduced in Chapter 289.

la etapa
a stage, a leg of a journey — French etape, once a storehouse where an army drew supplies, from Middle Dutch stapel a heap; English staple is the same pile Introduced in Chapter 356.

la etiqueta
the label, the tag; etiquette
Introduced in Chapter 652.

la evaluación
the assessment; the exam period
Introduced in Chapter 597.

la excusa
the excuse
Introduced in Chapter 586.

la experiencia
experience — what an advert asks for, and a word that reads itself if you let it Introduced in Chapter 435.

la explicación
the explanation
Introduced in Chapter 505.

la explosión
the explosion
Introduced in Chapter 529.

la exportación
the export
Introduced in Chapter 630.

la exposición
exhibition — Latin ex- “out” plus ponere “to place”, a putting-out; the same ponere is inside compose, deposit and position
Introduced in Chapter 420.

la fábrica
the factory
Introduced in Chapter 504.

la fábula
the fable
Introduced in Chapter 563.

la factura
the invoice — “a making”, by the same ending that gives escritura and lectura
Introduced in Chapter 441.

la facultad
the faculty, the school of a university; ability Introduced in Chapter 596.

la falda
skirt — a Germanic word for a fold, so a skirt is the folded thing; English fold is the inherited cousin, and falso is a look-alike from a different family
Introduced in Chapter 373.

la familia
the family — Latin familia, the whole household including its servants; English family and familiar
Introduced in Chapter 309.

la farmacia
pharmacy, chemist’s — Greek pharmakon, a drug that could cure or kill; the Greek word never chose between the remedy and the poison, and English pharmacy keeps it whole Introduced in Chapter 353.

la farola
the street lamp, the lamp post
Introduced in Chapter 682.

la fase
the phase, the stage
Introduced in Chapter 541.

la fauna
the fauna, the wildlife
Introduced in Chapter 695.

la fecha
the date — Latin facta, done or made, from facere; English fact, feat, factory, affect and perfect all come off the same making Introduced in Chapter 343.

la feria
the fair
Introduced in Chapter 559.

la ferretería
the hardware shop
Introduced in Chapter 770.

la fianza
the deposit, the security; bail
Introduced in Chapter 663.

la fiebre
the fever — Latin febris, which English borrowed early as fever and late as febrile Introduced in Chapter 286.

la fiesta
the holiday, the party — Latin festa, the feast days; English feast, festival and festive are the same word, and English borrowed fiesta itself
Introduced in Chapter 349.

la finalidad
the purpose, the aim
Introduced in Chapter 483.

la finca
the country estate, the farm; the property
Introduced in Chapter 691.

la flecha
the arrow
Introduced in Chapter 672.

la flor
flower — Latin flos, and the reason English flour is spelled so oddly Introduced in Chapter 278.

la flora
the flora, the plant life
Introduced in Chapter 695.

la forma
shape — Latin forma, which came into Spanish twice; the borrowed half is la forma, and the inherited half is hermoso, beautiful, from formosus, well shaped Introduced in Chapter 358.

la formación
the training, the education
Introduced in Chapter 590.

la foto
photo — the everyday shortening of fotografía, still feminine Introduced in Chapter 405.

la fotocopia
the photocopy
Introduced in Chapter 657.

la fotografía
photograph or photography — literally light-writing through Greek roots Introduced in Chapter 405.

la frase
phrase, sentence — Greek phrasis, a way of speaking, through Latin; English phrase and paraphrase are the same word Introduced in Chapter 377.

la frente
the forehead
Introduced in Chapter 736.

la frontera
the border, the frontier
Introduced in Chapter 552.

la fruta
fruit — Latin fructus from frui, to enjoy, so a fruit is what a plant gives back; English fruit and frugal both arrived through French, and the old verb brook is the inherited cousin Introduced in Chapter 367.

la frutería
the greengrocer's, the fruit shop
Introduced in Chapter 770.

la fuente
the fountain; the source
Introduced in Chapter 501.

la fuerza
the strength — Latin fortia from fortis, with the o broken to ue; force, fort, effort and comfort are all built on it
Introduced in Chapter 315.

la furgoneta
the van
Introduced in Chapter 640.

la galería
the gallery; the covered balcony
Introduced in Chapter 678.

la gallina
the hen — Latin gallina, the female of gallus; and in both languages the bird is also what you call a coward
Introduced in Chapter 296.

la ganancia
the gain, the profit
Introduced in Chapter 629.

la garantía
the guarantee, the warranty
Introduced in Chapter 614.

la garganta
the throat — a word made out of the noise itself, as gargle and gurgle are Introduced in Chapter 286.

la gasolina
the petrol, the gas (for a car)
Introduced in Chapter 489.

la gaviota
the seagull
Introduced in Chapter 694.

la generación
the generation
Introduced in Chapter 545.

la gente
people — Latin gens, the clan; the root of English gentle, genteel, Gentile and general Introduced in Chapter 308.

la gotera
the leak (in a roof)
Introduced in Chapter 769.

la graduación
the graduation
Introduced in Chapter 554.

la granja
the farm — from granum, the grain: a farm is named after the one thing it was built to store
Introduced in Chapter 299.

la gratitud
gratitude
Introduced in Chapter 720.

la gripe
the flu
Introduced in Chapter 733.

la guardia
the duty rota — the chemist that is open tonight, and a Germanic word for watching Introduced in Chapter 457.

la guitarra
guitar — Ancient Greek kithára, a stringed instrument; the Greek source is certain and the road into Spanish is genuinely disputed, with three standard references giving three different answers
Introduced in Chapter 394.

la habilidad
the skill, the ability
Introduced in Chapter 598.

la harina
flour — Latin farina, from far, husked wheat; the f became h by the Castilian change behind hacer and hijo, which spared frente and fuego Introduced in Chapter 376.

la hazaña
the feat, the great deed
Introduced in Chapter 566.

la heladería
the ice-cream shop
Introduced in Chapter 680.

la herencia
the inheritance
Introduced in Chapter 557.

la herida
the wound, the injury
Introduced in Chapter 525.

la herramienta
the tool — a thing of iron, with the iron still in the word Introduced in Chapter 460.

la hierba
grass, the plant — with a silent h that Spanish added on purpose Introduced in Chapter 450.

la hija
the daughter — the same filius root, swung to -a; English filial covers both Introduced in Chapter 306.

la hipoteca
the mortgage
Introduced in Chapter 628.

la hipótesis
the hypothesis
Introduced in Chapter 618.

la historia
story, history — Greek historia, knowledge got by inquiry; English history and story are the same word, story having come through Anglo-French
Introduced in Chapter 377.

la honestidad
honesty
Introduced in Chapter 724.

la hora
hour / o'clock — telling the time, and a word Spanish inherited almost unchanged from Latin Introduced in Chapter 147.

la huelga
the strike
Introduced in Chapter 490.

la huella
the footprint — from hollar, to tread, and behind that fullare, to trample cloth; a fuller was the man who did it with his feet
Introduced in Chapter 302.

la humedad
the humidity, the damp
Introduced in Chapter 696.

la humildad
humility
Introduced in Chapter 726.

la iglesia
church — Latin ecclesia from Greek ekklesia, the people called out to assemble; English ecclesiastical is the same gathering Introduced in Chapter 346.

la igualdad
the equality
Introduced in Chapter 603.

la ilusión
excitement, hope; illusion
Introduced in Chapter 765.

la imaginación
imagination
Introduced in Chapter 765.

la impresora
the printer — the machine-ending you met on la lavadora, now on a stem that also yields a person, so the article is what tells the two apart
Introduced in Chapter 469.

la incertidumbre
the uncertainty
Introduced in Chapter 613.

la indicación
the instruction, the direction (how to get somewhere)
Introduced in Chapter 670.

la industria
the industry
Introduced in Chapter 592.

la infancia
childhood
Introduced in Chapter 483.

la inflación
the inflation
Introduced in Chapter 630.

la influencia
the influence
Introduced in Chapter 583.

la iniciativa
initiative
Introduced in Chapter 475.

la inmigración
the immigration
Introduced in Chapter 610.

la instalación
the facility, the installation — a noun that means both the act and the thing
Introduced in Chapter 453.

la integración
the integration
Introduced in Chapter 610.

la intención
the intention
Introduced in Chapter 615.

la inundación
the flood
Introduced in Chapter 528.

la inversión
the investment
Introduced in Chapter 629.

la investigación
the investigation; research
Introduced in Chapter 520.

la ira
anger, wrath
Introduced in Chapter 707.

la isla
the island — Latin insula; insular, isolate, peninsula and insulin all come off the same rock Introduced in Chapter 295.

la izquierda
the left, the left-hand side — Basque ezkerra, one of the few pre-Roman words in Spanish; it drove out Latin sinistra, which English kept as sinister Introduced in Chapter 340.

la jardinería
gardening
Introduced in Chapter 754.

la jornada
the day's stretch, a working day — Latin diurnus, of the day, through Occitan; English journey, journal and adjourn are the same day
Introduced in Chapter 349.

la justicia
the justice
Introduced in Chapter 603.

la justificación
the justification
Introduced in Chapter 586.

la juventud
youth; young people
Introduced in Chapter 545.

la ladera
the hillside, the slope
Introduced in Chapter 772.

la lagartija
the small lizard, the wall lizard
Introduced in Chapter 694.

la lágrima
the tear (from the eye)
Introduced in Chapter 717.

la laguna
the lagoon, the small lake
Introduced in Chapter 689.

la lámpara
lamp — Greek lampas, a torch, from lampein, to shine; lamp and lantern are cousins, and Spanish relámpago, lightning, comes free with it Introduced in Chapter 366.

la lancha
the launch, the motorboat
Introduced in Chapter 659.

la lástima
pity, shame
Introduced in Chapter 716.

la lata
the tin, the can; a nuisance
Introduced in Chapter 775.

la lavadora
the washing machine — the doer-ending from the last chapter, put on a verb you have had since the household words
Introduced in Chapter 432.

la lavandería
the launderette, the laundry
Introduced in Chapter 680.

la lealtad
loyalty
Introduced in Chapter 725.

la leche
milk — Latin lac, stem lact-; lactose and lactate are learned coinages and Italian latte is the same word, while lettuce is lactūca, named for the milky sap of a cut stem
Introduced in Chapter 361.

la lectura
the reading — the word la factura already printed in its own table, handed over now, and a thing you have been doing since chapter sixty-six Introduced in Chapter 472.

la letra
letter of the alphabet — Latin littera, which also gives English letter, literal and literature; where Latin got it is still unsettled Introduced in Chapter 377.

la ley
the law
Introduced in Chapter 500.

la leyenda
the legend; the caption
Introduced in Chapter 564.

la libertad
freedom, liberty
Introduced in Chapter 500.

la limpieza
cleaning — the fourth way Spanish turns a word into the name of a doing Introduced in Chapter 453.

la linterna
the torch, the flashlight
Introduced in Chapter 666.

la liquidación
the clearance sale; the settlement
Introduced in Chapter 631.

la litera
the berth, the bunk
Introduced in Chapter 651.

la llamada
the call — the word el pedido's table already showed you, handed over now with the part that table left out: the gender is not predictable Introduced in Chapter 469.

la llave
the key — Latin clavis, the little key; the same root gives English clavicle, clef and conclave Introduced in Chapter 310.

la llegada
the arrival — from llegar, Latin plicare, to fold: a ship folded its sails and had arrived
Introduced in Chapter 288.

la llovizna
the drizzle
Introduced in Chapter 697.

la lluvia
the rain — the noun to a verb you have had since the weather chapter, and a word you were once shown as somebody else's example Introduced in Chapter 465.

la luna
moon — Latin luna, worn down from an earlier louksna, the shiny one, from the same ancient root as la luz; light is the inherited English cousin, lucid and luminous the borrowed ones, and leukemia the one that came through Greek
Introduced in Chapter 362.

la luna de miel
the honeymoon
Introduced in Chapter 548.

la luz
the light — Latin lux, lucem; English keeps it in lucid, translucent and elucidate Introduced in Chapter 310.

la madera
wood — Latin's word for matter, which meant timber first, and reached Spanish twice Introduced in Chapter 444.

la madrastra
the stepmother
Introduced in Chapter 748.

la madrina
the godmother
Introduced in Chapter 546.

la madrugada
the small hours, daybreak — Latin maturus, ripe or early, through madurgar; English mature and premature are the same ripeness
Introduced in Chapter 342.

la madurez
maturity
Introduced in Chapter 731.

la magia
magic Introduced in Chapter 752.

la maleta
the suitcase — a little mala, the Gaulish word for a bag; English mail, the post, is named after the same bag
Introduced in Chapter 312.

la manera
the way, the manner — from Latin manuarius, of the hand, and manus a hand; English manner, manual, manufacture and manage are all handlings
Introduced in Chapter 331.

la manifestación
the demonstration, the protest march
Introduced in Chapter 570.

la mano
the hand — feminine despite ending in -o, Spanish's most famous gender exception Introduced in Chapter 141.

la manta
the blanket — Latin mantum, a cloak; the mantle, the mantelpiece and the manta ray are all cloaks Introduced in Chapter 294.

la manzana
apple — named after a Roman gardener whose variety outlived him
Introduced in Chapter 280.

la máquina
the machine — the general word under all the particular ones you already hold Introduced in Chapter 434.

la marca
a mark, a brand — Germanic marka, a boundary; the border lands were marches, their lords marquises, and Latin margo, an edge, is the cousin that gives margin
Introduced in Chapter 358.

la marea
the tide
Introduced in Chapter 688.

la marginación
the social exclusion, the marginalisation
Introduced in Chapter 605.

la mariposa
the butterfly
Introduced in Chapter 694.

la matrícula
the enrolment, the registration; the number plate
Introduced in Chapter 596.

la mayoría
most of them, the majority — Latin maior, greater, from magnus; English major, mayor and magnitude are all the same greatness
Introduced in Chapter 352.

la mayoría de edad
the age of majority, adulthood
Introduced in Chapter 554.

la medalla
the medal
Introduced in Chapter 757.

la medida
the measure, the step; the size
Introduced in Chapter 607.

la meditación
meditation
Introduced in Chapter 767.

la mejilla
the cheek
Introduced in Chapter 736.

la mejora
the improvement
Introduced in Chapter 483.

la melancolía
melancholy, gloom
Introduced in Chapter 704.

la mensualidad
the monthly payment
Introduced in Chapter 632.

la mentira
the lie
Introduced in Chapter 636.

la mesa
the table — Latin mensa, the measured board; English borrowed mesa whole for the flat-topped hill Introduced in Chapter 310.

la meta
the goal, the finish line
Introduced in Chapter 509.

la miel
the honey — Latin mel, which sweetens mellifluous, molasses and marmalade
Introduced in Chapter 290.

la minúscula inicial
the initial lower-case letter — whether a small word inside a surname takes a capital depends on whether the forename is standing in front of it
Introduced in Chapter 426.

la miseria
the poverty, the misery; a pittance
Introduced in Chapter 633.

la mitad
the half — Latin medietatem, the middle-ness, from medius middle; English medium, median, mediate and moiety come off it, and the -dad ending is the one you know
Introduced in Chapter 344.

la mochila
the backpack, the rucksack
Introduced in Chapter 652.

la molestia
trouble, bother — Latin molestia from moles, a heavy mass; English molecule is the same mass made small Introduced in Chapter 320.

la moneda
the coin — Latin moneta, a title of the goddess Juno in whose temple Rome struck its coins; English money and mint are both her Introduced in Chapter 313.

la montaña
the mountain — Latin mons; paramount is above the hill and an amount is what it comes to Introduced in Chapter 292.

la mosca
fly — Latin musca; English borrowed the Spanish diminutive whole as mosquito, and the same little fly became the sparrowhawk and then the musket Introduced in Chapter 368.

la moto
the motorbike
Introduced in Chapter 649.

la mudanza
the move, the removal — and the ending that turns a verb into the event Introduced in Chapter 448.

la muerte
death
Introduced in Chapter 555.

la mujer
woman, and also wife — Latin mulier, whose own origin is unexplained; English took almost nothing from it beyond the rare muliebrity, while Latin homo gave human, homage and homicide Introduced in Chapter 364.

la multa
the fine
Introduced in Chapter 477.

la multinacional
the multinational company
Introduced in Chapter 592.

la multitud
the crowd
Introduced in Chapter 559.

la muñeca
the wrist; the doll
Introduced in Chapter 737.

la muralla
the city wall, the ramparts
Introduced in Chapter 677.

la música
music
Introduced in Chapter 413.

la nacionalidad
nationality — built inside Spanish from nacional plus -idad; its base nación is the borrowing, Latin nātiō, nātiōnem, birth and then a people, which Corominas dates to the fifteenth century
Introduced in Chapter 393.

la naranja
orange — Arabic naranj from Persian narang, traceable back to Sanskrit; Spanish kept the n that English lost when a norange was reheard as an orange Introduced in Chapter 367.

la nariz
nose — Latin nāris, which meant nostril and usually came in the plural nārēs; English nose is the inherited cousin, nasal the borrowed one, and meter las narices keeps the Latin plural alive
Introduced in Chapter 364.

la natación
swimming as a discipline — the Latin twin of nadar, borrowed back whole Introduced in Chapter 438.

la naturaleza
nature
Introduced in Chapter 685.

la Navidad
Christmas — Latin nativitatem, a birth, from nasci to be born; Spanish nada and nadie are the same verb, a born thing and born people
Introduced in Chapter 357.

la negociación
the negotiation
Introduced in Chapter 634.

la nevada
the snowfall
Introduced in Chapter 700.

la nevera
the fridge
Introduced in Chapter 775.

la niebla
the mist — Latin nebula, the word set aside earlier as the near-cousin of nubes; nebulous is the same mist Introduced in Chapter 295.

la nieve
snow — Latin nivem, and the s- that Latin dropped and English kept Introduced in Chapter 278.

la niña
the girl — the counterpart of El Niño, and the reason the pupil of the eye is a little girl in both languages
Introduced in Chapter 308.

la niñez
childhood
Introduced in Chapter 545.

la noche
night / evening (la noche — feminine)
Introduced in Chapter 2.

la norma
the rule — the heading above every list a building, a library or a pool puts on its wall
Introduced in Chapter 433.

la normativa
the set of rules, the regulations
Introduced in Chapter 622.

la nostalgia
nostalgia, homesickness
Introduced in Chapter 709.

la nota
the mark — the same word the corpus already taught for a written note, and the older of its two senses is this one Introduced in Chapter 429.

la noticia
the piece of news
Introduced in Chapter 495.

la notificación
the notification, the alert
Introduced in Chapter 574.

la novedad
the novelty; the news, the change
Introduced in Chapter 566.

la novia
the girlfriend; the bride
Introduced in Chapter 547.

la nube
the cloud — Latin nubes, and the ancestor of nuance, which began as a shade of cloud Introduced in Chapter 289.

la nuera
the daughter-in-law
Introduced in Chapter 747.

la objeción
the objection
Introduced in Chapter 577.

la obligación
the obligation, the duty
Introduced in Chapter 622.

la obra
the works, the building site — and the same Latin word as la oficina
Introduced in Chapter 454.

la ocasión
an occasion, a chance — Latin occasio, a falling-down, from ob and cadere to fall; accident, cadence, case, chance and cascade are all that same falling Introduced in Chapter 356.

la oferta
the offer, the special offer
Introduced in Chapter 491.

la oficina
office — Latin officina, a workshop, squeezed out of opificina from opus work and facere to make; English office, officer and opus are the same making Introduced in Chapter 346.

la ola
the wave
Introduced in Chapter 688.

la olla
the pot — Latin olla, unchanged in two thousand years; potpourri is a French translation of olla podrida Introduced in Chapter 294.

la opción
the option, the choice
Introduced in Chapter 617.

la oportunidad
the opportunity, the chance
Introduced in Chapter 619.

la oreja
the ear (outer)
Introduced in Chapter 736.

la orilla
the shore — Latin ora, an edge or border, with the small ending: the little edge of anything Introduced in Chapter 295.

la oveja
the sheep — Latin ovicula, a little ovis; Spanish kept the small one and dropped the full-sized word entirely
Introduced in Chapter 296.

la paciencia
patience — Latin pati, to undergo; the same root gives English patient, passion and compassion Introduced in Chapter 321.

la paella
paella — the Valencian rice dish named from the pan
Introduced in Chapter 403.

la página web
web page — Latin pagina, a column of writing fastened to a frame, plus English web; the oldest word for a written surface carrying the newest one Introduced in Chapter 422.

la palabra
the word — Latin parabola from Greek parabole, a throwing beside; the same Greek word gave English parable, parabola, parley and parliament
Introduced in Chapter 332.

la pantalla
the screen — a lampshade before it was a monitor, and a history nobody can settle Introduced in Chapter 442.

la papelera
the litter bin, the wastepaper basket
Introduced in Chapter 682.

la papelería
the stationer's
Introduced in Chapter 680.

la parada
the stop — from parar, to stop, and Latin parare, to make ready; English prepare, repair, apparatus, parade and parasol are all the same root Introduced in Chapter 330.

la pared
the wall of a room — Latin paries, the wall of a house rather than of a town; the town wall was murus, which is Spanish muro and English mural, and paries survives in English only as the parietal bone Introduced in Chapter 355.

la pareja
the couple, the partner — Latin par, equal; English pair, par, peer, parity and umpire Introduced in Chapter 309.

la parte
the part, the share — Latin partem from pars; English part, party, partial, particle, partner and portion all come off it
Introduced in Chapter 345.

la partida
the departure; the game
Introduced in Chapter 561.

la Pascua
Easter — Latin pascha, from Greek paskha, from Hebrew pesach, the Passover; English kept a spring goddess's name for the feast but the Latin one for paschal Introduced in Chapter 357.

la pasión
passion
Introduced in Chapter 715.

la pastelería
the cake shop, the pastry shop
Introduced in Chapter 680.

la pastilla
pill or tablet
Introduced in Chapter 408.

la patata
potato — read as a crossing of Taíno batata, the sweet potato, with Quechua papa, this one; English potato is the Spanish word, and it named the sweet one first Introduced in Chapter 367.

la patrulla
the patrol; the patrol car
Introduced in Chapter 519.

la película
film or movie — Latin pellicula, a tiny skin or thin layer
Introduced in Chapter 404.

la peluquería
the hairdresser's
Introduced in Chapter 680.

la pena
sorrow, a shame — Latin poena, a penalty; English pain, penalty and subpoena all come off it Introduced in Chapter 320.

la penalización
the penalty, the charge (for cancelling)
Introduced in Chapter 662.

la pensión
the pension; the guesthouse
Introduced in Chapter 632.

la pérdida
the loss
Introduced in Chapter 629.

la pereza
laziness
Introduced in Chapter 729.

la persiana
the blind, the shutter
Introduced in Chapter 774.

la persona
the person — Latin persona, an actor's mask; English person, personality, persona and impersonate all still wear it
Introduced in Chapter 345.

la personalidad
personality
Introduced in Chapter 721.

la perspectiva
the prospect; the perspective
Introduced in Chapter 619.

la pesca
fishing
Introduced in Chapter 754.

la piedra
the stone — and a Greek word that came to Spanish by way of a nickname Introduced in Chapter 450.

la piel
the skin — Latin pellis, a hide, with the e broken to ie; a pelt is the same hide, and a surplice is a shirt worn over one Introduced in Chapter 300.

la pierna
the leg — Latin perna, a ham; Spanish named the living leg after the butcher's cut Introduced in Chapter 314.

la pieza
the part — what is missing when a thing does not work, and what a repair replaces Introduced in Chapter 434.

la piscina
swimming pool — Latin piscīna, from piscis, fish, plus -īna; a word taken from writing, standing beside the inherited pez from the same root Introduced in Chapter 390.

la pista
the clue, the lead; the track
Introduced in Chapter 521.

la planta
floor, storey — Latin planta, both the sole of the foot and a cutting set in the ground; its pl- shows it was taken from writing, since the mouth-worn twin is llanta Introduced in Chapter 390.

la playa
beach — Late Latin plagia, a flat stretch of shore; keep it apart from plaza by hearing y against z or s Introduced in Chapter 400.

la plaza
the square — Latin platea from Greek plateia, a broad way; English place, plate, plateau and platypus all mean broad
Introduced in Chapter 325.

la población
the population
Introduced in Chapter 507.

la polémica
the controversy
Introduced in Chapter 570.

la política
the politics; the policy
Introduced in Chapter 601.

la portada
the cover; the front page
Introduced in Chapter 762.

la portera
the concierge — the person who belongs to the portal, and a job with no close English equivalent Introduced in Chapter 433.

la postura
the stance, the position; posture
Introduced in Chapter 576.

la prensa
the press
Introduced in Chapter 513.

la preocupación
worry, concern
Introduced in Chapter 719.

la presión
the pressure
Introduced in Chapter 503.

la previsión
the outlook, the forecast; foresight
Introduced in Chapter 696.

la prima
the cousin, feminine — the primus root you can already see in prima donna and prima facie
Introduced in Chapter 307.

la primavera, el verano, el otoño, el invierno
the four seasons — three straightforward, and one whose MEANING quietly shifted from "spring" to "summer"
Introduced in Chapter 142.

la prioridad
the priority
Introduced in Chapter 617.

la prisa
the hurry, the rush — Latin pressa, from premere to press; English press, pressure, express, impress, oppress and print are all pressings
Introduced in Chapter 333.

la probabilidad
the probability, the likelihood
Introduced in Chapter 613.

la procesión
the procession
Introduced in Chapter 559.

la prohibición
the ban, the prohibition
Introduced in Chapter 622.

la propina
the tip
Introduced in Chapter 491.

la propuesta
the proposal
Introduced in Chapter 585.

la protección
the protection
Introduced in Chapter 614.

la protesta
the protest
Introduced in Chapter 570.

la prueba
the proof, the evidence; the test
Introduced in Chapter 521.

la puerta
door — Latin porta, a gate, and the o that opened into ue Introduced in Chapter 279.

la queja
the complaint
Introduced in Chapter 665.

la quemadura
the burn
Introduced in Chapter 734.

la quincena
the fortnight, two weeks
Introduced in Chapter 539.

la rabia
rage, fury; rabies
Introduced in Chapter 707.

la raíz
the root — Latin radix, which is also the radish, the radical and the thing you eradicate Introduced in Chapter 291.

la rama
the branch — Latin ramus; when an argument ramifies, it is growing these Introduced in Chapter 291.

la raya
the dash that marks a turn of speech — the mark this book has used in every printed dialogue without ever naming it Introduced in Chapter 424.

la razón
reason — Latin ratio, rationem, a reckoning; English ratio, ration and rational are the same word arriving whole Introduced in Chapter 321.

la rebaja
the price cut; the sales
Introduced in Chapter 631.

la recepción
reception, the reception desk
Introduced in Chapter 414.

la recuperación
recovery
Introduced in Chapter 739.

la redacción
the newsroom; the writing, the essay
Introduced in Chapter 513.

la región
the region
Introduced in Chapter 683.

la reina
the queen
Introduced in Chapter 568.

la relación
the relationship
Introduced in Chapter 745.

la responsabilidad
responsibility — being answerable, from the same promise that makes a spouse Introduced in Chapter 445.

la reunión
the meeting — making one again, out of the plainest number there is Introduced in Chapter 442.

la revista
the magazine
Introduced in Chapter 762.

la revolución
the revolution
Introduced in Chapter 568.

la riqueza
the wealth
Introduced in Chapter 633.

la risa
the laughter — Latin risus from ridere, to laugh; English took the root only in unkind forms — ridicule, deride, risible Introduced in Chapter 315.

la roca
the rock
Introduced in Chapter 686.

la rodilla
the knee — Latin rotella, a little wheel, from rota; rotate, rotary and roulette are the same wheel Introduced in Chapter 293.

la ropa
clothes — Germanic raupa, plunder, beside raupjan, to pluck or strip; rob, reave and bereave still take, and robe made the same slide from spoils to garment on its own
Introduced in Chapter 360.

la rotonda
the roundabout
Introduced in Chapter 647.

la rueda
the wheel — and the word you have been saying inside alrededor all along Introduced in Chapter 449.

la ruptura
the break-up
Introduced in Chapter 745.

la ruta
the route — a road broken through, and a cousin of roto
Introduced in Chapter 452.

la sábana
the sheet (on a bed)
Introduced in Chapter 664.

la sabiduría
wisdom
Introduced in Chapter 728.

la sal
salt — Latin sal, salis; salad, salsa, sauce, sausage and salary are the real family, while salud, saludo and salvo belong together to a whole-and-safe root, and salir to a leaping one Introduced in Chapter 361.

la sala
living room, hall — Proto-Germanic salaz, a one-room building, not Latin at all; English salon and saloon are the same word by way of French Introduced in Chapter 390.

la salida
the way out — from salir, and Latin salire, to jump: a Roman jumped out of a room Introduced in Chapter 288.

la salud
health — Latin salus, salutem, health and safety and a greeting all at once; English salute, salutary and salubrious keep it, and Spanish saludo is a wish for it
Introduced in Chapter 334.

la sanción
the penalty, the sanction
Introduced in Chapter 623.

la sangre
the blood — Latin sanguinem; sanguine once meant ruddy and cheerful because of it, and consanguinity is shared blood Introduced in Chapter 300.

la sartén
the frying pan — Latin sartago; its written accent is a receipt for where the stress went, and the plural hands it back
Introduced in Chapter 297.

la sección
the section — a thing cut, and the cut is still in the word Introduced in Chapter 459.

la sed
the thirst — Latin sitis; Spanish does not say you are thirsty, it says you have thirst, and the difference is the point Introduced in Chapter 300.

la sede
the head office, the headquarters
Introduced in Chapter 592.

la selva
jungle, forest — Latin silva, a wood; English sylvan and savage are the same word, and Pennsylvania means Penn's woods Introduced in Chapter 378.

la semana
week — Latin septimana, the set of seven; the same septem gives English September and, down the Germanic road, seven Introduced in Chapter 322.

la semilla
the seed — Latin seminalia, the things for sowing; a seminar is a seed-bed and disseminate is scattering Introduced in Chapter 291.

la señal
the sign, the signal
Introduced in Chapter 501.

la señalización
the signs, the signposting
Introduced in Chapter 672.

la senda
the path, the trail
Introduced in Chapter 687.

la sensación
the sensation, the feeling
Introduced in Chapter 712.

la sensibilidad
sensitivity
Introduced in Chapter 727.

la sentencia
the court ruling, the judgment; the sentence
Introduced in Chapter 626.

la sequía
the drought
Introduced in Chapter 701.

la serie
the series (TV)
Introduced in Chapter 761.

la sierra
the mountain range; the saw
Introduced in Chapter 685.

la siesta
the nap, the siesta
Introduced in Chapter 741.

la sílaba
the syllable — what may be split at the end of a line and what may never be, plus the words Spanish accepts two spellings for Introduced in Chapter 425.

la silla
chair — Latin sella, a seat, from the verb to sit
Introduced in Chapter 279.

la sinceridad
sincerity, frankness
Introduced in Chapter 724.

la solidaridad
the solidarity
Introduced in Chapter 606.

la solución
the solution
Introduced in Chapter 620.

la sombra
the shade — Latin sub umbra, under the shadow; an umbrella is a little one of these
Introduced in Chapter 289.

la sombrilla
the sunshade, the beach umbrella
Introduced in Chapter 690.

la sonrisa
a smile — subridere, to laugh slightly: a laugh with the volume turned down Introduced in Chapter 282.

la sopa
the soup — Germanic suppa, a piece of bread soaked in broth; the bread came first and soup, sop and supper are all it Introduced in Chapter 297.

la subida
the climb, the way up; the rise
Introduced in Chapter 686.

la sucursal
the branch
Introduced in Chapter 592.

la suegra
the mother-in-law
Introduced in Chapter 747.

la suerte
luck — Latin sors, sortem, a token drawn from a jar; English sort, sorcery and consort are all lots being drawn Introduced in Chapter 320.

la sugerencia
the suggestion
Introduced in Chapter 585.

la talla
size, especially clothing size — from tallar, to cut or shape
Introduced in Chapter 402.

la taquilla
the ticket office, the box office; the locker
Introduced in Chapter 651.

la tarde
afternoon (la tarde — feminine; also: late)
Introduced in Chapter 2.

la tarea
the task; homework
Introduced in Chapter 593.

la tarifa
the fare, the rate; the price list
Introduced in Chapter 641.

la tarjeta
a card — a little targe, from French targe, a small shield, from Frankish targa; English target is the same little shield, and it meant a shield for centuries before anyone shot at it Introduced in Chapter 357.

la tasa
the tax, the fee; the rate
Introduced in Chapter 663.

la taza
the cup — Arabic tassa, from Persian; French tasse and the English demitasse are the same vessel Introduced in Chapter 294.

la temperatura
the temperature — from a verb meaning to mix in the right proportion, which is also why steel is tempered and a person has a temper
Introduced in Chapter 465.

la tendencia
the trend, the tendency
Introduced in Chapter 608.

la tensión
tension; blood pressure
Introduced in Chapter 710.

la terapia therapy
Introduced in Chapter 743.

la terminal
the terminal
Introduced in Chapter 652.

la ternura
tenderness
Introduced in Chapter 714.

la terraza
terrace, café tables outside — Latin terra, earth, through a Vulgar Latin terrācea meaning earthen; English terrace is the same word, though how it entered Spanish is unsettled Introduced in Chapter 390.

la tertulia
the get-together (for conversation)
Introduced in Chapter 560.

la tía
the aunt — the same Greek root feminine; English aunt comes from a wholly different Latin word, amita Introduced in Chapter 307.

la tienda
the shop — Latin tendere, to stretch; a shop began as a stretched awning, which is why English tent, extend and tendon are relatives
Introduced in Chapter 311.

la tierra
earth, ground, land — Latin terra, the dry part of the world as against the water; terrain, terrace, subterranean, terrestrial, terra cotta and Mediterranean are the family, and terror is not Introduced in Chapter 362.

la tintorería
the dry cleaner's
Introduced in Chapter 770.

la toalla
a towel — a Frankish word that went into French and came out in two languages
Introduced in Chapter 287.

la tolerancia
the tolerance
Introduced in Chapter 610.

la tormenta
storm — Latin tormenta, from torquere, to twist; torment, torture, torque and contort are the same Latin verb, and a storm is weather that wrings the sky Introduced in Chapter 370.

la torre
the tower
Introduced in Chapter 678.

la tragedia
the tragedy
Introduced in Chapter 528.

la traición
betrayal, treason
Introduced in Chapter 745.

la trama
the plot
Introduced in Chapter 565.

la transferencia
the bank transfer; the transfer
Introduced in Chapter 628.

la tregua
the truce
Introduced in Chapter 567.

la tripulación
the crew
Introduced in Chapter 654.

la tubería
the pipework — the same collecting ending again, and the word behind every notice that the water is going off Introduced in Chapter 432.

la tumba
the grave, the tomb
Introduced in Chapter 556.

la turbulencia
the turbulence
Introduced in Chapter 655.

la tutoría
the tutorial, the office hours
Introduced in Chapter 596.

la ubicación
the location
Introduced in Chapter 669.

la uña
fingernail — Latin ungula, a diminutive of unguis, nail or claw; English ungulate, a hoofed animal, is the same word
Introduced in Chapter 375.

la universidad university — Latin ūniversitās, a corporation or guild of people, from ūniversus, turned into one; the first Spanish use, in 1490, means totality, and the school sense arrives in 1505
Introduced in Chapter 394.

la urgencia
urgency — a pressing, and in the plural the sign over the hospital door Introduced in Chapter 447.

la uva
grape — Latin uva, a grape or a bunch of them; English uvula is its diminutive, the little grape at the back of the throat
Introduced in Chapter 376.

la vaca
the cow — Latin vacca, unchanged in six letters; vaccine is named after her, because the first one came from a cow
Introduced in Chapter 296.

la vacante
the vacancy, the open post
Introduced in Chapter 590.

la vacuna
the vaccine
Introduced in Chapter 486.

la valentía
bravery
Introduced in Chapter 722.

la vanidad
vanity
Introduced in Chapter 726.

la variedad
the variety
Introduced in Chapter 482.

la vegetación
the vegetation, the plant life
Introduced in Chapter 693.

la vejez
old age
Introduced in Chapter 555.

la vela
candle — from velar, Latin vigilare, to keep watch; the identically spelled vela meaning sail is a different word entirely, from velum, cloth Introduced in Chapter 374.

la venda
the bandage
Introduced in Chapter 734.

la venta
the sale
Introduced in Chapter 631.

la ventaja
the advantage
Introduced in Chapter 584.

la ventana
window — a wind-hole, built on the same Latin ventus as viento
Introduced in Chapter 279.

la ventisca
the blizzard, the snowstorm
Introduced in Chapter 700.

la verdad
the truth — Latin veritas from verus, true; English keeps it in verity, verify and verdict, and in the older sense of very Introduced in Chapter 324.

la verdura
vegetables or greens — from verde, with a marked secondary sense outside this food use Introduced in Chapter 403.

la vergüenza
shame, embarrassment
Introduced in Chapter 705.

la versión
the version, the account
Introduced in Chapter 516.

la vez
a time, an occasion, a turn — Latin vicem, a turn or change; English vice-president, vicar and vicarious are all standing in someone's place
Introduced in Chapter 330.

la vía
the track, the way — the word you have been saying inside todavía
Introduced in Chapter 454.

la víctima
the victim
Introduced in Chapter 520.

la victoria
victory, win
Introduced in Chapter 757.

la vida
life — Latin vita; English vital, vitamin, revive, survive and viable are all built on it, and the vitamin was named by a chemist who thought it was an amine Introduced in Chapter 330.

la violencia
the violence
Introduced in Chapter 605.

la víspera
the eve, the day before — Latin vespera, evening; English vespers is the evening prayer, Greek hesperos is the evening star, and English west is a cousin of both Introduced in Chapter 357.

la vista
the view; sight, eyesight
Introduced in Chapter 664.

la viuda
the widow
Introduced in Chapter 550.

la voluntad
will, willpower
Introduced in Chapter 767.

la voz
the voice — Latin vox, vocem; English voice, vocal, vowel, vocation, advocate, evoke and provoke all come off it Introduced in Chapter 332.

la vuelta
the return — from volver, Latin volvere, to roll: a return is a turning back Introduced in Chapter 288.

lamentar
to regret, to be sorry about
Introduced in Chapter 716.

lanzar
to throw — late Latin lanceare, to wield a lance; English launch is the same verb, and the boat called a launch is not Introduced in Chapter 388.

largo
long — Latin largus, abundant and generous; English large is the very same word gone one way, largesse keeps the older sense, and Spanish took it the other way, to long Introduced in Chapter 365.

las abreviaturas
abbreviations — the shortened forms of address a letter and a form print, and the point that must not be left off
Introduced in Chapter 426.

las afueras
the outskirts
Introduced in Chapter 675.

las cinco vocales
the five vowel letters — a closed set that never grew, and the two marks one of them can carry Introduced in Chapter 425.

las comillas
quotation marks — Spanish has three shapes in a stated order of preference, and the one it prefers is the one an English reader has never used
Introduced in Chapter 424.

las elecciones
the elections
Introduced in Chapter 602.

las letras voladitas
the raised letters — the little o and a that sit above the line in an ordinal or an abbreviation, and which one to use for a woman
Introduced in Chapter 426.

las mayúsculas
capital letters — and the four things Spanish pointedly does not capitalise, every one of which English does
Introduced in Chapter 426.

las náuseas
nausea, sickness
Introduced in Chapter 740.

las siglas
initialisms and acronyms — written without points, and pluralised by doubling the letters rather than by adding an s
Introduced in Chapter 426.

las vacaciones
the holidays — Latin vacātiō, exemption, from vacāre, to be empty or free of duty; a learned borrowing, twin of English vacation and vacant, and no relation to vaca, the cow
Introduced in Chapter 392.

latir
to beat (of the heart)
Introduced in Chapter 735.

lavar
to wash — Latin lavare, which English kept in lavatory, launder and lavish Introduced in Chapter 381.

le
"to him, to her, to you" — a Latin case Spanish kept and English threw away
Introduced in Chapter 93.

leal
loyal
Introduced in Chapter 725.

leer
to read — from a Latin verb meaning "to gather, to pick out"
Introduced in Chapter 155.

lejano
distant, far-off
Introduced in Chapter 671.

lejos
far, far away — Latin laxius, more loosely, from laxus loose; English lax, relax, release and leash come off the same slack rope Introduced in Chapter 340.

lento
slow — Latin lentus, pliant then slow; taken off the page rather than inherited, and the inherited form came out as liento, damp. English relent is the same word Introduced in Chapter 371.

lesionarse
to get injured
Introduced in Chapter 755.

levantarse
to get up, to stand up — "to raise oneself", built from a participle exactly as sentarse was Introduced in Chapter 166.

liberar
to free, to release
Introduced in Chapter 523.

libre
free — Latin liber meaning unowned, which is a different Latin word from the liber that gave libro; English liberty, liberal and deliver come off this one Introduced in Chapter 326.

licenciarse
to get a degree, to graduate Introduced in Chapter 554.

ligar
to chat up, to pick up; to tie
Introduced in Chapter 746.

limitar
to limit
Introduced in Chapter 638.

limpiar
to clean
Introduced in Chapter 485.

limpio
clean — from limpidus, clear, the word English kept for water and Spanish moved to laundry Introduced in Chapter 281.

listo
clever with ser, ready with estar — one word whose meaning is decided by the verb in front of it; the RAE traces it to Gothic lists, cunning Introduced in Chapter 326.

llamo
I call (from llamar, to call)
Introduced in Chapter 4.

llegar
to arrive — Latin plicāre per Corominas, whose sense he routes through the nautical idiom applicāre nāvem, to bring a ship to shore; initial pl- gave Spanish ll- and Portuguese ch-, which is why Portuguese says chegar Introduced in Chapter 395.

llenar
to fill
Introduced in Chapter 496.

lleno
full — Latin plēnus; plenty, plenary, replenish and complete are the borrowed cousins, full is the inherited one, and comply belongs with filling rather than with folding Introduced in Chapter 365.

llorar
to cry, to weep
Introduced in Chapter 704.

llovía / llovió
the same rain in two tenses — how a story uses the imperfect for the scene and the preterite for the events
Introduced in Chapter 167.

lloviznar
to drizzle
Introduced in Chapter 697.

llueve
rain refuses the hacer pattern and brings its own verb — and its ll- is the sound change you already met in llamar Introduced in Chapter 148.

lo
"it" — a word you have been saying since your fourth chapter, in a job you have not met yet
Introduced in Chapter 83.

lo cual
which — pointing back at a whole clause
Introduced in Chapter 273.

lo siento
I'm sorry — literally "I feel it," a naming of the feeling rather than a claim about yourself Introduced in Chapter 137.

localizar
to locate, to find; to reach
Introduced in Chapter 531.

lógico
logical; natural, to be expected
Introduced in Chapter 577.

lograr
to manage, to achieve
Introduced in Chapter 492.

los celos
jealousy
Introduced in Chapter 708.

los dígrafos
the two-letter combinations that spell one sound — and two of them used to be letters in their own right until 1994
Introduced in Chapter 425.

los dos puntos
the colon — plural in Spanish because there are two of them, and the mark that opens a Spanish letter where English uses a comma
Introduced in Chapter 424.

los escombros
the rubble, the debris
Introduced in Chapter 529.

los grandes almacenes
the department store
Introduced in Chapter 681.

los meses
the months — Roman gods and emperors, marching almost unchanged from Latin Introduced in Chapter 145.

los nervios
nerves
Introduced in Chapter 710.

los paréntesis
parentheses — Greek for a putting-in-beside, which is exactly what the mark does to a sentence
Introduced in Chapter 424.

los símbolos
symbols — currency, the compass and the units, none of which take a point, because a symbol is not an abbreviation
Introduced in Chapter 426.

los vaqueros
jeans — literally cowboy trousers, and one of the few garments Spanish names after the person who wore them first Introduced in Chapter 430.

luchar
to fight, to struggle
Introduced in Chapter 569.

luego
then, next — a word you already own from hasta luego, now doing a second job: joining two events in order
Introduced in Chapter 167.

lunes, martes, miércoles, jueves, viernes
the weekdays (Monday–Friday) — worn-down planet-god names Introduced in Chapter 138.

madurar
to mature, to ripen
Introduced in Chapter 731.

maduro
mature; ripe
Introduced in Chapter 731.

mal
badly — the partner bien has been waiting for since the opening pages, in a long form and a short one Introduced in Chapter 228.

mantener
to keep, to maintain
Introduced in Chapter 511.

marcar
to score; to mark; to dial
Introduced in Chapter 756.

marcharse
to leave, to go away
Introduced in Chapter 561.

marearse
to feel sick (in a vehicle), to get dizzy
Introduced in Chapter 655.

mas
but — the literary one, without the accent
Introduced in Chapter 276.

más despacio
"more slowly" — the request that makes the last sentence solvable
Introduced in Chapter 15.

más que
more than
Introduced in Chapter 269.

más tarde
later
Introduced in Chapter 535.

más vale pájaro en mano
a bird in the hand — the proverb, and what a proverb is Introduced in Chapter 274.

masticar
to chew
Introduced in Chapter 742.

mayo
May
Introduced in Chapter 416.

mayor
bigger, older — Latin maior, the comparative of magnus, "great"; English took the same word twice, as major and as the mayor of a town, though Spanish calls that official something else entirely Introduced in Chapter 397.

me
me / myself
Introduced in Chapter 4.

me llamo
my name is (literally "I call myself")
Introduced in Chapter 4.

mediodía, medianoche
noon and midnight — both halves still fully alive as ordinary Spanish words, unlike French's worn-down midi/minuit Introduced in Chapter 146.

meditar
to meditate; to ponder
Introduced in Chapter 767.

mejorarse
to get better
Introduced in Chapter 739.

memorizar
to memorize, to learn by heart
Introduced in Chapter 764.

mencionar
to mention
Introduced in Chapter 502.

menor
smaller, younger — Latin minor, the partner of minus; Latin built minister out of minus to stand opposite magister, so mayor and menor give you master and minister as a matched pair Introduced in Chapter 397.

menos
less, fewer, except — Latin minus, the twin of magis; English minus, minor, minimum, minister and diminish are all the small end of it Introduced in Chapter 324.

mentir
to lie, to tell lies
Introduced in Chapter 636.

mentiroso
lying; the liar
Introduced in Chapter 724.

merecer
to deserve
Introduced in Chapter 636.

meter
to put in — the plainest verb of putting, and the mittere inside el permiso
Introduced in Chapter 455.

mezclar
to mix — spoken Latin misculare, from miscere; English meddle and medley are its true siblings, and a medley was once a fight Introduced in Chapter 385.

mi, tu, su
my, your informal, and your formal or his or her — before a singular noun Introduced in Chapter 49.

mientras
while — Latin dum interim, "for the time between"; the inter in it is English interim, interval and international
Introduced in Chapter 323.

mientras tanto
meanwhile, in the meantime
Introduced in Chapter 536.

mil gracias
a thousand thanks — mille, the same thousand that measures a mile Introduced in Chapter 283.

mimar
to spoil, to pamper
Introduced in Chapter 750.

mira
look — and the tone shifts
Introduced in Chapter 272.

mirar
to look at — the verb behind the mira you already use, and it began as wonder Introduced in Chapter 446.

mismo
same, very, self — Vulgar Latin metipsimus, a piled-up superlative of ipse self; English ipso facto and solipsism keep the ipse Introduced in Chapter 345.

modesto
modest
Introduced in Chapter 726.

modificar
to change, to modify
Introduced in Chapter 662.

mojado
wet — from mojar, Vulgar Latin molliare, to soften, from mollis, soft; English mollify and emollient come from the same mollis Introduced in Chapter 379.

mojarse
to get wet
Introduced in Chapter 702.

molestar
to bother, to disturb
Introduced in Chapter 500.

montar
to ride; to set up
Introduced in Chapter 498.

morir
to die — Latin mori; English mortal and mortgage are the same root, and murder is a cousin by another road
Introduced in Chapter 384.

mostrar
to show — the verb on the sign, with a monster somewhere in its family Introduced in Chapter 451.

motivar
to motivate
Introduced in Chapter 594.

mover
to move something — the verb your phone is named after Introduced in Chapter 446.

mucho
much / a lot
Introduced in Chapter 6.

mucho gusto
pleased to meet you (literally "much pleasure")
Introduced in Chapter 6.

mudarse
to move house — a verb about changing, with the change aimed back at yourself Introduced in Chapter 448.

muerto
dead; the dead person
Introduced in Chapter 555.

multar
to fine
Introduced in Chapter 623.

muy
very — not a new word at all, but mucho with its ending bitten off, and the shape tells you what is coming next Introduced in Chapter 226.

nacer
to be born
Introduced in Chapter 497.

nada
nothing — Latin res nata, "a thing born"; the res fell away and the born thing came to mean no thing at all Introduced in Chapter 316.

nadar
to swim
Introduced in Chapter 417.

nadie
nobody — Latin nati, “born ones”, from homines nati, “people born”; the exact twin of nada, which was a thing born Introduced in Chapter 317.

narrar
to narrate, to tell
Introduced in Chapter 563.

navegar
to sail; to browse (the internet)
Introduced in Chapter 658.

necesario
necessary — Latin necessarius, from necesse, unavoidable; English necessary is the same Latin word, borrowed rather than inherited Introduced in Chapter 380.

necesitar
to need — Medieval Latin necessitō, borrowed late and attested in Spanish by the seventeenth century; inside necesse the ne- is secure and the rest has resisted definitive analysis, whatever the confident dictionaries print Introduced in Chapter 395.

negativo
negative
Introduced in Chapter 584.

negociar
to negotiate
Introduced in Chapter 634.

negro, blanco
black and white — the two words, and the straight-line Latin history of the first one Introduced in Chapter 139.

nervioso
nervous — Latin nervosus from nervus, a sinew; English nerve, nervous and neuron are the same fibre, and -oso is the -ous you already know Introduced in Chapter 326.

nevar
to snow
Introduced in Chapter 700.

ni
nor, not even — the joining word for two things that are both absent, and the one place Spanish stacks negatives on purpose
Introduced in Chapter 234.

ni hablar
out of the question — “not even to speak of it”, two pieces you already own, and the flattest refusal on the dial Introduced in Chapter 298.

no
no / not
Introduced in Chapter 7.

no + verb
putting no in front of the verb — the whole of Spanish negation Introduced in Chapter 267.

no ... nada
the double negative — where Spanish stacks what English forbids Introduced in Chapter 267.

no entiendo
"I don't understand" — the most useful sentence a beginner owns
Introduced in Chapter 15.

no hay de qué
not at all — the reply to thanks, assembled entirely from words you already have Introduced in Chapter 283.

no sé
I do not know — saber is Latin sapere, to taste; knowing began as tasting Introduced in Chapter 303.

nos
"us" — the object pronoun that speaks for more than one person
Introduced in Chapter 88.

nublado
cloudy, overcast
Introduced in Chapter 698.

nublarse
to cloud over
Introduced in Chapter 698.

nuestro, nuestra
our — matching a known masculine or feminine singular noun
Introduced in Chapter 69.

nuevo
new — Latin novus, and English new, which is the cousin rather than the loan Introduced in Chapter 281.

nunca
never — Latin numquam, ne plus umquam, "not ever"; English never is ne plus ever, the identical compound built out of Germanic parts Introduced in Chapter 316.

o
or — one letter, and one rule about what happens when the next word starts with the same sound Introduced in Chapter 233.

o sea
I mean, that is Introduced in Chapter 588.

obligar
to force, to oblige
Introduced in Chapter 622.

obligatorio
compulsory
Introduced in Chapter 479.

observar
to observe, to watch
Introduced in Chapter 517.

obtener
to obtain, to get Introduced in Chapter 639.

obvio
obvious
Introduced in Chapter 587.

ocultar
to conceal, to hide
Introduced in Chapter 532.

ocupado
busy — Latin occupare, to seize; to be busy is to be seized Introduced in Chapter 304.

ocurrir
to happen
Introduced in Chapter 495.

odiar
to hate
Introduced in Chapter 510.

ofender
to offend
Introduced in Chapter 727.

oficial
official; the officer
Introduced in Chapter 624.

ofrecer
to offer — to carry something toward somebody, and the verb a shop reaches for when it cannot give you what you asked Introduced in Chapter 436.

oír
to hear — the half of listening you do not choose, and a verb that sprouts a y Introduced in Chapter 165.

oler
to smell
Introduced in Chapter 771.

olvidar
to forget — Latin oblitare, from oblivisci; English oblivion is the same word, and the trail stops there
Introduced in Chapter 384.

once — quince
11-15 — five single opaque words, each one a Latin compound worn down until the seam disappeared Introduced in Chapter 149.

operar
to operate (on)
Introduced in Chapter 739.

opinar
to think, to have an opinion
Introduced in Chapter 493.

oponerse
to oppose, to be against Introduced in Chapter 578.

optimista
optimistic; the optimist
Introduced in Chapter 731.

organizar
to organise — to fit the working parts together, from a Greek tool Introduced in Chapter 463.

orgulloso
proud
Introduced in Chapter 705.

orientarse
to find your way, to get your bearings
Introduced in Chapter 669.

os
"you all" as the object — the shortest word in the set, and the one that stops at a border
Introduced in Chapter 90.

oscuro
dark — Latin obscurus, ob- plus a word for dark; English obscure is the same word, and which ancient root the second half belongs to is still argued over Introduced in Chapter 372.

otra vez
again — literally another turn; vez is Latin vicem, a turn taken in rotation Introduced in Chapter 303.

otro
another, other — Latin alter, which meant the other of a pair rather than any other at all Introduced in Chapter 317.

paciente
patient
Introduced in Chapter 503.

padecer
to suffer from
Introduced in Chapter 738.

pagar
to pay — Latin pacare, to pacify, from pax, peace; paying somebody was settling with them Introduced in Chapter 382.

pálido
pale — Latin pallidus; English pale came through French and pallid straight from the Latin, so they are the same word twice, and fallow is the inherited cousin Introduced in Chapter 372.

para
"for" pointing forward — at a destination, a purpose, a deadline, a person meant to receive something Introduced in Chapter 176.

parar
to stop
Introduced in Chapter 641.

parecer
to seem
Introduced in Chapter 511.

parecido
similar, alike
Introduced in Chapter 482.

participar
to take part, to participate
Introduced in Chapter 606.

partidario
in favour; supporter
Introduced in Chapter 578.

pasar a mejor vida
to pass on — and why the language turns away
Introduced in Chapter 274.

pasear
to go for a walk, to stroll
Introduced in Chapter 674.

patinar
to skate; to skid
Introduced in Chapter 758.

peatonal
pedestrian (as an adjective)
Introduced in Chapter 682.

pedalear
to pedal
Introduced in Chapter 649.

pelar
to peel
Introduced in Chapter 768.

pelear
to fight, to argue
Introduced in Chapter 510.

peligroso
dangerous — a trial you might not survive, with its letters swapped Introduced in Chapter 461.

pensar
to think — at root "to weigh", and a stem-changer that breaks e→ie Introduced in Chapter 153.

pequeño
small — no Latin ancestor anybody can name; the dictionary of record calls it an expressive word shared across the Romance languages, and piccolo and petit are the same kind of word Introduced in Chapter 371.

percatarse
to notice, to realise Introduced in Chapter 517.

perder
to lose — Latin perdere, to destroy or lose, inherited whole; per- is clear but the second element is disputed, either dare, to give, or a separate element meaning to put, and English perdition is the clean cognate Introduced in Chapter 395.

perderse
to get lost — the reflexive equivocarse already grouped it with, and in a class it is the thread you lose, not the way
Introduced in Chapter 471.

perdón
the other sorry — "give completely" — for fault and for getting past people, where lo siento is for regret Introduced in Chapter 137.

perezoso
lazy
Introduced in Chapter 729.

perfeccionar
to perfect, to polish
Introduced in Chapter 609.

perjudicar
to harm, to damage
Introduced in Chapter 637.

permanecer
to remain, to stay
Introduced in Chapter 543.

permitir
to permit or allow — from Latin permittere, to let through Introduced in Chapter 405.

pero
but — the first word you need to hold two true things against each other, and the first word of any argument
Introduced in Chapter 218.

perro
dog — a genuinely unsolved etymology, and the Latin word it pushed out Introduced in Chapter 150.

perseguir
to chase, to pursue
Introduced in Chapter 519.

perseverar
to persevere, to keep at it Introduced in Chapter 609.

persuadir
to persuade
Introduced in Chapter 634.

pertenecer
to belong
Introduced in Chapter 600.

pescar
to fish; to catch
Introduced in Chapter 695.

pesimista
pessimistic; the pessimist
Introduced in Chapter 731.

picante
spicy, hot
Introduced in Chapter 771.

picar
to bite, to sting (insects); to be spicy; to nibble
Introduced in Chapter 695.

pinchar
to get a puncture; to prick; to click
Introduced in Chapter 645.

pintar
to paint — and a Latin verb that once meant to embroider Introduced in Chapter 455.

planchar
to iron
Introduced in Chapter 777.

planear
to plan
Introduced in Chapter 509.

planificar
to plan
Introduced in Chapter 615.

plantar
to plant — Latin plantare, from planta, which meant both a cutting and the sole of the foot Introduced in Chapter 444.

plantear
to raise, to bring up; to pose
Introduced in Chapter 620.

poco
little, few — Latin paucus; English paucity is the noun and few is the same root through Germanic, and you already carry it inside tampoco Introduced in Chapter 317.

poder
to be able or can — with the singular present forms puedo, puedes, and puede Introduced in Chapter 69.

polémico
controversial
Introduced in Chapter 604.

político
political; the politician
Introduced in Chapter 601.

poner
to put or place — with the singular present forms pongo, pones, and pone Introduced in Chapter 71.

ponerse a
to start (doing), to set about Introduced in Chapter 562.

por
"for" pointing back or through — at a cause, a route, an exchange; and you have been saying it since your first page
Introduced in Chapter 177.

por consiguiente
consequently, therefore
Introduced in Chapter 582.

por ejemplo
for example
Introduced in Chapter 270.

por favor
please (literally "for [a] favour")
Introduced in Chapter 14.

por lo tanto
therefore
Introduced in Chapter 273.

por supuesto
of course — supponere, to place under: it was already under the conversation
Introduced in Chapter 284.

por tanto
therefore, so
Introduced in Chapter 588.

por un lado... por otro
on one hand… on the other — holding two sources at once Introduced in Chapter 277.

porque
because — two tiny words fused into one, and the reason a sequence becomes a story
Introduced in Chapter 167.

posiblemente
possibly
Introduced in Chapter 618.

positivo
positive
Introduced in Chapter 584.

posponer
to postpone
Introduced in Chapter 616.

posteriormente
subsequently, later
Introduced in Chapter 538.

practicar
to practise
Introduced in Chapter 476.

predecir
to predict
Introduced in Chapter 619.

preferir
to prefer — Latin praeferre, to carry in front; ferre left Spanish no inherited verb at all, so every -ferir word came off the page Introduced in Chapter 396.

preguntar
to ask (a question) — and the reason English's one "ask" becomes two Spanish verbs Introduced in Chapter 160.

preocupado
worried
Introduced in Chapter 719.

preocuparse
to worry
Introduced in Chapter 487.

preparar
to prepare
Introduced in Chapter 409.

presenciar
to witness, to be present at Introduced in Chapter 517.

presentar
to introduce; to present
Introduced in Chapter 502.

prestar
to lend — the other half of devolver, and the verb that decides which way the object is moving Introduced in Chapter 436.

presumir
to show off, to boast
Introduced in Chapter 726.

prevenir
to prevent, to head off; to warn
Introduced in Chapter 614.

prever
to foresee, to expect
Introduced in Chapter 481.

previamente
beforehand, previously
Introduced in Chapter 538.

previo
previous, prior — the adjective that completes the phrase every advert uses Introduced in Chapter 435.

previsible
predictable, foreseeable
Introduced in Chapter 619.

primero · segundo · tercero
first, second, third — the counting words for order rather than amount, and the story inside the second one Introduced in Chapter 262.

probable likely, probable
Introduced in Chapter 613.

problema
problem
Introduced in Chapter 268.

producir
to produce — the second -ducir verb, and it conjugates exactly like the one you already have Introduced in Chapter 467.

producirse
to occur, to take place (of an event)
Introduced in Chapter 512.

profesional professional Introduced in Chapter 475.

profesor
teacher — and the one place Spanish drops the “a” that English insists on Introduced in Chapter 51.

programar
to schedule, to plan; to program
Introduced in Chapter 615.

prohibido
forbidden, prohibited
Introduced in Chapter 621.

prohibir
to forbid, to ban
Introduced in Chapter 500.

prolongarse
to go on, to drag on Introduced in Chapter 541.

prometer
to promise
Introduced in Chapter 480.

propio
one's own — Latin proprius, belonging to the individual; English proper, property and appropriate all began as words about owning Introduced in Chapter 350.

proponer
to propose, to suggest
Introduced in Chapter 585.

proponerse
to set out to, to resolve
Introduced in Chapter 615.

proteger
to protect
Introduced in Chapter 504.

protestar
to protest; to complain
Introduced in Chapter 604.

provocar
to bring about, to cause; to provoke Introduced in Chapter 581.

próximo
next, nearest — Latin proximus, nearest, the superlative of prope near; English proximity, approximate, approach and reproach come off it Introduced in Chapter 343.

publicar
to publish
Introduced in Chapter 513.

puede ser
could be — two words you already own, standing side by side and meaning less together than either does alone
Introduced in Chapter 298.

pues
well, then, since — Latin post, after; the same post is inside despues, and English keeps it raw in post-, posterior and postpone Introduced in Chapter 329.

puesto que
seeing as; since
Introduced in Chapter 580.

qué
what? (a new question word for verbs you already know)
Introduced in Chapter 36.

quedar
to stay — Latin quietare, to make still, from quies, rest; English quiet, quit and coy are the same root Introduced in Chapter 382.

quedarse
to stay, to remain
Introduced in Chapter 416.

quejarse
to complain
Introduced in Chapter 480.

quemar
to burn — the Academy says Latin cremare; Corominas says the sounds forbid it, and the argument is still open Introduced in Chapter 387.

quemarse
to burn oneself; to get sunburnt
Introduced in Chapter 734.

querer
to want — with the singular present forms quiero, quieres, and quiere Introduced in Chapter 69.

quién
who — the asking word Spanish keeps for people, and the reason qué has never had to do that job Introduced in Chapter 232.

quién
who? — one tiny people-question before the writing marks are explained Introduced in Chapter 5.

quitar
to take away, to remove Introduced in Chapter 496.

quizás
maybe, perhaps
Introduced in Chapter 271.

rápido
fast, quick
Introduced in Chapter 482.

razonable
reasonable
Introduced in Chapter 577.

realizar
to carry out, to do
Introduced in Chapter 511.

reanudar
to resume, to start again
Introduced in Chapter 543.

recargar
to top up; to recharge
Introduced in Chapter 773.

rechazar
to turn down — the opposite of aceptar, and its cousin Introduced in Chapter 461.

recibir
to receive, to get Introduced in Chapter 574.

reciclar
to recycle
Introduced in Chapter 504.

recientemente
recently
Introduced in Chapter 538.

reclamar
to claim, to demand; to complain
Introduced in Chapter 604.

recoger
to collect, to pick up — the single most demanded verb in the A2 papers, and one word for four English ones
Introduced in Chapter 436.

recomendar
to recommend — aconsejar's near twin, an e that breaks to ie like pensar's, and a root about entrusting
Introduced in Chapter 473.

reconciliarse
to make up, to be reconciled
Introduced in Chapter 725.

reconocer
to admit; to recognise
Introduced in Chapter 579.

recordar
to remember, to remind — to pass a thing back through the heart
Introduced in Chapter 464.

recorrer
to travel around, to go all over; to cover (a distance)
Introduced in Chapter 674.

rectificar
to correct, to put right
Introduced in Chapter 516.

recto straight — Latin rectus; in directions, continue straight, not resto, the rest or remainder Introduced in Chapter 401.

recuperar
to get back, to recover
Introduced in Chapter 481.

reducir
to cut back — to lead a thing back, and a shower is its cousin Introduced in Chapter 462.

reembolsar
to refund, to pay back
Introduced in Chapter 663.

regalar
to give (as a present)
Introduced in Chapter 506.

regar
to water (plants)
Introduced in Chapter 692.

regatear
to haggle, to bargain
Introduced in Chapter 676.

registrar
to search; to register, to record
Introduced in Chapter 656.

regresar
to come back, to return
Introduced in Chapter 501.

regular
so-so / not great (also “más o menos”)
Introduced in Chapter 9.

reiniciar
to restart, to reboot
Introduced in Chapter 777.

reír
to laugh — a word that wears a prefix it never had, and an accent that marks a missing consonant Introduced in Chapter 438.

reivindicar
to demand, to claim (a right)
Introduced in Chapter 604.

relajarse
to relax
Introduced in Chapter 487.

relampaguear
to flash with lightning
Introduced in Chapter 699.

relatar
to relate, to recount
Introduced in Chapter 563.

rellenar
to fill in; to fill out — especially a form or document
Introduced in Chapter 406.

remar
to row
Introduced in Chapter 659.

remolcar
to tow
Introduced in Chapter 648.

rendirse
to give up, to surrender
Introduced in Chapter 639.

renovar
to renew
Introduced in Chapter 657.

rentable
profitable, worthwhile
Introduced in Chapter 637.

renunciar
to resign, to give up
Introduced in Chapter 553.

reparar
to repair — Latin reparāre, re- plus parāre, to make ready; whether it came down by mouth or off the page cannot be settled, and the reason is the lesson Introduced in Chapter 396.

repentino
sudden
Introduced in Chapter 533.

repetir
to repeat — to seek again, from the same petere that sits under el pedido Introduced in Chapter 445.

repostar
to refuel, to fill up
Introduced in Chapter 646.

requerir
to require, to call for Introduced in Chapter 613.

resbalar
to slip
Introduced in Chapter 772.

rescatar
to rescue
Introduced in Chapter 526.

reservar
to reserve, to book
Introduced in Chapter 409.

residir
to reside, to live
Introduced in Chapter 684.

resolver
to solve, to sort out
Introduced in Chapter 481.

respetar
to respect
Introduced in Chapter 500.

respirar
to breathe
Introduced in Chapter 486.

resultar
to turn out, to prove to be Introduced in Chapter 573.

retirar
to withdraw, to take out; to remove Introduced in Chapter 628.

retrasar
to delay, to put back
Introduced in Chapter 543.

retroceder
to go back, to back up
Introduced in Chapter 673.

revelar
to reveal; to develop (a photo)
Introduced in Chapter 516.

revisar
to check over — looking at something a second time, on purpose Introduced in Chapter 451.

revivir
to relive; to revive Introduced in Chapter 764.

rico
rich; tasty
Introduced in Chapter 633.

robar
to steal, to rob
Introduced in Chapter 518.

rodear
to go round; to surround
Introduced in Chapter 673.

rojo
red — a cousin of French rouge and English red, but by a different branch of the same very old family Introduced in Chapter 139.

romper
to break — Latin rumpere, and the reason a road is called a route Introduced in Chapter 381.

rosa
pink, and the rose — Latin rosa, itself a loanword from the east; rosemary is not rose and Mary but ros marinus, sea dew
Introduced in Chapter 372.

rotativo
rotating, on a rota — the third word in the track built on a wheel Introduced in Chapter 453.

roto
broken, in pieces — an irregular participle that dropped two letters and kept them
Introduced in Chapter 448.

rural
rural, country (as an adjective)
Introduced in Chapter 684.

sábado, domingo
the weekend (Saturday, Sunday) — where religion overwrote astronomy Introduced in Chapter 138.

saber
to know how — before an infinitive it names a skill you learned, where poder names a chance you happen to have Introduced in Chapter 389.

sabio
wise; the wise person
Introduced in Chapter 728.

sacar
to take out — origin unsettled; not from saco meaning bag, though a Latin saccus meaning filter may be behind both Introduced in Chapter 383.

salado
salty; savoury
Introduced in Chapter 771.

salir
to leave or go out — with the singular present forms salgo, sales, and sale Introduced in Chapter 72.

saltar
to jump — Latin saltare, and the somersault is a jump over the top Introduced in Chapter 381.

saludable
healthy
Introduced in Chapter 732.

saludar
to greet, to say hello
Introduced in Chapter 488.

salvar
to save (a life)
Introduced in Chapter 526.

salvo
except, safe — Latin salvus, unharmed; English salvage, salvation, salvo, salve and safe itself all come off it Introduced in Chapter 329.

sancionar
to penalise, to sanction
Introduced in Chapter 623.

sangrar
to bleed
Introduced in Chapter 734.

sano
healthy — Latin sanus, sound in body and mind; English sane, sanity, insane, sanitary and sanatorium are the same word Introduced in Chapter 327.

se llama
he/she calls himself; you (formal) call yourself
Introduced in Chapter 6.

secar
to dry
Introduced in Chapter 485.

seco
dry — Latin siccus; English desiccate is the same word, and so is the sec on a French wine label Introduced in Chapter 379.

seguir
to follow or continue — from Vulgar Latin sequīre, built from Latin sequī with the ending of īre, to go Introduced in Chapter 401.

según
according to — marking whose claim it is Introduced in Chapter 277.

seguramente
most likely, probably
Introduced in Chapter 618.

seguro
sure — se- without plus cura, care: free from care, and so reliable
Introduced in Chapter 284.

seis, siete, ocho, nueve, diez
the numbers 6–10 and the old counting hidden in month names
Introduced in Chapter 47.

seleccionar
to select, to choose Introduced in Chapter 590.

sellar
to stamp; to seal
Introduced in Chapter 656.

semanal
weekly
Introduced in Chapter 540.

sembrar
to sow
Introduced in Chapter 692.

señalar
to point to, to point out; to mark
Introduced in Chapter 669.

sencillo
simple, plain — few parts rather than little effort, which is what separates it from fácil Introduced in Chapter 471.

señor
sir, Mr — Latin senior, older; respect built out of age
Introduced in Chapter 305.

señora
madam, Mrs — the feminine of senor, on the same Latin senior Introduced in Chapter 305.

sensible sensitive
Introduced in Chapter 727.

sentarse
to sit down — literally "to seat oneself", the reflexive that lands the action back on you Introduced in Chapter 166.

separarse
to separate, to split up
Introduced in Chapter 550.

ser
to be — the verb used here to identify someone or say what someone is Introduced in Chapter 48.

ser un quijote
to be a Quixote — an allusion working as a word
Introduced in Chapter 274.

ser vs estar
identify with ser; describe a current state or location with estar Introduced in Chapter 48.

serio
serious, earnest — Latin serius, grave and earnest, a word of uncertain origin; Spanish keeps it for manner, and uses grave for a bad accident
Introduced in Chapter 423.

servir
to serve — Latin servire, from servus, a slave; dessert is the clearing of the table, and sergeant is servant said a second time Introduced in Chapter 386.

sí
yes
Introduced in Chapter 7.

sí que
the emphatic yes — contradicting something unsaid
Introduced in Chapter 275.

sí, claro
yeah, right
Introduced in Chapter 272.

siempre
always — Latin semper, kept almost whole; sempiternal is semper plus aeternus, everlasting said twice
Introduced in Chapter 316.

siempre que
as long as; whenever Introduced in Chapter 611.

simpático
likeable, nice — Spanish's own adjective from simpatía, Latin sympathia from Greek sympatheia; it does not mean sympathetic Introduced in Chapter 380.

sin duda
no doubt — duda is dubitare, and behind that duo, two: to doubt is to be caught between a pair of answers
Introduced in Chapter 298.

sin embargo
however, nevertheless
Introduced in Chapter 270.

sincero
sincere, honest
Introduced in Chapter 724.

sino
but rather — si plus no, if not; the negative that corrects a negative, and both halves are words you already have Introduced in Chapter 329.

siquiera
even, at least — two words you already have, si and quiera, welded into one; ni siquiera is not even Introduced in Chapter 324.

situado
located, situated
Introduced in Chapter 669.

sobre todo
above all, especially Introduced in Chapter 588.

sobrevivir
to survive
Introduced in Chapter 526.

sociable
sociable, outgoing — Latin socius, a companion or ally, plus -able; the same socius is inside society, associate and the word soccer Introduced in Chapter 423.

socorrer
to help, to come to the aid of Introduced in Chapter 525.

soleado
sunny
Introduced in Chapter 698.

soler
to usually do
Introduced in Chapter 511.

solicitar
to apply for, to request — the formal verb on the form
Introduced in Chapter 460.

solitario
lonely, solitary
Introduced in Chapter 709.

solo
alone, and also only — Latin solus; the accent that once separated the two meanings was abolished in 2010, so five letters now do both jobs
Introduced in Chapter 326.

soltero
single, unmarried
Introduced in Chapter 549.

solucionar
to solve, to sort out
Introduced in Chapter 620.

soñar
to dream — Latin somniare, and the reason sleeplessness is called insomnia Introduced in Chapter 381.

soplar
to blow
Introduced in Chapter 772.

soportar
to bear, to put up with
Introduced in Chapter 719.

sorprender
to surprise
Introduced in Chapter 510.

sospechar
to suspect
Introduced in Chapter 521.

sostener
to maintain, to claim; to hold up
Introduced in Chapter 576.

soy de...
I am from… — use ser with de to state origin
Introduced in Chapter 48.

suave
smooth, soft — Latin suavis; English sweet is the inherited cousin of the same root, and to persuade is to make a thing sweet to somebody Introduced in Chapter 372.

subir
to go up — Latin subire, which was built on sub, meaning under; English sudden is the same sub-
Introduced in Chapter 384.

súbitamente
all of a sudden, suddenly Introduced in Chapter 534.

suceder
to happen, to take place
Introduced in Chapter 495.

sucio
dirty — from sucidus, greasy with its own juice, said first of unwashed wool Introduced in Chapter 281.

sudar
to sweat
Introduced in Chapter 701.

suficiente
enough — the formal partner of bastante, naming a requirement where bastante names a place on a scale
Introduced in Chapter 467.

sufrir
to suffer; to undergo Introduced in Chapter 573.

sugerir
to suggest
Introduced in Chapter 493.

superar
to overcome, to get over; to beat
Introduced in Chapter 572.

supongo que
I suppose that Introduced in Chapter 271.

surgir
to arise, to come up — Latin surgere, to rise, and the verb a question reaches for when it asks where an idea came from Introduced in Chapter 472.

suspender
to fail an exam — Latin for to leave hanging, which is exactly what a resit does to your year Introduced in Chapter 429.

sustituir
to replace, to stand in for Introduced in Chapter 479.

tacaño
stingy, mean
Introduced in Chapter 723.

tal
such, such a — Latin talis, of that kind; English keeps it in retaliate, to give back the like, and in the lawyers' lex talionis Introduced in Chapter 329.

tal vez
maybe — literally "such a turn", from vicem, a turn or a change; vice versa is the turn turned round Introduced in Chapter 298.

también
also — and you have been holding half of it since the first chapter of this book Introduced in Chapter 219.

tampoco
neither — the same tan, a different second half, and the word that lets you agree with a no
Introduced in Chapter 220.

tan pronto como
the moment that, as soon as Introduced in Chapter 536.

tararear
to hum
Introduced in Chapter 753.

tardar
to take time — the verb the delay chapter promised and did not give you Introduced in Chapter 437.

tarde o temprano
sooner or later
Introduced in Chapter 535.

te quiero
"you" as the object — and the sentence it makes, which is the one people actually need Introduced in Chapter 85.

tejer
to knit, to weave
Introduced in Chapter 754.

temer
to fear
Introduced in Chapter 706.

templado
mild, temperate; lukewarm
Introduced in Chapter 701.

temprano
early — Latin temporanus, in good time, built on tempus; English temporary, tempo and contemporary share the root, and so does el tiempo Introduced in Chapter 322.

tender
to hang out the washing — to stretch something, and the verb inside la tienda
Introduced in Chapter 455.

tener
to have — a common verb with two visible changes
Introduced in Chapter 47.

tener gracia
to be funny — and a word that does not translate
Introduced in Chapter 274.

tener lugar
to take place
Introduced in Chapter 512.

tengo · hago · digo
comparing the three learned yo forms that end in -go Introduced in Chapter 70.

terco
stubborn
Introduced in Chapter 729.

terminar
to finish, to end
Introduced in Chapter 409.

testificar
to testify
Introduced in Chapter 523.

tibio
lukewarm — Latin tepidus, the same word English borrowed later as tepid, one worn down by speech and the other kept in a book Introduced in Chapter 379.

tierno
tender, soft; sweet
Introduced in Chapter 714.

tímido
shy, timid — Latin timidus from timere “to fear”; the same verb is inside intimidate, which is the act of putting that fear into someone Introduced in Chapter 423.

tirar
to throw away, and on a door, to pull — one verb pointing two opposite ways Introduced in Chapter 439.

tocar
to touch — Romance toccare, which meant to knock or strike; English touch is the same word, and a toccata shows off the player's touch Introduced in Chapter 385.

todavía
still, yet — literally toda vía, "all the road"; the via in it is English via, viaduct, deviate and obvious Introduced in Chapter 322.

todo
all, everything — Latin totus; English total is the same word, and Portuguese tudo is its sibling down a parallel road
Introduced in Chapter 316.

tolerar
to tolerate, to put up with Introduced in Chapter 610.

tomar
to take (and, across Latin America, to drink) — an everyday word with no settled origin
Introduced in Chapter 159.

tomar el pelo
to pull someone's leg (lit. to take the hair)
Introduced in Chapter 272.

torcerse
to twist something of your own — the injury verb, and a stem that breaks under stress Introduced in Chapter 438.

torpe
clumsy — a word that meant shameful, and moved from how you look to what you can do Introduced in Chapter 447.

toser
to cough
Introduced in Chapter 486.

trabajador
hard-working — trabajar plus the agent ending -dor, the Spanish descendant of the Latin -tor that made actor; the same ending makes both a noun and an adjective Introduced in Chapter 423.

trabajar
to work (a second -ar verb — same pattern)
Introduced in Chapter 20.

traducir
to translate
Introduced in Chapter 502.

traer
to bring — Latin's word for dragging, and a verb with a direction built into it Introduced in Chapter 168.

traicionar
to betray
Introduced in Chapter 745.

tramitar
to process, to deal with (paperwork)
Introduced in Chapter 624.

tranquilo
calm — Latin tranquillus, the word for a sea with no wind on it Introduced in Chapter 304.

transcurrir
to go by, to pass (of time); to take place
Introduced in Chapter 541.

transformar
to transform
Introduced in Chapter 572.

trasladar
to move something across — built from a prefix and a participle that belongs to a different verb Introduced in Chapter 439.

tratar
to treat; to be about
Introduced in Chapter 511.

trepar
to clamber, to climb (using your hands)
Introduced in Chapter 687.

trescientos
three hundred
Introduced in Chapter 477.

triste
sad — Latin tristis, which also meant harsh and grim before it softened Introduced in Chapter 304.

triunfar
to succeed, to triumph
Introduced in Chapter 595.

tronar
to thunder
Introduced in Chapter 699.

trotar
to jog, to trot
Introduced in Chapter 755.

tú / usted
two of the three words Spanish uses to one person — and the one English quietly retired Introduced in Chapter 5.

tú o usted
the choice English lost — and the surprise that usted takes he/she verb forms Introduced in Chapter 5.

tumbarse
to lie down
Introduced in Chapter 690.

turístico
tourist (as an adjective); touristy
Introduced in Chapter 676.

últimamente
lately
Introduced in Chapter 538.

último
last — Latin ultimus, a superlative to a stem meaning beyond; English ultimate, ultimatum and ultra are all in that family
Introduced in Chapter 380.

uno, dos, tres, cuatro, cinco
the numbers 1–5
Introduced in Chapter 47.

urbano
urban, city (as an adjective)
Introduced in Chapter 684.

usar
to use — a reconstructed spoken-Latin usare built on uti; English use is the same word, and usury, utensil and abuse are built on it Introduced in Chapter 385.

utilizar
to use
Introduced in Chapter 484.

valer
to be worth; to cost
Introduced in Chapter 631.

validar
to validate (a ticket)
Introduced in Chapter 650.

válido
valid
Introduced in Chapter 657.

valiente
brave — the old present participle of valer, from Latin valere, to be strong or be worth; English valiant, valour, value and valid are the same root Introduced in Chapter 326.

valorar
to value, to appreciate
Introduced in Chapter 721.

varios
several — Latin varius, speckled, of mixed colours; English various, variety and variegated all start from a spotted hide Introduced in Chapter 351.

veinte
twenty — the ceiling of the teens, and a word that was worn but never fused Introduced in Chapter 149.

vencer
to beat, to win; to expire
Introduced in Chapter 569.

vender
to sell — Latin vendere, squeezed out of venum dare, to give for sale; there is a give hidden inside the word for selling Introduced in Chapter 386.

venir
to come — with the singular present forms vengo, vienes, and viene Introduced in Chapter 73.

ver
to see — veo, ves, ve
Introduced in Chapter 108.

veranear
to spend the summer (on holiday)
Introduced in Chapter 640.

verde
green — from a verb meaning “to flourish,” and a cousin of verdant but not of English green Introduced in Chapter 151.

viejo
old — from vetulus, “little old one”, the affectionate form rather than the plain one Introduced in Chapter 281.

vigente
in force, current
Introduced in Chapter 625.

vigilar
to watch, to keep an eye on Introduced in Chapter 481.

visible
visible — the -able ending you know, spelled the other way, and pointing the other way too Introduced in Chapter 466.

visitar
to visit
Introduced in Chapter 678.

viví
the regular singular -ir preterite — viví, viviste, vivió
Introduced in Chapter 104.

vivir
to live — your first -ir verb, and a family that asks you to learn nothing new Introduced in Chapter 35.

volar
to fly — Latin volare; a volley is a flight of arrows, and volatile is Latin for winged Introduced in Chapter 387.

volver
to return — Latin volvere, to roll, on an old root meaning to turn; the stressed o breaks into ue in vuelvo, Old Spanish wrote bolver, and English revolve, involve and volume are the borrowed cousins Introduced in Chapter 395.

volver a
to do again
Introduced in Chapter 562.

vomitar
to vomit, to be sick
Introduced in Chapter 740.

vos
"you" across a large part of the Spanish-speaking world — to recognise, not to say
Introduced in Chapter 5.

votar
to vote
Introduced in Chapter 507.

voy a + infinitive
I am going to… — the near future with ir, a, and a known infinitive
Introduced in Chapter 49.

y / ¿y tú?
and / and you? — a tiny connector that hands the conversation back Introduced in Chapter 9.

ya
already, now — Latin iam; English borrowed it without knowing, in the déjà of déjà vu Introduced in Chapter 323.

ya que
since, as
Introduced in Chapter 580.

zarpar
to set sail, to leave port
Introduced in Chapter 561.

¡Felicidades!
congratulations — a plural noun used as an exclamation, and the one Spanish reaches for on a birthday where English would not
Introduced in Chapter 428.

¡Salud!
cheers, and bless you — the noun you already have, used as an act rather than as a description, and it does two jobs
Introduced in Chapter 428.

¿cómo está usted?
how are you? — assemble the formal question from cómo, estar, and usted
Introduced in Chapter 8.

¿cómo se dice?
the single most useful sentence a learner owns — and it is this chapter's grammar, doing exactly what the chapter said
Introduced in Chapter 183.

¿cómo se llama usted?
what's your name? (formal)
Introduced in Chapter 6.

¿Cuántos años tienes?
how old are you? — literally, how many years do you have?
Introduced in Chapter 47.

¿dónde está?
where is it?
Introduced in Chapter 268.

¿Hablas español?
the yes-or-no question — and why Spanish barely has to do anything Introduced in Chapter 267.

¿qué significa?
what does it mean — significar is Latin significare, to make a sign Introduced in Chapter 303.

¿verdad?
the tag question — asking someone to agree
Introduced in Chapter 267.

Review Questions

Try these without looking ahead. Every prompt comes from the same canonical lesson data as its chapter. Answers begin in the next section.

Chapter 1

1.1 hola — let your eye and your hand meet the word
How many letters are written in hola, and which one makes no sound?

1.2 hola — one supported copy
Copy the visible word hola once, then report how many letters you wrote.

1.3 hola — look, hide, write, compare
After hiding the model for five seconds, write the greeting and then compare it.

1.4 One heard greeting — write what you know
From the heard cue OH-la alone, write the known greeting.

1.5 Grammatical gender — the two noun classes behind el and la
How many grammatical noun classes does Spanish keep?

Chapter 2

2.1 buenos or buenas — the rule you have been using all along
Why does bueno become buenos in buenos dias?

2.2 buenos or buenas — the rule you have been using all along
And why buenas in buenas tardes?

Chapter 3

3.1 un — "a," and the number hiding in it
Say a day in Spanish.

3.2 un — "a," and the number hiding in it
Which one points at a day we both already know about: el dia or un dia?

3.3 un — "a," and the number hiding in it
What number is hiding inside un, and inside English a?

3.4 una — the feminine one
Say an afternoon.

3.5 una — the feminine one
Un or una before dia?

3.6 una — the feminine one
Which of the two lost a syllable on the way from Latin?

3.7 Review — the four little words
The day.

3.8 Review — the four little words
An afternoon.

3.9 Review — the four little words
Where does an article get its gender from?

Chapter 11

11.1 Where does ¿ begin? — bracket the spoken span
In 'Roberto, ¿cómo estás?', is Roberto inside the question?

Chapter 16

16.1 hablo — "I speak"
Turn hablar into I speak.

16.2 hablo — "I speak"
Which single letter is doing the work of the word I?

16.3 hablo — one word, one whole sentence
How many words does Spanish need to say I speak?

16.4 hablo — one word, one whole sentence
Why must English say the word I, when Spanish need not?

Chapter 17

17.1 hablas — "you speak," to someone you know
Turn hablar into you speak, to a friend.

17.2 hablas — "you speak," to someone you know
Which one means I speak: hablo or hablas?

Chapter 18

18.1 habla — "he speaks," and the polite "you speak"
Turn hablar into he speaks.

18.2 habla — "he speaks," and the polite "you speak"
Which form goes with usted: hablas or habla?

Chapter 19

19.1 Review — the three forms, side by side
I speak.

19.2 Review — the three forms, side by side
She speaks.

19.3 Review — the three forms, side by side
You speak, to a friend.

Chapter 23

23.1 -ción — about two thousand words, at once
Turn the English word information into Spanish.

23.2 -ción — about two thousand words, at once
What gender is every -cion word?

23.3 -ción — about two thousand words, at once
Why is this a rule rather than a coincidence?

Chapter 24

24.1 -dad — twelve hundred more
Turn the English word university into Spanish.
24.2 -dad — twelve hundred more
You see the word realidad and have never met it. What does it mean?
24.3 -dad — twelve hundred more
Why does -dad look less like -ty than -cion looks like -tion?

Chapter 25

25.1 -mente — with no upper limit
Make an adverb from rapido.
25.2 -mente — with no upper limit
Why does the adjective go feminine before -mente?
25.3 -mente — with no upper limit
What does rapidamente literally say?

Chapter 26

26.1 Review — three endings
Give the three Spanish endings and their English partners.
26.2 Review — three endings
Which of the three endings tell you the gender for free?
26.3 Review — three endings
Which ending is a machine rather than a decoder, and why?

Chapter 27

27.1 Synthesis — reading what you were never taught
What does La universidad tiene una reputacion internacional mean?
27.2 Synthesis — reading what you were never taught
How many words in that sentence had you never been taught?
27.3 Synthesis — reading what you were never taught
Why can a rule be worth more than a word?
27.4 Synthesis — reading what you were never taught
Are these endings perfectly reliable?

Chapter 28

28.1 f → h — why the h says nothing
Why is the Spanish h silent?

28.2 f → h — why the h says nothing
Which English word is hablar's friend, once you put the f back?

28.3 f → h — why the h says nothing
You meet hierro and have never seen it. Decode it.

28.4 f → h — why the h says nothing
Is every Spanish h a dead f?

Chapter 29

29.1 cl-, pl-, fl- → ll-
Which English words are llamar's cousins?

29.2 cl-, pl-, fl- → ll-
Which three Latin clusters all became ll-?

29.3 cl-, pl-, fl- → ll-
You meet llave and have never seen it. Try the three clusters and decode it.

29.4 cl-, pl-, fl- → ll-
What do all three sound laws have in common?

Chapter 31

31.1 Synthesis — the decoder
Decode hoja.

31.2 Synthesis — the decoder
Decode lleno.

31.3 Synthesis — the decoder
Decode la conservacion de la ciudad.

31.4 Synthesis — the decoder
A word resists every rule you have. What does that suggest?

Chapter 32

32.1 Synthesis — the same conversation, twice
You are talking to someone your own age. Which form: hablas or habla?

32.2 Synthesis — the same conversation, twice
You are speaking to someone you want to show respect to. Which form?

32.3 Synthesis — the same conversation, twice
In BOTH conversations, how do you say I speak?

Chapter 34

34.1 comer — "to eat," and the second verb family
Which ending makes comer a different family from hablar?

34.2 como — "I eat," and you already knew how
Turn comer into I eat.

34.3 como — "I eat," and you already knew how
Which ending is identical in the -ar and -er families?

34.4 comes — "you eat," and the first real difference
Turn comer into you eat, to a friend.

34.5 comes — "you eat," and the first real difference
What does a final -s on a Spanish verb always tell you?

34.6 come — "he eats," and the polite "you eat"
Turn comer into he eats.

34.7 come — "he eats," and the polite "you eat"
Which form goes with usted: comes or come?

34.8 Review — the -er family, all three
I eat.

34.9 Review — the -er family, all three
You eat, to a friend.

34.10 Review — the -er family, all three
Which of the three slots is identical between the -ar and -er families?

Chapter 35

35.1 vivir — "to live," and the third family (that's barely new)
Give the three singular forms of vivir in order: I, tú, usted.

Chapter 36

36.1 beber — "to drink," and the pattern is yours
Say 'I drink coffee' in Spanish.

36.2 qué — "what", a new question word
Ask one friend 'What do you drink?' in Spanish.

36.3 dónde — "where?"
Say 'I live in Madrid' in Spanish.

36.4 Practice — asking real questions
Give the yo forms of comer, vivir, and beber, in that order.

36.5 Practice — asking real questions
Ask one friend 'What do you drink?' in Spanish.

36.6 Practice — asking real questions
Answer 'Where do you live?' with Madrid.

Chapter 37

37.1 Synthesis — asking, and answering
Ask a friend what they eat.

37.2 Synthesis — asking, and answering
Ask a friend where they live.

37.3 Synthesis — asking, and answering
How many verb families do you now hold in the singular?

Chapter 38

38.1 hablamos — "we speak"
Turn hablar into we speak.

38.2 hablamos — "we speak"
What was the Latin ending that became -mos?

Chapter 39

39.1 hablan — "they speak," and "you all speak"
Turn hablar into they speak.

39.2 hablan — "they speak," and "you all speak"
Which form goes with ustedes?

39.3 hablan — "they speak," and "you all speak"
What phrase is ustedes worn down from?

Chapter 40

40.1 habláis — the form Spain keeps
Which form goes with vosotros?

40.2 habláis — the form Spain keeps
You are addressing a group of friends in Argentina. Vosotros or ustedes?

40.3 habláis — the form Spain keeps
What two words is vosotros built from?

Chapter 41

41.1 Review — the whole thing, at last
We speak.

41.2 Review — the whole thing, at last
They speak.

41.3 Review — the whole thing, at last
How many forms does the present tense of a regular -ar verb have?

Chapter 42

42.1 Synthesis — the same sentence, two continents
In Madrid, to a group of friends: which verb form?

42.2 Synthesis — the same sentence, two continents
The same friends, in Bogota: which form?

42.3 Synthesis — the same sentence, two continents
Which of the two is the correct one?

Chapter 43

43.1 comemos — "we eat"
Turn comer into we eat.
43.2 comemos — "we eat"
Which part of the ending is the same in hablamos and comemos?
43.3 vivimos — where the two families part
Turn vivir into we live.
43.4 vivimos — where the two families part
What is the only difference between comemos and vivimos?

Chapter 44

44.1 coméis and vivís — the second difference, and the last
Vosotros, from comer.
44.2 coméis and vivís — the second difference, and the last
Vosotros, from vivir.
44.3 coméis and vivís — the second difference, and the last
In how many of the six slots do -er and -ir actually differ?

Chapter 45

45.1 comen and viven — agreeing again
They eat.
45.2 comen and viven — agreeing again
They live.
45.3 comen and viven — agreeing again
In which two slots do -er and -ir differ?

Chapter 46

46.1 Review — the present tense, whole
Which row is identical across all three families?
46.2 Review — the present tense, whole
In which two rows do -er and -ir differ?
46.3 Review — the present tense, whole
We live.

Chapter 47

47.1 uno, dos, tres, cuatro, cinco — counting to five
Write the Spanish numbers 1 through 5 in order.

47.2 uno, dos, tres, cuatro, cinco — counting to five
Say 'one coffee' in Spanish.

47.3 seis, siete, ocho, nueve, diez — and the calendar's old count
Write the Spanish numbers 6 through 10 in order.

47.4 seis, siete, ocho, nueve, diez — and the calendar's old count
Were July and August inserted into the Roman calendar or were older months renamed?

47.5 tener — "to have," with two visible changes
Give the yo, tú, and él/ella forms of tener, in that order.

47.6 ¿Cuántos años tienes? — asking age
Ask one friend 'How old are you?' in Spanish.

47.7 ¿Cuántos años tienes? — asking age
Answer 'I am eight years old' using the Spanish age frame.

47.8 Practice — counting, having, and age
Write the Spanish numbers 1 through 10 in order.

47.9 Practice — counting, having, and age
Give the three learned singular forms of tener: yo, tú, then él/ella.

47.10 Practice — counting, having, and age
Answer ¿Cuántos años tienes? with nine years.

Chapter 48

48.1 ser — another way to say "to be"
Give the three learned singular forms of ser: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

48.2 ser — another way to say "to be"
Complete the identification for formal you: Usted _____ Ana.

48.3 ser vs estar — identity or current state?
Choose es or está: ¿_____ usted Ana?

48.4 ser vs estar — identity or current state?
Choose es or está: ¿_____ usted bien?

48.5 soy de… — saying where you are from
Ask one friend 'Where are you from?' in Spanish.

48.6 soy de… — saying where you are from
Answer 'I am from Madrid' in Spanish.

48.7 está en… — saying where someone is
Ask formal you 'Where are you?' in Spanish.

48.8 está en… — saying where someone is
Say 'Ana is in Madrid' in Spanish.

48.9 Practice — identity, origin, state, and location
Complete with es or está: ¿____ usted Ana?

48.10 Practice — identity, origin, state, and location
Say 'I am from Madrid' in Spanish.

48.11 Practice — identity, origin, state, and location
Say 'Ana is in Madrid' in Spanish.

48.12 Practice — identity, origin, state, and location
Complete with es or está: ¿____ usted bien?

Chapter 49

49.1 ir — "to go," from more than one historical stem
Give the three learned singular present forms of ir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

49.2 ir — "to go," from more than one historical stem
Complete the formal question: ¿Dónde ____ usted?

49.3 voy a + infinitive — moving toward the near future
Say 'I am going to speak' in Spanish.

49.4 voy a + infinitive — moving toward the near future
Say 'You are going to eat' to one friend in Spanish.

49.5 mi, tu, su — whose café?
Say 'my coffee' in Spanish.

49.6 mi, tu, su — whose café?
Addressing usted, say 'your coffee' in Spanish.

49.7 Practice — going, approaching events, and ownership
Give the learned singular forms of ir: yo, tú, then usted.

49.8 Practice — going, approaching events, and ownership
Ask formal you 'Where are you going?' in Spanish.

49.9 Practice — going, approaching events, and ownership
Say 'I am going to speak' in Spanish.

49.10 Practice — going, approaching events, and ownership
Addressing usted, say 'your coffee' in Spanish.

Chapter 50

50.1 somos — "we are"
Say we are.
50.2 somos — "we are"
Why do ser's forms look so unlike each other?
50.3 son — "they are"
Say they are.
50.4 son — "they are"
What Latin form is son worn down from?
50.5 sois — the last of the six
Vosotros, from ser.
50.6 sois — the last of the six
The same thing in Peru: which form?
50.7 Review — all of ser
We are.
50.8 Review — all of ser
They are.
50.9 Review — all of ser
Which of the six does not begin with s, and why?

Chapter 51

51.1 profesor
Say: I am a teacher.
51.2 profesor
Say: she is a teacher.
51.3 profesor
What did Latin profiteri mean?

Chapter 52

52.1 estudiante
Build the word for the one who studies, from estudiar.
52.2 estudiante
Say: we are students.
52.3 estudiante
Decode importante.

Chapter 53

53.1 -ista
Decode dentista.
53.2 -ista
Say: she is an artist.
53.3 -ista
Periodista is built on periodico. What is a periodico?

Chapter 54

54.1 Synthesis — saying what people do
Say: we are students.
54.2 Synthesis — saying what people do
You have never seen violinista. What is it?
54.3 Synthesis — saying what people do
Say what you are, then turn the question around.

Chapter 55

55.1 estamos — the other "we are"
Say we are, using estar.
55.2 estamos — the other "we are"
Why is estar regular here when ser is not?
55.3 están — "they are"
Say they are, using estar.
55.4 están — "they are"
Why does estan carry an accent when hablan does not?
55.5 estáis — and nothing surprises you
Vosotros, from estar.
55.6 estáis — and nothing surprises you
The same thing in Chile: which form?
55.7 Review — both verbs for "to be"
We are, with estar.
55.8 Review — both verbs for "to be"
They are, with estar.
55.9 Review — both verbs for "to be"
Which of the two has a regular plural, and why?

Chapter 56

56.1 la casa — "house," and "home"
Say the house in Spanish.

56.2 la casa — "house," and "home"
Say I have a house.

56.3 la casa — "house," and "home"
Which French word is casa worn all the way down?

Chapter 57

57.1 el libro — "book"
Say the book in Spanish.

57.2 el libro — "book"
Say I have a book.

57.3 el libro — "book"
What did Latin liber originally mean?

Chapter 58

58.1 grande
Say: a big house.

58.2 grande
Does grande change for la casa?

58.3 grande
What did Latin grandis mean?

Chapter 59

59.1 cansado
Say: I am tired.

59.2 cansado
Why estoy and not soy?

59.3 cansado
Your decoder finds no English cousin for cansado. What does that mean?

Chapter 60

60.1 Synthesis — describing things
Say: the house is big, but I am tired.

60.2 Synthesis — describing things
A woman says she is tired. Which word changes?

60.3 Synthesis — describing things
Put the words in Spanish order: grande / casa / una.

Chapter 61

61.1 -oso
You have never seen misterioso. What is it?

61.2 -oso
Say: a famous teacher, about a woman.

61.3 -oso
Ser or estar for nervioso, and why?

Chapter 62

62.1 -ncia
You have never seen preferencia. What is it?

62.2 -ncia
Which article goes with distancia, el or la?

62.3 -ncia
Say: a big difference.

Chapter 63

63.1 -ario
You have never seen imaginario. What is it?

63.2 -ario
Why does diccionario mean dictionary rather than word-ish?

63.3 -ario
Necesario, said of a feminine noun. What changes?

Chapter 64

64.1 Review — the eight endings
Which of -ista and -oso names a person?

64.2 Review — the eight endings
An -ncia word you have never seen. What gender?

64.3 Review — the eight endings
Decode la posibilidad.

Chapter 65

65.1 Synthesis — reading a paragraph
Decode: la comunidad tiene una tradicion.

65.2 Synthesis — reading a paragraph
Decode: su estructura es voluntaria, evidentemente.

65.3 Synthesis — reading a paragraph
A word you have never seen: especialista. What is it?

Chapter 66

66.1 falsos amigos
Exito is not exit. What does it mean, and why?

66.2 falsos amigos
Actualmente decodes to actually. What does it really mean?

66.3 falsos amigos
An ending gives you a word that makes the sentence strange. What do you do?

Chapter 67

67.1 tenemos — and the stem change disappears
Say we have.

67.2 tenemos — and the stem change disappears
Why does tienes break its stem but tenemos does not?

67.3 tienen — the break comes back
Say they have.

67.4 tienen — the break comes back
In any stem-changing verb, which two forms never break?

67.5 tienen — the break comes back
What actually decides whether the stem breaks?

Chapter 68

68.1 vamos — from a verb that is not ir
Say we go.

68.2 vamos — from a verb that is not ir
Why does the present of ir begin with v when the infinitive has none?

68.3 vamos — from a verb that is not ir
Name the English pair that works the same way.

68.4 van — and the four are done
Say they go.

68.5 van — and the four are done
They are (permanently), and they are (right now): which two forms?

68.6 van — and the four are done
What usually explains a Spanish verb that looks chaotic?

Chapter 69

69.1 querer — wanting with one familiar vowel change
Give the learned singular present forms of querer: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

69.2 querer — wanting with one familiar vowel change
Say 'I want to speak' in Spanish.

69.3 poder — ability with the o → ue change
Give the learned singular present forms of poder: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

69.4 poder — ability with the o → ue change
Say 'You can eat' to one friend in Spanish.

69.5 e → ie and o → ue — compare the singular forms
Give the learned yo forms of querer and poder, in that order.

69.6 e → ie and o → ue — compare the singular forms
Give the learned tú forms of tener, querer, and poder, in that order.

69.7 nuestro, nuestra — "our" with singular gender agreement
Say 'our day' in Spanish.

69.8 nuestro, nuestra — "our" with singular gender agreement
Say 'our night' in Spanish.

69.9 Practice — wanting, ability, and our known nouns
Give the learned singular forms of querer: yo, tú, then usted.

69.10 Practice — wanting, ability, and our known nouns
Give the learned singular forms of poder: yo, tú, then usted.

69.11 Practice — wanting, ability, and our known nouns
Say 'I want to speak' in Spanish.

69.12 Practice — wanting, ability, and our known nouns
Say 'You can eat' to one friend in Spanish.

69.13 Practice — wanting, ability, and our known nouns
Say 'our night' in Spanish.

Chapter 70

70.1 hacer — doing or making with three singular forms
Give the learned singular present forms of hacer: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

70.2 hacer — doing or making with three singular forms
Say 'I make coffee' in Spanish.

70.3 decir — saying with the same small person frame
Give the learned singular present forms of decir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

70.4 decir — saying with the same small person frame
Say 'I say hello' in Spanish.

70.5 decir — saying with the same small person frame
Ask one friend 'How do you say hello?' in Spanish.

70.6 tengo · hago · digo — compare only what you know
Give the learned yo forms of tener, hacer, and decir, in that order.

70.7 tengo · hago · digo — compare only what you know
Which learned yo form means 'I do' or 'I make'?

70.8 Practice — doing, making, and saying in the singular
Give the learned singular forms of hacer: yo, tú, then usted.

70.9 Practice — doing, making, and saying in the singular
Give the learned singular forms of decir: yo, tú, then usted.

70.10 Practice — doing, making, and saying in the singular
Give the learned yo forms of tener, hacer, and decir, in that order.

70.11 Practice — doing, making, and saying in the singular
Say 'I make coffee' in Spanish.

70.12 Practice — doing, making, and saying in the singular
Ask one friend 'How do you say hello?' in Spanish.

Chapter 71

71.1 poner — putting or placing with three singular forms
Give the learned singular present forms of poner: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

71.2 poner — putting or placing with three singular forms
What two English verbs does poner cover?

Chapter 72

72.1 salir — leaving with three singular forms
Give the learned singular present forms of salir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

72.2 salir — leaving with three singular forms
Say 'I leave Madrid' in Spanish.

Chapter 73

73.1 venir — coming with three singular forms
Give the learned singular present forms of venir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

73.2 venir — coming with three singular forms
Say 'I come from Madrid' in Spanish.

73.3 venir — coming with three singular forms
Give the tú forms of venir and tener, in that order.

Chapter 74

74.1 Review — six verbs, one ending
How many verbs are in the -go set?

74.2 Review — six verbs, one ending
Which slot does the -go appear in?

74.3 Review — six verbs, one ending
Are these six related to each other?

74.4 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Give the learned singular forms of poner: yo, tú, then usted.

74.5 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Give the learned singular forms of salir: yo, tú, then usted.

74.6 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Give the learned singular forms of venir: yo, tú, then usted.

74.7 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Say 'I leave Madrid; I come from Madrid' in Spanish.

74.8 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Give the learned yo forms of tener, hacer, decir, poner, salir, and venir, in that order.

74.9 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Match each Spanish verb to one English cousin: poner, salir, venir.

Chapter 75

75.1 Synthesis — you, and somebody else
Say I am leaving, in one word.

75.2 Synthesis — you, and somebody else
Now say she is leaving. Is it irregular?

75.3 Synthesis — you, and somebody else
In these six verbs, which slot is the only irregular one?

Chapter 76

76.1 queremos, quieren — work them out first
We want.

76.2 queremos, quieren — work them out first
They can.

76.3 queremos, quieren — work them out first
Poder changes o to ue. What is we can?

76.4 hacemos, hacen — and the club has no plural at all
We do or make.

76.5 hacemos, hacen — and the club has no plural at all
They leave.

76.6 hacemos, hacen — and the club has no plural at all
Decir stem-changes. What are we say and they say?

76.7 Synthesis — a verb you have never met
Salir is a -go verb. What is we leave?

76.8 Synthesis — a verb you have never met
And they leave?

76.9 Synthesis — a verb you have never met
How many rules generate the whole present tense?

Chapter 77

77.1 la comida — "food," built from a verb you have
Build the noun for food from the verb comer.

77.2 la comida — "food," built from a verb you have
Say I make the meal.

77.3 la comida — "food," built from a verb you have
What gender is any noun built with -ida?

Chapter 78

78.1 las casas — "the houses"
Say the houses.

78.2 las casas — "the houses"
Say the meals.

78.3 las casas — "the houses"
How many new rules did this lesson add?

Chapter 79

79.1 los libros — "the books"
Say the books.

79.2 los libros — "the books"
Why is it los and not els?

79.3 los libros — "the books"
Give all four forms of the Spanish word for the.

Chapter 80

80.1 -es — the plural your first chapter owed you
Make espanol plural.

80.2 -es — the plural your first chapter owed you
Which word have you been using this rule on since long before this chapter?

80.3 -es — the plural your first chapter owed you
Why -es rather than plain -s after a consonant?

Chapter 81

81.1 Review — all four words for "the"
Give the four Spanish words for the, in the order masculine singular, feminine singular, masculine plural, feminine plural.

81.2 Review — all four words for "the"
Say the books and then the houses.

81.3 Review — all four words for "the"
State the plural rule in one sentence, including what happens after a consonant.

81.4 Review — the half of ir you never say out loud
We go, then they go.

81.5 Review — the half of ir you never say out loud
Say you all go.

81.6 Review — the half of ir you never say out loud
Comer gives you la comida. What does the same ending give you from ir?

Chapter 82

82.1 Synthesis — more than one
Say I have books.

82.2 Synthesis — more than one
Now say I have the books.

82.3 Synthesis — more than one
Say I make meals, meaning meals in general.

82.4 Synthesis — more than one
What is the difference in meaning between casas and las casas?

Chapter 83

83.1 lo — "it"
Say I have it, replacing el libro.

83.2 lo — "it"
Does the pronoun go before or after the conjugated verb?

83.3 lo — "it"
Which everyday Spanish word comes from the same Latin word as lo?

Chapter 84

84.1 la — "it," for a feminine noun
Say I make it, about la comida.

84.2 la — "it," for a feminine noun
What decides whether you say lo or la?

84.3 la — "it," for a feminine noun
Why does the feminine article match its pronoun exactly, when the masculine pair does not?

Chapter 85

85.1 me quieres — "you love me"
Say you love me.

85.2 me quieres — "you love me"
In me llamo the me points back at the speaker. What is it doing in me quieres?

85.3 me quieres — "you love me"
How many new word forms did this lesson ask you to learn?

85.4 te quiero — "I love you"
Say I love you.

85.5 te quiero — "I love you"
Quiero un libro means I want a book. Why does te quiero not mean I want you?

85.6 te quiero — "I love you"
Which of tu and te is the one doing, and which is the one it lands on?

85.7 te — the pair English used to have
Which old English pair is the same inherited pair as tu and te?

85.8 te — the pair English used to have
Thee lines up with which Spanish word — tu or te?

Chapter 86

86.1 Review — four pronouns, one slot
Name the four object pronouns you now hold.

86.2 Review — four pronouns, one slot
What single question chooses between all four?

86.3 Review — four pronouns, one slot
Which two of the four depend on knowing a noun's gender?

Chapter 87

87.1 Synthesis — saying it once
Answer yes to Tienes el libro, without repeating the noun.

87.2 Synthesis — saying it once
Answer yes to Haces la comida, without repeating the noun.

87.3 Synthesis — saying it once
Somebody says Te quiero. Say the answering half.

87.4 Synthesis — saying it once
Version one of the dialogue was grammatically correct. What was wrong with it?

Chapter 88

88.1 nos — "us"
Say they love us.

88.2 nos — "us"
Me quieren and nos quieren differ in one thing. What?

88.3 nos — "us"
Where does nos stand in nos quieren?

88.4 nosotros — the "we" the verb already says
Which verb ending already says we, without nosotros?

88.5 nosotros — the "we" the verb already says
What are the two pieces inside nosotros, and what do they mean together?

88.6 nosotros — the "we" the verb already says
Nosotros hablamos says we in two places. Name them.

Chapter 89

89.1 los and las — "them"
Say I have them, about los libros.

89.2 los and las — "them"
Say I make them, about las comidas.

89.3 los and las — "them"
The article el had to change shape for its plural. Why did the pronoun lo not?

Chapter 90

90.1 os — "you all," in Spain
Say I love you all, as a speaker in Spain would.

90.2 os — "you all," in Spain
Say the same thing the way most of the Spanish-speaking world would.

90.3 os — "you all," in Spain
Which older word is os worn down from, and where is it still said whole?

Chapter 91

91.1 Review — all eight
Give all eight direct object pronouns.

91.2 Review — all eight
Which four of the eight need you to know a noun's gender?

91.3 Review — all eight
Which two of the eight did you never have to be taught?

Chapter 92

92.1 Synthesis — the conversation without them
Answer yes to Tienes los libros, without the noun.

92.2 Synthesis — the conversation without them
Answer the question about las comidas, saying you make them.

92.3 Synthesis — the conversation without them
Say they love us.

92.4 Synthesis — the conversation without them
You have been talking about meals and you say los tengo. What goes wrong for your listener?

Chapter 93

93.1 le — "to him," "to her," "to you"
Say I tell him.

93.2 le — "to him," "to her," "to you"
How many genders does le have?

93.3 le — "to him," "to her," "to you"
Lo comes from Latin illum. Which Latin form does le come from, and what was it for?

Chapter 94

94.1 les — "to them," and what this system really costs
Say I tell them.

94.2 les — "to them," and what this system really costs
How many genuinely new words does the indirect set add?

94.3 les — "to them," and what this system really costs
Which four pronouns are identical in both sets?

Chapter 95

95.1 Which one is the verb asking for?
State the one-question test in your own words.

95.2 Which one is the verb asking for?
Say I speak to her.

95.3 Which one is the verb asking for?
Say I have it, about the book, and say which set that is.

95.4 Which one is the verb asking for?
Somebody in Madrid says le veo for I see him. Has a rule been broken?

Chapter 96

96.1 Review — two systems, two new words
Give the six indirect object pronouns.

96.2 Review — two systems, two new words
Which row is the only one where the two sets differ in shape, and how?

96.3 Review — two systems, two new words
Across both tables, how many distinct word shapes are there in total?

Chapter 97

97.1 Synthesis — the thing and the person, in one sentence
Answer yes to Tienes el libro, without the noun.

97.2 Synthesis — the thing and the person, in one sentence
Say I tell her today.

97.3 Synthesis — the thing and the person, in one sentence
Say I speak to them.

97.4 Synthesis — the thing and the person, in one sentence
Two pronouns in the same slot, both two letters, both from one Latin word. What is the only thing that tells them apart?

Chapter 98

98.1 me lo — both at once
Say I tell it to you.

98.2 me lo — both at once
Which comes first, the person or the thing?

98.3 me lo — both at once
Say you make it for me, about la comida.

Chapter 99

99.1 se lo — the pair that does not exist
Say I tell it to him.

99.2 se lo — the pair that does not exist
In front of which four words do le and les become se?

99.3 se lo — the pair that does not exist
How many different people can se lo digo be about?

Chapter 100

100.1 Why se? — and why it is not the se you know
What did Old Spanish say instead of se lo?

100.2 Why se? — and why it is not the se you know
Is the se of se lo digo the same word as the se of se llama?

100.3 Why se? — and why it is not the se you know
Which two Latin pronouns were squeezed together to make gelo?

Chapter 101

101.1 Review — the pairs
State the two facts that generate the whole table.

101.2 Review — the pairs
Give the pair meaning it to us.

101.3 Review — the pairs
How many new pronoun forms did this arc introduce?

Chapter 102

102.1 Synthesis — two at a time
Say shall I tell it to you.

102.2 Synthesis — two at a time
Say I make it for her, about la comida.

102.3 Synthesis — two at a time
In se la hago, how many of the three words name anything?

102.4 Synthesis — two at a time
You lose track of which thing se la points at. Does the sentence become wrong?

Chapter 103

103.1 fui — one past set shared by ser and ir
Give the shared singular preterite forms of ser and ir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

103.2 fui — one past set shared by ser and ir
Say 'I went to Madrid' in Spanish.

103.3 fui — one past set shared by ser and ir
In 'Fue Roberto', which verb does fue express?

103.4 hablé — a regular singular past from a known verb
Give the singular completed-past forms of hablar: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

103.5 hablé — a regular singular past from a known verb
Say 'I spoke Spanish' in Spanish.

103.6 hablé — a regular singular past from a known verb
Which form means 'I spoke' as a completed event: hablo or hablé?

103.7 Practice — two singular ways to talk about a completed past
Give the three learned forms shared by ser and ir.

103.8 Practice — two singular ways to talk about a completed past
Give the three learned completed-past forms of hablar.

103.9 Practice — two singular ways to talk about a completed past
Which sentence uses the shared form as ir, 'to go': Fui a Madrid or Fue Roberto?

103.10 Practice — two singular ways to talk about a completed past
Give 'I speak Spanish' and then 'I spoke Spanish.'

103.11 Practice — two singular ways to talk about a completed past
Which two of hablé, hablaste, habló carry written accents?

Chapter 104

104.1 comí — one regular -er singular past
Give the singular completed-past forms of comer: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

104.2 comí — one regular -er singular past
Which form means 'I ate' as a completed event: como or comí?

104.3 comí — one regular -er singular past
Did Spanish -í, -iste, -ió arise by simple letter-dropping alone, or by sound change plus analogy?

104.4 viví — reuse one past pattern with an -ir verb
Give the singular completed-past forms of vivir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

104.5 viví — reuse one past pattern with an -ir verb
Say 'I lived in Madrid' in Spanish.

104.6 viví — reuse one past pattern with an -ir verb
Which three singular past endings do comer and vivir share?

Chapter 105

105.1 tuve — let the strong stem carry the stress
Give the singular completed-past forms of tener: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

105.2 tuve — let the strong stem carry the stress
Say 'I had coffee' in Spanish.

105.3 tuve — let the strong stem carry the stress
Which phrase best describes tuve: a letter-for-letter copy of tenuī, or a historically reshaped strong form?

105.4 hice — the strong pattern with one third-person swerve
Give the singular completed-past forms of hacer: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

105.5 hice — the strong pattern with one third-person swerve
Say 'I made coffee' in Spanish.

105.6 hice — the strong pattern with one third-person swerve
Which Latin strong-perfect form lies behind the historical development of hice?

105.7 estuve — a third known verb joins the strong pattern
Give the singular completed-past forms of estar: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

105.8 estuve — a third known verb joins the strong pattern
Say 'I was well' as a completed past statement in Spanish.

105.9 estuve — a third known verb joins the strong pattern
Which known strong form helped shape the family resemblance in estuve: tuve or hice?

Chapter 106

106.1 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Give the learned yo past forms of hablar, comer, and vivir, in that order.

106.2 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Give the learned yo past forms of tener, hacer, and estar, in that order.

106.3 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Say 'I made coffee' in Spanish.

106.4 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Say 'I lived in Madrid' in Spanish.

106.5 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Say 'I was well' as a completed event in Spanish.

106.6 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Which pair carries written accents: comí/comió or tuve/tuvo?

106.7 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Which learned form is especially described as analogically remodeled beside tuve: comí, hice, or estuve?

106.8 Synthesis — you can hear which past it is
A preterite with no written accent. Where is the stress, and which kind is it?

106.9 Synthesis — you can hear which past it is
Why does comi carry an accent when tuve does not?

106.10 Synthesis — you can hear which past it is
In the regular preterite, do -er and -ir take the same endings?

Chapter 107

107.1 hablaba — let a past action stay open
Give the learned singular imperfect forms of hablar: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

107.2 hablaba — let a past action stay open
Which form leaves 'I spoke' open or habitual: hablé or hablaba?

107.3 hablaba — let a past action stay open
Which consonant links Latin -ābam with Spanish -aba?

107.4 comía — hear both vowels
Give the learned singular imperfect forms of comer: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

107.5 comía — hear both vowels
Which form means 'I was eating': comí or comía?

107.6 comía — hear both vowels
Write comía with syllable breaks.

107.7 vivía — reuse the complete -er row
Give the learned singular imperfect forms of vivir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

107.8 vivía — reuse the complete -er row
Which two infinitive classes share the learned imperfect endings -ía, -ías, -ía?

107.9 vivía — reuse the complete -er row
Say 'I was living in Madrid' in Spanish.

Chapter 108

108.1 ver — learn the verb before its past
What does Spanish ver mean?

108.2 ver — learn the verb before its past
Give the learned present forms of ver: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

108.3 ver — learn the verb before its past
Which Latin verb stands behind Spanish ver: vidēre or īre?

Chapter 109

109.1 era — an old root in an open past
Give the learned singular imperfect forms of ser: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

109.2 era — an old root in an open past
Which ser form presents a background past: era or fue?

109.3 era — an old root in an open past
Which Latin form stands directly behind Spanish era: eram or ībam?

109.4 iba — ir returns to its inherited past
Give the learned singular imperfect forms of ir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

109.5 iba — ir returns to its inherited past
Say 'I was going to Madrid' in Spanish.

109.6 iba — ir returns to its inherited past
Which inherited Latin verb stands behind iba: īre or vidēre?

109.7 veía — keep the extra e you already met
Give the learned singular imperfect forms of ver: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

109.8 veía — keep the extra e you already met
Which sentence means 'I was seeing coffee': Veo café or Veía café?

109.9 veía — keep the extra e you already met
Which earlier Spanish form makes the extra e of veía easier to see: veer or ir?

Chapter 110

110.1 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Give the imperfect yo forms of hablar, comer, and vivir, in that order.

110.2 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Give the imperfect yo forms of ser, ir, and ver, in that order.

110.3 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Say 'I was speaking Spanish' in Spanish.

110.4 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Say 'I was living in Madrid' in Spanish.

110.5 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Say 'I was going to Madrid' in Spanish.

110.6 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Choose the open past: comí or comía.

110.7 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Match the three forms to their historical bridges: era, iba, veía — eram, ībam, veer.

110.8 Synthesis — three exceptions, and no others
How many irregular verbs does the imperfect have in the whole language?

110.9 Synthesis — three exceptions, and no others
Name them.

110.10 Synthesis — three exceptions, and no others
Why are those three the irregular ones?

Chapter 111

111.1 hablaba and habló — two ways of looking
Do the two past tenses differ in when something happened?

111.2 hablaba and habló — two ways of looking
Which form looks at the event from outside, finished?

111.3 hablaba and habló — two ways of looking
Say I was studying, putting the listener inside it.

Chapter 112

112.1 cuando — putting both pasts in one sentence
Say I was studying when Ana spoke.

112.2 cuando — putting both pasts in one sentence
Which tense sets the room, and which one walks into it?

112.3 cuando — putting both pasts in one sentence
Which other Spanish question words share the front of cuando?

Chapter 113

113.1 tenía and tuve — when the tense changes the meaning
Say I had a house, meaning it was simply so.

113.2 tenía and tuve — when the tense changes the meaning
What does tuve una casa actually mean?

113.3 tenía and tuve — when the tense changes the meaning
You meet a new verb that names a state. What will its preterite mean?

Chapter 114

114.1 Review — one question, three answers
State the one question that chooses the tense.

114.2 Review — one question, three answers
In estudiaba cuando hablo Ana, which verb is the scene?

114.3 Review — one question, three answers
Which two rows of the table are NOT the same event seen twice?

Chapter 115

115.1 Synthesis — a small story
In the story, which two verbs are the background?

115.2 Synthesis — a small story
Why is tuve un libro in the foreground when tenia un libro was not?

115.3 Synthesis — a small story
Say I was studying when I spoke with Ana.

115.4 Synthesis — a small story
Why did this take three chapters when neither tense was new?

Chapter 116

116.1 hablado, comido, vivido — the participle
Give the participle of hablar.

116.2 hablado, comido, vivido — the participle
Give the participles of comer and vivir.

116.3 hablado, comido, vivido — the participle
Does the participle change for who is speaking?

Chapter 117

117.1 he hablado — "I have spoken"
Say I have spoken Spanish.

117.2 he hablado — "I have spoken"
What does haber mean in he hablado?

117.3 he hablado — "I have spoken"
Which English verb was hollowed out the same way?

Chapter 118

118.1 has, ha, hemos, habéis, han
Give all six forms of haber, in order.

118.2 has, ha, hemos, habéis, han
Say they have eaten.

118.3 has, ha, hemos, habéis, han
Why is haber shorter than an ordinary verb?

118.4 has, ha, hemos, habéis, han
How many forms does comido take across all six rows?

Chapter 119

119.1 hecho, dicho, visto, puesto
Give the participles of hacer, decir, ver and poner.

119.2 hecho, dicho, visto, puesto
Which everyday English noun is the same word as hecho?

119.3 hecho, dicho, visto, puesto
Why are these four irregular rather than some other four?

119.4 hecho, dicho, visto, puesto
Say we have seen it, using the participle of ver.

Chapter 120

120.1 Review — a tense you build
What are the two pieces of this tense, and which carries the person?

120.2 Review — a tense you build
Say we have lived.

120.3 Review — a tense you build
Say you have said it, using the participle of decir.

120.4 Review — a tense you build
Why did this tense cost less than the present or the preterite?

Chapter 121

121.1 Synthesis — two shores, two answers
Say I have eaten, meaning you are not hungry now.

121.2 Synthesis — two shores, two answers
For something that happened today, which tense would a speaker in Madrid pick, and one in Mexico City?

121.3 Synthesis — two shores, two answers
Two speakers correct you in opposite directions. Which of them is right?

121.4 Synthesis — two shores, two answers
Say we have spoken Spanish.

Chapter 122

122.1 hablaré — keep the infinitive, add the future
Give the learned singular future forms of hablar: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

122.2 hablaré — keep the infinitive, add the future
Say 'I will speak Spanish' in Spanish.

122.3 hablaré — keep the infinitive, add the future
Which Latin verb meaning 'to have' contributed material to the Romance future endings?

122.4 comeré — the same endings keep -er
Give the learned singular future forms of comer: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

122.5 comeré — the same endings keep -er
Use the learned -er future pattern to say 'I will drink coffee' in Spanish.

122.6 comeré — the same endings keep -er
Which endings do hablaré and comeré share across the learned singular row?

122.7 viviré — one future row for three verb families
Give the learned singular future forms of vivir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

122.8 viviré — one future row for three verb families
Say 'I will live in Madrid' in Spanish.

122.9 viviré — one future row for three verb families
Give the future yo forms of hablar, comer, and vivir, in that order.

Chapter 123

123.1 hablaría — the whole infinitive meets -ía
Give the learned singular conditional forms of hablar: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

123.2 hablaría — the whole infinitive meets -ía
Say 'I would speak Spanish' in Spanish.

123.3 hablaría — the whole infinitive meets -ía
Write hablaría with the final three syllables separated.

123.4 comería — keep -er before "would"
Give the learned singular conditional forms of comer: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

123.5 comería — keep -er before "would"
Give the yo pair 'I will eat; I would eat' in Spanish.

123.6 comería — keep -er before "would"
Which endings do hablaría and comería share across the learned singular row?

123.7 viviría — the regular conditional closes its small frame
Give the learned singular conditional forms of vivir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

123.8 viviría — the regular conditional closes its small frame
Say 'I would live in Madrid' in Spanish.

123.9 viviría — the regular conditional closes its small frame
Give the conditional yo forms of hablar, comer, and vivir, in that order.

Chapter 124

124.1 haré · tendré · podré — three stems, two ending sets
Give the pair 'I will make coffee; I would make coffee' in Spanish.

124.2 haré · tendré · podré — three stems, two ending sets
Give the future and conditional yo forms of tener, in that order.

124.3 haré · tendré · podré — three stems, two ending sets
Give the pair 'I will be able to speak Spanish; I could speak Spanish' in Spanish.

124.4 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Give the future yo forms of hablar, comer, and vivir, in that order.

124.5 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Give the conditional yo forms of hablar, comer, and vivir, in that order.

124.6 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Say 'I will speak Spanish' in Spanish.

124.7 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Say 'I would live in Madrid' in Spanish.

124.8 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Give the pair 'I will make coffee; I would make coffee' in Spanish.

124.9 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Give the learned stems for hacer, tener, and poder, in that order.

124.10 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Which Latin 'have' verb contributed material to both Romance constructions?

Chapter 125

125.1 Synthesis — promising, and supposing
You are committing to it. I will speak: which form?

125.2 Synthesis — promising, and supposing
Now you are only supposing. I would speak: which form?

125.3 Synthesis — promising, and supposing
What single word is glued onto the infinitive in BOTH tenses?

Chapter 126

126.1 Hablas español · Quiero que hables español — fact or wanted event?
Which form asserts that one friend speaks: hablas or hables?

126.2 Hablas español · Quiero que hables español — fact or wanted event?
Say 'I want to speak Spanish' in Spanish.

126.3 Hablas español · Quiero que hables español — fact or wanted event?
Say 'I want you to speak Spanish' to one friend.

Chapter 127

127.1 hable · hables · hable — the singular -ar row
Give the learned singular present-subjunctive forms of hablar: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

127.2 hable · hables · hable — the singular -ar row
Which present form gives the stem for regular hable: hablo or habla?

127.3 hable · hables · hable — the singular -ar row
What joining idea sits inside the Latin source of subjuntivo?

127.4 coma · comas · coma — let -er cross to a
Give the learned singular subjunctive forms of comer: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

127.5 coma · comas · coma — let -er cross to a
Which form belongs after quiero que for one friend: comes or comas?

127.6 coma · comas · coma — let -er cross to a
Say 'I want you to eat' to one friend.

127.7 viva · vivas · viva — -ir joins -er
Give the learned singular subjunctive forms of vivir: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

127.8 viva · vivas · viva — -ir joins -er
Which two regular verb families share -a, -as, -a here?

127.9 viva · vivas · viva — -ir joins -er
Say 'I want you to live in Madrid' to one friend.

Chapter 128

128.1 quiera · quieras · quiera — keep the change you know
Give the learned singular subjunctive forms of querer: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

128.2 quiera · quieras · quiera — keep the change you know
Which known present yo form gives the stem quier-?

128.3 quiera · quieras · quiera — keep the change you know
Complete 'Quiero que _____ hablar español' for one friend.

128.4 pueda · puedas · pueda — one more known stem change
Give the learned singular subjunctive forms of poder: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

128.5 pueda · puedas · pueda — one more known stem change
Which known present yo form gives the stem pued-?

128.6 pueda · puedas · pueda — one more known stem change
Say 'I want you to be able to speak Spanish' to one friend.

128.7 haga · hagas · haga — hago lends its stem
Give the learned singular subjunctive forms of hacer: yo, tú, then él/ella/usted.

128.8 haga · hagas · haga — hago lends its stem
Which known present yo form gives the stem hag-?

128.9 haga · hagas · haga — hago lends its stem
Say 'I want you to make coffee' to one friend.

Chapter 129

129.1 ojalá + subjunctive — a wish borrowed through Arabic
Say 'I hope you speak Spanish' to one friend using ojalá.

129.2 ojalá + subjunctive — a wish borrowed through Arabic
Does the learned ojalá frame require que before hables? Answer yes or no.

129.3 ojalá + subjunctive — a wish borrowed through Arabic
Through which historical language variety did Spanish receive ojalá?

129.4 Practice — assert the event or want it
Choose the wanted-event form: hablas or hables.

129.5 Practice — assert the event or want it
Give the pair 'I want to speak Spanish; I want you to speak Spanish.'

129.6 Practice — assert the event or want it
Give the tú subjunctive forms of hablar, comer, and vivir, in that order.

129.7 Practice — assert the event or want it
Which present-person form supplies the stem in this chapter's recipe?

129.8 Practice — assert the event or want it
Give the learned singular subjunctive row of querer.

129.9 Practice — assert the event or want it
Say 'I want you to be able to speak Spanish' to one friend.

129.10 Practice — assert the event or want it
Say 'I want you to make coffee' to one friend.

129.11 Practice — assert the event or want it
Say 'I hope you live in Madrid' to one friend using ojalá.

129.12 Practice — assert the event or want it
What does the Latin source subiūnctīvus help you picture?

129.13 Practice — assert the event or want it
Name the historical language variety through which ojalá entered Spanish.

129.14 Review — you never learned a new stem
You say puedo. Do the move: drop the -o, add -a.

129.15 Review — you never learned a new stem
Same move on hago.

129.16 Review — you never learned a new stem
And on vivo — an -ir verb this time.

Chapter 130

130.1 Synthesis — claiming, and not claiming
You are stating a fact about a friend: you speak Spanish. Hablas or hables?

130.2 Synthesis — claiming, and not claiming
Now you only wish it were so. Which form follows ojala?

130.3 Synthesis — claiming, and not claiming
What did ojala originally mean, and in which language?

Chapter 131

131.1 habla — telling somebody to do something
Tell somebody you call tu to eat.

131.2 habla — telling somebody to do something
Which form do you use to give a tu command?

131.3 habla — telling somebody to do something
Which two English words share a root with imperative?

Chapter 132

132.1 di, haz, ve, pon, ten, sal, sé, ven
Give the eight irregular tu commands.

132.2 di, haz, ve, pon, ten, sal, sé, ven
Tell somebody to come.

132.3 di, haz, ve, pon, ten, sal, sé, ven
Why are these eight so much shorter than every other verb form?

Chapter 133

133.1 no hables — telling somebody not to Tell somebody not to speak.

133.2 no hables — telling somebody not to Tell somebody not to eat.

133.3 no hables — telling somebody not to
Why does a negative command take the subjunctive?

Chapter 134

134.1 hable usted — the polite command
Politely ask somebody you address as usted to speak.

134.2 hable usted — the polite command
Of the four command boxes, how many use the subjunctive?

134.3 hable usted — the polite command
Why is the usted command the polite one?

Chapter 135

135.1 Review — four boxes
Give all four command forms of comer: tu do it, tu don't, usted do it, usted don't.

135.2 Review — four boxes
What was the only genuinely new material in this whole rung?

135.3 Review — four boxes
Why is the informal positive command the one box that keeps old irregular forms?

Chapter 136

136.1 Synthesis — asking without sounding rude
Tell a friend to come.

136.2 Synthesis — asking without sounding rude
Ask a stranger to eat, politely.

136.3 Synthesis — asking without sounding rude
In Spanish, where does the politeness of a command mostly live?

136.4 Synthesis — asking without sounding rude
You use usted commands with an old friend. What have you done?

Chapter 144

144.1 la bebo — the pronoun tells the truth
Say I drink it, about el agua.

144.2 la bebo — the pronoun tells the truth
Why can the pronoun show a gender the article hides?

144.3 la bebo — the pronoun tells the truth
You meet a new noun and cannot tell its gender from its article. What can you listen for?

Chapter 152

152.1 Synthesis — saying something about your own life
Say I have a black dog.

152.2 Synthesis — saying something about your own life
You are mentioning your cat for the first time. Un gato or el gato?

152.3 Synthesis — saying something about your own life
Say it is cold.

152.4 Review — the same question, asked of eleven words
Red, blue, green, yellow.

152.5 Review — the same question, asked of eleven words
Say it is two twenty.

152.6 Review — the same question, asked of eleven words
Say it is raining at noon.

152.7 Review — the same question, asked of eleven words
Which colour word started life meaning a little bitter?

152.8 Review — one Saturday, from morning to midnight
Say it is nine twenty.

152.9 Review — one Saturday, from morning to midnight
Say at midnight it is still raining.

152.10 Review — one Saturday, from morning to midnight
Octubre carries which number, and which month is it really?

152.11 Review — one Saturday, from morning to midnight
Which season is octubre in, north of the equator?

Chapter 157

157.1 Review — four verbs of the mind
Which of the four verbs originally meant to weigh?

157.2 Review — four verbs of the mind
Which one meant to gather or pick out?

157.3 Review — four verbs of the mind
And which one meant to scratch?

Chapter 158

158.1 Synthesis — what you understand, and what you don't
What does no entiendo literally say, given intendere?

158.2 Synthesis — what you understand, and what you don't
How do you say I understand now, once it slows down?

Chapter 162

162.1 Review — three verbs that behave
Which of the three is the same word as English aid?

162.2 Review — three verbs that behave
Which of the three has no agreed etymology at all?

162.3 Review — three verbs that behave
In all three verbs, who is the sentence about — the one doing it, or the thing done?

Chapter 164

164.1 Synthesis — what you like, and who is doing the liking
In me gusta el cafe, what is the subject?

164.2 Synthesis — what you like, and who is doing the liking
What did gustar originally mean?

164.3 Synthesis — what you like, and who is doing the liking
Which phrase you learned long ago is built from this same word?

Chapter 166

166.1 Review — down, up, and away
You have got up. How do you say you are standing?

166.2 Review — down, up, and away
Name the two everyday verbs for walking.

166.3 Review — down, up, and away
Is the origin of andar settled?

Chapter 167

167.1 Review — the accent is doing the work
Which of the three asks for a reason?

167.2 Review — the accent is doing the work
Say: I get up because I run.

167.3 Review — the accent is doing the work
What makes el porque a thing rather than a connector?

Chapter 172

172.1 Review — the four stem changes, all of them
How many stem-change patterns does Spanish have in total?

172.2 Review — the four stem changes, all of them
Which pattern belongs to exactly one verb, and which verb?

172.3 Review — the four stem changes, all of them
Which change does conseguir make?

Chapter 173

173.1 Synthesis — the choices English never makes you make
You want to say you know a person. Conocer or saber?

173.2 Synthesis — the choices English never makes you make Someone asks you to move something toward where they are. Traer or llevar?

173.3 Synthesis — the choices English never makes you make
You want to ask for a coffee, not ask a question. Preguntar or pedir?

Chapter 176

176.1 para — "for," pointing forward
Say it is for you.

176.2 para — "for," pointing forward
Say by tomorrow.

176.3 para — "for," pointing forward
Which Latin piece inside para means toward, and which English words carry it?

Chapter 177

177.1 por — and you already know three of these
Say thanks for the meal.

177.2 por — and you already know three of these
What does por favor literally say?

177.3 por — and you already know three of these
Which everyday English word is the per inside por, still meaning through?

Chapter 178

178.1 Which way is the arrow pointing?
Say I am doing it for you, meaning you will receive it.

178.2 Which way is the arrow pointing?
Now say it meaning you are the reason.

178.3 Which way is the arrow pointing?
State the test in one sentence.

178.4 Which way is the arrow pointing?
Why is the arrow test not just a mnemonic?

Chapter 179

179.1 Review — one arrow
Give the two directions in one line.

179.2 Review — one arrow
Name three phrases you already knew that turn out to contain por.

179.3 Review — one arrow
A sentence takes either por or para. What should you conclude?

Chapter 180

180.1 Synthesis — the gift and the motive
Tell somebody you are making the meal as a gift to them.

180.2 Synthesis — the gift and the motive
Now say it meaning they are the reason you are doing it at all.

180.3 Synthesis — the gift and the motive
Thank somebody for the meal.

180.4 Synthesis — the gift and the motive
You pick the wrong one of the two. What have you produced?

Chapter 181

181.1 se habla español — nobody in particular
Write the sign that says Spanish is spoken here.

181.2 se habla español — nobody in particular
Who speaks Spanish, according to that sentence?

181.3 se habla español — nobody in particular
Say one eats well here.

Chapter 182

182.1 se compran libros — the verb tells on itself
Say books are bought.

182.2 se compran libros — the verb tells on itself
What is the verb agreeing with in se compran libros?

182.3 se compran libros — the verb tells on itself
Read se compran libros as if se still meant themselves. What does it say?

Chapter 183

183.1 ¿cómo se dice? — the sentence that unlocks the rest
Ask how something is said.

183.2 ¿cómo se dice? — the sentence that unlocks the rest
Ask how something is said in Spanish, politely.

183.3 ¿cómo se dice? — the sentence that unlocks the rest
Why is it se dice rather than a form aimed at the person you are asking?

Chapter 184

184.1 Review — the three se's
Of the three se's, which two are really one word?

184.2 Review — the three se's
What single thing right after se tells you it is the impostor?

184.3 Review — the three se's
Which se is in como se dice?

Chapter 185

185.1 Synthesis — reading the window
What does the sign SE COMPRAN LIBROS tell you?

185.2 Synthesis — reading the window
A sign has a word you do not know. Ask somebody, politely.

185.3 Synthesis — reading the window
Say the food is good here, the way a sign would.

185.4 Synthesis — reading the window
Why does leaving the person out give a sign its authority?

Chapter 186

186.1 el libro que compro — one sentence out of two
Join Tengo el libro and Compro el libro into one sentence.

186.2 el libro que compro — one sentence out of two
What happens to the repeated noun when que joins two sentences?

186.3 el libro que compro — one sentence out of two
Which question words share que's root?

Chapter 187

187.1 el libro que compré — the word you cannot leave out
Say the book I bought.

187.2 el libro que compré — the word you cannot leave out
Say the house I have.

187.3 el libro que compré — the word you cannot leave out
What English pattern always means a que is needed in Spanish?

187.4 el libro que compré — the word you cannot leave out
Why can English afford to drop it when Spanish cannot?

Chapter 188

188.1 lo que — "what," out of two old words
Say what I say, meaning the thing that I say.

188.2 lo que — "what," out of two old words
What is the difference between lo digo and lo que digo?

188.3 lo que — "what," out of two old words
How many new words did this chapter introduce?

Chapter 189

189.1 Review — three jobs, no new words
How many new words did this rung introduce?

189.2 Review — three jobs, no new words
Say the house I have, and name the trap.

189.3 Review — three jobs, no new words
When there is no noun to join to, what supplies one?

Chapter 190

190.1 Synthesis — sentences worth saying
Ask whether somebody has the book you bought.

190.2 Synthesis — sentences worth saying
Say the thing I do not have.

190.3 Synthesis — sentences worth saying
Say what I do not have is the meal you make.

190.4 Synthesis — sentences worth saying
Why is a long sentence not harder than the short ones it is made of?

Chapter 191

191.1 hay — "there is," "there are," same word
Say there is a house.

191.2 hay — "there is," "there are," same word
Say there are books.

191.3 hay — "there is," "there are," same word
What does hay agree with?

Chapter 192

192.1 ha + y — the fossil in a three-letter word
What two pieces make up hay?

192.2 ha + y — the fossil in a three-letter word
Where else in modern Spanish does that y meaning there appear?

192.3 ha + y — the fossil in a three-letter word
Which French phrase is the same three pieces, kept separate?

Chapter 193

193.1 hay que — somebody has to, and nobody in particular
Say you have to speak Spanish, without naming anybody.

193.2 hay que — somebody has to, and nobody in particular
What form of the verb follows hay que?

193.3 hay que — somebody has to, and nobody in particular
Name the other Spanish construction that leaves the person out.

Chapter 194

194.1 Review — three letters
Say there is a house, there are books, and one must eat.

194.2 Review — three letters
Name the two things hay never does.

194.3 Review — three letters
Why did a three-letter word need four chapters when comida needed one?

Chapter 195

195.1 Synthesis — describing where you are
Ask what there is here.
195.2 Synthesis — describing where you are
Say there are books, the ones I bought.
195.3 Synthesis — describing where you are
Say what there is, one must eat.
195.4 Synthesis — describing where you are
What is left to learn now that the machinery is assembled?

Chapter 196

196.1 si
Say: if I have time, I speak Spanish.
196.2 si
Which one means yes, si or si with an accent?
196.3 si
What is the Latin word for yes built out of?

Chapter 197

197.1 si + futuro
Say: if I have time, I will speak Spanish.
197.2 si + futuro
Is si tendre tiempo correct?
197.3 si + futuro
Why does only the second half get the future?

Chapter 198

198.1 Synthesis — real conditions
Say it as a habit: if I have time, I speak Spanish.
198.2 Synthesis — real conditions
Now say it as a plan for today.
198.3 Synthesis — real conditions
Si and si with an accent: which is which?

Chapter 199

199.1 hablaron
Say: they spoke Spanish.

199.2 hablaron
Why does hablo carry an accent but hablaron does not?

199.3 hablaron
Build the same form from trabajar.

Chapter 200

200.1 hablamos
Say: we spoke Spanish.

200.2 hablamos
How does a listener know which tense hablamos is?

200.3 hablamos
Give the we form and the they form, both past, for trabajar.

Chapter 201

201.1 comieron
Say: they ate.

201.2 comieron
Now the same form from vivir.

201.3 comieron
Which of hablamos, comimos and vivimos is a past form ONLY?

Chapter 202

202.1 tuvieron
Say: they had.

202.2 tuvieron
Build the same form from hacer.

202.3 tuvieron
Which strong forms hold the stress on the stem?

Chapter 203

203.1 fueron
Say: they were.

203.2 fueron
How many meanings does fueron have?

203.3 fueron
Where did Spanish get the past of to be?

Chapter 204

204.1 Review — the whole preterite
Which two we-forms are present AND past?

204.2 Review — the whole preterite
Name the four stems that had to be memorised.

204.3 Review — the whole preterite
Which plural refuses both -aron and -ieron?

Chapter 205

205.1 Synthesis — telling what happened
Say: they spoke Spanish and they had time.

205.2 Synthesis — telling what happened
Say: we ate at home.

205.3 Synthesis — telling what happened
Swap the -ron on tuvieron for -ra. What do you get?

Chapter 206

206.1 hablara
Build the supposing form of comer.

206.2 hablara
Why does this form have no irregular verbs?

206.3 hablara
What did this -ra ending mean in Latin?

Chapter 207

207.1 tuviera
Build the supposing form of tener.

207.2 tuviera
How many verbs does fuera serve?

207.3 tuviera
How many new stems did this chapter ask you to learn?

Chapter 208

208.1 si tuviera
Say: if I had time, I would speak Spanish.

208.2 si tuviera
What does the unreal version tell a listener that the real one does not?

208.3 si tuviera
Is si tenga tiempo possible?

Chapter 209

209.1 Review — the two conditions
Turn si tengo tiempo, hablo espanol into the unreal version.

209.2 Review — the two conditions
Name the two forms that never follow si.

209.3 Review — the two conditions
What does si itself contribute to the difference between the three sentences?

Chapter 210

210.1 Synthesis — supposing out loud
Say: if I were a teacher, I would speak Spanish.

210.2 Synthesis — supposing out loud
Say one true-for-you unreal condition about today.

210.3 Synthesis — supposing out loud
Which earlier gap had to be filled before this sentence was possible?

Chapter 211

211.1 dice que
Report it: he says he is tired.

211.2 dice que
Can you leave que out, the way English leaves out that?

211.3 dice que
Which word did you change to report your own words instead of his?

Chapter 212

212.1 dijo
He said.

212.2 dijo
They said. Careful — the ending is not the one you learned for tuvieron.

212.3 dijo
Which Latin letter is the j of dijo descended from?

Chapter 213

213.1 dijo que
Move it back: Dice que esta cansado.

213.2 dijo que
Move it back: Dice que trabaja.

213.3 dijo que
Why the imperfect rather than the preterite?

Chapter 214

214.1 preguntó si
Report it: Trabaja? (he asked)

214.2 preguntó si
Does the reported version keep its question marks?

214.3 preguntó si
Where have you met this si before?

Chapter 215

215.1 preguntó dónde
Report it: Donde trabaja? (he asked)

215.2 preguntó dónde
Does donde keep its accent in the reported version?

215.3 preguntó dónde
Do you need que or si in front of donde here?

Chapter 216

216.1 (review)
Which joint reports a statement?

216.2 (review)
Which joint reports a yes-or-no question?

216.3 (review)
And when the question already starts with donde?

Chapter 217

217.1 (synthesis)
Report the first line of the conversation.

217.2 (synthesis)
Report the second line.

217.3 (synthesis)
Report the third line.

Chapter 218

218.1 pero — the word that lets two true things stand together
Say: I am tired, but I study.

218.2 pero — the word that lets two true things stand together
Does pero cancel the first half of the sentence?

218.3 pero — the word that lets two true things stand together
How many Latin words is pero, originally?

Chapter 219

219.1 también — a word with your very first word inside it
Somebody says Estoy cansado. Agree, in two words.

219.2 también — a word with your very first word inside it
What two words is tambien made of?

219.3 también — a word with your very first word inside it
What does tan mean on its own?

Chapter 220

220.1 tampoco — the same frame, the other half
Somebody says No estoy cansado. Agree, in two words.

220.2 tampoco — the same frame, the other half
What two words is tampoco made of?

220.3 tampoco — the same frame, the other half
Which word tells you to answer tampoco rather than tambien?

Chapter 221

221.1 este — pointing at what is in your hand
Say: this book.

221.2 este — pointing at what is in your hand
Now: this house.

221.3 este — pointing at what is in your hand
Is el este libro possible?

Chapter 222

222.1 ese — pointing at what is by you
The book is next to the person you are talking to. Say: that book.

222.2 ese — pointing at what is by you
What decides between este and ese – distance, or something else?

222.3 ese — pointing at what is by you
What did the Latin word behind ese originally mean?

Chapter 223

223.1 aquel — the far one, and an old friend in disguise
The house is across the street, near neither of you. Say: that house.

223.2 aquel — the far one, and an old friend in disguise
Name the three, in order: by me, by you, by neither.

223.3 aquel — the far one, and an old friend in disguise
Which word from chapter one is hiding inside aquel?

Chapter 224

224.1 esto · eso · aquello — pointing at what has no name yet
You are holding something and have no idea what it is. Ask what it is.

224.2 esto · eso · aquello — pointing at what has no name yet
Is esto masculine or feminine?

Chapter 225

225.1 (review)
A book is an arm's length away, right next to the person you are speaking to. Este or ese?

225.2 (review)
Which question do you ask first, before choosing a form?

225.3 (review)
What does the pointing word push out of the sentence?

Chapter 226

226.1 muy — the same word, bitten short
Say: I am very tired.

226.2 muy — the same word, bitten short
Which form goes in front of a noun – muy or mucho?

226.3 muy — the same word, bitten short
Can muy stand on its own as an answer?

Chapter 227

227.1 bastante — an ending you can already read
Say: I am quite tired.

227.2 bastante — an ending you can already read
Put them in order, least to most: muy, poco, bastante.

227.3 bastante — an ending you can already read
What does bastante literally mean, taken apart?

Chapter 228

228.1 mal — bien finally gets its opposite
Somebody asks how you are, and you are not well. Answer.

228.2 mal — bien finally gets its opposite
Which form is the plain adjective, bad – mal or malo?

228.3 mal — bien finally gets its opposite
Give the opposite of bien, and the opposite of bueno.

228.4 a word in a hurry — the short form and the long one
What do mucho/muy and malo/mal have in common?

228.5 a word in a hurry — the short form and the long one
Which of each pair stands on its own – mucho or muy, malo or mal?

228.6 a word in a hurry — the short form and the long one
When a Spanish word loses its ending, what is it about to do?

Chapter 229

229.1 (review)
Which of the three means enough rather than a lot?

229.2 (review)
When does a Spanish word lose its ending?

229.3 (review)
Which ending inside bastante had you already learned to read?

Chapter 230

230.1 al — two words Spanish will not let you keep apart
Say: I'm going to the cafe.

230.2 al — two words Spanish will not let you keep apart
Is a el cafe a more careful way of saying it?

230.3 al — two words Spanish will not let you keep apart
Why does Voy a El Salvador keep the two words apart?

Chapter 231

231.1 del — and then the list stops
Say: the teacher's book.

231.2 del — and then the list stops
How many obligatory contractions does Spanish have?

231.3 del — and then the list stops
Does de la contract?

Chapter 232

232.1 quién — the asking word reserved for people
Somebody knocks. Ask who it is.

232.2 quién — the asking word reserved for people
You want the name of a person. Que or quien?

232.3 quién — the asking word reserved for people
Which Latin form did quien come from – the subject one or the object one?

Chapter 233

233.1 o — one letter, one catch
Offer a choice: coffee or water?

233.2 o — one letter, one catch
Say: seven or eight.

233.3 o — one letter, one catch
Is the o-to-u swap about spelling or about sound?

Chapter 234

234.1 ni — joining two absences
Say: I don't want coffee or water.

234.2 ni — joining two absences
How many negative words are in that sentence, and is it correct?

234.3 ni — joining two absences
Does ni mean or, or and not?

Chapter 235

235.1 (review)
How many obligatory contractions must you learn in Spanish?

235.2 (review)
The answer you expect is a person's name. Which asking word?

235.3 (review)
Why does siete o ocho become siete u ocho?

Chapter 236

236.1 hablando — an action caught in the middle
Make the -ando form of trabajar.

236.2 hablando — an action caught in the middle
How many forms of hablando are there, for all the different people?

236.3 hablando — an action caught in the middle
Does hablando mean to speak, I speak, or speaking?

Chapter 237

237.1 comiendo · viviendo — two families, one ending
Make the gerund of comer.

237.2 comiendo · viviendo — two families, one ending
And of vivir?

237.3 comiendo · viviendo — two families, one ending
How many gerund endings are there for three verb families?

Chapter 238

238.1 estoy hablando — the payoff
Say: I am eating.

238.2 estoy hablando — the payoff
Which of the two words changes for different people?

238.3 estoy hablando — the payoff
Can estoy comiendo mean I'm eating with her tomorrow?

Chapter 239

239.1 veo a María — the little a that guards people
Say: I see Maria.

239.2 veo a María — the little a that guards people
Now: I see the house.

239.3 veo a María — the little a that guards people
What job is the little a doing that Latin did with an ending?

Chapter 240

240.1 (review)
Say: we are studying.

240.2 (review)
Which of these takes the little a – seeing a house, or seeing a person?

240.3 (review)
How do you say you are eating with somebody tomorrow?

Chapter 241

241.1 hablasteis — the form you were promised
You all spoke.

241.2 hablasteis — the form you were promised
Which form is hidden inside hablasteis?

241.3 hablasteis — the form you were promised
How many forms of the -ar preterite do you now hold?

Chapter 242

242.1 comisteis · tuvisteis — the last gap closes
You all ate.

242.2 comisteis · tuvisteis — the last gap closes
You all had. (tener)

242.3 comisteis · tuvisteis — the last gap closes
Is any part of the preterite still owed to you?

Chapter 243

243.1 hablábamos — the imperfect gets its plural
We used to speak.

243.2 hablábamos — the imperfect gets its plural
They used to work.

243.3 hablábamos — the imperfect gets its plural
Why does only hablabamos need a written accent?

Chapter 244

244.1 comíamos · éramos · íbamos — every one with an accent
We used to eat.

244.2 comíamos · éramos · íbamos — every one with an accent
We were. (ser)

244.3 comíamos · éramos · íbamos — every one with an accent
How many irregular verbs does the imperfect have?

Chapter 245

245.1 (review)
Which single form of the -aba imperfect carries a written accent?

245.2 (review)
Name the three irregular imperfects.

245.3 (review)
Is anything still owed to you in either past tense?

Chapter 246

246.1 para mí — the pronouns that stand on their own
Say: the coffee is for me.

246.2 para mí — the pronouns that stand on their own
Which persons actually change shape after a preposition?

246.3 para mí — the pronouns that stand on their own
Why does mi take an accent but ti does not?

Chapter 247

247.1 conmigo · contigo — the word that says "with" twice
Ask: are you coming with me?

247.2 conmigo · contigo — the word that says "with" twice
How many times does the word with appear inside conmigo?

247.3 conmigo · contigo — the word that says "with" twice
And with him?

Chapter 248

248.1 ¡Qué grande! — the same word, exclaiming
Somebody shows you something enormous. React, in two words.

248.2 ¡Qué grande! — the same word, exclaiming
Say the Spanish for great! or nice!

248.3 ¡Qué grande! — the same word, exclaiming
What has that accent always marked – questions, or something else?

Chapter 249

249.1 María, ven — naming who you are talking to Tell Maria to come, naming her first.

249.2 María, ven — naming who you are talking to
What marks the person being addressed?

249.3 María, ven — naming who you are talking to
Does the person you address take the personal a?

Chapter 250

250.1 (review)
With me?

250.2 (review)
For you. (informal)

250.3 (review)
What replaced Latin's case for addressing somebody?

Chapter 251

251.1 ahí · allí — the other two places
The book is next to the person you are speaking to. Which place word?

251.2 ahí · allí — the other two places
And across the room, near neither of you?

251.3 ahí · allí — the other two places
Which pointing word goes with ahi?

Chapter 252

252.1 ahora — now
Say: right now I am eating.

252.2 ahora — now
Which word you already knew is hiding inside ahora?

252.3 ahora — now
Which of ahora and manana is the one you are inside of?

252.4 hoy — today
The word for today?

252.5 hoy — today
Which Latin word wore down into hoy, and what did it mean?

252.6 hoy — today
Say: today I am going to eat with her.

Chapter 253

253.1 unos · unas — the plural of "one"
Say: some books.

253.2 unos · unas — the plural of "one"
And some houses?

253.3 unos · unas — the plural of "one"
Which one talks about books in general – compro libros, or compro unos libros?

Chapter 254

254.1 vuestro — the last possessive
Say: your house, speaking to several friends.

254.2 vuestro — the last possessive
Which two possessives change for gender?

254.3 vuestro — the last possessive
How many possessives are there in the set now?

Chapter 255

255.1 vi — the shortest past in the language
I saw.

255.2 vi — the shortest past in the language
He saw.

255.3 vi — the shortest past in the language
Why does vi take no accent when comi does?

255.4 di — the verb that changed families in the past
He gave.

255.5 di — the verb that changed families in the past
Dar is an -ar verb. Which endings does it take in the past?

255.6 di — the verb that changed families in the past
Which two preterite forms of dar carry no written accent, and why?

Chapter 256

256.1 (review)
Which says books in general – compro libros, or compro unos libros?

256.2 (review)
What is hiding inside ahora?

256.3 (review)
Which set of past endings does dar take?

256.4 Review — two pasts, both finished
You all ate, then you all had.

256.5 Review — two pasts, both finished
Why does comiamos need its accent?

256.6 Review — two pasts, both finished
Dar is an -ar verb. Say I gave.

256.7 Review — two pasts, both finished
We were, and we used to go.

256.8 Review — the column that belongs to vosotros
You all go.

256.9 Review — the column that belongs to vosotros
You all ate, and you all had.

256.10 Review — the column that belongs to vosotros
Nosotros gives nuestro. What does vosotros give?

Chapter 257

257.1 hablo — one form, two readings
Give the two English readings of Como.

257.2 hablo — one form, two readings
Somebody asks what you are doing. Which is the ordinary answer – como, or estoy comiendo?

257.3 hablo — one form, two readings
So what is estoy comiendo actually for?

Chapter 258

258.1 hablo · hablas · habla — the ending says who
What decides the ending on a Spanish verb?

258.2 hablo · hablas · habla — the ending says who
Why can Spanish leave out yo?

258.3 hablo · hablas · habla — the ending says who
When does the pronoun come back?

Chapter 259

259.1 mucha agua · pocos libros — when the quantity word agrees
Say: a lot of water.

259.2 mucha agua · pocos libros — when the quantity word agrees
Say: she works a lot.

259.3 mucha agua · pocos libros — when the quantity word agrees
What single question decides whether it agrees?

Chapter 260

260.1 María · España · profesor — the nouns that need no article
Say: I see Maria.

260.2 María · España · profesor — the nouns that need no article
Why does a name take no article?

260.3 María · España · profesor — the nouns that need no article
You are speaking TO Professor Garcia. Article or no article?

Chapter 261

261.1 (review)
Is estoy comiendo required to say you are eating right now?

261.2 (review)
Ella trabaja mucho, or ella trabaja mucha?

261.3 (review)
Dropping yo – quirk, or consequence?

Chapter 262

262.1 primero · segundo · tercero — counting in order
Uno, dos, tres tells how many. Give the three words that tell which one in the line.

262.2 primero · segundo · tercero — counting in order
Say: the second house.

262.3 primero · segundo · tercero — counting in order
What did the Latin word behind segundo actually mean?

262.4 el primer libro — where an ordinal stands
Say: the first book.

262.5 el primer libro — where an ordinal stands
And the first house?

262.6 el primer libro — where an ordinal stands
Which side of the noun does an ordinal take, and which habit does primer share with muy and mal?

Chapter 263

263.1 uno… otro — splitting a pair
Two books. Say: one is big, the other is good.

263.2 uno… otro — splitting a pair
Is un otro libro correct?

263.3 uno… otro — splitting a pair
Did Latin alter mean any other, or the other of two?

263.4 Review — picking one, pairing two, refusing both
The three place words, nearest to furthest.

263.5 Review — picking one, pairing two, refusing both
Split a pair across a sentence: one is red, the _____ is not.

263.6 Review — picking one, pairing two, refusing both
Turn both of them down: neither one nor the other.

263.7 Review — picking one, pairing two, refusing both
Ask for the one over there, away from you both.

Chapter 264

264.1 comer es bueno — the infinitive as the subject
Say: eating is good.

264.2 comer es bueno — the infinitive as the subject
Is comiendo es bueno correct?

264.3 comer es bueno — the infinitive as the subject
Say: speaking Spanish is good.

264.4 Review — what happens where two words touch
One book, then the first book.

264.5 Review — what happens where two words touch
Give both of Spanish's obligatory contractions.

264.6 Review — what happens where two words touch
Say seven or eight.

264.7 Review — what happens where two words touch
Which word in your Spanish says with twice?

264.8 Review — what happens where two words touch
Put the middle word into the scale: poco, _____, muy.

Chapter 265

265.1 hoy como en casa — the pieces that move
How many places can hoy go in Como en casa?

265.2 hoy como en casa — the pieces that move
What does putting hoy at the front do?

265.3 hoy como en casa — the pieces that move
Why can Spanish move these pieces safely?

265.4 Review — what the ending carries, and what happens when it carries nothing
Say you all go, with no pronoun. Then say what tells the listener who.

265.5 Review — what the ending carries, and what happens when it carries nothing
Give the two English readings of hablo.

265.6 Review — what the ending carries, and what happens when it carries nothing
Say eating is good.

265.7 Review — what the ending carries, and what happens when it carries nothing
Turn comer into a noun with an article.

Chapter 266

266.1 (review)
Eating is good – comer es bueno, or comiendo es bueno?

266.2 (review)
How many times have you now seen a word drop its ending before another word?

266.3 (review)
Does otro take an article?

266.4 Review — one name, four different jobs
I see Maria, then Maria, come.

266.5 Review — one name, four different jobs
Talk about Mrs Garcia in the third person, with her title.

266.6 Review — one name, four different jobs
A lot of water, then he eats a lot.

266.7 Review — one name, four different jobs
Say today I eat at home, putting the emphasis on today.

266.8 Review — one name, four different jobs
Say how big!

266.9 (reading) — the first paragraph
Who does Maria live with?

266.10 (reading) — the first paragraph
Why is she not working today?

266.11 (reading) — the first paragraph
Two things are said about the book. What are they?

266.12 (reading) — the second paragraph
Who is at home with the dog?

266.13 (reading) — the second paragraph
Why does he go out?

266.14 (reading) — the third paragraph
Whose house do they go to on Saturday?

266.15 (reading) — the third paragraph
What does the mother do?

Chapter 268

268.1 Review — three phrases, in the order you need them
Say the three in the order a journey needs them: find it, buy it, sleep.

268.2 Review — three phrases, in the order you need them
Habitar means to live in. What does the -cion ending add?

268.3 Review — three phrases, in the order you need them
Ask for a room, politely.

268.4 Review — when the ending tells the truth, and when it lies
Put the right article on each: habitacion, problema.

268.5 Review — when the ending tells the truth, and when it lies
Which language did the -ma of problema come through?

268.6 Review — when the ending tells the truth, and when it lies
A new word ends in -cion. Which article does it take?

Chapter 318

318.1 Review — hasta pronto, and the word inside it
Say see you soon in Spanish.

318.2 Review — hasta pronto, and the word inside it
What Latin word is pronto from, and what did it mean?

318.3 Review — two sorries, and how to tell them apart
You need to get past somebody in a narrow corridor. Which word?

318.4 Review — two sorries, and how to tell them apart
What does lo siento mean word for word?

318.5 Review — two sorries, and how to tell them apart
What are the two Latin pieces inside perdonar?

318.6 Review — four nouns, easiest gender to hardest
Say the hand in Spanish, with its article.

318.7 Review — four nouns, easiest gender to hardest
An article looks like it is hiding a noun's gender. What can you listen for instead?

318.8 Review — four nouns, easiest gender to hardest
Give the article and noun for the wine, then for the head.

318.9 Review — two marks that were added, and when
Who made the opening question mark official, and in what year?

318.10 Review — two marks that were added, and when
Was the h in hermano ever pronounced?

Chapter 319

319.1 Review — what the surface does not tell you
Which of the two sorries asks the other person for something?

319.2 Review — what the surface does not tell you
El agua takes el. Which pronoun replaces it, and what does that prove?

319.3 Review — what the surface does not tell you
Hijo and hermano both start with a silent h. Which one was once spoken aloud?

319.4 Review — the five words of a leaving
Name the five words of the leaving, in order from the street outwards.

319.5 Review — the five words of a leaving
Which body part is hiding inside esquina?

319.6 Review — the five words of a leaving
El faro was a place before it was a thing. Which place?

319.7 Review — the harbour, the light, and see you soon
Name the harbour and the lighthouse in Spanish, in that order.

319.8 Review — the harbour, the light, and see you soon
Say see you soon, and give the two words it is made of.

319.9 Review — an introduction, start to finish
Which Spanish word is the family name?

319.10 Review — an introduction, start to finish
Give both forms of address, and the one Latin word behind them.

319.11 Review — an introduction, start to finish
A woman is answering an introduction. What does she say?

319.12 Review — two ways to answer an introduction
Which of the two answers literally says you have been put under a spell?

319.13 Review — two ways to answer an introduction
What did the gusto of mucho gusto mean first?

319.14 Review — five answering words, and where they came from
Which of algo and alguien is for people?

319.15 Review — five answering words, and where they came from
What did the Latin behind nadie literally mean?

319.16 Review — five answering words, and where they came from Latin alter, behind otro, meant the other of how many?

319.17 Review — five answering words, and where they came from
Which word you already had has poco hiding inside it?

319.18 Review — the two that agree, and the p that becomes an f
Which two of the five answering words change their ending?

319.19 Review — the two that agree, and the p that becomes an f
Poco and few are the same root. What happened to the p?

Chapter 335

335.1 Review — six words that arrived last
One Spanish noun names both a doorway and the ticket that gets you through it. Which?

335.2 Review — six words that arrived last
You have paid, and you are owed coins back. Name what you are owed.

Chapter 336

336.1 Review — the same six, inside something you would say
Two Spanish sentences use el calor: one about the weather, one about you. Give the one about you.

336.2 Review — the same six, inside something you would say
Ask somebody their age using the noun rather than the years.

Chapter 337

337.1 Your own line — the first writing with no model
Four in the afternoon, meeting someone new. Write your greeting and your name, using only the five given words.

337.2 Your own line — the first writing with no model
Same task, but it is nine in the morning. Write only the greeting.

337.3 Your own line — the first writing with no model
And at ten at night?

Chapter 338

338.1 Four lines about you
Write the line that gives your age. Use the frame, with a blank where the number goes.

338.2 Four lines about you
Which frame answers where you are FROM, and which answers where you live NOW?

338.3 Four lines about you
Write the line that says where you live, then the word that closes the form.

Chapter 339

339.1 The same four lines, with a clock
How long does the DELE A1 writing paper run, and how many tasks does it hold?

339.2 The same four lines, with a clock
The personal-information task asks for how many words?

339.3 The same four lines, with a clock
Under the clock, write the four lines and the close.

Chapter 345

345.1 Review — the mask, the share, and the thing thrown down
Which of the three words was a mask in Latin?

345.2 Review — the mask, the share, and the thing thrown down
Name a thing, and name a share of it.

345.3 Review — three plain words, none of them one piece
Say each object.

345.4 Review — three plain words, none of them one piece
Say the same object.

345.5 Review — three plain words, none of them one piece
Objeto is ob plus iacere. What does iacere mean?

Chapter 388

388.1 Review — four verbs, four kinds of "related"
Which of the four has no relation at all to its English lookalike?

388.2 Review — four verbs, four kinds of "related"
Why is push only a cousin of empujar?

388.3 Review — four verbs, four kinds of "related"
Cry and gritar are the same word. Which language moved the meaning?

Chapter 389

389.1 Review — the verbs that will not sit behind sé
Say you know how to throw.

389.2 Review — the verbs that will not sit behind sé
Why does se gritar sound odd?

389.3 Review — the verbs that will not sit behind sé
What did Latin sapere mean before it meant to know?

Answer Key

The first response is the canonical display answer. When a question accepts other authored forms, they appear underneath.

Chapter 1

1.1 hola — let your eye and your hand meet the word
Answer: four letters; the h
Also accepted: 4; four; h; the h; four, h

1.2 hola — one supported copy
Answer: hola — four letters
Also accepted: hola; 4; four

1.3 hola — look, hide, write, compare
Answer: hola

1.4 One heard greeting — write what you know
Answer: hola

1.5 Grammatical gender — the two noun classes behind el and la
Answer: two
Also accepted: 2

Chapter 2

2.1 buenos or buenas — the rule you have been using all along
Answer: it agrees with masculine plural dias
Also accepted: agreement with masculine plural dias; dias is masculine plural; because dias is masculine and plural

2.2 buenos or buenas — the rule you have been using all along
Answer: tardes is feminine plural
Also accepted: because tardes is feminine; feminine plural; tardes is feminine and plural

Chapter 3

3.1 un — "a," and the number hiding in it
Answer: un dia
Also accepted: un día

3.2 un — "a," and the number hiding in it
Answer: el dia
Also accepted: el día; the first

3.3 un — "a," and the number hiding in it
Answer: one
Also accepted: 1; uno; the number one

3.4 una — the feminine one
Answer: una tarde
Also accepted: una tarde.

3.5 una — the feminine one
Answer: un
Also accepted: un dia; un, dia is masculine

3.6 una — the feminine one
Answer: un
Also accepted: un, from unus; the masculine one

3.7 Review — the four little words
Answer: el dia
Also accepted: el día

3.8 Review — the four little words
Answer: una tarde
Also accepted: una tarde.

3.9 Review — the four little words
Answer: from the noun beside it
Also accepted: the noun; from the noun; it copies the noun

Chapter 11

11.1 Where does ¿ begin? — bracket the spoken span
Answer: no
Also accepted: no it is not; it is not

Chapter 16

16.1 hablo — "I speak"
Answer: hablo
Also accepted: yo hablo

16.2 hablo — "I speak"
Answer: o
Also accepted: -o; the o

16.3 hablo — one word, one whole sentence
Answer: one
Also accepted: 1; just one; uno

16.4 hablo — one word, one whole sentence
Answer: English endings wore down so they no longer show who is speaking
Also accepted: english endings wore down; english lost its endings; english endings dont show the person; because speak never changes

Chapter 17

17.1 hablas — "you speak," to someone you know
Answer: hablas
Also accepted: tu hablas

17.2 hablas — "you speak," to someone you know
Answer: hablo
Also accepted: the first; hablo means i speak

Chapter 18

18.1 habla — "he speaks," and the polite "you speak"
Answer: habla
Also accepted: el habla

18.2 habla — "he speaks," and the polite "you speak"
Answer: habla
Also accepted: usted habla

Chapter 19

19.1 Review — the three forms, side by side
Answer: hablo
Also accepted: yo hablo

19.2 Review — the three forms, side by side
Answer: habla
Also accepted: ella habla

19.3 Review — the three forms, side by side
Answer: hablas
Also accepted: tu hablas

Chapter 23

23.1 -ción — about two thousand words, at once
Answer: informacion
Also accepted: información; la información

23.2 -ción — about two thousand words, at once
Answer: feminine
Also accepted: always feminine; la

23.3 -ción — about two thousand words, at once
Answer: both come from the same latin ending
Also accepted: spanish inherited it and english borrowed it; they are the same word

Chapter 24

24.1 -dad — twelve hundred more
Answer: universidad
Also accepted: la universidad

24.2 -dad — twelve hundred more
Answer: reality
Also accepted: reality, the quality of being real

24.3 -dad — twelve hundred more
Answer: english wore that ending down further
Also accepted: english took it through french and it eroded more

Chapter 25

25.1 -mente — with no upper limit
Answer: rapidamente
Also accepted: rápidamente

25.2 -mente — with no upper limit
Answer: because mente is a feminine noun
Also accepted: it used to agree with the noun mente

25.3 -mente — with no upper limit
Answer: with a rapid mind
Also accepted: with a quick mind

Chapter 26

26.1 Review — three endings
Answer: -cion is -tion, -dad is -ty, -mente is -ly
Also accepted: -ción/-tion, -dad/-ty, -mente/-ly

26.2 Review — three endings
Answer: -cion and -dad, both feminine
Also accepted: -ción and -dad; the two noun endings

26.3 Review — three endings
Answer: -mente, because you can build new words with it
Also accepted: -mente — it makes an adverb from any adjective

Chapter 27

27.1 Synthesis — reading what you were never taught
Answer: the university has an international reputation
Also accepted: the university has international reputation

27.2 Synthesis — reading what you were never taught
Answer: four
Also accepted: 4

27.3 Synthesis — reading what you were never taught
Answer: a rule reaches words you were never taught
Also accepted: it applies to thousands of words at once

27.4 Synthesis — reading what you were never taught
Answer: no, a few have drifted
Also accepted: mostly, but there are false friends

Chapter 28

28.1 $f \to h$ — why the h says nothing
Answer: it marks where an f used to be
Also accepted: the f weakened to h and then to nothing; it is a leftover spelling

28.2 $f \to h$ — why the h says nothing
Answer: fable
Also accepted: fable, fabulous

28.3 $f \to h$ — why the h says nothing
Answer: ferrum, iron, as in ferrous
Also accepted: iron; ferrous

28.4 $f \to h$ — why the h says nothing
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, some were always silent; no — hola and hasta are not

Chapter 29

29.1 cl-, pl-, fl- → ll-
Answer: claim and clamour
Also accepted: claim; clamour, exclaim, proclaim

29.2 cl-, pl-, fl- → ll-
Answer: cl-, pl-, fl-
Also accepted: cl pl fl

29.3 cl-, pl-, fl- → ll-
Answer: clavem, key, as in clavicle
Also accepted: key; clavicle, clef

29.4 cl-, pl-, fl- → ll-
Answer: spanish wore the word down and english borrowed it closer to latin
Also accepted: spanish inherited and eroded it; english borrowed it later

Chapter 31

31.1 Synthesis — the decoder
Answer: folia, leaf, as in foliage
Also accepted: leaf; foliage, portfolio

31.2 Synthesis — the decoder
Answer: plenum, full, as in plenty
Also accepted: full; plenty, plenary

31.3 Synthesis — the decoder
Answer: the conservation of the city
Also accepted: conservation of the city

31.4 Synthesis — the decoder
Answer: it is probably not from latin
Also accepted: it may be arabic, basque or from the americas

Chapter 32

32.1 Synthesis — the same conversation, twice
Answer: hablas
Also accepted: tu hablas

32.2 Synthesis — the same conversation, twice
Answer: habla
Also accepted: habla usted

32.3 Synthesis — the same conversation, twice
Answer: hablo
Also accepted: the same, hablo; hablo both times

Chapter 34

34.1 comer — "to eat," and the second verb family
Answer: -er
Also accepted: er; the -er ending

34.2 como — "I eat," and you already knew how
Answer: como
Also accepted: yo como

34.3 como — "I eat," and you already knew how Answer: the yo ending -o
Also accepted: -o; o; the yo ending

34.4 comes — "you eat," and the first real difference
Answer: comes
Also accepted: tu comes

34.5 comes — "you eat," and the first real difference
Answer: it is talking to tu
Also accepted: you, informal; it means tu; the subject is tu

34.6 come — "he eats," and the polite "you eat"
Answer: come
Also accepted: el come

34.7 come — "he eats," and the polite "you eat"
Answer: come
Also accepted: usted come

34.8 Review — the -er family, all three
Answer: como
Also accepted: yo como

34.9 Review — the -er family, all three Answer: comes
Also accepted: tu comes

34.10 Review — the -er family, all three
Answer: the yo slot
Also accepted: yo; the I form; -o

Chapter 35

35.1 vivir — "to live," and the third family (that's barely new)
Answer: vivo, vives, vive
Also accepted: vivo vives vive; vivo / vives / vive

Chapter 36

36.1 beber — "to drink," and the pattern is yours
Answer: Bebo café.
Also accepted: Bebo café; bebo cafe; bebo cafe.

36.2 qué — "what", a new question word
Answer: ¿Qué bebes?
Also accepted: Qué bebes?; ¿Qué bebes; Qué bebes

36.3 dónde — "where?"
Answer: Vivo en Madrid.
Also accepted: Vivo en Madrid; Yo vivo en Madrid.; Yo vivo en Madrid

36.4 Practice — asking real questions
Answer: como, vivo, bebo
Also accepted: como vivo bebo; como / vivo / bebo

36.5 Practice — asking real questions
Answer: ¿Qué bebes?
Also accepted: Qué bebes?; ¿Qué bebes; Qué bebes

36.6 Practice — asking real questions
Answer: Vivo en Madrid.
Also accepted: Vivo en Madrid; Yo vivo en Madrid.; Yo vivo en Madrid

Chapter 37

37.1 Synthesis — asking, and answering
Answer: que comes
Also accepted: ¿que comes?; qué comes; que comes tu

37.2 Synthesis — asking, and answering
Answer: donde vives
Also accepted: ¿donde vives?; dónde vives

37.3 Synthesis — asking, and answering
Answer: three
Also accepted: 3; all three

Chapter 38

38.1 hablamos — "we speak"
Answer: hablamos
Also accepted: nosotros hablamos

38.2 hablamos — "we speak"
Answer: -mus
Also accepted: mus; amamus

Chapter 39

39.1 hablan — "they speak," and "you all speak"
Answer: hablan
Also accepted: ellos hablan

39.2 hablan — "they speak," and "you all speak"
Answer: hablan
Also accepted: ustedes hablan

39.3 hablan — "they speak," and "you all speak"
Answer: vuestras mercedes
Also accepted: your graces; vuestra merced plural

Chapter 40

40.1 habláis — the form Spain keeps
Answer: hablais
Also accepted: habláis; vosotros hablais

40.2 habláis — the form Spain keeps
Answer: ustedes
Also accepted: ustedes hablan

40.3 habláis — the form Spain keeps
Answer: vos and otros
Also accepted: vos otros; you others

Chapter 41

41.1 Review — the whole thing, at last
Answer: hablamos
Also accepted: nosotros hablamos

41.2 Review — the whole thing, at last
Answer: hablan
Also accepted: ellos hablan

41.3 Review — the whole thing, at last
Answer: six
Also accepted: 6

Chapter 42

42.1 Synthesis — the same sentence, two continents
Answer: hablais
Also accepted: habláis; vosotros hablais

42.2 Synthesis — the same sentence, two continents
Answer: hablan
Also accepted: ustedes hablan

42.3 Synthesis — the same sentence, two continents
Answer: neither, they are regional
Also accepted: neither; both are correct; it depends where you are

Chapter 43

43.1 comemos — "we eat"
Answer: comemos
Also accepted: nosotros comemos

43.2 comemos — "we eat"
Answer: -mos
Also accepted: mos; the mos

43.3 vivimos — where the two families part
Answer: vivimos
Also accepted: nosotros vivimos

43.4 vivimos — where the two families part
Answer: one vowel
Also accepted: the vowel; e versus i; one letter

Chapter 44

44.1 coméis and vivís — the second difference, and the last
Answer: comeis
Also accepted: coméis; vosotros comeis

44.2 coméis and vivís — the second difference, and the last
Answer: vivis
Also accepted: vivís; vosotros vivis

44.3 coméis and vivís — the second difference, and the last
Answer: two
Also accepted: 2; nosotros and vosotros

Chapter 45

45.1 comen and viven — agreeing again
Answer: comen
Also accepted: ellos comen; ustedes comen

45.2 comen and viven — agreeing again
Answer: viven
Also accepted: ellos viven; ustedes viven

45.3 comen and viven — agreeing again
Answer: nosotros and vosotros
Also accepted: nosotros, vosotros; we and you all

Chapter 46

46.1 Review — the present tense, whole
Answer: yo
Also accepted: the yo row; the I form; -o

46.2 Review — the present tense, whole
Answer: nosotros and vosotros
Also accepted: nosotros, vosotros; we and you all

46.3 Review — the present tense, whole
Answer: vivimos
Also accepted: nosotros vivimos

Chapter 47

47.1 uno, dos, tres, cuatro, cinco — counting to five
Answer: uno, dos, tres, cuatro, cinco
Also accepted: uno dos tres cuatro cinco

47.2 uno, dos, tres, cuatro, cinco — counting to five Answer: un café
Also accepted: un cafe

47.3 seis, siete, ocho, nueve, diez — and the calendar's old count
Answer: seis, siete, ocho, nueve, diez
Also accepted: seis siete ocho nueve diez

47.4 seis, siete, ocho, nueve, diez — and the calendar's old count
Answer: older months were renamed
Also accepted: renamed; they were renamed; the older months were renamed

47.5 tener — "to have," with two visible changes
Answer: tengo, tienes, tiene
Also accepted: tengo tienes tiene; tengo / tienes / tiene

47.6 ¿Cuántos años tienes? — asking age
Answer: ¿Cuántos años tienes?
Also accepted: Cuántos años tienes?; ¿Cuántos años tienes; Cuantos anos tienes?

47.7 ¿Cuántos años tienes? — asking age
Answer: Tengo ocho años.
Also accepted: Tengo ocho años; tengo ocho anos; tengo ocho anos.

47.8 Practice — counting, having, and age
Answer: uno, dos, tres, cuatro, cinco, seis, siete, ocho, nueve, diez
Also accepted: uno dos tres cuatro cinco seis siete ocho nueve diez

47.9 Practice — counting, having, and age
Answer: tengo, tienes, tiene
Also accepted: tengo tienes tiene; tengo / tienes / tiene

47.10 Practice — counting, having, and age
Answer: Tengo nueve años.
Also accepted: Tengo nueve años; tengo nueve anos; tengo nueve anos.

Chapter 48

48.1 ser — another way to say "to be"
Answer: soy, eres, es
Also accepted: soy eres es; soy / eres / es

48.2 ser — another way to say "to be"
Answer: es
Also accepted: Usted es Ana.; usted es ana

48.3 ser vs estar — identity or current state?
Answer: es
Also accepted: ¿Es usted Ana?; Es usted Ana?

48.4 ser vs estar — identity or current state?
Answer: está
Also accepted: ¿Está usted bien?; Esta usted bien?; esta

48.5 soy de… — saying where you are from
Answer: ¿De dónde eres?
Also accepted: De dónde eres?; ¿De dónde eres; De donde eres?

48.6 soy de… — saying where you are from
Answer: Soy de Madrid.
Also accepted: Soy de Madrid

48.7 está en… — saying where someone is Answer: ¿Dónde está usted?
Also accepted: Dónde está usted?; ¿Dónde está usted; Donde esta usted?

48.8 está en… — saying where someone is
Answer: Ana está en Madrid.
Also accepted: Ana está en Madrid; ana esta en madrid; ana esta en madrid.

48.9 Practice — identity, origin, state, and location
Answer: es
Also accepted: ¿Es usted Ana?; Es usted Ana?

48.10 Practice — identity, origin, state, and location
Answer: Soy de Madrid.
Also accepted: Soy de Madrid

48.11 Practice — identity, origin, state, and location
Answer: Ana está en Madrid.
Also accepted: Ana está en Madrid; ana esta en madrid; ana esta en madrid.

48.12 Practice — identity, origin, state, and location
Answer: está
Also accepted: ¿Está usted bien?; Esta usted bien?; esta

Chapter 49

49.1 ir — "to go," from more than one historical stem
Answer: voy, vas, va
Also accepted: voy vas va; voy / vas / va

49.2 ir — "to go," from more than one historical stem
Answer: va
Also accepted: ¿Dónde va usted?; Donde va usted?

49.3 voy a + infinitive — moving toward the near future
Answer: Voy a hablar.
Also accepted: Voy a hablar

49.4 voy a + infinitive — moving toward the near future
Answer: Vas a comer.
Also accepted: Vas a comer

49.5 mi, tu, su — whose café?
Answer: mi café
Also accepted: mi cafe

49.6 mi, tu, su — whose café?
Answer: su café
Also accepted: su cafe

49.7 Practice — going, approaching events, and ownership
Answer: voy, vas, va
Also accepted: voy vas va; voy / vas / va

49.8 Practice — going, approaching events, and ownership
Answer: ¿Dónde va usted?
Also accepted: Dónde va usted?; Donde va usted?; ¿Donde va usted?

49.9 Practice — going, approaching events, and ownership
Answer: Voy a hablar.
Also accepted: Voy a hablar

49.10 Practice — going, approaching events, and ownership
Answer: su café
Also accepted: su cafe

Chapter 50

50.1 somos — "we are"
Answer: somos
Also accepted: nosotros somos

50.2 somos — "we are"
Answer: it is two Latin verbs fused
Also accepted: two verbs; esse and sedere; it comes from two verbs

50.3 son — "they are"
Answer: son
Also accepted: ellos son; ustedes son

50.4 son — "they are"
Answer: sunt
Also accepted: sunt, minus the t

50.5 sois — the last of the six
Answer: sois
Also accepted: vosotros sois

50.6 sois — the last of the six
Answer: son
Also accepted: ustedes son

50.7 Review — all of ser
Answer: somos
Also accepted: nosotros somos

50.8 Review — all of ser
Answer: son
Also accepted: ellos son

50.9 Review — all of ser
Answer: eres, it came from a different Latin form
Also accepted: eres; eres - different origin; eres, from eris

Chapter 51

51.1 profesor
Answer: soy profesor
Also accepted: soy profesora

51.2 profesor
Answer: es profesora
Also accepted: ella es profesora

51.3 profesor
Answer: to declare publicly
Also accepted: to declare something publicly; declare

Chapter 52

52.1 estudiante
Answer: estudiante
Also accepted: el estudiante

52.2 estudiante
Answer: somos estudiantes
Also accepted: nosotros somos estudiantes

52.3 estudiante
Answer: important
Also accepted: importantly

Chapter 53

53.1 -ista
Answer: dentist
Also accepted: a dentist

53.2 -ista
Answer: es artista
Also accepted: ella es artista

53.3 -ista
Answer: a newspaper
Also accepted: newspaper; a periodical

Chapter 54

54.1 Synthesis — saying what people do
Answer: somos estudiantes
Also accepted: nosotros somos estudiantes

54.2 Synthesis — saying what people do
Answer: a violinist
Also accepted: violin player

54.3 Synthesis — saying what people do
Answer: soy ... y tu
Also accepted: soy estudiante y tu; soy profesor y tu

Chapter 55

55.1 estamos — the other "we are"
Answer: estamos
Also accepted: nosotros estamos

55.2 estamos — the other "we are"
Answer: estar is one Latin verb, ser is two fused
Also accepted: estar is one verb; ser is two verbs, estar is one; because estar has one ancestor

55.3 están — "they are"
Answer: estan
Also accepted: están; ellos estan; ustedes estan

55.4 están — "they are"
Answer: the stress is on the ending
Also accepted: because estar stresses the ending; stress on the last syllable

55.5 estáis — and nothing surprises you
Answer: estais
Also accepted: estáis; vosotros estais

55.6 estáis — and nothing surprises you
Answer: estan
Also accepted: están; ustedes estan

55.7 Review — both verbs for "to be"
Answer: estamos
Also accepted: nosotros estamos

55.8 Review — both verbs for "to be"
Answer: estan
Also accepted: están; ellos estan

55.9 Review — both verbs for "to be"
Answer: estar, because it is one Latin verb
Also accepted: estar; estar - one verb; estar, it has one ancestor

Chapter 56

56.1 la casa — "house," and "home"
Answer: la casa
Also accepted: casa

56.2 la casa — "house," and "home"
Answer: tengo una casa
Also accepted: yo tengo una casa

56.3 la casa — "house," and "home"
Answer: chez
Also accepted: chez, as in chez moi

Chapter 57

57.1 el libro — "book"
Answer: el libro
Also accepted: libro

57.2 el libro — "book"
Answer: tengo un libro
Also accepted: yo tengo un libro

57.3 el libro — "book"
Answer: the inner bark of a tree
Also accepted: tree bark; bark

Chapter 58

58.1 grande
Answer: una casa grande
Also accepted: casa grande

58.2 grande
Answer: no
Also accepted: no it stays grande

58.3 grande
Answer: full-grown
Also accepted: fully grown; grown up

Chapter 59

59.1 cansado
Answer: estoy cansado
Also accepted: estoy cansada

59.2 cansado
Answer: it is a state not a quality
Also accepted: because being tired is temporary

59.3 cansado
Answer: nothing is wrong the rules are a lead not a guarantee
Also accepted: some words simply give nothing back

Chapter 60

60.1 Synthesis — describing things
Answer: la casa es grande pero estoy cansado
Also accepted: la casa es grande pero estoy cansada

60.2 Synthesis — describing things
Answer: cansada
Also accepted: cansado becomes cansada

60.3 Synthesis — describing things
Answer: una casa grande
Also accepted: casa grande

Chapter 61

61.1 -oso
Answer: mysterious
Also accepted: it means mysterious

61.2 -oso
Answer: una profesora famosa
Also accepted: profesora famosa

61.3 -oso
Answer: estar because it is a state
Also accepted: estar it is how you are right now

Chapter 62

62.1 -ncia
Answer: preference
Also accepted: a preference

62.2 -ncia
Answer: la
Also accepted: la distancia

62.3 -ncia
Answer: una diferencia grande
Also accepted: diferencia grande

Chapter 63

63.1 -ario
Answer: imaginary
Also accepted: it means imaginary

63.2 -ario
Answer: because -ario names the place a thing is kept
Also accepted: it is the place the words are kept

63.3 -ario
Answer: necesaria
Also accepted: it becomes necesaria

Chapter 64

64.1 Review — the eight endings
Answer: -ista
Also accepted: ista

64.2 Review — the eight endings
Answer: feminine
Also accepted: la

64.3 Review — the eight endings
Answer: the possibility
Also accepted: possibility

Chapter 65

65.1 Synthesis — reading a paragraph
Answer: the community has a tradition
Also accepted: the community has a custom

65.2 Synthesis — reading a paragraph
Answer: its structure is voluntary evidently
Also accepted: the structure is voluntary, obviously

65.3 Synthesis — reading a paragraph
Answer: a specialist
Also accepted: specialist

Chapter 66

66.1 falsos amigos
Answer: success because exitus was the way a thing came out
Also accepted: success — spanish kept the outcome, english kept the door

66.2 falsos amigos
Answer: currently
Also accepted: at the moment; right now

66.3 falsos amigos
Answer: trust the sentence over the ending
Also accepted: suspect a false friend and check the context

Chapter 67

67.1 tenemos — and the stem change disappears
Answer: tenemos
Also accepted: nosotros tenemos

67.2 tenemos — and the stem change disappears
Answer: the stress is on the stem in tienes and on the ending in tenemos
Also accepted: stress; because of where the stress falls; tenemos stresses the ending

67.3 tienen — the break comes back
Answer: tienen
Also accepted: ellos tienen; ustedes tienen

67.4 tienen — the break comes back
Answer: nosotros and vosotros
Also accepted: nosotros, vosotros; we and you all

67.5 tienen — the break comes back
Answer: whether the stem is stressed
Also accepted: stress; where the stress falls

Chapter 68

68.1 vamos — from a verb that is not ir
Answer: vamos
Also accepted: nosotros vamos

68.2 vamos — from a verb that is not ir
Answer: the present comes from a different verb, vadere
Also accepted: it is a different verb; from vadere; ir is two verbs

68.3 vamos — from a verb that is not ir Answer: go and went
Also accepted: go, went; went is from wend

68.4 van — and the four are done
Answer: van
Also accepted: ellos van; ustedes van

68.5 van — and the four are done
Answer: son and estan
Also accepted: son, están; son y estan

68.6 van — and the four are done
Answer: it is more than one verb
Also accepted: two verbs fused; it is several words; suppletion

Chapter 69

69.1 querer — wanting with one familiar vowel change
Answer: quiero, quieres, quiere
Also accepted: quiero quieres quiere; quiero / quieres / quiere

69.2 querer — wanting with one familiar vowel change
Answer: Quiero hablar.
Also accepted: Quiero hablar

69.3 poder — ability with the o → ue change
Answer: puedo, puedes, puede
Also accepted: puedo puedes puede; puedo / puedes / puede

69.4 poder — ability with the o → ue change
Answer: Puedes comer.
Also accepted: Puedes comer

69.5 e → ie and o → ue — compare the singular forms
Answer: quiero, puedo
Also accepted: quiero puedo; quiero / puedo

69.6 e → ie and o → ue — compare the singular forms
Answer: tienes, quieres, puedes
Also accepted: tienes quieres puedes; tienes / quieres / puedes

69.7 nuestro, nuestra — "our" with singular gender agreement
Answer: nuestro día
Also accepted: nuestro dia

69.8 nuestro, nuestra — "our" with singular gender agreement
Answer: nuestra noche
Also accepted: nuestra noche.

69.9 Practice — wanting, ability, and our known nouns
Answer: quiero, quieres, quiere
Also accepted: quiero quieres quiere; quiero / quieres / quiere

69.10 Practice — wanting, ability, and our known nouns
Answer: puedo, puedes, puede
Also accepted: puedo puedes puede; puedo / puedes / puede

69.11 Practice — wanting, ability, and our known nouns
Answer: Quiero hablar.
Also accepted: Quiero hablar

69.12 Practice — wanting, ability, and our known nouns
Answer: Puedes comer.
Also accepted: Puedes comer

69.13 Practice — wanting, ability, and our known nouns
Answer: nuestra noche
Also accepted: nuestra noche.

Chapter 70

70.1 hacer — doing or making with three singular forms
Answer: hago, haces, hace
Also accepted: hago haces hace; hago / haces / hace

70.2 hacer — doing or making with three singular forms
Answer: Hago café.
Also accepted: Hago café; Hago cafe; Hago cafe.

70.3 decir — saying with the same small person frame
Answer: digo, dices, dice
Also accepted: digo dices dice; digo / dices / dice

70.4 decir — saying with the same small person frame
Answer: Digo hola.
Also accepted: Digo hola

70.5 decir — saying with the same small person frame
Answer: ¿Cómo dices ‘hola’?
Also accepted: ¿Cómo dices hola?; Cómo dices hola?; Como dices hola?; ¿Como dices hola?

70.6 tengo · hago · digo — compare only what you know
Answer: tengo, hago, digo
Also accepted: tengo hago digo; tengo / hago / digo

70.7 tengo · hago · digo — compare only what you know
Answer: hago
Also accepted: yo hago

70.8 Practice — doing, making, and saying in the singular
Answer: hago, haces, hace
Also accepted: hago haces hace; hago / haces / hace

70.9 Practice — doing, making, and saying in the singular
Answer: digo, dices, dice
Also accepted: digo dices dice; digo / dices / dice

70.10 Practice — doing, making, and saying in the singular
Answer: tengo, hago, digo
Also accepted: tengo hago digo; tengo / hago / digo

70.11 Practice — doing, making, and saying in the singular
Answer: Hago café.
Also accepted: Hago café; Hago cafe; Hago cafe.

70.12 Practice — doing, making, and saying in the singular
Answer: ¿Cómo dices ‘hola’?
Also accepted: ¿Cómo dices hola?; Cómo dices hola?; Como dices hola?; ¿Como dices hola?

Chapter 71

71.1 poner — putting or placing with three singular forms
Answer: pongo, pones, pone
Also accepted: pongo pones pone; pongo / pones / pone

71.2 poner — putting or placing with three singular forms
Answer: to put or to place
Also accepted: put or place; to put and to place; put and place

Chapter 72

72.1 salir — leaving with three singular forms
Answer: salgo, sales, sale
Also accepted: salgo sales sale; salgo / sales / sale

72.2 salir — leaving with three singular forms
Answer: Salgo de Madrid.
Also accepted: Salgo de Madrid

Chapter 73

73.1 venir — coming with three singular forms
Answer: vengo, vienes, viene
Also accepted: vengo vienes viene; vengo / vienes / viene

73.2 venir — coming with three singular forms
Answer: Vengo de Madrid.
Also accepted: Vengo de Madrid

73.3 venir — coming with three singular forms
Answer: vienes, tienes
Also accepted: vienes tienes; vienes / tienes

Chapter 74

74.1 Review — six verbs, one ending
Answer: six
Also accepted: 6; seis

74.2 Review — six verbs, one ending
Answer: the yo slot
Also accepted: yo; the I form; first person

74.3 Review — six verbs, one ending
Answer: no, they converged by accident
Also accepted: no; they are not a family; they arrived by different routes

74.4 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Answer: pongo, pones, pone
Also accepted: pongo pones pone; pongo / pones / pone

74.5 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Answer: salgo, sales, sale
Also accepted: salgo sales sale; salgo / sales / sale

74.6 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Answer: vengo, vienes, viene
Also accepted: vengo vienes viene; vengo / vienes / viene

74.7 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Answer: Salgo de Madrid; vengo de Madrid.
Also accepted: Salgo de Madrid. Vengo de Madrid.; Salgo de Madrid, vengo de Madrid; Salgo de Madrid y vengo de Madrid

74.8 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Answer: tengo, hago, digo, pongo, salgo, vengo
Also accepted: tengo hago digo pongo salgo vengo; tengo / hago / digo / pongo / salgo / vengo

74.9 Practice — putting, leaving, and coming in the singular
Answer: poner—position; salir—salient; venir—convene
Also accepted: poner position salir salient venir convene; poner: position; salir: salient; venir: convene; position salient convene

Chapter 75

75.1 Synthesis — you, and somebody else
Answer: salgo
Also accepted: yo salgo

75.2 Synthesis — you, and somebody else
Answer: sale, and no
Also accepted: sale; sale - regular; no, sale

75.3 Synthesis — you, and somebody else
Answer: the yo slot
Also accepted: yo; the I form; first person

Chapter 76

76.1 queremos, quieren — work them out first
Answer: queremos
Also accepted: nosotros queremos

76.2 queremos, quieren — work them out first
Answer: pueden
Also accepted: ellos pueden; ustedes pueden

76.3 queremos, quieren — work them out first
Answer: podemos
Also accepted: nosotros podemos

76.4 hacemos, hacen — and the club has no plural at all
Answer: hacemos
Also accepted: nosotros hacemos

76.5 hacemos, hacen — and the club has no plural at all
Answer: salen
Also accepted: ellos salen; ustedes salen

76.6 hacemos, hacen — and the club has no plural at all
Answer: decimos and dicen
Also accepted: decimos, dicen

76.7 Synthesis — a verb you have never met
Answer: salimos
Also accepted: nosotros salimos

76.8 Synthesis — a verb you have never met
Answer: salen
Also accepted: ellos salen

76.9 Synthesis — a verb you have never met
Answer: three
Also accepted: 3; tres

Chapter 77

77.1 la comida — "food," built from a verb you have Answer: comida
Also accepted: la comida

77.2 la comida — "food," built from a verb you have
Answer: hago la comida
Also accepted: yo hago la comida

77.3 la comida — "food," built from a verb you have Answer: feminine
Also accepted: always feminine

Chapter 78

78.1 las casas — "the houses"
Answer: las casas
Also accepted: las casa s

78.2 las casas — "the houses"
Answer: las comidas
Also accepted: comidas

78.3 las casas — "the houses"
Answer: none
Also accepted: zero; 0

Chapter 79

79.1 los libros — "the books"
Answer: los libros
Also accepted: libros

79.2 los libros — "the books"
Answer: the plural kept the vowel the singular lost
Also accepted: el is a worn-down elo; they wore down differently

79.3 los libros — "the books"
Answer: el, la, los, las
Also accepted: el la los las; el / la / los / las

Chapter 80

80.1 -es — the plural your first chapter owed you
Answer: espanoles
Also accepted: los espanoles

80.2 -es — the plural your first chapter owed you
Answer: ustedes
Also accepted: usted becomes ustedes; usted

80.3 -es — the plural your first chapter owed you
Answer: the bare s would be unsayable
Also accepted: you cannot pronounce it; spanish needs a vowel to get the s out

Chapter 81

81.1 Review — all four words for "the"
Answer: el, la, los, las
Also accepted: el la los las; el / la / los / las

81.2 Review — all four words for "the"
Answer: los libros, las casas
Also accepted: los libros las casas

81.3 Review — all four words for "the"
Answer: add -s, or -es when the bare s would be unsayable
Also accepted: -s after a vowel and -es after a consonant

81.4 Review — the half of ir you never say out loud
Answer: vamos, van
Also accepted: vamos y van; nosotros vamos, ellos van

81.5 Review — the half of ir you never say out loud
Answer: vais
Also accepted: vosotros vais

81.6 Review — the half of ir you never say out loud
Answer: la ida
Also accepted: ida

Chapter 82

82.1 Synthesis — more than one
Answer: tengo libros
Also accepted: yo tengo libros

82.2 Synthesis — more than one
Answer: tengo los libros
Also accepted: yo tengo los libros

82.3 Synthesis — more than one
Answer: hago comidas
Also accepted: yo hago comidas

82.4 Synthesis — more than one
Answer: houses in general versus particular known ones
Also accepted: one is indefinite and one is definite; las casas means the houses

Chapter 83

83.1 lo — "it"
Answer: lo tengo
Also accepted: yo lo tengo

83.2 lo — "it"
Answer: before
Also accepted: in front of it; before the verb

83.3 lo — "it"
Answer: el
Also accepted: the article el; el, the article

Chapter 84

84.1 la — "it," for a feminine noun
Answer: la hago
Also accepted: yo la hago

84.2 la — "it," for a feminine noun
Answer: the gender of the noun it replaces
Also accepted: the noun's gender; whether the noun is masculine or feminine

84.3 la — "it," for a feminine noun
Answer: the masculine lost a vowel and the feminine had none to lose
Also accepted: only the masculine wore down; the sound change only hit the masculine

Chapter 85

85.1 me quieres — "you love me"
Answer: me quieres
Also accepted: tu me quieres

85.2 me quieres — "you love me"
Answer: it is the person the verb lands on
Also accepted: it is the object; it is who is being loved

85.3 me quieres — "you love me"
Answer: none
Also accepted: zero; 0

85.4 te quiero — "I love you"
Answer: te quiero
Also accepted: yo te quiero

85.5 te quiero — "I love you"
Answer: querer aimed at a person means to love
Also accepted: because the object is a person; with people it means love

85.6 te quiero — "I love you"
Answer: tu does, te receives
Also accepted: tu is the doer, te is the object; tu doer te object

85.7 te — the pair English used to have
Answer: thou and thee
Also accepted: thou thee; thee and thou

85.8 te — the pair English used to have Answer: te
Also accepted: te, the object form

Chapter 86

86.1 Review — four pronouns, one slot
Answer: me, te, lo, la
Also accepted: me te lo la; me / te / lo / la

86.2 Review — four pronouns, one slot
Answer: who or what the verb lands on
Also accepted: who is receiving the action; what the object is

86.3 Review — four pronouns, one slot
Answer: lo and la
Also accepted: lo, la; la and lo

Chapter 87

87.1 Synthesis — saying it once
Answer: si, lo tengo
Also accepted: lo tengo; si lo tengo

87.2 Synthesis — saying it once
Answer: si, la hago
Also accepted: la hago; si la hago

87.3 Synthesis — saying it once
Answer: me quieres
Also accepted: y yo te quiero; te quiero

87.4 Synthesis — saying it once
Answer: it named the same thing twice
Also accepted: it repeated the noun; nobody talks like that

Chapter 88

88.1 nos — "us"
Answer: nos quieren
Also accepted: ellos nos quieren

88.2 nos — "us"
Answer: how many people are on the receiving end
Also accepted: one person versus more than one; me is one, nos is more

88.3 nos — "us"
Answer: in front of the verb
Also accepted: before the verb; the same slot as me and te

88.4 nosotros — the "we" the verb already says
Answer: -mos
Also accepted: the -mos ending; mos

88.5 nosotros — the "we" the verb already says
Answer: nos and otros, we others
Also accepted: nos + otros; we others

88.6 nosotros — the "we" the verb already says
Answer: nosotros and the -mos ending
Also accepted: nosotros and -mos; the pronoun and the ending

Chapter 89

89.1 los and las — "them"
Answer: los tengo
Also accepted: yo los tengo

89.2 los and las — "them"
Answer: las hago
Also accepted: yo las hago

89.3 los and las — "them"
Answer: lo never lost the vowel el lost
Also accepted: it kept its vowel; there was nothing to repair

Chapter 90

90.1 os — "you all," in Spain
Answer: os quiero
Also accepted: yo os quiero

90.2 os — "you all," in Spain
Answer: los quiero
Also accepted: las quiero; los quiero a ustedes

90.3 os — "you all," in Spain
Answer: vos, in Argentina
Also accepted: vos; vos, in the river plate region

Chapter 91

91.1 Review — all eight
Answer: me, te, lo, la, nos, os, los, las
Also accepted: me te lo la nos os los las

91.2 Review — all eight
Answer: lo, la, los, las
Also accepted: lo la los las; the bottom two rows

91.3 Review — all eight
Answer: los and las
Also accepted: los, las

Chapter 92

92.1 Synthesis — the conversation without them
Answer: si, los tengo
Also accepted: los tengo; si los tengo

92.2 Synthesis — the conversation without them
Answer: las hago
Also accepted: si, las hago; las hago hoy

92.3 Synthesis — the conversation without them
Answer: nos quieren
Also accepted: ellos nos quieren

92.4 Synthesis — the conversation without them
Answer: they look for a masculine thing and there is not one
Also accepted: the pronoun points at nothing; the gender does not match what was said

Chapter 93

93.1 le — "to him," "to her," "to you"
Answer: le digo
Also accepted: yo le digo

93.2 le — "to him," "to her," "to you"
Answer: none
Also accepted: one form for all; it does not mark gender

93.3 le — "to him," "to her," "to you"
Answer: illi, for the one the action is aimed at
Also accepted: illi, the dative; illi

Chapter 94

94.1 les — "to them," and what this system really costs
Answer: les digo
Also accepted: yo les digo

94.2 les — "to them," and what this system really costs
Answer: two
Also accepted: 2; le and les

94.3 les — "to them," and what this system really costs
Answer: me, te, nos, os
Also accepted: me te nos os

Chapter 95

95.1 Which one is the verb asking for?
Answer: does the verb act on it or aim at it
Also accepted: can you put to in front of it in english; to whom versus what

95.2 Which one is the verb asking for?
Answer: le hablo
Also accepted: yo le hablo

95.3 Which one is the verb asking for?
Answer: lo tengo, direct
Also accepted: lo tengo

95.4 Which one is the verb asking for?
Answer: no, it is leismo and it is accepted
Also accepted: no; no, that is normal in spain

Chapter 96

96.1 Review — two systems, two new words
Answer: me, te, le, nos, os, les
Also accepted: me te le nos os les

96.2 Review — two systems, two new words
Answer: the him/her row: lo and la versus le
Also accepted: the third row; lo la versus le

96.3 Review — two systems, two new words
Answer: nine
Also accepted: 9; me te lo la le nos os los las les

Chapter 97

97.1 Synthesis — the thing and the person, in one sentence
Answer: si, lo tengo
Also accepted: lo tengo

97.2 Synthesis — the thing and the person, in one sentence
Answer: le digo hoy
Also accepted: le digo

97.3 Synthesis — the thing and the person, in one sentence
Answer: les hablo
Also accepted: yo les hablo

97.4 Synthesis — the thing and the person, in one sentence
Answer: what you mean
Also accepted: the meaning; whether the verb acts on it or aims at it

Chapter 98

98.1 me lo — both at once
Answer: te lo digo
Also accepted: yo te lo digo

98.2 me lo — both at once
Answer: the person
Also accepted: indirect first; the indirect one

98.3 me lo — both at once
Answer: me la haces
Also accepted: tu me la haces

Chapter 99

99.1 se lo — the pair that does not exist
Answer: se lo digo
Also accepted: yo se lo digo

99.2 se lo — the pair that does not exist
Answer: lo, la, los, las
Also accepted: lo la los las; the direct object pronouns for things

99.3 se lo — the pair that does not exist
Answer: five: him, her, you, them, you all
Also accepted: five; him her you them or you all

Chapter 100

100.1 Why se? — and why it is not the se you know
Answer: gelo
Also accepted: ge lo

100.2 Why se? — and why it is not the se you know
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, they are unrelated; no, they only sound alike

100.3 Why se? — and why it is not the se you know
Answer: illi and illum
Also accepted: illi, illum; the dative and the accusative

Chapter 101

101.1 Review — the pairs
Answer: person first, and le becomes se before the thing
Also accepted: indirect first; le and les become se

101.2 Review — the pairs
Answer: nos lo
Also accepted: nos la; nos lo or nos la

101.3 Review — the pairs
Answer: none
Also accepted: zero; 0

Chapter 102

102.1 Synthesis — two at a time
Answer: te lo digo
Also accepted: ¿te lo digo?; te lo digo?

102.2 Synthesis — two at a time
Answer: se la hago
Also accepted: yo se la hago

102.3 Synthesis — two at a time
Answer: none
Also accepted: zero; 0

102.4 Synthesis — two at a time
Answer: no, it becomes about something else
Also accepted: no; it stays grammatical but means something else

Chapter 103

103.1 fui — one past set shared by ser and ir
Answer: fui, fuiste, fue
Also accepted: fui fuiste fue; fui / fuiste / fue

103.2 fui — one past set shared by ser and ir
Answer: Fui a Madrid.
Also accepted: Fui a Madrid

103.3 fui — one past set shared by ser and ir
Answer: ser

103.4 hablé — a regular singular past from a known verb
Answer: hablé, hablaste, habló
Also accepted: hablé hablaste habló; hablé / hablaste / habló

103.5 hablé — a regular singular past from a known verb
Answer: Hablé español.
Also accepted: Hablé español

103.6 hablé — a regular singular past from a known verb
Answer: hablé

103.7 Practice — two singular ways to talk about a completed past
Answer: fui, fuiste, fue
Also accepted: fui fuiste fue; fui / fuiste / fue

103.8 Practice — two singular ways to talk about a completed past
Answer: hablé, hablaste, habló
Also accepted: hablé hablaste habló; hablé / hablaste / habló

103.9 Practice — two singular ways to talk about a completed past
Answer: Fui a Madrid.
Also accepted: Fui a Madrid

103.10 Practice — two singular ways to talk about a completed past
Answer: Hablo español. Hablé español.
Also accepted: Hablo español; hablé español; Hablo español. Hablé español; hablo español hablé español

103.11 Practice — two singular ways to talk about a completed past
Answer: hablé and habló
Also accepted: hablé habló; hablé y habló; hablé / habló

Chapter 104

104.1 comí — one regular -er singular past
Answer: comí, comiste, comió
Also accepted: comí comiste comió; comí / comiste / comió

104.2 comí — one regular -er singular past
Answer: comí

104.3 comí — one regular -er singular past
Answer: sound change plus analogy
Also accepted: sound change and analogy; sound change, plus analogy

104.4 viví — reuse one past pattern with an -ir verb
Answer: viví, viviste, vivió
Also accepted: viví viviste vivió; viví / viviste / vivió

104.5 viví — reuse one past pattern with an -ir verb
Answer: Viví en Madrid.
Also accepted: Viví en Madrid

104.6 viví — reuse one past pattern with an -ir verb
Answer: -í, -iste, -ió
Also accepted: í iste ió; -í -iste -ió; -í / -iste / -ió

Chapter 105

105.1 tuve — let the strong stem carry the stress
Answer: tuve, tuviste, tuvo
Also accepted: tuve tuviste tuvo; tuve / tuviste / tuvo

105.2 tuve — let the strong stem carry the stress
Answer: Tuve café.
Also accepted: Tuve café

105.3 tuve — let the strong stem carry the stress
Answer: a historically reshaped strong form
Also accepted: historically reshaped strong form; a reshaped strong form

105.4 hice — the strong pattern with one third-person swerve
Answer: hice, hiciste, hizo
Also accepted: hice hiciste hizo; hice / hiciste / hizo

105.5 hice — the strong pattern with one third-person swerve Answer: Hice café.
Also accepted: Hice café

105.6 hice — the strong pattern with one third-person swerve
Answer: fēcī
Also accepted: feci

105.7 estuve — a third known verb joins the strong pattern
Answer: estuve, estuviste, estuvo
Also accepted: estuve estuviste estuvo; estuve / estuviste / estuvo

105.8 estuve — a third known verb joins the strong pattern
Answer: Estuve bien.
Also accepted: Estuve bien

105.9 estuve — a third known verb joins the strong pattern
Answer: tuve

Chapter 106

106.1 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Answer: hablé, comí, viví
Also accepted: hablé comí viví; hablé / comí / viví

106.2 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Answer: tuve, hice, estuve
Also accepted: tuve hice estuve; tuve / hice / estuve

106.3 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Answer: Hice café.
Also accepted: Hice café

106.4 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Answer: Viví en Madrid.
Also accepted: Viví en Madrid

106.5 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Answer: Estuve bien.
Also accepted: Estuve bien

106.6 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Answer: comí and comió
Also accepted: comí comió; comí/comió; comí y comió

106.7 Practice — six singular patterns, no hidden vocabulary
Answer: estuve

106.8 Synthesis — you can hear which past it is
Answer: on the stem, a strong preterite
Also accepted: stem, strong; on the stem; strong preterite

106.9 Synthesis — you can hear which past it is
Answer: the stress is on its final vowel
Also accepted: because the stress is on the ending; stressed final vowel; the ending is stressed

106.10 Synthesis — you can hear which past it is
Answer: yes
Also accepted: yes, the same; they agree; identical

Chapter 107

107.1 hablaba — let a past action stay open
Answer: hablaba, hablabas, hablaba
Also accepted: hablaba hablabas hablaba; hablaba / hablabas / hablaba

107.2 hablaba — let a past action stay open
Answer: hablaba

107.3 hablaba — let a past action stay open
Answer: b
Also accepted: the b; b sound

107.4 comía — hear both vowels
Answer: comía, comías, comía
Also accepted: comía comías comía; comía / comías / comía

107.5 comía — hear both vowels
Answer: comía
107.6 comía — hear both vowels
Answer: co-mí-a
107.7 vivía — reuse the complete -er row
Answer: vivía, vivías, vivía
Also accepted: vivía vivías vivía; vivía / vivías / vivía
107.8 vivía — reuse the complete -er row
Answer: -er and -ir
Also accepted: er and ir; -er / -ir; er ir
107.9 vivía — reuse the complete -er row
Answer: Vivía en Madrid.
Also accepted: Vivía en Madrid

Chapter 108

108.1 ver — learn the verb before its past
Answer: to see
Also accepted: see
108.2 ver — learn the verb before its past
Answer: veo, ves, ve
Also accepted: veo ves ve; veo / ves / ve
108.3 ver — learn the verb before its past
Answer: vidēre
Also accepted: videre

Chapter 109

109.1 era — an old root in an open past
Answer: era, eras, era
Also accepted: era eras era; era / eras / era
109.2 era — an old root in an open past
Answer: era
109.3 era — an old root in an open past
Answer: eram
109.4 iba — ir returns to its inherited past
Answer: iba, ibas, iba
Also accepted: iba ibas iba; iba / ibas / iba
109.5 iba — ir returns to its inherited past
Answer: Iba a Madrid.
Also accepted: Iba a Madrid

109.6 iba — ir returns to its inherited past
Answer: īre
Also accepted: ire

109.7 veía — keep the extra e you already met
Answer: veía, veías, veía
Also accepted: veía veías veía; veía / veías / veía

109.8 veía — keep the extra e you already met
Answer: Veía café.

109.9 veía — keep the extra e you already met
Answer: veer

Chapter 110

110.1 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Answer: hablaba, comía, vivía
Also accepted: hablaba comía vivía; hablaba / comía / vivía

110.2 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Answer: era, iba, veía
Also accepted: era iba veía; era / iba / veía

110.3 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Answer: Hablaba español.
Also accepted: Hablaba español

110.4 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Answer: Vivía en Madrid.
Also accepted: Vivía en Madrid

110.5 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Answer: Iba a Madrid.
Also accepted: Iba a Madrid

110.6 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Answer: comía

110.7 Practice — keep the past open or close it
Answer: era—eram; iba—ībam; veía—veer
Also accepted: era eram iba ībam veía veer; era-eram, iba-ībam, veía-veer

110.8 Synthesis — three exceptions, and no others
Answer: three
Also accepted: 3; tres; only three

110.9 Synthesis — three exceptions, and no others
Answer: ser, ir, ver
Also accepted: era, iba, veia; ser ir ver; to be, to go, to see

110.10 Synthesis — three exceptions, and no others
Answer: they are the most used verbs, so they were never regularised
Also accepted: because they are used constantly; most common verbs; they were never tidied up

Chapter 111

111.1 hablaba and habló — two ways of looking
Answer: no, in how you look at it
Also accepted: no; they differ in viewpoint

111.2 hablaba and habló — two ways of looking
Answer: hable
Also accepted: hablé; the preterite

111.3 hablaba and habló — two ways of looking
Answer: estudiaba
Also accepted: yo estudiaba

Chapter 112

112.1 cuando — putting both pasts in one sentence
Answer: estudiaba cuando hablo Ana
Also accepted: estudiaba cuando habló ana

112.2 cuando — putting both pasts in one sentence
Answer: the imperfect sets the room, the preterite walks in
Also accepted: imperfect is the scene, preterite is the event

112.3 cuando — putting both pasts in one sentence
Answer: que, quien, como
Also accepted: qué, quién, cómo; que and quien

Chapter 113

113.1 tenía and tuve — when the tense changes the meaning
Answer: tenia una casa
Also accepted: tenía una casa; yo tenia una casa

113.2 tenía and tuve — when the tense changes the meaning
Answer: i got a house
Also accepted: i received a house; the moment i came to have one

113.3 tenía and tuve — when the tense changes the meaning
Answer: the moment the state began
Also accepted: when it started; the start of the state

Chapter 114

114.1 Review — one question, three answers
Answer: am i saying what happened or what things were like
Also accepted: what happened versus what things were like; does it have edges

114.2 Review — one question, three answers
Answer: estudiaba
Also accepted: the imperfect one; estudiaba, the imperfect

114.3 Review — one question, three answers
Answer: the state rows, tenia and tuve
Also accepted: rows three and four; tenia and tuve

Chapter 115

115.1 Synthesis — a small story
Answer: estudiaba and tenia
Also accepted: estudiaba, tenía; the imperfects

115.2 Synthesis — a small story
Answer: tuve is the moment of getting it
Also accepted: because it is an event, not a state; getting has edges

115.3 Synthesis — a small story
Answer: estudiaba cuando hable con Ana
Also accepted: estudiaba cuando hablé con ana

115.4 Synthesis — a small story
Answer: because the choice is the difficulty, not the forms
Also accepted: english lets you leave the question unanswered; the forms were never the hard part

Chapter 116

116.1 hablado, comido, vivido — the participle
Answer: hablado
Also accepted: habl-ado

116.2 hablado, comido, vivido — the participle
Answer: comido, vivido
Also accepted: comido vivido

116.3 hablado, comido, vivido — the participle
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, it stays the same

Chapter 117

117.1 he hablado — "I have spoken"
Answer: he hablado espanol
Also accepted: he hablado español; yo he hablado espanol

117.2 he hablado — "I have spoken"
Answer: nothing on its own
Also accepted: nothing; it has no meaning here, only a job

117.3 he hablado — "I have spoken"
Answer: have
Also accepted: to have; have, as in I have eaten

Chapter 118

118.1 has, ha, hemos, habéis, han
Answer: he, has, ha, hemos, habeis, han
Also accepted: he has ha hemos habéis han

118.2 has, ha, hemos, habéis, han
Answer: han comido
Also accepted: ellos han comido; ustedes han comido

118.3 has, ha, hemos, habéis, han
Answer: because it is said more often
Also accepted: frequency wears words down; it is used in every perfect sentence

118.4 has, ha, hemos, habéis, han
Answer: one
Also accepted: 1; it never changes

Chapter 119

119.1 hecho, dicho, visto, puesto
Answer: hecho, dicho, visto, puesto
Also accepted: hecho dicho visto puesto

119.2 hecho, dicho, visto, puesto
Answer: fact
Also accepted: fact, from factum

119.3 hecho, dicho, visto, puesto
Answer: they are the most used
Also accepted: because they are the commonest verbs; frequency

119.4 hecho, dicho, visto, puesto
Answer: lo hemos visto
Also accepted: hemos visto

Chapter 120

120.1 Review — a tense you build
Answer: haber and the participle; haber carries the person
Also accepted: a form of haber plus a participle

120.2 Review — a tense you build
Answer: hemos vivido
Also accepted: nosotros hemos vivido

120.3 Review — a tense you build
Answer: lo has dicho
Also accepted: has dicho

120.4 Review — a tense you build
Answer: it is built from two pieces rather than conjugated per verb
Also accepted: six words once, not endings on every verb

Chapter 121

121.1 Synthesis — two shores, two answers
Answer: he comido
Also accepted: yo he comido

121.2 Synthesis — two shores, two answers
Answer: madrid the perfect, mexico the preterite
Also accepted: he hablado in spain, hable in latin america

121.3 Synthesis — two shores, two answers
Answer: both, for their own variety
Also accepted: both; neither is wrong

121.4 Synthesis — two shores, two answers
Answer: hemos hablado espanol
Also accepted: hemos hablado español

Chapter 122

122.1 hablaré — keep the infinitive, add the future
Answer: hablaré, hablarás, hablará
Also accepted: hablaré hablarás hablará; hablaré / hablarás / hablará

122.2 hablaré — keep the infinitive, add the future
Answer: Hablaré español.
Also accepted: Hablaré español

122.3 hablaré — keep the infinitive, add the future
Answer: habēre
Also accepted: habere; haber

122.4 comeré — the same endings keep -er
Answer: comeré, comerás, comerá
Also accepted: comeré comerás comerá; comeré / comerás / comerá

122.5 comeré — the same endings keep -er
Answer: Beberé café.
Also accepted: Beberé café; Bebere cafe; Bebere cafe.

122.6 comeré — the same endings keep -er
Answer: -é, -ás, -á
Also accepted: é ás á; -é -ás -á

122.7 viviré — one future row for three verb families
Answer: viviré, vivirás, vivirá
Also accepted: viviré vivirás vivirá; viviré / vivirás / vivirá

122.8 viviré — one future row for three verb families
Answer: Viviré en Madrid.
Also accepted: Viviré en Madrid

122.9 viviré — one future row for three verb families
Answer: hablaré, comeré, viviré
Also accepted: hablaré comeré viviré; hablaré / comeré / viviré

Chapter 123

123.1 hablaría — the whole infinitive meets -ía
Answer: hablaría, hablarías, hablaría
Also accepted: hablaría hablarías hablaría; hablaría / hablarías / hablaría

123.2 hablaría — the whole infinitive meets -ía
Answer: Hablaría español.
Also accepted: Hablaría español

123.3 hablaría — the whole infinitive meets -ía
Answer: ha-bla-rí-a
Also accepted: habla-rí-a; rí-a

123.4 comería — keep -er before "would"
Answer: comería, comerías, comería
Also accepted: comería comerías comería; comería / comerías / comería

123.5 comería — keep -er before "would"
Answer: Comeré; comería.
Also accepted: Comeré comería; comeré / comería

123.6 comería — keep -er before "would"
Answer: -ía, -ías, -ía
Also accepted: ía ías ía; -ía -ías -ía

123.7 viviría — the regular conditional closes its small frame
Answer: viviría, vivirías, viviría
Also accepted: viviría vivirías viviría; viviría / vivirías / viviría

123.8 viviría — the regular conditional closes its small frame
Answer: Viviría en Madrid.
Also accepted: Viviría en Madrid

123.9 viviría — the regular conditional closes its small frame
Answer: hablaría, comería, viviría
Also accepted: hablaría comería viviría; hablaría / comería / viviría

Chapter 124

124.1 haré · tendré · podré — three stems, two ending sets
Answer: Haré café; haría café.
Also accepted: Haré café Haría café; haré café / haría café

124.2 haré · tendré · podré — three stems, two ending sets
Answer: tendré, tendría
Also accepted: tendré tendría; tendré / tendría

124.3 haré · tendré · podré — three stems, two ending sets
Answer: Podré hablar español; podría hablar español.
Also accepted: Podré hablar español Podría hablar español; podré hablar español / podría hablar español

124.4 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Answer: hablaré, comeré, viviré
Also accepted: hablaré comeré viviré; hablaré / comeré / viviré

124.5 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Answer: hablaría, comería, viviría
Also accepted: hablaría comería viviría; hablaría / comería / viviría

124.6 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Answer: Hablaré español.
Also accepted: Hablaré español

124.7 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Answer: Viviría en Madrid.
Also accepted: Viviría en Madrid

124.8 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Answer: Haré café; haría café.
Also accepted: Haré café Haría café; haré café / haría café

124.9 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Answer: har-, tendr-, podr-
Also accepted: har tendr podr; har- / tendr- / podr-

124.10 Practice — one infinitive frame, two futures of thought
Answer: habēre
Also accepted: habere; haber

Chapter 125

125.1 Synthesis — promising, and supposing
Answer: hablare
Also accepted: hablaré; yo hablare

125.2 Synthesis — promising, and supposing
Answer: hablaria
Also accepted: hablaría; yo hablaria

125.3 Synthesis — promising, and supposing
Answer: haber
Also accepted: habere; the verb to have; have

Chapter 126

126.1 Hablas español · Quiero que hables español — fact or wanted event?
Answer: hablas

126.2 Hablas español · Quiero que hables español — fact or wanted event?
Answer: Quiero hablar español.
Also accepted: Quiero hablar español

126.3 Hablas español · Quiero que hables español — fact or wanted event?
Answer: Quiero que hables español.
Also accepted: Quiero que hables español

Chapter 127

127.1 hable · hables · hable — the singular -ar row
Answer: hable, hables, hable
Also accepted: hable hables hable; hable / hables / hable

127.2 hable · hables · hable — the singular -ar row
Answer: hablo

127.3 hable · hables · hable — the singular -ar row
Answer: subjoined or joined under
Also accepted: subjoined; joined under

127.4 coma · comas · coma — let -er cross to a
Answer: coma, comas, coma
Also accepted: coma comas coma; coma / comas / coma

127.5 coma · comas · coma — let -er cross to a
Answer: comas

127.6 coma · comas · coma — let -er cross to a
Answer: Quiero que comas.
Also accepted: Quiero que comas

127.7 viva · vivas · viva — -ir joins -er
Answer: viva, vivas, viva
Also accepted: viva vivas viva; viva / vivas / viva

127.8 viva · vivas · viva — -ir joins -er
Answer: -er and -ir
Also accepted: er and ir; -er / -ir

127.9 viva · vivas · viva — -ir joins -er
Answer: Quiero que vivas en Madrid.
Also accepted: Quiero que vivas en Madrid

Chapter 128

128.1 quiera · quieras · quiera — keep the change you know
Answer: quiera, quieras, quiera
Also accepted: quiera quieras quiera; quiera / quieras / quiera

128.2 quiera · quieras · quiera — keep the change you know
Answer: quiero

128.3 quiera · quieras · quiera — keep the change you know
Answer: quieras

128.4 pueda · puedas · pueda — one more known stem change
Answer: pueda, puedas, pueda
Also accepted: pueda puedas pueda; pueda / puedas / pueda

128.5 pueda · puedas · pueda — one more known stem change
Answer: puedo

128.6 pueda · puedas · pueda — one more known stem change
Answer: Quiero que puedas hablar español.
Also accepted: Quiero que puedas hablar español

128.7 haga · hagas · haga — hago lends its stem
Answer: haga, hagas, haga
Also accepted: haga hagas haga; haga / hagas / haga

128.8 haga · hagas · haga — hago lends its stem
Answer: hago

128.9 haga · hagas · haga — hago lends its stem
Answer: Quiero que hagas café.
Also accepted: Quiero que hagas café; Quiero que hagas cafe

Chapter 129

129.1 ojalá + subjunctive — a wish borrowed through Arabic
Answer: Ojalá hables español.
Also accepted: Ojalá hables español; Ojala hables espanol

129.2 ojalá + subjunctive — a wish borrowed through Arabic
Answer: no

129.3 ojalá + subjunctive — a wish borrowed through Arabic
Answer: Hispanic Arabic
Also accepted: Arabic; Andalusi Arabic; Hispano-Arabic

129.4 Practice — assert the event or want it
Answer: hables

129.5 Practice — assert the event or want it
Answer: Quiero hablar español; quiero que hables español.
Also accepted: Quiero hablar español Quiero que hables español; Quiero hablar español / quiero que hables español

129.6 Practice — assert the event or want it
Answer: hables, comas, vivas
Also accepted: hables comas vivas; hables / comas / vivas

129.7 Practice — assert the event or want it
Answer: the yo form
Also accepted: yo; present yo form

129.8 Practice — assert the event or want it
Answer: quiera, quieras, quiera
Also accepted: quiera quieras quiera; quiera / quieras / quiera

129.9 Practice — assert the event or want it
Answer: Quiero que puedas hablar español.
Also accepted: Quiero que puedas hablar español

129.10 Practice — assert the event or want it
Answer: Quiero que hagas café.
Also accepted: Quiero que hagas café; Quiero que hagas cafe

129.11 Practice — assert the event or want it
Answer: Ojalá vivas en Madrid.
Also accepted: Ojalá vivas en Madrid; Ojala vivas en Madrid

129.12 Practice — assert the event or want it
Answer: a clause subjoined or joined under another
Also accepted: subjoined; joined under

129.13 Practice — assert the event or want it
Answer: Hispanic Arabic
Also accepted: Arabic; Andalusi Arabic; Hispano-Arabic

129.14 Review — you never learned a new stem
Answer: pueda
Also accepted: que pueda

129.15 Review — you never learned a new stem
Answer: haga
Also accepted: que haga

129.16 Review — you never learned a new stem
Answer: viva
Also accepted: que viva

Chapter 130

130.1 Synthesis — claiming, and not claiming
Answer: hablas
Also accepted: hablas - indicative

130.2 Synthesis — claiming, and not claiming
Answer: hables
Also accepted: hables - subjunctive; ojala hables

130.3 Synthesis — claiming, and not claiming
Answer: may God will it, in Arabic
Also accepted: arabic, may god will it; and may god will it; wa sha allah

Chapter 131

131.1 habla — telling somebody to do something Answer: come
Also accepted: ¡come!; come!

131.2 habla — telling somebody to do something
Answer: the he/she present form
Also accepted: the third person singular; the el form

131.3 habla — telling somebody to do something Answer: emperor and empire
Also accepted: emperor, empire

Chapter 132

132.1 di, haz, ve, pon, ten, sal, sé, ven
Answer: di, haz, ve, pon, ten, sal, se, ven
Also accepted: di haz ve pon ten sal sé ven

132.2 di, haz, ve, pon, ten, sal, sé, ven
Answer: ven
Also accepted: ¡ven!

132.3 di, haz, ve, pon, ten, sal, sé, ven
Answer: commands are shouted and hurried, so they wore down most
Also accepted: because they are the most used and most shouted; frequency and hurry

Chapter 133

133.1 no hables — telling somebody not to Answer: no hables
Also accepted: ¡no hables!

133.2 no hables — telling somebody not to Answer: no comas
Also accepted: ¡no comas!

133.3 no hables — telling somebody not to Answer: because nothing is being asserted
Also accepted: there is no speaking to describe; the subjunctive is the non-asserting form

Chapter 134

134.1 hable usted — the polite command
Answer: hable, por favor
Also accepted: hable por favor; hable usted por favor

134.2 hable usted — the polite command
Answer: three
Also accepted: 3; all but the informal positive

134.3 hable usted — the polite command
Answer: it is aimed at a title, not at the person
Also accepted: usted is third person, so the order is indirect; because it is not pointed straight at them

Chapter 135

135.1 Review — four boxes
Answer: come, no comas, coma, no coma
Also accepted: come no comas coma no coma

135.2 Review — four boxes
Answer: the eight irregular tu commands
Also accepted: eight one-syllable words; di haz ve pon ten sal se ven

135.3 Review — four boxes
Answer: it is said the most
Also accepted: because it is the most used; heavy use keeps old forms alive

Chapter 136

136.1 Synthesis — asking without sounding rude
Answer: ven
Also accepted: ¡ven!

136.2 Synthesis — asking without sounding rude
Answer: coma, por favor
Also accepted: coma por favor

136.3 Synthesis — asking without sounding rude
Answer: in the choice of tu or usted
Also accepted: in which person you chose; in the pronoun

136.4 Synthesis — asking without sounding rude
Answer: put distance between you
Also accepted: sounded stiff; been cold rather than polite

Chapter 144

144.1 la bebo — the pronoun tells the truth
Answer: la bebo
Also accepted: yo la bebo

144.2 la bebo — the pronoun tells the truth
Answer: nothing collides in front of the pronoun
Also accepted: the article changes for sound, the pronoun does not; there are no two a sounds meeting

144.3 la bebo — the pronoun tells the truth
Answer: which object pronoun a speaker uses for it
Also accepted: whether they say lo or la; the pronoun

Chapter 152

152.1 Synthesis — saying something about your own life
Answer: tengo un perro negro
Also accepted: yo tengo un perro negro

152.2 Synthesis — saying something about your own life
Answer: un gato
Also accepted: un; un gato blanco

152.3 Synthesis — saying something about your own life
Answer: hace frio
Also accepted: hace frío

152.4 Review — the same question, asked of eleven words
Answer: rojo, azul, verde, amarillo
Also accepted: rojo azul verde amarillo

152.5 Review — the same question, asked of eleven words
Answer: son las dos y veinte
Also accepted: las dos y veinte

152.6 Review — the same question, asked of eleven words
Answer: llueve al mediodia
Also accepted: llueve a mediodia

152.7 Review — the same question, asked of eleven words
Answer: amarillo
Also accepted: yellow; amarillo, yellow

152.8 Review — one Saturday, from morning to midnight
Answer: son las nueve y veinte
Also accepted: las nueve y veinte

152.9 Review — one Saturday, from morning to midnight
Answer: a medianoche todavia llueve
Also accepted: a medianoche llueve

152.10 Review — one Saturday, from morning to midnight
Answer: ocho, and it is the tenth
Also accepted: eight, tenth; ocho, el decimo

152.11 Review — one Saturday, from morning to midnight
Answer: el otono
Also accepted: otono; el otoño

Chapter 157

157.1 Review — four verbs of the mind
Answer: pensar
Also accepted: pensar (to think); think

157.2 Review — four verbs of the mind
Answer: leer
Also accepted: leer (to read); read

157.3 Review — four verbs of the mind
Answer: escribir
Also accepted: escribir (to write); write

Chapter 158

158.1 Synthesis — what you understand, and what you don't
Answer: I am not stretching that far
Also accepted: i am not reaching that far; not stretching toward it; i cannot stretch that far

158.2 Synthesis — what you understand, and what you don't Answer: ahora entiendo
Also accepted: entiendo; entiendo ahora

Chapter 162

162.1 Review — three verbs that behave
Answer: ayudar
Also accepted: ayudar (to help); help

162.2 Review — three verbs that behave
Answer: tomar
Also accepted: tomar (to take); take

162.3 Review — three verbs that behave
Answer: the one doing it
Also accepted: the doer; the person doing it; the subject does it

Chapter 164

164.1 Synthesis — what you like, and who is doing the liking
Answer: el cafe
Also accepted: the coffee; cafe; el café

164.2 Synthesis — what you like, and who is doing the liking
Answer: to taste
Also accepted: taste; tasting

164.3 Synthesis — what you like, and who is doing the liking
Answer: mucho gusto
Also accepted: gusto; much pleasure

Chapter 166

166.1 Review — down, up, and away
Answer: de pie
Also accepted: estoy de pie

166.2 Review — down, up, and away
Answer: caminar, andar
Also accepted: caminar y andar; andar, caminar

166.3 Review — down, up, and away
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, es discutido; disputed

Chapter 167

167.1 Review — the accent is doing the work
Answer: por que
Also accepted: por qué; ¿por qué?

167.2 Review — the accent is doing the work
Answer: me levanto porque corro
Also accepted: porque corro

167.3 Review — the accent is doing the work
Answer: el
Also accepted: the article; el porqué; putting el in front

Chapter 172

172.1 Review — the four stem changes, all of them
Answer: four
Also accepted: 4; cuatro

172.2 Review — the four stem changes, all of them
Answer: u to ue, jugar
Also accepted: u-ue, jugar; jugar, u to ue; jugar

172.3 Review — the four stem changes, all of them
Answer: e to i
Also accepted: e-i; e becomes i; consigo

Chapter 173

173.1 Synthesis — the choices English never makes you make Answer: conocer
Also accepted: conocer (acquaintance); conozco

173.2 Synthesis — the choices English never makes you make Answer: traer
Also accepted: traer (toward); bring

173.3 Synthesis — the choices English never makes you make Answer: pedir
Also accepted: pedir (request); pedir un cafe

Chapter 176

176.1 para — "for," pointing forward
Answer: es para ti
Also accepted: para ti

176.2 para — "for," pointing forward
Answer: para manana
Also accepted: para mañana

176.3 para — "for," pointing forward
Answer: ad, as in advance and admit
Also accepted: ad; ad — advance, admit, adhere

Chapter 177

177.1 por — and you already know three of these
Answer: gracias por la comida
Also accepted: gracias por la comida.

177.2 por — and you already know three of these
Answer: by way of a favour
Also accepted: through a favour; by means of a favour

177.3 por — and you already know three of these
Answer: per, as in per hour
Also accepted: per; per hour, per cent

Chapter 178

178.1 Which way is the arrow pointing?
Answer: lo hago para ti
Also accepted: para ti

178.2 Which way is the arrow pointing?
Answer: lo hago por ti
Also accepted: por ti

178.3 Which way is the arrow pointing?
Answer: does the arrow point at it or come from it
Also accepted: at the thing is para, from the thing is por

178.4 Which way is the arrow pointing?
Answer: the directions are inside the words, ad and per
Also accepted: para contains ad, toward; por contains per, through

Chapter 179

179.1 Review — one arrow
Answer: para points at it, por comes from it
Also accepted: para toward, por through or because

179.2 Review — one arrow
Answer: por favor, por que, gracias por
Also accepted: por favor, porque, gracias por

179.3 Review — one arrow
Answer: that it means two different things
Also accepted: both are correct and the choice is the meaning; neither is wrong

Chapter 180

180.1 Synthesis — the gift and the motive
Answer: hago la comida para ti
Also accepted: la hago para ti

180.2 Synthesis — the gift and the motive
Answer: hago la comida por ti
Also accepted: la hago por ti

180.3 Synthesis — the gift and the motive
Answer: gracias por la comida
Also accepted: gracias por la comida.

180.4 Synthesis — the gift and the motive
Answer: a true sentence about a different situation
Also accepted: something correct that means something else; not nonsense, just the wrong meaning

Chapter 181

181.1 se habla español — nobody in particular
Answer: se habla espanol
Also accepted: se habla español

181.2 se habla español — nobody in particular
Answer: nobody in particular
Also accepted: it does not say; no one is named

181.3 se habla español — nobody in particular
Answer: se come bien
Also accepted: aqui se come bien

Chapter 182

182.1 se compran libros — the verb tells on itself
Answer: se compran libros
Also accepted: se compran los libros

182.2 se compran libros — the verb tells on itself
Answer: the books
Also accepted: the thing being bought; libros

182.3 se compran libros — the verb tells on itself
Answer: books buy themselves
Also accepted: the books buy themselves

Chapter 183

183.1 ¿cómo se dice? — the sentence that unlocks the rest
Answer: como se dice
Also accepted: ¿cómo se dice?; ¿como se dice?

183.2 ¿cómo se dice? — the sentence that unlocks the rest
Answer: como se dice en espanol, por favor
Also accepted: ¿cómo se dice en español, por favor?

183.3 ¿cómo se dice? — the sentence that unlocks the rest
Answer: you are asking about the language, not about them
Also accepted: it is impersonal; nobody is being named

Chapter 184

184.1 Review — the three se's
Answer: the reflexive and the impersonal
Also accepted: se llama and se habla; reflexive and impersonal

184.2 Review — the three se's
Answer: lo, la, los or las
Also accepted: a direct object pronoun; lo or la

184.3 Review — the three se's
Answer: the impersonal
Also accepted: impersonal — nobody is named

Chapter 185

185.1 Synthesis — reading the window
Answer: books are bought here
Also accepted: they buy books; we buy books

185.2 Synthesis — reading the window
Answer: como se dice, por favor
Also accepted: ¿cómo se dice, por favor?

185.3 Synthesis — reading the window
Answer: aqui se come bien
Also accepted: se come bien

185.4 Synthesis — reading the window
Answer: nobody is claiming it, so there is nobody to argue with
Also accepted: there is no person to disagree with; it sounds like a fact rather than an opinion

Chapter 186

186.1 el libro que compro — one sentence out of two
Answer: tengo el libro que compro
Also accepted: el libro que compro

186.2 el libro que compro — one sentence out of two
Answer: it disappears
Also accepted: you only say it once; it is not repeated

186.3 el libro que compro — one sentence out of two
Answer: que, quien, como, cuando
Also accepted: qué, quién, cómo, cuándo; the qu- family

Chapter 187

187.1 el libro que compré — the word you cannot leave out
Answer: el libro que compre
Also accepted: el libro que compré

187.2 el libro que compré — the word you cannot leave out
Answer: la casa que tengo
Also accepted: la casa que yo tengo

187.3 el libro que compré — the word you cannot leave out
Answer: a noun followed straight by a new subject and verb
Also accepted: a noun then a subject and verb with no that

187.4 el libro que compré — the word you cannot leave out
Answer: english word order is rigid, spanish is looser
Also accepted: spanish moves its pieces around, so it needs the joint

Chapter 188

188.1 lo que — "what," out of two old words
Answer: lo que digo
Also accepted: lo que yo digo

188.2 lo que — "what," out of two old words
Answer: lo digo points at a known thing, lo que digo points at no thing
Also accepted: one is I say it, the other is what I say

188.3 lo que — "what," out of two old words
Answer: none
Also accepted: zero; 0

Chapter 189

189.1 Review — three jobs, no new words
Answer: none
Also accepted: zero; 0

189.2 Review — three jobs, no new words
Answer: la casa que tengo; english drops the that
Also accepted: la casa que tengo

189.3 Review — three jobs, no new words
Answer: lo
Also accepted: lo, as in lo que

Chapter 190

190.1 Synthesis — sentences worth saying
Answer: tienes el libro que compre
Also accepted: ¿tienes el libro que compré?

190.2 Synthesis — sentences worth saying
Answer: lo que no tengo
Also accepted: lo que no tengo.

190.3 Synthesis — sentences worth saying
Answer: lo que no tengo es la comida que haces
Also accepted: lo que no tengo es la comida que haces.

190.4 Synthesis — sentences worth saying
Answer: the clause only adds a slot, not new grammar
Also accepted: it is the same spanish arranged inside itself

Chapter 191

191.1 hay — "there is," "there are," same word
Answer: hay una casa
Also accepted: hay una casa.

191.2 hay — "there is," "there are," same word
Answer: hay libros
Also accepted: hay libros.

191.3 hay — "there is," "there are," same word
Answer: nothing
Also accepted: nothing at all; it never changes

Chapter 192

192.1 ha + y — the fossil in a three-letter word
Answer: ha and y
Also accepted: ha plus y; ha + y

192.2 ha + y — the fossil in a three-letter word
Answer: nowhere
Also accepted: nowhere else; only in hay

192.3 ha + y — the fossil in a three-letter word
Answer: il y a
Also accepted: il y a — it there has

Chapter 193

193.1 hay que — somebody has to, and nobody in particular
Answer: hay que hablar espanol
Also accepted: hay que hablar español

193.2 hay que — somebody has to, and nobody in particular
Answer: the infinitive
Also accepted: the dictionary form; the plain infinitive

193.3 hay que — somebody has to, and nobody in particular
Answer: the impersonal se
Also accepted: se habla espanol; the se of se habla

Chapter 194

194.1 Review — three letters
Answer: hay una casa, hay libros, hay que comer
Also accepted: hay una casa; hay libros; hay que comer

194.2 Review — three letters
Answer: agree, and name anybody
Also accepted: it never agrees and never names a person

194.3 Review — three letters
Answer: short words are worn down by constant use
Also accepted: the smallest words need the most explaining; heavy use turns them into fossils

Chapter 195

195.1 Synthesis — describing where you are Answer: que hay aqui
Also accepted: ¿qué hay aquí?

195.2 Synthesis — describing where you are
Answer: hay libros, los que compre
Also accepted: hay libros — los que compré

195.3 Synthesis — describing where you are
Answer: lo que hay, hay que comerlo
Also accepted: lo que hay hay que comer

195.4 Synthesis — describing where you are
Answer: words, and familiar structures in new places
Also accepted: vocabulary and practice; nothing structural

Chapter 196

196.1 si
Answer: si tengo tiempo hablo espanol
Also accepted: hablo espanol si tengo tiempo

196.2 si
Answer: the one with the accent
Also accepted: si with the accent means yes

196.3 si
Answer: si plus a pointing particle
Also accepted: sic is si plus -ce

Chapter 197

197.1 si + futuro
Answer: si tengo tiempo hablare espanol
Also accepted: hablare espanol si tengo tiempo

197.2 si + futuro
Answer: no
Also accepted: no spanish keeps the present after si

197.3 si + futuro
Answer: only the result makes a claim about the future
Also accepted: the si half is a supposition not a prediction

Chapter 198

198.1 Synthesis — real conditions
Answer: si tengo tiempo hablo espanol
Also accepted: hablo espanol si tengo tiempo

198.2 Synthesis — real conditions
Answer: si tengo tiempo hablare espanol
Also accepted: hablare espanol si tengo tiempo

198.3 Synthesis — real conditions
Answer: si is if and si with the accent is yes
Also accepted: unaccented if accented yes

Chapter 199

199.1 hablaron
Answer: hablaron espanol
Also accepted: ellos hablaron espanol

199.2 hablaron
Answer: hablaron ends in n so the default stress is already right
Also accepted: a word ending in n is stressed on the second to last syllable

199.3 hablaron
Answer: trabajaron
Also accepted: ellos trabajaron

Chapter 200

200.1 hablamos
Answer: hablamos espanol
Also accepted: nosotros hablamos espanol

200.2 hablamos
Answer: from the context
Also accepted: from the rest of the sentence

200.3 hablamos
Answer: trabajamos trabajaron
Also accepted: trabajamos y trabajaron

Chapter 201

201.1 comieron
Answer: comieron
Also accepted: ellos comieron

201.2 comieron
Answer: vivieron
Also accepted: ellos vivieron

201.3 comieron
Answer: comimos
Also accepted: comimos only

Chapter 202

202.1 tuvieron
Answer: tuvieron
Also accepted: ellos tuvieron

202.2 tuvieron
Answer: hicieron
Also accepted: ellos hicieron

202.3 tuvieron
Answer: tuve and tuvo
Also accepted: only the yo and el forms

Chapter 203

203.1 fueron
Answer: fueron
Also accepted: ellos fueron

203.2 fueron
Answer: two they were and they went
Also accepted: it serves ser and ir

203.3 fueron
Answer: from a different verb meaning to grow or become
Also accepted: from another root, as english did with was

Chapter 204

204.1 Review — the whole preterite
Answer: hablamos and vivimos
Also accepted: the -ar one and the -ir one

204.2 Review — the whole preterite
Answer: tuv hic estuv fue
Also accepted: tuve hice estuve fui

204.3 Review — the whole preterite
Answer: fueron
Also accepted: fueron, from ser and ir

Chapter 205

205.1 Synthesis — telling what happened
Answer: hablaron espanol y tuvieron tiempo
Also accepted: hablaron espanol, tuvieron tiempo

205.2 Synthesis — telling what happened
Answer: comimos en casa
Also accepted: nosotros comimos en casa

205.3 Synthesis — telling what happened
Answer: tuviera
Also accepted: it becomes tuviera

Chapter 206

206.1 hablara
Answer: comiera
Also accepted: comiera, from comieron

206.2 hablara
Answer: because it is built from the preterite which already absorbed them
Also accepted: it inherits the irregularity instead of inventing new ones

206.3 hablara
Answer: i had done something
Also accepted: it marked a plain past, not a supposition

Chapter 207

207.1 tuviera
Answer: tuviera
Also accepted: tuviera, from tuvieron

207.2 tuviera
Answer: two ser and ir
Also accepted: both ser and ir

207.3 tuviera
Answer: none
Also accepted: zero, they were already known

Chapter 208

208.1 si tuviera
Answer: si tuviera tiempo hablaria espanol
Also accepted: hablaria espanol si tuviera tiempo

208.2 si tuviera
Answer: that it is not true
Also accepted: that the speaker does not have the time

208.3 si tuviera
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, si never takes the present subjunctive

Chapter 209

209.1 Review — the two conditions
Answer: si tuviera tiempo hablaria espanol
Also accepted: si tuviera tiempo, hablaria espanol

209.2 Review — the two conditions
Answer: the future and the present subjunctive
Also accepted: si tendre and si tenga are both impossible

209.3 Review — the two conditions
Answer: nothing
Also accepted: nothing, the verbs carry it

Chapter 210

210.1 Synthesis — supposing out loud
Answer: si fuera profesor hablaria espanol
Also accepted: si fuera profesora, hablaria espanol

210.2 Synthesis — supposing out loud
Answer: si tuviera tiempo comeria en casa
Also accepted: any si + -ra form followed by a -ria form

210.3 Synthesis — supposing out loud
Answer: the preterite plural
Also accepted: the they-past, which the supposing form is built from

Chapter 211

211.1 dice que
Answer: dice que esta cansado
Also accepted: el dice que esta cansado

211.2 dice que
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, que is required

211.3 dice que
Answer: digo
Also accepted: dice becomes digo

Chapter 212

212.1 dijo
Answer: dijo
Also accepted: el dijo

212.2 dijo
Answer: dijeron
Also accepted: ellos dijeron

212.3 dijo
Answer: x
Also accepted: the x of dixit

Chapter 213

213.1 dijo que
Answer: dijo que estaba cansado
Also accepted: el dijo que estaba cansado

213.2 dijo que
Answer: dijo que trabajaba
Also accepted: el dijo que trabajaba

213.3 dijo que
Answer: because it was going on at the time
Also accepted: it was true when he spoke, not a finished event

Chapter 214

214.1 preguntó si
Answer: pregunto si trabajaba
Also accepted: el pregunto si trabajaba

214.2 preguntó si
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, it is a statement now

214.3 preguntó si
Answer: in conditions
Also accepted: si tengo tiempo; the if of conditions

Chapter 215

215.1 preguntó dónde
Answer: pregunto donde trabajaba
Also accepted: el pregunto donde trabajaba

215.2 preguntó dónde
Answer: yes
Also accepted: yes, it is still an asking word

215.3 preguntó dónde
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, donde is the joint

Chapter 216

216.1 (review)
Answer: que
Also accepted: que, and it cannot be dropped

216.2 (review)
Answer: si
Also accepted: si, the same one as in conditions

216.3 (review)
Answer: donde is the joint
Also accepted: no que and no si, donde does it

Chapter 217

217.1 (synthesis)
Answer: pregunto donde trabajaba
Also accepted: el pregunto donde trabajaba

217.2 (synthesis)
Answer: dijo que trabajaba en casa
Also accepted: dijo que trabajaba

217.3 (synthesis)
Answer: pregunto si estaba cansado
Also accepted: el pregunto si estaba cansado

Chapter 218

218.1 pero — the word that lets two true things stand together
Answer: estoy cansado pero estudio
Also accepted: estoy cansada pero estudio

218.2 pero — the word that lets two true things stand together
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, both halves stay true

218.3 pero — the word that lets two true things stand together
Answer: two
Also accepted: two: per hoc

Chapter 219

219.1 también — a word with your very first word inside it
Answer: yo tambien
Also accepted: yo tambien!

219.2 también — a word with your very first word inside it
Answer: tan and bien
Also accepted: tan bien, so well

219.3 también — a word with your very first word inside it
Answer: so
Also accepted: so, as; as

Chapter 220

220.1 tampoco — the same frame, the other half
Answer: yo tampoco
Also accepted: yo tampoco!

220.2 tampoco — the same frame, the other half
Answer: tan and poco
Also accepted: tan poco, so little

220.3 tampoco — the same frame, the other half
Answer: no
Also accepted: the no in their sentence

Chapter 221

221.1 este — pointing at what is in your hand
Answer: este libro
Also accepted: este libro.

221.2 este — pointing at what is in your hand
Answer: esta casa
Also accepted: esta casa.

221.3 este — pointing at what is in your hand
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, este replaces the article

Chapter 222

222.1 ese — pointing at what is by you
Answer: ese libro
Also accepted: ese libro.

222.2 ese — pointing at what is by you
Answer: whose side it is on
Also accepted: which of us it is near; not distance

222.3 ese — pointing at what is by you
Answer: self
Also accepted: self, as in ipso facto; ipse, self

Chapter 223

223.1 aquel — the far one, and an old friend in disguise
Answer: aquella casa
Also accepted: aquella casa.

223.2 aquel — the far one, and an old friend in disguise
Answer: este ese aquel
Also accepted: este, ese, aquel

223.3 aquel — the far one, and an old friend in disguise
Answer: el
Also accepted: el, from Latin ille

Chapter 224

224.1 esto · eso · aquello — pointing at what has no name yet
Answer: que es esto
Also accepted: ¿que es esto?

224.2 esto · eso · aquello — pointing at what has no name yet
Answer: neither
Also accepted: neither, it is the leftover neuter

Chapter 225

225.1 (review)
Answer: ese
Also accepted: ese, it is on their side

225.2 (review)
Answer: do i have a noun
Also accepted: whether there is a noun at all

225.3 (review)
Answer: the article
Also accepted: el, la – the article

Chapter 226

226.1 muy — the same word, bitten short
Answer: estoy muy cansado
Also accepted: estoy muy cansada

226.2 muy — the same word, bitten short
Answer: mucho
Also accepted: mucho, the long form

226.3 muy — the same word, bitten short
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, it needs something to lean on

Chapter 227

227.1 bastante — an ending you can already read
Answer: estoy bastante cansado
Also accepted: estoy bastante cansada

227.2 bastante — an ending you can already read
Answer: poco bastante muy
Also accepted: poco, bastante, muy

227.3 bastante — an ending you can already read
Answer: sufficing
Also accepted: the one that suffices; bastar plus -ante

Chapter 228

228.1 mal — bien finally gets its opposite
Answer: estoy mal
Also accepted: mal; estoy mal.

228.2 mal — bien finally gets its opposite
Answer: malo
Also accepted: malo, the long form

228.3 mal — bien finally gets its opposite
Answer: mal and malo
Also accepted: mal, malo; mal / malo

228.4 a word in a hurry — the short form and the long one
Answer: the ending is bitten off when it leans on another word
Also accepted: a long form and a short form; apocope

228.5 a word in a hurry — the short form and the long one
Answer: mucho and malo
Also accepted: mucho, malo; the long forms

228.6 a word in a hurry — the short form and the long one
Answer: lean on the word after it
Also accepted: hurry to the next word; attach to the following word

Chapter 229

229.1 (review)
Answer: bastante
Also accepted: bastante, the middle one

229.2 (review)
Answer: when it leans on the next word
Also accepted: when another word follows it

229.3 (review)
Answer: -ante
Also accepted: ante, as in estudiante

Chapter 230

230.1 al — two words Spanish will not let you keep apart
Answer: voy al cafe
Also accepted: voy al cafe.

230.2 al — two words Spanish will not let you keep apart
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, it is simply wrong

230.3 al — two words Spanish will not let you keep apart
Answer: el is part of the name
Also accepted: because El is part of a name

Chapter 231

231.1 del — and then the list stops
Answer: el libro del profesor
Also accepted: el libro del profesor.

231.2 del — and then the list stops
Answer: two
Also accepted: two: al and del

231.3 del — and then the list stops
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, only de el does

Chapter 232

232.1 quién — the asking word reserved for people
Answer: quien es
Also accepted: ¿quien es?

232.2 quién — the asking word reserved for people
Answer: quien
Also accepted: quien, because the answer is a person

232.3 quién — the asking word reserved for people
Answer: the object one
Also accepted: quem, the object form

Chapter 233

233.1 o — one letter, one catch
Answer: cafe o agua
Also accepted: ¿cafe o agua?

233.2 o — one letter, one catch
Answer: siete u ocho
Also accepted: siete u ocho.

233.3 o — one letter, one catch
Answer: sound
Also accepted: sound, so a silent h counts too

Chapter 234

234.1 ni — joining two absences
Answer: no quiero cafe ni agua
Also accepted: no quiero cafe ni agua.

234.2 ni — joining two absences
Answer: two and yes
Also accepted: two, and it is correct

234.3 ni — joining two absences
Answer: and not
Also accepted: and not – the no is inside it

Chapter 235

235.1 (review)
Answer: two
Also accepted: two, al and del

235.2 (review)
Answer: quien
Also accepted: quienes, if you expect several

235.3 (review)
Answer: the o would be swallowed
Also accepted: because the next word starts with the o sound

Chapter 236

236.1 hablando — an action caught in the middle
Answer: trabajando
Also accepted: trabajando.

236.2 hablando — an action caught in the middle
Answer: one
Also accepted: one, it never changes

236.3 hablando — an action caught in the middle
Answer: speaking
Also accepted: speaking, the action underway

Chapter 237

237.1 comiendo · viviendo — two families, one ending
Answer: comiendo
Also accepted: comiendo.

237.2 comiendo · viviendo — two families, one ending
Answer: viviendo
Also accepted: viviendo.

237.3 comiendo · viviendo — two families, one ending
Answer: two
Also accepted: two: -ando and -iendo

Chapter 238

238.1 estoy hablando — the payoff
Answer: estoy comiendo
Also accepted: estoy comiendo.

238.2 estoy hablando — the payoff
Answer: estar
Also accepted: estar, the gerund never changes

238.3 estoy hablando — the payoff
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, it only means right now

Chapter 239

239.1 veo a María — the little a that guards people
Answer: veo a maria
Also accepted: veo a maria.

239.2 veo a María — the little a that guards people
Answer: veo la casa
Also accepted: veo la casa.

239.3 veo a María — the little a that guards people
Answer: marking who is on the receiving end
Also accepted: marking the object

Chapter 240

240.1 (review)
Answer: estamos estudiando
Also accepted: estamos estudiando.

240.2 (review)
Answer: a person
Also accepted: seeing a person

240.3 (review)
Answer: voy a comer
Also accepted: with voy a comer, not estoy comiendo

Chapter 241

241.1 hablasteis — the form you were promised
Answer: hablasteis
Also accepted: vosotros hablasteis

241.2 hablasteis — the form you were promised
Answer: hablaste
Also accepted: hablaste, the tu form

241.3 hablasteis — the form you were promised
Answer: six
Also accepted: six, all of them

Chapter 242

242.1 comisteis · tuvisteis — the last gap closes
Answer: comisteis
Also accepted: vosotros comisteis

242.2 comisteis · tuvisteis — the last gap closes
Answer: tuvisteis
Also accepted: vosotros tuvisteis

242.3 comisteis · tuvisteis — the last gap closes
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, it is complete

Chapter 243

243.1 hablábamos — the imperfect gets its plural
Answer: hablabamos
Also accepted: nosotros hablabamos

243.2 hablábamos — the imperfect gets its plural
Answer: trabajaban
Also accepted: ellos trabajaban

243.3 hablábamos — the imperfect gets its plural
Answer: the stress is not where the default puts it
Also accepted: because the default stress would land a syllable later

Chapter 244

244.1 comíamos · éramos · íbamos — every one with an accent
Answer: comiamos
Also accepted: nosotros comiamos

244.2 comíamos · éramos · íbamos — every one with an accent
Answer: eramos
Also accepted: nosotros eramos

244.3 comíamos · éramos · íbamos — every one with an accent
Answer: three
Also accepted: three: ser, ir, ver

Chapter 245

245.1 (review)
Answer: hablabamos
Also accepted: the nosotros form

245.2 (review)
Answer: ser ir ver
Also accepted: ser, ir, ver

245.3 (review)
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, both are complete

Chapter 246

246.1 para mí — the pronouns that stand on their own
Answer: el cafe es para mi
Also accepted: el cafe es para mi.

246.2 para mí — the pronouns that stand on their own
Answer: the first two
Also accepted: only mi and ti

246.3 para mí — the pronouns that stand on their own
Answer: there is no other ti to confuse it with
Also accepted: mi already means my; ti has no twin

Chapter 247

247.1 conmigo · contigo — the word that says "with" twice
Answer: vienes conmigo
Also accepted: ¿vienes conmigo?

247.2 conmigo · contigo — the word that says "with" twice
Answer: twice
Also accepted: two: con at the front and cum at the back

247.3 conmigo · contigo — the word that says "with" twice
Answer: con el
Also accepted: con el.

Chapter 248

248.1 ¡Qué grande! — the same word, exclaiming
Answer: que grande
Also accepted: ¡que grande!

248.2 ¡Qué grande! — the same word, exclaiming
Answer: que bien
Also accepted: ¡que bien!

248.3 ¡Qué grande! — the same word, exclaiming
Answer: the word carrying the force
Also accepted: not questions; the word doing the work

Chapter 249

249.1 María, ven — naming who you are talking to Answer: maria ven
Also accepted: maria, ven

249.2 María, ven — naming who you are talking to Answer: a comma
Also accepted: the comma

249.3 María, ven — naming who you are talking to
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, she is not on the receiving end

Chapter 250

250.1 (review)
Answer: conmigo
Also accepted: ¿conmigo?

250.2 (review)
Answer: para ti
Also accepted: para ti.

250.3 (review)
Answer: a comma
Also accepted: the comma

Chapter 251

251.1 ahí · allí — the other two places
Answer: ahi
Also accepted: ahi, by you

251.2 ahí · allí — the other two places
Answer: alli
Also accepted: alli, away from both

251.3 ahí · allí — the other two places
Answer: ese
Also accepted: ese, by you

Chapter 252

252.1 ahora — now
Answer: ahora estoy comiendo
Also accepted: ahora estoy comiendo.

252.2 ahora — now
Answer: hora
Also accepted: hora, the hour

252.3 ahora — now
Answer: ahora
Also accepted: ahora, now

252.4 hoy — today
Answer: hoy
Also accepted: hoy, from hodie

252.5 hoy — today
Answer: hodie, this day
Also accepted: hodie; hoc die, this day

252.6 hoy — today
Answer: hoy voy a comer con ella
Also accepted: hoy voy a comer con ella.

Chapter 253

253.1 unos · unas — the plural of "one"
Answer: unos libros
Also accepted: unos libros.

253.2 unos · unas — the plural of "one"
Answer: unas casas
Also accepted: unas casas.

253.3 unos · unas — the plural of "one"
Answer: compro libros
Also accepted: the bare one

Chapter 254

254.1 vuestro — the last possessive
Answer: vuestra casa
Also accepted: vuestra casa.

254.2 vuestro — the last possessive
Answer: nuestro and vuestro
Also accepted: nuestro, vuestro

254.3 vuestro — the last possessive
Answer: six
Also accepted: six, all of them

Chapter 255

255.1 vi — the shortest past in the language
Answer: vi
Also accepted: yo vi

255.2 vi — the shortest past in the language
Answer: vio
Also accepted: el vio

255.3 vi — the shortest past in the language
Answer: it has only one syllable
Also accepted: one syllable, so the beat cannot fall elsewhere

255.4 di — the verb that changed families in the past
Answer: dio
Also accepted: el dio

255.5 di — the verb that changed families in the past
Answer: the -er endings
Also accepted: -er endings; those of comer

255.6 di — the verb that changed families in the past
Answer: di and dio, because they are one syllable
Also accepted: di and dio; di, dio – one syllable each

Chapter 256

256.1 (review)
Answer: compro libros
Also accepted: the bare plural

256.2 (review)
Answer: hora
Also accepted: hora, the hour

256.3 (review)
Answer: the -er ones
Also accepted: -er endings, though it is an -ar verb

256.4 Review — two pasts, both finished
Answer: comisteis, tuvisteis
Also accepted: comisteis y tuvisteis

256.5 Review — two pasts, both finished
Answer: to keep the i and the a in separate syllables
Also accepted: otherwise they run together; to split the vowels

256.6 Review — two pasts, both finished
Answer: di
Also accepted: yo di

256.7 Review — two pasts, both finished
Answer: eramos, ibamos
Also accepted: éramos, íbamos

256.8 Review — the column that belongs to vosotros
Answer: vais
Also accepted: vosotros vais

256.9 Review — the column that belongs to vosotros
Answer: comisteis, tuvisteis
Also accepted: comisteis y tuvisteis

256.10 Review — the column that belongs to vosotros
Answer: vuestro
Also accepted: vuestro, vuestra

Chapter 257

257.1 hablo — one form, two readings
Answer: i eat and i am eating
Also accepted: I eat; I am eating

257.2 hablo — one form, two readings
Answer: como
Also accepted: como, the plain present

257.3 hablo — one form, two readings
Answer: insisting that it is happening now
Also accepted: emphasis on right now

Chapter 258

258.1 hablo · hablas · habla — the ending says who Answer: the subject
Also accepted: who is doing it

258.2 hablo · hablas · habla — the ending says who
Answer: the ending already says it
Also accepted: because the -o carries the subject

258.3 hablo · hablas · habla — the ending says who
Answer: when the ending is ambiguous
Also accepted: when habla could be he, she or usted

Chapter 259

259.1 mucha agua · pocos libros — when the quantity word agrees
Answer: mucha agua
Also accepted: mucha agua.

259.2 mucha agua · pocos libros — when the quantity word agrees
Answer: ella trabaja mucho
Also accepted: ella trabaja mucho.

259.3 mucha agua · pocos libros — when the quantity word agrees
Answer: is it leaning on a noun or a verb
Also accepted: whether a noun follows

Chapter 260

260.1 María · España · profesor — the nouns that need no article
Answer: veo a maria
Also accepted: veo a maria.

260.2 María · España · profesor — the nouns that need no article
Answer: it already points at one thing
Also accepted: there is nothing left to narrow down

260.3 María · España · profesor — the nouns that need no article
Answer: no article
Also accepted: none, it is a vocative

Chapter 261

261.1 (review)
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, como covers it

261.2 (review)
Answer: mucho
Also accepted: mucho, it describes the working

261.3 (review)
Answer: consequence
Also accepted: a consequence of agreement

Chapter 262

262.1 primero · segundo · tercero — counting in order
Answer: primero, segundo, tercero
Also accepted: primero segundo tercero

262.2 primero · segundo · tercero — counting in order
Answer: la segunda casa
Also accepted: la segunda casa.

262.3 primero · segundo · tercero — counting in order
Answer: following
Also accepted: following, from sequi

262.4 el primer libro — where an ordinal stands
Answer: el primer libro
Also accepted: el primer libro.

262.5 el primer libro — where an ordinal stands
Answer: la primera casa
Also accepted: la primera casa.

262.6 el primer libro — where an ordinal stands
Answer: in front, and the ending is bitten off when it leans on the noun
Also accepted: before the noun; the same shortening; in front; apocope

Chapter 263

263.1 uno… otro — splitting a pair
Answer: uno es grande otro es bueno
Also accepted: uno es grande, otro es bueno

263.2 uno… otro — splitting a pair
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, otro takes no article

263.3 uno… otro — splitting a pair
Answer: the other of two
Also accepted: the second of a pair

263.4 Review — picking one, pairing two, refusing both
Answer: aqui, ahi, alli
Also accepted: aquí, ahí, allí

263.5 Review — picking one, pairing two, refusing both Answer: otro
Also accepted: el otro

263.6 Review — picking one, pairing two, refusing both
Answer: ni uno ni otro
Also accepted: no quiero ni uno ni otro

263.7 Review — picking one, pairing two, refusing both
Answer: quiero aquel de alli
Also accepted: aquel de alli; aquel de allí

Chapter 264

264.1 comer es bueno — the infinitive as the subject
Answer: comer es bueno
Also accepted: comer es bueno.

264.2 comer es bueno — the infinitive as the subject
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, the gerund cannot be a subject

264.3 comer es bueno — the infinitive as the subject
Answer: hablar espanol es bueno
Also accepted: hablar espanol es bueno.

264.4 Review — what happens where two words touch
Answer: un libro, el primer libro
Also accepted: un libro y el primer libro

264.5 Review — what happens where two words touch
Answer: al y del
Also accepted: al, del; a el gives al, de el gives del

264.6 Review — what happens where two words touch
Answer: siete u ocho
Also accepted: siete u ocho.

264.7 Review — what happens where two words touch
Answer: conmigo
Also accepted: conmigo, contigo

264.8 Review — what happens where two words touch
Answer: bastante
Also accepted: bastante.

Chapter 265

265.1 hoy como en casa — the pieces that move
Answer: three
Also accepted: three: front, middle, end

265.2 hoy como en casa — the pieces that move
Answer: emphasises it
Also accepted: stresses today as against another day

265.3 hoy como en casa — the pieces that move
Answer: the endings already say who does what
Also accepted: because agreement and the personal a keep the roles clear

265.4 Review — what the ending carries, and what happens when it carries nothing
Answer: vais; the ending
Also accepted: vais, the ending does; vais - the ending

265.5 Review — what the ending carries, and what happens when it carries nothing
Answer: I speak, and I am speaking
Also accepted: I speak / I am speaking

265.6 Review — what the ending carries, and what happens when it carries nothing
Answer: comer es bueno
Also accepted: comer es bueno.

265.7 Review — what the ending carries, and what happens when it carries nothing
Answer: la comida
Also accepted: comida

Chapter 266

266.1 (review)
Answer: comer es bueno
Also accepted: comer es bueno, the infinitive

266.2 (review)
Answer: three
Also accepted: three: muy, mal, primer

266.3 (review)
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, never

266.4 Review — one name, four different jobs
Answer: veo a maria; maria, ven
Also accepted: veo a maria, maria ven

266.5 Review — one name, four different jobs
Answer: la senora garcia
Also accepted: la señora garcia

266.6 Review — one name, four different jobs
Answer: mucha agua; come mucho
Also accepted: mucha agua, come mucho

266.7 Review — one name, four different jobs
Answer: hoy como en casa
Also accepted: hoy, como en casa

266.8 Review — one name, four different jobs
Answer: que grande
Also accepted: ¡qué grande!; qué grande

266.9 (reading) — the first paragraph
Answer: her brother
Also accepted: su hermano; with her brother

266.10 (reading) — the first paragraph
Answer: because it is sunday
Also accepted: porque es domingo; it is sunday

266.11 (reading) — the first paragraph
Answer: it is good but big
Also accepted: muy bueno pero bastante grande; good and quite large

266.12 (reading) — the second paragraph
Answer: her brother
Also accepted: su hermano; the brother

266.13 (reading) — the second paragraph
Answer: because he wants to see his father
Also accepted: porque quiere ver a su padre; to see his father

266.14 (reading) — the third paragraph Answer: their mother's
Also accepted: su madre; the mother; casa de su madre

266.15 (reading) — the third paragraph
Answer: she is a teacher
Also accepted: es profesora; teacher; she teaches

Chapter 268

268.1 Review — three phrases, in the order you need them
Answer: donde esta, billete, habitacion
Also accepted: ¿dónde está?, un billete, una habitación; dónde está, billete, habitación

268.2 Review — three phrases, in the order you need them
Answer: the noun for its result
Also accepted: turns it into a noun; a place lived in; the result

268.3 Review — three phrases, in the order you need them
Answer: una habitacion, por favor
Also accepted: una habitación por favor; una habitación, por favor

268.4 Review — when the ending tells the truth, and when it lies
Answer: la habitacion, el problema
Also accepted: la habitación, el problema; la habitación el problema

268.5 Review — when the ending tells the truth, and when it lies
Answer: greek
Also accepted: griego; from Greek

268.6 Review — when the ending tells the truth, and when it lies
Answer: la
Also accepted: la — feminine; feminine

Chapter 318

318.1 Review — hasta pronto, and the word inside it
Answer: hasta pronto
Also accepted: ¡hasta pronto!; hasta pronto.

318.2 Review — hasta pronto, and the word inside it
Answer: promptus, brought forth or ready at hand
Also accepted: promptus, ready; promptus

318.3 Review — two sorries, and how to tell them apart
Answer: perdon
Also accepted: perdón; perdon, it asks for something back

318.4 Review — two sorries, and how to tell them apart
Answer: i feel it
Also accepted: I feel it, from sentire; i feel this

318.5 Review — two sorries, and how to tell them apart
Answer: per- thoroughly and donare to give
Also accepted: per and donare; per, thoroughly, plus donare, to give

318.6 Review — four nouns, easiest gender to hardest
Answer: la mano
Also accepted: la mano, feminine despite the -o

318.7 Review — four nouns, easiest gender to hardest
Answer: the object pronoun
Also accepted: whether they say lo or la; the pronoun, lo or la

318.8 Review — four nouns, easiest gender to hardest
Answer: el vino, la cabeza
Also accepted: el vino and la cabeza

318.9 Review — two marks that were added, and when
Answer: the spanish royal academy in 1754
Also accepted: the royal academy, 1754; 1754, the spanish royal academy

318.10 Review — two marks that were added, and when
Answer: no
Also accepted: no, it was added in spelling only; never

Chapter 319

319.1 Review — what the surface does not tell you
Answer: perdon
Also accepted: perdón; perdon, a pardon is granted

319.2 Review — what the surface does not tell you
Answer: la, and that agua is feminine
Also accepted: la, agua is feminine underneath; la

319.3 Review — what the surface does not tell you
Answer: hijo
Also accepted: hijo, where the h stands for a latin f; hijo and hacer

319.4 Review — the five words of a leaving
Answer: la calle, la esquina, la huella, el puerto, el faro
Also accepted: calle, esquina, huella, puerto, faro

319.5 Review — the five words of a leaving
Answer: the shin
Also accepted: the shinbone; shin, from skina

319.6 Review — the five words of a leaving
Answer: pharos
Also accepted: pharos, the island off alexandria; the island of pharos

319.7 Review — the harbour, the light, and see you soon
Answer: el puerto, el faro
Also accepted: el puerto and el faro

319.8 Review — the harbour, the light, and see you soon
Answer: hasta pronto: hasta, until, and pronto, soon
Also accepted: hasta pronto, until and soon

319.9 Review — an introduction, start to finish
Answer: el apellido
Also accepted: apellido

319.10 Review — an introduction, start to finish
Answer: senor and senora, from senior
Also accepted: señor, señora — senior; senor senora senior

319.11 Review — an introduction, start to finish
Answer: encantada
Also accepted: encantada, with an a

319.12 Review — two ways to answer an introduction
Answer: encantado
Also accepted: encantado or encantada; encantada

319.13 Review — two ways to answer an introduction
Answer: a taste
Also accepted: taste, from gustus; a tasting

319.14 Review — five answering words, and where they came from Answer: alguien
Also accepted: alguien, from aliquem

319.15 Review — five answering words, and where they came from Answer: born ones
Also accepted: people born; nati, born ones

319.16 Review — five answering words, and where they came from
Answer: two
Also accepted: two, a pair; the other of a pair

319.17 Review — five answering words, and where they came from Answer: tampoco
Also accepted: tampoco, tan plus poco

319.18 Review — the two that agree, and the p that becomes an f
Answer: otro and poco
Also accepted: otro, poco; otro and poco, because they measure a thing

319.19 Review — the two that agree, and the p that becomes an f
Answer: it turned into an f
Also accepted: p became f down the germanic road; p to f

Chapter 335

335.1 Review — six words that arrived last
Answer: la entrada
Also accepted: entrada; la entrada, the way in and the ticket

335.2 Review — six words that arrived last
Answer: el cambio
Also accepted: cambio; el cambio, the change

Chapter 336

336.1 Review — the same six, inside something you would say
Answer: tengo calor
Also accepted: tengo calor, I have heat; tengo calor (hace calor is the weather)

336.2 Review — the same six, inside something you would say
Answer: que edad tienes
Also accepted: ¿qué edad tienes?; qué edad tienes; que edad tiene usted

Chapter 337

337.1 Your own line — the first writing with no model
Answer: buenas tardes. me llamo
Also accepted: buenas tardes me llamo; Buenas tardes. Me llamo.

337.2 Your own line — the first writing with no model
Answer: buenos días
Also accepted: buenos dias; Buenos días.

337.3 Your own line — the first writing with no model
Answer: buenas noches
Also accepted: Buenas noches.

Chapter 338

338.1 Four lines about you
Answer: tengo _____ años
Also accepted: tengo anos; Tengo _____ anos.

338.2 Four lines about you
Answer: soy de for from, vivo en for now
Also accepted: soy de / vivo en; soy de is origin, vivo en is where you live

338.3 Four lines about you
Answer: vivo en _____. gracias
Also accepted: vivo en, gracias; Vivo en _____. Gracias.

Chapter 339

339.1 The same four lines, with a clock
Answer: 25 minutes, two tasks
Also accepted: 25 minutes and two tasks; twenty-five minutes, 2 tasks

339.2 The same four lines, with a clock
Answer: 15 to 25
Also accepted: fifteen to twenty-five; 15-25 words

339.3 The same four lines, with a clock
Answer: me llamo _____. tengo _____ años. soy de _____. vivo en _____. gracias
Also accepted: me llamo, tengo anos, soy de, vivo en, gracias; Me llamo _____. Tengo _____ anos. Soy de _____. Vivo en _____. Gracias.

Chapter 345

345.1 Review — the mask, the share, and the thing thrown down
Answer: persona
Also accepted: la persona

345.2 Review — the mask, the share, and the thing thrown down
Answer: el objeto, la parte
Also accepted: el objeto and la parte

345.3 Review — three plain words, none of them one piece
Answer: cada objeto
Also accepted: cada objeto.

345.4 Review — three plain words, none of them one piece
Answer: el mismo objeto
Also accepted: mismo objeto

345.5 Review — three plain words, none of them one piece
Answer: to throw
Also accepted: throw

Chapter 388

388.1 Review — four verbs, four kinds of "related"
Answer: borrar
Also accepted: borrar / borrow; borrar (borrow)

388.2 Review — four verbs, four kinds of "related"
Answer: it lacks the in-
Also accepted: English took the plain pulsare; no in- on the front; it comes from plain pulsare

388.3 Review — four verbs, four kinds of "related"
Answer: english
Also accepted: el ingles; inglés

Chapter 389

389.1 Review — the verbs that will not sit behind sé
Answer: se lanzar
Also accepted: sé lanzar; yo sé lanzar

389.2 Review — the verbs that will not sit behind sé
Answer: shouting is not a learned skill
Also accepted: nobody is taught to shout; it is not learned; saber claims a skill

389.3 Review — the verbs that will not sit behind sé
Answer: to taste
Also accepted: taste; saborear

Index

Look up an English meaning, a dedicated language topic, or a chapter topic. Each linked reference opens the chapter where the material is introduced; the focus labels name only explicitly typed lesson sections.

0–9

11-15 — five single opaque words, each one a Latin compound worn down until the seam disappeared once — quince
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 149, p. 515
16-19 — not words to memorise but a formula, diez y X, with the seam still visible dieciséis — diecinueve
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 149, p. 515

A

a bird in the hand — the proverb, and what a proverb is más vale pájaro en mano
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 274, p. 893
a card — a little targe, from French targe, a small shield, from Frankish targa; English target is the same little shield, and it meant a shield for centuries before anyone shot at it la tarjeta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 357, p. 1517
a class, a kind, a lesson — Latin classis, one of the six bands Rome sorted its citizens into by wealth; a writer of the top band was classicus, which is where classic comes from la clase
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 358, p. 1525
A Coffee, Please
chapter topic; Chapter 14, p. 103

a different one — Latin distinctus, pricked apart, from dis and stinguere; English distinct, distinguish and instinct all come off the same pricking distinto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 350, p. 1461
á é í ó ú — the acute accent, and the two jobs it does script and writing topic; explicit focus: script, grammar; Chapter 10, p. 75
A favor o en contra
chapter topic; Chapter 637, p. 3561
a favour, a good turn — Latin favere, to be well disposed toward somebody; English favour, favourite and favourable are all the same word el favor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 320, p. 1247
A finales de año
chapter topic; Chapter 540, p. 2955
a friend, of a woman — Latin amica, from the same amare as amable la amiga
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 285, p. 979
a glass — Latin vas, a vessel: named for what it does, not for what it is made of el vaso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 287, p. 995
a gram — Greek gramma, a written thing and also a small weight, from graphein to scratch; grammar, program, diagram and telegram are the same gramma el gramo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 359, p. 1533
a greeting — from salutem, health: to greet was to wish someone their health el saludo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 282, p. 955
a guest — the invited one; Spanish names the person by what was done to him el invitado
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 282, p. 955
a hug — from bracchium, the arm: the word says what the body does el abrazo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 282, p. 955
a hundred — Latin centum, cut short before a noun; English cent, century and percent keep the Latin, and English hundred is the very same ancient word cien
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 351, p. 1469
a kilo — Greek khilioi, a thousand; it is not Latin mille, so kilo and the mil of mil gracias are two unrelated thousands el kilo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 359, p. 1533
a litre — Greek litra, a Sicilian unit, the same word Latin took as libra, the pound; a pound is still abbreviated lb, and Libra is the scales in the sky el litro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 359, p. 1533

A lo mejor
chapter topic; Chapter 619, p. 3449
a mark, a brand — Germanic marka, a boundary; the border lands were marches, their lords marquises, and Latin margo, an edge, is the cousin that gives margin la marca
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 358, p. 1525
a metre — Greek metron, a measure, as in diameter and geometry; the underground metro is a different word, short for metropolitano, from meter a mother plus polis a city el metro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 359, p. 1533
A Moment, And Its Two Edges
chapter topic; Chapter 348, p. 1445
a moment — Latin momentum, the smallest movement that tips a balance el momento
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 303, p. 1123
A Package Abroad
chapter topic; Chapter 415, p. 1975
a plate — Greek platys, flat: the same flatness in a plaza and in a platypus el plato
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 287, p. 995
a present — from regalar, French regaler, on Old French gale, merry-making; English gala and to regale a guest are the same fun, and it has nothing to do with king or regal el regalo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 357, p. 1517
a short time ago, recently hace poco
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 537, p. 2937
a smile — subridere, to laugh slightly: a laugh with the volume turned down la sonrisa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 282, p. 955
a spoon — Latin cochlear, from cochlea, a snail shell you dug the snail out with la cuchara
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 287, p. 995
a stage, a leg of a journey — French etape, once a storehouse where an army drew supplies, from Middle Dutch stapel a heap; English staple is the same pile la etapa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 356, p. 1509
a thousand thanks — mille, the same thousand that measures a mile mil gracias
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 283, p. 963
a time, an occasion, a turn — Latin vicem, a turn or change; English vice-president, vicar and vicarious are all standing in someone's place la vez
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 330, p. 1327

a towel — a Frankish word that went into French and came out in two languages la toalla
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 287, p. 995
a while, a short time — Latin raptus, a snatching, from rapere to seize; English rapid, rapt, rapture and ravish are all seizures el rato
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 331, p. 1335
A While, a Way, a Thing
chapter topic; Chapter 331, p. 1335
a word in a hurry — the short form and the long one grammar topic; explicit focus: usage and culture; Chapter 228, p. 743
abbreviations — the shortened forms of address a letter and a form print, and the point that must not be left off las abreviaturas
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 426, p. 2055
above all, especially sobre todo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 588, p. 3255
Above, Below, In Front, Behind
chapter topic; Chapter 341, p. 1387
abroad, a foreign country; a foreign person el extranjero
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 415, p. 1975
abruptly, sharply bruscamente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 534, p. 2917
absurd, ridiculous absurdo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 579, p. 3199
Academy, French, Student and Exam
chapter topic; Chapter 410, p. 1953
academy, language school la academia
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 410, p. 1953
acceptable aceptable
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 508, p. 2755
accidental, by chance fortuito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 533, p. 2911
according to — marking whose claim it is según
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 277, p. 915
activity — Medieval Latin āctīvitās, a Scholastic coinage on āctīvus, from agere, to drive or to do; the -ct- still sitting intact inside activ- is the sign the word came off the page la actividad
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 394, p. 1839
actor — Latin actor, "one who does", from agere "to drive, to do"; the same verb sits inside agent, agenda and action el actor
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 421, p. 2001
actress — Latin actrix, the feminine of actor; the -triz ending is a museum piece that survives in only a handful of Spanish words la actriz
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 421, p. 2001

actually, really en realidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 589, p. 3261
address — Latin dīrēctiō, dīrēctiōnem, lifted from the written language rather than handed down, as derecho beside directo and razón beside ración show; on a form it is where you live la dirección
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 393, p. 1829
Admirar y agradecer
chapter topic; Chapter 720, p. 4081
admiration la admiración
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 720, p. 4081
adolescence, the teenage years la adolescencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 545, p. 2987
adoption la adopción
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 748, p. 4253
adult, grown-up adulto, adulta
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 417, p. 1983
advanced — a participle used as an adjective, and a cousin of antes, because to advance is to move to the front avanzado
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 471, p. 2511
advice, and also a council — Latin consilium; English counsel is the same word, and council a look-alike from concilium el consejo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 321, p. 1255
advisable, convenient conveniente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 637, p. 3561
aeroplane — Latin avis bird, but borrowed whole from French avion, coined by Clément Ader in 1875; aviation, aviator, aviary, avian, ostrich and auspices are all avis, and el aviso is not el avión
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 363, p. 1571
affection; darling el cariño
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 714, p. 4043
affectionate, loving cariñoso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 714, p. 4043
Aficiones tranquilas
chapter topic; Chapter 754, p. 4291
after — Latin de ex post, three little words run together; the post in it is English postpone, postscript and posterior después
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 323, p. 1271
afternoon (la tarde — feminine; also: late) la tarde
explicit focus: pronunciation; Chapter 2, p. 17
again — literally another turn; vez is Latin vicem, a turn taken in rotation otra vez
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 303, p. 1123

age — Latin aetatem from aetas and aevum, a lifetime; the -dad ending you know from verdad and ciudad, and English age, eternal, medieval and longevity share the root la edad
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 334, p. 1359
agreed — from cor, the heart: an agreement is two hearts brought together de acuerdo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 284, p. 971
Agua en el paisaje
chapter topic; Chapter 689, p. 3887
Ahí, Allí — The Other Two Places
chapter topic; Chapter 251, p. 791
Ahora, Hoy — Now and Today
chapter topic; Chapter 252, p. 793
air — Greek aer into Latin aer into Spanish; aerial, aerobic and aerosol are the family, and malaria is Italian mala aria, bad air, a discarded medical theory frozen inside a word el aire
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 362, p. 1561
airport — Greek aēr, air, set on Latin portus, a harbour; the shape matches English airport but cannot prove a loan, since French built aéroport at home el aeropuerto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 392, p. 1819
Al caer la tarde
chapter topic; Chapter 703, p. 3973
Al — Two Words Spanish Will Not Keep Apart
chapter topic; Chapter 230, p. 749
Al volante
chapter topic; Chapter 643, p. 3599
Alegrías y penas
chapter topic; Chapter 704, p. 3981
Algo de comer
chapter topic; Chapter 499, p. 2699
all, everything — Latin totus; English total is the same word, and Portuguese tudo is its sibling down a parallel road todo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 316, p. 1217
all of a sudden, suddenly súbitamente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 534, p. 2917
almost, nearly — Latin quasi, as if; English borrowed quasi whole and still hyphenates it onto anything that is nearly a thing casi
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 328, p. 1311
alone, and also only — Latin solus; the accent that once separated the two meanings was abolished in 2010, so five letters now do both jobs solo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 326, p. 1295

already, now — Latin iam; English borrowed it without knowing, in the déjà of déjà vu ya
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 323, p. 1271
also — and you have been holding half of it since the first chapter of this book también
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 219, p. 725
although, even though aunque
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 270, p. 865
always — Latin semper, kept almost whole; sempiternal is semper plus aeternus, everlasting said twice siempre
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 316, p. 1217
Amar y detestar
chapter topic; Chapter 715, p. 4049
ambition la ambición
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 766, p. 4365
ambitious ambicioso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 595, p. 3299
Amigos fieles
chapter topic; Chapter 725, p. 4111
An Adult Swimming Course
chapter topic; Chapter 417, p. 1983
an appointment, a date — from citar, Latin citare to summon, from ciere to set in motion; English cite, recite, incite and excite are all the same summons la cita
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 356, p. 1509
an occasion, a chance — Latin occasio, a falling-down, from ob and cadere to fall; accident, cadence, case, chance and cascade are all that same falling la ocasión
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 356, p. 1509
and / and you? — a tiny connector that hands the conversation back y / ¿y tú?
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 9, p. 69
Andenes Y Cierres
chapter topic; Chapter 439, p. 2189
anger, wrath la ira
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 707, p. 3999
angry, annoyed enfadado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 707, p. 3999
anguish, distress la angustia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 719, p. 4073
Animales del campo
chapter topic; Chapter 694, p. 3917
Animals About the House — Horse, Cow, Sheep, Hen, Donkey
chapter topic; Chapter 296, p. 1067

another, other — Latin alter, which meant the other of a pair rather than any other at all otro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 317, p. 1225
Answering, and Handing It Back
chapter topic; Chapter 9, p. 69
Ante el juez
chapter topic; Chapter 522, p. 2843
Antes del viaje
chapter topic; Chapter 478, p. 2569
Antes y después
chapter topic; Chapter 538, p. 2943
antiquity, the ancient world; age la antigüedad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 575, p. 3173
anxiety la ansiedad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 710, p. 4017
apparently aparentemente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 587, p. 3249
appetite el apetito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 742, p. 4215
apple — named after a Roman gardener whose variety outlived him la manzana
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 280, p. 939
Aprender y evaluar
chapter topic; Chapter 597, p. 3311
Aquel — The Far One, and an Old Friend
chapter topic; Chapter 223, p. 733 Árboles y plantas
chapter topic; Chapter 693, p. 3911
-ario
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 63, p. 255
-ario — the Eighth and Last Ending
chapter topic; Chapter 63, p. 255
around, round about — al plus rededor, from Latin retro backwards crossed with rota, a wheel; English rotate, rotund and retro all roll here alrededor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 347, p. 1437
Around The Room
chapter topic; Chapter 366, p. 1601
as a result of, following a raíz de
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 580, p. 3205
as long as; whenever siempre que
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 611, p. 3399
as soon as en cuanto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 536, p. 2931

ash — from Latin cinis; English incinerate is the same word, but English cinder is a Germanic impostor that only borrowed the Latin spelling la ceniza
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 369, p. 1631
ashamed, embarrassed avergonzado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 705, p. 3987
Asking Someone's Name
chapter topic; Chapter 6, p. 43
asleep — the past participle of dormir, from Latin dormire; English dormitory, dormant and dormouse are all sleeping dormido
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 327, p. 1303
assonance — the rhyme Spanish verse actually uses asonancia
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 276, p. 909
at first, in the beginning en un principio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 535, p. 2923
at once, at the same time a la vez
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 536, p. 2931
at the beginning of a principios de
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 540, p. 2955
at the end of a finales de
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 540, p. 2955
at the same time al mismo tiempo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 536, p. 2931
attractive atractivo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 730, p. 4143
August — Latin Augustus, the emperor the month was renamed for, inherited by way of the attested Vulgar Latin agustus; its learned twin augusto keeps the au and the u that agosto lost agosto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 392, p. 1819
Autocar y tranvía
chapter topic; Chapter 650, p. 3643
available disponible
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 478, p. 2569
avenue — a broad street, from avenir, whose older senses include things that come or arrive la avenida
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 401, p. 1901
Awake, Asleep, Strong, Weak
chapter topic; Chapter 327, p. 1303
awake — from despertar, and Latin expergisci, to set out from sleep; the e breaks to ie exactly where the stress lands despierto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 327, p. 1303

Ayudar a los demás
chapter topic; Chapter 606, p. 3367
Ayudar — the Same Word as Aid
chapter topic; Chapter 161, p. 561

B

badly — the partner bien has been waiting for since the opening pages, in a long form and a short one mal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 228, p. 743
Bajo el mismo techo
chapter topic; Chapter 750, p. 4265
Bajo las estrellas
chapter topic; Chapter 666, p. 3743
bank — a Germanic word for a bench; the money-changers of medieval Italy worked at a bench, and a broken bench, banca rotta, is English bankrupt el banco
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 353, p. 1485
Barcas y marineros
chapter topic; Chapter 659, p. 3699
barely, hardly, scarcely — a + penas, from Latin poena, a penalty; English pain, penalty, penal and subpoena are the same root apenas
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 328, p. 1311
Bastante — An Ending You Can Already Read
chapter topic; Chapter 227, p. 741
beach — Late Latin plagia, a flat stretch of shore; keep it apart from plaza by hearing y against z or s la playa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 400, p. 1893
beauty la belleza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 730, p. 4143
Beber, and Two Ways to Ask
chapter topic; Chapter 36, p. 165
because of a causa de
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 581, p. 3211
because — two tiny words fused into one, and the reason a sequence becomes a story porque
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 167, p. 591
bed — one of the commonest Spanish words, and nobody has settled where it came from la cama
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 279, p. 931
bee — Latin apicula, the little apis; Spanish kept the small form and let the big one die, the same way oveja and oreja did la abeja
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 368, p. 1621

Before, After, and While
chapter topic; Chapter 323, p. 1271
before — Latin ante; English ante-, antique, ancient and ancestor all come off it, and an ancestor is one who went before antes
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 323, p. 1271
beforehand, previously previamente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 538, p. 2943
behaviour — carrying yourself, with the same portare that carries goods in and out el comportamiento
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 466, p. 2461
behind, at the back — Latin trans, across or beyond; English transfer, transit, translate and transparent all carry it detrás
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 341, p. 1387
betrayal, treason la traición
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 745, p. 4235
bicycle — French bicyclette, Latin bi- two on Greek kyklos circle, wheel; cycle, tricycle, cyclops and the 1848 coinage cyclone are the same root, English wheel is its inherited cousin, and encyclopedia comes from a misread Greek phrase la bicicleta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 363, p. 1571
big — the first word in this book for what something is like, and it does not change for gender grande
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 58, p. 241
bigger, older — Latin maior, the comparative of magnus, "great"; English took the same word twice, as major and as the mayor of a town, though Spanish calls that official something else entirely mayor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 397, p. 1869
black and white — the two words, and the straight-line Latin history of the first one negro, blanco
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 139, p. 473
Black, White, Red, and Blue
chapter topic; Chapter 139, p. 473
blanco — the colour Spanish did not inherit etymology topic; explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 139, p. 473
Blood and Household — Son, Daughter, Grandfather, Grandmother, Husband
chapter topic; Chapter 306, p. 1141
blue — an Arabic loan that became the plain everyday word, where French's cousin stayed poetic azul
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 139, p. 473
book — named after the part of a tree people wrote on before paper el libro
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 57, p. 239

bored; boring aburrido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 476, p. 2557
boredom el aburrimiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 713, p. 4037
both — Latin ambo, the two together; English ambidextrous, ambiguous and amphitheatre all carry the same both ambos
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 351, p. 1469
bottle — from French bouteille, on a late Latin buttis, a cask; a butler is the bottle-keeper, and the older Spanish form of the same word is bota la botella
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 373, p. 1667
box — Latin capsa, the case a Roman kept scrolls in, probably reaching Castilian through Catalan or Occitan; case, capsule and chassis are cousins, and English cash first meant the box itself la caja
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 366, p. 1601
boxing el boxeo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 758, p. 4315
brave — the old present participle of valer, from Latin valere, to be strong or be worth; English valiant, valour, value and valid are the same root valiente
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 326, p. 1295
bravery la valentía
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 722, p. 4093
bread — and the compañero who shares it with you el pan
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 143, p. 491
breakfast — des- undoing ayuno, a fast; English breakfast says the same thing in Germanic words, and dinner is the borrowed Romance version of it el desayuno
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 367, p. 1611
Breakfast, Fruit And Something Sweet
chapter topic; Chapter 367, p. 1611
brimless cap — a round or close-fitting head covering, of uncertain origin el gorro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 402, p. 1909
broken down, out of order averiado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 769, p. 4385
broken, in pieces — an irregular participle that dropped two letters and kept them roto
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 448, p. 2285
brother and sister — NOT from frater/soror, but from an adjective meaning "of the same seed" el hermano, la hermana
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 140, p. 479

brush — a diminutive of cepo, from Latin cippus, a post or block of wood; the brush is named for its back, not its bristles el cepillo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 374, p. 1675
buenos or buenas — the rule you have been using all along
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 2, p. 17
Building a Paragraph — Plan, Add, Join, Refer Back
chapter topic; Chapter 273, p. 885
building — Latin aedificium, from aedes, temple or house, plus facere, to make; English edifice and edify are the same word el edificio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 378, p. 1707
bull — Latin taurus, most likely taken from a language spoken before Latin; English Taurus and toreador come from it, and steer may or may not belong with it el toro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 368, p. 1621
bus — French autobus, auto(móvil) plus (omni)bus; omnibus is the Latin dative plural of omnis, for all, so bus is a case ending left standing after its own word was thrown away el autobús
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 363, p. 1571
Buscar soluciones
chapter topic; Chapter 620, p. 3455
Buscar trabajo
chapter topic; Chapter 490, p. 3267; Chapter 590, p. 3267
busy — Latin occupare, to seize; to be busy is to be seized ocupado
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 304, p. 1129
but rather — si plus no, if not; the negative that corrects a negative, and both halves are words you already have sino
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 329, p. 1319
but — the first word you need to hold two true things against each other, and the first word of any argument pero
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 218, p. 723
but — the literary one, without the accent mas
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 276, p. 909
button — Old French boton, a thing that pushes out, from bouter, to thrust, taken from Germanic botan, to strike; button, buttress, rebut, abut and the butting of a goat all still push, and beat is the inherited cousin el botón
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 360, p. 1541

C

Calentar y trotar
chapter topic; Chapter 755, p. 4297
calm — Latin tranquillus, the word for a sea with no wind on it tranquilo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 304, p. 1129
Calor y sequía
chapter topic; Chapter 701, p. 3961
Cambios en el trabajo
chapter topic; Chapter 553, p. 3037
Cambios y cancelaciones
chapter topic; Chapter 662, p. 3717
Caminos de montaña
chapter topic; Chapter 687, p. 3873
Campeones y medallas
chapter topic; Chapter 757, p. 4309
candle — from velar, Latin vigilare, to keep watch; the identically spelled vela meaning sail is a different word entirely, from velum, cloth la vela
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 374, p. 1675
Cansado — a State, Not a Quality
chapter topic; Chapter 59, p. 243
Cansancio y descanso
chapter topic; Chapter 741, p. 4209
capital letters — and the four things Spanish pointedly does not capitalise, every one of which English does las mayúsculas
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 426, p. 2055
Capitals, Short Forms And Symbols
chapter topic; Chapter 426, p. 2055
Capítulo uno
chapter topic; Chapter 565, p. 3111
car — Hungarian kocsi, a cart from the town of Kocs, by way of German Kutsche and French coche; English coach is the same word, and the coach on the touchline began as a tutor who carried a student through el coche
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 363, p. 1571
care, caution — Latin cogitatum, a thing thought about, from cogitare to think; English cogitate and Descartes' cogito are the same verb el cuidado
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 333, p. 1351
Cariño y ternura
chapter topic; Chapter 714, p. 4043

Carteles y flechas
chapter topic; Chapter 672, p. 3781
Casados
chapter topic; Chapter 549, p. 3011
cat — a word that travelled out of Africa with the animal, pushing Latin's own fēlēs aside gato
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 150, p. 521
cave — from a Latin variant of cavus, hollow; cavity, excavate and cage are relatives, but English cove is a Germanic look-alike that is not la cueva
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 370, p. 1641
Celos y envidia
chapter topic; Chapter 708, p. 4005
centre, downtown — Latin centrum from Greek kentron, the spike a compass turns on; English centre, central, concentrate and eccentric all turn on it el centro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 347, p. 1437
Cerca y lejos
chapter topic; Chapter 671, p. 3773
certainly, of course desde luego
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 589, p. 3261
chair — Latin sella, a seat, from the verb to sit la silla
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 279, p. 931
chance, coincidence la casualidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 533, p. 2911
Character, Not Mood
chapter topic; Chapter 423, p. 2015
charm el encanto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 730, p. 4143
charming, delightful encantador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 730, p. 4143
cheap — from the old verb baratar, to trade or haggle; Corominas calls the ultimate origin uncertain, probably pre-Roman and possibly Celtic, and English barter is very likely the same family barato
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 397, p. 1869
cheerful — Latin alacer, lively, through two reconstructed spoken forms; English alacrity and Italian allegro are the same word alegre
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 380, p. 1723
cheers, and bless you — the noun you already have, used as an act rather than as a description, and it does two jobs ¡Salud!
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 428, p. 2079

cheese — Latin caseus, the very same word as English cheese by another road el queso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 280, p. 939
chess el ajedrez
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 752, p. 4279
chicken — the food word to keep distinct from polvo, dust el pollo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 403, p. 1915
Chicken, Vegetables and Paella
chapter topic; Chapter 403, p. 1915
childhood la infancia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 483, p. 2599
childhood la niñez
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 545, p. 2987
Children and Everybody — Boy, Girl, Lad, Lass, People
chapter topic; Chapter 308, p. 1153
chocolate — Nahuatl, but the Academy marks the etymology disputed; the famous xocolātl is unattested, and chicolātl, named for the whisking stick, is the live proposal el chocolate
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 376, p. 1691
Christmas — Latin nativitatem, a birth, from nasci to be born; Spanish nada and nadie are the same verb, a born thing and born people la Navidad
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 357, p. 1517
church — Latin ecclesia from Greek ekklesia, the people called out to assemble; English ecclesiastical is the same gathering la iglesia
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 346, p. 1429
cinema — short for cinematografo, Greek kinema movement plus graphein to write, a movement-writer; the same kinein is in English kinetic el cine
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 354, p. 1493
-cion — About Two Thousand Words, At Once
chapter topic; Chapter 23, p. 131
-ción — about two thousand words, at once
grammar topic; explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 23, p. 131
circus — Latin circus "ring", from Greek kirkos; the ring is the oldest part of the idea and the only part still round el circo
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 420, p. 1993
Ciudad o campo
chapter topic; Chapter 684, p. 3855
civic-mindedness, good citizenship el civismo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 600, p. 3331
cl-, pl-, fl- → ll-
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 29, p. 143

Cl-, Pl-, Fl- to Ll-
chapter topic; Chapter 29, p. 143
clean — from limpidus, clear, the word English kept for water and Spanish moved to laundry limpio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 281, p. 947
cleaning — the fourth way Spanish turns a word into the name of a doing la limpieza
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 453, p. 2341
clear (sky); awake, alert despejado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 698, p. 3943
clever, cunning astuto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 728, p. 4131
clever with ser, ready with estar — one word whose meaning is decided by the verb in front of it; the RAE traces it to Gothic lists, cunning listo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 326, p. 1295
client; customer — the person who buys or uses a service el cliente, la cliente
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 406, p. 1929
Clients, Documents and Data
chapter topic; Chapter 406, p. 1929
closed — the participle doing an adjective's job, and the sign you read most often cerrado
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 439, p. 2189
closeness, understanding; complicity la complicidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 744, p. 4229
clothes — Germanic raupa, plunder, beside raupjan, to pluck or strip; rob, reave and bereave still take, and robe made the same slide from spoils to garment on its own la ropa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 360, p. 1541
cloudy, overcast nublado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 698, p. 3943
clumsy — a word that meant shameful, and moved from how you look to what you can do torpe
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 447, p. 2275
coast — Latin costa, a rib, so the coast is the country's side; English coast, intercostal, accost and cutlet are all the same rib la costa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 370, p. 1641
coffee / a café — one useful noun before the polite request that follows café
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 14, p. 103

cold — Latin frigidus; English frigid, refrigerate and refrigerator are the same word, and hace frio has been carrying this noun all along el frío
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 334, p. 1359
colour — Latin color, from celare to hide, because a colour is what covers a thing; conceal, cell, occult and even hell are the same hiding el color
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 358, p. 1525
coma · comas · coma — let -er cross to a
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 127, p. 439
comb — Latin pecten; the same Latin family may reach the words for money, since pecuniary and peculiar are built on the word for livestock el peine
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 373, p. 1667
come — "he eats," and the polite "you eat"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 34, p. 157
Comeis and Vivis
chapter topic; Chapter 44, p. 187
coméis and vivís — the second difference, and the last
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 44, p. 187
comemos — "we eat"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 43, p. 183
Comen and Viven — Agreeing Again
chapter topic; Chapter 45, p. 189
comen and viven — agreeing again
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 45, p. 189
Comer bien
chapter topic; Chapter 742, p. 4215
Comer Es Bueno — The Infinitive as Subject
chapter topic; Chapter 264, p. 827
comer es bueno — the infinitive as the subject
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 264, p. 827
Comer — the Second Verb Family, One Slot at a Time
chapter topic; Chapter 34, p. 157
comeré — the same endings keep -er
productive pattern; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 122, p. 423
comería — keep -er before "would"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 123, p. 427
comes — "you eat," and the first real difference
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 34, p. 157
comfortable, convenient — "with measure", and a false friend in one direction cómodo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 452, p. 2331

comía — hear both vowels
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 107, p. 385
Comíamos, Éramos, Íbamos — Every One With an Accent
chapter topic; Chapter 244, p. 777
comíamos · éramos · íbamos — every one with an accent
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 244, p. 777
Comiendo, Viviendo — Two Families, One Ending
chapter topic; Chapter 237, p. 763
comiendo · viviendo — two families, one ending
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 237, p. 763
comieron
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 201, p. 687
Comieron — One Ending, Two Families
chapter topic; Chapter 201, p. 687
Comisteis, Tuvisteis — The Last Gap Closes
chapter topic; Chapter 242, p. 773
comisteis · tuvisteis — the last gap closes
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 242, p. 773
Cómo es
chapter topic; Chapter 508, p. 2755
Cómo es la habitación
chapter topic; Chapter 664, p. 3731
¿cómo está usted? / ¿cómo estás? — choose the register
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 9, p. 69
como — "I eat," and you already knew how
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 34, p. 157
Cómo llegar
chapter topic; Chapter 670, p. 3767
Cómo me enteré
chapter topic; Chapter 574, p. 3167
Cómo nos movemos
chapter topic; Chapter 640, p. 3581
Cómo nos sentimos
chapter topic; Chapter 487, p. 2625
Como Se Dice — The Sentence That Unlocks the Rest
chapter topic; Chapter 183, p. 651
Cómo son las cosas
chapter topic; Chapter 482, p. 2593
¿cómo? — the two marks that say "this is a question"
script and writing topic; explicit focus: script, grammar; Chapter 6, p. 43
comparing the three learned yo forms that end in -go tengo · hago · digo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 70, p. 281

comparing the two vowel changes inside the learned singular forms e → ie and o → ue
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 69, p. 273
complicated complicado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 620, p. 3455
compulsory obligatorio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 479, p. 2575
computer, in Spain — Latin ōrdinātor, the one who puts things in order; the word is old and Spanish, but the computing sense was taken from French ordinateur in the mid-1950s el ordenador
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 393, p. 1829
Con el plano
chapter topic; Chapter 669, p. 3761
Con una condición
chapter topic; Chapter 611, p. 3399
concert el concierto
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 413, p. 1967
Conectado de viaje
chapter topic; Chapter 773, p. 4409
congratulations — a plural noun used as an exclamation, and the one Spanish reaches for on a birthday where English would not ¡Felicidades!
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 428, p. 2079
Conmigo, Contigo — The Word That Says With Twice
chapter topic; Chapter 247, p. 783
Conocer — Coming to Know
chapter topic; Chapter 171, p. 611
Conseguir — Getting Is Following Until You Have It
chapter topic; Chapter 169, p. 605
consequently, therefore por consiguiente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 582, p. 3217
Contar una historia
chapter topic; Chapter 563, p. 3099
controversial polémico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 604, p. 3355
convinced convencido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 577, p. 3187
Convivir
chapter topic; Chapter 610, p. 3393
Cosas de casa
chapter topic; Chapter 496, p. 2681
could be — two words you already own, standing side by side and meaning less together than either does alone puede ser
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 298, p. 1083

Counting Past Your Fingers
chapter topic; Chapter 351, p. 1469
Country, City, Neighbourhood
chapter topic; Chapter 325, p. 1287
courage; value el valor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 722, p. 4093
course, class el curso
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 417, p. 1983
Courtesy Past Thank You — Excuse Me, With Permission, Kind, A Thousand Thanks
chapter topic; Chapter 283, p. 963
cowardly; the coward cobarde
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 722, p. 4093
creative creativo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 766, p. 4365
Crecer por dentro
chapter topic; Chapter 731, p. 4149
Críticas
chapter topic; Chapter 579, p. 3199
cross, angry enojado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 707, p. 3999
cruel cruel
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 723, p. 4099
Cruzar la calle
chapter topic; Chapter 647, p. 3623
Cuando — Both Pasts in One Sentence
chapter topic; Chapter 112, p. 401
Cuando me enfado
chapter topic; Chapter 707, p. 3999
Cuando se acaba
chapter topic; Chapter 745, p. 4235
Cuánto duró
chapter topic; Chapter 541, p. 2961
Cuerpo y mente en calma
chapter topic; Chapter 767, p. 4371
Cuesta arriba
chapter topic; Chapter 772, p. 4403
Cuidar el planeta
chapter topic; Chapter 504, p. 2731
Cuidarse
chapter topic; Chapter 732, p. 4155
Curarse
chapter topic; Chapter 739, p. 4197
curiosity la curiosidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 729, p. 4137

current, present-day actual
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 508, p. 2755
customs la aduana
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 656, p. 3681

D

-dad — Twelve Hundred More
chapter topic; Chapter 24, p. 133
-dad — twelve hundred more
grammar topic; explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 24, p. 133
dance — from bailar, borrowed from Occitan balar, from Late Latin ballare; English ball, ballet and ballad are the same word, and ball the round thing is not el baile
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 377, p. 1699
Dancing, and the Article You Drop
chapter topic; Chapter 419, p. 1989
dangerous — a trial you might not survive, with its letters swapped peligroso
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 461, p. 2417
Dar explicaciones
chapter topic; Chapter 586, p. 3243
Dar una opinión
chapter topic; Chapter 493, p. 2661
dark — Latin obscurus, ob- plus a word for dark; English obscure is the same word, and which ancient root the second half belongs to is still argued over oscuro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 372, p. 1659
day (el día — masculine) día
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 1, p. 1
Days of the Week
chapter topic; Chapter 138, p. 469
De compras
chapter topic; Chapter 681, p. 3837
De luto
chapter topic; Chapter 557, p. 3061
De niño
chapter topic; Chapter 545, p. 2987
De paseo
chapter topic; Chapter 674, p. 3793
De pronto
chapter topic; Chapter 534, p. 2917
De viaje otra vez
chapter topic; Chapter 501, p. 2711

De visita
chapter topic; Chapter 678, p. 3817
dead; the dead person muerto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 555, p. 3049
death la muerte
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 555, p. 3049
Decidir, Coincidir, Equivocarse
chapter topic; Chapter 437, p. 2169
Decir la verdad
chapter topic; Chapter 636, p. 3555
deep down, at heart en el fondo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 589, p. 3261
defeat la derrota
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 757, p. 4309
Defectos de cada día
chapter topic; Chapter 729, p. 4137
Defender una idea
chapter topic; Chapter 577, p. 3187
Del — And Then the List Stops
chapter topic; Chapter 231, p. 751
Del codo a la cadera
chapter topic; Chapter 737, p. 4185
delighted to meet you — Latin incantare, to sing a spell into; English enchanted encantado
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 305, p. 1135
demanding — a word that drives things out of you, from the verb behind agenda and actor exigente
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 445, p. 2253
Dentro del coche
chapter topic; Chapter 644, p. 3605
depressed, low deprimido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 717, p. 4061
Derechos
chapter topic; Chapter 603, p. 3349
Deriving the Rest
chapter topic; Chapter 76, p. 299
Describing an Experience — How It Felt, How Long, How It Compared
chapter topic; Chapter 269, p. 859
Desde entonces
chapter topic; Chapter 537, p. 2937
desperate desesperado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 717, p. 4061

dessert — the Latin family of post, after, with posterus and postrēmus behind it; Corominas makes postre a back-formation out of the phrase a la postre, the dessert sense documented in 1561 el postre
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 391, p. 1809
destination, fate, and a job posting — from destinar, a learned borrowing of Latin dēstināre, to make firm or fix in place, on the stāre that also stands behind estar el destino
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 392, p. 1819
Di, Haz, Ve, Pon, Ten, Sal, Se, Ven
chapter topic; Chapter 132, p. 455
di, haz, ve, pon, ten, sal, sé, ven
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 132, p. 455
di — the verb that changed families in the past
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 255, p. 801
Días difíciles
chapter topic; Chapter 717, p. 4061
dice que
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 211, p. 709
Dice Que — Someone Else's Sentence, Inside Yours
chapter topic; Chapter 211, p. 709
difficult — Latin difficilis, dis- plus facilis, "not doable"; English difficult is odd by comparison, having been cut backwards out of the noun difficulty difícil
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 398, p. 1879
dijo
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 212, p. 711
dijo que
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 213, p. 713
Dijo Que — Both Verbs Step Back
chapter topic; Chapter 213, p. 713
Dijo — The Stem That Breaks Its Own Rule
chapter topic; Chapter 212, p. 711
direct, straight through — and on a broadcast, live directo
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 446, p. 2263
dirty — from sucidus, greasy with its own juice, said first of unwashed wool sucio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 281, p. 947
disappointed decepcionado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 716, p. 4055
disappointment la decepción
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 716, p. 4055
discouraged, down desanimado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 712, p. 4031

distant, far-off lejano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 671, p. 3773
divorced divorciado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 550, p. 3017
doctor el doctor / la doctora
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 408, p. 1943
doctor — Latin medicus, a physician, from medeor, to heal; a word taken off the page, still carrying whole the three beats that Catalan metge wore away el médico
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 394, p. 1839
Doctor, Pills and Tiredness
chapter topic; Chapter 408, p. 1943
document — a written record or proof el documento
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 406, p. 1929
dog — a genuinely unsolved etymology, and the Latin word it pushed out perro
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 150, p. 521
Dog and Cat
chapter topic; Chapter 150, p. 521
Dónde dejar el coche
chapter topic; Chapter 648, p. 3631
Dónde dormir
chapter topic; Chapter 660, p. 3705
door — Latin porta, a gate, and the o that opened into ue la puerta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 279, p. 931
Dos grados
chapter topic; Chapter 468, p. 2481
double, twice as much — Latin duplus, from duo two and -plus fold; English double, duplicate, duplex and duplicity are the same two folds doble
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 344, p. 1411
down, below, downstairs — Late Latin bassus, low; English base, bass, abase and debase are the same lowness abajo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 341, p. 1387
dress — Latin vestire, to clothe, its past participle standing alone as a noun; vest, invest, divest and travesty are all still clothing something, and wear is the inherited cousin el vestido
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 360, p. 1541
dry — Latin siccus; English desiccate is the same word, and so is the sec on a French wine label seco
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 379, p. 1715
Dudas y preocupaciones
chapter topic; Chapter 719, p. 4073

due to, owing to debido a
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 581, p. 3211
duodēvīgintī — the quirk Spanish threw away etymology topic; explicit focus: usage and culture; Chapter 149, p. 515
dusk, sunset el atardecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 703, p. 3973
dust — Latin pulvis; English took the same word twice, powder through French with a d that was never in it, and pulverize straight off the Latin el polvo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 369, p. 1631

E

each, every — Greek kata, down or by, through Latin cata; English catalogue, catastrophe and cathedral all begin with the same kata cada
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 345, p. 1419
early — Latin temporanus, in good time, built on tempus; English temporary, tempo and contemporary share the root, and so does el tiempo temprano
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 322, p. 1263
earth, ground, land — Latin terra, the dry part of the world as against the water; terrain, terrace, subterranean, terrestrial, terra cotta and Mediterranean are the family, and terror is not la tierra
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 362, p. 1561
Earth, Sea And Sky
chapter topic; Chapter 362, p. 1561
Easter — Latin pascha, from Greek paskha, from Hebrew pesach, the Passover; English kept a spring goddess's name for the feast but the Latin one for paschal la Pascua
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 357, p. 1517
easy — Latin facilis, built on facere, "to do", so what it says is do-able rather than light; hacer is the same verb worn down by mouth, while fácil was lifted off the page and kept its c fácil
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 398, p. 1879
Echar de menos
chapter topic; Chapter 709, p. 4011
economic; cheap económico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 630, p. 3517
education; manners la educación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 505, p. 2737

efficient eficiente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 593, p. 3287
egg — Latin ovum, wearing an h that exists only to help your eyes el huevo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 280, p. 939
El Animo
chapter topic; Chapter 443, p. 2229
El banquete
chapter topic; Chapter 548, p. 3005
El bautizo
chapter topic; Chapter 546, p. 2993
El césped y el patio
chapter topic; Chapter 450, p. 2307
El comienzo
chapter topic; Chapter 542, p. 2967
El consejo a otras bibliotecas
chapter topic; Chapter 473, p. 2533
El Contrato
chapter topic; Chapter 441, p. 2209
El cuaderno de campo
chapter topic; Chapter 465, p. 2449
El Cuarto Y La Mesa — Key, Shower, Table, Light, Bathroom
chapter topic; Chapter 310, p. 1169
El Cuerpo Y El Descanso
chapter topic; Chapter 438, p. 2179
El curso de cocina
chapter topic; Chapter 471, p. 2511
El curso que paga la empresa
chapter topic; Chapter 474, p. 2541
El delito
chapter topic; Chapter 520, p. 2831
El deporte
chapter topic; Chapter 498, p. 2693
El desfile
chapter topic; Chapter 559, p. 3073
El dinero de cada mes
chapter topic; Chapter 477, p. 2563
El donativo
chapter topic; Chapter 461, p. 2417
El Edificio Y Sus Normas
chapter topic; Chapter 433, p. 2131
El entierro
chapter topic; Chapter 556, p. 3055
El gobierno
chapter topic; Chapter 601, p. 3337

El héroe de la historia
chapter topic; Chapter 564, p. 3105
El huerto comunitario
chapter topic; Chapter 467, p. 2471
El incendio
chapter topic; Chapter 524, p. 2855
El inventario
chapter topic; Chapter 459, p. 2401
El Libro — And a Word Made of Tree Bark
chapter topic; Chapter 57, p. 239
El Libro Que Compre — The Word You Cannot Leave Out
chapter topic; Chapter 187, p. 659
el libro que compré — the word you cannot leave out
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 187, p. 659
El Libro Que Compro — One Sentence Out of Two
chapter topic; Chapter 186, p. 657
el libro que compro — one sentence out of two
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 186, p. 657
El mar
chapter topic; Chapter 688, p. 3881
El medio ambiente
chapter topic; Chapter 607, p. 3373
El Mostrador — Ticket, Coin, Passport, Entrance, Change
chapter topic; Chapter 313, p. 1193
el or él? — the accent as a meaning label script and writing topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 10, p. 75
El paisaje
chapter topic; Chapter 685, p. 3861
El partido
chapter topic; Chapter 756, p. 4303
El pasado
chapter topic; Chapter 575, p. 3173
El Pedido Y La Devolución
chapter topic; Chapter 431, p. 2111
El plazo
chapter topic; Chapter 458, p. 2393
El porqué
chapter topic; Chapter 580, p. 3205
El preso
chapter topic; Chapter 523, p. 2849
el primer libro — where an ordinal stands
grammar topic; explicit focus: usage and culture; Chapter 262, p. 819
El Puesto
chapter topic; Chapter 445, p. 2253

El reencuentro
chapter topic; Chapter 560, p. 3081
El reparto
chapter topic; Chapter 452, p. 2331
El reportaje
chapter topic; Chapter 514, p. 2793
El rescate
chapter topic; Chapter 526, p. 2867
El taller
chapter topic; Chapter 449, p. 2297
El Taller Y La Máquina
chapter topic; Chapter 434, p. 2139
El testigo
chapter topic; Chapter 517, p. 2811
El turno
chapter topic; Chapter 453, p. 2341
El viaje guiado
chapter topic; Chapter 463, p. 2433
elderly; the elderly person anciano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 555, p. 3049
elegance la elegancia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 730, p. 4143
Elegir
chapter topic; Chapter 617, p. 3437
elevator, lift — Latin ascēnsor, the one who climbs, from ascendere; the form is ancient but the machine sense is French and dates to 1867 el ascensor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 390, p. 1799
email — correo is not built on correr but comes through Catalan correu from Old French corlieu, a messenger; electrónico goes back to Greek ēlektron, amber, and the pair renders English electronic mail el correo electrónico
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 393, p. 1829
Emociones fuertes
chapter topic; Chapter 711, p. 4023
emotion; excitement la emoción
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 711, p. 4023
En barco
chapter topic; Chapter 658, p. 3693
En clase
chapter topic; Chapter 476, p. 2557
En el aeropuerto
chapter topic; Chapter 652, p. 3655
En el avión
chapter topic; Chapter 654, p. 3667

En el banco
chapter topic; Chapter 628, p. 3505
En el museo
chapter topic; Chapter 763, p. 4347
En el periódico
chapter topic; Chapter 513, p. 2787
En el trabajo
chapter topic; Chapter 475, p. 2551
En el tren
chapter topic; Chapter 651, p. 3649
En el tribunal
chapter topic; Chapter 626, p. 3493
En equipo
chapter topic; Chapter 594, p. 3293
En la aduana
chapter topic; Chapter 656, p. 3681
En la calle
chapter topic; Chapter 570, p. 3143
En la carretera
chapter topic; Chapter 527, p. 2873
En la consulta
chapter topic; Chapter 486, p. 2619
En la consulta del médico
chapter topic; Chapter 738, p. 4191
En la universidad
chapter topic; Chapter 596, p. 3305
En mi cocina
chapter topic; Chapter 775, p. 4421
En peligro
chapter topic; Chapter 530, p. 2893
En realidad
chapter topic; Chapter 589, p. 3261
En recepción
chapter topic; Chapter 661, p. 3711
En ruta
chapter topic; Chapter 642, p. 3593
En taxi
chapter topic; Chapter 641, p. 3587
Encanto y belleza
chapter topic; Chapter 730, p. 4143
Encuentros y despedidas
chapter topic; Chapter 488, p. 2631
Engaños y coqueteos
chapter topic; Chapter 746, p. 4241

enough, quite — an ending you already decode, on a verb meaning to suffice, giving a word that means exactly "sufficing" bastante
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 227, p. 741
enough — the formal partner of bastante, naming a requirement where bastante names a place on a scale suficiente
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 467, p. 2471
Entender — Understanding Is Stretching Toward
chapter topic; Chapter 154, p. 539
entertaining, fun divertido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 713, p. 4037
Entre personas
chapter topic; Chapter 510, p. 2767
envy la envidia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 708, p. 4005
Enye and the Upside-Down Marks
chapter topic; Chapter 11, p. 81
era — an old root in an open past
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 109, p. 391
es- + consonant
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 30, p. 147
-es — The Plural Chapter One Promised
chapter topic; Chapter 80, p. 311
-es — the plural your first chapter owed you
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 80, p. 311
Es- — the Vowel Spanish Put in Front
chapter topic; Chapter 30, p. 147
Escribir — Writing Is Scratching
chapter topic; Chapter 156, p. 547
Ese — Pointing at What Is by You
chapter topic; Chapter 222, p. 731
Espanol, and Your First Built Sentence
chapter topic; Chapter 22, p. 127
Está claro
chapter topic; Chapter 587, p. 3249
estáis — and nothing surprises you
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 55, p. 231
estamos — the other "we are"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 55, p. 231
están — "they are"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 55, p. 231
Estar in the Plural
chapter topic; Chapter 55, p. 231
Este — Pointing at What Is in Your Hand
chapter topic; Chapter 221, p. 729

Esto, Eso, Aquello — Pointing at What Has No Name
chapter topic; Chapter 224, p. 735
esto · eso · aquello — pointing at what has no name yet
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 224, p. 735
Estoy Hablando — The Payoff
chapter topic; Chapter 238, p. 765
estoy hablando — the payoff
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 238, p. 765 Estudiante — a Word You Can Build
chapter topic; Chapter 52, p. 225
Estudiar
chapter topic; Chapter 505, p. 2737
Estudiar — Studying Is Being Eager
chapter topic; Chapter 21, p. 125
estuve — a third known verb joins the strong pattern
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 105, p. 375
even, at least — two words you already have, si and quiera, welded into one; ni siquiera is not even siquiera
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 324, p. 1279
even, including — Latin inclusus from includere, in + claudere, to shut in; English include, enclose, recluse, seclude and conclude are all shuttings incluso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 328, p. 1311
evident, obvious evidente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 587, p. 3249
exactly — from exigere, to drive out, and then to weigh out precisely exacto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 284, p. 971
exam, examination el examen
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 410, p. 1953
except excepto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 638, p. 3567
except if; unless a no ser que
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 612, p. 3405
except, safe — Latin salvus, unharmed; English salvage, salvation, salvo, salve and safe itself all come off it salvo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 329, p. 1319
excess weight, being overweight el sobrepeso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 742, p. 4215
excited; moved emocionado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 711, p. 4023
excitement, hope; illusion la ilusión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 765, p. 4359

exciting; moving emocionante
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 711, p. 4023
excuse me — from culpa, fault: literally, take the fault off me disculpe
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 283, p. 963
excuse me, said when you pass — per plus mittere, to let through con permiso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 283, p. 963
exempt, free from exento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 621, p. 3461
exercise el ejercicio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 742, p. 4215
exhausted; sold out agotado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 741, p. 4209
exhibition — Latin ex- "out" plus ponere "to place", a putting-out; the same ponere is inside compose, deposit and position la exposición
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 420, p. 1993
expensive — Latin cārus already meant both dear-and-beloved and dear-and-costly, exactly as English dear still does, and charity, cherish and caress all come from it caro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 397, p. 1869
experience — what an advert asks for, and a word that reads itself if you let it la experiencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 435, p. 2149

F

f → h — why the h says nothing
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 28, p. 141
F to H — Why the H Says Nothing
chapter topic; Chapter 28, p. 141
face — Late Latin cara, generally traced to Greek kara head though the trail is not clean; the identical cara meaning expensive is a separate root, carus, which gave English charity, caress and cherish la cara
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 364, p. 1581
fair; exactly; tight justo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 482, p. 2593
faithful, loyal fiel
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 725, p. 4111

false, fake — Latin falsus, the past participle of fallere, to trip somebody up; English fail, fault, fallacy and false all come off it falso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 324, p. 1279
falsos amigos
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 66, p. 261
Falsos Amigos — the Words That Obey and Lie
chapter topic; Chapter 66, p. 261
Familias de hoy
chapter topic; Chapter 748, p. 4253
far, far away — Latin laxius, more loosely, from laxus loose; English lax, relax, release and leash come off the same slack rope lejos
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 340, p. 1379
fast, quick rápido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 482, p. 2593
fat — Latin gurdus, dull or blunt, which Quintilian says he heard came into Latin from Spain; French gourd, numb, is the survivor, and English gourd is a false friend gordo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 371, p. 1651
father and mother — among the oldest reconstructible words in the whole family el padre, la madre
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 140, p. 479
fault, blame — Latin culpa; English culprit and culpable are the same word, and mea culpa was never translated at all la culpa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 320, p. 1247
Fauna y flora
chapter topic; Chapter 695, p. 3923
favourite — from favor, Latin favēre, "to be well disposed toward"; the -ito on the end is an Italian past participle, not the Spanish little-word ending it looks exactly like favorito
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 398, p. 1879
film or movie — Latin pellicula, a tiny skin or thin layer la película
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 404, p. 1919
finally, in the end finalmente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 535, p. 2923
Fine Shades — Four Differences a Translation Loses
chapter topic; Chapter 275, p. 901
finger, and equally toe — Latin digitus; digit became a numeral because people count on fingers, and digital reached the computer through the numerals rather than through the hand el dedo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 364, p. 1581

fingernail — Latin ungula, a diminutive of unguis, nail or claw; English ungulate, a hoofed animal, is the same word la uña
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 375, p. 1683
Finish, Prepare and Plan the Weekend
chapter topic; Chapter 409, p. 1947
Fire, Crossings, and Things That Turn
chapter topic; Chapter 387, p. 1777
fire — Latin focus, which meant the hearth and not the fire at all; focus, focal, curfew and fuel all come down from that hearth, while the Latin word for fire itself lost the fight across Romance el fuego
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 362, p. 1561
first, second, third — the counting words for order rather than amount, and the story inside the second one primero · segundo · tercero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 262, p. 819
fish as food — Latin piscātus, the catch, from piscārī to fish, on piscis; Pisces and piscine are borrowed, English fish is the inherited cousin, and pecado sin is a different word entirely el pescado
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 361, p. 1551
fishing la pesca
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 754, p. 4291
Five Animals, Two Of Them Small
chapter topic; Chapter 368, p. 1621
Five Buildings You May Have To Find
chapter topic; Chapter 353, p. 1485
Five Everyday Actions
chapter topic; Chapter 395, p. 1849
Five Last Pieces
chapter topic; Chapter 428, p. 2079
Five More Everyday Actions
chapter topic; Chapter 396, p. 1859
Five More Short Answers — Maybe, Could Be, Indeed, No Doubt, Out of the Question
chapter topic; Chapter 298, p. 1083
Five More Things You Ask For — Knife, Cup, Pot, Blanket, Broom
chapter topic; Chapter 294, p. 1051
Five More Things You Ask For — Rope, Needle, Thread, Basket, Paper
chapter topic; Chapter 301, p. 1107
Five Parts of a Building
chapter topic; Chapter 390, p. 1799

Five Places A Town Has
chapter topic; Chapter 346, p. 1429
Five Places and Things in a Week
chapter topic; Chapter 394, p. 1839
Five Places You Can Ask About
chapter topic; Chapter 378, p. 1707
Five Short Answers — Agreed, Sure, True, Exactly, Of Course
chapter topic; Chapter 284, p. 971
Five Sizes of When
chapter topic; Chapter 322, p. 1263
Five Things a Form Asks For
chapter topic; Chapter 393, p. 1829
Five Things a Person Has
chapter topic; Chapter 375, p. 1683
Five Things on a Plate
chapter topic; Chapter 376, p. 1691
Five Things You Ask For — Soap, Towel, Glass, Spoon, Plate
chapter topic; Chapter 287, p. 995
Five Things You Can Learn
chapter topic; Chapter 377, p. 1699
Five Things You Can Pick Up
chapter topic; Chapter 373, p. 1667
Five Things You Hold
chapter topic; Chapter 374, p. 1675
Five Ways to Be
chapter topic; Chapter 326, p. 1295
Five Words for a Journey
chapter topic; Chapter 392, p. 1819
Five Words for Eating Out
chapter topic; Chapter 391, p. 1809
Five Words for How Something Feels
chapter topic; Chapter 379, p. 1715
Five Words for Making a Journey
chapter topic; Chapter 400, p. 1893
Five Words for Weighing One Thing Against Another
chapter topic; Chapter 397, p. 1869
Five Words for What a Thing Is Worth
chapter topic; Chapter 398, p. 1879
Five Words for What Something Is Like
chapter topic; Chapter 380, p. 1723
Five Words in a Clothes Shop
chapter topic; Chapter 402, p. 1909
fixed, permanent — a past participle so old that nobody feels it as one fijo
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 441, p. 2209

Flechazos y piropos
chapter topic; Chapter 744, p. 4229
flight — the noun built from volar, to fly; for travel, the route an aeroplane covers from origin to destination el vuelo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 400, p. 1893
floor, storey, flat — from pisar, to tread, from Late Latin pinsare to pound; English pestle and piston are the same pounding, and in Spain un piso is a flat el piso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 355, p. 1501
floor, storey — Latin planta, both the sole of the foot and a cutting set in the ground; its pl- shows it was taken from writing, since the mouth-worn twin is llanta la planta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 390, p. 1799
flour — Latin farina, from far, husked wheat; the f became h by the Castilian change behind hacer and hijo, which spared frente and fuego la harina
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 376, p. 1691
flower — Latin flos, and the reason English flour is spelled so oddly la flor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 278, p. 923
fly — Latin musca; English borrowed the Spanish diminutive whole as mosquito, and the same little fly became the sparrowhawk and then the musket la mosca
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 368, p. 1621
food, a meal — a noun you can build yourself out of a verb you already own la comida
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 77, p. 303
for, during durante
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 269, p. 859
for example por ejemplo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 270, p. 865
“for” pointing back or through — at a cause, a route, an exchange; and you have been saying it since your first page por
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 177, p. 637
“for” pointing forward — at a destination, a purpose, a deadline, a person meant to receive something para
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 176, p. 635
forbidden, prohibited prohibido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 621, p. 3461
forgetting; oblivion; oversight el olvido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 764, p. 4353
Formas de trabajar
chapter topic; Chapter 591, p. 3273

forward, ahead adelante
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 671, p. 3773
Four Everyday Actions English Kept
chapter topic; Chapter 381, p. 1731
Four lines to one person — where the second needs the first script and writing topic; explicit focus: writing; Chapter 418, p. 1987
Four Ordinary Adjectives — New, Old, Clean, Dirty
chapter topic; Chapter 281, p. 947
Four Roads, and Where the Trail Stops
chapter topic; Chapter 384, p. 1753
Four Things in a Room — Door, Window, Chair, Bed
chapter topic; Chapter 279, p. 931
Four Things Outdoors — Wind, Snow, Tree, Flower
chapter topic; Chapter 278, p. 923
Four Things the Hands Do
chapter topic; Chapter 385, p. 1761
Four Things You Buy — Cheese, Egg, Apple, Money
chapter topic; Chapter 280, p. 939
Four Verbs Two Languages Built Twice
chapter topic; Chapter 382, p. 1737
Four Words for Following Directions
chapter topic; Chapter 401, p. 1901
free — Latin liber meaning unowned, which is a different Latin word from the liber that gave libro; English liberty, liberal and deliver come off this one libre
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 326, p. 1295
free of charge gratuito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 633, p. 3537
free of charge — a whole Latin word swallowed unchanged, grātīs contracted from grātiīs, "for thanks", which is why it never grows an -o or an -a gratis
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 397, p. 1869
freedom, liberty la libertad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 500, p. 2705
French; French person francés / francesa
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 410, p. 1953
fresh, cool — a Germanic frisk, new and lively, that spread through Romance; the painting technique is the Italian form, for paint laid on wet plaster fresco
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 379, p. 1715
friendship la amistad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 497, p. 2687
frightened, scared asustado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 706, p. 3993

from, since — three Latin prepositions welded shut, de plus ex plus de; despues is built the same way, out of de plus ex plus post desde
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 356, p. 1509
From the Seed Up — Seed, Root, Trunk, Branch, Wood
chapter topic; Chapter 291, p. 1027
From When, For How Long, And All At Once
chapter topic; Chapter 356, p. 1509
fruit — Latin fructus from frui, to enjoy, so a fruit is what a plant gives back; English fruit and frugal both arrived through French, and the old verb brook is the inherited cousin la fruta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 367, p. 1611
fueron
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 203, p. 691
Fueron — They Were, and They Went
chapter topic; Chapter 203, p. 691
full — Latin plēnus; plenty, plenary, replenish and complete are the borrowed cousins, full is the inherited one, and comply belongs with filling rather than with folding lleno
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 365, p. 1591
fun, entertainment la diversión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 713, p. 4037
funny, amusing gracioso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 713, p. 4037
Further Down — Neck, Shoulder, Back, Knee, Ankle
chapter topic; Chapter 293, p. 1043
furthermore, moreover además
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 273, p. 885

G

Ganar y perder
chapter topic; Chapter 629, p. 3511
garden — Frankish gardo, an enclosure, the same Germanic word English kept as yard and borrowed back from French as garden; kindergarten is a children's enclosure el jardín
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 354, p. 1493
gardening la jardinería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 754, p. 4291
Generosos y egoístas
chapter topic; Chapter 723, p. 4099
generous generoso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 723, p. 4099

Gente Y Trato
chapter topic; Chapter 436, p. 2159
given that dado que
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 580, p. 3205
glove — Germanic rather than Latin, probably through Catalan from Frankish want, a mitten, arriving already wearing the gu- Romance gives Germanic w- el guante
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 374, p. 1675
Going, and the Future You Can Already Say
chapter topic; Chapter 49, p. 209
gold — Latin aurum, from an ancient root for shining and dawning; aurora is the same root, and so, far back, is the English word east el oro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 373, p. 1667
good afternoon buenas tardes
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 2, p. 17
good evening / good night buenas noches
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 2, p. 17
good-looking — the Academy derives it from Latin vappa, flat wine and so a good-for-nothing, but Corominas argues against that route, so this is a word whose origin the two standard authorities do not agree on guapo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 399, p. 1889
good morning (literally "good days") buenos días
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 1, p. 1
goodbye adiós
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 12, p. 89
Goodbye
chapter topic; Chapter 12, p. 89
Grammatical gender — the two noun classes behind el and la
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 1, p. 1
Grande — the First Word for What a Thing Is Like
chapter topic; Chapter 58, p. 241
grape — Latin uva, a grape or a bunch of them; English uvula is its diminutive, the little grape at the back of the throat la uva
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 376, p. 1691
grass, the plant — with a silent h that Spanish added on purpose la hierba
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 450, p. 2307
grateful agradecido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 720, p. 4081
gratitude la gratitud
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 720, p. 4081

Green and Yellow
chapter topic; Chapter 151, p. 525
green — from a verb meaning "to flourish," and a cousin of verdant but not of English green verde
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 151, p. 525
grey — a Germanic word borrowed into Spanish through its Romance neighbours; English grey is a cousin from a different Germanic stem, not the same word gris
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 372, p. 1659
Grey, Pink And Dark
chapter topic; Chapter 372, p. 1659
Gripe y resfriado
chapter topic; Chapter 733, p. 4161
guilty; the culprit culpable
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 626, p. 3493
Guiños y bromas
chapter topic; Chapter 718, p. 4067
guitar — Ancient Greek kithára, a stringed instrument; the Greek source is certain and the road into Spanish is genuinely disputed, with three standard references giving three different answers la guitarra
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 394, p. 1839
Gustar — the Verb Built the Other Way Round
chapter topic; Chapter 163, p. 567
guts, courage; anger el coraje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 722, p. 4093
Gym and Sport
chapter topic; Chapter 412, p. 1963
gym, gymnasium el gimnasio
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 412, p. 1963

H

Ha + Y — The Fossil in a Three-Letter Word
chapter topic; Chapter 192, p. 669
ha + y — the fossil in a three-letter word
etymology topic; explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 192, p. 669
habla — "he speaks," and the polite "you speak"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 18, p. 117
Habla — Telling Somebody To Do Something
chapter topic; Chapter 131, p. 453
habla — telling somebody to do something
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 131, p. 453

Hablaba and Hablo — Two Ways of Looking
chapter topic; Chapter 111, p. 399
hablaba and habló — two ways of looking
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 111, p. 399
hablaba — let a past action stay open
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 107, p. 385
Hablábamos — The Imperfect Gets Its Plural
chapter topic; Chapter 243, p. 775
hablábamos — the imperfect gets its plural
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 243, p. 775
Hablado, Comido, Vivido — The Participle
chapter topic; Chapter 116, p. 411
hablado, comido, vivido — the participle
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 116, p. 411
Hablais — the Form Spain Keeps
chapter topic; Chapter 40, p. 177
habláis — the form Spain keeps
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 40, p. 177
hablamos
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 200, p. 685
Hablamos — the First Form That Is Not About One Person
chapter topic; Chapter 38, p. 173
hablamos — "we speak"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 38, p. 173
Hablamos — We Speak, and We Spoke
chapter topic; Chapter 200, p. 685
Hablan — They, and Ustedes
chapter topic; Chapter 39, p. 175
hablan — "they speak," and "you all speak"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 39, p. 175
Hablando — An Action Caught in the Middle
chapter topic; Chapter 236, p. 761
hablando — an action caught in the middle
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 236, p. 761
Hablar con otros
chapter topic; Chapter 502, p. 2717
hablara
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 206, p. 697 Hablara — the Form for Supposing
chapter topic; Chapter 206, p. 697
hablaré — keep the infinitive, add the future
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 122, p. 423
hablaría — the whole infinitive meets -ía
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 123, p. 427

hablaron
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 199, p. 683
Hablaron — They Spoke
chapter topic; Chapter 199, p. 683
Hablas español · Quiero que hables español — fact or wanted event?
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 126, p. 437
hablas — "you speak," to someone you know
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 17, p. 115
Hablasteis — The Form You Were Promised
chapter topic; Chapter 241, p. 771
hablasteis — the form you were promised
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 241, p. 771
hablé — a regular singular past from a known verb
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 103, p. 363
hable · hables · hable — the singular -ar row
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 127, p. 439
Hable Usted — The Polite Command
chapter topic; Chapter 134, p. 459
hable usted — the polite command
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 134, p. 459
Hablo, Hablas, Habla — The Ending Says Who
chapter topic; Chapter 258, p. 811
hablo · hablas · habla — the ending says who
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 258, p. 811
hablo — "I speak"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 16, p. 111
Hablo — One Form, Two Readings
chapter topic; Chapter 257, p. 809
hablo — one form, two readings
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 257, p. 809
hablo — one word, one whole sentence
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 16, p. 111
hacemos, hacen — and the club has no plural at all
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 76, p. 299
Hacer, Decir, and the -go Verb Club
chapter topic; Chapter 70, p. 281
Hacer y deshacer el equipaje
chapter topic; Chapter 668, p. 3755
Hacer y parecer
chapter topic; Chapter 511, p. 2773
Hacerse mayor
chapter topic; Chapter 554, p. 3043
Hacia dónde
chapter topic; Chapter 673, p. 3787

Hacia la cima
chapter topic; Chapter 686, p. 3867
haga · hagas · haga — hago lends its stem
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 128, p. 443
happiness, good fortune la dicha
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 704, p. 3981
happy feliz
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 269, p. 859
happy, content — Latin contentus, held together, from continere contento
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 304, p. 1129
hard — of a thing under your hand, and of a day you would rather not repeat duro
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 448, p. 2285
hard-working — trabajar plus the agent ending -dor, the Spanish descendant of the Latin -tor that made actor; the same ending makes both a noun and an adjective trabajador
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 423, p. 2015
haré · tendré · podré — three stems, two ending sets
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 124, p. 431
Has, Ha, Hemos, Habeis, Han
chapter topic; Chapter 118, p. 415
has, ha, hemos, habéis, han
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 118, p. 415
hasta aquí / hasta la noche — point to the limit
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 12, p. 89
having a cold, bunged up constipado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 733, p. 4161
Hay heridos
chapter topic; Chapter 525, p. 2861
Hay Que — Somebody Has To, and Nobody in Particular
chapter topic; Chapter 193, p. 671
hay que — somebody has to, and nobody in particular
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 193, p. 671
Hay — There Is, There Are, Same Word
chapter topic; Chapter 191, p. 667
He Hablado — A Verb With No Meaning Left
chapter topic; Chapter 117, p. 413
he hablado — "I have spoken"
grammar topic; explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 117, p. 413
He, She, and the Polite You
chapter topic; Chapter 18, p. 117
he/she calls himself; you (formal) call yourself se llama
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 6, p. 43

Head and Hand
chapter topic; Chapter 141, p. 485
Health, Hunger, Cold and Heat
chapter topic; Chapter 334, p. 1359
health — Latin salus, salutem, health and safety and a greeting all at once; English salute, salutary and salubrious keep it, and Spanish saludo is a wish for it la salud
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 334, p. 1359
healthy saludable
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 732, p. 4155
healthy — Latin sanus, sound in body and mind; English sane, sanity, insane, sanitary and sanatorium are the same word sano
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 327, p. 1303
Hearing, Sleeping, Walking, Running
chapter topic; Chapter 165, p. 573
heart — Latin cor, cordis with a Spanish augmentative ending; cordial, courage, accord and discord are all hearts, and record is literally to bring a thing back to the heart el corazón
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 364, p. 1581
heat — Latin calor from calere, to be warm; English calorie, cauldron, scald, chowder and nonchalant are all built on it el calor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 334, p. 1359
Hecho, Dicho, Visto, Puesto
chapter topic; Chapter 119, p. 417
hecho, dicho, visto, puesto
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 119, p. 417
hello / hi hola
explicit focus: pronunciation, writing, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 1, p. 1 help — Latin adiutare, to bring strength toward someone; the same root gives English aid la ayuda
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 303, p. 1123
hice — the strong pattern with one third-person swerve
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 105, p. 375
high, tall — Latin altus, which meant high and also deep; altitude, exalt, enhance, haughty and the oboe are all still measuring height alto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 365, p. 1591
historic; historical histórico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 568, p. 3131
Hola and Buenos Días
chapter topic; Chapter 1, p. 1
hola* — let your eye and your hand meet the word
script and writing topic; explicit focus: writing; Chapter 1, p. 1

hola* — look, hide, write, compare
script and writing topic; explicit focus: writing; Chapter 1, p. 1
hola* — one supported copy
script and writing topic; explicit focus: writing; Chapter 1, p. 1
holiday (of a day: día festivo); festive festivo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 681, p. 3837
honest honesto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 636, p. 3555
honesty la honestidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 724, p. 4105
hope la esperanza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 509, p. 2761
hospital — Latin hospitale, a house kept for guests, from hospes, which meant the host and the guest at once; English host, hotel, hostel and hospitality all come off it el hospital
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 353, p. 1485
hot (weather); warm (welcome) caluroso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 701, p. 3961
hotel — French hotel, from Old French hostel, from the same Latin hospitale as hospital; the little hat on the French o is a headstone for a lost s el hotel
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 354, p. 1493
hour / o'clock — telling the time, and a word Spanish inherited almost unchanged from Latin la hora
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 147, p. 507
house, home — and a word French wore down so far it stopped looking like a noun la casa
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 56, p. 237
how — a whole Latin phrase, quo modo, worn smooth into one word cómo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 6, p. 43
How Are You
chapter topic; Chapter 8, p. 63
how are you? — assemble the formal question from cómo, estar, and usted ¿cómo está usted?
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 8, p. 63
how old are you? — literally, how many years do you have? ¿Cuántos años tienes?
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 47, p. 193
How Tall, How Long, How Full
chapter topic; Chapter 365, p. 1591
How You Get There
chapter topic; Chapter 363, p. 1571

however, nevertheless sin embargo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 270, p. 865
Hoy Como en Casa — The Pieces That Move
chapter topic; Chapter 265, p. 831
hoy como en casa — the pieces that move
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 265, p. 831
humble; poor humilde
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 726, p. 4117
humid, damp húmedo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 696, p. 3931
Humildes y presumidos
chapter topic; Chapter 726, p. 4117
humility la humildad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 726, p. 4117
hunger — Latin famen from fames; a feminine noun that takes el before its stressed a-, and one of the f-to-h words like hacer, hijo and hierro el hambre
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 334, p. 1359

I

I am from... — use ser with de to state origin soy de…
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 48, p. 201
I am going to... — the near future with ir, a, and a known infinitive voy a + infinitive
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 49, p. 209
I call (from llamar, to call) llamo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 4, p. 29
I do not know — saber is Latin sapere, to taste; knowing began as tasting no sé
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 303, p. 1123
"I don't understand" — the most useful sentence a beginner owns no entiendo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 15, p. 107
I hope to travel espero viajar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 269, p. 859
I'm sorry — literally "I feel it," a naming of the feeling rather than a claim about yourself lo siento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 137, p. 465
I mean, that is o sea
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 588, p. 3255
I suppose that supongo que
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 271, p. 871

I will speak hablaré
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 49, p. 209
iba — ir returns to its inherited past
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 109, p. 391
Ice Cream
chapter topic; Chapter 411, p. 1959
ice cream; frozen el helado
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 411, p. 1959
ice — Latin gelu; English gelatin, jelly, congeal and gelid are the same word, and the h- here is a spelling habit, not the f- that hides in humo el hielo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 370, p. 1641
identify with ser; describe a current state or location with estar ser vs estar
explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 48, p. 201
ill — Latin infirmus, not firm; the same word as English infirm enfermo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 304, p. 1129
illegal ilegal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 625, p. 3487
illness, disease la enfermedad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 732, p. 4155
Ilusiones y deseos
chapter topic; Chapter 765, p. 4359
imagination la imaginación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 765, p. 4359
immediately inmediatamente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 534, p. 2917
important — built on importar, from Latin importāre, "to carry in"; classical Latin never used it to mean "to matter", and English import still carries both jobs importante
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 398, p. 1879
Imprevistos
chapter topic; Chapter 616, p. 3431
in advance; early, ahead adelantado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 479, p. 2575
in any case; if anything en todo caso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 612, p. 3405
in case; if en caso de que
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 611, p. 3399
in fact de hecho
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 589, p. 3261
in favour; supporter partidario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 578, p. 3193

in force, current vigente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 625, p. 3487
in front, ahead — Latin ante, before; English ante, antecedent, anterior, antique and anticipate all come off it delante
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 341, p. 1387
in general, generally en general
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 588, p. 3255
in love enamorado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 715, p. 4049
in my opinion en mi opinión
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 270, p. 865
in short — and the last thing this book asks of you en resumen
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 277, p. 915
in that case en ese caso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 612, p. 3405
in the first place, firstly en primer lugar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 273, p. 885
in the long run a la larga
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 535, p. 2923
in the middle en medio
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 407, p. 1937
in the middle of, around the middle of a mediados de
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 540, p. 2955
in the old days, formerly antiguamente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 575, p. 3173
in theory en teoría
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 618, p. 3443
incredible, unbelievable increíble
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 508, p. 2755
indeed — from ex and facere, carried out; it confirms what somebody has just said, and does not mean "in effect" en efecto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 298, p. 1083
independent independiente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 508, p. 2755
initialisms and acronyms — written without points, and pluralised by doubling the letters rather than by adding an s las siglas
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 426, p. 2055
initiative la iniciativa
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 475, p. 2551
Inside The Building, Not Outside It
chapter topic; Chapter 355, p. 1501

inside, within — Latin de intro, from within, on intra; English interior, internal, entrance and the intro of anything share it dentro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 341, p. 1387
insomnia el insomnio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 741, p. 4209
intelligent — Latin intellegere, inter "between" plus legere "to pick out"; intelligence is literally the act of choosing between things inteligente
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 423, p. 2015
Intentarlo
chapter topic; Chapter 492, p. 2655
interesting — from Latin interesse, inter + esse, "to be between"; the same phrase gave banking the word interest, because what a lender lost was id quod interest, the difference between interesante
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 398, p. 1879
Ir in the Plural — a Verb That Is Not Ir
chapter topic; Chapter 68, p. 269
is in or at... — locate someone with estar and the already-known en está en…
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 48, p. 201
isolation el aislamiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 709, p. 4011
-ista
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 53, p. 227
-ista — Jobs You Can Already Read
chapter topic; Chapter 53, p. 227
"it" — a word you have been saying since your fourth chapter, in a job you have not met yet lo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 83, p. 319
it depends depende
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 210, p. 705
"it" for something feminine — the one word in this pair that never had to change la
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 84, p. 321
it's just that... es que…
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 272, p. 877

J

jealous celoso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 708, p. 4005

jealousy los celos
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 708, p. 4005
jeans — literally cowboy trousers, and one of the few garments Spanish names after the person who wore them first los vaqueros
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 430, p. 2101
jet lag; the time difference el desfase horario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 655, p. 3673
joker; fond of jokes bromista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 718, p. 4067
joy, happiness la alegría
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 704, p. 3981
Juegos de mesa
chapter topic; Chapter 752, p. 4279
Jugar — Playing Was Joking
chapter topic; Chapter 170, p. 607
jungle, forest — Latin silva, a wood; English sylvan and savage are the same word, and Pennsylvania means Penn's woods la selva
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 378, p. 1707
Juzgar
chapter topic; Chapter 447, p. 2275

K

kind — Latin amabilis, loveable: the person it is easy to be fond of amable
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 283, p. 963
kindness la amabilidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 723, p. 4099
kiss — Latin basium, which the Academy's dictionary says Latin itself took from Celtic; French baiser and Italian bacio are the same word el beso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 375, p. 1683
knot — Latin nodus by way of an irregular Vulgar Latin form; desnudo, naked, is a different Latin word, and Corominas denies the two ever merged el nudo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 374, p. 1675
Knowing How — the Verb That Once Meant Taste
chapter topic; Chapter 389, p. 1795

L

La Bebo — The Pronoun Tells the Truth
chapter topic; Chapter 144, p. 497

la bebo — the pronoun tells the truth
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 144, p. 497
La biblioteca que presta cosas
chapter topic; Chapter 472, p. 2523
La búsqueda
chapter topic; Chapter 531, p. 2899
La cara
chapter topic; Chapter 736, p. 4179
La casa de mis abuelos
chapter topic; Chapter 774, p. 4415
La Casa Por Dentro
chapter topic; Chapter 432, p. 2121
La Casa Por Fuera
chapter topic; Chapter 444, p. 2241
La Casa — Your First Everyday Noun
chapter topic; Chapter 56, p. 237
La cita perdida
chapter topic; Chapter 464, p. 2441
La cola y el carné
chapter topic; Chapter 451, p. 2319
La Comida — A Noun You Can Build
chapter topic; Chapter 77, p. 303
La cuenta
chapter topic; Chapter 456, p. 2373
La economía
chapter topic; Chapter 630, p. 3517
La empresa
chapter topic; Chapter 592, p. 3281
La explosión
chapter topic; Chapter 529, p. 2887
La familia política
chapter topic; Chapter 747, p. 4247
La farmacia de guardia
chapter topic; Chapter 457, p. 2385
La Fiesta Y El Año
chapter topic; Chapter 440, p. 2199
La Gestion
chapter topic; Chapter 442, p. 2219
La guerra
chapter topic; Chapter 567, p. 3123
La habitación
chapter topic; Chapter 455, p. 2361
La herramienta
chapter topic; Chapter 460, p. 2409

La impresora de la sala 2
chapter topic; Chapter 469, p. 2491
La lucha
chapter topic; Chapter 569, p. 3137
La mudanza
chapter topic; Chapter 448, p. 2285
La partida
chapter topic; Chapter 561, p. 3087
La policía actúa
chapter topic; Chapter 519, p. 2823
La puerta de embarque
chapter topic; Chapter 653, p. 3661
La reunión
chapter topic; Chapter 462, p. 2425
La separación
chapter topic; Chapter 550, p. 3017
La sociedad
chapter topic; Chapter 507, p. 3331; Chapter 600, p. 3331
La — The Pronoun Carries What Left
chapter topic; Chapter 84, p. 321
La Tienda Y La Cuenta — Shop, Bill, Price, Bag, Seat
chapter topic; Chapter 311, p. 1177
La vejez
chapter topic; Chapter 555, p. 3049
La vía cortada
chapter topic; Chapter 454, p. 2351
La vida en el campo
chapter topic; Chapter 691, p. 3899
lamp — Greek lampas, a torch, from lampein, to shine; lamp and lantern are cousins, and Spanish relámpago, lightning, comes free with it la lámpara
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 366, p. 1601
language — Greek idioma, a peculiarity of style, from idios, one's own; idiom, idiosyncrasy and idiot are all from the same idios el idioma
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 377, p. 1699
las casas — "the houses"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 78, p. 307
Las consecuencias
chapter topic; Chapter 582, p. 3217
Las cuentas de casa
chapter topic; Chapter 627, p. 3499
Las elecciones
chapter topic; Chapter 602, p. 3343

Las noticias
chapter topic; Chapter 495, p. 2675
Las partes de la ciudad
chapter topic; Chapter 675, p. 3799
Las reglas
chapter topic; Chapter 622, p. 3467
Las tareas de casa
chapter topic; Chapter 485, p. 2613
Las — The Plural Article That Behaves
chapter topic; Chapter 78, p. 307
Las tiendas del barrio
chapter topic; Chapter 770, p. 4391
last — Latin ultimus, a superlative to a stem meaning beyond; English ultimate, ultimatum and ultra are all in that family último
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 380, p. 1723
last night — Latin ad noctem, toward night, worn into one word; the same noctem gives English nocturnal and equinox anoche
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 322, p. 1263
lately últimamente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 538, p. 2943
later más tarde
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 535, p. 2923
laziness la pereza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 729, p. 4137
lazy perezoso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 729, p. 4137
Le — To Him, To Her, To You
chapter topic; Chapter 93, p. 343
Leer en casa
chapter topic; Chapter 762, p. 4341
Leer — Reading Is Gathering
chapter topic; Chapter 155, p. 543
Legal o ilegal
chapter topic; Chapter 625, p. 3487
Lejos de casa
chapter topic; Chapter 552, p. 3031
Les — And What the Second System Costs
chapter topic; Chapter 94, p. 345
les — "to them," and what this system really costs
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 94, p. 345
less, fewer, except — Latin minus, the twin of magis; English minus, minor, minimum, minister and diminish are all the small end of it menos
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 324, p. 1279

letter of the alphabet — Latin littera, which also gives English letter, literal and literature; where Latin got it is still unsettled la letra
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 377, p. 1699
library — Greek biblion, a book, plus theke, a chest, so a book-chest; the same theke gave Spanish bodega and botica, French boutique and English apothecary la biblioteca
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 353, p. 1485
life — Latin vita; English vital, vitamin, revive, survive and viable are all built on it, and the vitamin was named by a chemist who thought it was an amine la vida
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 330, p. 1327
light, pale, clear — the adjective behind a word you have been saying for chapters claro
explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 455, p. 2361
likeable, nice — Spanish's own adjective from simpatía, Latin sympathia from Greek sympatheia; it does not mean sympathetic simpático
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 380, p. 1723
likely, probable probable
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 613, p. 3411
Límites
chapter topic; Chapter 638, p. 3567
lip — Latin labium, the same word as English labial; English lip is Germanic, and the old Indo-European link between them is now doubted el labio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 375, p. 1683
Listos y sabios
chapter topic; Chapter 728, p. 4131
little, few — Latin paucus; English paucity is the noun and few is the same root through Germanic, and you already carry it inside tampoco poco
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 317, p. 1225
living room, hall — Proto-Germanic salaz, a one-room building, not Latin at all; English salon and saloon are the same word by way of French la sala
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 390, p. 1799
Llegar a un acuerdo
chapter topic; Chapter 634, p. 3543
Llenar el depósito
chapter topic; Chapter 646, p. 3617
Lluvia
chapter topic; Chapter 697, p. 3937

Lo consiguió
chapter topic; Chapter 573, p. 3161
Lo hace posible o no
chapter topic; Chapter 621, p. 3461
Lo que cociné
chapter topic; Chapter 768, p. 4379
Lo que cuesta la habitación
chapter topic; Chapter 663, p. 3723
Lo que dice la gente
chapter topic; Chapter 480, p. 2581
Lo que hace falta
chapter topic; Chapter 613, p. 3411
Lo que hay en la calle
chapter topic; Chapter 682, p. 3843
Lo que influye
chapter topic; Chapter 583, p. 3223
Lo Que Llevas — Clock, Phone, Suitcase, Map, Letter
chapter topic; Chapter 312, p. 1185
Lo que pasó
chapter topic; Chapter 512, p. 2781
Lo que pienso
chapter topic; Chapter 576, p. 3181
Lo Que — What, Out of Two Old Words
chapter topic; Chapter 188, p. 661
lo que — "what," out of two old words
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 188, p. 661
Lo — Saying It Without Naming It
chapter topic; Chapter 83, p. 319
Lo Siento
chapter topic; Chapter 137, p. 465
located, situated situado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 669, p. 3761
logical; natural, to be expected lógico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 577, p. 3187
lonely, solitary solitario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 709, p. 4011
long — Latin largus, abundant and generous; English large is the very same word gone one way, largesse keeps the older sense, and Spanish took it the other way, to long largo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 365, p. 1591
look — and the tone shifts mira
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 272, p. 877
los and las — "them"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 89, p. 335

Los and Las — Them, Derived
chapter topic; Chapter 89, p. 335
los libros — "the books"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 79, p. 309
Los nervios
chapter topic; Chapter 710, p. 4017
Los novios
chapter topic; Chapter 547, p. 2999
Los Papeles Del Trabajo
chapter topic; Chapter 435, p. 2149
Los — The One That Does Not Add -s
chapter topic; Chapter 79, p. 309
love at first sight el flechazo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 744, p. 4229
loyal leal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 725, p. 4111
loyalty la lealtad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 725, p. 4111
luck — Latin sors, sortem, a token drawn from a jar; English sort, sorcery and consort are all lots being drawn la suerte
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 320, p. 1247
lukewarm — Latin tepidus, the same word English borrowed later as tepid, one worn down by speech and the other kept in a book tibio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 379, p. 1715
lying; the liar mentiroso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 724, p. 4105

M

madam, Mrs — the feminine of senor, on the same Latin senior señora
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 305, p. 1135
magic la magia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 752, p. 4279
maize — Taíno mahis, one of the first American words to reach Europe, and the word Spanish handed on to English as maize el maíz
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 376, p. 1691
make-up el maquillaje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 760, p. 4329
Making a Case — Claim, Example, However, Although
chapter topic; Chapter 270, p. 865

Mal — Bien Finally Gets Its Opposite
chapter topic; Chapter 228, p. 743
Malas noticias
chapter topic; Chapter 716, p. 4055
mañana, español — the ñ in the words you are about to need script and writing topic; explicit focus: script; Chapter 11, p. 81
María · España · profesor — the nouns that need no article
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 260, p. 815
María, España — The Nouns That Need No Article
chapter topic; Chapter 260, p. 815
María, Ven — Naming Who You Are Talking To
chapter topic; Chapter 249, p. 787
María, ven — naming who you are talking to
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 249, p. 787
market — Latin mercatus from merx, goods; English market, merchant, commerce and even mercy grow out of the same trade el mercado
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 346, p. 1429
married casado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 549, p. 3011
Más deportes
chapter topic; Chapter 758, p. 4315
Más parientes
chapter topic; Chapter 749, p. 4259
Más tarde de lo previsto
chapter topic; Chapter 543, p. 2973
mature; ripe maduro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 731, p. 4149
maturity la madurez
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 731, p. 4149
May mayo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 416, p. 1979
maybe — literally "such a turn", from vicem, a turn or a change; vice versa is the turn turned round tal vez
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 298, p. 1083
maybe, perhaps a lo mejor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 619, p. 3449
maybe, perhaps quizás
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 271, p. 871
Me and Te — The Two People Talking
chapter topic; Chapter 85, p. 323
Me Lo — Both at Once
chapter topic; Chapter 98, p. 353
me lo — both at once
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 98, p. 353

me / myself me
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 4, p. 29
me quieres — "you love me"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 85, p. 323
Me siento mal
chapter topic; Chapter 740, p. 4203
meadow — Latin pratum; English prairie is the same word through French, and Madrid's museum is named for the meadow it stands on el prado
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 378, p. 1707
meanwhile, in the meantime mientras tanto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 536, p. 2931
meat, flesh — Latin carō, stem carn-; carnal, incarnate and carnage are the direct cousins, and carnival is carnelevare, the removing of meat la carne
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 361, p. 1551
meditation la meditación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 767, p. 4371
Meeting Someone — Welcome, Greeting, Hug, Smile, Guest
chapter topic; Chapter 282, p. 955
melancholy, gloom la melancolía
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 704, p. 3981
-mente — With No Upper Limit
chapter topic; Chapter 25, p. 135
-mente — with no upper limit
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 25, p. 135
Mi carrera
chapter topic; Chapter 595, p. 3299
Mi estado de ánimo
chapter topic; Chapter 712, p. 4031
Middle, Below, Outside and Beside
chapter topic; Chapter 407, p. 1937
Mientras tanto
chapter topic; Chapter 536, p. 2931
mild, temperate; lukewarm templado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 701, p. 3961
milk — Latin lac, stem lact-; lactose and lactate are learned coinages and Italian latte is the same word, while lettuce is lactūca, named for the milky sap of a cut stem la leche
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 361, p. 1551
Mine, Somebody Else's, And Which Kind
chapter topic; Chapter 350, p. 1461
Mirar Y Moverse
chapter topic; Chapter 446, p. 2263

Mis aficiones
chapter topic; Chapter 751, p. 4271
Mis tareas
chapter topic; Chapter 593, p. 3287
missing; disappeared desaparecido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 531, p. 2899
mobile phone — literally the movable one, from Latin mobilis el móvil
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 404, p. 1919
modest modesto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 726, p. 4117
Mojarse
chapter topic; Chapter 702, p. 3967
money — the name of a Roman coin, still doing service two thousand years later el dinero
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 280, p. 939
Monumentos
chapter topic; Chapter 677, p. 3811
mood, and humour — one word for both, because your temperament was once a fluid el humor
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 440, p. 2199
mood, spirits; courage el ánimo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 712, p. 4031
moon — Latin luna, worn down from an earlier louksna, the shiny one, from the same ancient root as la luz; light is the inherited English cousin, lucid and luminous the borrowed ones, and leukemia the one that came through Greek la luna
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 362, p. 1561
More of the Kitchen — Pan, Oven, Fork, Garlic, Soup
chapter topic; Chapter 297, p. 1075
“more slowly” — the request that makes the last sentence solvable más despacio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 15, p. 107
more than más que
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 269, p. 859
most likely, probably seguramente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 618, p. 3443
most of them, the majority — Latin maior, greater, from magnus; English major, mayor and magnitude are all the same greatness la mayoría
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 352, p. 1477
mourning el luto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 557, p. 3061

moving, emotional emotivo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 711, p. 4023
much / a lot mucho
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 6, p. 43
mucha agua · pocos libros — when the quantity word agrees
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 259, p. 813
Mucha Agua — When the Quantity Word Agrees
chapter topic; Chapter 259, p. 813
museum — Greek mouseion, a seat of the Muses; the Mouseion at Alexandria was a place scholars lived and worked, and the same Muses are inside English music el museo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 353, p. 1485
music la música
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 413, p. 1967
Music and Concert
chapter topic; Chapter 413, p. 1967
Música y canciones
chapter topic; Chapter 753, p. 4285
must — the guess, not the obligation deber de
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 275, p. 901
Muy — The Same Word, Bitten Short
chapter topic; Chapter 226, p. 739
my name is (literally "I call myself") me llamo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 4, p. 29
my, your informal, and your formal or his or her — before a singular noun mi, tu, su
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 49, p. 209

N

ñ — the letter that remembers a doubled n script and writing topic; explicit focus: pronunciation, script, usage and culture; Chapter 11, p. 81 Naming a Date, and the Stretches Around It
chapter topic; Chapter 343, p. 1403
Naming, Properly — Name, Surname, Sir, Madam, Delighted
chapter topic; Chapter 305, p. 1135
Naming the Land — Village, Hill, Valley, Lake, Mountain
chapter topic; Chapter 292, p. 1035
Naming the Whole — Family, Nickname, Relative, Partner, Baby
chapter topic; Chapter 309, p. 1161

nationality — built inside Spanish from nacional plus -idad; its base nación is the borrowing, Latin nātiō, nātiōnem, birth and then a people, which Corominas dates to the fifteenth century la nacionalidad
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 393, p. 1829
nature la naturaleza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 685, p. 3861
nausea, sickness las náuseas
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 740, p. 4203
-ncia
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 62, p. 251
-ncia — Turning a Quality into a Thing
chapter topic; Chapter 62, p. 251
Near, Far, and Which Side
chapter topic; Chapter 340, p. 1379
near, nearby — Latin circa, around; English circa, circle, circuit and circus all turn on the same ring cerca
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 340, p. 1379
nearby, close cercano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 671, p. 3773
necessary — Latin necessarius, from necesse, unavoidable; English necessary is the same Latin word, borrowed rather than inherited necesario
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 380, p. 1723
negative negativo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 584, p. 3231
neither — the same tan, a different second half, and the word that lets you agree with a no tampoco
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 220, p. 727
nephew — Latin sobrinus, a cousin on the mother's side, built on soror, sister; English cousin is the prefixed consobrinus el sobrino
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 375, p. 1683
nerves los nervios
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 710, p. 4017
nervous — Latin nervosus from nervus, a sinew; English nerve, nervous and neuron are the same fibre, and -oso is the -ous you already know nervioso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 326, p. 1295
Never, Always, All, Nothing
chapter topic; Chapter 316, p. 1217
Never, Barely, Almost, Even
chapter topic; Chapter 328, p. 1311

never, ever — Latin iam magis, already more; the magis half is the same word that became más, and French jamais took the identical road jamás
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 328, p. 1311
never — Latin numquam, ne plus umquam, "not ever"; English never is ne plus ever, the identical compound built out of Germanic parts nunca
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 316, p. 1217
new — Latin novus, and English new, which is the cousin rather than the loan nuevo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 281, p. 947
next, nearest — Latin proximus, nearest, the superlative of prope near; English proximity, approximate, approach and reproach come off it próximo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 343, p. 1403
next, then; below a continuación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 534, p. 2917
Ni — Joining Two Absences
chapter topic; Chapter 234, p. 757
Nieve y hielo
chapter topic; Chapter 700, p. 3955
night / evening (la noche — feminine) la noche
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 2, p. 17
no doubt — duda is dubitare, and behind that duo, two: to doubt is to be caught between a pair of answers sin duda
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 298, p. 1083
No estoy de acuerdo
chapter topic; Chapter 578, p. 3193
No Hables — Telling Somebody Not To
chapter topic; Chapter 133, p. 457
no hables — telling somebody not to
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 133, p. 457
no / not no
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 7, p. 55
nobody — Latin nati, "born ones", from homines nati, "people born"; the exact twin of nada, which was a thing born nadie
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 317, p. 1225
Noise, Silence, Calm and Hurry
chapter topic; Chapter 333, p. 1351
Noon and Midnight
chapter topic; Chapter 146, p. 503

noon and midnight — both halves still fully alive as ordinary Spanish words, unlike French's worn-down midi/minuit mediodía, medianoche
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 146, p. 503
nor, not even — the joining word for two things that are both absent, and the one place Spanish stacks negatives on purpose ni
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 234, p. 757
north — Germanic northa through Old French nord; this is literally the English word north, borrowed back into a Romance language el norte
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 347, p. 1437
Nos — Us, and the We the Verb Already Says
chapter topic; Chapter 88, p. 331
nose — Latin nāris, which meant nostril and usually came in the plural nārēs; English nose is the inherited cousin, nasal the borrowed one, and meter las narices keeps the Latin plural alive la nariz
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 364, p. 1581
nosotros — the "we" the verb already says
etymology topic; explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 88, p. 331
nostalgia, homesickness la nostalgia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 709, p. 4011
nosy, meddling entrometido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 729, p. 4137
not at all en absoluto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 589, p. 3261
not at all — the reply to thanks, assembled entirely from words you already have no hay de qué
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 283, p. 963
nothing — Latin res nata, "a thing born"; the res fell away and the born thing came to mean no thing at all nada
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 316, p. 1217
now — the time word mañana has been waiting for, and a Latin hour in disguise ahora
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 252, p. 793
Nubes y sol
chapter topic; Chapter 698, p. 3943
Numbers, and How Old You Are
chapter topic; Chapter 47, p. 193
Numbers Eleven to Twenty
chapter topic; Chapter 149, p. 515

O

O — One Letter, One Catch
chapter topic; Chapter 233, p. 755
obvious obvio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 587, p. 3249
of course — supponere, to place under: it was already under the conversation por supuesto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 284, p. 971
of the, from the — the second and last of Spanish's forced contractions, which means once you have these two you have all of them del
explicit focus: grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 231, p. 751
Ofertas y rebajas
chapter topic; Chapter 631, p. 3523
office — Latin officina, a workshop, squeezed out of opificina from opus work and facere to make; English office, officer and opus are the same making la oficina
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 346, p. 1429
official; the officer oficial
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 624, p. 3481
oil — Andalusi Arabic az-zayt, the oil, borrowed with its article fused on; Latin oleum gave English oil, olive, petroleum and linoleum, and the two words meet in aceite de oliva el aceite
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 361, p. 1551
Ojala — a Prayer That Outlived Its Religion
chapter topic; Chapter 129, p. 447
ojalá + subjunctive — a wish borrowed through Arabic
etymology topic; explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 129, p. 447
old age la vejez
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 555, p. 3049
old, ancient; former antiguo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 575, p. 3173
old — from vetulus, "little old one", the affectionate form rather than the plain one viejo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 281, p. 947
on condition that a condición de que
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 612, p. 3405
on one hand... on the other — holding two sources at once por un lado… por otro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 277, p. 915
One heard greeting — write what you know
script and writing topic; explicit focus: writing; Chapter 1, p. 1

one's own — Latin proprius, belonging to the individual; English proper, property and appropriate all began as words about owning propio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 350, p. 1461
One Stem, Two Tenses
chapter topic; Chapter 124, p. 431
Opening, Closing, Sitting Down, Standing Up
chapter topic; Chapter 166, p. 581
opposed, against; opposite contrario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 578, p. 3193
opposite, across from, facing — Latin frontem, the forehead; English front, frontier, affront, confront and effrontery all come off the same brow enfrente
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 340, p. 1379
optimistic; the optimist optimista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 731, p. 4149
or — one letter, and one rule about what happens when the next word starts with the same sound o
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 233, p. 755
orange — Arabic naranj from Persian narang, traceable back to Sanskrit; Spanish kept the n that English lost when a norange was reheard as an orange la naranja
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 367, p. 1611
Ordenar las ideas
chapter topic; Chapter 588, p. 3255
Orgullo y vergüenza
chapter topic; Chapter 705, p. 3987
Os — You All, in Spain
chapter topic; Chapter 90, p. 337
-oso
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 61, p. 247
-oso — a Shelf of Words You Were Never Taught
chapter topic; Chapter 61, p. 247
otherwise de lo contrario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 612, p. 3405
our — matching a known masculine or feminine singular noun nuestro, nuestra
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 69, p. 273
Out and Away — Street, Corner, Footprint, Harbour, Lighthouse
chapter topic; Chapter 302, p. 1115
out of the question — "not even to speak of it", two pieces you already own, and the flattest refusal on the dial ni hablar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 298, p. 1083

outside fuera
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 407, p. 1937
Overhead — Daybreak, Sky, Cloud, Star, Shade
chapter topic; Chapter 289, p. 1011

P

package, parcel el paquete
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 415, p. 1975
Pactos y dudas
chapter topic; Chapter 635, p. 3549
paella — the Valencian rice dish named from the pan la paella
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 403, p. 1915
Pagar en la tienda
chapter topic; Chapter 491, p. 2649
Pagos
chapter topic; Chapter 632, p. 3531
pale — Latin pallidus; English pale came through French and pallid straight from the Latin, so they are the same word twice, and fallow is the inherited cousin pálido
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 372, p. 1659
panic el pánico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 706, p. 3993
Papeles en regla
chapter topic; Chapter 657, p. 3687
Papeles oficiales
chapter topic; Chapter 624, p. 3481
Papeles y plazos
chapter topic; Chapter 479, p. 2575
Para — For, Pointing Forward
chapter topic; Chapter 176, p. 635
Para Mí — The Pronouns That Stand on Their Own
chapter topic; Chapter 246, p. 781
para mí — the pronouns that stand on their own
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 246, p. 781
parentheses — Greek for a putting-in-beside, which is exactly what the mark does to a sentence los paréntesis
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 424, p. 2029
Parents and Siblings
chapter topic; Chapter 140, p. 479
park — Frankish parrik, an enclosure, through Medieval Latin parricus; a park was a fence before it was grass, and the English dialect word paddock is the same fence el parque
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 354, p. 1493

parking, car park — aparcar plus -miento; aparcar is built in Spanish from parque, not borrowed from English park el aparcamiento
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 400, p. 1893
Pasarlo bien
chapter topic; Chapter 713, p. 4037
pass, season ticket, subscription — the document or right acquired by someone who subscribes; do not confuse it with the separate abono meaning fertilizer el abono
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 400, p. 1893
passenger, and passing or fleeting — pasaje plus -ero, on pasar from Vulgar Latin passāre, from passus, a step; an adjective first, and without the intruding n of English passenger el pasajero
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 392, p. 1819
passion la pasión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 715, p. 4049
patience — Latin pati, to undergo; the same root gives English patient, passion and compassion la paciencia
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 321, p. 1255
patient paciente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 503, p. 2725
pedestrian (as an adjective) peatonal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 682, p. 3843
pencil — Latin lapis, a stone, with no diminutive in it; lapis opens lapis lazuli, and Spanish azul comes from the other half el lápiz
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 374, p. 1675
Pensar — Thinking Is Weighing
chapter topic; Chapter 153, p. 535
people — Latin gens, the clan; the root of English gentle, genteel, Gentile and general la gente
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 308, p. 1153
People Named By What They Do
chapter topic; Chapter 427, p. 2067
pepper — from pimienta, Latin pigmenta, which passed from colouring matter through drug and ingredient to condiment; the American pepper took the Old World name el pimiento
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 376, p. 1691
perhaps, by chance — a + caso, and Latin casus was a fall; English case, casual, casualty, cadence and accident are all falls too acaso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 324, p. 1279

permission, leave — Latin permissus from permittere, per + mittere, to let go through; English permit, mission, transmit, submit and promise are all sendings el permiso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 332, p. 1343
Permission, Notice, and the Word
chapter topic; Chapter 332, p. 1343
Pero — Two True Things at Once
chapter topic; Chapter 218, p. 723
personality la personalidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 721, p. 4087
pessimistic; the pessimist pesimista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 731, p. 4149
pharmacy, chemist's — Greek pharmakon, a drug that could cure or kill; the Greek word never chose between the remedy and the poison, and English pharmacy keeps it whole la farmacia
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 353, p. 1485
photo — the everyday shortening of fotografía, still feminine la foto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 405, p. 1925
photograph or photography — literally light-writing through Greek roots la fotografía
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 405, p. 1925
Photography, Photos and Permission
chapter topic; Chapter 405, p. 1925
phrase, sentence — Greek phrasis, a way of speaking, through Latin; English phrase and paraphrase are the same word la frase
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 377, p. 1699
piece of information; datum el dato
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 406, p. 1929
pig — most likely from cerda, a bristle, so the bristly one; Spanish also kept puerco from Latin porcus, which English has as pork and as the older farrow el cerdo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 368, p. 1621
pill or tablet la pastilla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 408, p. 1943
pillow — Andalusi Arabic al-mukhadda, the cheek-instrument, with the Arabic article fused on; this word has no English relative at all la almohada
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 366, p. 1601
pink, and the rose — Latin rosa, itself a loanword from the east; rosemary is not rose and Mary but ros marinus, sea dew rosa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 372, p. 1659
Pinning Down Which One
chapter topic; Chapter 345, p. 1419

pity, shame la lástima
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 716, p. 4055
Planes
chapter topic; Chapter 615, p. 3423
Planes y deseos
chapter topic; Chapter 509, p. 2761
please (literally "for [a] favour") por favor
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 14, p. 103
pleased to meet you (literally "much pleasure") mucho gusto
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 6, p. 43
pleasure — Latin placere, to please; English please, placid, plea and placebo are all the same verb el placer
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 321, p. 1255
Pleasure, Reason, Respect
chapter topic; Chapter 321, p. 1255
polite, well-mannered educado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 727, p. 4123
political; the politician político
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 601, p. 3337
pollution la contaminación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 504, p. 2731
Poner — Putting, and the Root Under Position
chapter topic; Chapter 71, p. 287
Ponerse en forma
chapter topic; Chapter 503, p. 2725
Por — And Three Phrases You Already Owned
chapter topic; Chapter 177, p. 637
Por casualidad
chapter topic; Chapter 533, p. 2911
Por culpa de, gracias a
chapter topic; Chapter 581, p. 3211
Por dentro del cuerpo
chapter topic; Chapter 735, p. 4173
Por el sabor
chapter topic; Chapter 771, p. 4397
Por la ciudad
chapter topic; Chapter 489, p. 2637
Por la mañana
chapter topic; Chapter 494, p. 2669
positive positivo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 584, p. 3231
possibly posiblemente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 618, p. 3443

potato — read as a crossing of Taíno batata, the sweet potato, with Quechua papa, this one; English potato is the Spanish word, and it named the sweet one first la patata
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 367, p. 1611
pottery, ceramics la cerámica
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 754, p. 4291
predictable, foreseeable previsible
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 619, p. 3449
Preguntar — Asking, and Sounding a Depth
chapter topic; Chapter 160, p. 557
preguntó dónde
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 215, p. 717
Preguntó Dónde — What the Accent Was Always For
chapter topic; Chapter 215, p. 717
preguntó si
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 214, p. 715
Preguntó Si — A Question That Stops Being One
chapter topic; Chapter 214, p. 715
pretty — bueno with a real diminutive on it, "nice and good"; and Latin bellus, which gave bello and English beautiful, had already been made the same way out of the same bonus bonito
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 399, p. 1889
previous, prior — the adjective that completes the phrase every advert uses previo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 435, p. 2149
previously, earlier anteriormente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 538, p. 2943
pride el orgullo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 705, p. 3987
Primero, Segundo, Tercero — Counting in Order
chapter topic; Chapter 262, p. 819
printed form — a sheet with spaces to fill in el impreso
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 406, p. 1929
problem problema
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 268, p. 849
Problemas sociales
chapter topic; Chapter 605, p. 3361
Problemas y soluciones
chapter topic; Chapter 481, p. 2587
Profesor — and the Article Spanish Leaves Out
chapter topic; Chapter 51, p. 223
professional profesional
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 475, p. 2551

profitable, worthwhile rentable
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 637, p. 3561
Progresar
chapter topic; Chapter 609, p. 3387
Propuestas
chapter topic; Chapter 585, p. 3237
Pros y contras
chapter topic; Chapter 584, p. 3231
Protestar
chapter topic; Chapter 604, p. 3355
proud orgulloso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 705, p. 3987
provided that con tal de que
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 611, p. 3399
pueda · puedas · pueda — one more known stem change
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 128, p. 443
Push, Throw, Rub Out, Shout
chapter topic; Chapter 388, p. 1785
putting no in front of the verb — the whole of Spanish negation no + verb
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 267, p. 843
Putting the -ar Verbs to Work
chapter topic; Chapter 33, p. 155

Q

¡Qué Grande! — The Same Word, Exclaiming
chapter topic; Chapter 248, p. 785
¡Qué grande! — the same word, exclaiming
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 248, p. 785
Quemaduras y cortes
chapter topic; Chapter 734, p. 4167
queremos, quieren — work them out first
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 76, p. 299
Quién — The Asking Word for People
chapter topic; Chapter 232, p. 753
quiera · quieras · quiera — keep the change you know
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 128, p. 443
quotation marks — Spanish has three shapes in a stated order of preference, and the one it prefers is the one an English reader has never used las comillas
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 424, p. 2029

R

rage, fury; rabies la rabia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 707, p. 3999
rain refuses the hacer pattern and brings its own verb — and its ll- is the sound change you already met in llamar llueve
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 148, p. 511
Rasgos de personalidad
chapter topic; Chapter 721, p. 4087
raw; uncooked crudo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 771, p. 4397
Rayos y truenos
chapter topic; Chapter 699, p. 3949
Reading Between the Lines — Imply, Invert, Look It Up, Re-tune
chapter topic; Chapter 272, p. 877
Reading Older Spanish — Register, Date, and Form
chapter topic; Chapter 276, p. 909
reason — Latin ratio, rationem, a reckoning; English ratio, ration and rational are the same word arriving whole la razón
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 321, p. 1255
reasonable razonable
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 577, p. 3187
recently recientemente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 538, p. 2943
reception, the reception desk la recepción
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 414, p. 1971
recovery la recuperación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 739, p. 4197
Recuerdos
chapter topic; Chapter 764, p. 4353
Recuerdos y costumbres
chapter topic; Chapter 483, p. 2599
red — a cousin of French rouge and English red, but by a different branch of the same very old family rojo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 139, p. 473
Regiones y pueblos
chapter topic; Chapter 683, p. 3849
relief el alivio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 712, p. 4031
remote work, working from home el teletrabajo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 591, p. 3273
resentment, grudge el rencor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 708, p. 4005

respect — Latin respicere, to look back at somebody; the same specere gives English spectacle, inspect and suspect el respeto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 321, p. 1255
responsibility — being answerable, from the same promise that makes a spouse la responsabilidad
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 445, p. 2253
restaurant — French restaurant, a thing that restores, from Latin restaurare; the first restaurant was a broth sold to people who felt weak, and the room took the name of the soup el restaurante
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 354, p. 1493
retired — a participle used as a noun, the same move that made el pedido, and a surprisingly cheerful root jubilado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 435, p. 2149
Retos y logros
chapter topic; Chapter 766, p. 4365
Review — A Tense You Build
chapter topic; Chapter 120, p. 419
Review — All Eight
chapter topic; Chapter 91, p. 339
Review — All Four Stem Changes
chapter topic; Chapter 172, p. 615
Review — All Four Words for The
chapter topic; Chapter 81, p. 313
Review — Five Sets, Finished
chapter topic; Chapter 256, p. 805
Review — Four Boxes
chapter topic; Chapter 135, p. 461
Review — Four Last Pieces, and the Thread
chapter topic; Chapter 266, p. 835
Review — Four Pronouns, One Slot
chapter topic; Chapter 86, p. 327
Review — Four Rules You Already Obeyed
chapter topic; Chapter 261, p. 817
Review — Four Small Things
chapter topic; Chapter 250, p. 789
Review — Four Small Words, One Instinct
chapter topic; Chapter 235, p. 759
Review — Four Things Worth Saying Twice
chapter topic; Chapter 318, p. 1233
Review — Four Verbs of the Mind
chapter topic; Chapter 157, p. 551
Review — One Arrow
chapter topic; Chapter 179, p. 641
Review — One Question, Three Answers
chapter topic; Chapter 114, p. 407

Review — One Scale, One Habit
chapter topic; Chapter 229, p. 747 Review — Second Looks
chapter topic; Chapter 319, p. 1239
Review — Six Verbs, One Ending
chapter topic; Chapter 74, p. 293
Review — Six Words That Arrived Last
chapter topic; Chapter 335, p. 1369
Review — the Eight Endings
chapter topic; Chapter 64, p. 257
Review — The Pairs
chapter topic; Chapter 101, p. 359
Review — the Present Tense, Whole
chapter topic; Chapter 46, p. 191
Review — The Same Six, In Use
chapter topic; Chapter 336, p. 1371
Review — The Three Forms Side by Side
chapter topic; Chapter 19, p. 119
Review — The Three Se's
chapter topic; Chapter 184, p. 653
Review — the Two Conditions
chapter topic; Chapter 209, p. 703
Review — the Whole Present Tense
chapter topic; Chapter 41, p. 179
Review — the Whole Preterite
chapter topic; Chapter 204, p. 693
Review — Three Endings
chapter topic; Chapter 26, p. 137
Review — Three Jobs, No New Words
chapter topic; Chapter 189, p. 663
Review — Three Joints, Two Constants
chapter topic; Chapter 216, p. 719
Review — Three Letters
chapter topic; Chapter 194, p. 673
Review — Three Places, One Question
chapter topic; Chapter 225, p. 737
Review — Three Verbs That Behave
chapter topic; Chapter 162, p. 565
Review — Two Endings and One Little A
chapter topic; Chapter 240, p. 769
Review — Two Systems, Two New Words
chapter topic; Chapter 96, p. 349
Review — Two Tenses Finished
chapter topic; Chapter 245, p. 779

Reyes y revoluciones
chapter topic; Chapter 568, p. 3131
rhythm; pace el ritmo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 753, p. 4285
rich; tasty rico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 633, p. 3537
Ricos y pobres
chapter topic; Chapter 633, p. 3537
Riesgos y garantías
chapter topic; Chapter 614, p. 3417
right away — en seguida, "in what follows," from Latin sequi, to follow; English sequence, sequel and pursue come off the same verb enseguida
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 322, p. 1263
risky, daring arriesgado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 530, p. 2893
river — Latin rivus, a stream, which gave rival and derive; English river is not this word at all but comes from ripa, a bank, the same word behind arrive el río
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 369, p. 1631
roof, ceiling — Latin tectum, the covered part, from tegere to cover; to protect is to cover in front, to detect is to take the cover off, and a Roman toga was a covering el techo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 355, p. 1501
room habitación
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 268, p. 849
rotating, on a rota — the third word in the track built on a wheel rotativo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 453, p. 2341
rude, coarse grosero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 727, p. 4123
rug, carpet — Andalusi Arabic al-ḥánbal, a kind of tapestry; the al- is the Arabic article, and a once-popular red-carpet story turned out to be a different word la alfombra
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 373, p. 1667
rural, country (as an adjective) rural
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 684, p. 3855

S

Saber hacer
chapter topic; Chapter 598, p. 3317

Sacar partido
chapter topic; Chapter 484, p. 2605
sad — Latin tristis, which also meant harsh and grim before it softened triste
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 304, p. 1129
Salir — Leaving
chapter topic; Chapter 72, p. 289
salt — Latin sal, salis; salad, salsa, sauce, sausage and salary are the real family, while salud, saludo and salvo belong together to a whole-and-safe root, and salir to a leaping one la sal
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 361, p. 1551
salty; savoury salado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 771, p. 4397
Salud emocional
chapter topic; Chapter 743, p. 4221
same, very, self — Vulgar Latin metipsimus, a piled-up superlative of ipse self; English ipso facto and solipsism keep the ipse mismo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 345, p. 1419
sand — Latin harena, whose origin nobody has settled; English arena is the same word, the sand spread on an amphitheatre floor to soak up what was spilled on it la arena
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 369, p. 1631
Saying No, and Asking
chapter topic; Chapter 267, p. 843
Saying Why
chapter topic; Chapter 175, p. 627
Saying Your Name
chapter topic; Chapter 4, p. 29
scarce, in short supply — Vulgar Latin excarpsus, picked over, from ex and carpere to pluck; English scarce, excerpt and carpet are the same plucking escaso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 352, p. 1477
school — Latin schola from Greek skholē, spare time; English school, scholar and scholastic keep the leisure that turned into study la escuela
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 346, p. 1429
Se Compran Libros — The Verb Tells On Itself
chapter topic; Chapter 182, p. 649
se compran libros — the verb tells on itself
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 182, p. 649
Se Habla Espanol — Nobody in Particular
chapter topic; Chapter 181, p. 647

se habla español — nobody in particular
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 181, p. 647
Se Lo — The Pair That Does Not Exist
chapter topic; Chapter 99, p. 355
se lo — the pair that does not exist
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 99, p. 355
sea — Latin mare; marine, maritime, marina and ultramarine are borrowed from it, while the mer- of mermaid and the words marsh and moor are inherited English cousins of the same ancient root el mar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 362, p. 1561
see you later (literally "until later") hasta luego
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 13, p. 95
see you soon (literally "until soon") hasta pronto
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 13, p. 95
see you tomorrow (literally "until tomorrow") hasta mañana
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 13, p. 95
seeing as; since puesto que
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 580, p. 3205
Según dicen
chapter topic; Chapter 515, p. 2799
self-esteem la autoestima
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 743, p. 4221
selfish; the selfish person egoísta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 723, p. 4099
Selling, Serving, Spending, Growing
chapter topic; Chapter 386, p. 1769
Sembrar y regar
chapter topic; Chapter 692, p. 3905
Semestres y quincenas
chapter topic; Chapter 539, p. 2949
Sensibles y educados
chapter topic; Chapter 727, p. 4123
sensitive sensible
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 727, p. 4123
sensitivity la sensibilidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 727, p. 4123
Ser and Estar — Two Ways to Be
chapter topic; Chapter 48, p. 201
Ser in the Plural
chapter topic; Chapter 50, p. 217
serious, earnest — Latin serius, grave and earnest, a word of uncertain origin; Spanish keeps it for manner, and uses grave for a bad accident serio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 423, p. 2015

Servicios de la ciudad
chapter topic; Chapter 679, p. 3823
Setting Off — The Way Out, the Journey, the Return, the Arrival, the Farewell
chapter topic; Chapter 288, p. 1003
several — Latin varius, speckled, of mixed colours; English various, variety and variegated all start from a spotted hide varios
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 351, p. 1469
shame, embarrassment la vergüenza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 705, p. 3987
shape — Latin forma, which came into Spanish twice; the borrowed half is la forma, and the inherited half is hermoso, beautiful, from formosus, well shaped la forma
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 358, p. 1525
ship — Late Latin barca, a small boat attested around 400 AD; barge, bark the sailing ship, embark and disembark are the same word, and the three English barks have three separate origins el barco
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 363, p. 1571
shirt — Late Latin camisia, a garment worn close to the body la camisa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 402, p. 1909
shoe — origin genuinely unknown; Portuguese sapato, Catalan sabata, French savate, Italian ciabatta and Arabic sabbat all share it, and the famous sabotage story attached to it is false el zapato
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 360, p. 1541
short — Latin curtus, cut off or docked; curt and curtail descend from it and cortar is its Spanish verb, while English short, shirt and skirt are Germanic and meet it only far back corto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 365, p. 1591
should, ought to — and to owe, because the word is literally "to have something from someone" deber
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 175, p. 627
shy, timid — Latin timidus from timere "to fear"; the same verb is inside intimidate, which is the act of putting that fear into someone tímido
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 423, p. 2015
si
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 196, p. 677
si + futuro
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 197, p. 679

Si + Futuro — What Will Happen If
chapter topic; Chapter 197, p. 679
Si — If, and the Word Yes Is Made Of
chapter topic; Chapter 196, p. 677
Si no cumples
chapter topic; Chapter 623, p. 3473
Si no es así
chapter topic; Chapter 612, p. 3405
Si olvidas la contraseña
chapter topic; Chapter 776, p. 4429
Si se va la luz
chapter topic; Chapter 777, p. 4435
Si todo sale bien
chapter topic; Chapter 639, p. 3573
si tuviera
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 208, p. 701
Si Tuviera — Supposing What Is Not So
chapter topic; Chapter 208, p. 701
side el lado
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 407, p. 1937
Sign Up at Reception
chapter topic; Chapter 414, p. 1971
Siguiendo la pista
chapter topic; Chapter 521, p. 2837
similar, alike parecido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 482, p. 2593
simple, plain — few parts rather than little effort, which is what separates it from fácil sencillo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 471, p. 2511
since, as ya que
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 580, p. 3205
since then desde entonces
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 537, p. 2937
sincere, honest sincero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 724, p. 4105
sincerity, frankness la sinceridad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 724, p. 4105
Sinceros y cotillas
chapter topic; Chapter 724, p. 4105
single, unmarried soltero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 549, p. 3011
sir, Mr — Latin senior, older; respect built out of age señor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 305, p. 1135
size, especially clothing size — from tallar, to cut or shape la talla
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 402, p. 1909

size — Latin tam magnum, so big, welded shut; the tam is the tan inside tambien and tampoco, and magnus is the magn- of magnify and magnitude el tamaño
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 358, p. 1525
skilful, clever hábil
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 728, p. 4131
skirt — a Germanic word for a fold, so a skirt is the folded thing; English fold is the inherited cousin, and falso is a look-alike from a different family la falda
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 373, p. 1667
slow — Latin lentus, pliant then slow; taken off the page rather than inherited, and the inherited form came out as liento, damp. English relent is the same word lento
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 371, p. 1651
Small, Fat, Young, Slow, Sweet
chapter topic; Chapter 371, p. 1651
small — no Latin ancestor anybody can name; the dictionary of record calls it an expressive word shared across the Romance languages, and piccolo and petit are the same kind of word pequeño
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 371, p. 1651
smaller, younger — Latin minor, the partner of minus; Latin built minister out of minus to stand opposite magister, so mayor and menor give you master and minister as a matched pair menor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 397, p. 1869
smoke — Latin fumus, a clean example of Latin f- turning into Spanish h-; English has fume, perfume and fumigate from the same word el humo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 369, p. 1631
smooth, soft — Latin suavis; English sweet is the inherited cousin of the same root, and to persuade is to make a thing sweet to somebody suave
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 372, p. 1659
snow — Latin nivem, and the s- that Latin dropped and English kept la nieve
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 278, p. 923
so-so / not great (also "más o menos") regular
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 9, p. 69
so; so that de modo que
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 582, p. 3217
soaked, drenched empapado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 702, p. 3967

soap — Latin sapo, which Latin had itself borrowed from its northern neighbours el jabón
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 287, p. 995
Sobre dos ruedas
chapter topic; Chapter 649, p. 3637
Sobre el escenario
chapter topic; Chapter 759, p. 4321
sociable, outgoing — Latin socius, a companion or ally, plus -able; the same socius is inside society, associate and the word soccer sociable
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 423, p. 2015
sois — the last of the six
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 50, p. 217
somebody else's — Latin alienus from alius, other; English alien, alias and alibi all point at somebody who is not you ajeno
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 350, p. 1461
somebody — Latin aliquem, ali- plus quem, "some other whom"; algo's exact partner, built for people alguien
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 317, p. 1225
something — Latin aliquod, ali- plus quod, "some other what"; the same ali- is in alias, alien and altruism algo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 317, p. 1225
Something, Somebody, Nobody
chapter topic; Chapter 317, p. 1225
somos — "we are"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 50, p. 217
son — "they are"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 50, p. 217
sooner or later tarde o temprano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 535, p. 2923
sorrow, a shame — Latin poena, a penalty; English pain, penalty and subpoena all come off it la pena
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 320, p. 1247
south — Germanic sunthaz through Old French sud; the same word as English south, and probably built on the word for sun el sur
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 347, p. 1437
"Spanish" — the language, the people, and the Roman name for the peninsula underneath it español
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 22, p. 127
specific, particular concreto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 482, p. 2593
spicy, hot picante
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 771, p. 4397

sport el deporte
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 412, p. 1963
stairs, ladder — Latin scālāria from scāla, a ladder; scale, ascend, descend and echelon are cousins, while escalate arrived by way of a 1900 trademark la escalera
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 366, p. 1601
station — Latin statio from stare, to stand; a station is a standing-place, and English station, stationary, statue and stable stand on the same verb la estación
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 346, p. 1429
Stay in May
chapter topic; Chapter 416, p. 1979
still, yet — literally toda vía, "all the road"; the via in it is English via, viaduct, deviate and obvious todavía
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 322, p. 1263
stingy, mean tacaño
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 723, p. 4099
storm — Latin tormenta, from torquere, to twist; torment, torture, torque and contort are the same Latin verb, and a storm is weather that wrings the sky la tormenta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 370, p. 1641
Storm, Thunder And Ice
chapter topic; Chapter 370, p. 1641
story, history — Greek historia, knowledge got by inquiry; English history and story are the same word, story having come through Anglo-French la historia
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 377, p. 1699
straight — Latin rectus; in directions, continue straight, not resto, the rest or remainder recto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 401, p. 1901
stress el estrés
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 710, p. 4017
strong, loud — Latin fortis, the same root already spent on la fuerza; English fort, force, effort, comfort and fortify all come off it fuerte
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 327, p. 1303
stubborn terco
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 729, p. 4137
student — a word you can build yourself, out of a verb you already have estudiante
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 52, p. 225
Su versión
chapter topic; Chapter 516, p. 2805

Sube y baja
chapter topic; Chapter 608, p. 3381
subsequently, later posteriormente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 538, p. 2943
success el éxito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 505, p. 2737
successful exitoso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 639, p. 3573
such, such a — Latin talis, of that kind; English keeps it in retaliate, to give back the like, and in the lawyers' lex talionis tal
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 329, p. 1319
Such, Which, Then, But Rather
chapter topic; Chapter 329, p. 1319
sudden repentino
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 533, p. 2911
suddenly de pronto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 534, p. 2917
suddenly — Latin repente, from repens sudden, which is the present participle of repere to creep; the English reptile is the same creeping de repente
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 356, p. 1509
suffering el sufrimiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 717, p. 4061
sugar — Arabic as-sukkar back through Persian to Sanskrit śarkarā, grit; the a- on the front is the Arabic article, and English sugar came the same road through French el azúcar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 367, p. 1611
summit — Latin culmen, which meant the ridge of a roof before it meant a mountaintop; culmen is a squeezed-down columen, with columna a cousin rather than a twin la cumbre
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 378, p. 1707
sunny soleado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 698, p. 3943
supermarket — a calque of English supermarket, American and dated 1933, built on mercado, which Spanish inherited from Latin mercātus, from mercārī, to trade, from merx, wares el supermercado
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 391, p. 1809
Supongamos que...
chapter topic; Chapter 618, p. 3443
support el apoyo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 750, p. 4265

sure — se- without plus cura, care: free from care, and so reliable seguro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 284, p. 971
surgery la cirugía
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 739, p. 4197
Sustos y miedos
chapter topic; Chapter 706, p. 3993
sweet — Latin dulcis; the older Spanish form was duz, and the resemblance to Greek glykys, behind glucose, is a genuine unsolved puzzle dulce
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 371, p. 1651
swimming as a discipline — the Latin twin of nadar, borrowed back whole la natación
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 438, p. 2179
swimming pool — Latin piscīna, from piscis, fish, plus -īna; a word taken from writing, standing beside the inherited pez from the same root la piscina
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 390, p. 1799
symbols — currency, the compass and the units, none of which take a point, because a symbol is not an abbreviation los símbolos
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 426, p. 2055
Synthesis — A Small Story
chapter topic; Chapter 115, p. 409
Synthesis — Asking, and Answering
chapter topic; Chapter 37, p. 171
Synthesis — Asking Without Sounding Rude
chapter topic; Chapter 136, p. 463
Synthesis — Carrying a Conversation
chapter topic; Chapter 217, p. 721
Synthesis — Claiming, and Not Claiming
chapter topic; Chapter 130, p. 451
Synthesis — Describing Things
chapter topic; Chapter 60, p. 245
Synthesis — Describing Where You Are
chapter topic; Chapter 195, p. 675
Synthesis — More Than One
chapter topic; Chapter 82, p. 317
Synthesis — Promising, and Supposing
chapter topic; Chapter 125, p. 435
Synthesis — Reading a Paragraph
chapter topic; Chapter 65, p. 259
Synthesis — Reading the Window
chapter topic; Chapter 185, p. 655

Synthesis — Reading What You Were Never Taught
chapter topic; Chapter 27, p. 139
Synthesis — Real Conditions
chapter topic; Chapter 198, p. 681
Synthesis — Saying It Once
chapter topic; Chapter 87, p. 329
Synthesis — Saying Something About Your Own Life
chapter topic; Chapter 152, p. 529
Synthesis — Saying What People Do
chapter topic; Chapter 54, p. 229
Synthesis — Sentences Worth Saying
chapter topic; Chapter 190, p. 665
Synthesis — Supposing Out Loud
chapter topic; Chapter 210, p. 705
Synthesis — Telling What Happened
chapter topic; Chapter 205, p. 695
Synthesis — The Choices English Never Makes You Make
chapter topic; Chapter 173, p. 617
Synthesis — The Conversation Without Them
chapter topic; Chapter 92, p. 341
Synthesis — The Decoder
chapter topic; Chapter 31, p. 151
Synthesis — The Gift and the Motive
chapter topic; Chapter 180, p. 645
Synthesis — The Same Conversation, Twice
chapter topic; Chapter 32, p. 153
Synthesis — the Same Sentence, Two Continents
chapter topic; Chapter 42, p. 181
Synthesis — The Thing and the Person
chapter topic; Chapter 97, p. 351
Synthesis — Three Exceptions, and No Others
chapter topic; Chapter 110, p. 395
Synthesis — Two at a Time
chapter topic; Chapter 102, p. 361
Synthesis — Two Shores, Two Answers
chapter topic; Chapter 121, p. 421
Synthesis — What You Like, and Who Does the Liking
chapter topic; Chapter 164, p. 571
Synthesis — What You Understand, and What You Don't
chapter topic; Chapter 158, p. 553
Synthesis — You, and Somebody Else
chapter topic; Chapter 75, p. 297
Synthesis — You Can Hear Which Past It Is
chapter topic; Chapter 106, p. 381

T

T-shirt — camisa plus the diminutive suffix -eta la camiseta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 402, p. 1909
talent el talento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 766, p. 4365
Talking About Ideas — Hedging From Doubt, and From Inference
chapter topic; Chapter 271, p. 871
Talking to a Friend
chapter topic; Chapter 17, p. 115
También — Your First Word, Hidden Inside
chapter topic; Chapter 219, p. 725
Tampoco — The Same Frame, the Other Half
chapter topic; Chapter 220, p. 727
Tarde o temprano
chapter topic; Chapter 535, p. 2923
Tardes en el sofá
chapter topic; Chapter 761, p. 4335
te — the pair English used to have
etymology topic; explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 85, p. 323
teacher — and the one place Spanish drops the "a" that English insists on profesor
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 51, p. 223
Teatro y disfraces
chapter topic; Chapter 760, p. 4329
Telling Time
chapter topic; Chapter 147, p. 507
Telling What Happened
chapter topic; Chapter 167, p. 591
temperament el temperamento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 721, p. 4087
tender, soft; sweet tierno
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 714, p. 4043
tenderness la ternura
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 714, p. 4043
tenemos — and the stem change disappears
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 67, p. 265
Tener in the Plural, and the Stem-Change Rule
chapter topic; Chapter 67, p. 265
Tenia and Tuve — When the Tense Changes the Meaning
chapter topic; Chapter 113, p. 405
tenía and tuve — when the tense changes the meaning
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 113, p. 405

tension; blood pressure la tensión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 710, p. 4017
terrace, café tables outside — Latin terra, earth, through a Vulgar Latin terrācea meaning earthen; English terrace is the same word, though how it entered Spanish is unsettled la terraza
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 390, p. 1799
thank you gracias
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 7, p. 55
Thank You, Yes, and No
chapter topic; Chapter 7, p. 55
thanks to gracias a
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 581, p. 3211
that is to say — the same idea in your own words es decir
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 277, p. 915
that one, by you — the slot Latin's iste left empty when Spanish moved it, filled by a word that used to mean self ese
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 222, p. 731
that one over there, away from us both — and the second life of the word that became el in your very first chapter aquel
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 223, p. 733
the ability, the capacity la capacidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 598, p. 3317
the absence la ausencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 561, p. 3087
the accident — something that falls upon you, where an ocasión falls to you el accidente
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 454, p. 2351
the accommodation, the lodging el alojamiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 660, p. 3705
the account; the short story el relato
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 563, p. 3099
the accusation, the charge la acusación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 626, p. 3493
the achievement el logro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 766, p. 4365
The Actor and the Actress
chapter topic; Chapter 421, p. 2001
the adapter el adaptador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 773, p. 4409
the administration — built on the word for the LESSER one, which is what a servant was la administración
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 442, p. 2219
the advantage la ventaja
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 584, p. 3231

the adventure; the affair la aventura
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 566, p. 3117
the age of majority, adulthood la mayoría de edad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 554, p. 3043
the age, the era, the season — Greek epokhe, a stopping point, from epekhein to hold back; English epoch is the same word la época
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 343, p. 1403
the agency — a place that acts for you, and the agenda is its cousin la agencia
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 456, p. 2373
the agreement el acuerdo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 509, p. 2761
the agreement; the collective agreement el convenio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 591, p. 3273
the airline la aerolínea
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 652, p. 3655
the alarm la alarma
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 524, p. 2855
the allergy la alergia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 740, p. 4203
the alley, the lane el callejón
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 675, p. 3799
the alphabet — twenty-seven letters, and a name built out of the first four of them el abecedario
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 425, p. 2043
the alternative, the other option la alternativa
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 616, p. 3431
the ambulance la ambulancia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 525, p. 2861
the amount — the third sense of importar, and the one a bill uses el importe
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 474, p. 2541
the anecdote la anécdota
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 566, p. 3117
the animal — Latin for a thing with breath in it, and the superordinate word the corpus never had although it taught a dozen creatures el animal
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 428, p. 2079
the ankle — from Latin tuber, a swelling; a tuber in the ground and a protuberance are the same lump el tobillo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 293, p. 1043

the anniversary — Latin annus, year, plus vertere, to turn; the year turning back to the same day, and English annual, versus and reverse share the pieces el aniversario
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 349, p. 1453
the apology — dis- undoing culpa, blame, from Latin culpa; English culpable, culprit, exculpate and mea culpa keep the blame in place la disculpa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 332, p. 1343
the app; the application la aplicación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 773, p. 4409
the arcade (covered walkway) el soportal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 675, p. 3799
the arm — Greek brakhion, "the shorter one", taken into Latin as bracchium; an embrace and a bracelet are both built on it el brazo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 314, p. 1201
the army el ejército
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 567, p. 3123
the arrest la detención
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 519, p. 2823
the arrival — from llegar, Latin plicare, to fold: a ship folded its sails and had arrived la llegada
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 288, p. 1003
the arrow la flecha
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 672, p. 3781
the aspirin la aspirina
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 486, p. 2619
the assessment; the exam period la evaluación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 597, p. 3311
the association, the society la asociación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 606, p. 3367
the at sign — an Arabic unit of weight that became a merchant's shorthand and then an e-mail address, which is why Spanish has a real word where English says at la arroba
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 428, p. 2079
the athlete el atleta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 755, p. 4297
the attack el ataque
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 530, p. 2893
the attic, the loft el desván
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 774, p. 4415
the aunt — the same Greek root feminine; English aunt comes from a wholly different Latin word, amita la tía
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 307, p. 1147

the authorisation, the permission la autorización
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 624, p. 3481
the baby — French bebe, echoic babble, the same kind of word as English baby and babble el bebé
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 309, p. 1161
the back — Latin spatula, a broad blade; the same blade is a spatula, a spade and an epaulette la espalda
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 293, p. 1043
the backpack, the rucksack la mochila
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 652, p. 3655
the bag — Latin bursa from Greek byrsa, a hide; English purse, bursar and reimburse are all the same leather la bolsa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 311, p. 1177
the balcony el balcón
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 664, p. 3731
the ban, the prohibition la prohibición
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 622, p. 3467
the bandage la venda
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 734, p. 4167
the bank transfer; the transfer la transferencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 628, p. 3505
the banquet, the wedding meal el banquete
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 548, p. 3005
the basement, the cellar el sótano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 774, p. 4415
the basket — Latin cista from Greek kiste, a box; English chest and cistern are the same container by two different doors la cesta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 301, p. 1107 the bathroom — Latin balneum from Greek balaneion; English bath only looks related, and is not el baño
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 310, p. 1169
the battery — a word that looks built and is not, at least not in this language la batería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 434, p. 2139
the battle la batalla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 567, p. 3123
the bay la bahía
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 688, p. 3881
the beard; the chin la barba
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 736, p. 4179
the bedroom — built on a verb you learned in the first weeks el dormitorio
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 455, p. 2361

the beginner — el principio plus the -ante ending el estudiante already taught you to build with el principiante
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 471, p. 2511
the beginning — Latin principium from princeps, the one who takes first place; English prince, principal and principle are the same first taking el principio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 348, p. 1445
the beginning, the start el comienzo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 542, p. 2967
the belief la creencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 576, p. 3181
the bellboy, the porter (in a hotel) el botones
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 661, p. 3711
the belt; the seat belt el cinturón
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 644, p. 3605
the berth, the bunk la litera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 651, p. 3649
the bill — Latin computare, to reckon together; English compute, count and account are the same word at three distances la cuenta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 311, p. 1177
the birth el nacimiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 544, p. 2981
the birthday — the same day as an aniversario, named by the opposite metaphor el cumpleaños
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 440, p. 2199
the blanket — Latin mantum, a cloak; the mantle, the mantelpiece and the manta ray are all cloaks la manta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 294, p. 1051
the blind, the shutter la persiana
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 774, p. 4415
the blizzard, the snowstorm la ventisca
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 700, p. 3955
the block (of a street) (Latin America); the stable la cuadra
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 675, p. 3799
the blood — Latin sanguinem; sanguine once meant ruddy and cheerful because of it, and consanguinity is shared blood la sangre
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 300, p. 1099
the blow — and de golpe, all at once, which is the phrase a payment plan is defined against el golpe
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 474, p. 2541
the boarding el embarque
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 653, p. 3661
The Body, Further Down — Arm, Leg, Foot, Tooth, Ear
chapter topic; Chapter 314, p. 1201

the bond, the link el vínculo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 750, p. 4265
the booking reference el localizador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 662, p. 3717
the boot (of a car), the trunk el maletero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 644, p. 3605
the border, the frontier la frontera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 552, p. 3031
the boss — a head, and the same head as la cabeza el jefe
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 462, p. 2425
the bottom, the back of a room — Latin fundus, the bottom of a thing; English found, foundation, fund and profound all sit on it, and Spanish hondo is the same word with f turned to h el fondo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 355, p. 1501
the boy, the child — a nursery word with no Latin pedigree, and the one English borrowed whole as El Niño el niño
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 308, p. 1153
the boy, the lad — Latin ciccum, a worthless trifle; a word that means small first and boy second el chico
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 308, p. 1153
the boyfriend; the groom el novio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 547, p. 2999
the brain el cerebro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 735, p. 4173
the brake — named after the bit in a horse's mouth, and still doing that job el freno
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 449, p. 2297
the branch la sucursal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 592, p. 3281
the branch — Latin ramus; when an argument ramifies, it is growing these la rama
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 291, p. 1027
the break-up la ruptura
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 745, p. 4235
the breeze la brisa
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 772, p. 4403
the bridge — Latin pontem; a pontoon floats one and a pontiff is, underneath, a bridge-builder el puente
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 295, p. 1059
the broom — Latin scopa, a bundle of twigs, wearing the Spanish e- step for the third time la escoba
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 294, p. 1051
the brother-in-law el cuñado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 747, p. 4247

the burial, the funeral el entierro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 556, p. 3055
the burn la quemadura
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 734, p. 4167
the bus pass (for several trips) el bonobús
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 650, p. 3643
the bush, the shrub el arbusto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 693, p. 3911
the business el negocio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 490, p. 3267
the businessman, the employer el empresario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 592, p. 3281
the butcher's la carnicería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 770, p. 4391
the butterfly la mariposa
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 694, p. 3917
the buyer — the other half of a sale, built from comprar with the same ending, so the pair costs one rule rather than two words el comprador
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 427, p. 2067
the cake shop, the pastry shop la pastelería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 680, p. 3831
the calendar — Latin calendarium, an account book, from calendae the first of the month when debts fell due; English calendar and intercalate share it el calendario
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 343, p. 1403
the call — the word el pedido's table already showed you, handed over now with the part that table left out: the gender is not predictable la llamada
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 469, p. 2491
the calm — Late Latin cauma from Greek kauma, burning heat; the windless noon at sea gave sailors a word for stillness la calma
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 333, p. 1351
the cancellation la cancelación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 662, p. 3717
the candidate el candidato
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 602, p. 3343
the canvas el lienzo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 763, p. 4347
the captain el capitán
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 659, p. 3699
the car park, the parking lot; parking el estacionamiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 648, p. 3631

the car, the automobile el automóvil
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 640, p. 3581
the caravan, the camper; the tailback la caravana
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 666, p. 3743
the card, the licence — four folded sheets that turned into a piece of plastic el carné
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 451, p. 2319
the career; the degree; the race la carrera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 595, p. 3299
the carriage, the railway car el vagón
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 651, p. 3649
the cash el efectivo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 628, p. 3505
the cashier; the cash machine el cajero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 491, p. 2649
the castle el castillo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 677, p. 3811
the catastrophe la catástrofe
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 528, p. 2881
the cathedral la catedral
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 677, p. 3811
the celebration la celebración
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 558, p. 3067
the cemetery el cementerio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 556, p. 3055
the century, the age — Latin saeculum, a generation or a lifetime; English secular is the same word, meaning of this age rather than of eternity el siglo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 343, p. 1403
the ceremony la ceremonia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 548, p. 3005
the certainty la certeza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 587, p. 3249
the certificate el certificado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 624, p. 3481
the challenge el desafío
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 609, p. 3387
the challenge el reto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 766, p. 4365
the champion el campeón
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 757, p. 4309
the championship el campeonato
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 498, p. 2693

the change — Latin cambiare, borrowed from Gaulish; English change and exchange are the same word, and so is the coin you get back el cambio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 313, p. 1193
the change, the transfer (between trains or buses) el transbordo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 650, p. 3643
the chapter; the episode el capítulo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 565, p. 3111
the character (in a story) el personaje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 564, p. 3105
the charge on a bill — a load, from the same cart as el carrito el cargo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 456, p. 2373
the charger — the doer-ending a fourth time, on a verb worth having in its own right el cargador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 434, p. 2139
the charity la caridad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 606, p. 3367
the cheek la mejilla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 736, p. 4179
the chest — Latin pectus, whose ct became ch on the same road that took noctem to noche; English keeps the Latin in pectoral el pecho
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 315, p. 1209
the chin la barbilla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 736, p. 4179
the choice English lost — and the surprise that usted takes he/she verb forms tú o usted
explicit focus: grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 5, p. 35
the christening el bautizo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 546, p. 2993
the citizen el ciudadano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 600, p. 3331
the citizenship; the citizens la ciudadanía
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 600, p. 3331
the city — Latin civitatem from civis, a citizen; English city, civic, civil, civilian and citizen are the same word la ciudad
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 325, p. 1287
the city wall, the ramparts la muralla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 677, p. 3811
the civil servant, the public employee el funcionario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 591, p. 3273
the clearance sale; the settlement la liquidación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 631, p. 3523

the cliff el acantilado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 689, p. 3887
the climb, the way up; the rise la subida
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 686, p. 3867
the clock — Greek horologium, the hour-teller; the same hora sits in English hour and horoscope el reloj
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 312, p. 1185
The Clock, Taken Apart
chapter topic; Chapter 342, p. 1395
the cloud — Latin nubes, and the ancestor of nuance, which began as a shade of cloud la nube
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 289, p. 1011
the clue, the lead; the track la pista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 521, p. 2837
the coach (long-distance bus) el autocar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 650, p. 3643
the coat — named for the shelter it gives rather than the shape it has, and the verb behind it once meant to sit in the sun el abrigo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 468, p. 2481
the coffee maker, the coffee pot la cafetera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 775, p. 4421
the coffin el ataúd
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 557, p. 3061
the coin — Latin moneta, a title of the goddess Juno in whose temple Rome struck its coins; English money and mint are both her la moneda
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 313, p. 1193
the coincidence la coincidencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 533, p. 2911
the cold (illness) el resfriado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 733, p. 4161
the collaboration, the help la colaboración
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 594, p. 3293
the colleague; mate el colega
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 750, p. 4265
the colleague — the word whose story you were told when you learned bread, finally given to you as a word el compañero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 436, p. 2159
the collection la colección
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 751, p. 4271
the colon — plural in Spanish because there are two of them, and the mark that opens a Spanish letter where English uses a comma los dos puntos
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 424, p. 2029

the comma — and the list rule where Spanish and English disagree, because Spanish puts no comma in front of the final y la coma
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 424, p. 2029
the company — literally a thing taken on, from the same root as English enterprise, which Spanish uses for the firm itself rather than only for the venture la empresa
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 427, p. 2067
the compass la brújula
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 772, p. 4403
the complaint la queja
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 665, p. 3737
the compliment (flirtatious) el piropo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 744, p. 4229
the concierge — the person who belongs to the portal, and a job with no close English equivalent la portera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 433, p. 2131
the concierge, the porter; the caretaker el conserje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 661, p. 3711
the conclusion la conclusión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 599, p. 3323
the condition la condición
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 611, p. 3399
The Conditional — Saying What Would Happen
chapter topic; Chapter 123, p. 427
the condolences el pésame
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 557, p. 3061
the confirmation la confirmación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 662, p. 3717
the conflict el conflicto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 569, p. 3137
the consequence la consecuencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 582, p. 3217
the consistency, the coherence la coherencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 635, p. 3549
the consulate el consulado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 657, p. 3687
the consumption el consumo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 607, p. 3373
the contract — two parties drawn together, and the verb that still does the drawing el contrato
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 441, p. 2209
the control; the check el control
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 638, p. 3567

the controversy la polémica
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 570, p. 3143
the conviction, the firm belief la convicción
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 576, p. 3181
the cook — coquere, to cook; the kitchen, the biscuit and a precocious child are all in it el cocinero
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 285, p. 979
the corner — from a Germanic word for a shinbone; English shin is the same bone, and a corner is an edge as sharp as one la esquina
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 302, p. 1115
the correspondent el corresponsal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 513, p. 2787
the corruption la corrupción
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 605, p. 3361
the cost — the noun that belongs to costar, and what it stands on el coste
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 456, p. 2373
the costume, the disguise el disfraz
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 760, p. 4329
the country chapel, the hermitage la ermita
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 678, p. 3817
the country estate, the farm; the property la finca
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 691, p. 3899
the country — Late Latin pagensis, of the country district, from pagus a village; English pagan and peasant are both country-dwellers el país
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 325, p. 1287
the country person, the peasant, the farm worker el campesino
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 691, p. 3899
the couple, the partner — Latin par, equal; English pair, par, peer, parity and umpire la pareja
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 309, p. 1161
the court el tribunal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 626, p. 3493
the court ruling, the judgment; the sentence la sentencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 626, p. 3493
the courtship, the engagement el noviazgo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 744, p. 4229
the courtyard — a word Spanish gave the world, and cannot account for itself el patio
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 450, p. 2307

the cousin, feminine — the primus root you can already see in prima donna and prima facie la prima
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 307, p. 1147
the cousin — Latin primus, first; the same root as primero, and as English prime and primary el primo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 307, p. 1147
the cover; the front page la portada
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 762, p. 4341
the cow — Latin vacca, unchanged in six letters; vaccine is named after her, because the first one came from a cow la vaca
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 296, p. 1067
the crash, the collision; the shock el choque
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 527, p. 2873
the crew la tripulación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 654, p. 3667
the crime (serious) el crimen
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 520, p. 2831
the criterion; judgement el criterio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 617, p. 3437
the criticism; the review la crítica
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 579, p. 3199
the crossword el crucigrama
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 762, p. 4341
the crowd la multitud
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 559, p. 3073
the cruise; the cruise ship el crucero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 658, p. 3693
the cup — Arabic tassa, from Persian; French tasse and the English demitasse are the same vessel la taza
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 294, p. 1051
the currency — the Academy derives it as a clipping of europeo, and files the Greek wind eurus as a separate, unrelated entry under the same spelling el euro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 391, p. 1809
the cushion el cojín
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 761, p. 4335
the custom, the habit la costumbre
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 483, p. 2599
the customs officer el aduanero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 656, p. 3681
the CV — a Latin word that kept its Latin ending, and the first thing a job advert asks you to send el currículum
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 435, p. 2149

the cyclist el ciclista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 649, p. 3637
the dash that marks a turn of speech — the mark this book has used in every printed dialogue without ever naming it la raya
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 424, p. 2029
the date — Latin facta, done or made, from facere; English fact, feat, factory, affect and perfect all come off the same making la fecha
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 343, p. 1403
the daughter-in-law la nuera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 747, p. 4247
the daughter — the same filius root, swung to -a; English filial covers both la hija
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 306, p. 1141
the day before yesterday anteayer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 537, p. 2937
the day's stretch, a working day — Latin diurnus, of the day, through Occitan; English journey, journal and adjourn are the same day la jornada
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 349, p. 1453
the daybreak — Latin mane, in the morning, the same piece that sits inside mañana el amanecer
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 289, p. 1011
The Days A Calendar Circles
chapter topic; Chapter 357, p. 1517
the deadline, the instalment — a term that was agreed, from the same root as el placer el plazo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 458, p. 2393
the death notice la esquela
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 557, p. 3061
the debate el debate
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 507, p. 3331
the debt la deuda
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 627, p. 3499
the decade — Greek deka, ten, through Latin decas; English decade, decimal, December and dean all count in tens la década
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 349, p. 1453
the deceased, the late el difunto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 555, p. 3049
the deception, the trick el engaño
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 746, p. 4241
the decision la decisión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 617, p. 3437

the deer, the stag el ciervo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 695, p. 3923
the degree — the unit la temperatura was missing, and the word the degree scale was named after without ever being shown to you el grado
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 468, p. 2481
the delay — Latin mora, a lingering, through demorari; English demur and moratorium are the same hanging back la demora
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 348, p. 1445
the delay — the word a station announcement, a courier and an apology all reach for el retraso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 431, p. 2111
the delivery (of a baby), the birth el parto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 544, p. 2981
the demand; the lawsuit la demanda
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 631, p. 3523
the democracy la democracia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 602, p. 3343
the demonstration, the protest march la manifestación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 570, p. 3143
the dentist — an -ista noun, where only the article changes el dentista / la dentista
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 464, p. 2441
the department store los grandes almacenes
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 681, p. 3837
the departure; the game la partida
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 561, p. 3087
the deposit, the security; bail la fianza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 663, p. 3723
the desert; deserted el desierto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 685, p. 3861
the detail el detalle
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 517, p. 2811
the detector; the metal detector el detector
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 653, p. 3661
the detour, the long way round; the rodeo el rodeo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 671, p. 3773
the development el desarrollo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 571, p. 3149
the diagnosis el diagnóstico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 738, p. 4191
the diary; the daily paper el diario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 764, p. 4353

the diary, the schedule — Latin agenda, the things that must be done, from agere to drive; English agent, agile and act come off the same verb la agenda
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 349, p. 1453
the diet la dieta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 742, p. 4215
the dilemma el dilema
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 617, p. 3437
the disadvantage la desventaja
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 584, p. 3231
the disagreement el desacuerdo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 578, p. 3193
the disaster el desastre
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 528, p. 2881
the discovery el descubrimiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 571, p. 3149
the discrimination la discriminación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 605, p. 3361
the district, the area (of several villages) la comarca
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 683, p. 3849
the disturbance, the riot el disturbio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 570, p. 3143
the diversion, the detour el desvío
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 672, p. 3781
the divorce el divorcio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 550, p. 3017
the donkey — Latin burricus, a little reddish horse, from burrus, red; English borrowed the whole word back, and the burrito with it el burro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 296, p. 1067
the double negative — where Spanish stacks what English forbids no ... nada
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 267, p. 843
the doubt; the question la duda
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 493, p. 2661
the downpour el aguacero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 697, p. 3937
the dozen — Latin duodecim, two-ten, from duo and decem; English dozen and duodecimal are the same twelve la docena
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 344, p. 1411
the drawback, the problem; inconvenient el inconveniente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 584, p. 3231
the drawer el cajón
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 774, p. 4415

the drill — the loudest thing a neighbour owns, and a word worth knowing before they use it el taladro
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 449, p. 2297
the driver el conductor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 640, p. 3581
the drizzle la llovizna
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 697, p. 3937
the drought la sequía
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 701, p. 3961
the dry cleaner's la tintorería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 770, p. 4391
the duty rota — the chemist that is open tonight, and a Germanic word for watching la guardia
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 457, p. 2385
the ear (outer) la oreja
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 736, p. 4179
the earthquake el terremoto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 528, p. 2881
the economy; economics la economía
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 630, p. 3517
the effort el esfuerzo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 503, p. 2725
the elbow el codo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 737, p. 4185
the elections las elecciones
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 602, p. 3343
the electrician el electricista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 769, p. 4385
the embassy la embajada
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 679, p. 3823
the emphatic yes — contradicting something unsaid sí que
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 275, p. 901
the employee el empleado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 590, p. 3267
the end — Latin finis, a boundary stone between fields; English final, finish, finite, define and confine all mark the same edge el fin
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 348, p. 1445
the ending, the outcome el desenlace
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 565, p. 3111
the engagement; the commitment el compromiso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 547, p. 2999
the engine, the motor el motor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 644, p. 3605

the enigma, the puzzle el enigma
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 532, p. 2905
the enrolment, the registration; the number plate la matrícula
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 596, p. 3305
the entrance, and the admission ticket — Latin intrare from intra, within; English enter, entrance and interior are all inside it la entrada
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 313, p. 1193
the entrance hall — the door made big, and the part of a Spanish building that has no tidy English name el portal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 433, p. 2131
the environment el medio ambiente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 607, p. 3373
the episode el episodio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 565, p. 3111
the equality la igualdad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 603, p. 3349
the eve, the day before — Latin vespera, evening; English vespers is the evening prayer, Greek hesperos is the evening star, and English west is a cousin of both la víspera
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 357, p. 1517
the event, the happening el acontecimiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 512, p. 2781
the excess el exceso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 668, p. 3755
the excuse la excusa
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 586, p. 3243
the exile el exilio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 552, p. 3031
the experiment el experimento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 599, p. 3323
the explanation la explicación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 505, p. 2737
the explosion la explosión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 529, p. 2887
the export la exportación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 630, p. 3517
the extra charge, the supplement el suplemento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 663, p. 3723
the eye — Latin oculus; English eye is its distant cousin, not a translation of it el ojo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 286, p. 987
the fable la fábula
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 563, p. 3099

the facility, the installation — a noun that means both the act and the thing la instalación
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 453, p. 2341
the factor el factor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 583, p. 3223
the factory la fábrica
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 504, p. 2731
the faculty, the school of a university; ability la facultad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 596, p. 3305
the failure el fracaso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 573, p. 3161
the fair la feria
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 559, p. 3073
the family — Latin familia, the whole household including its servants; English family and familiar la familia
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 309, p. 1161
the fan; the amateur el aficionado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 758, p. 4315
the fare, the rate; the price list la tarifa
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 641, p. 3587
the farewell — from despedir, Latin expetere, to ask out: a leave-taking was a request la despedida
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 288, p. 1003
the farm — from granum, the grain: a farm is named after the one thing it was built to store la granja
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 299, p. 1091
the farmer el agricultor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 691, p. 3899
the father-in-law el suegro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 747, p. 4247
the fault, the flaw el defecto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 721, p. 4087
the fauna, the wildlife la fauna
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 695, p. 3923
the fear — Latin metus, with the e broken to ie; meticulous once meant full of fear el miedo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 315, p. 1209
the feat, the great deed la hazaña
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 566, p. 3117
the ferry el ferry
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 658, p. 3693
the fever — Latin febris, which English borrowed early as fever and late as febrile la fiebre
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 286, p. 987

The Field and the Farm — Field, Farm, Livestock, Harvest, Shepherd
chapter topic; Chapter 299, p. 1091
the field, the countryside — Latin campus, flat open ground; camp, campus, campaign and champion are all fought or pitched on it el campo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 299, p. 1091
the fight, the combat el combate
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 567, p. 3123
the file; the archive el archivo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 776, p. 4429
the final settlement, the severance pay el finiquito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 553, p. 3037
the find, the discovery el hallazgo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 531, p. 2899
the fine la multa
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 477, p. 2563
the fire (big, destructive) el incendio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 524, p. 2855
the firefighter — named from la bomba, the pump, so Spanish calls them the pump-person while English calls them the fire-person el bombero
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 427, p. 2067
the fitting room el probador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 770, p. 4391
the five vowel letters — a closed set that never grew, and the two marks one of them can carry las cinco vocales
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 425, p. 2043
the five-year period el lustro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 539, p. 2949
the flat, the apartment el apartamento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 667, p. 3749
the flight attendant la azafata
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 654, p. 3667
the float (in a parade); the carriage la carroza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 559, p. 3073
the flood la inundación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 528, p. 2881
the flora, the plant life la flora
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 695, p. 3923
the flu la gripe
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 733, p. 4161
the folder la carpeta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 776, p. 4429

the foot — Latin pedem, from a root so old that Hindi pair, Persian pa and English foot are all the same word el pie
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 314, p. 1201
the footprint — from hollar, to tread, and behind that fullare, to trample cloth; a fuller was the man who did it with his feet la huella
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 302, p. 1115
the footwear el calzado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 478, p. 2569
the forecast; the prognosis el pronóstico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 696, p. 3931
the forehead la frente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 736, p. 4179
the fork — built on tener, to hold: it is "the holder", the same shape as any Spanish word ending in -dor el tenedor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 297, p. 1075
the fortnight, two weeks la quincena
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 539, p. 2949
the forward, the striker el delantero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 756, p. 4303
the fountain; the source la fuente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 501, p. 2711
the four seasons — three straightforward, and one whose MEANING quietly shifted from "spring" to "summer" la primavera, el verano, el otoño, el invierno
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 142, p. 489
the fraud el fraude
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 626, p. 3493
the fridge la nevera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 775, p. 4421
the fright, the scare el susto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 706, p. 3993
the frying pan — Latin sartago; its written accent is a receipt for where the stress went, and the plural hands it back la sartén
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 297, p. 1075
the fuel el combustible
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 646, p. 3617
the full stop — one mark with three jobs, and the job it is doing is decided by what comes after it rather than by the mark itself el punto
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 424, p. 2029
The Future — Saying What Will Happen
chapter topic; Chapter 122, p. 423

the future (what lies ahead) el porvenir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 575, p. 3173
the gain, the profit la ganancia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 629, p. 3511
the gallery; the covered balcony la galería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 678, p. 3817
the garage — a French word wearing a Spanish spelling, and the floor of the building most notices are about el garaje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 433, p. 2131
the gardener el jardinero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 475, p. 2551
the garlic — Latin allium, which English kept as the botanical name; aioli is this word and oil, run together el ajo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 297, p. 1075
the generation la generación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 545, p. 2987
the get-together (for conversation) la tertulia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 560, p. 3081
the girl — the counterpart of El Niño, and the reason the pupil of the eye is a little girl in both languages la niña
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 308, p. 1153
the girl — the same ciccum root, and the one word here that English borrowed from Spanish rather than the reverse la chica
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 308, p. 1153
the girlfriend; the bride la novia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 547, p. 2999
the goal, the finish line la meta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 509, p. 2761
the godfather; the best man el padrino
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 546, p. 2993
the godmother la madrina
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 546, p. 2993
the government el gobierno
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 601, p. 3337
the grade, as printed on a document — the formal partner of nota, and a word that says out loud what a grade is for la calificación
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 429, p. 2089
the graduation la graduación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 554, p. 3043
the grandfather — Latin avus, the root inside English avuncular and atavistic el abuelo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 306, p. 1141

the grandmother — the avus root swung feminine, the same -o/-a switch as hijo and hija la abuela
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 306, p. 1141
the grandson, the grandchild el nieto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 546, p. 2993
the grave, the tomb la tumba
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 556, p. 3055
the great-grandfather el bisabuelo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 749, p. 4259
the greengrocer's, the fruit shop la frutería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 770, p. 4391
the group — a short plain word that came in whole, and the unit a course or a trip is organised into el grupo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 436, p. 2159
the group; collective el colectivo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 600, p. 3331
the growth el crecimiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 608, p. 3381
the guarantee, the warranty la garantía
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 614, p. 3417
the guest (at a hotel or a house) el huésped
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 661, p. 3711
the guesthouse, the small hotel el hostal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 660, p. 3705
the guide and the guidebook — the article decides which el guía / la guía
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 463, p. 2433
the h in hermano — a letter that was never spoken
etymology topic; explicit focus: usage and culture; Chapter 140, p. 479
the hail el granizo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 699, p. 3949
the hairdresser's la peluquería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 680, p. 3831
the half — Latin medietatem, the middle-ness, from medius middle; English medium, median, mediate and moiety come off it, and the -dad ending is the one you know la mitad
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 344, p. 1411
the hamlet, the small village la aldea
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 683, p. 3849
the hand — feminine despite ending in -o, Spanish's most famous gender exception la mano
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 141, p. 485

the handbag — one letter away from la bolsa, which is a different thing, and the vowel is the whole difference el bolso
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 430, p. 2101
the handle — a cousin of la mano, and a homonym of the fruit in the way la cola taught el mango
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 470, p. 2501
the happening, the incident el suceso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 512, p. 2781
the harbour — Latin portus, the twin of the porta you already have; import, export and opportunity are all ships coming in el puerto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 302, p. 1115
the hard shoulder (of a road) el arcén
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 642, p. 3593
the hardware shop la ferretería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 770, p. 4391
the harvest — from collecta, the gathered-up, which is the colligere you already took apart once la cosecha
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 299, p. 1091
the head office, the headquarters la sede
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 592, p. 3281
the head — Spanish KEPT Latin's real word, unlike French, which replaced it with slang for "pot" la cabeza
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 141, p. 485
the head, the director — the -tor noun you were shown in a table, now the person who signs the letter el director / la directora
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 466, p. 2461
the headline el titular
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 513, p. 2787
the hearing, the inner ear — the past participle of oír made into a noun; Latin audire is under audio, audience and obedient el oído
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 314, p. 1201
the heating — heat-making, built from two words you already own la calefacción
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 444, p. 2241
the hen — Latin gallina, the female of gallus; and in both languages the bird is also what you call a coward la gallina
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 296, p. 1067
the hero el héroe
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 564, p. 3105
the hill — Latin collis, from a root meaning to rise; excel and culminate rise from the same place la colina
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 292, p. 1035

the hillside, the slope la ladera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 772, p. 4403
the hip la cadera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 737, p. 4185
the hoarfrost, the white frost la escarcha
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 700, p. 3955
the hobby; liking; fans la afición
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 751, p. 4271
the holiday, the party — Latin festa, the feast days; English feast, festival and festive are the same word, and English borrowed fiesta itself la fiesta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 349, p. 1453
the holidays — Latin vacātiō, exemption, from vacāre, to be empty or free of duty; a learned borrowing, twin of English vacation and vacant, and no relation to vaca, the cow las vacaciones
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 392, p. 1819
the home el hogar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 496, p. 2681
the honey — Latin mel, which sweetens mellifluous, molasses and marmalade la miel
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 290, p. 1019
the honeymoon la luna de miel
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 548, p. 3005
the horizon el horizonte
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 703, p. 3973
the horse — Latin caballus, the working nag, which beat the noble equus and left cavalry and chivalry behind it el caballo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 296, p. 1067
the host el anfitrión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 667, p. 3749
the hostel; the shelter el albergue
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 660, p. 3705
the humidity, the damp la humedad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 696, p. 3931
the hurry, the rush — Latin pressa, from premere to press; English press, pressure, express, impress, oppress and print are all pressings la prisa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 333, p. 1351
the husband el marido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 549, p. 3011
the husband — Latin spondere, to pledge solemnly; English spouse, sponsor, respond, despondent el esposo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 306, p. 1141

the hyphen — shorter than la raya and with a different job, and a word whose own spelling the Academy changed el guion
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 424, p. 2029
the hypothesis la hipótesis
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 618, p. 3443
the ice-cream shop la heladería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 680, p. 3831
the immigrant el inmigrante
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 552, p. 3031
the immigration la inmigración
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 610, p. 3393
the impact el impacto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 582, p. 3217
The Imperfect — What Used to Happen
chapter topic; Chapter 107, p. 385
the improvement la mejora
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 483, p. 2599
the incident el incidente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 574, p. 3167
the income; the deposit; admission el ingreso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 627, p. 3499
the increase, the rise el aumento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 608, p. 3381
the industry la industria
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 592, p. 3281
the inequality la desigualdad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 603, p. 3349
the inflation la inflación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 630, p. 3517
the influence la influencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 583, p. 3223
the ingredient el ingrediente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 768, p. 4379
the inhabitant el habitante
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 507, p. 3331
the inheritance la herencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 557, p. 3061
the initial lower-case letter — whether a small word inside a surname takes a capital depends on whether the forename is standing in front of it la minúscula inicial
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 426, p. 2055
the injured person; injured el herido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 525, p. 2861
the insect el insecto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 694, p. 3917

the inside corner of a room — Arabic rukn, a corner or a supporting pillar; the street corner, la esquina, is Latin, so Spanish gets its two corners from two languages el rincón
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 355, p. 1501
the instant — Latin instans, standing upon you, from in plus stare; English instant, instance and constant all stand on the same verb el instante
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 348, p. 1445
The Instituto, And What A Mark Is Called
chapter topic; Chapter 429, p. 2089
the instruction, the direction (how to get somewhere) la indicación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 670, p. 3767
the integration la integración
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 610, p. 3393
the intention la intención
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 615, p. 3423
the interest el interés
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 628, p. 3505
the internet — English Internet, itself Latin inter, between, bolted onto Germanic net; taken into Spanish unchanged except for the beat, which moves to the last syllable internet
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 393, p. 1829
the interview la entrevista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 490, p. 3267
the invention el invento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 571, p. 3149
the inventor el inventor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 571, p. 3149
the investigation; research la investigación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 520, p. 2831
the investment la inversión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 629, p. 3511
the invoice — "a making", by the same ending that gives escritura and lectura la factura
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 441, p. 2209
the island — Latin insula; insular, isolate, peninsula and insulin all come off the same rock la isla
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 295, p. 1059
the jacket — a word you have already been shown twice without being given it, and probably named after a peasant rather than a place la chaqueta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 468, p. 2481
the jigsaw puzzle; the puzzle el rompecabezas
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 752, p. 4279

the job, employment el empleo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 490, p. 3267
the joke el chiste
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 502, p. 2717
the joke, the prank la broma
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 718, p. 4067
the journey — Latin viaticum, the provisions you packed for the road el viaje
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 288, p. 1003
the journey, the stretch (from one place to another) el trayecto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 641, p. 3587
the judge el juez
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 522, p. 2843
the jumper — an English word for an island, borrowed whole, and then made to follow Spanish accent rules in the plural el jersey
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 430, p. 2101
the justice la justicia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 603, p. 3349
the justification la justificación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 586, p. 3243
the kerb, the curb el bordillo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 682, p. 3843
the key — Latin clavis, the little key; the same root gives English clavicle, clef and conclave la llave
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 310, p. 1169
the keyboard el teclado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 776, p. 4429
the kilometre el kilómetro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 646, p. 3617
the kind, the sort — Greek typos, a blow and the dent a blow leaves; English type, typical, typography and prototype all take the same impression el tipo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 350, p. 1461
the knee — Latin rotella, a little wheel, from rota; rotate, rotary and roulette are the same wheel la rodilla
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 293, p. 1043
the knife — Latin cultellus, a little culter; cutlery, cutlass and the plough's coulter are the same blade el cuchillo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 294, p. 1051
the knowledge el conocimiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 598, p. 3317
the label, the tag; etiquette la etiqueta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 652, p. 3655

the lagoon, the small lake la laguna
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 689, p. 3887
the lake — Latin lacus; lake, lagoon and lacuna are all the same standing water el lago
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 292, p. 1035
the landscape, the scenery el paisaje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 685, p. 3861
the lane; the rail el carril
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 648, p. 3631
the large bin; the container el contenedor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 682, p. 3843
the large bird, the bird (formal); poultry el ave
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 694, p. 3917
the laughter — Latin risus from ridere, to laugh; English took the root only in unkind forms — ridicule, deride, risible la risa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 315, p. 1209
the launch, the motorboat la lancha
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 659, p. 3699
the launderette, the laundry la lavandería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 680, p. 3831
the law la ley
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 500, p. 2705
the lawn, the pitch — grass as a surface somebody looks after el césped
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 450, p. 2307
the lawyer — Latin advocatus, one called to your side; English advocate is the same word, and it explains what the job originally was el abogado
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 427, p. 2067
the leadership el liderazgo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 594, p. 3293
the leaflet, the brochure el folleto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 676, p. 3805
the leak (in a roof) la gotera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 769, p. 4385
the learning; the apprenticeship el aprendizaje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 597, p. 3311
the left, the left-hand side — Basque ezkerra, one of the few pre-Roman words in Spanish; it drove out Latin sinistra, which English kept as sinister la izquierda
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 340, p. 1379
the leg — Latin perna, a ham; Spanish named the living leg after the butcher's cut la pierna
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 314, p. 1201

the legend; the caption la leyenda
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 564, p. 3105
the length, the duration la duración
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 541, p. 2961
the letter, and the menu — Latin charta from Greek khartes, a papyrus sheet; English chart, charter, card and cartoon are all it la carta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 312, p. 1185
The Letters Themselves
chapter topic; Chapter 425, p. 2043
the letters with more than one name — which matters because b and v sound identical in Spanish, so the name is how a speaker tells them apart be larga o be corta
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 425, p. 2043
the level — a cousin of el litro through Latin libra, the balance, because a level is a little pair of scales el nivel
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 471, p. 2511
the lie la mentira
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 636, p. 3555
the light — Latin lux, lucem; English keeps it in lucid, translucent and elucidate la luz
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 310, p. 1169
the lighthouse — named after Pharos, the island at Alexandria that held the first one; a place name that became the word for the thing el faro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 302, p. 1115
the lightning bolt; the ray el rayo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 699, p. 3949
the link; the connection el enlace
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 773, p. 4409
the litter bin, the wastepaper basket la papelera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 682, p. 3843
the livestock — from ganar, to gain: cattle are simply "what has been gained", the way English cattle and chattel are what you own el ganado
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 299, p. 1091
the living together, the coexistence la convivencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 610, p. 3393
the loan — the noun the lending cycle was missing, and the word for a borrowed word el préstamo
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 441, p. 2209
the location la ubicación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 669, p. 3761

the lock la cerradura
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 496, p. 2681
the long walk, the hike la caminata
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 687, p. 3873
the loss la pérdida
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 629, p. 3511
the lover; lover of something el amante
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 746, p. 4241
the luggage el equipaje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 478, p. 2569
the lung el pulmón
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 735, p. 4173
the luxury el lujo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 633, p. 3537
the machine — the general word under all the particular ones you already hold la máquina
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 434, p. 2139
the magazine la revista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 762, p. 4341
the main character, the lead el protagonista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 564, p. 3105
the manager el gerente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 665, p. 3737
the map — Latin mappa, a cloth; the world was drawn on a napkin, and napkin is the same word el mapa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 312, p. 1185
the margin; the room el margen
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 638, p. 3567
the mark — the same word the corpus already taught for a written note, and the older of its two senses is this one la nota
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 429, p. 2089
¿ ¡ — the marks that open a question script and writing topic; explicit focus: script, usage and culture; Chapter 11, p. 81
The Marks Themselves
chapter topic; Chapter 424, p. 2029
the marriage; the married couple el matrimonio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 548, p. 3005
the marsh, the swamp; the reservoir (Spain) el pantano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 689, p. 3887
the (masculine / feminine) el / la
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 1, p. 1
the massage el masaje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 767, p. 4371
the master's degree el máster
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 596, p. 3305

the match, and the political party — both of them a side split off el partido
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 446, p. 2263
the material, the equipment el material
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 475, p. 2551
the matter, the affair — Latin assumptus, taken up, from ad + sumere; English assume, resume, consume and presume are all takings el asunto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 331, p. 1335
the mayor's office; the office of mayor la alcaldía
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 683, p. 3849
the measure, the step; the size la medida
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 607, p. 3373
the mechanic el mecánico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 645, p. 3611
the medal la medalla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 757, p. 4309
the medicine — the word on the box, built on the doctor you already know el medicamento
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 457, p. 2385
the meeting — making one again, out of the plainest number there is la reunión
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 442, p. 2219
the merit, the credit el mérito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 595, p. 3299
the meter — the same doer-ending a second time, on the verb for counting, and the word on every notice about the water el contador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 432, p. 2121
the method el método
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 599, p. 3323
the milkshake, the smoothie el batido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 499, p. 2699
the millennium el milenio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 539, p. 2949
the minister el ministro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 601, p. 3337
the minor damage, the defect el desperfecto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 665, p. 3737
the minute — Latin minutus, made small, from minuere to lessen; English minute, minor, minus, diminish and minuscule are the same smallness el minuto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 342, p. 1395

the mirror el espejo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 774, p. 4415
the mist — Latin nebula, the word set aside earlier as the near-cousin of nubes; nebulous is the same mist la niebla
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 295, p. 1059
the mistake, the error el error
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 476, p. 2557
the moment that, as soon as tan pronto como
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 536, p. 2931
the monarch el monarca
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 568, p. 3131
the monthly payment la mensualidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 632, p. 3531
The Months
chapter topic; Chapter 145, p. 499
the months — Roman gods and emperors, marching almost unchanged from Latin los meses
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 145, p. 499
the monument, the sight el monumento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 677, p. 3811
the mortgage la hipoteca
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 628, p. 3505
the mother-in-law la suegra
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 747, p. 4247
the motorbike la moto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 649, p. 3637
the motorcyclist el motorista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 649, p. 3637
the mountain hut; the shelter el refugio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 687, p. 3873
the mountain — Latin mons; paramount is above the hill and an amount is what it comes to la montaña
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 292, p. 1035
the mountain range; the saw la sierra
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 685, p. 3861
the mountain, the hill; the woodland el monte
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 685, p. 3861
the mouth — Latin bucca was the cheek, and the cheek pushed the mouth out of the job la boca
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 286, p. 987
the move, the removal — and the ending that turns a verb into the event la mudanza
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 448, p. 2285

the mud; clay el barro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 702, p. 3967
the muggy heat, close weather; embarrassment el bochorno
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 701, p. 3961
the multinational company la multinacional
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 592, p. 3281
the municipality, the town council el municipio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 683, p. 3849
the muscle el músculo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 755, p. 4297
the musician el músico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 753, p. 4285
the mystery el misterio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 532, p. 2905
the myth el mito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 564, p. 3105
the name — Latin nomen, cousin to English name and root of noun and nominate el nombre
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 305, p. 1135
the nap, the siesta la siesta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 741, p. 4209
the nappy, the diaper el pañal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 546, p. 2993
the narrator el narrador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 563, p. 3099
the neck — Latin collum, which is also the collar round it and the accolade thrown round it el cuello
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 293, p. 1043
the needle — a little acus, a sharp; the same sharp that names the acute accent, and the one in acupuncture la aguja
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 301, p. 1107
the negotiation la negociación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 634, p. 3543
the neighbour — from vicus, a village street: the person off your own block el vecino
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 285, p. 979
the neighbourhood — Andalusi Arabic barri, of the outside, from barr, the open land beyond the walls; English borrowed barrio whole el barrio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 325, p. 1287
the neighbourhood; the residents el vecindario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 684, p. 3855
the newborn baby el recién nacido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 544, p. 2981

the newsroom; the writing, the essay la redacción
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 513, p. 2787
the next day, the following day al día siguiente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 537, p. 2937
the nickname — from apodar, Latin putare, to prune and so to reckon; English compute, dispute, amputate el apodo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 309, p. 1161
the noise — Latin rugitus, a roaring, from rugire to roar; the same root gave English rut, the roaring season of deer el ruido
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 333, p. 1351
the notebook — a counting word underneath, because the oldest notebook was four sheets folded once el cuaderno
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 465, p. 2449
the notice, the warning — from avisar, and Latin ad visum, to what is seen; English advise, advice, vision, evident and provide share the root videre el aviso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 332, p. 1343
the notification, the alert la notificación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 574, p. 3167
the novelty; the news, the change la novedad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 566, p. 3117
the number — Latin numerus; English number, numeral, numerous, enumerate and numb all come off it el número
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 344, p. 1411
the numbers 1–5 uno, dos, tres, cuatro, cinco
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 47, p. 193
the numbers 6–10 and the old counting hidden in month names seis, siete, ocho, nueve, diez
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 47, p. 193
the nurse — from infirmus, not firm: named after the patient, not the work la enfermera
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 285, p. 979
the oak tree el roble
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 693, p. 3911
the object, the thing — Latin objectum, thrown before, from ob and iacere to throw; English object, project, inject, eject and subject are all throws el objeto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 345, p. 1419
the objection la objeción
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 577, p. 3187
the obligation, the duty la obligación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 622, p. 3467
the obstacle el obstáculo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 620, p. 3455

the ocean el océano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 688, p. 3881
the offence, the crime el delito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 520, p. 2831
the offender, the criminal el delincuente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 520, p. 2831
the offer, the special offer la oferta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 491, p. 2649
the official statement, the press release el comunicado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 515, p. 2799
the olive tree el olivo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 693, p. 3911
the one noun that covers both "time" and "weather" — because Latin tempus already did el tiempo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 148, p. 511
the onion — Latin caepulla, a little caepa; the chive in English is the same root, undiminished la cebolla
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 290, p. 1019
The Only Three Irregulars
chapter topic; Chapter 109, p. 391
the opportunity, the chance la oportunidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 619, p. 3449
the option, the choice la opción
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 617, p. 3437
the order — the thing you have asked a shop to send, named from the verb for asking el pedido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 431, p. 2111
the origin el origen
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 571, p. 3149
the orphan el huérfano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 749, p. 4259
the other sorry — "give completely" — for fault and for getting past people, where lo siento is for regret perdón
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 137, p. 465
the outlook, the forecast; foresight la previsión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 696, p. 3931
the outsider, the stranger (from out of town) el forastero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 684, p. 3855
the outskirts las afueras
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 675, p. 3799
the oven — Latin furnus, wearing the silent h that marks where an f used to stand; furnace is the same fire el horno
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 297, p. 1075

the owner el dueño
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 665, p. 3737
the pack of cards la baraja
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 752, p. 4279
the pact, the deal el pacto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 635, p. 3549
the pain — Latin dolor; condolence hurts with you, and indolent once felt no pain at all el dolor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 286, p. 987
the painter el pintor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 763, p. 4347
the palace el palacio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 677, p. 3811
the paper — from papyrus, the reed the Egyptians wrote on; it also means the part an actor plays, because the part was written on one el papel
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 301, p. 1107
the paperwork — a fourth ending, and the one that turns an action into a thing la documentación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 435, p. 2149
the parade el desfile
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 559, p. 3073
the parking meter el parquímetro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 648, p. 3631
the part, the share — Latin partem from pars; English part, party, partial, particle, partner and portion all come off it la parte
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 345, p. 1419
the part — what is missing when a thing does not work, and what a repair replaces la pieza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 434, p. 2139
the passing, the span (of time) el transcurso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 541, p. 2961
the passport — pass plus port; the paper that lets you through the gate, from Latin passus and porta el pasaporte
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 313, p. 1193
the password la contraseña
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 776, p. 4429
the pastime el pasatiempo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 751, p. 4271
the path — Latin semita, a by-way, with semi- meaning half: a path is a half-road el sendero
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 295, p. 1059
the path, the trail la senda
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 687, p. 3873

the patrol; the patrol car la patrulla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 519, p. 2823
the paving stone, the cobblestone el adoquín
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 675, p. 3799
the peak; the beak el pico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 686, p. 3867
the pedestrian el peatón
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 647, p. 3623
the penalty, the charge (for cancelling) la penalización
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 662, p. 3717
the penalty, the sanction la sanción
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 623, p. 3473
the pension; the guesthouse la pensión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 632, p. 3531
the performance la actuación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 759, p. 4321
the performance, the output; the yield el rendimiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 593, p. 3287
the period el período
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 539, p. 2949
The Person, Head To Hand
chapter topic; Chapter 364, p. 1581
the person — Latin persona, an actor's mask; English person, personality, persona and impersonate all still wear it la persona
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 345, p. 1419
the petrol pump; the jet (of a fountain) el surtidor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 646, p. 3617
the petrol, the gas (for a car) la gasolina
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 489, p. 2637
the phase, the stage la fase
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 541, p. 2961
the photocopy la fotocopia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 657, p. 3687
the piece of news la noticia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 495, p. 2675
the piece, the bit el trozo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 775, p. 4421
the pilot; the driver (racing) el piloto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 654, p. 3667
the pine tree el pino
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 693, p. 3911
the pipework — the same collecting ending again, and the word behind every notice that the water is going off la tubería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 432, p. 2121

the place; the room, the space el sitio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 478, p. 2569
the place, the spot — Latin locus through localis; the same locus is already inside hasta luego and en primer lugar el lugar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 325, p. 1287
the platform — the one station word whose history nobody can recover el andén
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 439, p. 2189
the plot la trama
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 565, p. 3111
the plumber el fontanero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 769, p. 4385
the point, the dot — Latin punctum, a prick, from pungere to prick; English point, puncture, punctual, punctuation and pungent share the needle el punto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 342, p. 1395
the police officer — Greek polis, the city, so the word names the person by the thing they keep in order; and the article changes what it means el policía
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 427, p. 2067
the police station la comisaría
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 679, p. 3823
the politics; the policy la política
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 601, p. 3337
the population la población
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 507, p. 3331
the portrait el retrato
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 763, p. 4347
the postbox, the letterbox el buzón
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 489, p. 2637
the pot — Latin olla, unchanged in two thousand years; potpourri is a French translation of olla podrida la olla
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 294, p. 1051
the pothole; the bad patch el bache
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 642, p. 3593
the poverty, the misery; a pittance la miseria
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 633, p. 3537
the pregnancy el embarazo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 544, p. 2981
the premiere, the first showing el estreno
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 760, p. 4329
the present el presente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 575, p. 3173

the press la prensa
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 513, p. 2787
the pressure la presión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 503, p. 2725
The Preterite — Your First Past Tense
chapter topic; Chapter 103, p. 363
the pretext el pretexto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 586, p. 3243
the price cut; the sales la rebaja
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 631, p. 3523
the price — Latin pretium, worth; English price, precious, appreciate and praise all come off it el precio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 311, p. 1177
the printer — the machine-ending you met on la lavadora, now on a stem that also yields a person, so the article is what tells the two apart la impresora
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 469, p. 2491
the priority la prioridad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 617, p. 3437
the prison, the jail la cárcel
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 522, p. 2843
the prisoner el preso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 523, p. 2849
the privilege el privilegio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 603, p. 3349
the probability, the likelihood la probabilidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 613, p. 3411
the procession la procesión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 559, p. 3073
the profile el perfil
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 590, p. 3267
the profit; the benefit el beneficio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 629, p. 3511
the progress el progreso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 609, p. 3387
the promotion; the climb el ascenso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 553, p. 3037
the proof, the evidence; the test la prueba
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 521, p. 2837
the proposal la propuesta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 585, p. 3237
the proprietor, the owner; the landlord el propietario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 667, p. 3749
the prospect; the perspective la perspectiva
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 619, p. 3449

the protection la protección
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 614, p. 3417
the protest la protesta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 570, p. 3143
the psychologist el psicólogo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 743, p. 4221
the puddle el charco
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 702, p. 3967
the puncture, the flat tyre el pinchazo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 645, p. 3611
the punishment el castigo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 623, p. 3473
the pupil, the student el alumno
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 476, p. 2557
the purpose, the aim la finalidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 483, p. 2599
the purpose, the aim; the resolution el propósito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 615, p. 3423
The qu- question family — one ancient pattern, many clues
etymology topic; explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 6, p. 43
the qualification, the title el título
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 475, p. 2551
the quantity, the amount — Latin quantitas from quantus, how much; English quantity, quantum and quantify all ask the same question la cantidad
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 351, p. 1469
the quarter, a fourth — Latin quartus, fourth, on quattuor four; English quarter, quart, quartet and quarantine all count to four el cuarto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 342, p. 1395
the quay, the dock; the spring (metal) el muelle
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 658, p. 3693
the queen la reina
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 568, p. 3131
the queue — named after a tail, and not to be confused with its own homonym la cola
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 451, p. 2319
the racism el racismo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 605, p. 3361
the rain — the noun to a verb you have had since the weather chapter, and a word you were once shown as somebody else's example la lluvia
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 465, p. 2449

the rainbow el arco iris
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 703, p. 3973
the raincoat; waterproof el impermeable
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 702, p. 3967
the raised letters — the little o and a that sit above the line in an ordinal or an abbreviation, and which one to use for a woman las letras voladitas
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 426, p. 2055
the reader el lector
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 762, p. 4341
the reading — the word la factura already printed in its own table, handed over now, and a thing you have been doing since chapter sixty-six la lectura
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 472, p. 2523
the reason, the motive el motivo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 580, p. 3205
the receipt el recibo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 491, p. 2649
the receipt — a word that went to England, changed jobs, and came back el ticket
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 451, p. 2319
the receptionist el recepcionista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 661, p. 3711
the record (best result) el récord
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 566, p. 3117
the referee el árbitro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 756, p. 4303
the refugee el refugiado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 552, p. 3031
the refund el reembolso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 663, p. 3723
the region la región
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 683, p. 3849
The Regular Preterite
chapter topic; Chapter 104, p. 371
the regular singular -er preterite — comí, comiste, comió comí
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 104, p. 371
the regular singular -ir preterite — viví, viviste, vivió viví
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 104, p. 371
the regulations, the rules el reglamento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 622, p. 3467
the relationship la relación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 745, p. 4235

the relative — Latin parere, to give birth; English parent and postpartum, and a false friend worth knowing el pariente
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 309, p. 1161
the remedy — re- and mederi, to heal again; medicine, medical and a medic are all the same healing el remedio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 300, p. 1099
the rent; renting el alquiler
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 477, p. 2563
the replacement, the handover; the relay el relevo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 553, p. 3037
the report, the complaint la denuncia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 625, p. 3487
the report, the feature story el reportaje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 514, p. 2793
the reporter el reportero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 514, p. 2793
the requirement el requisito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 613, p. 3411
the rescue; the ransom el rescate
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 526, p. 2867
the resource; the appeal el recurso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 607, p. 3373
the rest — des- undoes cansar, to tire; rest in Spanish is defined as the reversal of being worn down el descanso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 315, p. 1209
The Rest of the Greetings
chapter topic; Chapter 2, p. 17
the rest, what is left — Latin restare, to stand back, from re and stare; English rest and arrest stand on the same verb el resto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 352, p. 1477
the return el regreso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 561, p. 3087
the return — from volver, Latin volvere, to roll: a return is a turning back la vuelta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 288, p. 1003
the reunion el reencuentro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 560, p. 3081
the revolution la revolución
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 568, p. 3131
the rib la costilla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 737, p. 4185
the rice — Arabic ar-ruzz, carrying its own article; rice is the same grain by a different road el arroz
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 290, p. 1019

the right, the right-hand side — Latin directus, straightened, from dirigere to set straight; English direct, direction, erect and address share it la derecha
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 340, p. 1379
the ring el anillo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 547, p. 2999
the ring road, the bypass la circunvalación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 642, p. 3593
the risk el riesgo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 530, p. 2893
The River, The Sand And The Ash
chapter topic; Chapter 369, p. 1631
The Road and the World
chapter topic; Chapter 330, p. 1327
the road, the way — Late Latin camminus, borrowed from Gaulish; one of the few Celtic words Spanish kept, and the source of French chemin el camino
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 330, p. 1327
the roadway, the carriageway la calzada
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 647, p. 3623
the robbery, the theft el robo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 518, p. 2817
the rock la roca
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 686, p. 3867
the root — Latin radix, which is also the radish, the radical and the thing you eradicate la raíz
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 291, p. 1027
the rope — Greek khorde by way of Latin chorda, a gut string; cord, chord and cordon are the same string, and the o breaks to ue again la cuerda
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 301, p. 1107
the roundabout la rotonda
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 647, p. 3623
the route — a road broken through, and a cousin of roto la ruta
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 452, p. 2331
the route, the tour el recorrido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 674, p. 3793
the rubbish, the trash la basura
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 485, p. 2613
the rubble, the debris los escombros
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 529, p. 2887
the rule — the heading above every list a building, a library or a pool puts on its wall la norma
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 433, p. 2131

the rumour el rumor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 515, p. 2799
the sailing boat el velero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 659, p. 3699
the sailor el marinero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 659, p. 3699
the salad — a salted thing, and the salt is still in the word la ensalada
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 456, p. 2373
the salary, the pay el sueldo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 490, p. 3267
the sale la venta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 631, p. 3523
the same, equal — Latin aequalis from aequus, level; English equal, equator and adequate are all about a surface with no tilt in it igual
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 350, p. 1461
the same rain in two tenses — how a story uses the imperfect for the scene and the preterite for the events llovía / llovió
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 167, p. 591
the sandwich (in a bread roll) el bocadillo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 499, p. 2699
the saving; savings el ahorro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 477, p. 2563
the scales (for weighing) la báscula
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 668, p. 3755
the scandal; the racket el escándalo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 570, p. 3143
the scar la cicatriz
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 734, p. 4167
the scarf — one of a handful of words this book has had to leave open, and the fifth to say so out loud la bufanda
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 468, p. 2481
the scooter (kick or electric) el patinete
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 649, p. 3637
the scoreboard, the score el marcador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 756, p. 4303
the screen — a lampshade before it was a monitor, and a history nobody can settle la pantalla
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 442, p. 2219
the sculpture la escultura
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 763, p. 4347
the seagull la gaviota
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 694, p. 3917

the search la búsqueda
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 531, p. 2899
The Seasons
chapter topic; Chapter 142, p. 489
the seat — Latin sedere, to sit; English sedentary, session, reside and assess all sit on it el asiento
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 311, p. 1177
the secondary school — the false friend that sends English speakers to the wrong building, because an English institute is a research body and a Spanish one is where you go at twelve el instituto
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 429, p. 2089
the secret; secret el secreto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 532, p. 2905
the section — a thing cut, and the cut is still in the word la sección
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 459, p. 2401
the seed — Latin seminalia, the things for sowing; a seminar is a seed-bed and disseminate is scattering la semilla
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 291, p. 1027
the self-employed worker; autonomous el autónomo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 591, p. 3273
the seller — vender plus the same -dor ending that turned trabajar into trabajador, which is how Spanish makes a person out of an action el vendedor
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 427, p. 2067
the semester, the half-year el semestre
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 539, p. 2949
the sensation, the feeling la sensación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 712, p. 4031
the series (TV) la serie
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 761, p. 4335
the service — and, on a door, the toilet el servicio
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 454, p. 2351
the set meal, and the card it is printed on — French menu, small and detailed, from Latin minūtus, made small; menudo and minuto are that same Latin word by two other roads el menú
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 391, p. 1809
the set of rules, the regulations la normativa
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 622, p. 3467
the set, the whole group — Latin coniunctus, yoked together, from com and iungere; English junction, join and even yoga come off the same yoking el conjunto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 352, p. 1477

the setback, the mishap el contratiempo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 616, p. 3431
the shade — Latin sub umbra, under the shadow; an umbrella is a little one of these la sombra
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 289, p. 1011
the shared singular preterite of ser and ir — fui, fuiste, fue fui
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 103, p. 363
the sheep — Latin ovicula, a little ovis; Spanish kept the small one and dropped the full-sized word entirely la oveja
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 296, p. 1067
the sheet (on a bed) la sábana
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 664, p. 3731
the shelving unit — a second ending that builds nouns, and the thing every flat-pack instruction is about la estantería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 432, p. 2121
the shepherd — from pascere, to graze; the pasture, the pastor of a church and a repast are all feeding el pastor
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 299, p. 1091
the shipment — what enviar leaves behind, and a road hidden inside the verb el envío
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 442, p. 2219
the shop — Latin tendere, to stretch; a shop began as a stretched awning, which is why English tent, extend and tendon are relatives la tienda
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 311, p. 1177
the shopping centre, the mall el centro comercial
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 681, p. 3837
the shore — Latin ora, an edge or border, with the small ending: the little edge of anything la orilla
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 295, p. 1059
the short cut el atajo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 671, p. 3773
the shoulder — Latin umerus, which doctors still call the humerus; the h is silent and came late el hombro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 293, p. 1043
the show el espectáculo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 759, p. 4321
the shower — Latin ducere, to lead; the same root leads water through an aqueduct and gives English duct, conduct and duke la ducha
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 310, p. 1169
the shower (of rain) el chubasco
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 697, p. 3937

the sign, the signal la señal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 501, p. 2711
the sign (with words), the notice el letrero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 672, p. 3781
the signal, the coverage la cobertura
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 773, p. 4409
the signpost, the sign; the gauge el indicador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 672, p. 3781
the signs, the signposting la señalización
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 672, p. 3781
the silence — Latin silentium from silere, to be still; English silence, silent and the silent film all come off it unchanged el silencio
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 333, p. 1351
the single most useful sentence a learner owns — and it is this chapter's grammar, doing exactly what the chapter said ¿cómo se dice?
Chapter 183, p. 651
the skeleton el esqueleto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 735, p. 4173
the skill, the ability la habilidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 598, p. 3317
the skin — Latin pellis, a hide, with the e broken to ie; a pelt is the same hide, and a surplice is a shirt worn over one la piel
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 300, p. 1099
the sky — Latin caelum, which is also the ceiling over a room and the cerulean of a paint box el cielo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 289, p. 1011
the slash — the mark that offers a choice, abbreviates a street, and sits inside every speed limit sign la barra
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 424, p. 2029
the sleep, and the dream — Latin somnus with the o broken to ue; insomnia and somnolent keep the o intact el sueño
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 300, p. 1099
the sleeping bag el saco de dormir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 666, p. 3743
the sleeping mat; the small mat la esterilla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 666, p. 3743
the small hours, daybreak — Latin maturus, ripe or early, through madurgar; English mature and premature are the same ripeness la madrugada
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 342, p. 1395
the small lizard, the wall lizard la lagartija
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 694, p. 3917

the smell el olor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 775, p. 4421
the snowfall la nevada
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 700, p. 3955
the social exclusion, the marginalisation la marginación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 605, p. 3361
the socket, the plug; connections (influence) el enchufe
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 664, p. 3731
the sofa — the one word in this chapter you could not have built, and the stress that keeps its accent el sofá
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 432, p. 2121
the soldier el soldado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 567, p. 3123
the solidarity la solidaridad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 606, p. 3367
the solution la solución
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 620, p. 3455
the son-in-law el yerno
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 747, p. 4247
the son — Latin filius, cousin to English filial and affiliate; the f- that became a silent h- el hijo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 306, p. 1141
the song la canción
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 753, p. 4285
the soup — Germanic suppa, a piece of bread soaked in broth; the bread came first and soup, sop and supper are all it la sopa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 297, p. 1075
the space el espacio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 478, p. 2569
the sports centre — one building, many sports, and the word says so el polideportivo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 438, p. 2179
the sportsperson, the athlete el deportista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 498, p. 2693
the square — Latin platea from Greek plateia, a broad way; English place, plate, plateau and platypus all mean broad la plaza
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 325, p. 1287
the stage; the setting el escenario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 759, p. 4321
the stamp; the seal el sello
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 679, p. 3823
the stance, the position; posture la postura
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 576, p. 3181

the star — Latin stella, wearing the e- that Spanish puts in front of an s and a consonant la estrella
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 289, p. 1011
the start; the outburst el arranque
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 542, p. 2967
the state, the condition — Latin status, which only looks like estar's participle, and the phrase a donation notice already used on you el estado
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 473, p. 2533
the statement; the declaration la declaración
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 515, p. 2799
the stationer's la papelería
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 680, p. 3831
the statue la estatua
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 678, p. 3817
the stay; the room; the ranch (Southern Cone) la estancia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 661, p. 3711
the steering wheel el volante
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 644, p. 3605
the stepbrother el hermanastro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 749, p. 4259
the stepfather; the hangnail el padrastro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 748, p. 4253
the stepmother la madrastra
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 748, p. 4253
the stocktake — a list of what was found, from venir el inventario
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 459, p. 2401
the stomach el estómago
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 735, p. 4173
the stone — and a Greek word that came to Spanish by way of a nickname la piedra
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 450, p. 2307
the stop — from parar, to stop, and Latin parare, to make ready; English prepare, repair, apparatus, parade and parasol are all the same root la parada
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 330, p. 1327
the stopover; the scale; the ladder la escala
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 653, p. 3661
the storyline, the plot summary; the argument el argumento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 565, p. 3111
the stream, the brook el arroyo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 689, p. 3887
the street lamp, the lamp post la farola
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 682, p. 3843

the street — Latin callis, the narrow track worn through rough ground by driven animals; the town's word began in the hills la calle
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 302, p. 1115
the street map, the plan el plano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 669, p. 3761
the street market, the flea market el mercadillo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 681, p. 3837
the strength — Latin fortia from fortis, with the o broken to ue; force, fort, effort and comfort are all built on it la fuerza
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 315, p. 1209
the stretch, the section (of a road or route) el tramo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 642, p. 3593
The Stretches A Calendar Marks
chapter topic; Chapter 349, p. 1453
the strike la huelga
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 490, p. 3267
The Strong Preterites
chapter topic; Chapter 105, p. 375
The Subjunctive Built From the Yo Form
chapter topic; Chapter 128, p. 443
The Subjunctive, Regular
chapter topic; Chapter 127, p. 439
the suggestion la sugerencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 585, p. 3237
the suitcase — a little mala, the Gaulish word for a bag; English mail, the post, is named after the same bag la maleta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 312, p. 1185
the suitor, the admirer el pretendiente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 744, p. 4229
the sunshade, the beach umbrella la sombrilla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 690, p. 3893
the supplier — the third party a shop blames when your order is late, and the reason this word turns up in complaints el proveedor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 431, p. 2111
the surname — from appellitare, to call on repeatedly; English appeal sits on the same verb el apellido
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 305, p. 1135
the survey — a cousin of querer, because asking and wanting are one Latin verb la encuesta
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 472, p. 2523
the suspect; suspicious el sospechoso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 518, p. 2817

the swimsuit, the swimming trunks el bañador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 690, p. 3893
the syllable — what may be split at the end of a line and what may never be, plus the words Spanish accepts two spellings for la sílaba
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 425, p. 2043
the syllabus, the list of topics el temario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 596, p. 3305
the symptom el síntoma
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 738, p. 4191
the table — Latin mensa, the measured board; English borrowed mesa whole for the flat-topped hill la mesa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 310, p. 1169
the tag question — asking someone to agree ¿verdad?
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 267, p. 843
the tank; the deposit el depósito
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 646, p. 3617
the tap, the faucet el grifo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 664, p. 3731
the target, the objective — el objeto wearing -ivo, narrowed to the thing placed in front to be reached el objetivo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 467, p. 2471
the task; homework la tarea
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 593, p. 3287
the taste, the flavour el sabor
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 771, p. 4397
the tax el impuesto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 507, p. 3331
the tax, the fee; the rate la tasa
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 663, p. 3723
the taxi el taxi
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 641, p. 3587
the taxi driver el taxista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 641, p. 3587
the teacher — magister, from magis, more; and minister, from minus, less el maestro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 285, p. 979
the teaching, the education la enseñanza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 597, p. 3311
the tear (from the eye) la lágrima
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 717, p. 4061
the teenager el adolescente
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 749, p. 4259

the telephone — Greek tele far plus phone voice; a far-voice, and both halves are everywhere in English el teléfono
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 312, p. 1185
the television news el telediario
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 574, p. 3167
the temperature — from a verb meaning to mix in the right proportion, which is also why steel is tempered and a person has a temper la temperatura
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 465, p. 2449
the tenant el inquilino
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 667, p. 3749
the terminal la terminal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 652, p. 3655
the test, the analysis — a loosening-apart, and a noun that never changes for plural el análisis
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 447, p. 2275
the therapist el terapeuta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 743, p. 4221
the thermometer el termómetro
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 696, p. 3931
the thief el ladrón
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 495, p. 2675
the thing — Latin causa, a cause or legal case, which drifted to mean thing; English cause, because, accuse and excuse keep the original sense la cosa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 331, p. 1335
the thirst — Latin sitis; Spanish does not say you are thirsty, it says you have thirst, and the difference is the point la sed
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 300, p. 1099
the thread — Latin filum with its f worn down to a silent h; filament, filigree and a file of soldiers are all threads el hilo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 301, p. 1107
the threat la amenaza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 530, p. 2893
the three weather words Spanish reports with hacer — "it makes heat," "it makes cold," "it makes sun" hace calor, hace frío, hace sol
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 148, p. 511
The Three Words for You
chapter topic; Chapter 5, p. 35
the throat — a word made out of the noise itself, as gargle and gurgle are la garganta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 286, p. 987

the ticket — a little bulla, a Latin seal; the same seal gives English bulletin and the papal bull el boleto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 313, p. 1193
the ticket office, the box office; the locker la taquilla
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 651, p. 3649
the tide la marea
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 688, p. 3881
the timetable, the opening hours — Latin horarium, on hora an hour; English hour, horoscope and horology come off the same root, and the -ario ending is English -ary el horario
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 342, p. 1395
the tin, the can; a nuisance la lata
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 775, p. 4421
the tip la propina
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 491, p. 2649
the toast (with a drink) el brindis
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 548, p. 3005
the tobacconist's (Spain) el estanco
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 679, p. 3823
the toilet, the restroom (Spain); cleanliness el aseo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 679, p. 3823
the tolerance la tolerancia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 610, p. 3393
the toll el peaje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 642, p. 3593
the tomato — Nahuatl tomatl, one of the words Spanish carried back across the Atlantic el tomate
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 290, p. 1019
the tool — a thing of iron, with the iron still in the word la herramienta
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 460, p. 2409
the tooth — Latin dentem, with the e broken to ie; a dandelion is a dent de lion, a lion's tooth el diente
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 314, p. 1201
the top, the summit la cima
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 686, p. 3867
the torch, the flashlight la linterna
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 666, p. 3743
the tournament el torneo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 757, p. 4309
the tower la torre
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 678, p. 3817
the town councillor el concejal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 601, p. 3337

the town hall, the city council el ayuntamiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 489, p. 2637
the toy el juguete
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 506, p. 2743
the track, the way — the word you have been saying inside todavía la vía
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 454, p. 2351
the trade, the commerce; the shop el comercio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 630, p. 3517
the trade union el sindicato
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 591, p. 3273
the traffic (flow); circulation la circulación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 640, p. 3581
the traffic jam el atasco
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 489, p. 2637
the traffic lights el semáforo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 647, p. 3623
the tragedy la tragedia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 528, p. 2881
the trailer; towing el remolque
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 648, p. 3631
the train driver, the engine driver el maquinista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 651, p. 3649
the training session — and the train you already know, hiding inside it el entrenamiento
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 450, p. 2307
the training, the education la formación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 590, p. 3267
the trait, the feature el rasgo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 721, p. 4087
the tram, the streetcar el tranvía
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 650, p. 3643
the traveller, the passenger el viajero
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 501, p. 2711
the tray la bandeja
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 653, p. 3661
the treatment el tratamiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 738, p. 4191
the trend, the tendency la tendencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 608, p. 3381
the trial; judgement el juicio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 522, p. 2843
the tribute, the homage el homenaje
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 558, p. 3067

the trolley — a little cart, and the ending Spanish uses more than almost any other el carrito
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 444, p. 2241
the truce la tregua
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 567, p. 3123
the trunk — Latin truncus, meaning lopped or maimed; to truncate is to do it on purpose el tronco
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 291, p. 1027
the truth — Latin veritas from verus, true; English keeps it in verity, verify and verdict, and in the older sense of very la verdad
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 324, p. 1279
the turbulence la turbulencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 655, p. 3673
the turn, your slot — Greek tornos, a lathe, through Latin tornus; English turn, tour, tournament, contour and tornado all spin off it el turno
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 348, p. 1445
the turning, the side-street opening la bocacalle
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 647, p. 3623
the tutorial, the office hours la tutoría
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 596, p. 3305
the twin; the calf (muscle) el gemelo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 749, p. 4259
the two-letter combinations that spell one sound — and two of them used to be letters in their own right until 1994 los dígrafos
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 425, p. 2043
the tyre el neumático
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 645, p. 3611
the umbrella — the para- of la parada, fused to a plural noun the way cumpleaños was, and invariable for the reason el análisis gave el paraguas
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 470, p. 2501
the uncertainty la incertidumbre
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 613, p. 3411
the uncle — Greek theios, borrowed into Late Latin; the word English did not take, because English took avunculus instead el tío
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 307, p. 1147
the underscore — the low hyphen, named by position rather than by shape, and the last piece an address can contain el guion bajo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 428, p. 2079
the unexpected problem; unforeseen el imprevisto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 616, p. 3431

the user — usar plus the -ario ending, and the word a service uses for the people it serves el usuario
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 472, p. 2523
the vacancy, the open post la vacante
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 590, p. 3267
the vaccine la vacuna
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 486, p. 2619
the valley — Latin vallis; valley, vale and avalanche all come down the same slope el valle
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 292, p. 1035
the van la furgoneta
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 640, p. 3581
the variety la variedad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 482, p. 2593
the vegetation, the plant life la vegetación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 693, p. 3911
the version, the account la versión
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 516, p. 2805
the victim la víctima
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 520, p. 2831
the video game el videojuego
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 761, p. 4335
the view; sight, eyesight la vista
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 664, p. 3731
the viewpoint; the glazed balcony el mirador
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 676, p. 3805
the village, and also the people — Latin populus, which gave popular, population and public el pueblo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 292, p. 1035
the vineyard el viñedo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 691, p. 3899
the violence la violencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 605, p. 3361
the visa el visado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 656, p. 3681
the voice — Latin vox, vocem; English voice, vocal, vowel, vocation, advocate, evoke and provoke all come off it la voz
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 332, p. 1343
the volunteering; the volunteers el voluntariado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 606, p. 3367
the vote el voto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 602, p. 3343
the voter el votante
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 602, p. 3343

the waist la cintura
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 737, p. 4185
the waistcoat, the vest el chaleco
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 655, p. 3673
the wait — the noun of esperar, and the sign above the chairs la espera
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 460, p. 2409
the wake; the funeral parlour el velatorio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 556, p. 3055
the walk, the stroll; the promenade el paseo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 674, p. 3793
the wall of a room — Latin paries, the wall of a house rather than of a town; the town wall was murus, which is Spanish muro and English mural, and paries survives in English only as the parietal bone la pared
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 355, p. 1501
the wallet la cartera
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 491, p. 2649
The Wardrobe, And The Word For Having No Work
chapter topic; Chapter 430, p. 2101
the warehouse, the storeroom — an Arabic word with its article still attached el almacén
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 452, p. 2331
the warm-up; warming el calentamiento
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 755, p. 4297
the warning la advertencia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 585, p. 3237
the washing machine — the doer-ending from the last chapter, put on a verb you have had since the household words la lavadora
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 432, p. 2121
the waterfall la cascada
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 689, p. 3887
the wave la ola
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 688, p. 3881
the way out — from salir, and Latin salire, to jump: a Roman jumped out of a room la salida
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 288, p. 1003
The Way Out — Path, Bridge, Shore, Island, Mist
chapter topic; Chapter 295, p. 1059
the way, the manner — from Latin manuarius, of the hand, and manus a hand; English manner, manual, manufacture and manage are all handlings la manera
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 331, p. 1335

the way, the mode — Latin modus, a measure; English mode, model, modern, modest and moderate are measurings, and Spanish como is quomodo, in what measure el modo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 331, p. 1335
the wealth la riqueza
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 633, p. 3537
The Weather
chapter topic; Chapter 148, p. 511
The Web Page
chapter topic; Chapter 422, p. 2009
the wedding — a Latin plural that hardened into a Spanish singular, and the pieces are invisible la boda
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 440, p. 2199
the weekdays (Monday–Friday) — worn-down planet-god names lunes, martes, miércoles, jueves, viernes
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 138, p. 469
the weekend el fin de semana
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 409, p. 1947
the weekend (Saturday, Sunday) — where religion overwrote astronomy sábado, domingo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 138, p. 469
the weeping — Latin planctus, a beating; Roman mourners struck their own chest, and pl- became ll- on the way into Spanish el llanto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 316, p. 1217
the welcome, the reception la acogida
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 551, p. 3023
the well el pozo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 692, p. 3905
the wheat — Latin triticum, the rubbed grain, from terere, to rub; trite is worn down the same way el trigo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 290, p. 1019
the wheel — and the word you have been saying inside alrededor all along la rueda
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 449, p. 2297
the whim, the treat el capricho
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 765, p. 4359
The Whole Set, And How Much Of It
chapter topic; Chapter 352, p. 1477
The Wider Circle — Wife, Uncle, Aunt, Cousin
chapter topic; Chapter 307, p. 1147
the widow la viuda
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 550, p. 3017

the widower; widowed el viudo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 550, p. 3017
the wife — the same spondere pledge, feminine; and the reason handcuffs are called esposas la esposa
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 307, p. 1147
the witness el testigo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 517, p. 2811
the wood — a Germanic word, not a Latin one; bush, bosky and ambush are its English cousins el bosque
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 291, p. 1027
the word — Latin parabola from Greek parabole, a throwing beside; the same Greek word gave English parable, parabola, parley and parliament la palabra
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 332, p. 1343
The Words Behind Please and Sorry
chapter topic; Chapter 320, p. 1247
the works, the building site — and the same Latin word as la oficina la obra
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 454, p. 2351
the workshop — where a thing goes to be mended, and also the name of a short course el taller
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 434, p. 2139
the world — Latin mundus, meaning clean and orderly; English mundane is the same word, and Greek kosmos made the identical jump from order to world el mundo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 330, p. 1327
the wound, the injury la herida
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 525, p. 2861
the wrist; the doll la muñeca
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 737, p. 4185
The Written Accent
chapter topic; Chapter 10, p. 75
the yes-or-no question — and why Spanish barely has to do anything ¿Hablas español?
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 267, p. 843
Theatre, Exhibition, Circus
chapter topic; Chapter 420, p. 1993
theatre — Greek theatron, a place for viewing, from theaomai "to behold"; the same root sits inside the English word theory el teatro
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 420, p. 1993

then — Latin in tunc, “at that time”; tunc and English then both grow out of the old pointing word that also gives the, that and there entonces
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 323, p. 1271
then, next — a word you already own from hasta luego, now doing a second job: joining two events in order luego
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 167, p. 591
therapy la terapia
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 743, p. 4221
“there is” and “there are” — one word for both, which no other Spanish verb form manages hay
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 191, p. 667
there, over there — the two places aquí has been missing, and they line up exactly with the three pointing words ahí · allí
explicit focus: grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 251, p. 791
therefore por lo tanto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 273, p. 885
therefore, so por tanto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 588, p. 3255
thick — Late Latin grossus, coarse; English gross is the same word, and so is grocer, a dealer who sold in bulk grueso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 379, p. 1715
thin — the kind word and the blunt one delgado / flaco
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 275, p. 901
this one, here, next to me — the first of three words for pointing, and the reason Spanish never needs to say “the this book” este
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 221, p. 729
three hundred trescientos
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 477, p. 2563
thumb — Latin pollicaris, which meant an inch long, from pollex; the same word gives Spanish pulgada, an inch el pulgar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 375, p. 1683
thunder — from a Latin word for a thunderclap, with an r that wandered in; English thunder is the inherited cousin, and tornado is a mangled Spanish tronada el trueno
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 370, p. 1641
thus, in that way — and with que after it, “so”; built on the same sīc that gave you sí así que
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 175, p. 627
thus, like this, that way — Latin ad sic, to thus; the same sic that Spanish turned into sí and that English still writes inside a quotation así
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 328, p. 1311

ticket billete
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 268, p. 849
Tiempo y temperatura
chapter topic; Chapter 696, p. 3931
Tiendas del barrio
chapter topic; Chapter 680, p. 3831
tienen — the break comes back
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 67, p. 265
tired — a state, not a quality, which is why it takes estar and never ser cansado
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 59, p. 243
tiredness el cansancio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 741, p. 4209
to abandon, to give up; to leave abandonar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 639, p. 3573
to accept — to take a thing towards you, and the sign on the till aceptar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 456, p. 2373
to accuse acusar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 523, p. 2849
to act, to perform actuar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 759, p. 4321
to adapt, to get used to adaptarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 551, p. 3023
to add añadir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 499, p. 2699
to admire admirar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 720, p. 4081
to admit; to recognise reconocer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 579, p. 3199
to adopt adoptar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 748, p. 4253
to adore, to worship adorar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 714, p. 4043
to advise — el consejo with a verb built on it, and the verb a question reaches for when it asks what somebody recommends aconsejar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 473, p. 2533
to affect afectar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 583, p. 3223
to agree on acordar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 634, p. 3543
to analyse analizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 599, p. 3323

to announce anunciar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 514, p. 2793
to annoy, to bother fastidiar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 707, p. 3999
to answer — a Roman courtroom word that English turned into a fight and Spanish turned into a reply contestar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 174, p. 621
to apologise disculparse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 510, p. 2767
to applaud, to clap aplaudir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 759, p. 4321
to apply for, to request — the formal verb on the form solicitar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 460, p. 2409
to appreciate, to value apreciar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 720, p. 4081
to approach — a preposition turned into a verb, and the date that comes closer on its own acercarse
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 443, p. 2229
to argue, to give reasons argumentar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 577, p. 3187
to arise, to come up — Latin surgere, to rise, and the verb a question reaches for when it asks where an idea came from surgir
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 472, p. 2523
to arrange an appointment — the same word as a concert, and it began as a fight concertar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 442, p. 2219
to arrest arrestar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 519, p. 2823
to arrive — Latin plicāre per Corominas, whose sense he routes through the nautical idiom applicāre nāvem, to bring a ship to shore; initial pl- gave Spanish ll- and Portuguese ch-, which is why Portuguese says chegar llegar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 395, p. 1849
to ask (a question) — and the reason English's one "ask" becomes two Spanish verbs preguntar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 160, p. 557
to aspire; to breathe in; to vacuum aspirar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 765, p. 4359
to assess, to evaluate evaluar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 597, p. 3311
to assure, to insist; to insure asegurar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 516, p. 2805
to attack atacar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 530, p. 2893

to attend asistir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 505, p. 2737
to authorise, to allow autorizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 624, p. 3481
to avoid evitar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 492, p. 2655
to be a Quixote — an allusion working as a word ser un quijote
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 274, p. 893
to be able or can — with the singular present forms puedo, puedes, and puede poder
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 69, p. 273
to be ashamed avergonzarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 705, p. 3987
to be born nacer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 497, p. 2687
to be — but the standing kind, straight from Latin stāre estar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 8, p. 63
to be funny — and a word that does not translate tener gracia
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 274, p. 893
to be glad alegrarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 487, p. 2625
to be moved, to get emotional emocionarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 704, p. 3981
to be out of work — el paro is a stoppage, and Spain names unemployment after the halt rather than after the missing job estar en paro
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 430, p. 2101
to be promoted; to rise ascender
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 595, p. 3299
to be — the verb used here to identify someone or say what someone is ser
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 48, p. 201
to be worth; to cost valer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 631, p. 3523
to bear, to put up with soportar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 719, p. 4073
to beat (of the heart) latir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 735, p. 4173
to beat, to whisk batir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 768, p. 4379
to beat, to win; to expire vencer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 569, p. 3137
to become independent; to leave home independizarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 552, p. 3031

to become, to turn into convertirse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 572, p. 3155
to begin — from pieza, a piece; English begin is a different word built on the same idea empezar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 382, p. 1737
to begin, to start comenzar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 542, p. 2967
to believe, to think — putting your heart somewhere, where pensar weighs it up creer
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 175, p. 627
to belong pertenecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 600, p. 3331
to bet apostar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 752, p. 4279
to betray traicionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 745, p. 4235
to bite, to sting (insects); to be spicy; to nibble picar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 695, p. 3923
to bleed sangrar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 734, p. 4167
to blow soplar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 772, p. 4403
to board; to embark embarcar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 653, p. 3661
to boil hervir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 768, p. 4379
to bother, to disturb molestar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 500, p. 2705
to break down averiarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 645, p. 3611
to break — Latin rumpere, and the reason a road is called a route romper
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 381, p. 1731
to break, to infringe infringir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 625, p. 3487
to breathe respirar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 486, p. 2619
to bring about, to cause; to provoke provocar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 581, p. 3211
to bring forward; to anticipate anticipar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 616, p. 3431
to bring forward; to overtake adelantar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 543, p. 2973

to bring — Latin's word for dragging, and a verb with a direction built into it traer
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 168, p. 601
to bring up, to raise criar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 545, p. 2987
to burn oneself; to get sunburnt quemarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 734, p. 4167
to burn — the Academy says Latin cremare; Corominas says the sounds forbid it, and the argument is still open quemar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 387, p. 1777
to burn, to be on fire arder
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 524, p. 2855
to burst out (doing) echarse a
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 562, p. 3093
to burst, to break out estallar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 529, p. 2887
to bury enterrar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 556, p. 3055
to buy — from Latin's "get ready, procure", and not from the verb behind English compare comprar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 174, p. 621
to call (a meeting, a strike) convocar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 560, p. 3081
to calm, to soothe calmar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 710, p. 4017
to camp acampar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 666, p. 3743
to cancel cancelar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 479, p. 2575
to carry out, to do realizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 511, p. 2773
to carry out, to perform; to hold (a post) desempeñar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 593, p. 3287
to cause causar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 581, p. 3211
to celebrate — and, underneath, to make a crowd; the verb a notice uses for holding an event at all celebrar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 440, p. 2199
to celebrate, to party festejar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 558, p. 3067
to change — Latin cambiāre, itself a word of Gaulish origin, for exchanging one thing for another cambiar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 401, p. 1901

to change, to modify modificar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 662, p. 3717
to charge, to be paid — the other side of pagar, and the verb that decides who owes whom cobrar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 431, p. 2111
to chase, to pursue perseguir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 519, p. 2823
to chat charlar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 502, p. 2717
to chat up, to pick up; to tie ligar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 746, p. 4241
to check over — looking at something a second time, on purpose revisar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 451, p. 2319
to check, to look up, to consult — asking a document rather than a person consultar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 453, p. 2341
to check, to verify comprobar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 587, p. 3249
to cheer up, to encourage animar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 712, p. 4031
to chew masticar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 742, p. 4215
to choose elegir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 492, p. 2655
to circulate, to drive (of traffic) circular
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 643, p. 3599
to claim, to demand; to complain reclamar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 604, p. 3355
to clamber, to climb (using your hands) trepar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 687, p. 3873
to clash, to coincide — the reason people give for not coming, and a word your English eye can already read coincidir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 437, p. 2169
to clean limpiar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 485, p. 2613
to clear (up); to clear (a space) despejar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 698, p. 3943
to climb (a mountain, a wall) escalar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 686, p. 3867
to close — from the bar dropped across a door, not from the Latin verb English inherited cerrar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 166, p. 581

to cloud over nublarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 698, p. 3943
to collect coleccionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 751, p. 4271
to collect, to pick up — the single most demanded verb in the A2 papers, and one word for four English ones recoger
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 436, p. 2159
to come about; to happen acontecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 512, p. 2781
to come back, to return regresar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 501, p. 2711
to come — with the singular present forms vengo, vienes, and viene venir
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 73, p. 291
to commemorate conmemorar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 558, p. 3067
to comment, to mention — to turn a thing over in the mind, together comentar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 447, p. 2275
to communicate, to inform comunicar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 480, p. 2581
to compare comparar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 599, p. 3323
to compensate, to make up for compensar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 665, p. 3737
to compete competir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 498, p. 2693
to complain quejarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 480, p. 2581
to compose, to write (music) componer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 753, p. 4285
to conceal, to hide ocultar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 532, p. 2905
to concentrate — to gather yourself to a centre, with the Greek word for a goad inside it concentrarse
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 443, p. 2229
to confess confesar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 523, p. 2849
to confirm confirmar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 515, p. 2799
to congratulate, to wish a happy birthday felicitar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 506, p. 2743

to connect — the Academy's dictionary records it as taken from English to connect, which had itself been built out of Latin pieces conectar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 469, p. 2491
to conquer; to win over conquistar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 568, p. 3131
to consider; to regard as considerar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 576, p. 3181
to console, to comfort consolar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 716, p. 4055
to consume, to use consumir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 607, p. 3373
to contradict contradecir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 579, p. 3199
to contribute, to bring aportar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 598, p. 3317
to control; to check controlar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 638, p. 3567
to convince convencer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 493, p. 2661
to cook — built on cocina, the kitchen, from Latin coquīna; English kitchen is that same Latin noun, borrowed early into Germanic cocinar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 396, p. 1859
to cool, to chill enfriar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 777, p. 4435
to copy — from Latin copia, abundance, because the first copies were made to have plenty copiar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 472, p. 2523
to correct, to put right rectificar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 516, p. 2805
to cost — Latin constare, to stand together or be settled costar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 402, p. 1909
to cough toser
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 486, p. 2619
to cover — an irregular participle that joins abierto, and the des- that really does reverse cubrir
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 444, p. 2241
to crash, to collide chocar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 527, p. 2873
to criticise criticar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 579, p. 3199

to cross — from cruz, Latin crux; English cross reached England by way of Irish and Norse, and crusade stands beside Spanish cruzada cruzar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 387, p. 1777
to cross, to go through atravesar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 670, p. 3767
to cry, to weep llorar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 704, p. 3981
to cure, to heal curar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 739, p. 4197
to cut — and on a road sign, to close; the verb behind an adjective you already own cortar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 439, p. 2189
to cut back — to lead a thing back, and a shower is its cousin reducir
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 462, p. 2425
to damage, to harm dañar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 504, p. 2731
to dance (bailar — infinitive) bailar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 419, p. 1989
to dare atreverse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 722, p. 4093
to deceive, to cheat engañar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 636, p. 3555
to decide — to cut a question off, and the verb every notice uses when it stops offering options decidir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 437, p. 2169
to declare, to state declarar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 515, p. 2799
to decrease, to go down disminuir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 608, p. 3381
to deduct — contar with the des- that really does reverse, and the o breaks to ue descontar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 474, p. 2541
to defeat derrotar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 569, p. 3137
to defend defender
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 569, p. 3137
to delay, to put back retrasar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 543, p. 2973
to demand, to claim (a right) reivindicar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 604, p. 3355
to deserve merecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 636, p. 3555

to destroy destruir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 529, p. 2887
to detain, to arrest; to stop detener
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 519, p. 2823
to detest, to loathe detestar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 715, p. 4049
to develop desarrollar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 572, p. 3155
to diagnose diagnosticar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 738, p. 4191
to die — Latin mori; English mortal and mortgage are the same root, and murder is a cousin by another road morir
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 384, p. 1753
to disagree, to differ discrepar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 578, p. 3193
to disappear desaparecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 495, p. 2675
to discuss, and to argue — one verb for both, from a Latin verb about shaking a thing apart discutir
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 466, p. 2461
to disembark, to go ashore; to unload desembarcar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 658, p. 3693
to dismiss, to fire; to see off despedir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 553, p. 3037
to do again volver a
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 562, p. 3093
to do for a living; to devote oneself dedicarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 593, p. 3287
to do or make — with the singular present forms hago, haces, and hace hacer
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 70, p. 281
to donate — the giving inside perdón, said plainly donar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 461, p. 2417
to doubt dudar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 719, p. 4073
to drag, to pull along arrastrar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 668, p. 3755
to draw dibujar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 498, p. 2693
to draw, to tie empatar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 756, p. 4303
to dream — Latin somniare, and the reason sleeplessness is called insomnia soñar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 381, p. 1731

to dress up, to disguise oneself disfrazarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 760, p. 4329
to drink (another -er verb — cementing the pattern) beber
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 36, p. 165
to drip, to leak gotear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 769, p. 4385
to drive conducir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 501, p. 2711
to drizzle lloviznar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 697, p. 3937
to dry secar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 485, p. 2613
to earn; to win ganar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 477, p. 2563
to eat — your first -er verb, and the family whose yo-form you already own comer
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 34, p. 157
to educate; to bring up educar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 597, p. 3311
to emigrate emigrar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 551, p. 3023
to end, to finish finalizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 542, p. 2967
to end up (doing) acabar por
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 562, p. 3093
to enjoy — to take the fruit of something, with a prefix that does not undo disfrutar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 440, p. 2199
to envy envidiar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 708, p. 4005
to erase — from borra, coarse wool, the pad that rubbed writing out; English borrow is no relation borrar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 388, p. 1785
to evacuate evacuar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 524, p. 2855
to evolve, to progress evolucionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 572, p. 3155
to expire caducar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 657, p. 3687
to explain — literally to unfold, and the verb that names what this whole chapter has been building explicar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 175, p. 627
to explode; to exploit explotar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 529, p. 2887

to explore explorar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 687, p. 3873
to express expresar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 604, p. 3355
to face, to confront afrontar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 609, p. 3387
to fail fracasar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 573, p. 3161
to fail an exam — Latin for to leave hanging, which is exactly what a resit does to your year suspender
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 429, p. 2089
to fail, to let somebody down — the deceiving inside falso fallar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 464, p. 2441
to faint desmayarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 740, p. 4203
to fall caer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 527, p. 2873
to fall asleep dormirse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 741, p. 4209
to fall ill, to get sick enfermarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 732, p. 4155
to fall in love enamorarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 488, p. 2631
to fasten (a belt, a button) abrocharse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 644, p. 3605
to favour; to suit favorecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 637, p. 3561
to fear temer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 706, p. 3993
to feed — from a Latin verb wider than feeding, which is why the same root is inside adult and alumnus alimentar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 467, p. 2471
to feel like, to fancy apetecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 499, p. 2699
to feel sick (in a vehicle), to get dizzy marearse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 655, p. 3673
to fight, to argue pelear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 510, p. 2767
to fight, to struggle luchar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 569, p. 3137
to fill llenar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 496, p. 2681
to fill in; to fill out — especially a form or document rellenar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 406, p. 1929

to finance, to fund financiar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 629, p. 3511
to find hallar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 531, p. 2899
to find — literally to come up against, and the o that breaks into ue exactly as mostrar's does encontrar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 470, p. 2501
to find out averiguar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 521, p. 2837
to find your way, to get your bearings orientarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 669, p. 3761
to fine multar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 623, p. 3473
to finish — from cabo, an end, from Latin caput, a head; English achieve is the same metaphor built again in French acabar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 382, p. 1737
to finish, to end terminar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 409, p. 1947
to fish; to catch pescar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 695, p. 3923
to fix, to sort out — putting a thing back to the straight edge it came off arreglar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 449, p. 2297
to flash with lightning relampaguear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 699, p. 3949
to flee, to run away huir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 518, p. 2817
to flirt coquetear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 746, p. 4241
to float flotar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 688, p. 3881
to flower, to bloom; to flourish florecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 692, p. 3905
to fly — Latin volare; a volley is a flight of arrows, and volatile is Latin for winged volar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 387, p. 1777
to follow or continue — from Vulgar Latin sequīre, built from Latin sequī with the ending of īre, to go seguir
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 401, p. 1901
to forbid, to ban prohibir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 500, p. 2705
to force, to oblige obligar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 622, p. 3467

to foresee, to expect prever
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 481, p. 2587
to forget — Latin oblitare, from oblivisci; English oblivion is the same word, and the trail stops there olvidar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 384, p. 1753
to free, to release liberar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 523, p. 2849
to freeze congelar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 777, p. 4435
to freeze helar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 700, p. 3955
to frighten, to scare asustar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 706, p. 3993
to fry freír
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 768, p. 4379
to gather, to assemble congregarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 560, p. 3081
to gaze at, to contemplate contemplar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 703, p. 3973
to generate, to create generar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 583, p. 3223
to get a degree, to graduate licenciarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 554, p. 3043
to get a puncture; to prick; to click pinchar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 645, p. 3611
to get a tan broncearse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 690, p. 3893
to get angry enfadarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 487, p. 2625
to get back, to recover recuperar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 481, p. 2587
to get better mejorarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 739, p. 4197
to get bored aburrirse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 713, p. 4037
to get dark; nightfall anochecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 703, p. 3973
to get divorced divorciarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 488, p. 2631
to get engaged; to commit oneself comprometerse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 547, p. 2999
to get injured lesionarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 755, p. 4297
to get into debt endeudarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 627, p. 3499

to get it wrong — two Latin pieces meaning "equal voice", and the verb a shop uses to admit a mistake equivocarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 437, p. 2169
to get lost — the reflexive equivocarse already grouped it with, and in a class it is the thread you lose, not the way perderse
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 471, p. 2511
to get married casarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 488, p. 2631
to get off (a train or bus), to step down apearse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 651, p. 3649
to get ready, to get dressed up arreglarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 494, p. 2669
to get stuck; to get jammed atascarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 643, p. 3599
to get, to obtain — getting as following a thing until you have it conseguir
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 169, p. 605
to get together; to join juntarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 560, p. 3081
to get up, to stand up — "to raise oneself", built from a participle exactly as sentarse was levantarse
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 166, p. 581
to get wet mojarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 702, p. 3967
to get worse, to worsen empeorar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 732, p. 4155
to give (as a present) regalar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 506, p. 2743
to give back — the verb every shop notice and every borrowed object needs, and the one this level asks for most devolver
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 431, p. 2111
to give birth dar a luz
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 544, p. 2981
to give up, to surrender rendirse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 639, p. 3573
to give way, to give in; to hand over ceder
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 634, p. 3543
to go along the edge of, to skirt bordear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 673, p. 3787
to go back, to back up retroceder
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 673, p. 3787
to go by, to pass (of time); to take place transcurrir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 541, p. 2961

to go down, to come down; to lower bajar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 494, p. 2669
to go for a walk, to stroll pasear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 674, p. 3793
to go in — Latin intrāre, from intrā, within; the short i dropped to e in words carried by mouth, while the prefix intra- kept its i, and English enter, entrance and interior are the same root entrar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 395, p. 1849
to go missing, to get lost (of things) extraviarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 652, p. 3655
to go on, to drag on prolongarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 541, p. 2961
to go round; to surround rodear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 673, p. 3787
to go, to come (to a place or to someone for help) acudir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 483, p. 2599
to go up — Latin subire, which was built on sub, meaning under; English sudden is the same sub- subir
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 384, p. 1753
to go with somebody — built on the one you share bread with acompañar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 446, p. 2263
to go — with the three singular present forms voy, vas, and va ir
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 49, p. 209
to gossip cotillear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 724, p. 4105
to graduate graduarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 554, p. 3043
to greet, to say hello saludar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 488, p. 2631
to grow (crops), to farm; to cultivate cultivar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 691, p. 3899
to grow — Latin crescere; a crescent is the growing moon, and a recruit is a fresh growth on an army crecer
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 386, p. 1769
to grow old, to age envejecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 554, p. 3043
to guarantee garantizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 614, p. 3417
to haggle, to bargain regatear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 676, p. 3805
to hail granizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 699, p. 3949

to hand in, to deliver — to give a thing over whole entregar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 458, p. 2393
to hang — Latin collocare, to place; English couch is the same verb, and the jump from placing to hanging happened only on the Spanish side colgar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 385, p. 1761
to hang out the washing — to stretch something, and the verb inside la tienda tender
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 455, p. 2361
to happen ocurrir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 495, p. 2675
to happen, to take place suceder
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 495, p. 2675
to harm, to damage perjudicar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 637, p. 3561
to harvest, to reap cosechar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 692, p. 3905
to hate odiar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 510, p. 2767
to have — a common verb with two visible changes tener
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 47, p. 193
to have a swim; to have a bath bañarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 690, p. 3893
to have dinner — one verb where English needs three words, and the meal a plan usually ends at cenar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 437, p. 2169
to have fun, to enjoy yourself divertirse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 487, p. 2625
to head (for), to make your way; to speak to dirigirse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 673, p. 3787
to hear about, to find out enterarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 574, p. 3167
to hear — the half of listening you do not choose, and a verb that sprouts a y oír
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 165, p. 573
to heat up, to warm up calentar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 494, p. 2669
to help — literally the same word as English "aid", arriving by a different road ayudar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 161, p. 561
to help, to come to the aid of socorrer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 525, p. 2861

to hide esconder
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 532, p. 2905
"to him, to her, to you" — a Latin case Spanish kept and English threw away le
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 93, p. 343
to hold up, to mug; to moor atracar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 518, p. 2817
to hug abrazar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 506, p. 2743
to hum tararear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 753, p. 4285
to hurt — the verb that makes the pain the subject and you the one it happens to doler
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 443, p. 2229
to imagine imaginar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 618, p. 3443
to include incluir
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 409, p. 1947
to increase, to rise aumentar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 608, p. 3381
to infect, to pass on contagiar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 733, p. 4161
to influence, to have an effect influir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 583, p. 3223
to inherit heredar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 497, p. 2687
to insist insistir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 493, p. 2661
to interest — the verb behind an adjective you own, running on the same machine as doler interesar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 443, p. 2229
to interrupt interrumpir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 480, p. 2581
to interview entrevistar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 514, p. 2793
to introduce; to present presentar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 502, p. 2717
to invest; to reverse invertir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 627, p. 3499
to investigate investigar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 521, p. 2837
to invite — the verb el invitado was named from, handed over now, and in Spanish it also means paying invitar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 474, p. 2541

to involve, to entail conllevar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 582, p. 3217
to iron planchar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 777, p. 4435
to jog, to trot trotar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 755, p. 4297
to joke bromear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 718, p. 4067
to judge, to try juzgar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 522, p. 2843
to jump — Latin saltare, and the somersault is a jump over the top saltar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 381, p. 1731
to justify justificar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 586, p. 3243
to keep (a promise); to turn (an age) cumplir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 492, p. 2655
to keep — Germanic wardon, to watch over; the w- became gu- in Spanish, which is why ward and guard are the same word twice guardar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 383, p. 1745
to keep, to maintain mantener
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 511, p. 2773
to kiss besar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 715, p. 4049
to knit, to weave tejer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 754, p. 4291
to know how — before an infinitive it names a skill you learned, where poder names a chance you happen to have saber
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 389, p. 1795
to land aterrizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 654, p. 3667
to laugh — a word that wears a prefix it never had, and an accent that marks a missing consonant reír
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 438, p. 2179
to launch, to start, to begin iniciar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 542, p. 2967
to leaf through, to flick through hojear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 762, p. 4341
to learn — Latin apprehendere, to seize, worn down through apprēndere; the bookish twin aprehender kept the -he- and kept the seizing aprender
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 396, p. 1859

to leave — Latin laxare, to loosen, through an older Spanish lejar; the d- is borrowed from dar dejar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 383, p. 1745
to leave or go out — with the singular present forms salgo, sales, and sale salir
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 72, p. 289
to leave, to go away marcharse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 561, p. 3087
to lend — the other half of devolver, and the verb that decides which way the object is moving prestar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 436, p. 2159
to let in, to own up to — the mittere you already have in meter admitir
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 458, p. 2393
to let know — the verb el aviso was named from, handed over now, and it shows rather than orders avisar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 470, p. 2501
to let off steam, to pour one's heart out desahogarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 717, p. 4061
to lie down tumbarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 690, p. 3893
to lie, to tell lies mentir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 636, p. 3555
to limit limitar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 638, p. 3567
to live together convivir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 750, p. 4265
to live — your first -ir verb, and a family that asks you to learn nothing new vivir
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 35, p. 163
to locate, to find; to reach localizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 531, p. 2899
to long for, to yearn for añorar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 709, p. 4011
to look after oneself cuidarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 732, p. 4155
to look after, to take care of cuidar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 497, p. 2687
to look at — the verb behind the mira you already use, and it began as wonder mirar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 446, p. 2263
to look for — of unknown origin; English busker is the one relative anybody can point to buscar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 383, p. 1745

to lose — Latin perdere, to destroy or lose, inherited whole; per- is clear but the second element is disputed, either dare, to give, or a separate element meaning to put, and English perdition is the clean cognate perder
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 395, p. 1849
to lose weight adelgazar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 503, p. 2725
to love amar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 715, p. 4049
to maintain, to claim; to hold up sostener
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 576, p. 3181
to make a mistake — with the verb Spanish insists on cometer un error
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 275, p. 901
to make an effort, to try hard esforzarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 598, p. 3317
to make difficult, to hinder dificultar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 621, p. 3461
to make easier; to provide facilitar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 621, p. 3461
to make fun of burlarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 718, p. 4067
to make the most of, to take advantage of aprovechar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 484, p. 2605
to make up, to be reconciled reconciliarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 725, p. 4111
to make up your mind — decidir with the -se, and a cut underneath decidirse
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 462, p. 2425
to manage, to achieve lograr
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 492, p. 2655
to manage, to handle gestionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 594, p. 3293
to marry (someone to someone) casar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 549, p. 3011
to matter — the verb behind importante, and it works like gustar importar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 463, p. 2433
to mature, to ripen madurar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 731, p. 4149
to meditate; to ponder meditar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 767, p. 4371

to meet, to be acquainted with — a verb built out of the moment knowing begins conocer
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 171, p. 611
to memorize, to learn by heart memorizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 764, p. 4353
to mention mencionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 502, p. 2717
to miss (someone); to find strange extrañar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 709, p. 4011
to mix — spoken Latin misculare, from miscere; English meddle and medley are its true siblings, and a medley was once a fight mezclar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 385, p. 1761
to motivate motivar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 594, p. 3293
to move away, to go off alejarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 562, p. 3093
to move house — a verb about changing, with the change aimed back at yourself mudarse
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 448, p. 2285
to move something across — built from a prefix and a participle that belongs to a different verb trasladar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 439, p. 2189
to move something — the verb your phone is named after mover
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 446, p. 2263
to move, to touch (emotionally) conmover
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 711, p. 4023
to narrate, to tell narrar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 563, p. 3099
to need — Medieval Latin necessitō, borrowed late and attested in Spanish by the seventeenth century; inside necesse the ne- is secure and the rest has resisted definitive analysis, whatever the confident dictionaries print necesitar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 395, p. 1849
to negotiate negociar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 634, p. 3543
to note down — Latin nota on a verb, and the quieter twin of apuntar anotar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 465, p. 2449
to note down, to put your name on a list — a verb built on the point of something apuntar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 451, p. 2319
to notice, to realise percatarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 517, p. 2811

to observe, to watch observar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 517, p. 2811
to obtain, to get obtener
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 639, p. 3573
to occur, to take place (of an event) producirse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 512, p. 2781
to offend ofender
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 727, p. 4123
to offer — to carry something toward somebody, and the verb a shop reaches for when it cannot give you what you asked ofrecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 436, p. 2159
to open — a regular -ir verb with one irregular part, the participle abierto abrir
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 166, p. 581
to open, to inaugurate inaugurar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 558, p. 3067
to operate (on) operar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 739, p. 4197
to oppose, to be against oponerse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 578, p. 3193
to order in, to put somebody in charge — the cart again, with a prefix encargar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 457, p. 2385
to organise — to fit the working parts together, from a Greek tool organizar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 463, p. 2433
to overcome, to get over; to beat superar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 572, p. 3155
to pack up, to wrap up empaquetar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 668, p. 3755
to paint — and a Latin verb that once meant to embroider pintar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 455, p. 2361
to park aparcar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 489, p. 2637
to pass an exam — and the surprise is who does the approving, because the Latin has the exam approving you aprobar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 429, p. 2089
to pass away fallecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 497, p. 2687
to pass on — and why the language turns away pasar a mejor vida
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 274, p. 893
to pass, to bring closer — the same verb as acercarse with the -se taken off acercar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 449, p. 2297

to pay in, to deposit; to be admitted ingresar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 632, p. 3531
to pay — Latin pacare, to pacify, from pax, peace; paying somebody was settling with them pagar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 382, p. 1737
to pay; to credit abonar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 632, p. 3531
to pedal pedalear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 649, p. 3637
to peel pelar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 768, p. 4379
to penalise, to sanction sancionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 623, p. 3473
to perfect, to polish perfeccionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 609, p. 3387
to permit or allow — from Latin permittere, to let through permitir
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 405, p. 1925
to persevere, to keep at it perseverar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 609, p. 3387
to persuade persuadir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 634, p. 3543
to photograph fotografiar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 763, p. 4347
to plan planear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 509, p. 2761
to plan planificar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 615, p. 3423
to plant — Latin plantare, from planta, which meant both a cutting and the sole of the foot plantar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 444, p. 2241
to play (a role); to interpret interpretar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 760, p. 4329
to play — from Latin's word for joking, and the only verb in the language that breaks u to ue jugar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 170, p. 607
to please — the verb English calls "to like", built the other way round gustar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 163, p. 567
to plug in enchufar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 777, p. 4435
to point to, to point out; to mark señalar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 669, p. 3761

to postpone posponer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 616, p. 3431
to postpone, to put off aplazar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 543, p. 2973
to practise practicar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 476, p. 2557
to predict predecir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 619, p. 3449
to prefer — Latin praeferre, to carry in front; ferre left Spanish no inherited verb at all, so every -ferir word came off the page preferir
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 396, p. 1859
to prepare preparar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 409, p. 1947
to pretend, to fake fingir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 725, p. 4111
to prevent, to head off; to warn prevenir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 614, p. 3417
to print — the verb el impreso was the participle of, handed back with its own lesson imprimir
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 469, p. 2491
to process, to deal with (paperwork) tramitar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 624, p. 3481
to produce — the second -ducir verb, and it conjugates exactly like the one you already have producir
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 467, p. 2471
to promise prometer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 480, p. 2581
to propose, to suggest proponer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 585, p. 3237
to protect proteger
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 504, p. 2731
to protest; to complain protestar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 604, p. 3355
to publish publicar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 513, p. 2787
to pull someone's leg (lit. to take the hair) tomar el pelo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 272, p. 877
to punish castigar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 623, p. 3473
to push — probably late Latin impulsare, though both dictionaries hedge; English push is a cousin, not the same word empujar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 388, p. 1785

to put in — the plainest verb of putting, and the mittere inside el permiso meter
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 455, p. 2361
to put or place — with the singular present forms pongo, pones, and pone poner
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 71, p. 287
to put, to place colocar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 496, p. 2681
to put up with, to bear; to hold aguantar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 503, p. 2725
to question, to call into doubt cuestionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 635, p. 3549
to raise, to bring up; to pose plantear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 620, p. 3455
to reach, to catch up with alcanzar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 573, p. 3161
to read — from a Latin verb meaning "to gather, to pick out" leer
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 155, p. 543
to receive, to get recibir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 574, p. 3167
to recommend — aconsejar's near twin, an e that breaks to ie like pensar's, and a root about entrusting recomendar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 473, p. 2533
to record; to engrave grabar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 761, p. 4335
to recycle reciclar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 504, p. 2731
to refuel, to fill up repostar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 646, p. 3617
to refund, to pay back reembolsar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 663, p. 3723
to refute, to deny publicly desmentir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 516, p. 2805
to regret — a verb that looks like it contains sentir, behaves like sentir, and is not related to it arrepentirse
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 443, p. 2229
to regret, to be sorry about lamentar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 716, p. 4055
to rehearse, to practise ensayar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 505, p. 2737
to relate, to recount relatar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 563, p. 3099

to relax relajarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 487, p. 2625
to relieve, to ease aliviar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 740, p. 4203
to relive; to revive revivir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 764, p. 4353
to remain, to stay permanecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 543, p. 2973
to remember, to remind — to pass a thing back through the heart recordar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 464, p. 2441
to renew renovar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 657, p. 3687
to rent, to hire; to rent out alquilar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 667, p. 3749
to repair — Latin reparāre, re- plus parāre, to make ready; whether it came down by mouth or off the page cannot be settled, and the reason is the lesson reparar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 396, p. 1859
to repeat — to seek again, from the same petere that sits under el pedido repetir
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 445, p. 2253
to replace, to stand in for sustituir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 479, p. 2575
to report; to denounce denunciar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 625, p. 3487
to require, to call for requerir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 613, p. 3411
to rescue rescatar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 526, p. 2867
to reserve, to book reservar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 409, p. 1947
to reside, to live residir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 684, p. 3855
to resign, to give up renunciar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 553, p. 3037
to respect respetar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 500, p. 2705
to rest — named in Spanish as the undoing of tiredness, not as a state descansar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 438, p. 2179
to restart, to reboot reiniciar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 777, p. 4435
to resume, to start again reanudar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 543, p. 2973

to retire — the verb behind a word you were given, and it names a shout of joy jubilarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 445, p. 2253
to return — Latin volvere, to roll, on an old root meaning to turn; the stressed o breaks into ue in vuelvo, Old Spanish wrote bolver, and English revolve, involve and volume are the borrowed cousins volver
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 395, p. 1849
to reveal; to develop (a photo) revelar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 516, p. 2805
to ride; to set up montar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 498, p. 2693
to risk arriesgar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 614, p. 3417
to row remar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 659, p. 3699
to ruin, to break — and the adjective on the sign when the machine will not work estropear / estropeado
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 448, p. 2285
to rule out, to discard descartar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 481, p. 2587
to run — a plain -er verb sitting on one of the largest roots English ever borrowed correr
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 165, p. 573
to run over, to knock down atropellar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 527, p. 2873
to run, to manage; to direct dirigir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 594, p. 3293
to sail; to browse (the internet) navegar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 658, p. 3693
to save (a life) salvar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 526, p. 2867
to save (money or time) ahorrar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 484, p. 2605
to say goodbye despedirse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 488, p. 2631
to say or tell — with the singular present forms digo, dices, and dice decir
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 70, p. 281
to schedule, to plan; to program programar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 615, p. 3423
to score; to mark; to dial marcar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 756, p. 4303

to search; to register, to record registrar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 656, p. 3681
to see — veo, ves, ve ver
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 108, p. 389
to seem parecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 511, p. 2773
to select, to choose seleccionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 590, p. 3267
to sell — Latin vendere, squeezed out of venum dare, to give for sale; there is a give hidden inside the word for selling vender
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 386, p. 1769
to send — Latin inviare, to put on the road, from via; not related to envy enviar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 384, p. 1753
to sentence, to condemn condenar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 522, p. 2843
to separate, to split up separarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 550, p. 3017
to serve (a customer); to attend to; to pay attention atender
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 681, p. 3837
to serve — Latin servire, from servus, a slave; dessert is the clearing of the table, and sergeant is servant said a second time servir
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 386, p. 1769
to set on fire incendiar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 524, p. 2855
to set out to, to resolve proponerse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 615, p. 3423
to set sail, to leave port zarpar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 561, p. 3087
to settle in, to move in instalarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 551, p. 3023
to settle, to establish oneself establecerse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 551, p. 3023
to sew coser
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 754, p. 4291
to share compartir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 499, p. 2699
to shave afeitarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 486, p. 2619
to shorten; to cut short acortar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 673, p. 3787
to shout — Latin quiritare, to cry out; English cry is the same word, and only English moved it from shouting to weeping gritar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 388, p. 1785

to show off, to boast presumir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 726, p. 4117
to show — the verb on the sign, with a monster somewhere in its family mostrar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 451, p. 2319
to show, to point out, to indicate indicar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 670, p. 3767
to show, to prove demostrar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 586, p. 3243
to sign — literally to make firm, which is what a signature was for firmar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 441, p. 2209
to sign up, to enrol inscribirse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 479, p. 2575
to sign up, to put one's name down apuntarse
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 414, p. 1971
to sit down — literally "to seat oneself", the reflexive that lands the action back on you sentarse
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 166, p. 581
to skate; to skid patinar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 758, p. 4315
to ski esquiar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 758, p. 4315
to skid derrapar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 643, p. 3599
to sleep — and the other half of the boot, where a stressed o breaks to ue dormir
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 165, p. 573
to slip resbalar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 772, p. 4403
to smell oler
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 771, p. 4397
to sneeze estornudar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 733, p. 4161
to snow nevar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 700, p. 3955
to solve, to sort out resolver
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 481, p. 2587
to solve, to sort out solucionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 620, p. 3455
to sow sembrar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 692, p. 3905
to speak / to talk — at root, "to tell stories" hablar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 16, p. 111

to speed up, to accelerate acelerar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 643, p. 3599
to spend — Latin vastare, to lay waste; devastate is the clean cousin, and the w in English waste is a Germanic fingerprint gastar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 386, p. 1769
to spend the summer (on holiday) veranear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 640, p. 3581
to split into instalments, to divide fraccionar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 632, p. 3531
to spoil, to pamper mimar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 750, p. 4265
to spread, to broadcast difundir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 514, p. 2793
to stamp; to seal sellar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 656, p. 3681
to start (an engine); to pull out, to tear out arrancar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 643, p. 3599
to start (doing), to set about ponerse a
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 562, p. 3093
to state, to say that something is so afirmar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 480, p. 2581
to stay as a guest hospedarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 660, p. 3705
to stay (at a hotel or a house), to lodge alojarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 660, p. 3705
to stay — Latin quietare, to make still, from quies, rest; English quiet, quit and coy are the same root quedar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 382, p. 1737
to stay, to remain quedarse
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 416, p. 1979
to steal, to rob robar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 518, p. 2817
to stop parar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 641, p. 3587
to stop raining, to clear up escampar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 697, p. 3937
to stop, to prevent impedir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 621, p. 3461
to stretch estirarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 767, p. 4371
to stroke, to caress acariciar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 746, p. 4241

to study (a third -ar verb — the pattern is automatic now) estudiar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 21, p. 125
to succeed, to triumph triunfar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 595, p. 3299
to suffer from padecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 738, p. 4191
to suffer; to undergo sufrir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 573, p. 3161
to suggest sugerir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 493, p. 2661
to suit, to be advisable; to agree convenir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 637, p. 3561
to support; to lean apoyar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 484, p. 2605
to surprise sorprender
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 510, p. 2767
to survive sobrevivir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 526, p. 2867
to suspect sospechar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 521, p. 2837
to sweat sudar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 701, p. 3961
to sweep barrer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 485, p. 2613
to swim nadar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 417, p. 1983
to switch on; to light encender
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 494, p. 2669
to take (and, across Latin America, to drink) — an everyday word with no settled origin tomar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 159, p. 555
to take away, to remove quitar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 496, p. 2681
to take in, to foster; to welcome acoger
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 748, p. 4253
to take off; to unstick despegar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 654, p. 3667
to take on; to accept asumir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 639, p. 3573
to take out — origin unsettled; not from saco meaning bag, though a Latin saccus meaning filter may be behind both sacar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 383, p. 1745
to take part, to participate participar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 606, p. 3367

to take place tener lugar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 512, p. 2781
to take time — the verb the delay chapter promised and did not give you tardar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 437, p. 2169
to teach, and to show — to put a sign into somebody, which is one act in Spanish enseñar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 445, p. 2253
to tell a story — and also to count, because in Spanish, as once in English, a story is something you reckon up contar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 167, p. 591
to testify testificar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 523, p. 2849
to thank for, to be grateful for agradecer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 484, p. 2605
to the — one of only two places where Spanish forces two words into one, and it does it because the two vowels refuse to sit next to each other al
explicit focus: grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 230, p. 749
to think — at root "to weigh", and a stem-changer that breaks e→ie pensar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 153, p. 535
to think, to have an opinion opinar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 493, p. 2661
to throw away, and on a door, to pull — one verb pointing two opposite ways tirar
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 439, p. 2189
to throw — late Latin lanceare, to wield a lance; English launch is the same verb, and the boat called a launch is not lanzar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 388, p. 1785
to thunder tronar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 699, p. 3949
to toast, to drink to; to offer brindar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 549, p. 3011
to tolerate, to put up with tolerar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 610, p. 3393
to top up; to recharge recargar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 773, p. 4409
to touch — Romance toccare, which meant to knock or strike; English touch is the same word, and a toccata shows off the player's touch tocar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 385, p. 1761
to tow remolcar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 648, p. 3631

to transform transformar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 572, p. 3155
to translate traducir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 502, p. 2717
to trap, to catch atrapar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 526, p. 2867
to travel around, to go all over; to cover (a distance) recorrer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 674, p. 3793
to treat; to be about tratar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 511, p. 2773
to trust fiarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 510, p. 2767
to try intentar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 492, p. 2655
to turn (a corner); to fold; to dub doblar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 670, p. 3767
to turn down — the opposite of aceptar, and its cousin rechazar
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 461, p. 2417
to turn — Latin gyrare, from Greek gyros, a circle; a late arrival taken from books rather than inherited from speech girar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 387, p. 1777
to turn off or extinguish — from Latin pacare, to calm or pacify apagar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 404, p. 1919
to turn off, to leave the road; to go off course desviarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 670, p. 3767
to turn out, to prove to be resultar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 573, p. 3161
to twist something of your own — the injury verb, and a stem that breaks under stress torcerse
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 438, p. 2179
to understand comprender
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 476, p. 2557
to understand — literally "to stretch toward"; the second e→ie stem-changer entender
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 154, p. 539
to undo; to unpack deshacer
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 668, p. 3755
to update actualizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 776, p. 4429
to use utilizar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 484, p. 2605

to use — a reconstructed spoken-Latin usare built on uti; English use is the same word, and usury, utensil and abuse are built on it usar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 385, p. 1761
to usually do soler
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 511, p. 2773
to validate (a ticket) validar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 650, p. 3643
to value, to appreciate valorar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 721, p. 4087
to visit visitar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 678, p. 3817
to vomit, to be sick vomitar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 740, p. 4203
to vote votar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 507, p. 3331
to vouch for, to guarantee; to back avalar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 635, p. 3549
to wait — and to hope, and to expect, all in one verb esperar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 174, p. 621
to wake up despertarse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 494, p. 2669
to walk — built on a Celtic word for a path, beside andar, whose own past is unsettled caminar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 165, p. 573
to wander the streets callejear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 674, p. 3793
to want — with the singular present forms quiero, quieres, and quiere querer
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 69, p. 273
to warn; to notice advertir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 585, p. 3237
to wash — Latin lavare, which English kept in lavatory, launder and lavish lavar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 381, p. 1731
to wash up; to mop fregar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 485, p. 2613
to waste, to squander derrochar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 627, p. 3499
to watch, to keep an eye on vigilar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 481, p. 2587
to water (plants) regar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 692, p. 3905

to wink guiñar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 718, p. 4067
to wish, to want desear
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 509, p. 2761
to withdraw, to take out; to remove retirar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 628, p. 3505
to witness, to be present at presenciar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 517, p. 2811
to work (a second -ar verb — same pattern) trabajar
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 20, p. 121
to work, said of a machine — built on función, Latin fūnctiō from fungī, to discharge a duty; the untouched Latin cluster shows it came off the page funcionar
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 396, p. 1859
to worry preocuparse
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 487, p. 2625
to wound, to injure; to hurt herir
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 525, p. 2861
to wrap envolver
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 506, p. 2743
to write — from a Latin verb meaning "to scratch", and the reason Spanish puts an e- in front escribir
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 156, p. 547
to yawn bostezar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 761, p. 4335
to yearn for, to long for anhelar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 765, p. 4359
today — a whole Latin phrase worn down to three letters, and the tense it prefers hoy
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 252, p. 793 Todo cambió
chapter topic; Chapter 572, p. 3155
together, next to — one short word doing two jobs, and the preposition that decides which junto
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 433, p. 2131
Tomar — Taking, and a Word With No Past
chapter topic; Chapter 159, p. 555
too much, too — the top of the degree scale bastante taught, and the member that was missing from it demasiado
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 471, p. 2511
tourism; a private car (Spain, on forms) el turismo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 676, p. 3805
tourist (as an adjective); touristy turístico
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 676, p. 3805

Trabajar — Work, and the Torture Device Behind It
chapter topic; Chapter 20, p. 121
tracking, follow-up — the -miento ending on a verb you have had for chapters el seguimiento
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 452, p. 2331
Traer — Bringing, and Latin for Dragging
chapter topic; Chapter 168, p. 601
train — borrowed from French train, a thing drawn along, from traîner to drag; keep it sharply apart from tres, three el tren
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 400, p. 1893
travel sickness; dizziness el mareo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 655, p. 3673
Travelling — Asking, Boarding, Staying, and When It Goes Wrong
chapter topic; Chapter 268, p. 849
tree — Latin arbor, with one of its two r sounds slid away to l el árbol
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 278, p. 923
triple, three times as much — Latin triplus, three plus the -plus that means fold; English triple, treble and triplicate are all three folds el triple
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 351, p. 1469
trouble, bother — Latin molestia from moles, a heavy mass; English molecule is the same mass made small la molestia
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 320, p. 1247
trousers — French pantalon, from Pantalone, the Venetian comic stock character and his long tight legwear; English pantaloons, clipped to pants, is the very same word el pantalón
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 360, p. 1541
True, False, and Not Even
chapter topic; Chapter 324, p. 1279
true — Latin certus, sifted: what is left after you separate it out cierto
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 284, p. 971
Turismo
chapter topic; Chapter 676, p. 3805
tuve — let the strong stem carry the stress
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 105, p. 375
tuviera
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 207, p. 699
Tuviera — the Hard Stems, Collected Free
chapter topic; Chapter 207, p. 699
tuvieron
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 202, p. 689

Tuvieron — the Strong Stems, Made Plural
chapter topic; Chapter 202, p. 689
twenty — the ceiling of the teens, and a word that was worn but never fused veinte
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 149, p. 515
two of the three words Spanish uses to one person — and the one English quietly retired tú / usted
Chapter 5, p. 35
Two Words for How Something Looks
chapter topic; Chapter 399, p. 1889
Two Words From Outside, and Two Nobody Can Place
chapter topic; Chapter 383, p. 1745

U

ugly — Latin foedus, foul; a different Latin foedus meaning treaty gave English federal, and the two never had anything to do with each other feo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 380, p. 1723
un — "a," and the number hiding in it
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 3, p. 25
Un and Una — the Other Article
chapter topic; Chapter 3, p. 25
Un bebé en camino
chapter topic; Chapter 544, p. 2981
Un cumpleaños
chapter topic; Chapter 506, p. 2743
Un día de playa
chapter topic; Chapter 690, p. 3893
Un estudio
chapter topic; Chapter 599, p. 3323
Un gran descubrimiento
chapter topic; Chapter 571, p. 3149
Un homenaje
chapter topic; Chapter 558, p. 3067
Un misterio
chapter topic; Chapter 532, p. 2905
Un paraguas azul
chapter topic; Chapter 470, p. 2501
Un piso de vacaciones
chapter topic; Chapter 667, p. 3749
Un robo en el barrio
chapter topic; Chapter 518, p. 2817

Un vuelo movido
chapter topic; Chapter 655, p. 3673
Una aventura
chapter topic; Chapter 566, p. 3117
Una avería
chapter topic; Chapter 645, p. 3611
Una carta del colegio
chapter topic; Chapter 466, p. 2461
Una catástrofe
chapter topic; Chapter 528, p. 2881
Una gotera en casa
chapter topic; Chapter 769, p. 4385
Una queja
chapter topic; Chapter 665, p. 3737
una — the feminine one
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 3, p. 25
Una vida
chapter topic; Chapter 497, p. 2687
Una vida nueva
chapter topic; Chapter 551, p. 3023
underneath; below debajo
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 407, p. 1937
unexpected inesperado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 533, p. 2911
unfair injusto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 603, p. 3349
unfaithful infiel
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 745, p. 4235
unforgettable inolvidable
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 764, p. 4353
unhurt, unharmed ileso
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 527, p. 2873
university — Latin ūniversitās, a corporation or guild of people, from ūniversus, turned into one; the first Spanish use, in 1490, means totality, and the school sense arrives in 1505 la universidad
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 394, p. 1839
unless a menos que
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 611, p. 3399
Uno... Otro — Splitting a Pair
chapter topic; Chapter 263, p. 823
uno... otro — splitting a pair
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 263, p. 823
Unos, Unas — The Plural of One
chapter topic; Chapter 253, p. 797

unos · unas — the plural of "one"
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 253, p. 797
unpleasant, disagreeable — simpático with the Greek anti- fastened on the front; the two words are a matched pair and neither means what its English lookalike means antipático
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 423, p. 2015
until then hasta entonces
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 537, p. 2937
until / up to hasta
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 12, p. 89
Until When
chapter topic; Chapter 13, p. 95
up, above, upstairs — Latin ripa, a riverbank; English river, riparian and arrive all come off the same bank arriba
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 341, p. 1387
urban, city (as an adjective) urbano
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 684, p. 3855
urgency — a pressing, and in the plural the sign over the hospital door la urgencia
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 447, p. 2275
"us" — the object pronoun that speaks for more than one person nos
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 88, p. 331
usual, regular — what you hold on to, from the haber you already have habitual
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 459, p. 2401

V

valid válido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 657, p. 3687
Valientes y cobardes
chapter topic; Chapter 722, p. 4093
vamos — from a verb that is not ir
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 68, p. 269
van — and the four are done
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 68, p. 269
vanity la vanidad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 726, p. 4117
vegetables or greens — from verde, with a marked secondary sense outside this food use la verdura
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 403, p. 1915

veía — keep the extra e you already met
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 109, p. 391
Venir — Coming
chapter topic; Chapter 73, p. 291
Veo a María — The Little A That Guards People
chapter topic; Chapter 239, p. 767
veo a María — the little a that guards people
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 239, p. 767
Ver — Seeing
chapter topic; Chapter 108, p. 389
Verbs That Break in the Middle — the Stem Changers
chapter topic; Chapter 69, p. 273
very — not a new word at all, but mucho with its ending bitten off, and the shape tells you what is coming next muy
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 226, p. 739
Vi, Di — The Shortest Pasts
chapter topic; Chapter 255, p. 801
vi — the shortest past in the language
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 255, p. 801
victory, win la victoria
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 757, p. 4309
visible — the -able ending you know, spelled the other way, and pointing the other way too visible
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 466, p. 2461
viva · vivas · viva — -ir joins -er
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 127, p. 439
vivía — reuse the complete -er row
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 107, p. 385
vivimos — where the two families part
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 43, p. 183
Vivir juntos
chapter topic; Chapter 500, p. 2705
Vivir — the Family That Costs Nothing
chapter topic; Chapter 35, p. 163
viviré — one future row for three verb families
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 122, p. 423
viviría — the regular conditional closes its small frame
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar; Chapter 123, p. 427
volcano — through Portuguese volcão from Latin Vulcanus, the Roman god of fire and the forge el volcán
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 378, p. 1707
volleyball el voleibol
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 758, p. 4315
Volver a empezar
chapter topic; Chapter 562, p. 3093

vuestra merced* → usted — respect compressed into one word
etymology topic; explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 5, p. 35
Vuestro — The Last Possessive
chapter topic; Chapter 254, p. 799
vuestro — the last possessive
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 254, p. 799

W

waiter — Greek kamára, a vault, into Latin camera and Vulgar Latin camara, giving Spanish cámara, a room; whether camarero was built inside Spanish or borrowed from Medieval Latin camarārius cannot be told apart el camarero
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 391, p. 1809
Waiting, Answering, Buying
chapter topic; Chapter 174, p. 621
Wanting, Not Asserting
chapter topic; Chapter 126, p. 437
wardrobe, cupboard — Latin armārium from arma, which meant tools and gear rather than weapons; arms, army, armour and alarm are cousins, and French armoire is the very same room-word el armario
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 366, p. 1601
water — a word that barely changed from Latin, and takes el without ever stopping being feminine el agua
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 143, p. 491
Water, Wine, and Bread
chapter topic; Chapter 143, p. 491
watercolour la acuarela
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 751, p. 4271
weak — Latin debilis; English debilitate and debility are the same word, and the written accent is there because the word ends in -l débil
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 327, p. 1303
web page — Latin pagina, a column of writing fastened to a frame, plus English web; the oldest word for a written surface carrying the newest one la página web
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 422, p. 2009
week — Latin septimana, the set of seven; the same septem gives English September and, down the Germanic road, seven la semana
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 322, p. 1263

weekly semanal
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 540, p. 2955
weight — Latin pensum, a thing weighed out, from pendere to weigh and to hang; pension, spend, expensive, pendant and ponder are all still weighing something el peso
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 359, p. 1533
welcome — bien plus venido, well come, two pieces you already own bienvenido
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 282, p. 955
well-being el bienestar
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 743, p. 4221
well / good / fine bien
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 1, p. 1
well known; an acquaintance conocido
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 508, p. 2755
well, then, since — Latin post, after; the same post is inside despues, and English keeps it raw in post-, posterior and postpone pues
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 329, p. 1319
west — Germanic westaz through Old French ouest; the same word as English west, and behind it the old root for evening that also gives vespers el oeste
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 347, p. 1437
wet — from mojar, Vulgar Latin molliare, to soften, from mollis, soft; English mollify and emollient come from the same mollis mojado
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 379, p. 1715
what? (a new question word for verbs you already know) qué
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 36, p. 165
What a Phrase Carries — Authority, a Story, a Silence, a Sense of Charm
chapter topic; Chapter 274, p. 893
what does it mean — significar is Latin significare, to make a sign ¿qué significa?
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 303, p. 1123
what estar is for — a current state or location — and the only two forms you need this chapter estás / está
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 8, p. 63
What Is Eaten — Wheat, Rice, Onion, Tomato, Honey
chapter topic; Chapter 290, p. 1019
What Is On The Table
chapter topic; Chapter 361, p. 1551
What It Weighs, And How Much There Is
chapter topic; Chapter 359, p. 1533

what's your name? (formal) ¿cómo se llama usted?
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 6, p. 43
What the Body Feels — Chest, Strength, Rest, Fear, Laughter
chapter topic; Chapter 315, p. 1209
What the Body Says — Thirst, Sleep, Skin, Blood, Remedy
chapter topic; Chapter 300, p. 1099
What You Put On
chapter topic; Chapter 360, p. 1541
When Bien Is Not True — Calm, Ill, Content, Busy, Sad
chapter topic; Chapter 304, p. 1129
"when" — the word that puts a scene and an event in one sentence, so the two pasts can be seen doing different jobs cuando
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 112, p. 401
When the Words Run Out — Help, a Moment, Again, I Don't Know, What Does It Mean
chapter topic; Chapter 303, p. 1123
When You Don't Understand
chapter topic; Chapter 15, p. 107
where? dónde
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 36, p. 165
Where does ¿ begin? — bracket the spoken span
script and writing topic; explicit focus: script; Chapter 11, p. 81
Where -er and -ir Part Company
chapter topic; Chapter 43, p. 183
where is it? ¿dónde está?
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 268, p. 849
Where It Hurts — Eye, Mouth, Throat, Pain, Fever
chapter topic; Chapter 286, p. 987
Where The Town Goes When The Work Stops
chapter topic; Chapter 354, p. 1493
whereas, by contrast en cambio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 588, p. 3255
which, as, of what kind — Latin qualis, of what kind; English quality is qualitas, the what-kind-ness of a thing cual
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 329, p. 1319
Which One: By Colour, Size And Shape
chapter topic; Chapter 358, p. 1525
Which One Is the Verb Asking For?
chapter topic; Chapter 95, p. 347
Which one is the verb asking for?
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 95, p. 347
which — pointing back at a whole clause lo cual
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 273, p. 885
Which Way, And What Is Around You
chapter topic; Chapter 347, p. 1437

Which Way Is the Arrow Pointing?
chapter topic; Chapter 178, p. 639
Which way is the arrow pointing?
grammar topic; explicit focus: grammar, usage and culture; Chapter 178, p. 639
while — Latin dum interim, "for the time between"; the inter in it is English interim, interval and international mientras
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 323, p. 1271
who? — one tiny people-question before the writing marks are explained quién
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 5, p. 35
Who Someone Is — Neighbour, Friend, Teacher, Nurse, Cook
chapter topic; Chapter 285, p. 979
who — the asking word Spanish keeps for people, and the reason qué has never had to do that job quién
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 232, p. 753
whole, entire — Latin integer, untouched, from in not plus tangere to touch; English integer, integrity and intact are the same untouched thing entero
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 352, p. 1477
Why se? — and why it is not the se you know
etymology topic; explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 100, p. 357
Why Se? — Gelo, and a Collision
chapter topic; Chapter 100, p. 357
Wi-Fi — a brand name coined to echo Hi-Fi, with Wireless Fidelity attached later as marketing el wifi
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 404, p. 1919
Wi-Fi, Mobile Phones and Films
chapter topic; Chapter 404, p. 1919
wide — Latin amplus, spacious; ample, amplify and amplitude are the borrowed branch, and Spanish amplio is the same adjective taken fresh from the page ancho
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 365, p. 1591
will, willpower la voluntad
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 767, p. 4371
willing, ready dispuesto
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 635, p. 3549
wind — Latin ventus, and the English word that is its cousin rather than its borrowing el viento
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 278, p. 923
window — a wind-hole, built on the same Latin ventus as viento la ventana
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 279, p. 931

wine — one Latin root that reached English by three separate roads, plus one English built at home el vino
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 143, p. 491
wisdom la sabiduría
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 728, p. 4131
wise; the wise person sabio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 728, p. 4131
wit, ingenuity el ingenio
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 728, p. 4131
with me, with you — two words carrying the same preposition twice, because the first one stopped being audible conmigo · contigo
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 247, p. 783
wolf — Latin lupus, which is irregular for the ancient word it should be and probably reached Rome from a neighbouring Italian dialect; English wolf is the inherited cousin el lobo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 368, p. 1621
woman, and also wife — Latin mulier, whose own origin is unexplained; English took almost nothing from it beyond the rare muliebrity, while Latin homo gave human, homage and homicide la mujer
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 364, p. 1581
wood — Latin's word for matter, which meant timber first, and reached Spanish twice la madera
explicit focus: etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 444, p. 2241
work, a job — a reconstructed Vulgar Latin tripaliāre, to torture, on Late Latin tripalium, an instrument of torture attested in a church canon of 578; English travail is the same word el trabajo
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 394, p. 1839
Working From Sources — Credit It, Restate It, Hold Both, Compress
chapter topic; Chapter 277, p. 915
worried preocupado
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 719, p. 4073
worry, concern la preocupación
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 719, p. 4073
Writing — Four Lines About You
chapter topic; Chapter 338, p. 1375
Writing — Four Lines That Hold Together
chapter topic; Chapter 418, p. 1987
Writing — With A Clock
chapter topic; Chapter 339, p. 1377
Writing — Your Own Line
chapter topic; Chapter 337, p. 1373

Y

yeah, right sí, claro
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 272, p. 877
yearly, annual anual
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 540, p. 2955
yellow — from "a little bitter," not from any Latin word for yellow at all amarillo
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 151, p. 525
yes sí
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 7, p. 55
yesterday ayer
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 103, p. 363
"you" across a large part of the Spanish-speaking world — to recognise, not to say vos
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 5, p. 35
"you all" as the object — the shortest word in the set, and the one that stops at a border os
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 90, p. 337
"you" as the object — and the sentence it makes, which is the one people actually need te quiero
explicit focus: grammar, etymology; Chapter 85, p. 323
you're welcome (literally "of nothing") de nada
explicit focus: pronunciation, grammar, etymology; Chapter 7, p. 55
young — Latin iuvenis; English young is the inherited cousin, juvenile and junior are the borrowed ones, and June comes in only through Juno joven
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 371, p. 1651
your first sentence built from parts — and the rule that languages take no article Hablo español
explicit focus: grammar, etymology, usage and culture; Chapter 22, p. 127
Your First Verb, and the Form That Means I
chapter topic; Chapter 16, p. 111
Your own line — the first writing with no model
script and writing topic; explicit focus: writing; Chapter 337, p. 1373
youth; young people la juventud
explicit focus: etymology; Chapter 545, p. 2987

Z

zero — Arabic sifr, empty; English took the same word twice, as zero and as cipher cero
explicit focus: pronunciation, etymology; Chapter 344, p. 1411

Zero, Halves and Dozens
chapter topic; Chapter 344, p. 1411